3269 agreement was entered into, and I still insist, when it was called in the criminal case and explained this way to the court there, that my reference to pages 938 and 939 shows that Mr. Kelleher, after he understood it, said, "That is correct—the Government makes no contention that the sale by Newark to Calvin Tomkins, and then the resale, with the price control still attaching, is illegal". And I think it plainly was not illegal.

Justice STEPHENS. What is the next agreement you wish to explain to the Court—so we will have this matter fully before us.

Mr. STEFFEN. I should like to show you, Mr. Tomkins, Government's Exhibit 365 for identification, which purports to be a consent, under date of January 3, 1939, by the United States Gypsum Company, signed by Mr. Keady, that Newark could sell to the Calvin Tomkins Company.

Justice JACKSON. May I ask one question, Mr. Steffen?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes.

Justice JACKSON. Is it your idea that if, as Mr. Bromley has argued, there was a concession on the part of the Government in the criminal case, that it is binding on the Government here?

Mr. STEFFEN. We would be willing to abide by it if it has been made. I don't know that we are required to, but I think that in good faith we should do that.

Justice STEPHENS. You are contending now that 3270 despite the concession, if there was a concession ——

Mr. STEFFEN (interposing). I don't think there was such a concession—certainly not as Mr. Bromley construes it.

Justice JACKSON. And your thought is, that if there were such a concession, you are bound by it here?

Mr. STEFFEN. I am perfectly willing to be bound by what Mr. Kelleher said.

Mr. BROMLEY. Didn't you hear what he said when I read it?

Mr. STEFFEN. Just a minute. I want to make it clear that in the criminal case, under the indictment there was only a very limited charge which had to do with control of resale prices by manufacturing distributors, and Calvin Tomkins Company was not a manufacturing distributor.

Mr. BROMLEY. You know that in the Bill of Particulars that Calvin Tomkins Company, in answer to our question, was designated as a manufacturing distributor—erroneously, that is true, but that is the way the point arose. So there was a definite charge on this Calvin Tomkins matter, both in the indictment and in the Bill of Particulars, and that is why we had the conference at the bench, and that is why I raised the point, and I never could get Kelleher at the bench to withdraw the charge, and it wasn't until my cross-examination at pages 938 and 939 that he finally withdrew it. But it was directly in issue under the indictment, as amplified by the Bill of 3271 Particulars.

Mr. STEFFEN. My point, prior to being interrupted, was that the Calvin Tomkins Company, as a fact, was not a manufacturing distributor. As Mr. Tomkins has said, they have simply sold, and were acting either as a selling agent for the Newark people, or they bought from the Newark people and resold.

The situation here is that Mr. Bromley would like to treat them as though they were a selling agent. The Newark Plaster Company has treated them as though they were a company to whom they sold, and then there was a resale.

I say that our position at this moment is that we are interested in the control of the price of board sold to dealers and we don't care, for the moment, whether it has been sold through Calvin Tomkins, as an agent, or sold to Calvin Tomkins and resold to dealers. For the purpose of introducing this testimony, however, we are going to take Mr. Bromley's position, and say that they are estopped to deny, as I see it, both Newark and USG, that Calvin Tomkins and Newark are one and the same; whatever evidence of control there is certainly comes in.

On the other hand, when we come to final argument, and there is a question of whether or not Mr. Bromley's license agreement covers and affords protection to sales of this character, we will argue very clearly that it does not. A licensor may not, by virtue of just saying, "We have 3272 licensed A, and we are going to treat B as though A and B were one"—say that we can control in any fashion the resale price of B.

It seems to me that that type of transaction is completely out from under the license agreement. But it is not an issue at this moment.

For the purposes of this discussion, we are prepared to treat the Newark people and the Calvin Tomkins people just as both the defendants have, as though they were one company.

I want to point out, however, that Exhibit No. 365 very definitely says that they also had in mind the idea of selling, that is that Newark would sell to Calvin Tomkins. The first paragraph there says, "Which includes the right to effect sales of said gypsum plasterboard or gypsum wallboard to your said wholly owned subsidiary at a maximum discount of twelve and one-half per cent (12½%) from your regular price to your dealer trade f. o. b. mill."

Now it is subterfuge, one way or the other.

All that I ask is that the whole facts be presented to the Court, and I think it is the Court's decision, when the time comes, as to what the actual relationship is, and what the effect is to be.

I therefore now offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 362, 363, and 365. Exhibit 364 has already been admitted as Exhibit 16.

Mr. BROMLEY. I renew my objection to all of them
3273 on the ground that they are immaterial and incompetent, and move to strike Exhibit 16.

In that connection it seems to me it might well be that these documents would have some materiality as showing the general situation, and all I am trying to get from Government counsel is a statement whether, in connection with the offer of this testimony, he is going to claim, and therefore is offering these exhibits to prove, that the sale by Calvin Tomkins of patented gypsum board was unlawful because it was, in effect, a resale at prices unlawfully controlled by United States Gypsum?

I still don't know whether he contends that or not.

Justice STEPHENS. Well, it seems to the Court that he is contending that it is illegal, and that is what he intends to contend at the close of the case, and yet he states that he is willing to abide by the concession that it was not illegal, if there was a concession to that effect made on the criminal trial.

Mr. STEFFEN. The concession was not that broad.

Justice STEPHENS. I said "if there was a concession."

The Court thinks it ought to read the material at pages 938 and 939 in the criminal proceeding, and also the material referred to by Mr. Steffen at page 886.

Will you hand them to the Marshal, please, and let the Court take its usual morning recess and look 3274 at them? If it won't harm the record, mark where the material in question commences and ends, if you will?

Let the Court be in session for a moment. What do you say, Mr. Bromley, to Mr. Steffen's contention that the issues in the criminal case were much more limited than here, and therefore the concession may not be applicable?

Mr. BROMLEY. I say that both the indictment and the Bill of Particulars directly charged that the resales by Calvin Tomkins were illegal because they constituted the same kind of resale price fixing as was the heart of the indictment.

(A copy of the transcript of testimony in the criminal trial, containing the matter referred to by counsel, was handed to the Court.)

Justice STEPHENS. The first passage is at page 858?

Mr. BROMLEY. 886 is where Mr. Steffen quoted from.

Justice STEPHENS. 886 is one of them?

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, beginning at line 6 and running to line 18.

Justice STEPHENS. What is the other?

Mr. BROMLEY. Page 938, beginning at line 13, and ending on page 939, at line 8.

Justice STEPHENS. Thank you. We will be in recess ——

Mr. BROMLEY (interposing). May I, before the recess, call your Honors' attention to the fact that although Mr. Steffen has only marked a few lines on page 886, 3275 the discussion which we had at the bench runs over for several more pages.

Justice JACKSON. Subsequent to page 886?

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, your Honor, right along, and the court took the view, strangely enough, that the thing was illegal, but since the Government didn't press it, it went out of the case.

Justice STEPHENS. We will now be in recess.

(Thereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed.)

Justice STEPHENS. The Judges have read the material in the criminal record, the record of the criminal case, handed up by counsel, references to which are already in the court reporter's notes, and it seems to all three of us, Mr. Steffen, that there was a clear concession there by Mr. Kelleher that there was nothing illegal under the Sherman Act in respect of the sale by Newark through Tomkins, whether it was a wholly-owned subsidiary, agent, or what-not.

Since you have stated that you feel bound by that concession, it seems to us that that takes that issue out of the case.

We think, however, that these exhibits may be received in evidence to show the general relationship of all of the parties, subject to that concession.

That is the ruling of the Court.

3276 The motion to strike Exhibit 16 is denied in order that the exhibit may remain in the record as Exhibit 364, for the purpose of showing the general relationship of the parties; otherwise it is in the record subject to the concession.

(The documents marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 362 to 365, inclusive, were received in evidence.)

Justice STEPHENS. I might add that we have noted, Mr. Steffen, and considered your contention that the issues in the criminal case were more limited, but the charge in the criminal case, although it was limited to resale price fixing by manufacturing distributors, was nevertheless a charge of resale price fixing, that is the charge of the illegal fixing of prices to dealers; and that is the charge here. It seems to us that the concession is really on all fours with the situation here.

Mr. STEFFEN. If I might, I should like to make a very short statement.

We have visualized the complaint in paragraph 45 (a), as stating broadly a control of prices to dealers, and that is the principal charge which we find in the complaint. This is a control of dealers' prices.

In paragraph 45 (e), we say, "concertedly inducing and coercing manufacturing distributors to resell," and so forth, and that is a separate type of restraint. That 3277 is, A can sell to B, and if he coerces B to resell at a given price, that is a restraint in itself.

If A sells to B at a fixed price, that is the type of restraint charged in paragraph 45 (a).

Now what we say as respects this testimony is that these exhibits are clearly admissible for purposes of showing a violation of 45 (a), a control of prices to dealers. All the board manufactured by Newark has been sold, and it would be a peculiar circumstance if they could get a wholly-owned subsidiary, and then sell through that and then say, "Well, as far as our control of prices to dealers is concerned, there is no violation." Of course, obviously that is a violation.

Now the narrow question of whether there was a control of the resale price of the Calvin Tomkins Company as being a company that had bought from Newark and then resold, is charged in 45 (e), and it does not apply to the Calvin Tomkins Company—we are agreed upon that. That is, we do not regard the Calvin Tomkins Company, for the purposes of this case, as a manufacturing distributor, which is what paragraph 45 (e) says.

But whether it is charged or isn't charged, I think it is essential that we get the evidence before the Court, as we have attempted, as to just what the relationship between the three parties is.

Justice JACKSON. Well, the Court has ruled that 3278 you may do that.

Mr. STEFFEN. And I think we should proceed on that score.

Justice STEPHENS. Well, the Court has ruled that you may show what the general relationship of the parties was for the purpose of the entire case, but the Court is of the view clearly that there was a concession in the criminal case that there was nothing illegal under the Sherman Act about the sale by Newark to or through Tomkins.

Mr. STEFFEN. I would like to draw this one distinction, that as I understood Mr. Kelleher, it was that he was not pressing it in that case. Secondly, that there is a difference between saying that it is illegal and saying that it is protected under the license agreements.

Mr. Bromley's defense, of course, is that this board was sold under the license agreements, and that the General Electric case permits them to fix prices, resale prices, or prices of any sort. Whether or not this is the type of case contemplated in the General Electric case I very gravely doubt, and wish to reserve the privilege of arguing that at the conclusion, as a matter of law.

Justice STEPHENS. Well, the Court isn't ruling now on the question of whether or not the license agreements were used as the Government charges, as a cloak, or were used in a manner which takes them beyond the purview of the ruling of the Supreme Court in the General Elec-3279 tric case.

Of course there is a distinction between what might be legal between the parties to a license agreement, as to who would be bound by it, as to whom it might be said to apply—that is a private agreement that can be entered into by the parties to license agreements—and, on the other hand, the question of whether or not those arrangements violate the Sherman Act.

But the point that it seems to us the Government has bound itself on is that the Government, knowing in the criminal case, as it knows here, what these contracts between these parties were, the United States Gypsum Company, the Newark Company and the Tomkins Company, nevertheless conceded that so far as the Sherman Act was concerned, there wasn't a violation of law, at least the Government was not going to contend that there was a violation of law in the sale by Newark to or through Tomkins.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think that it was the latter that the Government was not there contending, and as I have explained we are not here contending that that is a direct violation.

What we are contending is that it is not protected under the license agreements.

But I will proceed with the examination.

Justice STEPHENS. Very well.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I now wish to refer you, Mr. Tomkins, to 3280 Government's Exhibit 365, the next to the last paragraph thereof, stating, "It is agreed that this consent may be withdrawn by us at any time, by giving you written notice to that effect".

Are you familiar with that?

A. Yes.

Q. And it was your understanding that the United States Gypsum Company could withdraw their consent at any time?

A. Yes, we signed this agreement.

Q. And is that the usual way that they gave you consent to sell through manufacturing distributors?

Mr. BROMLEY. I object to that as calling for a conclusion, and as incompetent.

Mr. STEFFEN. I am asking for the practice, your Honor, as to whether they ordinarily conditioned their consent by the proposition that it could be withdrawn by them at any time.

Justice STEPHENS. Well, if the objection is insisted upon, it does seek a legal conclusion. The question of what method they used in providing for a consent or withdrawal of consent would have to be shown by each contract. The witness cannot testify to the general practice. That is a legal conclusion. The objection is sustained.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Is it your understanding that the United States Gypsum Company could withdraw its consent not only with respect to your sales to Calvin Tomkins, but with 3281 respect to your sales to any other manufacturing distributor?

A. I would have to see those consents to answer that question.

Q. At the time, Mr. Tomkins, that Newark took over the Kelley Plasterboard Company, did you have any discussions with Mr. Kelley concerning sales to so-called manufacturing distributors?

Justice STEPHENS. Will you read that question?

(Thereupon, the pending question was read by the reporter.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Do you know what I mean by the term "manufacturing distributors"?

A. Yes, I think I am clear on that.

Q. Now will you answer my question?

A. Prior to the time we took over the Kelley Plasterboard Company I had had discussions with Mr. Kelley in the course of which he had disclosed the agreements or understandings he had with some of the so-called manufacturing distributors to sell them board.

Q. And what was your understanding of that arrangement, or of those arrangements?

Mr. BROMLEY. Were they in writing, may I inquire, if the Court pleases?

The WITNESS. I am not sure that they were, Mr.
3282 Bromley. I know that Kelley was selling, prior to our acquisition of the company, certain manufacturing distributors. Whether it was a matter of written contract or not, I don't know.

Justice STEPHENS. By a "manufacturing distributor", you mean, I assume, Mr. Tomkins, a person or company who made plaster but bought board and then sold both of them?

The WITNESS. That is right.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Could you name the distributors that Kelley was selling to when you took over the Kelley Plasterboard Company?

A. Kelley was selling to the Oakfield Gypsum Products Company, the Paragon Plaster Company, and the Structural Gypsum Company.

Q. Were they selling to the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company at that time, do you remember?

A. No, I do not think they were.

Q. Now what did Mr. Kelley say to you concerning those transactions?

A. Well, I don't remember specifically what he said to me as to any of those transactions. The understanding I had ——

Mr. BROMLEY (interposing). Just a moment, I object to his understanding, if the Court pleases.

Mr. STEFFEN. I insist upon his understanding, your Honor. Mr. Tomkins has purchased the Kelley 3283 Plasterboard Company and his understanding is very relevant as to that type of business.

Justice STEPHENS. The question is not as to its relevancy, but as to its competency.

You are not required or expected to remember, Mr. Tomkins, the very words which you said or exchanged with Mr. Kelley.

The WITNESS. I understand that.

Justice STEPHENS. If you can remember the substance and effect of the conversations, you should state that. But if what you mean is exactly what you say, that you don't remember the substance and effect of the conversations, but that you remember only what your understanding was, in the sense of an inference from them, that is not competent.

Do you remember the substance and effect of the talks you had with him?

The WITNESS. Yes, I remember the effect, I don't remember the conversations.

Justice STEPHENS. Tell what the substance and effect were.

The WITNESS. Simply that Kelley had arrangements with these manufacturing distributors for which he had secured consents from the United States Gypsum Company, and which permitted him to sell under the license agreements to these companies at certain discounts.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. The discounts were 12½ and 15 per cent?

A. 12½ per cent for lath, and 15 per cent for 3284 wallboard.

Q. Did he state whether that was good business or not? It provided an additional tonnage, did it?

A. It increased his volume of sales, yes.

Q. And was it your understanding that the manufacturing distributors would resell at any given price?

Mr. BROMLEY. I object to that as incompetent.

Justice STEPHENS. Will you read that?

(Thereupon, the pending question was read by the reporter.)

Justice STEPHENS. Well, I believe, Mr. Steffen, that that is incompetent.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Did you have any conversation with Mr. Kelley as to the price at which the manufacturing distributors would resell?

A. I don't recall any such conversation, no, sir.

Q. And what was your understanding?

Mr. BROMLEY. Same objection.

Justice STEPHENS. The objection is sustained.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. In this period between May, 1937, and January 3, 1939, did you write to the United States Gypsum Company for further consents, do you recall?

A. I believe such letters were written. Whether I wrote them or not, I don't know.

3285 Q. I show you now Government's Exhibit No. 366 for identification, which purports to be a copy of a letter, under date of July 8, 1937, addressed to the United States Gypsum Company, and signed G. A. Wileman.

Justice JACKSON. Is that in our file here?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes, if you will just skip one.

Justice STEPHENS. That will be what number, Mrs. Gillette?

Mrs. GILLETTE. Exhibit 366.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Who is Mr. G. A. Wileman, if you know?

A. Mr. Wileman was the office manager of the Kelley Plasterboard Company.

Q. Is he still with your company now?

A. No, he is not.

Q. Do you recognize that letter as a copy of a letter that Mr. Wileman sent to United States Gypsum Company?

A. I cannot recognize this letter, it has no signature or identifying marks, but I believe such a letter was sent.

Q. Now I want to show you Government's Exhibit No. 367, which purports to be a carbon copy of a reply to the letter of July 8, 1937, this letter being addressed to Mr. Fred Tomkins, under date of July 14, 1937.

Do you recognize that letter?

A. The same answer applies as to the last letter. It is unsigned. I believe this letter was received.

3286 Q. I now show you Government's Exhibit 368 for identification, which purports to be a copy of a letter signed by you, addressed to Mr. Keady, under date of July 21, 1937.

Do you recognize that, Mr. Tomkins, as a copy of a letter which you sent Mr. Keady?

A. Yes, I recognize that.

Q. Do you recall whether you got consents from Mr. Keady to sell to the Structural Gypsum Division of the American Cyanamide & Chemical Company, and the Oakfield Gypsum Products Company, as requested in the letter?

A. Yes, we did receive those consents.

Q. I now want to show you Government's Exhibit No. 369, which purports to be a letter, or rather, a copy of a letter, signed by you, addressed to United States Gypsum Company, under date of September 23, 1938, and ask if you can identify that letter.

I have shown you, I find, the carbon copy. I also have the original and I would like to show you that. This is the original of Government's Exhibit No. 369.

Justice STEPHENS. Do you wish to substitute it for the copy?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes, I do.

Justice STEPHENS. Then withdraw the copy, Mrs. Gillette, and return it to counsel, and mark the original as Government's Exhibit No. 369.

3287 (Thereupon, the original of Government's Exhibit No. 369 for identification was substituted for the carbon copy thereof.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Have you examined Government's Exhibit 369?

A. Yes.

Q. And is that your signature, Mr. Tomkins?

A. It is.

Q. I now show you Government's Exhibit No. 370—this is not in your files, your Honors. I find I have the original of the consent. Government's Exhibit 370 purports to be a consent given by Mr. Keady of the United States Gypsum Company, addressed to the Kelley Plasterboard Company under date of October 3, 1938, in answer to Mr. Tomkin's letter of September 23, 1938.

Justice STEPHENS. Do you have photostats of that?

Mr. STEFFEN. I do not have photostats of that, but I will obtain them.

Justice STEPHENS. Will you please furnish them later so that the Court may have them?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes, your Honor, we will.

Justice STEPHENS. Will you hand to the Court, Mrs. Gillette, so that the Court can see it, that exhibit?

Mr. BROMLEY. If we could see it—we may have photostats that we can furnish to the Court.

3288 Justice STEPHENS. Thank you.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 370 was handed to the Court for inspection and then handed to Mr. Bromley after examination by the Court.)

Justice STEPHENS. Did I understand you to say, Mr. Bromley, that the defendants might have photostats of this exhibit.

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, your Honor, we find that we now have three photostats of Government's Exhibit 370 for identification.

Justice STEPHENS. That will save you the necessity of having to make them, then, Mr. Steffen. Thank you, Mr. Bromley.

(Photostatic copies of Government's Exhibit No. 370 for identification were handed to the Court and Government counsel by Mr. Bromley.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Have you examined Government's Exhibit 370 for identification, Mr. Tomkins?

A. I have.

Q. Do you recognize it as a letter which you received?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is your signature at the foot, is it?

A. It is.

Mr. STEFFEN. We now offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 366, 367, 368, 369 and 370.

Justice STEPHENS. Is there any objection?

3289 Mr. BROMLEY. May I see the original exhibits?

Justice STEPHENS. Yes, hand them to Mr. Bromley, Mrs. Gillette.

(Thereupon, the originals of the exhibits referred to were handed to Mr. Bromley.)

Mr. BROMLEY. May it please the Court, I make no objection as to competency, in the sense of lack of identification. I do, however, under the "complete evidence" rule, object to Exhibits 366, 367 and 368, on the ground that these letters were all answered, and consents given, and that it is unfair and improper to offer these exhibits without the answers, and especially in view of the fact that Exhibit 368 has a penciled note on it, "No answer as yet", leaving the inference that these requests for consents were never acceded to.

Therefore, unless the Government will stipulate, or produce the answers, all of which it has, to these requests, I object under the "complete evidence" rule.

Justice STEPHENS. Will you produce those, Mr. Steffen?

Mr. STEFFEN. I don't think we have them. I would like to ask Mr. Bromley to produce them.

Mr. BROMLEY. I will be glad to hand them to you to produce.

I now hand you photostats of the documents which were returned to the Government under subpoena, these photostats having been made at the time we delivered 3290 the originals of these documents to the Department of Justice, several years ago.

Mr. STEFFEN. In the course of those years, they may have disappeared, we don't have them, your Honor.

Mr. BROMLEY. Mr. Collins says I have been too generous in giving you all of our copies—give us some back.

Mr. FINCK. If the Court please, on behalf of Baker and National, I object to Exhibits 368, 369 and 370 in so far as they relate to perforated lath.

Justice STEPHENS. Well, in view of the ruling of the majority of the Court, that objection will be overruled.

Mr. FINCK. I just wanted to record it.

Justice STEPHENS. Surely, you are entitled to do that.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I take it, if the Court please, that there isn't any necessity of continuing with these objections in view of the ruling made, because our exception will be saved all the way through.

Justice STEPHENS. The record may show that Celotex, Texas and National have their continuing objection to evidence concerning perforated lath and metallized board.

The objection now made with respect to perforated lath is overruled, consistent with the Court's ruling on the reserved objections.

Mr. STEFFEN. As I understand it, the only objection now made is as to the completeness of these documents, and Mr. Bromley has handed us copies of certain 3291 documents.

If we might take the noon recess at this time, we will examine them and clear that up after we reconvene.

Justice STEPHENS. Yes, that may be done.

Justice GARRETT. Perhaps you might like to change the numbering of the exhibits already offered, in order to keep them in chronological sequence.

Justice STEPHENS. That might be done by giving "A" numbers to these additional exhibits.

The Court will now take its noon recess.

(Thereupon, at 12:15 o'clock p. m., a recess was taken until 1:45 o'clock p. m. of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION

3292 (The trial was resumed at 1:45 o'clock p.m., pursuant to recess.)

Justice STEPHENS. Proceed.

Thereupon, Frederick Tomkins, the witness on the stand at the time of recess, resumed his testimony as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Resumed).

Mr. STEFFEN. At recess we had offered Government's Exhibits 366, 367, 368, 369, and 370.

Mr. Bromley supplied us with certain letters which we have examined during the recess, and the first of these is a letter dated July 16, 1937 ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). Perhaps, Mr. Steffen, we had better wait until Mrs. Gillette gets here so we can have these marked in regular order.

Mr. KNUFF. I believe she was here, Your Honor. I think I saw her going down the hall a minute ago.

Justice STEPHENS. Well, we will wait just a moment, that is to say, if you have something to mark. If you haven't, go ahead.

Mr. STEFFEN. All I have is a photostatic copy supplied to me, and it was supplied upon the basis of being a genuine letter from the United States Gypsum Company addressed to Mr. Frederick Tomkins, under date 3293 of July 16, 1937, and in reply to Mr. Wileman's letter of July 8, 1937.

Justice STEPHENS. Here is Mrs. Gillette now, if you wish to have that marked.

Mr. STEFFEN. We are very glad to offer that as Exhibit 366-A, as a reply to Mr. Wileman's letter which is Exhibit 366.

Your Honors do not have copies of it unless Mr. Bromley has supplied you with them.

Justice STEPHENS. It may be marked Exhibit 366-A. That will be the most convenient way of marking, because otherwise the Court Reporter's records of this morning will not be correct.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 366-A for Identification.)

Justice JACKSON. That is in answer to Exhibit 366, is it?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes, Your Honor.

We were also furnished with a photostatic copy of a letter dated July 26, 1937, from the United States Gypsum Company to Mr. Frederick Tomkins, in reply to his letter of July 21, which is Government's Exhibit 368. We ask that that letter of July 26, 1937, be marked Exhibit 368-A.

Justice STEPHENS. It may be so marked.

(The document referred to was marked as Gov-
3294 ernment's Exhibit No. 368-A for Identification.)

Justice STEPHENS. Are there copies of that for the Court?

Mr. COLLINS. Yes, sir.

(Copies of Exhibit 368-A handed to the Court.)

Mr. STEFFEN. I would like now to offer 366, 366-A, 367, 368, and 368-A. The one objection that was made to those exhibits, of lack of completeness—which we doubt is a valid objection—has now been met, and we are offering all five exhibits.

Justice STEPHENS. Do you have any objection now, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. BROMLEY. Only the usual one.

Justice STEPHENS. Exhibits 366, 366-A, 367, 368, and 368-A are received in evidence subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 366, 366-A, 367, 368, and 368-A, were received in evidence.)

Mr. STEFFEN. The objection was further made that the letter of September 23, 1938, which is Exhibit 369, was incomplete, and Mr. Bromley supplied us with another letter dated September 23, 1938, signed by Mr. Tom-3295 kins, addressed to the United States Gypsum Company, which has to do with the same matter. He further supplied us with a letter, a second letter dated October 3, 1938, which has to do with the same matter as Government's Exhibit 370, which is dated October 3, 1938.

I don't believe that the Government's exhibits, as offered that is, 369 and 370, can be criticized for being incomplete. Exhibit 369 is a request for a consent to sell. Exhibit 370 is a letter granting a formal consent to sell. It seems to me, while we have no serious objections to the two letters offered by Mr. Bromley, I think they are more properly a matter for his case.

Justice GARRETT. And so you do not offer them?

Mr. STEFFEN. We do not, at this time, offer the two additional letters which Mr. Bromley furnished us.

Justice STEPHENS. Was one of them a response to the letter of September 23, Exhibit 369?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes, I think it is, Your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. Well, it probably would be more convenient for the Court if they were all in at this time, if you have no serious objection.

Mr. STEFFEN. I have no objection, Your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. Let that be marked Exhibit No. 369-A.

3296 (The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 369-A for Identification.)

Mr. STEFFEN. I see no grounds for offering 369-A, which we will call the letter of September 23, 1938, which Mr. Bromley gave me. It raises a discussion which is more appropriate to Newark and USG than to any issues in this case.

Justice STEPHENS. Perhaps I misunderstood you. I asked you if you had a response to the September 23, 1938, letter, Exhibit No. 369, and I understood you to say yes, and I suggested that you offer that.

Mr. STEFFEN. What I thought, Your Honor, was that the letter of October 3, 1938, or the consent, is a response.

Justice STEPHENS. And the letter of October 3 is Exhibit 370?

Mr. STEFFEN. That is right.

Justice STEPHENS. Have you any objection to 369 as incomplete, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, Your Honor. An inspection of the second letter of September 23, 1938, shows that Exhibit 369 was but an enclosure. Therefore, Exhibit 369, which he is now offering, is nothing but an enclosure in another letter. What I handed him was the chief letter, to which Exhibit 369 was annexed as an enclosure.

3297 Justice STEPHENS. I see.

Do you object to offering that, Mr. Steffen?

Mr. STEFFEN. I don't know what Mr. Bromley wants it in for, and I am suspicious, to be perfectly frank. I don't think it is a serious matter one way or the other.

Mr. BROMLEY. I do. I think where a letter is enclosed with another letter, and you offer merely the enclosure, that you ought to offer the covering letter along with it.

Mr. STEFFEN. The letter we have marked Exhibit 369 is a complete letter, and it doesn't make any difference whether it was enclosed with a dozen letters or was simply a single letter.

Justice STEPHENS. If it is an enclosure referred to in some other letter with which it was sent, it seems that the Court ought to be informed.

Mr. STEFFEN. We will be very glad to inform the Court, and will offer at this time as Exhibit 369-A, a copy of a letter from Kelley Plasterboard to USG, dated September 23, 1938, which encloses the request, which is Government's Exhibit 369, of the same date.

Justice STEPHENS. This says, in the first paragraph, "We enclose herewith copy of your letter of September 16".

Mr. STEFFEN. Do you have that, Mr. Bromley? If we are going to start enclosing, we might as well put them all in.

Mr. COLLINS. That is already in evidence, I be-3298 lieve.

Justice STEPHENS. Does that refer to the one of September 23?

Mr. STEFFEN. I think that is in evidence, as Mr. Collins points out.

Justice JACKSON. That is, that 369-A is in evidence?

Mr. STEFFEN. No, the letter referred to in Exhibit 369-A as being dated September 16.

Justice STEPHENS. But what we were talking about a moment ago was the letter of September 23, Exhibit 369. Mr. Bromley objects on the ground that that is an enclosure, and you have offered 369-A as the letter in which 369 was enclosed; and it refers, in the first paragraph, not to the letter of September 23, Exhibit 369, but to a letter of September 16.

Mr. STEFFEN. You will find in the second paragraph, the second sentence ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). I thank you, I am sorry. I find it now.

Exhibits 368-A, 366-A, and 369-A are offered in evidence. Is there any objection to them?

Mr. BROMLEY. Only the usual objection.

Justice STEPHENS. The exhibits are received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit
3299 No. 369-A was received in evidence. Government's Exhibits 366-A and 368-A were previously received in evidence.)

Justice STEPHENS. Is this letter of September 16, which is referred to in the first paragraph of Exhibit 369-A, in evidence?

Justice GARRETT. That seems to be Exhibit 366-A.

Justice STEPHENS. That is right.

Justice GARRETT. The identification of these exhibits that you have now offered is waived, I suppose?

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, sir.

Justice STEPHENS. There is no objection made on the ground of identification.

Exhibit 369 is received in evidence, subject to the same reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 369 was received in evidence.)

Justice STEPHENS. Exhibit 370 has apparently not yet been offered.

Mr. STEFFEN. To make the record entirely clear, the letter of September 23, 1938, which is 369-A, and a 3300 photostatic copy of which was supplied to me by Mr. Bromley, refers to a letter of September 16 as being enclosed, and I have a copy of the letter of September 16, 1938, which was enclosed. I am not clear whether it was admitted in evidence to begin with, as one of the very early exhibits, or not.

At any event, I now also show the letter of September 16, 1938—and I have the original of the letter of September 23, 1938, which is Exhibit 369A—I can show both of those to the witness.

Justice STEPHENS. You may do so.

Mr. STEFFEN. And I would like to substitute the original of Exhibit 369-A for the photostat of Exhibit 369-A, and have the enclosure of September 16, 1938, marked as Exhibit 369-B.

Justice STEPHENS. That may be done.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 369-B for Identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Will you look at Exhibit 369-B, Mr. Tomkins, and state whether or not you recognize Mr. Knode's signature?

A. Yes, I do.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think that Exhibit 369-B is substantially the same as Exhibit 32, which was admitted in evi-3301 dence on the first day, but Exhibit 32 is dated January 3, 1939. This is offered simply for the purposes of completeness.

Justice STEPHENS. Very well. Will you furnish the Court with photostats of it so our file will be complete?

Mr. STEFFEN. We will.

Justice STEPHENS. Will you hand us that, Mr. Marshal?

(Copies of Exhibit 369-B handed to the Court.)

Justice STEPHENS. Exhibit 369-B has not been acted upon, is that correct?

Mr. STEFFEN. Exhibits 369-B and 370 and 370-A have not been acted upon yet.

Mr. Bromley suggests that I offer Exhibit 369-B alone, first.

Mr. BROMLEY. We make only the usual objection to that exhibit.

In the interest of clarity of the record, I should like to state that Exhibit 369-B is a royalty-free perforated lath license, dated September 16, 1938, running from USG to the Kelley Company. That license was not assignable. Since it ran to the Kelley Company, after the merger it was necessary to execute another license. That was done in exactly the same terms, only the second license ran to the Newark Company instead of the Kelley Company. That second license is Exhibit 32.

Justice STEPHENS. Thank you for that state-
3302 ment.

You are now offering Exhibit 369-B?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes.

Justice STEPHENS. It may be received subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit 369-B, was received in evidence.)

Mr. STEFFEN. And we offer Exhibits 370 and 370-A.

Justice STEPHENS. Has Exhibit 370-A been identified?

Mr. STEFFEN. It was handed to us by the defendants.

Justice GARRETT. Exhibit 369-B is to be supplied for our records?

Mr. KNUFF. Yes, Your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. Is there any objection to Exhibit 370-A?

Mr. BROMLEY. Only the usual one.

Justice STEPHENS. And you make only the usual objection to Exhibit 370 also?

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, Your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. Exhibits 370 and 370-A are received in evidence subject to the usual reservation with respect to the declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents referred to, marked as Government's Exhibits 370 and 370-A, were received in 3303 evidence.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I would like to ask you some general questions about your business, Mr. Tomkins, now that we have gotten the various corporations straightened out.

As I understand it, the Newark Plaster Company has been in business for around a hundred years, either the present company or its predecessor?

A. That is right.

Q. Where did you get your raw gypsum?

A. We secured it from several sources, principally in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and Provinces in Canada.

Q. Do you still have those sources?

A. No, we have no sources owned by the company, for gypsum rock, at the present time.

Q. When did you dispose of them?

A. We disposed of the gypsum property owned by the Newark Plaster Company in about 1934 or 1935.

Q. And where are you getting ——

A. (Interposing.) I am not sure of that date, it may have been later.

Q. Where do you buy your raw gypsum now?

A. Well, we are unable to buy any raw gypsum now.

Q. Where have you bought your raw gypsum
3304 since 1934 or 1935?

A. We have bought some from the Canadian plants of the United States Gypsum Company, some from the plants of the National Gypsum Company in Canada.

Justice GARRETT. Just a little louder, Mr. Witness, please.

The WITNESS. Yes, sir.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. How long has it been since you have been unable to buy any gypsum?

A. I believe the last gypsum rock we were able to bring in by steamer was in 1941.

Q. The Government has taken over the vessels, or what is the reason?

A. At that time we were unable to secure vessels at a price that we could afford to pay.

Q. Do you buy any gypsum from the American Cyanimid Company?

A. We buy calcium sulphate from the American Cyanimid Company.

Q. What is the difference between calcium sulphate and gypsum?

A. Calcium sulphate is calcined gypsum.

Q. And your gypsum rock becomes calcined gypsum, does it not, after it goes through the initial process?

A. After it is processed, yes, sir.

Q. So that the two are substantially the same commodity in the calcined form?

A. No, the material we buy from the American Cyanimid Company is a completely finished, processed material. The material we bring in from Canada is a crude rock, a mineral.

Q. They have the same chemical content, once the rock has been calcined?

A. Well, if you process the rock from Canada, you come out with approximately the same chemically-composed material.

Q. That is what I was getting at. Are they the same price?

A. The rock and the calcined gypsum?

Q. The calcined gypsum that you make from the Nova Scotia rock, and the calcined gypsum that you procure from the American Cyanimid?

A. The price we pay American Cyanimid is substantially less than the price we would have paid for plaster if we had bought it from other companies.

Justice STEPHENS. Just a moment. Perhaps this is not important, but the Court wants to keep clear on the matter. The chemical constituents of the raw gypsum rock are not the same, are they, as the calcined gypsum, because one contains water and the other does not?

3306 The WITNESS. One contains more water than the other. They are quite different.

Justice STEPHENS. But the material you buy from the American Cyanimid Company, which you refer to as calcium sulphate, that is substantially the same as the material you make out of the raw gypsum rock when you can get it?

The WITNESS. That is correct. After we process the rock it is substantially the same.

Justice JACKSON. In other words, calcined rock is calcined rock, no matter where you get it?

The WITNESS. Yes, although the material we buy from American Cyanimid is synthetic.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. And you say it is materially cheaper than that made from the rock?

A. No, I say that we are buying it at a lower price than we could purchase plaster, calcined gypsum made from rock.

Q. That is what I thought I asked you.

Now where did the Kelley Plasterboard Company obtain its source of supply for making plasterboard?

A. It obtained it from various sources. It purchased some plaster which was called stucco, for board manufacture from the Oakfield Gypsum Company. It purchased some, I believe, from the United States Gyp-3307 sum Company. It purchased some from time to time from Structural Gypsum Company.

Q. And Structural Gypsum Company is what concern?

A. It is a division or subsidiary of American Cyanimid.

Q. And the gypsum that they bought, or the calcined gypsum they bought from Structural, was this synthetic product that you speak of?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now in May, 1937, when you bought the stock of the Kelley Plasterboard Company, were you at that time selling any plaster to the Kelley Plasterboard Company?

A. The Newark Plaster Company, I believe, was selling some white plaster to the Kelley Plasterboard Company at that time.

Q. Did you buy any board from the Kelley Plasterboard Company?

A. We did not.

Q. And did the Calvin Tomkins Company buy any board from them?

A. No, it did not.

Q. Then as I understand it, the Newark Plaster Company and Calvin Tomkins Company were not in the board business at all, up until—when was it?

A. The Newark Plaster Company was not in the board business directly until it merged with the Kelley 3308 Plasterboard Company in January of 1939.

The Calvin Tomkins Company was not in the board business until after that merger, when it received the consent or when Newark received the consent from United States Gypsum to sell to the Calvin Tomkins Company.

Q. What were the considerations that moved you to go into the board business?

A. We wanted to expand our business and to increase our volume in our Newark calcining plant.

Q. And your plant is at Delawanna, New Jersey, or was?

A. Which plant do you mean by "your plant"?

Q. The board plant.

A. The board plant of the Kelley Plasterboard Company was located at Delawanna.

Q. And your plaster manufacturing plant was at Newark, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now did Calvin Tomkins, or did you for Calvin Tomkins, consider buying board from USG or National or any of the other concerns, prior to May 1, 1937, on a basis of 12½ percent discount, or whatever you could arrange?

A. We never gave that any consideration.

Q. That was never considered at all?

A. Never.

Q. So that when you decided to go into the 3309 board business, you decided to go in and become a manufacturer, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. What products did the Calvin Tomkins Company sell during 1936, 1937, and 1938?

A. The principal product sold by the Tomkins Company was white plaster.

Q. That was made by Newark?
A. By Newark, yes.
Q. Did they handle any other products?
A. No, at that time I don't believe the Calvin Tomkins Company was selling any other products, except in minor quantities.
Q. What products were they?
A. They may have sold some cold-water paint products manufactured by the United States Calcimine Company. We may have sold some neat plaster, which Newark would have purchased from other manufacturers, or possibly a small amount of sanded plaster, but nothing that was of any importance to the Newark or the Calvin Tomkins companies.
Q. You didn't handle a general line of fiber boards and insulating boards?
A. Not at all.
Q. Now since January 3, 1939, has Calvin Tomkins broadened its line of sales?
3310 A. Well, Calvin Tomkins, subsequent to January 3, 1939, has been engaged in the sale of gypsum board as well as white plaster.
Q. And by "board", you mean gypsum lath, gypsum board, and gypsum block ——
A. (Interposing.) Not gypsum block.
Q. You don't make gypsum block?
A. Not now, we formerly did. We have not made gypsum block since 1929.
Q. You stated that the Kelley plant was located at Delawanna, and that is where they made board?
A. Yes.
Q. Did that plant burn down?
A. Yes, it did.
Q. When?
A. During March of 1940.
Q. And has it been rebuilt?
A. The Newark Plaster Company has built another gypsum board plant, but not at Delawanna.
Q. Where did they build it?
A. In South Kearny, New Jersey.
Q. How far is that from Newark?
A. About 7 or 8 miles.
Q. And when was that plant completed?
A. In December of 1940.

3311 Q. December, 1940?

A. Yes.

Q. And since that time, you have been making board and lath at your new plant?

A. The Newark Plaster Company has, yes.

Q. Do you also make perforated lath there?

A. Yes, we do.

Q. And metallized board?

A. Yes.

Q. That is, since December of 1940?

A. Yes. We haven't made that for a couple of years, though.

Q. I understand that. That is because of war conditions, is it not?

A. Yes.

Q. You can't get the foil to make the board?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now during the period from March, 1940, to December, 1940, where did you procure your board that you sold through Calvin Tomkins?

A. We purchased some board from National Gypsum Company, some from United States Gypsum Company, some from the Ebsary Gypsum Company.

Q. And that included perforated lath and metallized board?

3312 A. Yes.

Q. All three?

A. I don't know that we purchased any metallized board, I rather doubt that we did.

Q. Now since the Calvin Tomkins Company has been selling board, it has been selling board according to bulletin prices, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And they have sold all their lath and board according to the terms and conditions of the price bulletins, is that correct?

Mr. BROMLEY. I object to that unless that be limited to lath and board manufactured by the Newark Company.

Mr. STEFFEN. I am asking the broad question as to what they have been sellir , at.

Mr. BROMLEY. You said "under the terms and conditions of the bulletins". Now the bulletins only apply to board manufactured by the licensee.

Mr. STEFFEN. I will rephrase my question.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Calyin Tomkins has been selling board and lath on the same terms as are provided under the license bulletins, has it not?

A. Well, there have probably been exceptions to that. There has been no requirement to sell board at bulle-3313 tin prices for some time.

Q. What are you referring to when you say that?

A. A letter that we received from the United States Gypsum Company to the effect that no further price bulletins, selling bulletins, were going to be issued.

Q. Do you have the date of that?

A. I don't recall the exact date, no, sir.

Mr. STEFFEN. What was the date of that, please?

Mr. BROMLEY. July 8, 1941.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Since July 8, 1941, you have not been receiving bulletins from the United States Gypsum Company, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Prior to that time, from the time that Calvin Tomkins began selling board, it sold board at the same terms and upon the same conditions as were provided in the bulletins, with some possible exceptions, you say?

A. Yes, with some exceptions. During the period when we were purchasing board from other manufacturers, we followed the bulletin prices as a list of prices at which we sold. We were under no requirement to sell purchased board at bulletin prices.

Q. And when you say that, that is your construction of the law on the subject, is that correct?

3314 A. Yes, that is what I was advised.

Q. That is, by your counsel, Mr. DeWitt?

A. By my attorney, yes.

Q. In general terms, Mr. Tomkins, what amount of business do you do in board, a year, or were you doing in 1937, 1938, 1939 and 1940?

A. I have no recollection of our sales by years.

Q. You can give us generally your volume, can you not?

A. Generally. In 1937, we probably sold 30 million feet of board, all kinds of board.

Q. And in 1938?

A. About the same, that would be about the production of the Kelley plant.

Q. And you sold about the same amount in 1940?

A. In 1940 we sold less.

Q. That was because of the fire?

A. That was because of the fire.

Q. And in 1939, about the same as in 1937 and 1938?

A. I would say approximately. This is pure speculation on my part.

Q. You have only one mill, have you not? That is, you have the board mill and the plaster mill, but do you have any others?

A. The Newark Plaster Company has only those two manufacturing plants.

3315 Q. You have no mills throughout the country, as do the United States Gypsum Company and some of the larger producers?

A. No, sir.

Q. Why did you want to buy board, Mr. Tomkins, or go into the board business, in 1937?

A. We wanted to expand our business and increase the volume of gypsum produced at the Newark mill.

Q. Was it not difficult to sell plaster all alone?

A. We had never found it so.

Q. You sell a special grade of plaster, do you not?

A. I don't believe it is a special grade. We sell white plaster.

Q. And it is a high grade plaster, is it not?

A. Yes, you could call it a high grade plaster, I suppose.

Q. Do you find that you have increased your sales by being able to sell both plaster and board?

A. No, our sales of white plaster, I think, have steadily shrunk.

Q. Is that so?

A. Yes.

Justice JACKSON. Have what?

The WITNESS. Have shrunk.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

3316 Q. Your sales of board have been satisfactory, have they?

A. Not since the war, they have not.

Q. Well, now, certain of these consents that we were talking about in the last hour, had to do with perforated lath. Do you know why you were asking for consents concerning perforated lath in 1938?

A. I believe it was due to the change in the perforated lath license that we had. When we were notified of that change, I think the consent to sell was restricted, and we then felt we had to again write for a consent to sell these manufacturing distributors.

Q. I notice that each one of these consents states, "This consent may be withdrawn by us at any time", or "good until further notice", or something like that. It was true, was it not, that any of these consents were subject to immediate withdrawal if USG wanted to, at any time?

A. The ones I have seen in these exhibits were.

Q. That is correct.

Mr. BROMLEY. That is not correct.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Now in your sales to Structural and to Adamant and to Oakfield, did you furnish them with the prices at which they were to resell—I believe you testified that you did?

A. We sent price lists, price bulletins.

3317 Q. To each of the concerns I have mentioned, that is Oakfield, Structural, and Connecticut Adamant?

A. Yes.

Mr. O'DONNELL. Can we have the record clear as to by whom those bulletins were supposed to have been sent?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes.

When I say "you sent prices to Structural and Oakfield and Connecticut Adamant", did you mean that during the period from May 1, 1937, to January 3, 1939, they were sent in the name of the Kelley Plasterboard Company?

The WITNESS. Yes, they would have been sent in the name of the Kelley Company.

Mr. O'DONNELL. And by the Kelley Company?

Mr. STEFFEN. And by the Kelley Company?

The WITNESS. Yes, they would have been sent by the Kelley Company only, during that period.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. And thereafter, they were sent by and in the name of the Newark Plaster Company, is that correct?

A. No, the Calvin Tomkins Company.

Q. Excuse me, the Calvin Tomkins Company after that.

A. That is correct.

Mr. BROMLEY. I move to strike out the answer in so far as the Kelley Company is concerned. You don't 3318 know what the Kelley Company did, do you?

Mr. STEFFEN. He was President for two years while they were doing it.

The WITNESS. I understood that I was only testifying about the period from 1937 to 1939.

Mr. STEFFEN. That was the question.

Mr. BROMLEY. Do we have what price lists you are talking about?

Mr. STEFFEN. I will develop that, if I may, in some detail.

Justice STEPHENS. You were an officer of Kelley during those two years, were you not?

The WITNESS. I was President of Kelley during those two years.

Justice STEPHENS. The motion to strike is denied, then, so far as that part of the testimony is concerned.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I would like to show you Government's Exhibit 371, which purports to be a letter from Mr. Kelley addressed to Charles F. Henning, Vice President, United States Gypsum Company, under date of September 21, 1936. I would like to have you read that, and then I will ask you some questions concerning it.

(The document referred to was marked as Gov-
3319 ernment's Exhibit No. 371 for Identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. How long had you known Mr. Kelley, Mr. Tomkins?

A. I had known him for a number of years prior to 1937.

Q. And when you took over—you bought the stock from him—did you?

A. The Newark Plaster Company bought it.

Q. From Mr. Kelley.

A. I believe Mr. Kelley delivered the stock to us, he owned most of it.

Q. And did you take over the files of the Kelley Plasterboard Company when you took over the business?

A. Yes, all the books and records were left.

Q. And did you ever see that letter before, Mr. Tomkins?

A. Not to my knowledge. I may have seen it, but I have no recollection of it.

Q. Did you see a reply to that letter?

A. I don't recall seeing any reply.

Q. Is that Mr. Kelley's signature?

A. Yes, that is Mr. Kelley's signature.

Q. What was the practice at the time you came in and took over the Kelley Plasterboard Company, did USG at that time send prices directly to Oakfield and 3320 Structural and Connecticut?

A. Not to my knowledge, no, sir.

Q. And therefore you testified a minute ago that it was necessary for you to send the prices, is that right?

A. I don't ——

Mr. BROMLEY (interposing). I object to that question as incompetent. However, if the witness says he didn't testify to that, I withdraw the objection.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think I can develop it more clearly, Your Honor.

I will now show the witness Government's Exhibit 372, and also Exhibit 373, which purport to be carbon copies of letters signed by G. A. Wileman and addressed, one to Paragon Plaster & Supply Company, under date of June 7, 1937, and the other to the Structural Gypsum Division of the American Cyanimid and Chemical Corporation under the same date.

(The documents referred to were marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 372 and 373, respectively, for Identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. You identified, I believe, both of those letters before the criminal court? Do you now do so?

A. There is no identification on them. I assume 3321 these letters were sent by Mr. Wileman of the Kelley Plasterboard Company.

Q. Who was Mr. Wileman?

A. He was the Office Manager of the Kelley Plasterboard Company.

Q. And will you state to the Court what prices were being enclosed in the letters of June 7?

A. I don't know just what prices were being enclosed. Presumably they were the prices at which we were selling wallboard to ——

Q. (Interposing:) Was that your practice ——

Mr. BROMLEY (interposing). Let him finish the answer. He started to say to whom.

The WITNESS (continuing). —at which we were selling wallboard to dealers at the locations referred to in these letters.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. And when you say "we", you mean Calvin Tomkins?

A. No, I mean Kelley Plasterboard.

Q. That is, that Kelley Plasterboard was selling directly to dealers?

A. Yes, in 1937 Kelley Plasterboard was the only one selling directly to dealers.

Q. You have me all confused. So that the prices you have in mind there are the prices that the Kelley 3322 Plasterboard Company was charging to dealers in the sales area in question?

A. I assume that that is what the prices were.

Q. I think you have testified that that was your practice, did you not?

A. I don't know that I testified that it was our practice. I assume that it was done. I have these letters here showing it was done. Whether it was a practice that was followed consistently or not, I don't know.

Q. What we want to get clear is that the prices you sent to Oakfield and to Structural would be the prices at which you yourselves were selling?

A. Surely.

Q. And those prices were the prices specified in the United States Gypsum Company's price bulletins?

A. That is right.

Q. Did you have any conversation with Mr. Kelley concerning this matter of supplying prices to the manufacturing distributors at the time you took over the Kelley stock?

A. There again, I have no direct recollection of a conversation. I am sure that Mr. Kelley and I discussed it, and that he told me that he was making these sales to these manufacturing distributors, and that he felt it was good business to do so.

3323 Q. And he told you that they sold at the same prices that you were selling?

A. I don't follow you.

Q. That Kelley was selling?

A. He told me that these distributors sold at the same prices that Kelley was selling?

Q. Yes.

A. I don't know that he told me that.

Q. Was that your understanding, that they did?

Mr. BROMLEY. I object to that on the ground that it is incompetent as to what his understanding was.

Mr. STEFFEN. Mr. Tomkins is a defendant, and his understanding is very material.

Justice STEPHENS. Well, of course, you are proceeding under Rule 43, but where you are proving a fact you must prove it by competent evidence. Understanding is frequently the subject of cross-examination where there has been a prior direct-examination, as testing the reasonableness of a witness' answer. But that is not the theory on which you are proceeding here. You are here proceeding to establish the facts yourself. You are being permitted to ask leading questions under Rule 43. But where you seek to establish a fact, it can't be done by the witness' understanding. It must be done by items from which the Court can draw a conclusion.

3324 Mr. STEFFEN. Your Honor, this is a defendant, and if a defendant can't state what his understanding was, nobody could. I am prepared, however, to refresh his recollection on this point.

Justice STEPHENS. If you will, please.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I think you testified before the criminal court—and I show you page 871 of your testimony, and ask you to read the last two questions and answers.

Does that refresh your recollection?

A. Yes, this says that my recollection at that time was that "they sold board they purchased from Kelley at the established bulletin prices to the dealer trade."

Q. And is that your present understanding?

A. Well, as I said before, I have no recollection of these conversations. I would assume that I did have that understanding.

Q. Well, would you say from your present recollection that that is a substantially correct statement?

A. Yes.

Justice STEPHENS. Who do you mean by "they" in that answer?

The WITNESS. The manufacturing distributors that the previous testimony referred to.

3325 Mr. STEFFEN. In order to make it clear on the record, Your Honor, the question which was asked Mr. Tomkins was:

"Q. What were those discussions?

"A. Mr. Kelley explained to me that his company had been selling board at a discount to the Oakfield and Structural companies, and that in his opinion it was desirable business; it gave tonnage to the Kelley plant which needed it and did not offer any competition that had bothered him in any way.

"Q. What did he say about their prices?

"A. My recollection is he said that they sold board they purchased from Kelley at the established bulletin prices to the dealer trade."

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I would like to ask you a question or two concerning Exhibit 372, Mr. Tomkins.

Mr. STEFFEN. Before I ask him the questions, may I offer Exhibits 371, 372 and 373 in evidence.

Mr. BROMLEY. I object to Exhibit 371 for Identification as immaterial, irrelevant and incompetent, and on the ground that it only partially presents the transaction in question and therefore violates the complete evidence rule. This letter, by itself, would indicate that USG and Kelley sent licensee bulletins to these manufacturing distributors. There is a reply to the letter which the Government has in its possession, which these attorneys know 3326 or should know about, which completes the transaction. Without that reply this letter is completely misleading, and it is therefore incompetent and immaterial.

So far as the other two exhibits are concerned, I object to them on the ground that they are incompet .t because incomplete, since the price lists referred to in each letter are not attached. These documents, in my judgment, should not be admitted unless the Government concedes that the price lists referred to, and attached, are the price lists showing the Kelley prices which Kelley charged these manufacturing distributors, because that is what they were.

Mr. STEFFEN. There are two objections, Your Honor.

As respects Exhibit 371, this complete evidence rule, which is a new one if it exists at all, I think can be met if Mr. Bromley or the defendants will produce the answer. We do not have the answer to that. And we do not, under any notion of the complete evidence rule, propose to put their answer in. This shows that Mr. S. J. Kelley had, at the date of the letter, an understanding that it would be more convenient for the United States Gypsum Company to send the price lists direct, the bulletin prices direct to the Structural and Adamant and Oakfield companies, and as an admission it would be strictly relevant without any answer or whether there was any answer. If 3327 Mr. Bromley has an answer and wants to offer it at the proper time, it is his pleasure to do it.

Mr. BROMLEY. I object to this practice of putting in half the story when the Government has these original documents in its possession. I don't think it is fair.

Mr. STEFFEN. It is the same thing as with cross-examination. When you ask a question we have to go back and look it up.

Mr. BROMLEY. I would like the Court to look at this letter so they will know what we are talking about.

Justice STEPHENS. You are talking about Exhibit 371?

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, and the answer thereto.

(The reply to Exhibit 371 referred to was handed to the Court.)

Mr. STEFFEN. I object to the Court's looking at that, at least until we have had a ruling on this matter. We might as well have a ruling on this matter now, of whether we must put in the whole story when we decide to put in certain exhibits.

Justice JACKSON. The Court wants the full story, Mr. Steffen.

Mr. STEFFEN. I am very glad to let the Court have it.

Justice STEPHENS. The objection to the Court's looking at the letter is overruled. We are not going to blind our eyes to what is going on.

3328 Mr. STEFFEN. I would like to make one concession; we concede that the Court may do that.

Justice JACKSON. Thank you.

Justice STEPHENS. The court is of the view that if the Government has available letters which complete a transaction, the Court ought to have the whole transaction before it at once. It is true that the defendants might be able to put this in as a part of their defense, but the difficulty with that is that we get a part of the story at one time and a part later. Since there can be no dispute between the parties, apparently, as to this reply having come in, to Exhibit 371, under date of September 29, 1936, it seems to the Court that it is only fair that it should be put in with Exhibit 371. If you read Exhibit 371 alone, it gives the transaction a certain cast. If you read Exhibit 371 and the answer of September 29, not yet marked, it gives it a different cast. We don't quite see the Government's desire to give the Court a half story when it has the whole story.

Mr. STEFFEN. We have no purpose, Your Honor, of giving the Court half the story. We, however, are proceeding according to the traditional way of putting our case. It is then for the defendant to put in his case. When the defendant puts their man on the stand, whoever he may be, to identify this letter, we then have an opportunity to ask him whether it was a subterfuge. On the face of it, it looks as though it might be, that is, that they want to avoid the appearance of fixing prices. If we put it in now, Your Honor may take it literally as being a letter which says that, "we are all aboveboard, we have no idea of controlling prices," when I think we could establish, with their witness on the stand, that they were pretty sure that they were going to control the prices of the manufacturing distributors; otherwise, they wouldn't allow them to sell.

But they wanted to avoid the appearance of doing what Mr. Kelley suggested, which would be the straightforward way to do it, that is, to send the prices direct. And so they write this letter, which is a self-serving declaration.

We have no objection to this coming in at the proper time, properly identified by a witness on the stand whom we can cross-examine.

It is the same thing as the other day. Mr. Bromley asked questions of Mr. Spease. Mr. Spease wanted to qualify his answers, and Your Honor properly told him that he should say yes or no, and that we in our turn would have an opportunity to clarify the answers.

Justice STEPHENS. We don't mean to put the Government at any improper disadvantage with respect to its case, or to require it to put in the defendants' case by way of defense. If that is the difficulty here, perhaps 3330 that puts a little different light on it.

What do you say to that, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. BROMLEY. I say it is going to make it difficult when we come to our case, with the Government having the original of that document, and we therefore not being aware where it is, and the writer of the letter, Mr. Henning, being dead. He talks quite boldly about our putting the witness on the stand who wrote the letter. He knows he died in 1936, and that I can't put him on the stand. I am afraid I can't get the letter, even; and although we gave it to him, and you can see from these letters that they were stapled together, as is the custom, they just show up with one of them.

I think that puts me at a disadvantage where I may not be able to identify it on my case. If they don't produce the original, I don't know what I am going to do. They certainly have got it, because these are photostats made at the time we gave them the originals.

Mr. STEFFEN. We will make a search for the copy. As far as Mr. Henning being dead is concerned, I am sorry, but Mr. MacLeish is here and he was the attorney who gave the advice, as I understand it.

Mr. BROMLEY. You can see the numbers, 221 and 222, on the bottom of these photostats. We numbered them at the bottom prior to having them photostated; and 3331 you can also see the holes at the top where they were stapled together, but still the Government only presents one of them.

Justice STEPHENS. We will take the afternoon recess now.

3332 Justice STEPHENS. It would be easier for the Court to understand these transactions if all of the connected documents could be put in at one time, and upon that theory the connected documents thus far admitted, were received. The Court suggested that they be offered, and the Government acquiesced in offering the connecting portions.

The Court wants to try this case as simply and as fairly as it can. It is a complicated, difficult case, and the separation of evidence into parts, especially where there are so many documentary letters, is likely to be a little confusing. But we do not understand, Mr. Bromley, that the "complete evidence" rule goes so far as to compel, where there is objection raised to doing it as there is now, the proponent of a part of a declaration or admission to put in all of it.

We do not think there ought to be maneuvering on either side to put the opposite side into a difficult position, and we do not, by that statement, suggest that there has been or is any such maneuvering.

We can see some disadvantages to the defendants if they are required to actually offer in evidence at the present time the explanatory document. They might possibly be under the difficulty of having waived their right to make a motion, at the close of the Government's case, to dismiss, if they saw fit to make such a motion.

On the other hand, Mr. Bromley, perhaps the Government would be put to a disadvantage if it is required 3333 to put the second part of the declaration in, that is the reply letter in this instance, because the defendants might be in a position then to contend that the Government was bound by it, because it had introduced it, and therefore could not call witnesses to show that the whole transaction was what the Government claims it to be, a guilty transaction.

The only authority we find on the subject is in Jones on Evidence, which reflects what I personally—and I think my colleagues join me in this—have always thought to be the rule that:

"It is the settled rule that the whole of a declaration or statement containing an admission should be received. 'Every admission is to be taken as an entirety of the fact which makes for the one side with the qualifications which limit, modify or destroy its effect on the other side.' The reason for this practice is that, where part of a statement of a party is used against him as an admission or declaration against interest, the jury should consider and weigh any other portions of the statement which tend to neutralize or explain the portion which is against interest. In other words, the probative value of the evidence is to be determined from the statement as an integrated unit and not from a part which is disassociated from the other parts. * * *

"However, it does not follow that the one offering the admissions is compelled to offer in the first 3334 instance the whole conversation or statement. He offers that part which he considers advantageous or which the witness remembers, and his adversary has then the right to bring out the remainder by cross-examination or otherwise as he may see fit."

We think there is no doubt but what you have a right, Mr. Bromley, eventually, to put in such statements as complete the whole correspondence. In other words, it is certainly relevant and material to show to the Court the entire transaction. But we do not understand the "complete evidence" rule to go so far as to authorize the Court to require the Government, as a part of its case, to put in the whole of the correspondence.

Mr. BROMLEY. My understanding was that Mr. Wigmore, in Section 2014 of his Third Edition, Volume 7, at page 502, was of the opinion that it was a ground of objection that the "complete evidence" rule not only made, of course, the subsequent part of the transaction not offered, competent and material, but it was a ground of objection to the offer of the first part. I understood it to be his opinion that that did not apply to all testimony, but did apply to documents where there was a reference, for instance, in a first document which is offered by the proponent, to another document.

It was a ground of objection to that first document under this rule that it should not be received until and unless the second document were offered. And he certainly 3335 does not limit it to those instances where there is a reference, because he also says, "The same principle would apply to another writing not expressly referred to but necessary by the nature of the documents to a proper understanding of the one offered."

So, contrary to what Professor Jones seems to say, the reason I made the objection on that ground was that I understood Wigmore to say it was a ground of objection. Of course I understand, if I can ever get the letter, that I can offer it in evidence when my turn comes.

Justice STEPHENS. You can also cross-examine this witness with that as a basis, can you not?

Mr. BROMLEY. No, I cannot.

Justice STEPHENS. You don't have to offer it, you can cross-examine on it, can you not?

Mr. BROMLEY. No, I cannot possibly do so.

Justice STEPHENS. Why not?

Mr. BROMLEY. Because it isn't his letter.

Justice STEPHENS. If he knows about it ——

Mr. BROMLEY (interposing). It is long before he had anything to do with the situation. This is back in 1936 when he had nothing to do with this business at all. It is written by Kelley to Henning, and Henning answers it, and Henning is dead. So I cannot cross-examine this witness about it at all. He knows nothing about it whatsoever.

3336 Then they come along, having put this letter, dated in September, 1936, in evidence, with this suggestion, that United States Gypsum price bulletins would be sent to manufacturing distributors, and they produce two letters, dated in 1937, one of which goes to Oakfield, and which says something about a price list, and they don't produce the price list.

They seek to create the inference in your minds that after this letter of September, 1936, this Kelley Company actually sent these bulletins.

Well, I say that the whole thing is so unfair that it ought to be stopped, because Mr. Steffen knows as well as I do that the price lists which he does not produce, were Kelley's own price lists showing the prices that Kelley charged to these people to whom he sent them. I think the whole thing is so unfair that the Court in its discretion ought to sustain objection to it, and I thought it had the power to do so under the law as expounded by Mr. Wigmore.

Justice STEPHENS. What do you say to the proposition that concerns the Court, in your argument, that if the Government offers these as a whole, they are bound by them?

Mr. STEFFEN. I think we are.

Mr. BROMLEY. I will waive that. I never thought that was the doctrine. Let me go back.

Isn't it a principle that any party can offer contradictory evidence on any subject? If I am a 3337 plaintiff and put a witness on the stand to prove that the defendant's car was going forty miles an hour, I can contradict my own testimony thereafter, I am not bound by the testimony I put on. Any party can offer evidence in his case, even though it is contradictory. If he claims ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). You can't impeach your own witness.

Mr. BROMLEY. Oh, no, but that is not my proposition. If he claims that this is a subterfuge and that I would object, after the receipt of the letter of September 29, 1936, not yet marked, on the ground that he is bound by it, I will say now that I will make no such contention.

Mr. STEFFEN. Your Honor, it is a broader proposition than that, and I should like to speak about that for just a moment.

Justice STEPHENS. Very well.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think the rule that Mr. Bromley has in mind, the Wigmore rule, is not inconsistent.

Where I have a contract to purchase, and then I also have a secret contract or release, and I offer that contract and do not offer the rest of it, it would be perfectly appropriate to insist that I put both in, or none.

But we are not doing anything of that sort. Here is a case where we have a letter coming from one side, and a reply which is a self-serving declaration, coming from the other. We put in the statement which is made 3338 by Mr. Kelley, which we think has a certain amount of truth in it. We are handed here a photostatic copy of what purports to be a letter by Mr. Henning, which we will assume for purposes of argument is a true letter. I will say frankly that I hadn't seen it.

I say that it is for them to put that in as part of their case, and when they put the letter in, if they do, I would then have an opportunity, which otherwise I am going to be utterly deprived of, to question the man who identifies the letter or knows about the transaction, as to whether or not they were not merely trying to cover up the transaction, which is the way I regard it; and to put it in now would be having us put in the defendants' case.

Now so far as Mr. Henning being dead is concerned, it doesn't injure Mr. Bromley any more than it does me, because how am I going to cross-examine Mr. Henning if and when the letter is offered?

So that I don't see that there is any objection on that score.

Now there were certain statements made concerning Exhibits Nos. 372 and 373, as respects price lists.

Three times now Mr. Bromley has tried to get the idea before you that those prices mentioned in those letters are —if I may attribute to him that statement, and I think he said it—that those prices are prices at which Kelley 3339 sold to Structural, and inasmuch as we do not have the price lists, which of course we don't have—otherwise we would be delighted to present them—he says that we ought not to offer them at all.

I propose to show by the witness, in fact have already shown by this witness, that the prices included in Exhibits 372 and 373 were the prices at which Kelley sold to dealers, similar dealers to whom the Structural and the Oakfield people would themselves sell.

So that his effort, as I see it, to say that it is unfair to him, is unfair to us in that respect, and I should like to proceed to question the witness about several things concerning those two letters, and it is then open—we will probably call Mr. Eldred—to ask Mr. Eldred or anyone else, or it is open to the defendants to call Mr. Eldred and ask whether or not they did sell at bulletin prices.

We have no desire, let me make it very clear, to hide anything, but on the other hand we want to have, as I think your Honors do, we want to have the case presented as fairly and clearly as possible.

Mr. BROMLEY. Now if your Honor pleases, so far as Exhibit 372 is concerned, I will add this to my objection: That letter was sent to a company which is not a manufacturing distributor, and which the evidence shows was a dealer. That is Exhibit 372 for identification.

3340 Justice STEPHENS. Excuse me until I get that. I seem to have misplaced it. That is a letter to the Paragon Plaster Company from Wileman?

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. What do you say about that?

Mr. BROMLEY. I say first that if Mr. Steffens is right—and I think he is—that the price list sent with that letter was a price list of Kelley's prices to dealers, the prices that Kelley charged dealers. Paragon was a dealer, and that was merely a supplier sending to his customer the prices which the supplier was asking the customer to pay.

Now the evidence in this case shows that Paragon was a dealer. There is no charge in the complaint anywhere, either in this case or the criminal case, that these defendants ever conspired to control dealers' retail prices. Therefore that exhibit must be entirely immaterial to the charge. Nobody from the Government has ever suggested that these defendants ever attempted to control the resale prices of the 20,000 dealers in this country. Paragon is one of these dealers.

Of course the Kelley Company would send to Paragon a list of dealers' prices, because Kelley was trying to sell Paragon at those prices.

Now so far as Exhibit 373 is concerned, that is a letter from Kelley to Structural. Now Structural is a manufacturing distributor, not a dealer. The evidence already in the case shows that the price which Kelley was obligated under its license to charge to a manufacturing distributor like Structural, was the dealer price, less a discount. And my friend knows that these price lists which Wileman sent to Structural were merely the prices which Kelley was going to charge Structural, the prices to which the discount should be applied, and that is all they were, and this witness has testified that they were the dealer prices. That is what they were.

Mr. STEFFEN. I might say as to the Paragon situation, that the facts are not all in as yet. Paragon was one of the shareholders in Oakfield, and I would like to ask the witness a question or two as to what his understanding of the reasons for sending this to Paragon might have been.

Mr. BROMLEY. Don't you concede that in your Bill of Particulars you have listed the manufacturing distributors, in response to my demand, and you did not mention anything about a company called Paragon?

Mr. STEFFEN. I think that is utterly irrelevant, your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. What is the citation in Wigmore to which you referred?

Mr. BROMLEY. Volume 7, page 502, Third Edition, Section 2104.

Justice STEPHENS. What do you say, Mr. Bromley, as to the difficulty the Government finds itself in, that if it puts in this document, rather than having it introduced by its opponent, in the course of the opponent's case, it is denied the right to cross-examine as to the circumstances under which the document was written?

The Government charges, and is entitled to endeavor to prove, that the transactions involved were cloaks and subterfuges. How is the Government going to be able to cross-examine, even if you waive any claim as to the Government being bound by the document as a part of its case because it introduced it—how is the Government going to have an opportunity to cross-examine to bring out the circumstances under which the letter was written, if you introduce it, assuming you could introduce it through a witness who knew something about ?

Mr. BROMLEY. Well, of course I suppose all I could do is produce a witness who knew Mr. Henning's signature, if I have the original letter. I haven't any other witness who knows anything about it. If I can identify his signature, that is all I can do. So they won't have any bigger chance when I get this letter than they do now. We have nobody that knows anything about the letter.

Justice STEPHENS. Of course that is an academic illustration in the present situation on account of Mr. Henning's death, but we are laying down a rule which 3343 we suppose will guide Court and counsel for the balance of the case, if there are episodes of this sort again.

If you are going to have a lot of this class of testimony, Mr. Steffen, we will have to make a ruling. Of course, if you are not, if this is a sporadic, exceptional situation, it would seem to us that the denial of your right to cross-examine is more or less academic in view of the fact that Mr. Henning himself isn't available, the man who wrote the letter.

Mr. STEFFEN. We would like a general ruling for the reason that there will be other illustrations.

Justice STEPHENS. It would be very much preferable from the standpoint of the Court if the Court could see all this correspondence at one time. You gentlemen have been working on this case for years. You are familiar, on both sides, with all of these documents because you have had a long time to examine them. I think you can hardly realize the task upon the Court of getting clearly in its mind this tremendous mass of correspondence and documents. To read it as constantly as we do, and examine it as carefully as we do, is a very difficult job, and it would be very much easier for us if we could have whole impressions at one time rather than half impressions.

Nevertheless, if you insist upon a ruling, we shall be obliged to make one.

3344 Since the matter will affect other items of testimony, as the Government suggests, and because we want to make a sound and proper ruling, as we want to do in deciding every point, as far as it is within our capacity, strictly according to the law, could you not perhaps take up some other line of examination with this witness at this time, so as not to keep him here any longer than necessary? Then we will go on until four o'clock, and we will think about this during the evening and rule in the morning on the subject.

Before you go to that, let us be perfectly sure just which documents we are discussing at the moment.

Mr. STEFFEN. As I understand it, it is Exhibit 371, and the question of whether a reply, dated September 29, must be introduced as a condition of having 371 introduced.

Justice STEPHENS. The letter is the letter of September 29th, not yet marked?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes.

Justice GARRETT. And also Exhibit 372 is involved in the argument?

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, and Exhibit 373, your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. 372 and 373?

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, your Honor.

Mr. STEFFEN. As to Exhibits 372 and 373, as far as I know there are no price lists, and I don't have any replies, and I don't know whether defense counsel have any.

3345 Justice STEPHENS. Exhibits 372 and 373 have to do with price lists?

Mr. STEFFEN. That is right.

Justice STEPHENS. Proceed then, if you can, on another line for the remainder of the session.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I show you, Mr. Tomkins, Government's Exhibit No. 374 for identification, which purports to be a letter from Mr. Wileman, addressed to the Oakfield Gypsum Corporation, under date of April 2, 1938, and ask you to read that, please, and state whether or not you can identify that as a copy of a letter that Mr. Wileman sent. You identified that, I believe, at the criminal trial, Mr. Tomkins.

A. Yes. There is no signature on it, but I assume that it was sent from Kelley's office.

Q. Do you recall having received a reply?

A. I have no recollection of a reply, no, sir.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think Exhibit 374, your Honor, is in the same bracket with Exhibits 372 and 373, probably.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. At this time, Mr. Tomkins, the Kelley Plasterboard people were selling gypsum board and gypsum lath to Oakfield, were they not?

A. Yes, they were.

Q. And they were selling on a basis that Oakfield received a discount of 12½ per cent on lath, and 15 per cent on board?

3346 A. From the dealer prices, yes.

Q. From the dealer prices?

A. That is right.

Q. And the information given in this letter of April 2, 1938, would be material to Oakfield if Oakfield was reselling at the dealer prices, would it not?

A. Well, it would be material to Oakfield in any event.

Q. Yes; and it would also be material if they were selling to dealers the board they bought from you, is that not correct?

Mr. O'DONNELL. That is argumentative, your Honor, and I object to the question.

Justice STEPHENS. Read the question.

(Thereupon, the pending question was read by the reporter.)

Justice STEPHENS. Read the question and answer before that.

(Thereupon, the record was read as requested, by the reporter.)

Justice STEPHENS. Which letter are you asking about, this Exhibit 374?

Mr. STEFFEN. That is correct. It is simply a direct question, your Honor.

3347 Justice STEPHENS. I don't understand it yet, that is the difficulty. I have had my mind on this other topic, and I am a little behind you, I am afraid.

Now will you read the last two questions?

(Thereupon, the record was reread as requested, by the reporter.)

Mr. BROMLEY. I don't understand what he is talking about.

Mr. STEFFEN. If the witness does, that is all that is strictly material.

Mr. BROMLEY. It seems to me that this letter is completely immaterial. I don't see how it could possibly have anything to do with resale price fixing.

Justice STEPHENS. I don't understand it myself, yet. It doesn't seem to me argumentative, however, which is the objection Mr. O'Donnell raised; I just don't understand it. Maybe you can clear it up for us.

Mr. STEFFEN. I would like to ask the witness some questions.

Justice STEPHENS. Very well.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. At about this time, Mr. Tomkins, was there an increase in freight rates?

A. Well, I presume there was; otherwise this letter would not have been written.

Q. You are familiar with the business, and there was an increase in freight rates at about that time, 3348 was there not?

A. Yes.

Q. And in selling board, how is board sold to the dealer, how do you invoice it?

A. I don't know just what you mean.

Q. You have a mill base, plus freight, do you not?

A. Yes.

Q. And if Oakfield were selling board which they bought from Kelley, how would they price it?

A. They would price it on the same basis; if they were selling to a dealer, they would price it at the mill base, plus freight to destination.

Q. And they were buying board from you which they were reselling to dealers?

A. Yes.

Q. So that this information was very material to them in their resale of board purchased from Kelley, was it not?

A. Well, yes, otherwise they would have sold board at a lower price.

Q. And they would have been then underselling other companies which were selling direct and selling at the higher freight rate?

A. Well, if they did not add a freight increase, and other companies did, they would have been selling below the prices of the other companies.

3349 Q. That is correct, and therefore you were giving them the information so that they wouldn't be underselling, isn't that right?

A. I don't know that the information was given to them for that reason, it had that effect. That is the reason that I said that this was material to Oakfield in any event.

Q. That is, it would apply upon your sales to Oakfield for Oakfield's own use?

A. Yes, I should think so, because their price, i. e., what Oakfield had to pay Kelley, depended upon the dealer price. It was 12½ per cent less than the dealer price. Consequently, if the dealer price increased, their price would increase, and if they took business from a dealer that did not give effect to the freight increase, they would be at some disadvantage, it would be taken out of their 12½ per cent.

Q. That is right. Now I call your attention to the last part of the letter which says, "if you do not know the new price, you take orders subject to a slight increase in price due to this freight raise."

That had to do with Oakfield's sales to dealers, did it not?

Mr. BROMLEY. Wait a minute, you didn't read that right, did you?

Mr. STEFFEN. I tried not to read it all. Will you read that last part and tell me if it necessarily had to do with Oakfield's sales to dealers?

3350 The WITNESS. Shall I read the whole letter?

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. No, read the last sentence.

A. Now may I have the question?

Q. My question was—doesn't that sentence apply directly to sales made by Oakfield to its dealer trade, of board which it purchased from you?

A. Yes, this means that we are putting Oakfield on notice that there is going to be an increase in the price.

Q. That is right.

A. Consequently, we suggest that if they don't know how much the increase is, they take orders subject to such increase.

Q. That is right. And the orders are for board which you are going to sell to them?

A. No, "you take orders" would be orders from dealers, not for board that we were going to sell them.

Q. Well, what was Oakfield selling? They were buying board from Kelley, were they not?

A. That is right.

Q. And reselling that board to dealers?

A. Correct.

Q. And in reselling it to the dealers they resell at the dealer price, do they not?

A. Yes, they usually do.

Q. And that dealer price is the mill price, plus 3351 freight, is it not?

A. Yes.

Q. So that it was necessary for Oakfield to know that there was an increase in price so that they would get the right price to the dealer?

A. Yes, otherwise they would be at a disadvantage.

Mr. STEFFEN. Is that perfectly clear?

Justice JACKSON. No, it isn't. Doesn't this mean that there is a new price because there is an increase in freight?

The WITNESS. Yes, that is exactly what it means.

Justice JACKSON. It isn't a price increase per se?

The WITNESS. No, it is simply a freight addition added to the price.

Justice JACKSON. Now I am clear on it.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. That is, your price to dealers is the mill price plus freight, is it not?

A. Yes.

Q. And in invoicing to dealers you would have to know both items, the mill price to dealers, and the freight?

A. Yes.

Q. And this indicated that in selling at the prevailing price to dealers, they would have to know both items, freight plus mill price?

A. Yes, they would have to know that in order to know what they were going to have to pay for 3352 board.

Q. And therefore it was very largely a matter of informing Oakfield as to prices which they would charge dealers?

A. Well, it was a matter of informing Oakfield what the dealer prices were, that was our basis of doing business with Oakfield, it was based on dealer prices.

Q. And it was in order that Oakfield would sell at dealer prices?

A. Not necessarily ——

Mr. BROMLEY (interposing). Wait a moment.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. That was so that Oakfield would be selling to dealers at the prevailing price?

A. This information was given to Oakfield so that Oakfield would know what the dealer price was.

Q. And I followed that question up with—so that when they sold to the dealers, they would sell at the right price?

A. They could if they wanted to.

Q. So when your letter says, "you take orders," and so forth, that referred to taking orders from dealers, didn't it?

A. Yes.

Q. And they would have to know what the prevailing price to dealers was, isn't that right?

A. Surely.

Q. And that price is made up of the freight rate, plus the base price?

3353 A. That is right, which was the basis of their discount.

Q. That is right.

A. Correct.

Q. I think we are all straight.

Mr. BROMLEY. It is clear to you, is it?

Mr. STEFFEN. Well, it will be much clearer when we get through with the cross-examination.

Do you wish to adjourn at this time?

Justice STEPHENS. Yes. But before we adjourn let me make an inquiry.

About how long do you anticipate the direct examination of this witness will occupy?

Mr. STEFFEN. Until about noon tomorrow, your Honor, and maybe a little bit longer.

Justice STEPHENS. Will you hand back to the Court—I think you have it, Mr. Finck—the criminal record that we read from this morning.

(The record in the criminal trial was returned to the Court.)

Mr. STEFFEN. We should be very glad, your Honor, to have an expression of the Court's views on that with reference to the points in the record, if you propose to do that.

Justice STEPHENS. An expression of the Court's views as to what?

Mr. STEFFEN. Upon the matter that was dis-
3354 cussed this morning, having to do with the concession, or alleged concession on the part of the Government.

Justice STEPHENS. We have already ruled on that.

Mr. STEFFEN. You don't propose to extend your remarks at all?

Justice STEPHENS. No, we had in mind only that there ought to appear in the record all that the Court examined.

Mr. STEFFEN. I see.

Justice STEPHENS. Part of it was read into the record, but not all of it. There was one passage commencing at page 938, and going to page 939, and another one commencing at page 886.

Let the record show that, in connection with its ruling this morning on the question whether or not the Government had conceded at the criminal trial, and was therefore now conceding, in order that its position in both instances might, in good faith, be consistent, that sales by Newark to or through the Calvin Tomkins Company were not illegal under the Sherman Act, the attention of the Court was called to the material in the record of the criminal case commencing at page 938, line 13, and ending on page 939, including line 7. The mark is under line 9, Mr. Bromley, but the actual text of that subject-matter ends with line 7 on page 939.

Mr. BROMLEY. That is right, your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. Let the record also show that 3355 the Court examined in connection with that same question, the transcript in the criminal proceeding commencing with line 6, page 886, and extending to and including line 14, on page 892.

In order that the basis of the Court's ruling shall fully appear in the record, the Court directs that all of that material be copied into this record. A part of it was read informally, but it is not all in the record, and we wish it there.

(The portions of the criminal trial record directed to be incorporated in this record by the Court are as follows:)

Q. Didn't you have a discussion with the lawyers about the matter of whether or not this transaction couldn't take the form of an agreement by Calvin-Tomkins expressly to charge, as to resale prices, those fixed by Newark ——

The COURT. Just one minute, Mr. Bromley. That wouldn't throw any light on the inquiry because it seems that the Government and defense, both, agree that as the Calvin-Tomkins was a wholly-owned subsidiary the Government is raising no question about the control of the Calvin-Tomkins Company so your question doesn't raise the point at issue at all.

Mr. BROMLEY. I didn't appreciate that the Government was raising no question about it.

3356 The COURT. That is my understanding.

Mr. KELLEHER. You were at the bench this morning, Mr. Bromley.

The COURT. Sir?

Mr. KELLEHER. That is correct, your Honor, you stated it this morning.

The COURT. That is my understanding.

The COURT. I want to learn a little law. I am sure you gentlemen can furnish the law.

Is it agreed between counsel for the defense and the Government counsel that licensors and licensees were protected in their control of the price made by their wholly owned subsidiaries?

Mr. KELLEHER. I can explain that in this way: In the indictment we charge that sales, the control of the selling price of Calvin Tomkins was illegal, and made no reference to that charge in the opening to the jury. I am now prepared to tell the Court that we do not intend to press that as illegal because the question is a doubtful legal question.

The COURT. It is not in my mind, but if you think it is, it is all right with me. Don't misunderstand me, I am not going to press my opinion; if it is not the opinion of Government counsel. But I don't think that the permission 3357 which the Supreme Court gives—because they really made the law—to a licensor to fix the price that the licensee should make, extends to the wholly owned subsidiary, the licensee. But, if that is your view that is all right. That settles it, that disposes of the matter, as far as this case is concerned.

Mr. KELLEHER. I would like to say this, though, we are in a peculiar position this morning. Kelley Plasterboard—Mr. DeWitt wants to take the position that Newark was not responsible for Kelley Plasterboard from 1937 to 1939; then he wants to take the contrary position from 1939 on, the other position that Calvin Tomkins Company was an independent company and therefore, the acts, if any, in the conspiracy, were the acts of Calvin Tomkins and not the acts of the Newark. Now, I think we should get straightened out on that. I think we are entitled to show that Calvin Tomkins was a wholly owned subsidiary controlled by their price dictated as a result of the contract by Newark.

If they are going to take that position I think we have got to go into it. We cannot do anything else, we have got to show they were controlled by contract and that they did fix their prices, and that whatever Calvin Tomkins did it did as the result of this contract by the U. S. Gypsum Company.

The COURT. As far as I know from that testimony—and I don't know what you can do—I understand that a wholly owned subsidiary can virtually act as an agent would act.

Mr. BROMLEY. The contract so provides.

The COURT. I know, but your contract doesn't extend your right, as a contract, a licensor may make—doesn't extend his legal privileges.

Mr. BROMLEY. Extends to agents.

The COURT. Sir?

Mr. BROMLEY. Extends to agents.

The COURT. I say, do you contend that a wholly owned subsidiary, as a matter of law, acts as an agent?

Mr. BROMLEY. Under this contract which says that, yes, sir. It would not have to be in this situation.

The COURT. What contract?

Mr. BROMLEY. Under the contract of January 3, 1939.

The COURT. Between whom?

Mr. BROMLEY. Between U. S. G. and the Newark Company, which says, "The acts of the Calvin Tomkins shall be considered to be the acts of Newark."

Now, that is pure agency, I claim.

The COURT. You mean that by that contract Newark legally notified Gypsum that this other concern, Tomkins, was its agent, is that what you mean?

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, sir, and I concede to the position that that is the way we would consider it.

The COURT. It is not a question of how you consider it, it is a question of whether you had a right to consider it that way.

Mr. BROMLEY. I think clearly the Supreme Court doctrine extends to agents.

Mr. KELLEHER. If they were agents.

The COURT. If they were agents. You can't make them agents by saying so.

What I want to know is this, whether or not Gypsum had the right, because of the contract which Newark entered into with them, to assume legally that Tomkins was Newark's agent until you had notice to the contrary. Is that what you mean?

Mr. BROMLEY. I think we had the right to assume that Tomkins was Newark's agent in view of the statement in the contract.

Mr. KELLEHER. No, but the contract ——

Mr. BROMLEY. The statement to that effect.

Mr. KELLEHER. Even in the contract, the contract recites the sale.

Mr. DEWITT. I think we all agree with you that the Calvin Tomkins Company was a subsidiary of Newark during ——

The COURT. Of itself?

Mr. DEWITT. Of itself.

The COURT. That is all I wanted.

Mr. BROMLEY. I agree with you.

Mr. DEWITT. We agree with that.

The COURT. There has been so much talk about 3360 it I didn't know what was in your minds.

Mr. DEWITT. It is very confusing, I grant you, because of the succession of events, but I think we would all agree with you on that point.

The COURT. This question of agency will have to be developed, you know.

Mr. KELLEHER. But, here is my point now, I am put in this position, that one of counsel contends it is their agent, the other says, "Oh, no, they are not, they are wholly owned subsidiaries." That changes my conception of the whole thing.

The COURT. If you are between the upper and the lower strata the Court can't do anything.

Mr. KELLEHER. I merely point that out, those two conflicting planes necessarily make me reconsider my position as to any claim we make concerning this Calvin Tomkins Company, and any claims we might want to press under this indictment.

The COURT. Now, gentlemen, in order for me to rule intelligently I felt as if I ought to understand the conception of counsel as to the relationship of this subsidiary and that is all the information I wanted. You have given me the information. I have got what I wanted.

Mr. DEWITT. I agree with your Honor, but ——

The COURT. You claim an agency existed?

3361 Mr. DEWITT. The contractual relations between the parties ——

The COURT. Constituted an agency.

Mr. DEWITT. Yes, and put it in the position of a licensee.

The COURT. These various conversations rather indicated to the Court that it was conceded on all sides that a wholly-owned subsidiary was an agent and I just couldn't swallow that and that is the reason I called counsel up.

Mr. BROMLEY. I would like the record to show this: I do not believe the licensee of a patent could form a wholly-owned subsidiary and have it do all the selling free of the restrictions of the licenses.

The COURT. You think as a matter of fact, as I understand it, that legally speaking the subsidiary must be considered as the agent. That is what you virtually say, isn't it?

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, or must be bound by the license if it sells all the patented product that is made by its parent.

The COURT. Well, that seems to make sense.

Mr. HADDOCK. May I ask if that is your attitude also towards the Newark Plaster Company for the period during which Kelley was a wholly-owned subsidiary of Newark?

3362 Mr. BROMLEY. That question doesn't arise. Kelley made the board, Kelley manufactured the board.

The COURT. Of course, I am not ruling on it now, but Kelley was controlled by Newark, Newark owned all the stock of Kelley.

Mr. KELLEHER. Yes, they were the same companies for all practical purposes.

The COURT. All right.

(End of quotation from criminal record.)

Mr. STEFFEN. For our protection, your Honor, I should like to make a very brief statement, that we do not concede that it was admitted at the criminal trial by Mr. Kelleher, that the sales of gypsum board to or through the Calvin Tomkins Company were not illegal under the Sherman Act.

It is our position that that was very broad, and that at most what Mr. Kelleher did was to state that they would not press the charge made in the indictment, which charged the Calvin Tomkins Company with being a manufacturing distributor whose resale prices had been controlled.

We visualize a number of different charges, and all that was before the court in the criminal case was the matter of resale price control. Here there are a number of other charges, and those sales may be illegal, as brought up under the other and different charges, such as price fixing, standardizing, and many others.

3363 Justice STEPHENS. Well, I think you made that same statement, in effect, this morning, Mr. Steffen.

Mr. STEFFEN. I wish to save my exception.

Justice STEPHENS. Very well.

The Court understands that you did concede this morning, clearly, Mr. Steffen, that if Mr. Kelleher made the concession which the defendants are contending that he made, you would, in good faith, feel bound by it here in this case.

Mr. STEFFEN. I stated, and am glad to state again, that we will be bound by any admissions that Mr. Kelleher made.

Justice STEPHENS. Thank you.

We will recess until noon tomorrow morning at ten o'clock.

(Thereupon, at 4:10 o'clock p. m., an adjournment was taken until 10:00 o'clock a. m., Friday, February 11, 1944.)

3364 IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES
FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Civil Action No. 8017

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, PLAINTIFF,

v.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY; NATIONAL GYPSUM COMPANY; CERTAIN-TEED PRODUCTS CORPORATION; THE CELOTEX CORPORATION; EBSARY GYPSUM COMPANY, INC.; NEWARK PLASTER COMPANY; SAMUEL M. GLOYD, doing business under the name of TEXAS CEMENT PLASTER COMPANY; SEWELL L. AVERY; OLIVER M. KNODE; MELVIN H. BAKER; BROR H. DAHLBERG; HENRY J. HARTLEY; FREDERICK G. EBSARY; and FREDERICK TOMKINS, DEFENDANTS.

SEVENTH FLOOR, INTERNAL REVENUE BUILDING,

WASHINGTON, D. C., FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1944.

The above-entitled cause came on for further hearing at 10.00 o'clock a. m., pursuant to adjournment, before Honorable Harold M. Stephens, Honorable Finis J. Garrett, and Honorable Joseph R. Jackson, sitting as the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

Appearances (Same as heretofore noted.)

3371 Mr. STEFFEN. I would like to state just a word, I think.

I last night read Wigmore, Section 2104, which Mr. Bromley referred to, and I don't find that it has any particular bearing on this issue. Note carefully that the exhibit which we were offering was a letter written by Mr. Stephen Kelley. That was offered as an admission or a declaration on the part of Stephen Kelley, who was the President of one of the conspirators or alleged conspirators in this case. It was entirely complete as an admission, and required no further explanation at all. Therefore, the rule as stated in Wigmore would simply not apply, because it refers to a document which refers to another or which, for sake of completeness, must have another document presented.

Now so far as it constituted a declaration—and that is all it is being offered for—it was a complete statement.

Secondly, so far as the fairness is concerned, I think Mr. Bromley misconceived the situation. It isn't essential that he put in his letter in order to clarify the declaration. If he wants to question the declaration he should call Mr. Kelley,—and he, of course, can do that,—to determine whether or not Mr. Kelley's statement was made and what his understanding was. That puts him at no disadvantage at all.

Thirdly, we do not have the original of the letter, the carbon copy of which was offered.

3372 Justice STEPHENS. Did you say "do not" or "did not"?

Mr. STEFFEN. I said "do not," and we have never seen it.

Mr. BROMLEY. The Government has got it. It was returned by subpoena, by the Newark Plaster Company and by us, too.

Justice STEPHENS. The Court has given this matter consideration and has looked at such authorities as are available on the subject. They are not very helpful. There is no authority in this jurisdiction, and there seems to be no practice in this jurisdiction which is of an established character, so far as I can determine from discussing the matter with one of the trial judges here who has had extended experience in this jurisdiction.

In the statement in Jones I read yesterday, I omitted to read one portion which should be called to the attention of counsel, and that is the portion at the bottom of page 551 under Section 293, in which the author states: "Of course, a party offering admissions of this character is not bound by statements favorable to the declarant." That is consistent with the concession Mr. Bromley made, that if you were required to introduce or did see fit to offer the reply to Exhibit 371, that is, the letter of September 29, 1936, purporting to be from the United States

3373 Gypsum Company to Kelley, you would not be bound by it.

If counsel are interested in the cases, the cases which seem to have some bearing upon the subject are Fleishbein v. Thorne, 193 Wash. 65; 74 Pac. (2d) 80; an English case, Watson v. Moore, 1 C & K 626. There a letter was offered which appeared to be an answer to one of the offerors. The latter was required to be offered with it.

In the Thorne case just referred to, "a party who attempts to establish a contract by correspondence can not put in evidence his letter to the adverse party purporting on its face to answer one from him without producing the previous communication or showing its loss and its contents."

There are other cases of some interest. New Hampshire T Company v. Korsmeyer P & H Company, 57 Neb. 784; 78 NW 303, where the Court held that "In offering a reply letter of opponent, the answered letter need not be offered where the former 'is fairly self-explanatory'."

The cases are not especially helpful, because they do not touch exactly the situation which we have here. We think the law is this: We think that in the orthodox situation where, for example, a contract is offered in evidence by a plaintiff, and the plaintiff has in his possession also a release of the contract, the contract and the release ought both come in at the same time, because otherwise the Court gets an untrue picture of the situation, there being 3374 no dispute as to the authenticity of the release. As to connected items of correspondence, or a contract consisting of two letters, both of the letters or both items of the correspondence ought to come in at the same time, there being no dispute that they do constitute the whole of an integrated legal act.

But we think, Mr. Bromley, that this situation is different from that. While it is true, as stated in Jones, and while you conceded that the Government wouldn't be bound if it put in the answering letter, it would be denied the right to cross-examine with respect to the circumstances under which it was written,—in view of the charge of the Government that the price fixing arrangements are in the nature of a subterfuge, that the license agreements and the transactions connected with them are in the nature of a subterfuge.

Now the extent of cross-examination is within the Court's discretion, but the right of cross-examination is not. The right to cross-examine is absolute. It seems to us since the Government in this case charges that the agreements, license agreements, and transactions related to them are in the nature of a subterfuge, that to require it to put in this reply at the present time rather than having it come in through the defendants would, technically at least, deprive the Government of the right of cross-examination. The situation is different from 3375 the ones I have mentioned of a more orthodox character, because there there is no dispute as to the connected portions of correspondence or as to two parts of a contract, or a contract and its release, being of an integrated nature and both being written in good faith.

Here there is a charge by the Government that the reply is not in good faith, and the Government is entitled to try and prove that. Now in this particular situation, the insistence upon the right of cross-examination seems quite attenuated because, with Henning dead, it seems unlikely that the letter could come in through the defendants by anyone who might have personal knowledge of the circumstances under which the reply was written by Henning. But we can't speculatively say that the letter might not come in under circumstances which would give the Government a substantial advantage of cross-examination to which it is legally entitled.

Therefore, we think that we can not insist upon the Government putting in this reply of September 29, 1936, as a part of its case, even though it wouldn't be bound by it. But we want to add this, that we think where the Government takes documents, as it is asserted here that it has, out of the possession of the defendants, it is under very solemn responsibility to keep possession of them and 3376 see that they are returned to the defendant if they are a necessary part of the defendant's case. Otherwise, the Government would be in a position to deprive a party of what it is entitled to with respect to the trial of its own case, and we do not intend to have this case presented—and we don't suggest that the Government is trying to present it, but we certainly do not intend to have it presented—in a partial manner. We are going to look at the whole truth before we get through with this case, and we expect the Government to produce the original of that document or, if it can't do that, to take some fair steps towards aiding in the getting in of a copy of the reply, because we are not going to be bound by technical rules to the point where we look at this case in a partial fashion. We must know the whole facts upon which both sides rely before the case is closed.

Has Exhibit 371 been offered?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes, I believe so.

Justice STEPHENS. And have Exhibits 372 and 373 been offered?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes, they were offered, I am sure.

3377 Justice STEPHENS. The Court now rules that the Government may now introduce Exhibit 371, and it is received in evidence without the necessity of putting in, at the same time, the letter of September 29, 1936, purporting to be Kelley of the Kelley Plasterboard Company from the United States Gypsum Company.

Justice STEPHENS. The Court wishes to hear a little further discussion with respect to Exhibits 372 and 373.

You contended, Mr. Steffen, that Exhibit 371 was fully self-explanatory upon its face, and therefore was entitled to come in. But that is not true with respect to Exhibits 372 and 373. They both say, "We are enclosing a copy of our price list," or something to that effect, and in neither of them is the price list shown. So the letters are not clear on their face. What do you say with respect to that?

Mr. STEFFEN. I will make this statement, your Honor, that the Government subpoenaed, back in 1939 and 1940, documents from the Newark Plaster Company, and I think they also subpoenaed documents from Oakfield Gypsum Products Company, or from National, which had taken over Oakfield, and that particularly applies to Exhibit 373.

I think also the Government served a subpoena on the Paragon Plaster & Supply Company, which ap-3378 plies to Exhibit No. 372.

As far as we have been able to find, we have not seen those price lists.

I am offering the witness here on the stand to testify as to what those price lists may have been, and what the practice of his company was in sending out price lists, which gives to defendants all the opportunity which I think the case permits of, to determine what the price lists were.

I want to say with regard to your Honor's other and earlier suggestion, that we will do everything we can to supply the defendants with all the papers we have received.

Justice STEPHENS. Thank you, Mr. Steffen.

We will defer ruling on Exhibits 372 and 373 until you have finished examining the witness.

Do you wish to be heard on 372 and 373 further, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. STEFFEN. I might suggest that Exhibit 374, [redacted] I said yesterday evening, is in the same bracket, and I would like to offer it, to be ruled upon in conjunction with Exhibits 372 and 373.

Justice JACKSON. You were examining on Exhibit 374 yesterday, were you not?

Mr. STEFFEN. That is correct, but it has not yet been received in evidence.

Justice STEPHENS. Exhibit 374 is in still a different category. Our attention has not yet been called to 3379 any explanatory answer to Exhibit 374. Exhibit 374 does not seem to contain a reference to some other item such as a price list.

Mr. BROMLEY. No, it is not in the class of Exhibit 371 at all.

Justice STEPHENS. What do you say about Exhibits 372 and 373, Mr. Bromley—do you think they are distinguishable from the ruling we have made with respect to 371?

Mr. BROMLEY. Oh, yes, I think they clearly are, because both of them are letters with enclosures. There is a dispute between us as to what the enclosures were. I think it is probably plain from a reading of the letters themselves—at least from the way I interpret them—that what was enclosed was the usual price list which Kelley would send to any customer, notifying the customer what the customer would be called upon to pay for goods.

Both those letters say, "We are enclosing", as I remember, "our prices", and so forth.

Justice STEPHENS. That is right.

Mr. BROMLEY. Now I suppose the Government would contend, since it has offered these two exhibits right after Exhibit 371—Exhibit 371 being dated some six or more months prior to 372 and 373—that Exhibit 371 creates the inference that what Kelley sent to these manufacturing distributors was our USG price fixing bulletins. Now of course that should not have been done. It never was 3380 done by us. We wouldn't send them to anybody who was not a licensee. It should not have been done by Kelley because Oakfield was not a licensee, and had no business with our bulletins.

So there is a dispute here as to what the enclosures were. I say they were perfectly proper enclosures. Mr. Steffen is going to argue that they were improper. So he produces the letters, without the enclosures, and the witness has stated that he doesn't know anything about it, and of course he doesn't. It is Wileman's letter.

Mr. STEFFEN. The witness has not stated that.

Mr. BROMLEY. The witness may know about the practice of the company, but he doesn't know what these enclosures were, and I think they ought to be produced before the letters go in.

Justice STEPHENS. Well, my colleagues, I think, would like to hear more from the witness upon the subject before we rule, and I think I share their views, with respect to Exhibits 372 and 373. So the witness may take the stand and you may renew your objection to Exhibits 372 and 373 at the conclusion of the testimony of this witness.

Mr. BROMLEY. Before we proceed, I respectfully ask that the letter of September 29, not yet marked, which has been the subject, in part, of the Court's ruling as to Exhibit 371, be now marked as Defendants' Exhibit No. 19 for identification.

Justice STEPHENS. It may be so marked.

(The letter referred to was marked as Defend-3381 ants' Exhibit No. 19, for identification.)

Justice STEPHENS. If there is nothing further in the way of discussion, you may proceed to examine this witness.

Mr. BROMLEY. I should like the record to show, in connection with the marking of Exhibit 18 for identification, that I now formally call upon the Government to produce the carbon copy of that exhibit which it subpoenaed sometime in 1939, and which was turned over in response to that subpoena, from the files of the United States Gypsum Company.

Mr. KNUFF. I might answer Mr. Bromley ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). The record may show that demand.

Mr. KNUFF. I might answer Mr. Bromley in the language that he used with me on the 19th, but I am not going to do so, in which he said that he was tired of preparing the Government's case. We could say that we are tired of preparing the defendants' case. But we will make every effort to get that.

Justice STEPHENS. Well, that seems uncalled for to the Court, Mr. Knuff, because if the Government is in possession of this document, the defendants cannot prepare their case unless it is returned to them.

Mr. KNUFF. They can subpoena it the same way as they suggested to us.

Justice STEPHENS. They ought not to be under 3382 the necessity of subpoenaing it if it is in the possession of the Government. The conventional practice, where parties are in possession of each other's documents, and where both parties are present in court, is for counsel to give formal notice to produce. Why put the Court to the trouble of sending out subpoenas in such a situation?

Mr. KNUFF. I agree with that, but when we made a request, he answered ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). Let's not get into any tit-for-tat argument.

Proceed with this witness.

Whereupon, FREDERICK TOMKINS, a witness, having been previously duly sworn, resumed the stand and was examined and testified further as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Resumed) by Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. May the witness be shown Government's Exhibit 374 for identification?

(Government's Exhibit No. 374 for identification was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Exhibit No. 374, Mr. Tomkins, was the exhibit we were discussing when the Court recessed yesterday, and I had asked you some questions as to what goods 3383 the Oakfield Products Corporation was selling, and I think you stated that they were buying board and lath from you, and selling it to the dealer trade, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And in the course of selling to the dealer trade, it is of course necessary for Oakfield to quote prices to dealers?

A. I don't think you can sell anything without quoting prices.

Q. I asked you this question on page 3645 of the record:

"Q. And that dealer price is the mill price, plus freight, is it not?"

And you said, "Yes".

Then my next question was:

"Q. So that it was necessary for Oakfield to know that there was an increase in price so that they would get the right price to the dealer?"

I suggest that you might have meant to say, or that you did say, "So that they would quote the right price to the dealer?" Can you tell us what you meant to say there?

Justice STEPHENS. What page is that on?

Mr. STEFFEN. On page 3646, I believe. It starts on page 3645 and goes over to 3646.

I will show you the transcript, Mr. Tomkins.

(A copy of the transcript was handed to the witness.)

3384 The WITNESS. What I meant to convey in my answer and the way I understood the question, was that it would be necessary for Oakfield to know the dealer's price so that they would receive from the dealer the correct price that would still leave them their 12½ per cent discount intact, because if they did not add the freight increase to the dealer price, their commission or discount would have to absorb it, and they would then be at a disadvantage.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. And, therefore, how would you like that sentence to read, "get the right price to the dealer", or "quote the right price to the dealer"?

A. I would like to have it state, "get the right price from the dealer".

Q. And that would entail that they would have to quote the correct price to the dealer, would it not?

A. In order to maintain their full discount, they would have to notify the dealer that his price would be increased by the amount of the freight rate raise.

Q. So that it would be correct to say that they would have to quote the correct price to the dealer, would it not?

A. In order to maintain their same margin of gross profit.

Q. Therefore you could say either, "quote to the dealer" or, "get the price to the dealer"—is that correct?

A. Well, their interest was in getting the price from the dealer. In order to get a price from a 3385 dealer you have to tell him what price you are going to get.

Q. You have got to quote one to him?

A. Yes.

Justice STEPHENS. When you say "get a price from a dealer" you don't mean to get the mention of a price, but you mean to get money from a dealer?

The WITNESS. That is right, that is what I meant.

Justice STEPHENS. I wish you would explain this, if counsel have no objection, in terms of a concrete illustration. It is very difficult for me to understand it in these terms because it seems to me that the word "dealer" perhaps is being used in more than one sense.

Mr. STEFFEN. I will ask some further questions, but for purposes of clearing the record as respects the fourth and fifth lines of page 3646, the word "to" in the fifth line should be stricken, and the word "from" inserted; and the correction which I suggested this morning, in line 4, changing "get" to "quote", should not be made.

Justice STEPHENS. What correction do you suggest should be made in the fourth line?

Mr. STEFFEN. The witness has now stated that this sentence should be corrected by changing the word "to" in the fifth line to the word "from", so that the sentence would read: "So that it was necessary for Oakfield to know that there was an increase in price so that they would 3386 get the right price from the dealer".

Justice STEPHENS. Is that what you meant to say?

The WITNESS. Yes, sir.

Justice STEPHENS. That correction may be made.

Mr. BROMLEY. It seems to me this is not an example of a correction of the record. It is just like any subsequent examination in which the previous testimony is changed. I don't think the record should be changed, or else the subsequent testimony won't mean anything.

Justice JACKSON. His former testimony is merely clarified by what he says now.

Mr. BROMLEY. That is correct.

Justice STEPHENS. If we could all agree without reference to the witness, that the word "to" should be changed to the word "from", then we could change the record. But since the record now shows the witness' own interpretation and correct construction of his own answer, there is no need of making any actual change in the record.

Let the record stand in its original words. It is perfectly apparent from a further examination what the witness means.

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes, your Honor.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I want to ask you some general questions, Mr. Tomkins, about the situation to which Government's 3387 Exhibit No. 374 pertains. The Court is interested in who you mean by the word "dealer." I don't know that "dealer" appears in the letter. But whom do you mean by "dealer"?

A. Well, a "dealer" would be—with reference to this letter—a customer of Oakfield Gypsum Products Company.

Q. And "dealers" would be what sort of people?

A. They would be building material supply firms.

Q. And mason supply firms?

A. Yes, mason supply or building material supply firms.

Q. And they would sell at retail?

A. Yes.

Q. To contractors and builders?

A. And consumers, yes.

Justice STEPHENS. What I would like to have the witness do, if counsel have no objection, is to take a particular example. The price, as I understand it, at which Kelley or Newark, when Newark took over Kelley, sold to Oakfield, was the price determined in the bulletins received from USG, is that right?

The WITNESS. Yes, sir, less a discount.

Justice STEPHENS. Yes.

The WITNESS. Yes, sir.

Justice STEPHENS. Now I would like to have you take a supposititious example, if you will, of a bulletin price, less a discount, and carry it through in terms of that 3388 freight increase, so that the Court will understand it by a concrete example—if no one has any objection to that.

Mr. BROMLEY. I think that is a fine idea. When the witness starts out he might make it plain that the United States Gypsum Company bulletin price was the dealer price, and work in the word "dealer" right along, so we will know what that means too.

Justice STEPHENS. That is a little confusing, I think. You continue to speak of the bulletin price as the dealer price, and you are talking about the Oakfield price as the dealer price, and it seems to me that the term is being used in two different senses, and that might be explained by a concrete example.

Mr. BROMLEY. I think that is correct. I think the dealer price is the same price that is charged to the dealers and to manufacturing distributors, like Oakfield, except that the latter get a discount from the dealer price.

Justice STEPHENS. Have you any objection to having a concrete example given by the witness?

Mr. STEFFEN. No, I would be glad to have that done. I suggest that I might take up, out of order, some of the invoices that I have in the file, and we can get not only a hypothetical case, but an actual case.

Justice STEPHENS. Very well.

3389 (A document was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 375 for identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I accordingly show you, Mr. Tomkins, what has been marked as Government's Exhibit No. 375 for identification, which consists of some five papers, the first being under date of September 27, 1937, purporting to be an office voucher; the second and third, being apparently office memoranda; and the fourth being an invoice to the Oakfield Gypsum Products Company, under date of September 27, 1937; and the fifth being an order under the same date, September 27, 1937.

I will ask you to examine these, Mr. Tomkins ——

Justice JACKSON (interposing). So that we will have our numbers correct here, does the first one of those documents bear the figure "25" down in the lower right-hand corner?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes.

Justice JACKSON. And the others follow in succession?

Mr. STEFFEN. That is right.

Justice JACKSON. You are not marking these separately, or are you?

Mr. STEFFEN. I am suggesting that we mark the first one, the office voucher, as Exhibit 375; the next memorandum as Exhibit 375-A; the next one as Exhibit 375-B; the invoice as Exhibit 375-C; and the fifth document as Exhibit 375-D.

Justice JACKSON. And the last one bears the small 3390 figure "29" in the lower right-hand corner?

Mr. STEFFEN. That is correct, your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. Proceed.

(The documents referred to were marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 375-A, 375-B, 375-C, 375-D, respectively, for identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Will you tell the Court what these papers are, Mr. Tomkins—I am referring to Government's Exhibits 375, 375-A, 375-B, 375-C and 375-D.

A. Well, these are all the working papers in connection with a sale of gypsum lath, with the Oakleaf label, made to Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, and shipped to the United Clay Products Company in Washington.

The first document, marked with the figure "25" ——

Q. (Interposing.) That is Exhibit 375?

A. Yes—it is just a shipping ticket. The next is the memorandum ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). That bears the figure "26"?

The WITNESS. Yes.

Justice STEPHENS. I think it would be well to note that Exhibit 375 bears the figure "25" in the lower right-hand corner and that Exhibit 375-A bears the figure 3391 "26" in the lower right-hand corner. And hereafter it would facilitate matters if you referred to them by their exhibit numbers.

The WITNESS. Yes, sir.

Exhibit 375-A is a memorandum giving the car number in which the shipment was loaded; Exhibit 375-B is apparently a notice of shipment, giving the car number, the date, and the material; Exhibit 375-C is the invoice of Kelley Plasterboard Company to Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, billing the amount of the shipment; and Exhibit 375-D is the order received by Kelley Plasterboard Company from Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation for this shipment to be made.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Now let's look at Exhibit 375-C. The name "Oakfield Gypsum Products Corp." indicates the concern to whom the sale was made, does it not?

A. It does.

Q. And over at the right-hand side it says, "shipped to United Clay Products Co., University Station, Washington, D. C." That indicates the firm to whom the shipment was made and also the firm to whom Oakfield sold the shipment, is that correct?

A. United Clay Products is Oakfield's customer for this shipment.

Q. And they would be a dealer, would they not?

3392 A. They are a dealer.

Q. They are a dealer?

A. Yes.

Q. I notice the initials "F. T." after the word "Salesman"—what does that refer to?

A. Those are my initials and I believe they were put on to mark it as a "house account", not attributed to any salesman.

Q. The terms there, "2%—20 days on net after freight"—will you explain that?

A. That means that the discount of two per cent for cash payment within ten days was applicable only to the amount of the invoice covering the lath, and not to the freight.

Justice STEPHENS. In other words, you didn't give them a discount figured on the freight charge as well as the charge for the lath itself?

The WITNESS. No, your Honor.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Does "2%—10 days on net after freight" refer to ten days after date of invoice?

A. Yes.

Q. Not ten days after the first of the next month?

A. Well, I am not positive of that. We had that arrangement with some customers, but in this instance I am not sure whether it was ten days after date of invoice, or 3393 ten days after the first of the following month. I think this was ten days from date of invoice. We would express it differently if it were ten days after the first of the following month.

Q. Would you say that your discount terms were fairly uniform, or did you make many exceptions?

A. We had two general discounts for cash payment. One was ten days from invoice, and one ten or fifteen days after the first of the following month.

Q. Now did this represent a carload shipment, Mr. Tomkins?

A. Yes—938 bundles is a carload of lath.

Q. And what is the weight of the shipment, can you tell from the invoice?

A. 41,022 pounds.
Q. What was the billing weight?
A. The billing weight?
Q. Yes.
A. It wasn't billed on a weight basis.
Q. What was the mill base price?
A. The mill base price was $13 per thousand square feet.
Q. And what was the basing point?
A. Delawanna, New Jersey.

Justice STEPHENS. Before you go any further, explain what you mean by a "mill base price".

3394 The WITNESS. The mill base price was the price charged to the customer, to which the freight to destination was added, in order to make the delivered price.

Justice JACKSON. The price at the mill?

The WITNESS. The price at the mill, the f. o. b. mill price.

Mr. BROMLEY. In the interest of clarity, may I suggest to the witness that Delawanna was not the basing point. If you look at the invoice you will see that it is Philadelphia.

The WITNESS. That is a correction I accept, Mr. Bromley.

Mr. BROMLEY. That only makes it harder, I regret that I had to mention it, but there is no use in getting it wrong. (Laughter.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Now will you explain the point Mr. Bromley raised, concerning Philadelphia as the basing point?

A. There was a gypsum board mill in Philadelphia, operating at that time, and the freight rate from Philadelphia to Washington was less than the freight rate from Delawanna to Washington. Consequently, the bulletin price for board delivered in Washington would be the Philadelphia mill base, plus freight from Philadelphia to Washington. Consequently, when a shipment was made ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). Even though the board was actually made at Delawanna?

The WITNESS. That is correct.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

3395 Q. That is done in order that whoever ships into the Washington market would ship in and quote to dealers as identical price?

A. I don't know why the mill base prices are set up.

Q. It does result in that, does it not?

A. I don't think I understand the question.

Q. My point is that anyone selling to this customer, the United Clay Products Company, would have to make the same quotation, would they not?

A. Any licensee under the license agreement would have to abide by it in making this or any other sale.

Q. So that if National were selling to this same customer, and National has one of its mills at Clarence Center, New York, it would have to quote the same mill base price of $13, and add to that the freight from Philadelphia to Washington, is that correct?

A. Well, National would quote the Washington delivered price as shown in the bulletins.

Q. Wouldn't it be the same price as you quoted?

A. The bulletin prices in Washington are all the same. It is a uniform price.

Q. What I am getting at is that National's invoice would be written the same as this invoice, so far as the first item is concerned, would it not? That is, they would say, "Less 12½ per cent on $13" as a base, and 3396 they would put in there as the price $14.96 per thousand?

A. I am not sure that they would.

Q. Wouldn't it be required under the bulletins?

A. I am not clear whether the bulletins require that 12½ per cent be taken from the mill base, or whether it can be taken from the delivered price. I don't know how National would make up its invoice for this shipment. It might simply quote a delivered price basis, less 12½ per cent.

Q. Well, I recognize that you probably don't know how they would quote. You are clear, however, that they would reach a price of $14.96 per thousand in quoting to the dealer in Washington?

A. If they observed their bulletin prices, they would come out with the same price.

Q. Now I want to know how you reach $14.96, assuming you start with a base price of $13.

A. I haven't calculated this. I imagine the $14.96 is the $13 price, plus the freight.

Q. From —— ?

A. Philadelphia to Washington.

Q. And on what weight of board, that is what I am getting at next?

A. On 41,022 pounds of board.

Justice STEPHENS. Where do you get that fig-3397 ure?

Justice JACKSON. It is right on this exhibit, "Less Freight:—41022#".

Justice STEPHENS. Oh, yes, I see it.

Mr. BROMLEY. Isn't that $1.96 per thousand feet?

The WITNESS. $13 plus $1.96—does that figure 19 cents per hundred pounds?

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I think the calculation may work out that way.

A. It should. I am not sure—these shipments were all made under a weight agreement.

Q. All right, explain that.

A. Instead of having the railroad weigh every car of gypsum board that was shipped from the plant, the railroads would, from time to time, come in to our plant and weigh up samples of board in our warehouse, and we would come to an agreement with the railroad as to what the shipping rate would be on all cars shipped.

Q. That is on the actual weight of the board which you shipped?

A. On the actual weight, the average actual weight, I will say, of the board shipped. Some cars might actually weigh more than others. But it would average out.

Q. On ⅜-inch lath—and "Oakleaf" lath is simply the trade name that you put on for the Oakfield people, is it not?

3398 A. That is right.

Q. It is the same lath as your lath?

A. Exactly the same.

Q. What does 1,000 square feet of your ⅜-inch lath weigh, or what did it weigh back in 1937, could you say?

A. I don't recall what the weight was, somewhere in the neighborhood of 1,250 or 1,450 pounds per thousand square feet. I am not sure what the actual figure was.

Q. Well, isn't it true, Mr. Tomkins—I think it is—that you have two weights, one being the actual weight, which is what you are going to have to pay freight on when the shipment is made, and the other being an arbitrary weight which all the manufacturers have agreed upon as the billing weight; and that the $1.96 is calculated on an arbitrary weight—is that correct, is that your understanding?

Mr. BROMLEY. I object to that as assuming facts not in evidence. There is no such agreement as that.

Justice STEPHENS. Well, if the witness knows whether there is or not, he may say so.

Mr. STEFFEN. I may say that the facts are in evidence; Exhibit 33, page 306, would be one example of where they are using an arbitrary weight for billing purposes.

Justice STEPHENS. If the witness knows that he may say so.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

3399 Q. Are you familiar with that?

A. I am not familiar with that personally, Mr. Steffen. I do know that we did use the same billing weight on our sales of board, in all cases, that is on our 3/8" board, regardless of the amount each car might actually weigh. It was always billed at a flat rate per 1,000 pounds.

Q. And was that what the freight was actually paid on, that weight?

A. I am not sure as to that. I don't know whether those weights were questioned or not, by the railroad.

Q. Let me give you this example—or let me ask you this question, rather—does your board weigh exactly the same as does the board made by National or USG or Certain-teed?

A. No, sir.

Q. There is a variance, is there?

A. Certainly.

Q. How do you quote your prices to dealers?

A. Our prices to dealers are usually quoted on a delivered basis.

Q. And you take a mill base price, in this instance here $13, and you add to it the freight from Philadelphia to Washington, do you not?

A. I don't believe we do that in quoting to a dealer.

Q. In this case ——

A. (Interposing.) In this case we were not quoting a dealer. Our invoice was going to a distributor.

3400 Justice STEPHENS. When you use the phrase "quoting to a dealer", what do you mean?

The WITNESS. If a dealer in Washington sent in an inquiry for board, we would give him a quotation which would be the delivered price in Washington, the price that he would pay for the board.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. That would be $14.96 per thousand here, would it not?

A. I assume so, yes.

Q. Well, what I am getting at is that if that price—and your bulletins all show that the price is the mill base, plus freight from basing point to destination—in order that you may get a uniform price to your dealer, you have to have a uniform billing weight?

A. Surely.

Q. And isn't it true, therefore, that there is an 3401 agreement in the industry that all board of a particular kind shall be priced on a uniform billing weight?

A. I know of no such agreement. We never had any such agreement.

Q. But you have always used a pricing agreement such as this in making sales through Oakfield, is that correct?

A. We have always billed the mill base at Oakfield. Now how much freight we have billed Oakfield, I am not sure. I believe it varied in many instances. In some cases Oakfield would want to sell board where there would be too great a freight absorption that we would have to make in order to make it attractive. In that case we would not assume all that freight absorption; we would make a special arrangement with Oakfield, possibly. We made no guarantee that we would pay the freight anywhere in the United States that Oakfield wanted to ship board to.

Q. I appreciate that. Can you tell us where you get that $1.96 per thousand which is added to the mill base of $13.00?

A. Obviously we get the $1.96 a thousand to bring the $13.00 mill base up to the bulletin price of $14.96 for board delivered in Washington.

Q. You might explain at this time what you mean by "freight absorption".

3402 A. Well, there is freight absorption in this instance.

Q. I would like to have you explain, on the basis of this invoice, what you mean by "freight absorption".

A. The freight from Delawanna to Washington is higher than the freight from Philadelphia to Washington. The price that is ultimately paid for the board in Washington is based on the lower rate from Philadelphia. Consequently, a mill shipping from Delawanna would have to absorb the difference between the freight from Philadelphia and the freight from Delawanna.

Q. And that is what you mean by the statement "less freight—$77.94", is it?

A. No. That $77.94—I don't know, I haven't figured that out. I don't know what that refers to, except the 41,000 pounds that were shipped, less the 19 cents a hundredweight freight charge. Now that was deducted from the amount of money that Oakfield had to pay us, because we assumed that freight expense.

Q. You assumed the difference in the freight between a shipment from Philadelphia to Washington and a shipment from Delawanna to Washington, is that correct?

A. As I say, I am not sure whether we did or not in this instance.

Q. That would be a normal illustration of freight 3403 absorption, would it not?

A. I think on shipments to Washington we probably absorbed the difference ourselves.

Q. The difference between the freight from Philadelphia to Washington and the freight from Delawanna to Washington?

A. That difference, yes.

Justice STEPHENS. Who actually paid the freight bill first, Oakfield?

The WITNESS. No, we paid the freight bill.

Mr. BROMLEY. Wait a minute, Mr. Witness. On this shipment United would pay the freight bill when it got the goods in Washington, wouldn't it?

The WITNESS. I would like to correct my answer. I am not sure whether we paid the freight bill, whether United Clay paid the freight bill, or whether Oakfield paid the freight bill.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. It is possible that United Clay Products paid $77.94 to the carrier, which would constitute the freight, apparently, from Delawanna to Washington, and that would be deducted from the invoice?

A. I don't know that that is the freight from Delawanna to Washington.

Justice STEPHENS. Actually, eventually the person to whom you sold, Oakfield, would pay such freight 3404 as you charged it, I assume? That is, I mean such freight as you required it to bear in view of your absorption of a part of the freight due to the difference in the basing points?

The WITNESS. Apparently in this instance Oakfield paid the $77.94, because that is deducted from the $400.

Justice STEPHENS. Oakfield paid it?

The WITNESS. Oakfield or United Clay.

Justice STEPHENS. I don't understand that.

The WITNESS. I am not clear ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). I don't understand that. I should think if they paid it, it would not be deducted.

Mr. STEFFEN. It would be deducted.

The WITNESS. Yes, sir, if they had paid it ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). You mean if they had first paid it?

The WITNESS. Yes. Then we would have to take it off the bill.

Justice STEPHENS. You mean you would be giving them a credit for it here?

The WITNESS. Yes. On the other hand, if they were not required to pay it, we would also take it off the bill.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I want to get one matter clear, Mr. Tomkins, and that is that whoever was selling to United Clay 3405 Products Company in Washington, if he abided by the license agreement, would have to charge the buyer the $449.04; is that correct?

Mr. BROMLEY. I object to that unless the question means the licensee, that it is limited to the licensee.

Mr. STEFFEN. I mean any licensee abiding by the terms of the license agreement.

Justice STEPHENS. The question will be so interpreted.

The WITNESS. Yes, I have already answered that.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. And that is a price made up of the base price at Philadelphia, in this case apparently $13.00, plus freight from Philadelphia to Washington?

A. Yes, I believe that is it. I don't know how the prices are set.

Q. And you agree that in order for that to be a uniform price, it has to be a uniform billing weight?

A. Yes, if it is billed on the basis of $13.00 plus freight.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think we might take a recess at this time, unless you have some questions right at the moment.

Justice STEPHENS. Very well, the Court will be in recess for five minutes.

(Thereupon, a short recess was taken.)

Justice STEPHENS. Proceed.

3406 By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Coming back now to Exhibit 374, Mr. Tomkins, in the light of the illustration that we have in 375 and 375-A, B, C, and D, can you tell us whether that would be a transaction which would make it necessary for the Oakfield Gypsum Products Company to be aware of the increase in freight mentioned in the letter of April 2, 1938?

A. Well, an increase in freight would change the price at which we billed the Oakfield Company.

Q. And it would also change the price at which the Oakfield would want to sell United Clay Products in Washington?

A. If it intended to retain its full discount.

Q. And the practice on the part of Oakfield and Structural and Connecticut would be to retain their full discount where possible, would it not?

A. I assume it would, I don't know.

Q. Would it not also be necessary for Oakfield to know the increase in price so that they would not be undercutting the price at which other licensees, or licensees would be selling in Washington.

A. If Oakfield did not know what the dealer price was at any given time, it might either undersell or attempt to oversell.

Mr. BROMLEY. It is not crystal clear to me.

3407 Justice JACKSON. You mean the answer?

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, sir.

The WITNESS. By "oversell", I mean charge more or less than the bulletin price. Unless it knew the bulletin price, it might charge any price.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. And it was your purpose to keep Oakfield informed, for the benefit of Oakfield, and also to make sure that Oakfield was not undercutting prices; is that correct?

A. We didn't know what Oakfield was selling at to these dealers. We made no inquiry as to Oakfield's prices to its dealers.

Q. Do you keep fairly well versed on the prices to dealers?

A. Yes.

Q. And how many salesmen do you have in the field?

A. Well, at this time ——.

Q. (Interposing.) Or did you have at that time?

A. At this time we had maybe 10 or 15.

Q. And if it came to your attention that Oakfield or Structural or Connecticut were underselling yourselves, would you not call that to their attention?

A. Whenever such a question arose, we did ask Oakfield or Structural whether or not they were underselling.

Q. And it would be very important to you, and 3408 to the other licensees, to make sure that they were not undercutting the market price to dealers, would it not?

A. Well, it would be important if it were being done on a large scale.

Q. What would be the consequences, Mr. Tomkins, if Structural or Oakfield should persistently undersell USG or your own company?

A. They would get the business.

Q. They would get the business?

A. Yes.

Q. And how long would they stay in business?

A. I can't answer that.

Q. You mean that if Structural, for example, were selling in Philadelphia at 10 or 15 cents below the price at which USG was selling the same product, that you think they would continue to receive a source of supply?

Mr. BROMLEY. I object to that as speculative.

Mr. STEFFEN. There is very little speculation involved in that, Your Honor. We have a defendant on the stand, and I would like his opinion on it.

Mr. BROMLEY. How can he speculate what USG would do with regard to whether it would sell Oakfield or not?

Mr. STEFFEN. He can speculate as to what his own company might do or he can state what his own company might do.

Justice STEPHENS. Objection sustained. The 3409 question is speculative.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. What would your company do if Oakfield or Structural were to buy from you at 12½ per cent discount and then sell below your dealer prices?

A. That would depend on the effect, if any, it had on our business, and by "our" I mean Kelley business. If it interfered with our business if they quoted a lower price to a dealer than we were selling directly, and took that dealer's business away from us, I don't think we would continue selling them very long.

Q. I don't think you would, either.

A. If it were not in connection with one of our own dealers, I don't think we would know about it unless it were brought to our attention.

Q. And wouldn't it be brought to your attention by USG if it was a sale to a USG dealer?

Mr. BROMLEY. I object to that as speculative again.

Justice STEPHENS. Objection sustained. The Court doesn't foreclose you from asking if particular items of that sort were brought to the attention of Kelley by USG, but as to what USG would do is a purely argumentative question.

Mr. STEFFEN. We will have some further testimony upon that same subject, and I will defer further questioning until then.

3410 By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. But it is pretty clear, as you stated, that if Oakfield or Connecticut or Structural were selling to your dealers at a lower price, you don't believe they would stay in business very long?

A. Whether it was board or anything else, no one would.

Q. That is right, I think "no one" is a proper answer. And it is clear that Structural and Oakfield knew that, do they not?

Mr. BROMLEY. I object to that as speculative, too.

Mr. STEFFEN. The witness can answer. He has been in business a long while.

Justice STEPHENS. The Court will instruct the witness that if he had some communication or dealings with Oakfield or Structural which puts him in a position to know that they know it, he may answer; but if he is just speculating and reasoning from the general facts, that is a conclusion for the Court to reach, not the witness.

The WITNESS. My answer would be a speculation. I have no knowledge.

Mr. STEFFEN. I have certain further invoices that I would like to bring up at this time, Your Honor.

I now would like to show the witness Government's Exhibit No. 376, which purports to be an office
3411 voucher under date of December 10, 1937, with the figure "30" in the lower right-hand corner; and 376-A, which is a memorandum; and 376-B, which is another memorandum; and 376-C, which is an invoice from Kelley Plasterboard Company to Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, under date of December 10, 1937.

(The documents referred to were marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 376, 376-A, 376-B, and 376-C for Identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Have you examined Exhibits Nos. 376, 376-A, B, and C, Mr. Tomkins?

A. I have.

Q. Can you tell us what they are?

A. Exhibit 376 is a list of materials covering an order from Oakfield Gypsum Products Company to ship a carload of lath to United Clay Products Company.

376-A is apparently a memorandum from Oakfield, instructing the Kelley Plasterboard Company to make such shipment.

376-B is the mill memorandum showing the shipment loaded in the car, with the car number given.

376-C is the invoice of Kelley Plasterboard Company to Oakfield Gypsum Company covering the shipment.

3412 Q. Do you recognize them as documents of the Kelley Plasterboard Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I note that in Exhibit 376-C the f. o. b. term is "your yard", while in 376-C the f. o. b. term was "destination". Can you explain that?

A. No, sir, I don't understand what "f. o. b. your yard" means in this instance. This was a freight shipment, and I presume the "your yard" is the same as "destination". It meant the plant of the United Clay Products Company.

Q. This invoice, 376-C, calls for perforated lath, as well as Oakleaf lath. Was your company a licensee under license from USG to make perforated lath, do you remember, at this time?

A. Well, I am not sure of the time. We did have a perforated lath license.

Q. The Kelley perforated lath license is Exhibit 31 under date of June 23, 1937.

A. Then the answer is yes.

Q. Do you recall whether you were making perforated lath at this time?

A. Yes, sir, we were.

Q. When did you start making perforated lath?

A. I think Mr. Kelley had started perforating lath just before we took the business over. My recol-3413 lection is that he had built a machine for perforating.

Q. He built a machine?

A. Yes.

Q. You don't know the date?

A. I don't know the date, and I am not sure that the machine was finished.

Q. What date did you take over?

A. May 1, 1937.

Q. The license agreement with USG is dated June 23, 1937.

A. That would have been at approximately that time that we began.

Q. That is, your testimony is that Kelley may have been making perforated lath before they took out the agreement with USG?

A. As I say, I am not sure whether he was or not.

Q. You recall that perforated lath, under the agreement, was selling at a 25-cent differential?

A. Yes, at one time it was.

Q. It indicates here that the perforated lath is sold on a basis of $13.25, and ordinary lath on a basis of $13.00.

A. That is correct.

Q. I now wish to show you Government's Exhibit No. 377, which purports to be an office voucher dated 3414 November 18, 1937, with the figure "34" in the lower right-hand corner; followed by a memorandum, marked Exhibit 377-A; and a second memorandum, dated November 9, 1937, with the number "36" in the lower right-hand corner, marked Exhibit 377-B; and a third memorandum or paper, with the figure "37" in the lower right-hand corner, marked Exhibit 377-C; and a uniform straight bill of lading under date of November 18, 1937, marked Exhibit 377-D; and an invoice, under date of November 18, 1937, marked Exhibit 377-E.

(The documents referred to were marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 377, 377-A, 377-B, 377-C, 377-D, and 377-E for Identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Have you examined Government's Exhibits for Identification 377, 377-A, B, C, D, and E, Mr. Tomkins?

A. I have.

Q. And are they papers issued in the regular course of your business?

A. They are.

Q. What is the subject matter of the shipment?

A. These papers cover the shipment of a carload consisting of both plain and perforated lath to George H. Robinson & Sons in Alexandria, Virginia, for the account of Oakfield Gypsum Products Company. They in-
3415 clude the order from Oakfield Gypsum Products

Company, the loading list, the bill of lading, and the invoice from the Kelley Plasterboard Company to Oakfield Gypsum Products Company.

Justice STEPHENS. Perhaps, for the convenience of later readers of the record, you had better designate what each paper is, Mr. Tomkins.

The WITNESS. Exhibit 377 is the itemized list of materials.

Exhibit 377-A is a memorandum giving the car number.

Exhibit 377-B is the order from Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation.

Exhibit 377-C is the memorandum giving the car number, the date, and the quantity of material shipped.

Justice STEPHENS. That is a mill memo?

The WITNESS. That is a mill memo.

Exhibit 377-D is the uniform straight bill of lading covering the shipment.

Exhibit 377-E is a copy of the Kelley Plasterboard Company's invoice to Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Now referring to 377, Exhibit 377, and also Exhibit 377-E, can you tell us more clearly how the price was arrived at?

A. Well, that is shown clearly on 377. The plain 3466 lath was priced at $15.07 destination. From that was deducted the 12½ per cent discount on the $13 mill price.

On the perforated lath, the destination price was $15.32. The mill price was $13.25, from which the 12½ per cent commission was deducted.

Q. And that price of $226.17 appearing at the top of Exhibit 377 was the mill price of $13 plus the freight from Philadelphia to, in this case, Alexandria, Virginia?

A. Well, the $15.07 price was the bulletin price for board sold in Alexandria, Virginia.

Q. I see.

And that bulletin price was arrived at by the addition of the base price of $13.00 plus the freight from Philadelphia to Alexandria, Virginia?

A. I don't know that it was. That was the price that the bulletin called for.

Q. You don't mean that the bulletin had a price for lath delivered in the City of Alexandria, Virginia, of $15.07? It had to be a calculation, did it not?

A. Yes, it would be a calculation made in the bulletin.

Q. The bulletin would tell you how to make the calculation, but it wouldn't make the calculation?

A. What I am trying to bring out is that the bulletin would specify the weight on which the calculation would be based.

Q. There would be a uniform billing weight?

3417 A. There would be a weight, stated in the bulletin, that we were required to use, multiplied by the freight rate.

Q. And all licensees used the same weight for purposes of calculating this price?

A. Yes, it was a part of the bulletin price.

Q. Now on Exhibit 377-D, you have a weight given of 41,022 pounds. That is the actual weight or the stipulated weight of the shipment made, is it not?

Mr. BROMLEY. Which do you mean, actual or stipulated?

Mr. STEFFEN. I think it is either one or the other.

The WITNESS. I don't know which it is.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. When you testified earlier, you stated that ordinarily when you make a shipment by carrier they weigh up your shipment and it appears on the bill of lading; or, where you are making a number of shipments as you do, the carrier will take a sample of your board and reach an average weight; is that right?

A. That is correct.

Q. So that this 41,022 was either the actual weight or the average actual weight of the board that you were shipping, is that correct?

A. Yes, I think it would have to be.

Q. They charge freight on actual weight?

3418 Mr. BROMLEY. Who does?

Mr. STEFFEN. The carrier does.

The WITNESS. They charge freight on the average weight.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. That is the carrier?

A. Yes.

Justice STEPHENS. What is meant by the term "dunnage" on Exhibit 377-D?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes, I might ask that, Mr. Tomkins.

The WITNESS. Dunnage would be the bracing material or packing material that is loaded in the car to keep the board from breaking. It is usually broken or imperfect board.

Justice STEPHENS. And you have to pay on the weight of that, also?

The WITNESS. Yes, the railroad charges for that.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I believe the amount of your dunnage, in terms of board, is fixed by the bulletins, is it not?

A. I don't recall.

Mr. STEFFEN. I would like to ask that the witness be shown Government's Exhibit No. 37, page 536. That is Bulletin 5 under date of February 24, 1939.

(Exhibit 37 handed to the witness.)

Mr. KNUFF. May I check and see that the witness 3419 has the right exhibit in front of him, please?

Justice STEPHENS. Yes.

(Exhibit checked by Mr. Knuff.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. That is a provision, Mr. Tomkins, of the bulletin regulating the size of the dunnage and how you should use it, and so on. Are you familiar with it?

A. I am now. This regulates the size of the dunnage and states that an excessive amount shall not be used.

Q. And does it define "excessive" at any point, do you know?

A. I have read it very hurriedly, and I don't see any definition of "excessive".

Mr. STEFFEN. I now wish to show the witness Government's Exhibit 378 ——

Justice JACKSON. Has that a mark "55" down at the lower right-hand corner?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes, sir. It purports to be an office voucher under date of August 14, 1937.

Justice JACKSON. If you will give us the connecting number, we can get it quickly.

Mr. STEFFEN. Very good.

Also Exhibit 378-A, which is numbered "56"; 378-B, which is numbered "57"; and 378-C, which is numbered "58", and which purports to be an invoice of the 3420 Kelley Plasterboard Company dated October 14, 1937.

(The documents referred to were marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 378, 378-A, 378-B, and 378-C for Identification.)

Mr. STEFFEN. Would Your Honors care to recess at this time?

Justice STEPHENS Yes, the Court will take the noon recess at this time.

(Thereupon, at 12:15 o'clock p. m., a recess was taken until 1:45 o'clock p. m., of the same day.)

AFTERNOON SESSION

3421 (The trial was resumed at 1:45 o'clock p. m., pursuant to recess.)

Justice STEPHENS. Proceed, gentlemen.

Thereupon, FREDERICK TOMKINS, the witness on the stand at the time of recess, resumed his testimony further as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Resumed).

Mr. STEFFEN. Will you show the witness, Mrs. Gillette, the documents which have been marked as Government's Exhibits 378, 378-A, 378-B, and 378-C?

(The exhibits referred to were handed to the witness.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Have you examined Government's Exhibit No. 378?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the attached papers?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are they papers from your company?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. Could you explain to the Court what Exhibit 378 is?

A. Exhibit 378 is an itemized list of materials of the Kelley Plasterboard Company, showing the shipment of a mixed car of perforated lath, plain lath, and neat 3422 plaster, to United Clay & Supply Corporation, to their Baltimore yard, for the account of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, in October, 1937.

Q. And 378-C is the invoice?

A. Yes.

Q. Now I notice that on these papers you have sold a certain amount of plaster. Is that what you meant by white plaster, or is this a different type of plaster?

A. No, sir, this is the neat plaster, which was purchased by the Kelley Plasterboard Company.

Q. Is it handled any differently than if you were selling white plaster, which you manufactured?

A. Well, I don't know what you mean by "handled any differently".

Q. I mean, you sold mixed cars of board and plaster, did you, on occasion?

A. Yes.

Q. And would you have invoiced any other plaster in the same way, except as to the price, perhaps?

A. I think we would. In some instances we would separate our invoices, showing shipments of board products on one invoice and shipments of plaster or other products on a separate invoice.

Q. In this case, I notice it says "Less freight—3423 $69.81", appearing on the invoice, which is Exhibit 378-C. That freight is for the whole car, is it?

A. I would assume so, yes.

Q. Could you say positively?

A. Well, I can't say positively. That appears on the material ticket. Apparently it is the entire freight charge that we made to Oakfield. Whether or not it covers the actual freight paid, I don't know. I assume it does.

Q. Do plaster and perforated lath take the same freight rate?

A. I don't know that they do in all cases. I am not sure.

Q. Do you handle all these matters of detail in your office?

A. No, sir, I do not.

Q. Who is the man with the Newark Plaster Company who does?

A. All of these calculations were made by Mr. Wileman.

Q. By Mr. Wileman?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is he still with you?

A. No, he is no longer with us.

Q. When did he leave?

A. He left in 1942, I believe, the summer of 1942.

Q. Could you tell us where he is, please?
3424 A. No, I don't know where he is now.

Q. I will now show you Government's Exhibit No. 379——

Justice JACKSON (interposing). Does that bear the number "89" in the lower right-hand corner?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes, Your Honor.

It purports to be an invoice from the Kelley Plasterboard Company to Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation under date of April 16, 1937.

I will also show you Exhibit 379-A ——

Justice JACKSON (interposing). That bears the little figure "90", does it?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes.

Also Exhibit 379-B, with the figure "91" in the margin; Exhibit 379-C, bearing the figure "92" in the margin; Exhibit 379-D, with the figure "93" in the corner; and Exhibit 379-E, with the figure "94" in the corner.

(The documents referred to were marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 379, 379-A, 379-B, 379-C, 379-D, and 379-E for Identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Have you examined Government's Exhibit for Identification 379, and the attached exhibits, Mr. Tomkins?

A. I have.

Q. And what are they, please?

3425 A. Exhibit 379 is an invoice from Kelley Plasterboard Company to the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, covering the shipment of a car of plain gypsum lath, perforated gypsum lath, and metallized gypsum lath, to George H. Robinson & Sons, at Alexandria, Virginia, on April 16, 1937.

Mr. BROMLEY. Is that for the account of Oakfield?

The WITNESS. Yes, the bill is to invoice, it is an invoice to Oakfield.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. That evidences a sale by Oakfield to the George H. Robinson & Sons Company?

A. This evidences a sale by us to Oakfield of lath which was consigned to George H. Robinson & Sons, Alexandria, Virginia, on Oakfield's order.

Justice STEPHENS. By "consigned," I assume you mean sent?

The WITNESS. Shipped, yes, sir.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. And these do not show whether Oakfield actually sold to Robinson, but that would be the normal course?

A. I assume they did.

Q. Now what is meant by "Freight allowed to destination?"

A. That means that the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation would receive a credit for the amount of freight to destination, the amount of the freight 3426 shown on the invoice, which, in this instance, is $90.35.

Q. And does that indicate that you, or Kelley Plasterboard Company, was absorbing that amount of freight?

A. That means that Kelley Plasterboard Company, or the customer, was paying that amount of freight. It had been paid, and Oakfield was not required to pay it on this invoice.

Q. I note, Mr. Tomkins, that there are certain bundles of perforated lath mentioned there. Was the Kelley Plasterboard Company making perforated lath at this time, April 16, 1937?

A. Yes, sir, I believe they were.

Q. And do you know how long they had been making perforated lath—this was just about the time that you took over the company?

A. Yes. I testified this morning that I thought they began making perforated lath just about the time we took the company over. Whether it was a little before or a little after, I am not sure.

Q. And you subsequently took out a license with the United States Gypsum Company to make perforated lath?

A. We did.

Q. That was dated—I think we brought out this morning —June 23, 1937. Do you remember that?

3427 A. Yes.

Justice STEPHENS. That was the license to Newark?

The WITNESS. No, that would have been a license to Kelley Plasterboard.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. So for some period prior to the signing of the license, they were making perforated lath without a license?

Mr. BROMLEY. If he knows.

The WITNESS. I am not sure. Yes, I believe they were. I would like to check on that.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I will show you Government's Exhibit No. 31 to refresh your recollection on that.

(Government's Exhibit 31 handed to the witness.)

A. This is the agreement dated the 23rd day of June.

Q. And will you look at it to verify the signature?

A. Yes, this is correct.

Q. Is that signed by you?

A. It is signed by Mr. Keady for the Gypsum Company and by me for Kelley Plasterboard Company, and is dated June 23, 1937.

Mr. BROMLEY. I move to strike out the answer "Yes", which I think the witness gave to the question, "Then Kelley was making perforated lath without a license?" I don't think he knows that.

3428 The WITNESS. That is the point that this does not clear up. I don't know whether, prior to the 23rd of June, the Kelley Company was making perforated lath. I would have to look that up. I can find out. But I am not clear on it.

Justice STEPHENS. Then the answer "yes" may go out as not being a correct indication of the witness' answer.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. The invoice that I show you, Government's Exhibit 379, would indicate that Kelley was selling perforated lath prior to that time?

A. Yes, there is no question as to that.

Q. And could you tell from looking at the invoice whether they bought that perforated lath from some other place, or made it themselves?

A. There is no way of telling from the invoice.

Q. There would be no other way of them selling it unless they bought it?

A. They either bought it or manufactured it, yes, sir.

Q. And the price, I notice there, is $13.25 mill price, which is maintaining the 25-cent differential which was obtaining at that time?

Mr. BROMLEY. I object to that as incompetent because calling for a conclusion. I don't think the 3429 word "maintaining" is a proper word to put in the question.

Justice STEPHENS. Let us have the question.

(The question was read by the reporter.)

Justice STEPHENS. You mean—which was the price obtaining at that time—I assume?

Mr. STEFFEN. That is correct.

Justice STEPHENS. That word may go out, the word "maintaining."

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. We have perforated both license bulletins for this particular period. Could you tell from looking at those what the bulletin price was?

A. Yes, I can read the bulletin prices. (Laughter.)

Q. That is what I mean.

Justice JACKSON. Is there any question but what this is the bulletin price?

Mr. STEFFEN. I don't think so.

Mr. BROMLEY. No.

Justice JACKSON. Why take up so much time, then?

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. In regard to metallized gypsum lath, this invoice also calls for a certain amount of that ——

Mr. BROMLEY (interposing). I should have said, in response to Judge Jackson's question, that there is no question but what this price is the same as the 3430 bulletin price.

Justice JACKSON. That is what I meant to imply by my question.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Now refer to the 157 bundles of metallized gypsum lath on the invoice, Exhibit 379. Was the Kelley Plasterboard Company making metallized board or lath at this time?

A. Not at this time.

Q. Do you know when they first started making metallized board or lath?

A. I don't know the exact date. I believe it was later in the summer of 1937.

Q. And when you took over the Kelley Plasterboard Company, did you ascertain how long they had been making metallized board, how long prior to the time that you took the company over?

A. The Kelley Company had not been making metallized lath.

Q. Excuse me—how long they had been selling it?

A. No, I don't believe I did.

Q. Where did they procure the metallized lath which they were selling?

A. I know that after the Newark Company took the Kelley Company over, that Kelley purchased some metallized board from United States Gypsum Company.

3431 Q. And that ran on until you started making it yourself, which you say was sometime in 1937?

A. I believe it was sometime in 1937, yes.

Q. And this price of $22.00 mill base, is that the same as the license price?

A. Well, I haven't the license price here—I assume it is.

Mr. STEFFEN. Will you stipulate that that is the license price?

Mr. BROMLEY. I don't know what it was.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. May I ask you one or two questions concerning metallized board.

Do you sell a great quantity of that?

A. No, we sell a very small quantity of it.

Q. It is sold at a proportionately high price, is it not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The sale of it right now is discontinued on account of the difficulty of getting foil?

A. We have been unable to get foil.

Q. Metallized board is used for insulation purposes?

A. That is correct.

Q. Is it ever used simply for decorative purposes?

A. I believe it has been used for decorative purposes.

3432 Q. For example?

A. In a playroom, or something of that nature.

Q. By turning the foil inside instead of toward the air space, it gives you a metallized surface having a decorative value.

A. (No response.)

Q. Now, Mr. Tomkins, you signed Government's Exhibit No. 31, which was the license to make perforated board?

A. I did.

Q. Did you make any examination of the patent situation covering perforated lath at the time you signed this agreement?

A. No, sir, I did not.

Q. Did you know at the time that the Schumacher Wallboard people out in California were making a perforated lath?

Mr. BROMLEY. I object to that as immaterial and irrelevant.

Justice STEPHENS. The Court doesn't see the materiality of it. It may be subject to some connection.

What is the point of it, Mr. Steffen?

Mr. STEFFEN. Well, the connection will be to show whether the witness, or the Newark Plaster Company, had made an investigation of other possible boards at the time. We will make a legal argument on two or three scores at the appropriate time. At the moment I wish to show simply—which I think is the fact—that Mr. Tomkins 3433 took out the license, as he has just testified, without any particular investigation, simply because it was almost necessary to do so in view of the dominant position of the United States Gypsum Company, and that they were offering a uniform license.

Mr. BROMLEY. Well, he hasn't said anything like you said after the word "because", I am sure.

Mr. STEFFEN. Your Honor asked me what the relevancy ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). We merely wanted to know the materiality. He answered definitely that he did not make any investigation of the patent situation.

Mr. STEFFEN. I understand that to mean ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). Then you asked him about the Schumacher Company of California, if he knew they were making perforated lath, and we didn't see the relevancy or materiality of that; but it may have some relevancy, and I was trying to find out what you claimed it was.

Mr. BROMLEY. It seems to me he trespasses upon the rule as to validity already made by this Court.

Mr. STEFFEN. I would say that we are not offering it to test the validity.

Mr. BROMLEY. Then it can have no materiality.

Justice STEPHENS. We will receive it subject to a motion to strike, because we can't tell whether it is material until we hear it, apparently.

3434 By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Did you know at the time you signed Government's Exhibit 31, the perforated lath license agreement, that the Schumacher Wallboard Company was making a perforated lath on the Pacific Coast?

A. No, sir.

Q. Will you state, Mr. Tomkins, why you signed the perforated lath license agreement?

A. Well, I understood that other licensees had signed the perforated lath agreement ——

Q. (Interposing.) Do you know just which ones you then understood had signed this agreement?

A. I think at that time I understood that the Ebsary Company, the Certain-teed Company, I am not sure about National—I think there was a question as to National ——

Q. (Interposing.) I think they did not sign it.

A. I think my understanding at the time was that the National Company was the only company that had not signed it.

Justice STEPHENS. Had you finished your answer?

The WITNESS. Yes, sir.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. And you derived that understanding from talks, did you, with people in the industry?

A. Yes, that was general knowledge in the industry.

3435 Q. And did you talk with Mr. Keady, for example, of United States Gypsum Company?

A. I think I discussed this at one time with Mr. Keady.

Q. And did you understand that there was to be a price differential maintained on perforated lath?

A. I don't recall whether I understood that at the time, or not. At this time, in June, apparently there was a price differential. At no time did we ever have any assurance that there were going to be price differentials. We knew what the fact was at the time.

Q. Then on January 3, 1939, the agreement between Kelley and USG concerning the perforated lath license was assigned to the Newark Plaster Company, is that not true?

A. Yes, that was assigned as of that date to the Newark Plaster Company.

Q. And you have since been making perforated lath, up until the time of the fire, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Mr. BROMLEY. That license wasn't assigned, Mr. Steffen. That is why they took out a new license, it wasn't assignable.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think that is correct, Mr. Bromley.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Now that new license you took out on January

3436 3, 1939, provided for no royalty, did it?

A. I don't believe it did.

Q. It was a gratuitous license?

A. I would have to refresh my recollection on it.

Mr. STEFFEN. I should like now to offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 375 through and including 379-E.

Justice STEPHENS. That means 375, 375-A, B, C, D; 376, 376-A, B, C; 377, 377-A, B, C, D, E; 378, 378-A, B, C; and 379, 379-A, B, C, D, and E.

Is there any objection?

Mr. BROMLEY. We make only the usual objection.

Justice STEPHENS. The exhibits are received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 375, 375-A, B, C, D; 376, 376-A, B, C; 377, 377-A, B, C. D, E; 378, 378-A, B, C; and 379, 379-A, B, C, D, E, were received in evidence.)

Mr. STEFFEN. Now I would like to go back to Government's Exhibit 375-C for a moment. Please show it to the witness.

(Exhibit 375-C handed to the witness.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. This is the invoice we were talking about this 3437 morning.

Can you tell from looking at that invoice what the actual weight of your board was, at that time, per thousand square feet?

A. No, I couldn't tell from looking at this invoice. I can tell the amount of freight that was credited against the price to Oakfield, but ——

Q. (Interposing.) I think all you have to do is to divide 41,022 pounds, which is the actual weight, by 30, and that gives you the weight per thousand square feet.

A. I am not sure that 41,022 is the actual weight.

Q. You said this morning it was either the actual weight or a very close approximation to your actual weight, which was agreed upon between you and the carrier as the average rate; isn't that correct?

A. Yes, but as I say, it may not have been the actual weight of this shipment. There were substantial variations in weight on different cars. But that, for practical purposes, I would say would give you the weight, by that division.

Q. It divides out to about 1350 or 1355 per thousand board feet—is that approximately right?

A. You mean 1350 pounds per thousand square feet?

Q. Yes.

3438 A. I would say that was somewhat lighter than the board actually was.

Mr. BROMLEY. The division gives 1365.

The WITNESS. I believe at this time our board weighed nearer 1400 than 1350 pounds. This may have been actual weight, I don't know.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. If it were actual weight, it was 1360 or 1365?
A. Yes, and that sounds very light to me.
Justice STEPHENS. Didn't you say 1365, Mr. Bromley?
Mr. BROMLEY. It divides out as 1366.
Justice STEPHENS. Do you get a different figure, Mr. Steffen?
Mr. STEFFEN. No, that is correct, or roughly so.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Now let's for a moment assume that that is the correct figure,—and that the invoice would indicate that it was the correct figure,—can you tell by looking at the price bulletins what the arbitrary billing weight as of this time was, Mr. Tomkins?
A. Well, I haven't got the price bulletin. If I had, I could tell what the billing weight was.
Q. I will show you Government's Exhibit No. 33, at page 229.
A. This doesn't ——
3439 Q. (Interposing.) If you will look in that box on over about half way —— Justice JACKSON. Half way through that big volume?
Mr. STEFFEN. No, across the sheet.
The WITNESS. This shows a billing weight for 3/8 inch wallboard of 1850 pounds per thousand feet that prevailed on March 21, 1931.
Justice STEPHENS. Where is that figure?
The WITNESS. Under the 3/8 inch gypsum wallboard.
Mr. KNUFF. May I get the right one for the witness to refer to?
Mr. STEFFEN. The witness has looked at the wrong page, Your Honor.
Justice STEPHENS. Yes, you may, Mr. Knuff.
Justice JACKSON. It is the middle of the book, then. (Laughter.)
Mr. KNUFF. That is page 299, Your Honor.
Justice STEPHENS. We have it.
The WITNESS. Yes, sir, that shows a billing weight of 1400 pounds per thousand square feet, and that is dated June 12, 1937.
Justice STEPHENS. That is 3/8 inch gypsum plaster lath, is that right?
The WITNESS. That is right.
Justice STEPHENS. That is in the 7th compartment of the second box from the top, is it not?

3440 The WITNESS. That is correct, yes, sir.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Refer to the text material in the box on page 299 of Government's Exhibit 33, and state, if you can, how the price is figured upon a sale of gypsum board in carload lots?

A. I am not familiar with figuring these prices. I assume that ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). If you are able, from your knowledge of the business, to answer, do so. But if you are answering upon a pure assumption and inference, then you shouldn't answer, because we must know this accurately. Someone ought to be able to explain it who has had detailed familiarity with it. Perhaps your familiarity with this business is such that you could do it.

Justice JACKSON. I don't think the witness understands your question, Mr. Steffen. You asked him to refer to the text, didn't you? He is down at the table.

Mr. STEFFEN. I asked him if that text would enable him to tell how to arrive at the delivered price.

The WITNESS. That is exactly how it is arrived at.

Justice STEPHENS. Which part of the text are you referring to? Let the record show.

Mr. STEFFEN. That part of the text between the heavy lines on page 299, which reads that the "De-3441 livered price is lowest combination of mill price plus freight from that mill to destination."

Justice STEPHENS. I see where you mean now, thank you.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Can you tell from that, Mr. Tomkins, how these prices on Government's Exhibit No. 375-C were arrived at —and by "these prices" I refer to the price of $14.96 per thousand?

A. Yes, the lowest combination—which in this instance would be the Philadelphia mill price—plus freight from Philadelphia to destination, would be the delivered price at which the board was required to be sold.

Q. And that would give you, apparently, in this case, if these figures applied, it would give you the $14.96 per thousand?

A. That is correct.

Justice STEPHENS. What does this phrase mean: "Delivered price is lowest combination of mill price plus freight from that mill"—what mill?

The WITNESS. That would be the nearest mill to the destination.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Mr. Tomkins, are you sure it would be that, or would it be the nearest basing point mill?

3442 A. It would be the nearest mill that is listed on the price bulletin, or it would be, rather, the mill that carried the lowest freight rate to that destination.

Q. The lowest combination of mill based price plus freight rate from the basing point mill?

A. That is correct.

Q. And the basing point mills are listed here on page 299 of Exhibit 33?

A. That is right.

Q. Beginning with Acme, Texas, Boston, Massachusetts, and so on?

A. Yes.

Justice STEPHENS. If you read along to Philadelphia, where do you get the figure $14.96?

Justice JACKSON. $13.00 plus $1.96.

Mr. STEFFEN. The $13.00 is the mill base price.

Justice STEPHENS. And you add to that the freight from Philadelphia?

Mr. STEFFEN. On an arbitrary weight of 1400 pounds per thousand square feet.

Justice JACKSON. Does "arbitrary" there mean guesswork, or that it is an agreed weight?

Mr. STEFFEN. Agreed weight.

Justice JACKSON. When you say "agreed", is it something that the railroad accepts as being the average weight?

3443 Mr. STEFFEN. No.

Justice JACKSON. I don't know what "arbitrary" means, then.

Mr. BROMLEY. I don't think "arbitrary" is a good word. It is a weight which we agree upon with the railroad, and then put in our bulletin, and we impose that on the licensees. We say, "You have got to bill on that weight." Now, you will notice here that on a billing weight of 1400 pounds, if the freight rate were 14 cents from Philadelphia to Washington, it would work out $1.96. Now we know that the freight rate, as shown by the invoice from Delawanna to Washington, was 19 cents, so the freight rate from Philadelphia to Washington was probably 14 cents, and that works out exactly—1400 pounds billing weight, 14 cents freight rate, which makes $1.96 per thousand feet.

Justice JACKSON. When you say 14 cents, you don't mean that the freight per thousand isn't $1.96, do you?

Mr. BROMLEY. No ——

Justice JACKSON (interposing). That is what I mean.

Mr. BROMLEY. The 14 cents is per hundred.

Justice STEPHENS. That is $14 per thousand.

Justice JACKSON. That is not weight, that is feet.

Mr. BROMLEY. Let me start over again. The rate is 14 cents per hundredweight. A thousand feet of board weighs 1400 pounds ——

3444 Mr. STEFFEN (interposing). That is an arbitrary weight.

Mr. BROMLEY. Not at all, it is the weight we set in the bulletin. 1400 pounds times 14 cents a hundredweight is $1.96 per 1400 pounds, or $1.96 per thousand feet.

Justice STEPHENS. I see.

This 1400 pounds is the bulletin figure which you set?

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes.

Justice STEPHENS. You say you impose that. Will you explain that? What do you mean when you say you "impose that"?

Mr. BROMLEY. In order to fix the delivered price at which these licensees must sell their customers, we, as licensor, say: "You must charge a price which is made up of a mill base price"—in this case $13.00—"plus the freight from the nearest basing point mill to the destination."

Now if we allowed each licensee to base his price on the actual weight of his board, each one of the prices of our licensees would be different. So we tried to arrive, ourselves, at an arbitary weight figure, which is what we judge is about what the board that is being made at the time weighs, in the industry, and we say, "In order to calculate the delivered price, in order to arrive at that part 3445 of it which is freight, use 1400 pounds as the weight. Then if you all do that, you will all come out with the same price, which we are trying to fix."

And that is about what the railroads do, too. They don't weigh every car. They arrive at an approximate weight. They do that by agreement with all of us.

Mr. STEFFEN. I move that those last remarks be stricken out as argument.

Justice STEPHENS. They are just illustrative. We are trying to find out what the system is.

Mr. BROMLEY. So that the delivered price in this case is $13.00 per thousand feet, plus freight of $1.96 per thousand feet, and the thousand feet weighs 1400 pounds, for the purpose of determining a price.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Well, in this particular case, Mr. Tomkins, it would seem that the actual weight of the board was about a thousand pounds less than the weight at which it was billed. If it were billed on a basis of 1400 pounds, it would be 42,000 pounds for the shipment.

A. Correct.

Q. And the actual weight was, according to the railroad and the Kelley Plasterboard Company, who agreed upon that weight, 41,000, approximately, including dunnage.

A. I don't know whether there was any dunnage. There is no bill of lading with this shipment.

3446 Q. We don't have that. There ordinarily would be dunnage, would there not, in a car?

A. Not necessarily in a straight carload of lath.

Q. I want to ask a question, Mr. Tomkins—did your board ever exceed 1400 pounds?

A. In actual weight?

Q. Yes.

A. Oh, yes, I imagine it did.

Q. And to your knowledge, do some of the other manufacturers make a board, or were they making in 1937, a board weighing more than 1400 pounds?

A. Yes, I think some board weighed over 1400 pounds at that time.

Q. And it is your understanding that Mr. Bromley's statement is correct, that in order to get a uniform delivered price it was necessary to agree upon an average or arbitrary billing weight for 1,000 square feet of board?

Mr. BROMLEY. I didn't say it was necessary to agree upon it. It was something we imposed as a condition.

Mr. STEFFEN. All right, it was necessary to have a uniform weight which all licensees and the licensor would use as a billing weight?

The WITNESS. It don't know whether it was necessary to have it. We had it.

3447 By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I see.

Now in the case of this particular shipment, the customer was paying a price greater than he needed to have paid if the price were calculated on the actual weight; is that not correct, as a mere matter of mathematics?

A. Well, the customer was paying a delivered price.

Q. That is right. If you had charged him, the customer, the mill base price of $13.00, plus, we will say, a rate of 14 cents from Philadelphia to Washington based on actual weight, the price would have been lower than it was in this case, would it not?

A. You mean the credit for freight would have been higher?

Q. No, I mean if you could have been permitted to charge mill base price plus 14 cents per hundredweight on the actual weight of the board, instead of on this arbitrary weight?

A. Yes, if the bulletin price, in other words, had been lowed ——

Q. (Interposing.) Just a moment, the bulletin price is fixed at $13.00, mill base.

A. That is part of the bulletin price.

Q. The rest of it to be freight.

A. That is right.

3448 Q. And the freight is based upon an arbitrary weight of, in this case, 1400 pounds?

A. Yes, that is correct. We were required to add freight at the rate of 1400 pounds per thousand feet of board.

Q. Even though your board didn't weigh that much, didn't weigh 1400 pounds.

A. It didn't make any difference what the board weighed. It might have weighed less or more.

Q. That is what I wanted to get clear. In this case the freight was charged from Philadelphia to Washington, D. C.?

A. That is correct.

Q. And somebody had to absorb the difference, because the freight from Delawanna to Washington, D. C., was greater?

A. Right.

Q. Suppose that your mill had been in Baltimore, and you were shipping into Washington, would you have based it again on the same place, Philadelphia?

A. I think I would have trucked it in.

Q. Probably, but let's assume, for this illustration, that you ship a carload from Baltimore to Washington, what would be your basing point?

A. If I had a mill in Baltimore, I would expect to have that mill serve as a basing point. I don't know what 3449 the price would be.

Q. By what right would you expect to have that?

A. I wouldn't build a mill in Baltimore if I knew I was going to be at a freight disadvantage in shipping to Washington.

Q. Who stipulates the freight situation?

A. The licensor.

Q. And is there any control on your part as to that?

A. Well, there is the control as to whether or not I would build the mill.

Q. That is right. Are you familiar with the list of basing points?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are those basing points all places where USG has mills?

A. I don't know.

Q. Well, do you see Clarence Center among them?

3450 Mr. BROMLEY. I object to this as immaterial. It commences to sound to me as an attack on the basing point system which has been the subject of vast litigation, and still is, but which I believe not to be in issue in this case.

Justice STEPHENS. What is the purpose of this examination, Mr. Steffen?

Mr. STEFFEN. We think the basing point system is in issue in this case.

Justice JACKSON. What is your theory as to that?

Mr. STEFFEN. Well, your Honor, our contention is that the licensor has imposed upon the licensees, as Mr. Bromley would put it; or that the licensees agreed to have the licensor impose upon them, as we would state it, a whole system of marketing gypsum board. I am just barely getting into the details of how they price and how they base upon one point rather than another. The whole matter is, to our way of thinking, a complete restraint of trade going much beyond anything that is permitted under the pricing that is recognized in the General Electric case.

The General Electric case provided, as we saw it, in a fairly simple way, that a single licensor could license a single licensee to make Mazda lamps, and the court said that in conjunction with that there could be price fixing.

In this case we are contending that the defendants have gotten together to regulate the entire business of manufacturing and distributing gypsum board, and gyp-3451 sum products; and they have imposed, as Mr. Bromley says—or the group have gotten together and agreed upon—a number of practices such as an arbitrary basing point system, which we wish to call to your Honors' attention as being a definite restraint of trade, and as being a regulation going much beyond anything permitted in the General Electric case which, as I have said, is the defense relied on here.

I would like to make the further point ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). You needn't do so. We think the examination is not improper for the reason that the charge in the complaint is that the bulletins were sent out under the license agreements, and the prices were based on the bulletins, or the prices followed the bulletins, and the bulletins are in evidence and show some sort of basing point system. We think the Government is entitled to explain to the Court what it is—and that is what you are apparently doing?

Mr. STEFFEN. I am trying to do so, your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. Very well.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. For purposes of illustration, Mr. Tomkins, assume that your mill was between Philadelphia and Washington, located in Baltimore or at some point between Washington and Philadelphia—would you base then on Philadelphia?

3452 A. Let me answer that this way. If I were a licensee, obligated to sell at bulletin prices, I would base it on whatever those bulletins required me to base at that time.

Q. That is correct. And under the bulletins as they were in effect on June 12, 1937, Philadelphia would have been the closest basing point provided?

A. Philadelphia was the basing point in 1937.

Q. That is right.

A. Correct.

Mr. BROMLEY. Closest to what?

Mr. STEFFEN. Closest to Washington.

The WITNESS. To Washington.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. What I am getting at is that in such event you would charge the customer in Washington the $13.00 mill price, plus the freight from Philadelphia to Washington, notwithstanding that your mill was closer to Washington and the freight might be less?

A. Well, if this bulletin ——

Q. (Interposing.) If this bulletin had applied?

A. If this bulletin were exactly the same as it is now, that would be the nearest basing point to Washington still.

Q. That is right. The point I am trying to make, if you agree, is that if your mill were closer to the point of destination than the basing point mill, you would still have 3453 to pay freight, or charge the customer freight, from the basing point mill to destination, even though the actual freight were less.

Justice STEPHENS. That is assuming that there was a mill between Baltimore and Washington?

Mr. STEFFEN. Between Philadelphia and Washington.

Justice JACKSON. And assuming that you had the same bulletin?

The WITNESS. Yes, and assuming there was no other basing price on the bulletin.

Mr. STEFFEN. We have other illustrations, your Honor, which are perhaps more in point. I just wanted to get Mr. Tomkins' idea on this.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Now I would like to show you, Mr. Tomkins, Government's Exhibits 372 and 373 for Identification which we were talking about yesterday afternoon.

I gather from looking at Exhibits 372 and 373 that these have to do with trucking sales rather than with carload shipments, is that correct?

A. They deal with both. They eliminate certain counties from the trucking area, which would mean that they would then be in the railroad freight area.

Q. You have said a lot of things there. What do you mean by "trucking area"?

3454 A. The area in which the bulletins quote delivered prices by truck.

Q. Well, is this the situation, that around New York, around Boston, around Buffalo, and around Chicago, and such metropolitan centers as those, there are certain areas in which there is a delivered price for truck deliveries?

A. That is true as to the New York City area, that is the only one I am familiar with.

Q. And you don't go through this performance of having a mill base price and then adding freight from the mill to destination; the license bulletins provide a fixed delivered price by truck, in those instances?

A. Correct.

Q. And do those license buildings stipulate just how far that truck area extends?

A. I believe they do, I think they give it by counties.

Mr. KNUFF. I think the exhibit you have before you Mr. Tomkins, is only Exhibit 33, isn't it?

The WITNESS. Yes.

Mr. KNUFF. I don't believe that will show it.

The WITNESS. No, I don't think this does show it. My recollection is that trucking areas were defined in certain price bulletins.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. And they were defined, you would say, by counties?

3455 A. By counties; and I think in New York by boroughs in addition, possibly.

Q. Then the area around New York, for example, is all marked out geographically, each zone or area having a fixed price, is that correct?

A. A delivered price, yes.

Q. A delivered price—by truck?

A. By truck.

Q. And when you say here, therefore, that you are "eliminating Berks and Lancaster Counties, Pa., and Delaware, Greene, and Columbia Counties, New York, from the trucking area on Gypsum Board," you mean you are restricting somewhat that delivered price area?

A. Well, those areas in New York State would be served by up-State mills, not by New York City plants.

Q. Well, were they formerly in the truck delivered price area?

A. I assume they were; otherwise this letter wouldn't have been written.

Q. And they would be served from the Buffalo area?

A. Presumably; and Berks and Lancaster counties, in Pennsylvania, presumably would have been served from the Philadelphia mills.

Q. And when you say that you are eliminating those counties from the trucking area, you mean that you are no longer trucking into those areas, and that there-

3456 fore, if you are selling to Oakfield and making shipments to Oakfield's customers, that they couldn't be handled on the former delivered price basis, is that correct?

A. I don't believe we ever trucked into these areas.

Q. What was the purpose in saying that they were being eliminated, then?

A. I can't answer that ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). Just a moment before you go any further. Do you mean Oakfield? Neither of these exhibits refers to Oakfield.

Mr. STEFFEN. Let me clear that up.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Referring to the Paragon Plaster & Supply Company, do you know any reason why you should send a letter of this sort to them?

A. I don't know anything about either of these letters.

Q. Was not the Paragon company affiliated with the Oakfield company?

A. The Paragon Plaster & Supply Company in Scranton owned some stock in the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, I believe.

Q. And the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation sold plaster to the Paragon Plaster & Supply Company?

A. Yes, they did at one time.

3457 Q. And the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation bought board from Kelley?

A. That is right.

Q. And did they sell it to Paragon Plaster & Supply Company?

A. They did, they sold board to them.

Q. And did Paragon act as a jobber or a dealer, or do you know?

A. Paragon Plaster & Supply acted in some cases as a jobber and in some cases as a dealer.

Q. So it would be pertinent to them, in their jobber capacity, to know what the prices were to be to dealers in this area, would it not?

A. Well, yes, they would be interested in dealer prices in the area in which they were selling, on all products.

Q. Surely. Now let's take the next sentence, Mr. Tomkins. It says: "The prices as shown for these respective Counties are still the prices which apply when delivered by carload, mixed car or pool carload lots only."

Now that is the sort of thing that we were just talking about, is it not, where you take the mill base price and add the freight to destination?

A. Well, that means that in the future, prices would be based on the regular mill basing point plus freight method.

Q. Which we have just discussed?

3458 A. That is correct.

Q. What is meant by "minimum quantity 7500 sq. ft."?

A. Well, that, I assume, applies to the minimum quantity permitted to be shipped in a pool carload.

Q. Do you mean a pool carload?

A. Yes, I mean a pool carload.

Q. The minimum was much higher than that, was it not, for a carload?

A. I am talking about a pool carload. That is a carload going to several dealers.

Q. For purposes of the record explain what a "pool car" is, Mr. Tomkins?

A. A pool car is a full carload of board, carrying the full carload price, which is consigned to several dealers, so that each dealer gets the benefit of the lower freight rate without being required to take a full carload of material.

Q. And it is a requirement, is it not, of the licensor, that licensees must sell in full carload lots, whether straight, or mixed or pool?

A. On freight shipments?

Q. That is right.

A. I am not sure that that is a requirement; I don't believe that it is.

Q. I think the bulletins will bear out that it is in most areas.

3459 Mr. BROMLEY. That is a question of freight rates, Mr. Steffen, not a question of bulletins.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Let me get this clear for my sake and for the Court's sake. That 7500 square feet, as you understand it now, is the minimum quantity that any one dealer might take in a pool car, is that right?

A. That is the only bearing I can see that the 7500 square feet has to this letter, that it would apply to the minimum quantity he would have to take in a pool car.

Justice STEPHENS. Do you mean that he must take that much, or might not take more?

The WITNESS. He could not take less than 7500 square feet.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Let me now ask you with regard to trucking generally. During 1937, 1938 and 1939 what was the minimum truck load that you sent out of your Newark board mill?

A. Our board mill was in Delawanna, and I believe the minimum quantity was 7500 square feet.

Q. Now let's explain what that means. Was that a regulation of the licensor?

A. Yes, I believe it was.

Q. And what does it mean, exactly.

A. It means that we could not make a delivery to a dealer of less than 7500 square feet, at one time.

3460 Q. And if he only wanted to get 5000 square feet you had to tell him that you were sorry but that you couldn't deliever it by truck?

A. He would have to increase the quantity or we would not make the delivery.

Mr. BROMLEY. That was all subject to that price, at that price.

The WITNESS. I don't recall whether there was a provision that we could make a surcharge for a lesser delivery, or a higher price.

Mr. STEFFEN. There is no provision in the bulletins fixing that surcharge, is there?

The WITNESS. It is not fixed, and I am sure it could not be collected.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. It boils down to the fact that in making truck deliveries the licensor had required you to deliver, whenever selling a dealer, not less than 7500 square feet.

A. I believe that is correct.

Justice STEPHENS. Let us take the afternoon recess.

(Whereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the hearing was resumed.)

3461 Mr. STEFFEN. I believe Exhibits 372, 373 and 374 have been offered, but have never been passed upon. I would like to reoffer them at this point.

Justice STEPHENS. Are they objected to?

Mr. BROMLEY. Exhibits 372 and 373 for identification are objected to as immaterial and incompetent, for the reasons heretofore stated.

Justice STEPHENS. On the ground that they are incomplete because they lack the enclosed price lists, is that what you mean?

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, sir.

We object to Exhibit 374 only on the usual ground.

Justice STEPHENS. Exhibit 374 is received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Governments Exhibit No. 374 was received in evidence.)

Mr. STEFFEN. I would like to point out, your Honor, that Exhibits 372 and 373 were each introduced in the criminal trial, so there is no question as to their genuineness, their identification.

Justice STEPHENS. There is no objection on the ground of identification.

What price lists do you claim they refer to, the bulletins?

3462 Mr. STEFFEN. Let me ask the witness.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Mr. Tomkins, these letters, Exhibits 372 and 373, say, "Prices as shown for these respective counties", and so on—those are prices at which the Kelley Plasterboard Company would sell in those particular areas, are they not?

A. I don't know, Mr. Steffen. I don't know what it meant in either of these letters by "our price list." I don't know what lists were sent.

Q. Let me ask it this way. You were sending price lists to Structural and to Oakfield and to Connecticut—you testified to that yesterday.

A. From time to time price lists were sent to those companies.

Q. And those prices were what prices, Mr. Tomkins?

A. Those prices were the prices at which we were selling our products to dealers.

Q. That is right. And if Oakfield were to sell to their dealers in those localities, you wanted them to know what your prices would be to those dealers, is that not right?

A. Well, they would want that information, they would want to know what the dealer prices were.

Q. And those prices that you were sending them then were the bulletin prices for sales to those dealers in those areas.

A. The bulletin prices were the dealer prices.

3463 Q. That is right. And you were sending them, therefore, to Oakfield and to Structural and to Connecticut?

A. Yes, but I don't believe we were sending them the actual bulletin prices. I believe we were sending, as these letters state, our price lists.

Q. Now let's get clear how you made up your price lists which you sent to Structural and Oakfield and Connecticut.

A. Our dealer price list would show our prices to dealers for all products. Now our prices to dealers for board products were bulletin prices. Consequently, our dealer price list, as to board products, would be bulletin prices for board sold to dealers.

Q. And therefore, the only prices that could be referred to here in Exhibit 372 and Exhibit 373 would be your bulletin prices to dealers?

A. Yes, they would be the bulletin prices to dealers.

Justice STEPHENS. Do you mean by that that you sent the bulletins out to them, or the prices which were the same as the prices in the bulletins?

The WITNESS. I don't know which we sent. I believe as these letters state, they are "our price lists", and that they were not actual bulletins which were sent. I believe they were Kelley Plasterboard Company's price lists.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. As a matter of fact, it would be very difficult for Oakfield to know what to do with the bulletins 3464 if they received them, would it not?

Mr. BROMLEY. I object to that as speculative.

Justice STEPHENS. Sustained.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think, your Honor, that the witness has clarified it sufficiently so that we can say that the prices, or the price lists, rather, referred to in Exhibits 372 and 373, are prices referred to in the bulletins, and would be the prices at which the Newark people would sell to dealers. They obviously didn't go through the calculation of having a base price, and then adding to it the freight from a basing point, and so on.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. You gave simply the delivered price to the dealer, is that correct?

A. Yes, because that was the price that we were going to charge Oakfield, less a discount. It was the only way we could advise them what their price was.

Justice STEPHENS. We think the exhibits should be admitted in evidence. They are sufficiently explained to be admissible. The defendants may cross-examine with respect to them, or offer contrary material.

They are received in evidence, that is, Exhibits 372 and 373.

Mr. BROMLEY. Subject to the usual objection.

3465 Justice STEPHENS. Yes, subject to the usual reservation again, with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 372 and 373 were received in evidence. (Not admissible so far as declarations of Oakfield and Paragon because neither Oakfield nor Paragon were charged as being co-conspirators.))

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I now show you, Mr. Tomkins, Government's Exhibit No. 380, which purports to be a letter from you to Mr. Eldred under date of November 17, 1937.

Justice JACKSON. Bearing the figure "65" in small figures down at the bottom of the page?

Mr. STEFFEN. I don't find that, your Honor.

Justice JACKSON. It appears on mine.

Justice STEPHENS. Was that Exhibit 207 in the criminal proceeding?

Mr. KNUFF. It was Grand Jury Exhibit 207.

Mr. STEFFEN. And Exhibit 157 in the criminal proceeding.

Justice STEPHENS. This is going to be numbered what?

Mr. STEFFEN. Exhibit No. 380.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 380, for identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Do you recognize Government's Exhibit 380 for identification as a copy of a letter which you sent to Mr. Eldred?

3466 A. Yes.

Q. Who was Mr. Eldred?

A. Mr. Eldred was the president of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation.

Q. Had you known him for some time?

A. Yes, I had known him for some years.

Q. The first sentence in the letter refers to a Harry McCormick—who was he?

A. Harry McCormick was sales manager for the Structural Gypsum Division of American Cyanamid.

Q. And had you known him for some time?

A. Yes, I had known him for some time.

Q. Did you have a luncheon with Mr. McCormick at or about this time?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. The letter referred to a shipment of Oakleaf Lath delivered directly to a job. Did you discuss the matter with Mr. McCormick?

A. Yes. I have no recollection of this, other than what is stated in the letter. I undoubtedly did.

Q. Well, did he make a complaint about the matter?

A. I don't know that he made a complaint. He informed me that there had been some excitement or discussion among Philadelphia dealers, owing to the fact that a shipment of Oakleaf lath had been delivered directly to a job.

3467 Q. Why would there be any excitement among the dealers if there was a shipment made directly to the job?

A. Well, that would put the dealers who had to make their own deliveries to the job at a disadvantage, as compared with a dealer for whom the manufacturer or distributor was bearing the cost of delivery.

Q. And your conversation indicated that someone from the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation had made such a delivery?

A. All Mr. McCormick stated was that some Oakleaf lath had been delivered. He didn't say in his conversation with me who delivered it.

Q. Now if this were in a truckload, the orthodox way of handling it would be for the truck to deliver the material to the dealer, put it in his warehouse, and then have it trucked out to the job, is that the correct procedure?

A. That was the normal procedure.

Q. And although you were selling board and going right by the job at which it was to be used, your trucks would have to go clear to the dealer and then have the dealer ship the stuff back to the job?

A. Yes, sir, our trucks ——

Mr. BROMLEY (interposing). Just a moment. I object to that as incompetent, and calling for a conclusion in so far as the use of the phrase, "your trucks would have to go" is concerned.

3468 Mr. STEFFEN. Leave out the "have to" and make it they would go.

Justice STEPHENS. That correction may be made.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Now under the bulletins do you understand that you have to make deliveries to the dealer and not directly to the job?

A. To the dealer's warehouse.

Q. And you would not be permitted under the United States Gypsum Company license bulletins to deliver directly to the job, is that correct?

A. I believe that is in the bulletins. I am not clear as to all these bulletin provisions.

Q. And that is what caused the excitement here in Philadelphia back in November, 1937?

Mr. BROMLEY. I object to that as incompetent, because I don't know what "that" means.

Mr. STEFFEN. The fact that there was an alleged delivery made directly to the job.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Is that correct?

A. Well, what Mr. McCormick told me was that a delivery of Oakleaf lath had been made directly to a job, and that it had upset some of the dealers in Philadelphia.

3469 Justice STEPHENS. Delivered by whom?

The WITNESS. He didn't say.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. But to cause excitement it would have to be delivered either by Oakfield or Structural, or someone of the licensees?

A. Any manufacturer, yes.

Q. And you took it upon yourself to write to Mr. Eldred concerning the matter?

A. That is correct.

Q. Did you subsequently talk with Mr. Eldred about it?

A. Yes, I believe I did have a conversation with him at a later date.

Q. Do you recall when you had that conversation?

A. I don't recall the date, no, sir.

Q. Do you recall where?

A. I believe it was in New York City.

Q. And it was sometime after November 17, 1937?

A. That is right.

Q. Will you relate what your conversation with Mr. Eldred was?

A. My recollection of it is that Mr. Eldred said he had inquired of his salesman in Philadelphia as to whether this delivery had been made directly to the job, and that his salesman had denied it.

Q. He made that investigation after your conversation, or had he already made it when you talked 3470 with him?

A. Well, I think he had my letter before I spoke to him. I think at the time of our conversation he had made an investigation and told me that the delivery had not been made to the job. That is my recollection.

Mr. BROMLEY. May it please the Court, I think I should have objected to that question on the usual ground, since it appears, I now see, to be a declaration of a third party and therefore not binding on the defendants. I make, therefore, only the usual objection in so far as the conversation between this witness and Eldred is concerned, and ask that that testimony be received subject to the usual reservation.

Justice STEPHENS. Is it being offered as a declaration of Newark or Kelley?

Mr. STEFFEN. On one part, yes.

Justice STEPHENS. It is received, subject to the usual reservations with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I now show you Government's Exhibit No. 381, to which is attached Government's Exhibit No. 382, the first being a letter from Mr. Bartlett to Mr. Tomkins, under date of December 27, 1937; and the second, Exhibit 382, being a complaint.

(The documents referred to were marked as Gov-3471 ernment's Exhibits Nos. 381 and 382, for identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Have you examined Exhibits 381 and 382, Mr. Tomkins?

A. I have.

Q. And did you receive Exhibit 381?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what is Exhibit 382, if you know?

A. Exhibit 382 is a copy of a compaint on the sale of patented gypsum wallboard, in violation of the license to manufacture and sell.

Q. And what was the nature of the charge?

A. The nature of the charge was that the "Frankford Coal & Supply Company, Philadelphia, through Oakfield Gypsum Products salesman, has offered Plastering Contractor Sam Levin a price of $14.00 per M, delivered to job. Material is trucked direct from Delawanna, N. J. by local trucking contractor. Licensed price on Plaster Lath delivered in truckload quantity to dealers in Zone 1 is $14.10 per M."

Q. That was a complaint emanating from the Board Survey Company, was it?

A. That is correct.

Q. And who is the Board Survey Company?

A. I don't know who the Board Survey Company is. This letter was written by Mr. Bartlett, the executive secretary.

3472 Q. And did you ever talk with Mr. Bartlett?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Where?

A. I have talked with Mr. Bartlett in a number of places.

Q. Did you, at or about this time, talk to him about this complaint?

A. I believe we had some conversation about this complaint at or about this time.

Q. In New York?

A. I think it was in New York.

Q. And can you relate the conversation?

A. No, I simply have a recollection that he spoke to me about this complaint. I don't know whether at that time I had the answer to it, or not, from Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, and I don't remember any result of our conversation.

Q. Well, as a result of your conversation, did you make any further investigation of this matter?

A. Well, as a result of receiving this complaint, I did.

Q. Well, was it as a result of receiving this complaint that you got in touch with Mr. Eldred?

A. Yes. That, I am quite sure I did after I received this complaint.

Q. I will show you Government's Exhibit No. 383, which purports to be a letter of yours to Mr. Eldred, 3473 or a copy of a letter, under date of December 29, 1937, and ask if you can identify that?

A. Yes, this is a copy of my letter of December 29, 1937, to Mr. Eldred in connection with the complaint of the Board Survey Company, dated December 27.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 383, for identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I now show you Government's Exhibit 384, which purports to be a letter from Mr. Eldred to you, under date of December 30, 1937.

A. Yes, that is the reply I received from Mr. Eldred, dated December 30, 1937.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 384, for identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Now, did you ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). Just a moment, let the Court read it.

Mr. STEFFEN. Excuse me.

Justice STEPHENS (after reading Exhibit No. 384). Proceed.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

3474 Q. Did you have any further talk with Mr. Eldred after this letter of December 28, 1937, concerning this matter?

A. Well, I saw Mr. Eldred frequently. I assume I did have some conversation with him.

Mr. BROMLEY. You mean about this matter, may I inquire?

The WITNESS. I have no recollection of any specific conversation about this matter, with him.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I now show you Government's Exhibit No. 385, which purports to be your report to the Board Survey Company under date of January 3, 1938, and also a copy of your letter of January 3, 1938, addressed to Mr. Eldred, which is marked as Government's Exhibit 386.

(The documents referred to were marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 385 and 386, for identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Have you examined Exhibits 385 and 386, Mr. Tomkins?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is your signature on Exhibit 385?

A. That is my signature on Exhibit 385.

Q. And Exhibit 386 is a copy of a letter which you sent to Mr. Eldred?

A. It is.

3475 Mr. STEFFEN. I now offer in evidence Governments Exhibits 380 to 386, inclusive.

Mr. BROMLEY. We made only the usual objection.

Justice STEPHENS. They are received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents marked Government's Exhibits Nos. 380 to 386, inclusive, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. At about this time, Mr. Tomkins, it was your understanding, was it not, that you were under some obligation or duty to see that Oakfield and Structural and the manufacturing distributors to whom you sold, should maintain prices?

A. Yes, I was under that impression at that time.

Q. And you therefore were endeavoring to see that the Oakfield Gypsum Company was maintaining prices and was also following out the conditions of the bulletins?

A. As to job deliveries, and maintenance of price, I was interested in seeing that Oakfield Gypsum Company observed the same requirements that we, as a licensee, were under.

Q. And did you, subsequent to this occurrence, take the matter up with your counsel?

A. I did.

Q. As to whether you had the right to require Oakfield, for example, to maintain the bulletin prices?

3476 A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. And what did your counsel advise you?

A. He advised me that we had no such right, and from that time we no longer attempted to exert any influence.

Q. When you say that you have no longer attempted to exert any influence upon what Oakfield or Structural or Connecticut might do, do you mean to imply that you were not interested any longer in whether they maintained prices or not?

A. No, sir, the only time I ever took this matter up with any of them was where instances had been brought to our attention of violations. We never at any time inquired as to the prices at which they were selling, or made any effort to see that they sold at any particular prices, except for the occasions on which we had been put on notice that the violations had occurred.

Q. When you were put upon notice, who put you upon notice?

A. The Board Survey Company, in this instance.

Q. And the Board Survey Company acts as an investigating agency, or did at that time, for the United States Gypsum Company?

A. As to these instances, it did, yes.

Q. Do you know who made the reports to the Board Survey Company concerning alleged violations?

3477 A. I do not.

Q. Would it normally be other licensees?

A. I don't know.

Q. It wouldn't be dealers, would it?

A. I don't know; I should doubt it.

Q. Have you had occasion to report other licensees for not abiding by bulletin prices?

A. No, sir. To the best of my knowledge we never made any such report.

Q. I notice in the letter of Mr. Eldred that he suggests that perhaps the United States Gypsum Company itself is subject to criticism. Have you ever been acquainted with any violations of that sort?

A. No more than by this sort of a statement.

Q. I now show you Government's Exhibits Nos. 387 and 388, which purport to be, one an original letter addressed to Mr. Tomkins under date of May 17, 1938; and the other, a reply from Mr. Tomkins addressed to Mr. Bartlett, under date of May 20, 1938.

(The documents referred to were marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 387 and 388, for identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Have you examined Exhibits 387 and 388 for identification, Mr. Tomkins?

3478 A. Yes, I have.

Q. Do you identify the letter of May 17, which is Exhibit No. 387?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And is Exhibit 388 a copy of your reply?

A. Yes.

Mr. STEFFEN. I offer Government's Exhibits 387 and 388 in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. BROMLEY. We make only the usual objection.

Justice STEPHENS. They are received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 387 and 388 were received in evidence.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I note on Government's Exhibit 388, Mr. Tomkins, that in the middle of the second paragraph you refer to certain irregularities in connection with the sale of lath by Structural to dealers. Can you explain what those irregularities were?

A. I suppose those irregularities were either in connection with price or delivery, or both.

Q. You still, at that time, felt that you were under an obligation to see that Structural or Oakfield 3479 should maintain bulletin prices, and the terms and conditions of sale, did you not?

A. That is true, but that was not the reason for our discontinuing the sale to Structural. In fact, the irregularities were ones that interfered with our own business. They had nothing to do with the license bulletin requirements.

Q. Will you state what kind of irregularities they were?

A. Well, the Kelley Plasterboard Company at this time was selling its products in Philadelphia to certain dealers, and we were also selling to Structural Gypsum Company, which was selling our lath to dealers in Philadelphia. Where Structural Gypsum Company would sell lath below our regular dealer price in Philadelphia, it would interfere with our own business.

In addition to that, the sale of lath in Philadelphia to Structural, at a discount, was unprofitable because of the high cost of trucking. In effect we were absorbing the haul from Delawanna to Philadelphia, and when we added the expense of a long haul to the cost of the discount, it made the business unprofitable. So on both counts we considered it was bad business to continue selling Structural in the Philadelphia market.

Q. Looking at the first one, that is that there were irregularities in that they were underpricing or underselling you to dealers in Philadelphia, what you actually did was simply to take their business away from them 3480 in Philadelphia, is that it?

A. Well, we stopped them from taking our business away from us.

Q. In other words, you refused to sell them for delivery in Philadelphia?

A. That is true.

Q. And I think you testified this morning that if they had undercut prices in any other area, you would have refused to sell them in that area?

Mr. BROMLEY. I don't think he said that at all, if the Court pleases.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think very definitely he said this morning that if Structural or Connecticut or Oakfield were to undercut pri.es, he would discontinue selling to them.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Didn't you say that this morning?

A. No, sir, not in that way.

Q. What did you say?

A. I don't remember my exact words, but what I meant to convey was that if we were selling to any manufacturing distributor or any jobber at a discount, and that jobber or distributor took our material and sold it at a lower price than we were willing or able to sell, to our own customers, we would not continue selling him.

3481 Q. And that is exactly what the Structural was doing in Philadelphia?

A. Exactly.

Q. So you refused to sell them any longer?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, I show you Government's Exhibit 389, which purports to be a letter from Mr. Kelley to the Board Survey Company under date of July 11, 1932; and also Government's Exhibit 390, which purports to be a copy of a letter to the Kelley Plasterboard Company from Board Survey Company, under date of July 1, 1932, and ask you to examine them, and then I will ask you some questions on them.

(The documents referred to were marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 389 and 390, respectively, for identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Have you examined Exhibit 389, Mr. Tomkins?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. And is that Mr. Kelley's signature?

A. That is Mr. Kelley's signature.

Q. Do you recall having seen this letter before?

A. No, sir, I don't recall seeing this letter.

Q. And you are not familiar with the matter that is being discussed in the letter?

3482 A. No, sir. This was five years before we had anything to do with the Kelley Plasterboard Company.

Q. I understand that.

Does your company now sell to the Dussol Company?

A. I don't believe so, I don't believe Dussol Company deals in wallboard now.

Q. I notice that the complaint is that George Dussol is hired on a commission basis by Mr. Kelley. Is that permitted under the price bulletins, do you know, Mr. Tomkins?

A. I don't know, I would have to look them up to see.

Q. Do you have any salesmen hired on a commission basis?

A. No, sir, we have not.

Q. Do you sell to jobbers?

A. To jobbers?

Q. Yes.

A. What do you mean by "jobbers"?

Q. By a "jobber" I mean, Mr. Tomkins, a man who buys in carload lots, or in quantities, from the manufacturer, at a discount, and sells to dealers at dealer prices—and I want to exclude either Oakfield or Structural or Calvin Tomkins Company.

A. I know of no one in that classification that we sell to.

Mr. STEFFEN. We now offer Government's Exhibits 389 and 390, your Honor.

3483 Justice STEPHENS. Is there any objection?

Mr. BROMLEY. We make only the usual objection.

Justice STEPHENS. They are received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

Mr. STEFFEN. For the record, Exhibit 390 is a copy of a letter from Board Survey, addressed to the Kelley Plasterboard Company, dated July 1, 1932.

Mr. O'DONNELL. Did the witness identify Exhibit 390? I didn't hear him do so.

The WITNESS. No, I did not.

Mr. STEFFEN. It is circumstantially identified as being the letter to which Exhibit 389 is a reply.

Mr. O'DONNELL. I object to it, then, as not being properly identified.

Justice STEPHENS. Does the record show where you obtained these letters?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes, sir, they came from the files of the Board Survey Company.

Justice STEPHENS. That is Exhibit 390, the letter of July 1st?

Mr. STEFFEN. Exhibit 389, which is the original letter addressed to Board Survey Company and Exhibit 390, which is a copy of the letter sent to Kelley Plasterboard Company by the Board Survey Company, came from the files of the United States Gypsum Company.

3484 Justice GARRETT. Well, the witness stated that he didn't know anything in the world about them.

Mr. STEFFEN. The witness identified the signature on Exhibit 389.

Justice GARRETT. Yes, that is correct, Mr. Kelley's signature.

Mr. STEFFEN. And it is on the regular letterhead of Kelley, is it not ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). Let us see the original exhibits, Mrs. Gillette, Exhibits 389 and 390.

(Thereupon, the documents in question were handed to the Court.)

Justice STEPHENS. The objection is overruled. Exhibit 390 is received in evidence as circumstantially identified, subject to the usual reservation concerning declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 389 and 390 were received in evidence.)

Mr. STEFFEN. Your Honor, it will probably not be possible for the Government to finish the direct examination tonight. We have about fifteen or twenty minutes more, probably, and that of course will leave no time for cross-examination.

Justice STEPHENS. How extensive is the cross-examination going to be?

3485 Mr. BROMLEY. I should think a couple of hours.

I see no reason why Mr. Steffen can't finish out until four o'clock, and put in a full day, however.

Mr. STEFFEN. My reason is strictly personal. I am leading a double life. I have to get to New Haven. (Laughter.)

Mr. BROMLEY. I didn't appreciate that.

Justice STEPHENS. Well, it will be impossible for us to sit tomorrow in any event. We cannot sit on Saturday as all of us have other engagements. If you have to catch a train, we will not ——

Mr. STEFFEN (interposing). I will carry on until four o'clock, if you desire.

Justice STEPHENS. If you can, we will be glad to have you, but if that will inconvenience you in catching a train, we will of course accommodate you.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think it might, your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. Then we will adjourn at this time.

I am sorry that we will have to ask you to return, Mr. Tomkins.

Mr. STEFFEN. I want to make one statement. We have a brief to prepare, or a memorandum to prepare, in connection with Mr. Adams' memorandum, and I wanted to state to the Court that we won't have it ready before Monday.

Justice STEPHENS. Very well.

3486 Mr. STEFFEN. I am sorry, but we simply have had no time to get it together.

Justice STEPHENS. You will have it here Monday?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes.

Justice JACKSON. That bears on the answer in the Beaver Products suit?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes.

Justice STEPHENS. Is there anything else?

(No response.)

Justice STEPHENS. If not, you may announce the recess until Monday at ten.

(Thereupon, at 3:55 o'clock p.m., an adjournment was taken until 10:00 o'clock, Monday, February 14, 1944.)

3487 IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES
FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Civil Action No. 8017

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, PLAINTIFF,

v.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY; NATIONAL GYPSUM COMPANY; CERTAIN-TEED PRODUCTS CORPORATION; THE CELOTEX CORPORATION; EBSARY GYPSUM COMPANY, INC.; NEWARK PLASTER COMPANY; SAMUEL M. GLOYD, doing business under the name of TEXAS CEMENT PLASTER COMPANY; SEWELL L. AVERY; OLIVER M. KNODE; MELVIN H. BAKER; BROR H. DAHLBERG; HENRY J. HARTLEY; FREDERICK G. EBSARY; and FREDERICK TOMKINS, DEFENDANTS.

SEVENTH FLOOR, INTERNAL REVENUE BUILDING,

WASHINGTON, D. C., MONDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1944.

The above-entitled cause came on for further hearing at 10:00 o'clock a. m., pursuant to adjournment, before Honorable Harold M. Stephens, Honorable Finis J. Garrett, and Honorable Joseph R. Jackson, sitting as the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

Appearances. (Same as heretofore noted.)

3492 Justice STEPHENS. You may proceed, gentlemen. Mr. Tomkins, take the witness stand.

Thereupon, FREDERICK TOMKINS, the witness on the stand at the time of adjournment, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Resumed).

Justice STEPHENS. I omitted one item, gentlemen, a correction, which I had better make before we proceed.

In the pages immediately preceding page 3760, discussion was being carried on in respect of Exhibits 372 and 373. Objection was made to the receipt of those exhibits, which had to do with the Paragon Plaster & Supply Company and the Structural Gypsum Division of the American Cyanamid Company. Objection was made to the introduction of those exhibits, so far as they were declarations of Kelley or Newark, unless subject to the reservation which is usually made, that they were received subject to the usual 3493 reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators. The Court did make that reservation, but the Court omitted to make the ruling that those exhibits were not admissible so far as they were declarations of Oakfield or Paragon, because neither Oakfield nor Paragon were charged as being co-conspirators, and that statement should appear in the record as far as those two exhibits are concerned.

Now you may proceed.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Will you state for the record, Mr. Tomkins, what war work you are now engaged in?

A. I am employed by the Ordnance Department, which is under the Army Service Forces, in the War Department.

Q. Your company is still manufacturing gypsum board and gypsum plaster, is it not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I now want to show you Government's Exhibit No. 391, which purports to be a letter signed by Mr. Kelley addressed to Mr. Henning, under date of June 1, 1932.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 391 for Identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Is that Mr. Kelley's signature, Mr. Tomkins?

3494 A. Yes.

Q. I now want to show you Government's Exhibit No. 392, which purports to be a letter from Mr. Kelley addressed to the Board Survey Company, under date of May 23, 1932.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 392 for Identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Is Exhibit 392, Mr. Tomkins, written on the Kelley Plasterboard Company stationery, and signed by Mr. Kelley?

A. It is.

Q. I now want to show you Government's Exhibit No. 393 for Identification, which purports to be a copy of a letter from the Board Survey Company addressed to Mr. Kelley, under date of May 17, 1932.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 393 for Identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Are you familiar with the letter of May 17, 1932, Government's Exhibit for Identification 393, Mr. Tomkins?

A. Only by having read it just now.

Q. You have not seen it previously?

A. I don't recall seeing it, I may have seen it.

Q. I now wish to show you Government's Exhibit No. 394, which purports to be a letter from Board 3495 Survey Company addressed to Warren Henley, under date of May 9, 1932.

I also show you Government's Exhibit No. 395 for Identification, which purports to be a copy of a letter from Warren Henley, addressed to Mr. Frank Miller of the Board Survey Company, under date of May 2, 1932.

(The documents referred to were marked as Government's Exhibits 394 and 395 for Identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Are you familiar with Mr. Warren Henley's signature, Mr. Tomkins?

A. No, sir, I am not.

Q. I now show you Government's Exhibit No. 396 for Identification, which purports to be a copy of a letter addressed to Mr. Kelley under date of March 22, 1932.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 396 for Identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Are you familiar with the matter mentioned in Government's Exhibit 396, which you have just read?

A. No, sir.

Q. I now show you Government's Exhibit No. 397 for Identification, which purports to be an original letter from Mr. M. H. Baker addressed to Mr. F. M.
3496 Miller, Board Survey Company, under date of March 21, 1932, and referring also to the Reserve Lumber Company situation.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 397 for Identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Are you familiar with Mr. Baker's signature?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you identify the signature to Exhibit 397 as being Mr. Baker's signature?

A. Yes, that is Mr. Baker's signature.

Mr. STEFFEN. We now offer in evidence, Your Honor, Government's Exhibits 391, 392 and 393, the first two as being expressly identified by Mr. Tomkins, and the third, No. 393, as being circumstantially identified in that it is a copy of a letter to which the letter of May 23 is an answer.

Mr. BROMLEY. We make only the usual objection.

Justice STEPHENS. Have defendants' counsel seen these letters?

Mr. OLIVER. I haven't.

Mr. STEFFEN. I will say, Your Honor, that this whole file was left with the Clerk, last week sometime, in the usual way.

Justice STEPHENS. Do you wish to take time to look at them right now, Mr. Oliver?

3497 Mr. OLIVER. Not right now, but I will object to Exhibit 393 as not being properly identified.

Justice STEPHENS. They are received in evidence subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents marked as Government's Exhibits 391, 392 and 393 were received in evidence.)

Mr. STEFFEN. I should now like to offer Government's Exhibits 394 and 395. The argument in favor of their admission is perhaps a little slender. There has been no identification of Mr. Warren Henley's signature, and in fact I doubt if that is his signature. It seems to have been written by somebody else. The only identification is that it has been written on Certain-teed Products Corporation's stationery, I think there is no question about that ——

Mr. ADAMS (interposing). As far as I am concerned, I will consent to their admission in evidence, subject to the usual objection.

Mr. OLIVER. I object to them on the ground that they haven't been identified at all.

Mr. BROMLEY. We make only the usual objection.

Mr. JOHNSTON. I want to join in Mr. Oliver's objection. It would certainly take a long stretch of 3498 imagination, under any rule of evidence, to say there has been any identification at all of these two exhibits, Exhibits 394 and 395. The witness has said he didn't know anything about them.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think that is correct. Mr. Adams has stated that he makes no objection to them. I don't know that that goes so far as to say that he will recognize the letter of May 2 as a letter written by the Certain-teed Products Corporation and, if so, that the letter of May 9 is a reply. They were taken from the files of United States Gypsum Company, and it makes no objection to their identity.

Justice STEPHENS. Do you concede, or do you not, Mr. Adams, that they are letters, Exhibit 395 written by Certain-teed Products Corporation, and 394 a reply thereto? Or do you simply make no objection on the ground of identification?

Mr. ADAMS. I think I can safely say that 395 is unquestionably a letter of Certain-teed Products Corporation. With respect to the reply, I can not say, because there is no copy in our files, and we understand that this copy came from the files of the United States Gypsum Company. But as to 395, I am quite sure that I can say it is a letter of Certain-teed. As to the other, I can not, but it appears, apparently, to be the reply.

3499 Justice STEPHENS. Mr. Oliver and Mr. Johnston, will you let us hear you a little further? If Mr.

Henley's signature had been identified by this witness or by anyone else familiar with it, then, consistently with previous rulings, that exhibit, No. 395, would have come into evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

Now here is counsel for Certain-teed admitting that that letter was written by Henley. Why isn't that entitled to the same dignity in identification as a statement of a witness that this is Henley's signature? What do you say on that?

Mr. OLIVER. I think it is, Your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. What do you say, Mr. Johnston?

Mr. JOHNSTON. If the Court please, I think it makes little difference to my client, and for the sake of harmony and so we might get along, I will withdraw my objection.

Justice STEPHENS. Very well. The exhibits, then, are received in evidence subject only to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

Mr. STEFFEN. We now offer Exhibits 396 and 397. Exhibit 397 has been positively identified, and there can be no question about that. Exhibit 396 is only cir-
3500 cumstantially identified. It is written the day after the letter of March 21, which is Government's Exhibit 397. It has to do with this whole matter of the warehousing situation with the Reserve Supply Company of Long Island. The copy came from the files of the United States Gypsum Company, and I think under the complete evidence rule, or whatever we might have along that line, it tends to give a picture of the whole transaction more clearly than if it were to be omitted.

Justice STEPHENS. It is not referred to in any other letter, is it?

Mr. STEFFEN. No, sir.

Mr. BROMLEY. We make only the usual objection.

Justice STEPHENS. Is there any other objection by any other defendants' counsel to Exhibits 396 and 397?

(No response.)

Justice STEPHENS. Received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents marked as Government's Exhibits 396 and 397 were received in evidence.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Government's Exhibits 391 to 397, which you have read, Mr. Tomkins, refer to a warehousing situation with the Reserve Supply Company of Mineola, 3501 Long Island. Are you familiar with that situation at all?

A. No, sir, not at all.

Q. Could you tell us what the nature of the complaint was?

Mr. BROMLEY. I object to that as incompetent. He says he doesn't know anything about it.

Justice STEPHENS. Do you know anything about it except as you have read in these letters?

The WITNESS. That is my only information.

Justice STEPHENS. Objection sustained.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Do you have any similar warehousing arrangements today with any dealers?

A. I don't know that this one was.

Q. As you have read it from the correspondence?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you have any warehousing arrangements with dealers whereby you give them a certain amount of money if they will warehouse goods for you which you subsequently deliver to the trade?

A. No, sir, we do not.

Q. Is it your understanding that you may not have those under the bulletin regulations?

Mr. BROMLEY. I object to that as incompetent, because the bulletins are the best evidence.

3502 Mr. STEFFEN. I think the bulletins are the best evidence, Your Honor; but on the other hand, we have a defendant on the stand, whose understanding is very material, and I should like to have him state whether or not he understands that he is permitted to have warehousing arrangements.

Justice STEPHENS. I am of the view, Mr. Steffen, that although you are permitted to cross-examine this witness because he is a defendant or the officer of a defendant company, that doesn't make it proper for you to ask him questions the answers to which would violate the best evidence rule. As I understand the rule under which counsel can ask leading questions of an adverse witness, all it intends to do is to permit the asking of leading questions.

Now it is proper, after a witness has testified on direct-examination to certain items, to ask what his understanding is in respect to them, because that goes to the reasonableness of his actions or his testimony. But I think the best evidence rule is not set to one side by Rule 43, which permits leading questions of a witness whom you have called. Since the bulletins are the best evidence of what warehousing arrangements were permitted, and they are in evidence, I should think that would be sufficient.

I would be glad to hear you further.

Mr. STEFFEN. I will make this one statement, that we are not asking the witness, note carefully, for a 3503 construction of the bulletins, which of course would be within the best evidence rule. We would then have to refer to the bulletins to find out what they said. But where we have charged a conspiracy among several manufacturers, that they have all agreed to fix prices and to have uniform conditions and terms of sale, the understanding of the witness to the effect that special warehousing arrangements might constitute a violation of the bulletins in that it would perhaps work a price reduction, and that therefore his conduct has been changed by that understanding—he has testified that they have no such warehousing arrangements—and I think that his understanding would be not within the best evidence rule and that it would be material.

Justice JACKSON. Well, I am just wondering as to the materiality of his understanding of the rule laid down in the bulletins.

Mr. STEFFEN. The rule may or may not be laid down in the bulletin.

Justice JACKSON. I understood from you that it was.

Mr. STEFFEN. Mr. Bromley stated, I believe ——

Justice JACKSON (interposing). You don't contend that it is?

Mr. STEFFEN. I grant that it is the best evidence, if you are going to construe the bulletin. But where we are charging a conspiracy, there I think we are en-3504 titled to show the intent and understanding of the members of the conspiracy, because their conduct, irrespective of what appears in the bulletin, their conduct is really the gist of what we are getting at.

If he understood either that it was in the bulletin or if he understood generally, either in or out of the bulletin, that he might not—and he may have erroneously understood it—I think he is permitted to state.

Justice STEPHENS. We are agreed that the best evidence rule is applicable. The objection is sustained. We do not foreclose the Government from asking the witness what he did or did not do.

Mr. STEFFEN. The witness, I believe, has already testified that he has no warehousing arrangements.

Justice STEPHENS. The ruling probably ought not foreclose the Government from inquiring into the subject, as to what relationship, if any, there was between his conduct and the requirements of the bulletin. I suppose it would be competent for the Government to ask whether or not his having or not having warehousing arrangements was because of any requirement of the bulletins, if he relied upon the bulletins, or anything to that effect. What you asked was his understanding of the meaning of the bulletins, and I think that is barred by the best evidence rule.

3505 Mr. STEFFEN. May I have a moment or two to consult with Mr. Knuff?

Justice STEPHENS. Yes.

(Mr. Steffen consults with Mr. Knuff.)

Justice STEPHENS. We do not foreclose the Government, Mr. Steffen, from inquiring into the reasons for this man's conduct. You can bring out that he would have had a warehouse except for bulletin requirements, or except for the existence of bulletins. But as your question was phrased, it violates the best evidence rule. You asked him the meaning of the bulletins, and of that the bulletins are the best evidence, and they are in evidence. But we are not foreclosing the Government from proving as a part of its case that the action of the defendants was the result of the bulletins.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Do you know, Mr. Tomkins, of any other warehousing arrangement in the industry similar to that which is described in Government's Exhibit 391?

A. No, sir, I am not aware of any.

Q. And when you say that, do you refer to Ebsary and National and Certain-teed, and the other companies?

A. I have no knowledge of any warehousing arrangement ——

Q. (Interposing.) Similar to the arrangement discussed in Exhibit 391?

3506 A. That is right.

Mr. BROMLEY. May I ask, do you mean by that that you don't know whether or not there is any?

The WITNESS. That is exactly what I mean.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. And if there were any similar arrangement which would have any effect upon obtaining business, as was apparently the effect here, would your salesmen, from your general knowledge of the trade, bring that information to you?

Mr. OLIVER. I object. That question is pure assumption.

Justice STEPHENS. Read the question.

(The question was read by the reporter.)

Justice STEPHENS. That is pretty speculative, Mr. Steffen. I think the objection should be sustained. I think you had better ask him more simply whether or not he would likely have known, in the business, if such arrangements as this existed.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Answer the Court's question—would you likely have known, through general trade information and your salesmen, of any such warehousing agreement if one had existed?

A. If it had existed in the territory that we covered, it is likely that it would have been reported to us by 3507 a salesman. That is not certain.

Q. It is a fact, isn't it, Mr. Tomkins, that through your salesmen and through your own knowledge of the trade, you keep in very close touch with prices and price conditions, do you not?

A. Yes, sir, we expect to.

Q. And it is a fact that you do, or certainly try to?

A. How close the touch is, I am not able to say. It is as close as we can make it.

Q. I now show you Government's Exhibit No. 398, Mr. Tomkins, which purports to be a letter from Mr. Pellett addressed to the Board Survey Company, under date of October 25, 1933; and I also show you Government's Exhibit No. 399, which purports to be a reply of the Board Survey Company addressed to Kelley Plasterboard Company under date of November 7, 1933.

(The documents referred to were marked Government's Exhibits 398 and 399 for Identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Have you read Government's Exhibits 398 and 399, Mr. Tomkins?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recognize Mr. Pellett's signature?

A. I do.

3508 Q. Is he still with the company?

A. No, sir, Mr. Pellett is dead.

Mr. STEFFEN. We now offer Government's Exhibits Nos. 398 and 399.

Mr. BROMLEY. We make only the usual objection.

Justice STEPHENS. Are these offered for the purpose of proving the charge of what has been referred to as "policing" in the complaint?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes, Your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. The exhibits are received in evidence subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents marked Government's Exhibits 398 and 399 were received in evidence.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I now show you what has been marked as Government's Exhibit 400, which purports to be a copy of a letter from the Newark Plaster Company addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company, under date of January 20, 1937, and which bears the initials "FT" in the lower left-hand corner.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 400 for Identification.)

By Mr. STEFFEN.

3509 Q. I will ask you if you can identify that as a carbon copy of a letter which you wrote?

A. (No response.)

Justice STEPHENS. Can you answer the question, Mr. Tomkins?

The WITNESS. Yes, sir, I identify that as a copy of a letter written by me to the Ebsary Gypsum Company.

Mr. STEFFEN. We offer Government's Exhibit No. 400. I might say, Your Honors, that we do not have the reply.

Mr. BROMLEY. This is objected to, may it please the Court, on the ground that it is immaterial and irrelevant, for the reason that there is no charge with respect to which this letter has any possible relevancy. That is to say, the letter appears to involve a resale transaction in plaster, as to which there is no charge in the complaint whatsoever.

Justice STEPHENS. Do you raise any question about the fact that the letter goes to white plaster as distinguished from neat plaster? White plaster, Mr. Tomkins, is a term you applied, is it not, to the plaster of Paris that you dealt in?

The WITNESS. Yes, Your Honor, that is what it means.

Mr. STEFFEN. I might develop that further.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. White plaster has substantially the same content of stucco, has it not, as neat plaster?

3510 A. The chemical composition is substantially the same.

Q. And your neat plaster is used as your scratch coat or your first and second coats, and the white plaster is used as a finishing coat?

A. That is right.

Mr. BROMLEY. Well, isn't it true that the term "plaster" in the trade is understood to refer to what we call cement plaster and not white plaster?

The WITNESS. Generally, plaster means cement plaster in the trade, because it is used in much greater volume. Ordinarily white plaster is designated as white gauging plaster or plaster of Paris or finishing plaster.

Mr. BROMLEY. Or white goods?

The WITNESS. Or white goods.

Mr. BROMLEY. I don't believe there is any charge in the complaint that covers white plaster.

Justice STEPHENS. Is white plaster used in the building trade, or is it limited to medical uses?

The WITNESS. It is used to a limited extent in the building trade. It is also used for medical purposes, the manufacture of pottery molds, and fine casting work.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Is there any white plaster used on the ceiling

3511 of this room?

A. No, sir.

Q. What would you say they did use here?

A. That is either a sand finish or it may have some acoustical plaster in it.

Q. When you put a white coat of plaster over a scratch coat, or the first and second coats, isn't it this type of white plaster which you speak of which is used?

A. It is about one-third white plaster and two-thirds lime.

Justice JACKSON. That is the old hard-wall finish, is it?

The WITNESS. That is right.

By Mr. STEFFEN:

Q. And whenever they make a white finished coat of plaster, they would have to use your white plaster?

A. They wouldn't have to use ours.

Q. I mean that type of plaster.

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think, Your Honor, that white plaster is well within the definition.

Justice STEPHENS. What do you say about the objection raised by Mr. Bromley that there is no charge in the complaint with respect to the fixing of resale prices on plaster?

Mr. STEFFEN. I don't think this has anything to do with resale prices, Your Honor, and we are not 3512 offering it on that basis at all. We are offering it on the basis of showing that there were arrangements between the different defendants whereby the price to the dealer trade would be established, and of course as a preliminary there have to be negotiations between, for example, Newark and Ebsary. If Ebsary, in this case, was buying from Newark, the price at which Ebsary bought was important in order to determine whether they could sell at the dealer price.

Justice STEPHENS. The objection is overruled. The exhibit is received in evidence subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 400 was received in evidence.)

Mr. STEFFEN. I have perhaps 10 or 15 minutes more with Mr. Tomkins. Would you like to continue or take a recess at this time?

Justice JACKSON. How do you feel about it?

Mr. STEFFEN. I want to conform to the Court's wishes.

Justice STEPHENS. You had better proceed for 15 minutes. We are anxious to make the case move forward just as rapidly as possible, gentlemen.

By Mr. STEFFEN:

Q. Referring to Government's Exhibit No. 400, Mr. Tomkins, it says there that the resale price, 3513 which I understand to be the dealer price, is being held at a ridiculously low level. What did you mean by that?

A. Well, I presume I meant that ——

Q. (Interposing.) We would like to have your best recollection at this time, if you can?

A. (Continuing.) —that the prevailing dealer price for white plaster was unusually low and did not offer an adequate margin of profit to the Newark Plaster Company.

Q. And therefore, in selling Ebsary, you couldn't sell Ebsary at a lower price?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now have you refreshed your recollection concerning plaster prices generally over the period from 1925 up to the present day, before coming here?

A. To the best of my ability. I had some notes made on prices during that period.

Q. I would like to have you refer particularly to the period between 1925 and 1929. What was the trend of prices, during that period, of plaster?

A. I have no information on 1925 ——

Mr. BROMLEY (interposing). Just a moment. I make the same objection, if these prices apply only to white plaster.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

3514 Q. Are your prices relative to white plaster or plaster generally?

A. White plaster only. They are the only prices we have any information on.

Q. White plaster was what your company was making and selling at that time?

A. That is true.

Mr. BROMLEY. I object to this as immaterial.

Justice STEPHENS. Did you sell your white plaster at the same prices stipulated in the bulletins?

The WITNESS. No, sir, there were no bulletins on plaster prices.

Justice STEPHENS. That puts a different light on this question. The reason we overruled Mr. Bromley's objection to the white plaster evidence was because we thought you brought out from the evidence that white plaster was used in the trade, at least to some extent, in walls and wall plaster work, but we assumed that you were contending this was within the bulletins. What is your position, Mr. Steffen?

Mr. STEFFEN. No, I had gone on from the bulletins. What I am contending is that it comes squarely within the complaint. Paragraph 45 (c) says that we have charged the defendants in this case with: "concertedly raising, maintaining, and stabilizing the general level of prices for plaster and miscellaneous gypsum products 3515 manufactured and sold by said companies in the Eastern area."

Here is a situation where we have white plaster which is used in the building trade, and I wanted to get from Mr. Tomkins just a statement as to the prices which the plaster had been sold at during the period prior to 1929 and following 1929.

Justice STEPHENS. In other words, you contend that the complaint is so broadly phrased in paragraph 45 that it includes price fixing arrangements outside the bulletins?

Mr. STEFFEN. Oh, yes, Your Honor. In fact, our whole charge is that they have used the bulletins and the license agreements simply as a subterfuge whereby to fix the prices not only of board under the agreement, but of board and plaster generally.

Justice JACKSON. Wasn't there a reference to that in the Bill of Particulars, as to what the "miscellaneous products" were?

Mr. STEFFEN. That had to do with miscellaneous products. I regard white plaster as plaster. There are several different types of plaster.

3516 Justice STEPHENS. In view of the broad construction put upon the complaint by the majority of the Court, we think the objection should be overruled, unless there is some further contention by you, Mr. Adams —what is your contention?

Mr. ADAMS. I would like to suggest that this is not the proper way of proving prices under any circumstances, and object on that ground.

Justice STEPHENS. It depends on what the witness is doing. If he is reading items which he has copied from some statistical book or record, you are correct, but if he has simply made up an itemization himself from his own recollection, and is using these notes to refresh his recollection, I don't see the objection to that.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Was your memorandum there made up from your office records, Mr. Tomkins?

A. It was made up by someone in my office from any sources that they could find that threw any light on what prices had been in this past period.

Q. And those sources would be your office records?

A. Yes, they might be correspondence ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). Are you using those notes to refresh your recollection so that you now have a recollection of your own, or are you simply reading the notes to us as a reflection of your office records?

3517 The WITNESS. A reflection of my office records. I have no recollection of any prices in those years.

Mr. ADAMS. It appears, your Honor, that he did not prepare the data himself. It also appears that it comes from a lot of different sources.

Justice STEPHENS. Well, you needn't go further, Mr. Adams. We will hear you further, Mr. Steffen, if you wish, but it would seem clear that the witness cannot testify except from his own recollection as refreshed by these notes.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I want to get at, generally, the prices in 1926, 1927, 1928 and 1929. Would you be able to say that the prices were chaotic and that there was a price war in plaster during that period?

Mr. ADAMS. I object on the ground that that calls for a conclusion. It seems to me that the word "chaotic" is pretty much of a conclusion.

Mr. STEFFEN. This is on cross-examination and he can answer "yes" or "no".

Justice STEPHENS. Read the question, please.

(Thereupon, the pending question was read by the reporter.)

Justice GARRETT. I don't know what he means by "chaotic". I know the dictionary definition of "chaotic" but I don't know the meaning as applied here.

3518 Mr. STEFFEN. I will be glad to bring that out, your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. The objection is overruled, Mr. Adams. It seems to the Court that subject to clearing up the use of the word "chaotic" for Judge Garrett, as applied to this situation, that an experienced businessman in this business can testify of his own knowledge as to the nature of price conditions, and use such terms as "price war" and "chaotic", if explained correctly. Though it does involve an inference, it is the kind of an inference that can be properly drawn by this witness. The objection is overruled.

The WITNESS. I have no recollection as to plaster prices generally. I had no interest in any plaster other than white plaster; during that period from 1926 through 1929

I would not say that white plaster prices were chaotic.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Were they stable during that period?

A. During that period they had about the same degree of stability that they have had for the entire period 1926 through 1940.

Q. Could you say whether prices of white plaster were falling from 1927 to 1929?

A. No, sir, I couldn't say.

Q. Well, were they increasing?

A. I can only answer by referring to these notes which I understand I am not permitted to use. I have no recollection from year to year in 1926 or 1927 as 3519 to what the white plaster prices were.

Q. But could you not give the trend as to whether it was up or down?

A. No, sir, white plaster prices have changed from year to year. I cannot separate two years, back in 1926 and 1927, and recall whether the price in 1927 was higher or lower than in 1926.

Q. Well, are you unable to testify as to the trend one way or the other in those three or four years?

A. Completely unable to testify.

Q. Has there been any change or trend since 1929 that you could testify concerning?

A. No, sir, no trend. I can't testify to any trend in white plaster prices during the entire period.

Q. What does white plaster sell at now? I notice in one of the invoices here that it was selling at $10 a ton.

A. I don't recall any price as low as $10 a ton for white plaster.

Mr. BROMLEY. The reference you just made was to neat plaster, and not white plaster.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. What was the going price for white plaster in, let us say, 1940, 1941 and 1942?

A. Today white plaster is selling at our mill at $14.70 per net ton.

3520 Q. Has that been a fairly stable price over the last three or four years?

A. To the best of my recollection it has. There has been very little white plaster business for the last three or four years.

Q. In 1940, and for the years prior to that, can you recollect whether it then also sold at $14.70 per ton f. o. b. your mill?

A. The price varied a dollar or two. Some years it would sell for $15.70 or $16.50.

Q. And was it ever below $14.70 during the years preceding 1940?

A. Any year preceding 1940?

Q. That you can recollect—had the price gone below $14.70?

A. Oh, yes. The lowest price I have any present recollection of is $11 a ton.

Q. What other companies sell white plaster in your market?

A. Of their own manufacture?

Q. Let's stay with that, first, yes.

A. United States Gypsum Company, the National Gypsum Company, Certain-teed Products Corporation; Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company—those are all I can recall.

3521 Q. And are you the largest producer in that market?

A. No, sir.

Q. Who would be, or who is, rather?

A. Well, I have no knowledge as to that, but I believe the United States Gypsum Company is.

Q. And would you say that National sold more white plaster than you? What I am trying to get at is that I want to find your relative position in the industry.

A. I don't know whether National sold more white plaster than we did. I would doubt it. But I have no figures to base my statement on.

Q. When you say in your letters that the prices had been established, you didn't mean that there was any agreement, did you, among the producers to establish the price on white plaster?

A. No, sir, I meant that was the market price for white plaster.

Q. And the market price would be fixed by the dominant selling interests, such as United States Gypsum?

A. Not necessarily.

Q. They would have a very important influence in setting the market price, would they not?

A. Any manufacturer would. The lowest price set by any manufacturer would very quickly become the market price.

Q. And did you feel perfectly free, or have you felt perfectly free up until, let us say 1937, to 3522 change the white plaster price, your white plaster price?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Any way you saw fit?

A. Yes, sir, any way we wanted to.

Mr. BROMLEY. Did you mean to stop at 1937?

Mr. STEFFEN. No, I was just taking 1937 as a date. From 1937 on to the present time, I would like to take up in a separate question.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. In 1937, the Kelley Plasterboard Company, or your company, rather, took over the Kelley Plasterboard Company, and in 1939, your company merged with the Kelley Plasterboard Company and took an assignment of the license agreement with USG—I think you have testified to that.

A. By "your company" you mean Newark Plaster Company?

Q. Yes.

A. That is correct.

Q. And when I say "your company" I also refer to the Calvin Tomkins Company. I think we have been treating the two as one company?

A. I don't regard them as one company.

Q. I know you don't regard them as one company, but the Court, I think, and the Government now is obligated to regard them as one company.

3523 Justice STEPHENS. Nevertheless, for the purpose of clarity in the examination, whatever the conclusion is with respect to the identity of the companies, perhaps if you mean Calvin Tomkins Company you had better refer to it, because the witness apparently does differentiate in his own mind.

Mr. STEFFEN. Very well.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. To make the record clear, Calvin Tomkins has observed bulletin prices throughout the period 1939 to date, has it not?

A. It has.

Mr. BROMLEY. On what, if the Court pleases?

Mr. STEFFEN. On board and all products coming within the bulletin provisions.

Mr. BROMLEY. That is only board, Mr. Steffen. There isn't any bulletin price on anything except patented gypsum board manufactured by the licensees.

Mr. STEFFEN. I simply want the record to show that Calvin Tomkins Company has been abiding by bulletin prices on products which come within the terms ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). Is that in dispute?

Mr. BROMLEY. No.

Justice STEPHENS. That may be admitted, I should think.

Mr. BROMLEY. I don't know what he means by "abiding", but I assume he means selling at ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). Bulletin prices.

3524 Mr. BROMLEY. Yes.

Justice STEPHENS. You had better reform that question and bring that out.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. It is the fact, is it not, Mr. Tomkins, that the Calvin Tomkins Company in selling board and lath has been conforming to bulletin prices and the terms and conditions of sale of the bulletins in selling such board and lath?

A. During the period that the Kelley plant was being rebuilt, the Calvin Tomkins Company sold board purchased from other companies at bulletin prices. It was not required to observe bulletin prices. During the balance of the period, the Calvin Tomkins Company sold board manufactured by Newark Plaster Company at bulletin prices.

Q. And during that period when your mill was burned down, you had the bulletins, did you, and the Calvin Tomkins Company got the bulletins?

A. We received the bulletins during that period, yes.

Mr. OLIVER. When you say "we" do you mean to include Calvin Tomkins?

The WITNESS. I mean Calvin Tomkins.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I want now to show you, Mr. Tomkins, Government's Exhibit No. 37, at page 531. After reading that, Mr. Tomkins, would you say that you would be privileged to price-cut on plaster if you were selling board and 3525 plaster together?

Mr. BROMLEY. I object ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). I don't understand the question. Please read it.

(Thereupon, the pending question was read by the reporter.)

Justice STEPHENS. Just a moment, let us read this exhibit.

Mr. STEFFEN. I want to refer your Honors particularly to the last paragraph on that page.

Justice STEPHENS. What is the nature of your objection, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. BROMLEY. It is incompetent because it asks for an interpretation of or a conclusion as to a written document, the provisions of the bulletin.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think, your Honor, that we now have a defendant on the stand, and we have certainly met the best evidence rule by showing the witness the particular bulletin, and we now want a construction as to what he understands by that bulletin. It is fairly clear what it provides, but it is important to know whether the defendant understood it that way.

Justice GARRETT. Isn't that, Mr. Steffen, a matter for the Court to determine? What he did under that contract —isn't that the question—not whether he thought he was at liberty to do something.

3526 Mr. STEFFEN. I think maybe your Honor is quite right. I will be very glad to rephrase my question.

Justice STEPHENS. I think we are not confronted merely with the best evidence rule, but we are also confronted, under the objection, with the proposition that the Court must determine, not the witness, what these bulletins mean, and what they required of parties to whom they were sent, and who were bound or purported to be bound by them.

For the guidance of counsel the Court will reiterate that it seems to the Court that Rule 43 (b) doesn't permit cross-examination of an adverse witness in the usual sense of the term that he is being cross-examined as if he had already testified upon direct examination, and is therefore to be examined with respect to his understanding of items referred to on direct examination.

What the rule says is not that he should be cross-examined, but that he may be asked leading questions. You may ask, and we do not at all assume to foreclose the Government from bringing out, what this witness did in view of the bulletins, or what he might have done except for the bulletins, but I think the point raised by Judge Garrett is correct. The objection is sustained.

Mr. STEFFEN. I would like to make a brief statement on that to this effect, that these bulletins are by no means self-explanatory and we would like to get a construction of them from the people who are actually operating under 3527 them from time to time. I think that in this present instance I can ask the witness a question which will bring out what I want to develop.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Tomkins, your company has never cut the price of plaster for purposes of facilitating the sale of board, has it?

A. No, sir.

Q. Referring now to Government's Exhibits 398 and 399, which are the letter signed by Mr. Pellett, and the reply from the Board Survey Company, respectively, those were charges there that the Ebsary Gypsum Company was shaving or cutting the price of plaster in order to sell more board ——

Mr. O'DONNELL (interposing). I object to that, the exhibits speak for themselves.

Mr. STEFFEN (continuing). Were they not, Mr. Tomkins?

Justice STEPHENS. Just a moment, let us look at the exhibits.

Well, it may be in a highly technical sense that your objection is well taken. As to what the letter means, the letter must itself show. But if the witness knows, as this is a letter from the company which he took over, what the nature of the complaint was, it would seem not seriously objectionable and perhaps helpful.

Mr. O'DONNELL. May I add, your Honor, that this letter is dated about five years prior to the time 3528 Mr. Tomkins had any connection with the company.

Justice STEPHENS. Did you have anything to do with writing this letter?

The WITNESS. No, it was long before we had any connection with the Kelley Plasterboard Company.

Justice STEPHENS. Then we think that the objection should be sustained.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Now I have just two or three questions, Mr. Tomkins, which are necessary to clear up the record. You testified, I think, that you buy gypsum rock from the United States Gypsum Company, or were doing so up until recently.

A. Well, we have bought gypsum rock from the United States Gypsum Company and also from the National Gypsum Company.

Q. And you obtain the rest of your supply, or some additional part of your supply, from the American Cyanamid Company?

A. That is where we are presently obtaining it, yes, sir.

Q. Can you give us the difference in cost between the American Cyanamid product and the rock product?

Mr. BROMLEY: I object to that as immaterial.

Justice STEPHENS. What is the ——

Mr. STEFFEN (interposing). I think it is informative, your Honor, in order to get before the Court the general situation. There will be just one or two ques-3529 tions.

Justice STEPHENS. It may well be informative, but since counsel objects on the ground that it is immaterial and not related to the charge, let me hear you briefly as to why you wish to show it.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think that the American Cyanamid Company, which has been making synthetic gypsum, has been a rather disturbing element in the board and plaster prices for the reason that it sold at a very low price and the gypsum rock, on the other hand, sold at a very high price. I should like to develop that.

Justice STEPHENS. Well, it may have some bearing upon the general charge. The objection is overruled.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I want the price at which you buy synthetic, and the price at which you have been buying gypsum rock.

A. The gypsum rock we purchased from the United States Gypsum Company we purchased for about $2.25 a ton. The synthetic material we are purchasing from the Structural Gypsum Division of the American Cyanamid Company, and that is purchased for about $5.50 a ton.

Mr. OLIVER. May I inquire if those prices are as of today, or when?

The WITNESS. The price from American Cyanamid, or the Structural Gypsum Division of American Cyanamid, is as of today. The price from the United States 3530 Gypsum Company is as of about 1940, or 1941.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Now are those comparative prices, Mr. Tomkins? One is of rock and the other is of stucco, is it not?

A. That is correct.

Q. And they are not comparative, are they?

A. No, sir.

Q. Could you give us comparative prices?

A. Well, I don't know how I can compare crude gypsum rock with plaster manufactured from a synthetic material.

Q. No, I understand that, and I would therefore like to get, if I could, a comparison of the two stucco prices.

A. By the time the gypsum rock is freighted to our plant, unloaded and made into calcined plaster, it should cost approximately the same as the price we are now paying the Structural Gypsum Division.

Q. Is that price you are now paying Structural the same price that you paid back through the preceding five or six years?

A. We have only been purchasing it for about two or two and a half years.

Q. Are you familiar with the price that Kelley paid during the time when you were taking over Kelley?

A. No, I am not.

3531 Q. You were there from 1937 to 1939?

A. Correct.

Q. And do you know what price they were paying?

A. Kelley was not buying it then, and we did not purchase material from Structural.

Q. I see. One other question which has to do with paper. Where do you procure your paper for making the board?

Mr. BROMLEY. I object to that as immaterial.

Mr. STEFFEN. I simply would like to round this out and show what goes into making board. I think it is very material.

Justice STEPHENS. Overruled.

The WITNESS. We are purchasing paper from the Federal Paper Company, in New Jersey; the Ohio Box Board Company and the Schmidt & Ault Company in Pennsylvania.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Can you give us an estimate of the cost of the paper that goes into a thousand square feet of gypsum board?

Mr. BROMLEY. The same objection.

The WITNESS. No, sir, I can't ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). Just a moment. You don't know?

The WITNESS. I don't know.

By Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. Can you tell us whether it is greater or less than the cost of the gypsum that goes into the board?

3532 A. No, sir, I would have to look up the figures. I don't know the number of pounds of paper used per thousand feet of board.

Q. It is true that it is around 150 to 175 pounds, is it not?

A. I don't know.

Q. Is it a substantial item in the manufacture of board?

A. It certainly is.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think that concludes the direct examination, your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. We will recess for five minutes.

(Thereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed.)

Justice STEPHENS. You may proceed, Mr. Bromley.

CROSS-EXAMINATION by Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. May it please the Court—Mr. Tomkins, you just told us a moment ago, in answer to a question, that you never cut the price of plaster for the purpose of inducing the sale of board. Isn't it a fact that at all times, both before ——

Mr. STEFFEN (interposing). Your Honor, I think I should make an objection now. I regret to interrupt Mr. Bromley's examination, but he has started to ask a leading question. Mr. Tomkins is a defendant, and as I understand the rule, the Government may ask leading questions as if upon cross-examination, but it does not follow 3533 that everybody else may.

When this matter was up before the criminal court, Judge Goldsborough instructed the defense counsel not to lead the witness.

Justice STEPHENS. Rule 43 (b) says:

"A party may interrogate any unwilling or hostile witness by leading questions. A party may call an adverse party or an officer, director, or managing agent of a public or private corporation or of a partnership or association which is an adverse party, and interrogate him by leading questions and contradict and impeach him in all respects as if he had been called by the adverse party, and the witness thus called may be contradicted and impeached by or on behalf of the adverse party also, and may be cross-examined by the adverse party only upon the subject-matter of his examination in chief."

Mr. STEFFEN. I call your Honor's attention to the fact that when speaking of the right of the Government, in this case, to interrogate him by leading questions, that that is explicitly stated. When it comes to the cross-examination they very carefully leave out the matter of leading questions and simply say that the witness may be contradicted or impeached, and the omission of the right to direct leading questions, when the other party is examining his own witness, or the defendant in this case, is to my mind a full statement of the rule.

3534 That is, that we may call Mr. Tomkins as if upon cross-examination, and we may direct leading questions to him, and we may impeach him. The defendants, when they cross-examine are privileged to impeach him, but not to direct leading questions to him.

Justice STEPHENS. The Court will hear counsel on both sides on this matter if it is necessary. You present a conception of the rule, Mr. Steffen, that is, frankly, quite foreign to my understanding of it. This witness is called by the Government, he is a Government witness. It is true he is the officer of a defendant company and therefore these rules provide, as was not the case under the old rules, that leading questions may be asked of him, notwithstanding that he is your own witness.

But as I understand your contention at the present time, the opposite party is forbidden to cross-examine a witness called by you, is that right?

Mr. STEFFEN. He is definitely privileged to cross-examine within the scope of the direct examination.

Justice STEPHENS. There is no question about that.

Mr. STEFFEN. That is all that the rule states, as I understand it. He is forbidden to ask leading questions of a defendant. The rule concerning leading questions, as I understand it, is very clearly that where the witness is 3535 friendly, leading questions should be forbidden. I mean that is the basis, the principle, upon which the whole thing rests.

Justice STEPHENS. The basis of the rule is that with a defendant, leading questions should be permitted by the party who has to call an officially hostile witness.

Mr. STEFFEN. The basis, may I state more fully, because this is apparently important.

Justice STEPHENS. Yes.

Mr. STEFFEN. The basis of the rule, as I understand it, concerning leading questions, is that if a counsel puts into the mouth of a friendly witness an answer, that we don't produce the truth before the court, and the court is interested in getting trustworthy testimony.

We called Mr. Tomkins out of turn, as if upon cross-examination. We have to go to the defendants for some of our facts. If we had waited for Mr. Bromley to call Mr. Tomkins, we then could have put most of the questions to him, and we would have then done it by way of cross-examination and could have directed leading questions to him.

But in this case we have called him out of turn, we have used the same type of examination that we could have used had Mr. Bromley called him in his part of the case, and we now ask simply that the defendants and defendants' counsel use exactly the same form of examination that they would have, had they put him on as part of their case.

3536 It seems to me that that is a pretty well recognized matter. It certainly was recognized when Mr. Tomkins was on the stand in the criminal case. Judge Goldsborough there stated to defense counsel that after all Mr. Tomkins was a defendant, and he was friendly, and it was not permitted for defense counsel to put words into his mouth by leading questions and augment the record in that way.

I think I have a very good technical argument on 43 (b), because you will note that when we call a witness for cross-examination we are entitled to interrogate a witness by leading questions, and to contradict and impeach him in all respects as if he had been called by the adverse party. Then when it comes to the cross-examination it says that he "may be cross-examined by the adverse party only upon the subject-matter of his examination in chief." And it says that the witness thus called may be contradicted and impeached by the adverse party.

But it does not say, and they carefully omit saying it, that he may be interrogated by leading questions.

Justice STEPHENS. Are you through?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes, your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. As you have stated the matter—I want to be quite frank with counsel as to my understanding of this rule to which I have given some attention—it presents an entirely new view with respect to the rule, that I know of no authority for. The old rules were that 3537 the matter was wholly within the discretion of the judge, that a witness had to be shown to be actually hostile before he could be cross-examined by the party calling him. Now that, as I understand the point of view of the rule makers, was perhaps a hardship upon parties who had to call for their own witnesses members of the adverse side of a case, and it was thought, therefore, that it was desirable to give an absolute right to ask leading questions of a witness who was an adverse party, or the officer of an adverse party, even though he was not actually hostile, or shown to be actually hostile.

But I have never understood that rule to go so far as to deny to the opponent in his examination of that witness, the right to cross-examine him, including the right to ask him leading questions.

If you have any authorities on this, if you are going to insist upon it throughout the balance of this case, we will hear you. What do you say, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. BROMLEY. I say first that the precedent established by Judge Goldsborough hasn't any persuasive value whatsoever here because these rules did not apply in that case, that being a criminal case.

I take it there is no purpose in discussing whether Judge Goldsborough was right or not. He seemed to think that Mr. Tomkins was my client, and so stated when he made his ruling.

3538 After I straightened him out, and told him that he was not my client, he relaxed the rule, it seemed to me, and let me conduct the examination in the usual way. However, I don't think that that has any bearing here by way of precedent whatsoever.

It seems to me that the rule is too clear to permit a discussion of whether, in this situation, I can cross-examine this witness.

I would like to know what Mr. Steffen thinks constitutes cross-examination if you take out of it the element of being permitted to lead a witness. I say the rule on its face is perfectly clear that when it says that you can contradict, impeach and cross-examine, it means that you can cross-examine in the ordinary way, which is by leading the witness.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think "cross-examination" was apparently the only word they could use there to indicate that after I had finished with the examination, as if upon cross-examination, then the next counsel would have to do something, and they called it "cross-examination". It seems to me that the Court should not lose sight of the basis of the rule concerning leading questions——

Justice JACKSON (interposing). How in the world can you cross-examine except by asking leading questions?

Mr. STEFFEN. By asking non-leading questions.

Justice JACKSON. I never heard of such a thing. That is the great underlying principle of cross-examina-

3539 tion, the asking of leading questions. And what do you consider the examination in chief of this witness, your examination, isn't it?

Mr. STEFFEN. No.

Justice JACKSON. Then whose is it?

Mr. STEFFEN. We are now listening to Mr. Bromley as if it were examination in chief.

Justice JACKSON. This isn't examination in chief now. How could it possibly be?

Mr. STEFFEN. Will your Honor let me make this clear?

In the first place, we should not have to call him at all, according to the old rules. But under the new rules, we are permitted to call a defendant in anticipation, and we, in this type of case, practically have to develop all of our evidence from defendants, or people related to the industry.

Under the present rules we can call a defendant, and we are entitled as of right, to question him as if upon cross-examination. Now that doesn't mean that he is, in the full sense, our witness. He is still a defendant and the reason why we may direct leading questions to him is whether he is actually hostile or not, he is a technically hostile witness. So that we may ask him leading questions to develop the truth of the matter.

Now the basis for denying a party from asking leading questions is that he will, by asking leading questions, put the answers into the mouth of the witness.

3540 Now I think that Mr. Tomkins is the most honest witness that we have had here throughout, and I doubt if he will be led. But the principle of the thing is very important, and if Mr. Bromley or the defense throughout the rest of the trial are to be permitted to put the answers into the mouths of their own defendants, it is going to greatly prejudice the Government in the case, and it seems to me that it violates the whole basis of the notion of leading questions.

Leading questions are permitted only where it would not be possible otherwise to get a fair presentation of the facts.

Justice STEPHENS. The Court does not lose sight, Mr. Steffen, of the purpose ——

Mr. STEFFEN (interposing). I didn't mean to suggest that you had.

Justice STEPHENS (continuing). —of the purpose of permitting leading questions. The reason that leading questions are permitted of an adverse witness, if he is actually hostile, is that it aids in getting the truth out of him, but it seems to me that it would be the clearest sort of error, of a reversible character, to deny the defendants in this case—or, if the situation were reversed, to deny the Government, if it could be reversed; of course it can't, because the Government isn't a corporation or a party who has officers in the usual sense—but it seems to me that it would be the clearest sort of error to deny any party the 3541 right to cross-examine, including the asking of leading questions, a witness who has been called by the opposite side.

You have called this witness to prove a part of your case. You could have called him under the old rules. You might not have done so because you might have thought him hostile, but you have called him, you have put him on to prove a part of your case.

We are, all three of us, fully agreed, Mr. Steffen—I am sorry—that your position is not well taken, and your objection is overruled.

Mr. STEFFEN. May we be privileged to submit any authorities that we have on this?

Justice STEPHENS. Well, it seems so elementary to us, Mr. Steffen—if you have authorities, if you know of authorities on the subject, of course we will receive them, but we ought to receive them now because we cannot go back and undo all of this, and it seems to us that where you ask so radical a change from the accepted procedure of courts, that you ought to have the authorities here now, if you have any authorities on the subject. Do you have any?

Mr. STEFFEN. I have none at the moment, your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. Do you know of any?

Mr. STEFFEN. I have thought that Mr. Wigmore in his discussion of the matter would take the position that we are taking, but I do not have the reference right 3542 here.

Justice STEPHENS. I think we had better make our ruling now. The objection is overruled.

Mr. BROMLEY. I will withdraw the question, and may the record show, if it please the Court, that I am cross-examining this witness and have no purpose or intent to make him the witness of my client or of any defendant.

Justice STEPHENS. The Court might add that it seems in a way, at least so far as this witness is concerned, that the matter is a tempest in a teapot. This witness is obviously an honest witness and obviously a witness who discriminates carefully as to his answers. It seems to me very unlikely that any words can be put in his mouth by either side.

Mr. STEFFEN. From the Government's side I want to agree with that, that we believe he is most honest.

Mr. BROMLEY. I will reserve my opinion until the close of the cross-examination. (Laughter.)

By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. As I understood you, Mr. Tomkins, you said a few moments ago that you never cut the price of plaster for the purpose of inducing the sale of board. I ask you now whether it isn't the fact that at all times right down to date, you have felt perfectly free to charge any price for plaster you wanted to.

A. Yes, sir.

3543 Q. And isn't it the fact that the only effect that the bulletins had upon your understanding was that you knew you should not make a fake or false price for plaster in order to directly give a rebate to a board purchaser?

A. That is correct, yes, sir.

Justice STEPHENS. Read back the question and answer, please.

(Thereupon, the last question and answer were read by the reporter.)

By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. By way of illustration, Mr. Tomkins, if the board price under the bulletins were $13, and the going market price for plaster were $10, it would be possible, would it not, to accomplish a rebate on the board price by selling board at $13, but saying to the purchaser of the board, "Now if you want plaster, I will give it to you for $2" 'way below any reasonable price or going market price?

A. Yes, sir, it would have been entirely possible.

Q. And if that were done that would merely be a way of giving a rebate on the $13 price on board, wouldn't it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you know from your experience in the business, that sometimes manufacturers did just that sort of thing with the intent and for the purpose of cutting the bulletin price on board?

3544 A. I know of no specific cases. I suspect it was done on occasion.

Q. You also said this morning that your received licensor price bulletins during the period that the Kelley factory was closed due to the fire. Do you recall that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well now, isn't it the fact, sir, that right after the fire, which was in March, 1940, I believe you told us, you no longer received the price bulletins from USG, and therefore had to write for them?

A. On one occasion we apparently had not received a change in bulletin prices, and we did write to the United States Gypsum Company requesting that the bulletin be furnished us.

Q. And the fact is that the United States Gypsum Company refused to send you the bulletins, isn't that so?

A. At first it did, yes, sir.

Q. And then they were induced to send you the bulletins only because of some explanation that you made to them, do you recall that?

A. I do.

Q. And do you remember what that explanation
3545 was?

A. I have recently seen the letter that set it forth, yes, sir.

Q. And what was the explanation?

A. That the Kelley Company, after its fire, had a quantity of board left on its hands, of its own manufacture prior to the fire, and that it was as to the sale of that board that bulletin prices were requested so that the license agreement would not be violated by the sale of board manufactured by Kelley under the patents at prices other than bulletin prices.

Q. You have said Kelley two or three times. You meant Newark, didn't you?

A. Manufactured by Newark, yes. This was 1940.

Q. So wherever you said "Kelley" in the prior answer, you meant to say "Newark"?

A. That is correct.

Q. So that the fact was that during the period your factory was closed because of the fire, and you weren't making board, you nevertheless had in your warehouse board which had been made by Newark under the patents?

A. That is true, yes, sir.

Q. And it is likewise true that during that period you were selling not only the board which had been manufactured by Newark, but also board which you had purchased from others?

3546 A. Yes, sir.

Q. And so far as the board which you had manufactured was concerned, you were obligated to follow the USG bulletin prices, weren't you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. But you have told us, and it is the fact, isn't it, that you knew you had no such obligation with respect to the board that you purchased?

A. No, we knew there was no such obligation as to that board.

Q. And the reason, then, that USG resumed sending you the bulletins was because you informed them that you had board which had been made by you and which was lawfully subject to price control even during this period; isn't that right?

A. Yes.

Mr. STEFFEN. I don't believe the witness can answer what the reason was. It seems to me that it is simply out of his domain.

Justice STEPHENS. Answer what? I didn't hear you.

Mr. STEFFEN. Give the reason that Mr. Bromley is asking him about, which is USG's reasoning.

Justice STEPHENS. Read the question and the answer.

(The question and answer were read by the reporter.)

3547 Mr. STEFFEN. I move that the answer be stricken on the ground that he is not qualified to state what reason USG may have had for sending the bulletins.

Justice STEPHENS. That depends upon whether he knows. If he doesn't know, of course, he can't testify to it, and then your objection is well taken.

Answer this question yes or no: Do you know why USG did send you the bulletins?

The WITNESS. Yes, sir.

Justice STEPHENS. Then he may answer.

Mr. STEFFEN. I would like to ask him how he knows.

The WITNESS. Because they told us.

Mr. STEFFEN. Who told you, Mr. Tomkins?

The WITNESS. The United States Gypsum Company.

Mr. STEFFEN. What person?

The WITNESS. By letter, I believe it was signed by Mr. Sadler.

Mr. STEFFEN. And he stated the reason why they could not furnish you with bulletins?

The WITNESS. The reason why they could, that is my best recollection.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think that is hearsay, Your Honor. I don't see how Mr. Tomkins can give an answer as to the reasons. He is surmising from a letter, which is not in evidence, that the reasons may be what appear in that letter.

3458 Justice STEPHENS. Well, the objection seems a little extreme, but if counsel insists upon it, it is well taken and the objection is sustained.

By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. What was your reason, Mr. Tomkins, for wanting the price bulletins during the period that your plant was closed?

A. We were still selling board during that entire period. We had to know what the prices were as to the inventory of board of our own manufacture, so that we would not violate our license agreement. As to board that we purchased, we were interested in knowing what the dealer prices were, because it was important to us to get the highest price that we could, as we had a small margin to work on, and we knew we could not get a price higher than other manufacturers were selling at, which meant that the bulletin price was the high price.

Q. At all times you realized that you had no legal obligation to sell the board that you purchased from others, at the bulletin prices?

A. That was perfectly clear to us.

Q. And you had no agreement with anyone that you would sell that board that you purchased at any price whatsoever, did you?

A. No, sir, we did not.

Q. Now if you sold the purchased board at the same price that you sold the board of your own manu-

3549 facture during this period, isn't it the fact that you did so by reason of your determination that that was a matter of good business policy?

A. Yes, sir. We couldn't sell, at different prices, the same commodity to the same trade. It would have been impossible.

Q. It was a matter of good business, then, was it not, to sell both classes of board at the same price?

A. That was our opinion, yes.

Q. And you did that entirely voluntarily, and not pursuant to any arrangement or agreement with anyone, didn't you?

A. As to the purchased board, that is true, yes, sir.

Q. By the way, this purchased board you bought at the dealer's price less a small discount, didn't you?

A. We purchased it at the dealer's price less 12½ per cent on lath and 15 per cent on wallboard.

Q. So that even if you had wanted to make a difference in price as to the purchased board, your margin of profit was very small anyway, wasn't it?

A. We thought it was.

Q. Now you expected, during all of this period, to be back in production with a new plant within a short period of time, didn't you?

3550 A. Yes, sir.

Q. And of course, once you got back into production with a new plant, then the prices of all board that you manufactured, and therefore all the board that you sold, would have been again subject to USG's determination in the bulletins, wouldn't they?

A. They would.

Q. And was that another reason why, during this short period that you were building the new factory, you didn't want to make any differentiation as between the price of purchased board and manufactured board?

A. Well, during this period we wanted to maintain our position as manufacturers of board as nearly as we could. We didn't want to destroy the price structure that we would expect to work under when we were again in operation.

Mr. BROMLEY. Will you hand the witness Exhibit 400, please?

(Exhibit No. 400 handed to the witness.)

By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. Will you look at that exhibit, Mr. Tomkins, please?

A. Which exhibit?

Q. Exhibit 400, the letter of January 20, 1937, from yourself to George Lenci.

A. Yes, I have it.

Q. You were talking about the price that you were going to charge the Ebsary Company for white 3551 plaster which it might buy from the Newark Company, were you not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in the first sentence, the reference to the resale price means the price which dealers were paying in the market for white plaster, doesn't it?

A. That is correct. That word "resale" refers to the resale that the Ebsary Company would make to a dealer.

Q. And the resale was to a dealer, wasn't it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So it is the fact, then, that you thought at that time that the dealer price for white plaster was low?

A. Extremely low, yes.

Q. And it is the fact further, isn't it, that you thought it was so low that you could not sell white plaster to Ebsary at very much below the dealer price?

A. Yes, that is right, we could not put him in a position to make a profit on a resale because the resale price, the dealer price, was too low to permit it.

Q. And you were telling him, weren't you, that if you made him any sale at all, you would have to sell him at a price so near the dealer's price, that is, the price that he could get on the resale, that there wouldn't be any profit in it for him?

A. That is it, it would not be profitable to him.

3552 Q. Now did you mean to intimate in that letter, in your use of the word "held" in the first sentence, that there was any arrangement or agreement among any class of the white plaster trade with respect to any price on white plaster, whether original sale or resale?

A. No, sir. By "held" I simply meant that so long as any manufacturer of white plaster was willing to sell it at this low price, it would be impossible to sell at a higher price. The sale by one manufacturer at a low price would tend to hold the white plaster price in that market at that level.

Q. When you said, in the last sentence, "We are hoping that something will be done in the near future to increase the resale price", did you mean by that to refer to any agreement or arrangement among anybody whereby the resale price would be increased pursuant to concerted action?

A. No, sir, there never were any agreements as to the resale price of white plaster, that I knew of.

Q. And what did you mean when you said you were hoping that something would be done to increase the price?

A. I was hoping that other manufacturers would find it as unprofitable as we were finding it, and raise their prices.

Q. So that neither at this time, the time of the writing of this letter, Exhibit 400, nor at any other time, were you or your company a party to any arrangement 3553 or agreement of any kind with anybody, as to what the price of white plaster would or would not be?

A. No, sir, at no time.

Q. Mr. Tomkins, prior to the time that the Newark Company bought the Kelley stock in May, 1937, had the Newark Company ever had anything to do with gypsum board?

A. No, sir, nothing.

Q. And had the Newark Company, or you yourself, had any connection with licenses from USG with respect to gypsum board, prior to May, 1937?

A. None.

Q. Can you remember whether or not, prior to May 1937, you knew that there were such things as gypsum board licenses running from USG to others?

A. Yes, I had always known, in the industry, that gypsum board was manufactured under patents and sold under license agreements. Early in 1937, in January, the Newark Company took an option on the Kelley Plasterboard Company and made an examination of the business, extending up until May of 1937, and during that examination, of course, the license agreement was presented and the Newark Company became familiar with it, and I did. That was the first time I had seen a license agreement.

Q. Prior to that time you had never seen a USG license bulletin?

3554 A. No, sir.

Q. And prior to that time, prior to 1937, had the Newark Company ever operated in any field under a patent license arrangement?

A. No, sir, never.

Q. After January, 1937, down to the present time, did you ever attend any meeting of the USG board licensees?

A. No, sir, I did not.

Q. So that you have never attended a licensee meeting of the gypsum board licensees, or a meeting attended by the licensor and the licensees, at any time in your entire life, have you?

A. No, that is correct.

Q. As a result of the examination which you say you made of the assets and liabilities of the Kelley Plasterboard Company, can you tell us whether or not you concluded that this Kelley-USG gypsum board license was a valuable asset of the Kelley Company ——

Mr. STEFFEN (interposing). I object to that. I don't see that it has anything to do with the direct-examination, and I don't see where it is tending.

Mr. BROMLEY. It has to do with the purchase of the stock.

Justice STEPHENS. It seems to the Court, Mr. Steffen, that it is proper cross-examination to bring out the 3555 reasons for taking over the license and taking over the Kelley Company. Is that your purpose, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, Your Honor.

Mr. STEFFEN. I have no objection, then, Your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. The objection is overruled.

Mr. BROMLEY. Will you read the question?

(The question was read by the reporter.)

The WITNESS. Yes, we felt it was extremely valuable, and that on it the ability to manufacture board rested.

By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. And is that a reason why you went to the extent of obtaining from USG the estoppel certificate, Exhibit 362, about which you testified?

A. That is correct. We believed, our attorney advised us, that we had the right under the license agreement to take it over with the stock, but on his advice we wanted that confirmed by the licensor. For that reason we wrote to the United States Gypsum Company, and they did confirm it.

Q. And in Exhibit 362, you secured a statement from USG, in binding form, that Kelley was not in default under the license, didn't you?

A. We did.

Q. You wanted to make sure of that, too?

3556 A. We did.

Justice STEPHENS. The Court will suspend at this time.

(Thereupon, at 12:30 o'clock p. m., a recess was taken until 1:45 o'clock p. m., of the same day.)

3557 (The trial was resumed at 1:45 o'clock p. m., pursuant to recess.)

Justice STEPHENS. For the information of counsel, especially Mr. Johnston, who made inquiry on this subject, the Court will adjourn at the close of the session on Friday, the 25th of February, and it will not resume session until Monday, the 20th day of March, as there will be the better part of two weeks spent on patent hearings and conferences which my colleagues must have in the Court of Customs and Patent Appeals. We will therefore adjourn at the end of the session on the 25th of February, and resume on Monday, the 20th of March.

How many more witnesses have you, Mr. Steffen, for the Government?

Mr. STEFFEN. I couldn't tell you positively. Ten or fifteen, maybe.

Justice STEPHENS. Have you any estimate as to how much more time you will take? We have had about 30 days of actual hearings.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think we can finish in from 3 to possibly 4 weeks of actual testimony.

Justice STEPHENS. Have you any estimate as to the number of witnesses that the defendants will call, Mr. Bromley?

3558 Mr. BROMLEY. No, sir, not at the present time.

Mr. STEFFEN. I want to make the point that I made at the beginning of Mr. Bromley's cross-examination. The reference that I had in mind, which is referred to by the Committee on Rules, is Volume 4 of Wigmore, Second Edition, Sections 1885, 1886 and 1887, and particularly subparagraph (d) of 1887.

Justice STEPHENS. What does it say?

Mr. STEFFEN. I can read it to you, but it is not explicit upon the point. It says substantially what I said this morning, that the purpose of leading questions is to enable a person to interrogate a hostile witness; and that, conversely, where the witness is friendly, that leading questions would not be permitted for the reason that it would permit the examiner to put answers in the witness' mouth.

Of course, under the rule, Mr. Tomkins is technically hostile to us, and technically friendly to Mr. Bromley, and on that line of reasoning leading questions are permitted by us and not by Mr. Bromley.

I will say to the Court that we have no construction of 43 (b) ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). Does this refer to 43 (b)?

Mr. STEFFEN. 43 (b) refers back to Wigmore as a general reference, which presumably was what the Committee had in mind in drafting 43 (b).

3559 If Your Honors continue with the position that the Court has taken, I would like to ask to have a continuing exception to leading questions, for the purpose of the record.

Justice STEPHENS. Will you hand that book to the Marshal and let the Court examine it?

(The book referred to was handed to the Court.)

Justice STEPHENS. Do you wish to consider this, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. BROMLEY. No, Your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. It doesn't seem to the Court, Mr. Steffen, that that changes the situation as presented this morning. Apparently Mr. Wigmore, at the place where you cite him, is discussing the advantages and disadvantages of the so-called Federal rule which limits the cross-examination to the direct-examination, the subject matter of the direct-examination, as distinguished from the English rule which permits cross-examination on all matters in issue in the case.

In the course of that discussion he mentions the function and purpose of leading questions. But his reference there, it seems to me, is a reference to the discretion of the Court with respect to leading questions. We didn't understand at all this morning that you were invoking that. We understood that you were asserting, under Rule 43 (b),

3560 that the Court has no right to permit that, and that rule forbids leading questions put to a witness called by you if that witness was a party or the officer of a party,

We still are of the view that that is not the function of 43 (b), nor the effect of Rule 43 (b). Of course, we have not ruled, because such a matter was not presented to us as we understood it this morning, that the Court has no discretion to limit the manner of examining a witness by your opponent if the witness actually seems to be unduly friendly to your opponent's side of the case. The Court's discretion still exists under those circumstances, as we understand it. But we didn't understand you were invoking any such rule as that.

Mr. STEFFEN. We did not intend to raise the question of discretion, and I suppose, as Your Honor states, that at a proper time, if occasion warranted, that you would, of course, exercise your discretion.

Justice STEPHENS. You have a right to ask us to exercise our discretion, yes.

Mr. STEFFEN. I, however, want to raise the point which I spoke of, and would like, for the purposes of the record, to have a continuing exception to all leading questions, addressed by Mr. Bromley or other attorneys, to witnesses that we call as if upon cross-examination.

Justice STEPHENS. You are entitled to that, and the record may show that your objection is overruled, so 3561 that your record is perfected.

Thereupon, FREDERICK TOMKINS, the witness on the stand at the time of recess, resumed his testimony as follows:

CROSS EXAMINATION (Resumed) by Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. You said this morning, Mr. Tomkins, in answer to a question by Mr. Steffen, that up to 1937, you felt free to charge any prices for plaster you wanted to. Now what is the fact with regard to the period after 1937? Did you or did you not feel that you had the same freedom to make any charge for plaster that you wanted to?

A. Yes, sir, we had exactly the same freedom.

Q. You were also interrogated this morning with respect to warehousing arrangements. Let me ask you this: In connection with your testimony that you never made any warehousing arrangements, did you refrain from making warehouse arrangements because of any provisions in the USG bulletins, or for your own business reasons?

A. Well, the question never actually came up. To the best of my recollection, we never even considered making a warehousing arrangement with any dealer.

Q. And did you ever consider doing business through warehouses of your own?

3562 A. Yes, we had given that consideration, but had decided against it because it was expensive. We did not feel that the cost justified it.

Q. And that decision, then, was a matter of business policy, was it?

A. Yes. We made one exception. For a time we did maintain a warehouse in Philadelphia, but the cost was excessive and we discontinued it after a comparatively short period.

Q. And was that discontinuance due to anything that was in the bulletins?

A. No, sir, the bulletins had nothing to do with it.

Q. Is it the fact, Mr. Tomkins, that when Kelley merged with Newark in the latter part of 1938, that that merger was put through in order to simplify the manufacturing operations of the business?

A. Yes; it was January, 1939, that the merger took place, and the purpose of it was to integrate the management and reduce administrative costs.

Q. You told us this morning that you obtained an estoppel certificate from USG. That was in May, 1937, when you bought the Kelley stock, wasn't it?

A. When the Newark Company bought the Kelley stock, yes.

3563 Q. And in 1939, the record shows that a consent to assignment of license from Kelley to Newark, from USG, was obtained, and that is Exhibit 16 and Exhibit 364—do you recall that?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And it is the fact that you got that consent just out of an abundance of caution in order fully and completely to protect your license rights?

A. Yes, our attorneys felt that we should have that consent over and above the consent that appeared to lie in the license agreement itself.

Q. Is it true, Mr. Tomkins, that at all times, a majority of the Directors of both the Calvin Tomkins Company and the Newark Company were common, were the same persons, I mean?

A. At all times since 1937, yes.

Q. And is that fact likewise true with respect to the officers of the Calvin Tomkins and the Newark Plaster Companies?

A. I am not sure that that is exactly true. I believe the officers of the Newark Company were also officers of the Calvin Tomkins Company. I don't believe they were identical; that is, I don't believe they held the same positions in both companies, necessarily.

Q. My question was merely—were a majority of the officers of Newark at all times a majority of the 3564 officers of Calvin Tomkins Company?

A. Yes.

Q. Now the Calvin Tomkins Company was in the business of selling building material products, wasn't it?

A. It was.

Q. And all of its stock was owned by the Newark Company?

A. That is true, yes, sir.

Q. And all the products manufactured by the Newark Company were sold by the Calvin Tomkins Company, weren't they?

A. They were.

Q. So that, is it accurate to say that Calvin Tomkins Company, a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Newark Company, was the company through which Newark conducted the selling end of its business?

A. What actually took place was a sale of products manufactured by the Newark Company to the Calvin Tomkins Company. Those products were subsequently sold by the Calvin Tomkins Company, a wholly-owned subsidiary.

Q. But forgetting the form which it took, isn't it the fact that the selling end of the Newark business was conducted by the Calvin Tomkins Company?

A. That was the effect, yes.

3565 Q. With respect to the testimony and exhibits relating to the consents to sell manufacturing distributors which were requested by Kelley and the Tomkins Company, and which were granted by USG, in accordance with your direct-examination, are you able to tell us whether any request by any one of your companies for a consent to sell a manufacturing distributor was ever refused by USG?

A. No, no such request was ever refused.

Q. And was any such consent, once granted by USG, ever withdrawn?

A. It was not.

Q. At any time were any conditions, oral or written, ever attached to the grant of any one of these consents by USG?

A. No, I believe the only condition was that the consents were revocable, if that is a condition.

Q. Aside from that, were there any conditions attached to the granting of the consents?

A. I believe not, no, sir.

Q. Were any threats ever made by USG to withdraw any consent, once granted?

A. No, sir.

Q. Will you look at Exhibits 372 and 373, please.

(Exhibits 372 and 373 handed to the witness.)

It is a fact, isn't it, that both of these exhibits, 3566 in the first sentence of each, state, "a copy of our price list" is enclosed?

A. They do.

Q. Now at page 3612 of your testimony, you said that your company sent price lists to Oakfield, Structural and Connecticut Adamant, and that this was done by Kelley up until January, 1939, in the instances in which it was done, and by Tomkins, whenever it was done, after that time. And by "Tomkins" I mean Calvin Tomkins Company.

Now isn't it your testimony that ——

Justice GARRETT (interposing). Just a moment, please, Mr. Bromley. That is page 3612?

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes.

Justice GARRETT. In your question you summarized what you understood the questions and answers to mean, did you?

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, sir, the top of the page mentioning Oakfield, Structural and Connecticut Adamant, and the bottom of the page making it clear that if that was done, it was done by Kelley up to January, 1939, and thereafter by the Calvin Tomkins Company.

Justice GARRETT. Very well.

By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. Now those price lists that you were there referring to were price lists showing the prices which the Kelley Company, or the Calvin Tomkins Company, as the case might be, would charge to the Oakfield, the Struc-3567 tural, or the Connecticut Adamant, isn't that right?

A. I believe those were dealer's price lists. We never figured out the prices that we would charge to these manufacturing distributors. That is, we never figured the dealer's price and deducted from it the allowed commission or discount and sent a net price to these companies. We advised them of their prices by sending them the dealer's prices, which enabled them to arrive at their own prices by making the deduction in each instance, at every destination.

Q. In order for Structural, Oakfield and Connecticut Adamant to know what they would have to pay to Kelley or Calvin Tomkins for board, they would have to know the dealer price in effect at the time, wouldn't they?

A. They would, unless we made the deduction, which we never did.

Q. And that was because they could not tell, these manufacturing distributors, what they had to pay Kelley or Calvin Tomkins unless they knew the precise amount of the dealer price from which their discount was to be deducted; isn't that right?

A. That is correct, yes.

Q. So this information in these price lists, although they gave dealer's prices, was absolutely necessary for 3568 these manufacturing distributors to have in order to know how much they would have to pay from time to time for board purchased from Kelley or Calvin Tomkins; isn't that right?

A. That is true, yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever have any agreement or understanding of any kind with any of these manufacturing distributors to whom you sent these lists, or otherwise, that they would resell the goods bought from you at those or any other prices?

A. No, sir, we never had any agreements with them to that effect.

Q. And you testified to that effect at the criminal trial, didn't you?

A. Yes, I believe I did.

Q. Now at page 3644, line 7, you were asked this question by Mr. Steffen:

"Q. That is, it would apply upon your sales to Oakfield for Oakfield's own use?"

And you answered:

"A. Yes, I should think so, because their price depended upon the dealer price."

Now when you said "because their price depended upon the dealer price", you meant the price which they had to pay Kelley or Calvin Tomkins, did you not?

A. Yes, sir.

3569 Q. And again, at page 3647, beginning in line 12:

"Q. That was so that Oakfield would be selling to dealers at the prevailing price?

"A. This information was given to Oakfield so that Oakfield would know what the dealer price was.

"Q. And I followed that question up with—so that when they sold to the dealers, they would sell at the right price?

"A. They could if they wanted to."

Now when you used the word, "right" price, didn't you mean their price to their customers in view of their cost?

A. Did I use the word "right" price?

Q. I am afraid you did, I just read it to you.

A. I thought it was Mr. Steffen who used it.

Q. I am sorry, Mr. Steffen used that, and you answered: "They could if they wanted to."

Justice STEPHENS. Perhaps Mr. Steffen, it is not inappropriate to remark that you might have put a word in the witness' mouth. (Laughter.)

Mr. STEFFEN. I think it is very appropriate to use that word.

By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. When you said, "They could if they wanted to.", in answer to the question, "* * * when they sold to the dealers, they would sell at the right price?", what did you mean?

3570 A. Obviously I meant that if they wanted to sell at the bulletin price, they would have the bulletin price and they could sell at that.

Q. In their sales to their customers, wasn't it important to know, for each manufacturing distributor to know, what his cost was?

A. Surely, of course it was.

Q. Because the price at which he sold to his customers, that is, the price at which the manufacturing distributor sold to his customers, might be influenced or determined by what price the manufacturing distributor had to pay to the manufacturer, mightn't it?

A. That could be the reason, yes.

Q. And isn't it a simple matter of business that before a manufacturing distributor took an order from one of his customers, he would want to know what the dealer price was that the manufacturer was going to charge him from which his discount was to be deducted?

A. Yes, that is perfectly true.

Q. So that it was important that the manufacturing distributors were informed promptly by their suppliers, of any change in the dealer price, wasn't it?

A. It was.

Q. Because any change in the dealer price would affect the cost of the manufacturing distributor's goods 3571 purchased from the manufacturers?

A. Yes.

Q. And so at page 3646, beginning in line 3, this question, as corrected, was asked you:

"Q. So that it was necessary for Oakfield to know that there was an increase in price so that they would get the right price from the dealer?"

and you said:

"Yes, otherwise they would be at a disadvantage."

Mr. STEFFEN. I don't think that line was ever corrected. It finally eventuated that it was left as it stood.

Justice STEPHENS. My records show that after a considerable debate between counsel on the subject, it was decided that the answer was the answer which the witness gave, or that the question was the question which Mr. Steffen asked, and that any possible correction of the answer should be left to cross-examination.

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, sir. So I will withdraw that question.

Justice GARRETT. And it was subsequently corrected on a reexamination the next day, I believe.

Justice STEPHENS. I think the reexamination the next day brought out the idea of the word "from". I think this particular question wasn't changed.

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, sir.

3572 By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. I will withdraw the question and ask you this: At page 3646, you testified as follows:

"Q. So that it was necessary for Oakfield to know that there was an increase in price so that they would get the right price to the dealer?

"A. Yes, otherwise they would be at a disadvantage."

Then you later gave the same answer to the same question, except that the words "to the dealer" were changed to "from the dealer." Do you remember that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Didn't you mean by that, when you answered "Yes" to this question saying "the right price", didn't you mean merely that this information was necessary for the manufacturing distributor to get from his customer a price based upon the cost to the manufacturing distributor as it existed at the time?

A. Yes, sir. If the price were increased, if the dealer price were increased, it naturally followed that the cost to the distributor would be increased, and unless he gave effect in his sale to his increased cost, he would be at a disadvantage. So that it worked both ways. That is, it permitted him to charge the dealer a higher price if he wanted to, to cover his higher cost, and it put him on notice that his cost was going to be increased.

3573 Q. So that if, when a manufacturing distributor like Structural took an order from a customer, and the manufacturing distributor thought the price was $13 to the dealer, not knowing that your company, pursuant to a USG bulletin, was obligated to charge $14, the manufacturing distributor would find that he had sold goods for $13 which cost him $14 less 12½ per cent?

A. Yes, sir, we had to notify them immediately if there was a change in price, because their costs depended on it.

Q. And if the manufacturing distributor, not knowing of the price increase, charged the old price, his transaction might result in a loss to him because his increased cost might more than wipe out his discount; isn't that right?

A. That is true, that is what I meant by stating that he would then be at a disadvantage.

Q. Now at page 3619, in the middle of the page, you testified about a talk you had with Mr. Kelley prior to your purchase of the stock, I think, and you said that Mr. Kelley told you that manufacturing distributors sold board they purchased from Kelley at the established bulletin prices to the dealer trade. Do you recall that?

A. Yes, sir, I do.

Q. In that conversation, did Mr. Kelley make any statement as to whether or not that was done pursuant to an agreement between the Kelley Company and the 3574 manufacturing distributors?

A. No, sir, I know there was no such agreement.

Q. And he didn't tell you that he had any understanding between his company and the manufacturing distributors which resulted in their reselling the goods at the dealer's price, did he?

A. No, sir, he told us that he had disclosed to us all agreements and understandings that he had, and that was not among them.

Q. And you understood, didn't you, that the prices at which the manufacturing distributors resold the goods was a matter entirely within their own determination?

A. No, sir. At that time I was under the impression, after we took over the Kelley business, after Newark did, that the Newark Company as a licensee did have an obligation to see that the manufacturing distributors to whom it sold board, resold it at bulletin prices to dealers.

Q. Did you get that impression from anything that was ever said to you by anybody from USG?

A. No, sir, that was my own opinion.

Q. Did you get that impression from anything that was ever said to you by anybody?

A. I don't believe I did, no, sir.

Q. Did you ever do anything, Mr. Tomkins, toward attempting to see to it that your manufacturing dis-3575 tributors resold at any price or prices?

A. No, sir. I made inquiries on several occasions as to what their selling policies were in certain instances that our company had been asked to report on.

Beyond that there was nothing that we ever did to attempt in any way to control distributors' prices.

Q. Now those instances to which you have just referred are the two instances brought out in your direct-examination, as to which there was some correspondence, aren't they?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you now know, don't you, that in both of those instances, the complaint which the Board Survey Company made was a complaint against your company with respect to a charge that you had not charged the bulletin prices to your manufacturing distributor customers?

A. Well, I don't know that, Mr. Bromley. The complaints of the Board Survey Company are addressed to the Kelley Company, or should have been addressed to the Kelley Company, and I interpreted them to mean that we were to investigate and report back as to the prices at which the distributors were selling board, prices and delivery terms—which is what we did.

Q. And is that all you did?

3576 A. That is all we did.

Q. And isn't it a fact that those are the only two instances, in the entire period of time, where this question was raised with you or your company?

A. Those are the only instances of which I have any knowledge.

Q. Will you look at those two complaints ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). What numbers are those exhibits?

Mr. BROMLEY. Look at Exhibit 382, please. That is Board Survey complaint dated December 27, 1937.

By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. In the first place, that is addressed to the Newark Plaster Company, Licensee, isn't it?

A. It is.

Q. Now by what you said a minute ago, you meant to suggest that it should have been addressed to the Kelley Company?

A. Undoubtedly. The Newark Plaster Company was not a licensee.

Q. Because the merger had not yet occurred?

A. No, sir.

Q. So, subject to that correction, looking at it now, do you see that the complaint is addressed to a licensee?

A. Yes, sir.

3577 Q. And do you see that in the first line of the text it says, "A complaint has been filed against your company as follows:"—do you see that?

A. I do.

Q. And then the complaint goes on to give the name of the customer involved, and gives the customer as Oakfield, doesn't it?

A. It does.

Q. Now coming down to the text underneath "Facts Concerning Complaint", it states: "Is reported that Frankford Coal & Supply Company, Philadelphia, through Oakfield Gypsum Products salesman, has offered Plastering Contractor Sam Levin a price of $14.00 per M, delivered to job. Material is trucked direct from Delawanna, N. J., by local trucking contractor. Licensed price on Plaster Lath delivered in truckload quantity to dealers in Zone 1 is $14.10 per M."

From that it is apparent, isn't it, first, that Frankford Coal & Supply Company is a dealer?

A. It is.

Q. And, second, that Frankford Coal & Supply Company was offering patented lath to a contractor at $14.00?

A. Correct.

Q. Now that lath which Frankford Coal & Supply was offering to a contractor for $14.00 was lath which it had bought from Oakfield, wasn't it?

3578 A. That is implied, yes, "through Oakfield Gypsum Products salesman".

Q. And Oakfield bought the lath from Kelley?

A. It did.

Q. And under the license bulletin, Kelley was obligated to charge Oakfield $14.10 less 12½ percent, wasn't it?

A. Yes, I believe that covered the sales in Philadelphia.

Q. That is apparent from the last line of that quotation, isn't it?

A. That is correct.

Q. So that if Sam Levin, clear down the line of those transactions, was only paying $14.00 for this lath, it was a permissible inference that you, the Kelley Company, must have been selling Oakfield at a price lower than the bulletin price, wouldn't you say that?

A. Well, that certainly could be inferred.

Q. And indeed, if you had been given information that Frankford was making this low price to a contractor, you would have thought, in turn, that Oakfield was selling at a low price, wouldn't you?

A. Yes, that was the basis of our inquiry.

Q. And do you now see that so far as USG was concerned, its inference was that your company was selling Oakfield at a low price, or else this transaction would not have been possible?

3579 A. As I say, that is a possible inference, certainly.

Q. Now the only other instance appears in Exhibit 387, which is a letter from Mr. Bartlett to you. Mr. Bartlett was the man in charge of the activities of USG in seeing that its license bulletins were observed, wasn't he?

A. That is the connection in which I had an occasion to know him.

Q. And do you notice in the second sentence that the charge is that Structural and Newark "are making a regular practice of delivering material direct to jobs"?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now the reference to Structural and Newark is explainable by the fact that the delivery to those jobs was made in Kelley trucks, is it not?

A. Yes, Newark should not have been mentioned here, for the same reason that we were not properly charged in the previous complaint.

Q. You mean the reference should have been to Kelley?

A. Yes.

Q. Because the merger hadn't yet taken place?

A. That is correct.

Q. But the fact is that in this instance to which reference is made in this complaint, the Kelley Company had sold goods to Structural and the Kelley Company was making the delivery in Philadelphia?

3580 A. Well, this letter claims that both Structural Gypsum Company and the Newark Plaster Company, which means Kelley, were making a regular practice of delivering material direct to jobs.

Q. But the fact is, at that time, that the deliveries were being made by the Kelley Company's trucks, whether it was a direct sale by Kelley to a dealer or a sale by Structural to a dealer?

A. Yes. I believe Structural was also making some deliveries in Philadelphia.

Justice STEPHENS. You mean that Kelley was delivering for Structural?

The WITNESS. Yes, for Structural's account.

By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. So that even if Structural had made the sale in this instance referred to, the delivery would have been made by a Kelley truck?

A. Yes, I believe that is what this letter referred to, that it was a delivery made for Structural's account by a truck hired by the Kelley Company.

Q. So that, so far as USG or any outsider was concerned, the transaction would look like a Kelley transaction because of the delivery in the Kelley truck, isn't that right?

3581 Mr. STEFFEN. I think, Your Honor, that this goes quite a long way. Using the rule which the defendants used this morning, the letter speaks for itself. The witness hasn't shown that he can construe it any better than Mr. Bromley, on this point.

Justice STEPHENS. The Court has tried to make plain, before, that it is the view of the Court, and the Court thinks it is a settled rule, that there is a different practice on cross-examination. On direct-examination if you want to prove the contents of a document, you must show the document. On cross-examination it may be that the witness' understanding of a document explains his direct-examination concerning his conduct under it. We think the objection is not well taken.

Mr. BROMLEY. Will you read the question?

Justice STEPHENS. That merely reraises the question on which we ruled under your continuing objection, as to whether you were not examining your own witness this morning, notwithstanding the fact that you were permitted to lead him. But we think this is cross-examination of a Government witness, and that that permits going into the reasons for his conduct and his understanding of these documents.

Mr. BROMLEY. Will you read the question?

(The pending question was read by the reporter.)

The WITNESS. It would look like a Kelley transaction, but the statement is made that the practice was 3582 directed by a salesman of the Structural Gypsum Company.

By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. That means, does it not, that the Kelley Company would start its truck out from Delawanna for Philadelphia, with directions to that truck to go to the Structural Warehouse in Philadelphia?

A. Or to the dealer's yard.

Q. Or to the dealer's yard?

A. Correct.

Q. And that unbeknownst to you, a salesman of the Structural Company would intercept the truck and divert it direct to the contracting job; is that right?

A. That was the basis of their complaint, apparently.

Q. Yes.

A. That is correct.

Q. So that I say again, to an outsider not familiar with what was going on, it would look as though the Kelley truck was making a direct job delivery, direct from Delawanna?

A. It would.

Q. Now coming back to Exhibits 372 and 373 again, at page 3750, at the bottom of the page, referring to these exhibits, you were asked this question:

"Q. And when you say that you are eliminating those counties from the trucking area, you mean that 3583 you are no longer trucking into those areas, and that therefore, if you are selling to Oakfield and making shipments to Oakfield's customers, that they couldn't be handled on the former delivered price basis, is that correct?

"A. I don't believe we ever trucked into these areas."

Now that answer isn't right, is it?

A. No, sir, I was in error.

Q. In the first place, do you notice that the question refers to the Oakfield Company?

A. Yes.

Q. And the Oakfield Company had its place of business at Oakfield, New York?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Oakfield, New York, is way over toward Buffalo, isn't it?

A. It is.

Q. And when Mr. Steffen asked you that question, weren't you under the impression that the three counties mentioned in Exhibit 372, to-wit, Delaware, Greene and Columbia Counties, were up near Oakfield?

A. Yes, I assumed they were.

Q. And you now know as a matter of fact, they are down near New York City?

A. I do, yes, sir.

3584 Q. So that your answer, "I don't believe we ever trucked into these areas," was quite wrong, wasn't it?

A. Entirely so.

Q. And the fact is that your company did truck into Delaware, Greene and Columbia Counties?

A. Yes, we trucked into all of the counties where trucking was permitted under the license bulletins in the New York area, and to many in the Philadelphia area.

Q. When you gave that answer, you thought that Berks and Lancaster Counties were out in Western Pennsylvania?

A. I did.

Q. And you now know, don't you, that Berks and Lancaster Counties are just outside of Philadelphia?

A. I do.

Q. So that the answer which you gave at line 5, on page 3751, was completely wrong, wasn't it?

A. Yes.

Q. And you change it now, do you not, so as to state that your company did truck into those areas?

A. Yes, I would like to make that correction.

Q. So that with respect to these counties mentioned in Exhibits 372 and 373, the Kelley Company was notifying its customers of a change in the type of service which Kelley would render to them in those localities, was it not?

A. Yes, we were putting them on notice that we 3585 would no longer make truckload deliveries in those counties.

Q. And that thereafter your deliveries would have to be made, if at all, by rail; isn't that right?

A. That is correct, yes, sir.

Q. Now these price lists, and this notification of this change, were sent by the Kelley Company to the Paragon Company and the Structural Company because the Kelley Company hoped to sell products to these companies for delivery in these areas, isn't that right?

A. Yes, we hoped we would be able to sell both the Structural Company and the Paragon Company in carloads in these areas.

Q. In these areas, in these five counties?

A. That is correct.

Q. And when you testified in the criminal case, you testified that you hoped to sell the Paragon Company and the Structural Company in these areas—do you remember that?

A. I don't remember it.

Q. But that is the fact, isn't it?

A. I believe it is.

Q. Now the Paragon Company, to which this letter Exhibit 372, is addressed, is the Paragon Company of Scranton, Pennsylvania, is it not?

A. Yes, sir.

3586 Q. And the Paragon Company of Scranton, Pennsylvania, never was a manufacturing distributor, was it?

A. No, sir, except through its ownership of stock in the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation.

3587 Q. Well, when you say "except through its ownership", you know, don't you, that the Paragon Company had only a minority stock interest in the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation?

A. I don't know what the interest was, but it did have a stock interest.

Q. But so far as the business of the Paragon Company of Scranton, Pennsylvania, is concerned, it did not manufacture plaster, did it?

A. No, sir.

Q. Therefore, isn't it correct to say that it is not a manufacturing distributor in the sense in which that term has been applied to such companies as the Structural and the Oakfield companies?

Mr. STEFFEN. I object to that, your Honor, as calling for a legal conclusion.

Justice STEPHENS. Is there a dispute between the Government and the defendants as to whether Paragon was a manufacturing distributor?

Mr. BROMLEY. Do you concede, Mr. Steffen, that it was not?

Mr. STEFFEN. I should like to make a continuing refusal to concede, and I would also like to say that I think the facts will develop that Paragon was as much a manufacturing distributor as was the Calvin Tomkins Company. The three companies that owned Oakfield were very closely related and had an identity of officers and directors, and they were run for each other's bene-3588 fit.

It seems to me that if we are forced to take a position we would take the position that the Paragon Plaster & Supply Company is a manufacturing distributor as much as Calvin Tomkins Company, and for the same reasons.

Justice STEPHENS. The Court asked the question for this reason. Of course in a highly technical sense, whether this company was a manufacturing distributor within the terms used in these pleadings, if it is a matter of dispute in this case, is something that the Court will have to finally pass upon. But nevertheless that term is apparently a term of art in this trade, and it has been used by the Government in its examination of witnesses, and by the defendants. If this witness knows how this company was regarded in the trade, or if he is called upon to testify as to how he regarded it, on this cross-examination, it would seem to the Court not unreasonable, with the understanding that the Court will not be bound by his statement when it comes to a determination of the actual fact, if that is in issue.

We think, therefore, that the objection should be overruled, with the understanding that the Court is not receiving this testimony of this witness on that subject as binding as to the exact nature of this company. You may still contest that. That will protect you sufficiently. It would greatly convenience the examination if the term could be used, on both sides.

3589 Mr. BROMLEY. I point out that they do not claim it to be a manufacturing distributor in their bill of particulars.

Justice STEPHENS. That is true.

Mr. BROMLEY. And if it weren't for the fact that they had offered this letter, this Paragon letter, Exhibit 372, and I had objected because Paragon was not a manufacturing distributor—but the Court admitted it—I wouldn't go into this subject. But it seems to me that it is too clear for words that this company is not a manufacturing distributor and the only thing I can do now is develop it through this witness.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think Mr. Bromley has developed no facts which were not before the Court last Friday afternoon when this same question came up and was duly ruled upon.

Mr. BROMLEY. It did not appear then that Paragon didn't manufacture plaster.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think the whole thing appeared just as clearly then as it does now, that the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation is the plaster manufacturing unit, and that the Paragon Plaster & Supply Company is a shareholder, along with the Hard Wall Plaster Company and the other Paragon Company, and own and run the Oakfield Company.

Justice STEPHENS. You may develop what the Paragon actually did in its manufacturing business. The Court will not interpret the use of the term "manufacturing distributor" in the mouth of this witness as being conclusive on the subject of what it is, if there is later to be a contest on the subject. It would seem to be difficult to me, Mr. Steffen, to have a contest on this subject in view of the fact that your bill of particulars did not name this company as a manufacturing distributor.

Mr. STEFFEN. My original objection was to the question which asked Mr. Tomkins what his understanding of the matter was, where Mr. Tomkins' understanding cannot help but be a legal conclusion. It seems to me that it is an immaterial or improper line of questioning.

Justice STEPHENS. The Court has ruled that it will not receive his answer as a legal conclusion. You may proceed.

By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. I will ask you again—the Paragon Company of Scranton, you have said, was a dealer and a jobber?

A. Yes.

Q. It did not manufacture plaster the way Structural or Oakfield did?

A. No, sir.

Q. Therefore would you not say that Paragon of Scranton was not a manufacturing distributor in the sense that Oakfield or Structural were?

A. No, sir, not at all in that sense.

Q. I will call your attention, Mr. Tomkins, on page 3771, to this question:

"Q. When you say that you have no longer attempted to exert any influence upon what Oakfield or Structural or Connecticut might do, do you mean to imply that you were not interested any longer in whether they maintained prices or not?

"A. No, sir, the only time I ever took this matter up with any of them was where instances had been brought to our attention of violations."

Now when you said "violations" you meant instances in which USG had complained against your company, did you not?

A. Well, all the complaints that came up in connection with us were addressed to our company.

Q. And when you used the word "violations" there you referred to those complaints addressed to your company, did you not?

A. Yes. My feeling was that our company was being charged with a violation for something that one of these distributors had done.

Q. Now the only instances in which that occurred were these two, in evidence as Exhibits 382 and 387?

A. Yes, to the best of my knowledge, those were the only two occasions.

Q. And you meant the same thing when you used the word "violations" in the second sentence of that answer to which I have just referred, reading as follows:

3592 "We never at any time inquired as to the prices at which they were selling, or made any effort to see that they sold at any particular prices, except for the occasions on which we had been put on notice that the violations had occurred."

A. Well, we interpreted the violations as violations of bulletin prices that had been perpetrated by these other companies, but the violations themselves were chargeable against us, it was our duty to investigate them.

3593 Q. Did you do anything more than investigate and report the facts as disclosed by the exhibits?

A. No, sir. In each case the facts were denied.

Q. And when you used this word "violations" in the second sentence, again you referred only to the two instances disclosed in Exhibits 387 and 382, did you not?

A. Yes, sir, they were the only violations that were ever referred to us.

Q. In your answer just given about the nature of those documents, you meant only to say what your interpretation was at the time you received them, and not what you realize now they actually are, isn't that right?

A. Well, I haven't testified as to what they actually are, Mr. Bromley. At the time, as I have made it clear, I took them to mean that we were to investigate the circumstances and report to United States Gypsum Company. We did just that.

Justice STEPHENS. Mr. Bromley, before you go to another topic, the Court would like to call your attention, and the attention of Mr. Steffen also, in connection with Exhibits 372 and 373, to a statement in the record which puzzled the Presiding Judge when he was reading the record last night. Perhaps it will be cleared up by you in this examination, or by Mr. Steffen later.

At page 3752, beginning with the question at line 16:

"Q. Surely. Now let's take the next sentence, Mr. Tomkins. It says: 'The prices as shown for these re-3594 spective Counties are still the prices which apply when delivered by carload, mixed car or pool carload lots only.'

"Now that is the sort of thing that we were just talking about, is it not, where you take the mill base price and add the freight to destination?

"A. Well, that means that in the future, prices would be based on the regular mill basing point plus freight method."

Now, if you will turn to page 3795, you will see a statement there by Mr. Steffen commencing at line 5:

"Mr. STEFFEN. I think, your Honor, that the witness has clarified it sufficiently so that we can say that the prices, or the price lists, rather, referred to in Exhibits 372 and 373, are prices referred to in the bulletins, and would be the prices at which the Newark people would sell to dealers. They obviously didn't go through the calculation of having a base price, and then adding to it the freight from a basing point, and so on."

Mr. Steffen's statement concerning the witness' testimony, and the witness' own testimony as just read from page 3752, are in conflict, it seems to me, and it occurred to the Court that that should be cleared while you are on the subject of Exhibits 372 and 373. It need not be done at this moment, but may be done later. I am merely calling it to your attention.

3595 By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. Look at the second paragraph of Exhibit 372, please. The prices referred to in that paragraph are the prices made up of the mill base price plus freight to destination, are they not?

A. I would interpret this to mean that these prices are the same as the prices that were previously posted for truck deliveries, and that all the change in the price list covered was the elimination of these counties from a trucking area. Then the letter goes on to say that the prices shown for these counties are still the prices which apply in carload lots.

In other words, there seems to have been no change in the prices, but simply the elimination of this territory from the trucking area.

Q. We are interested in knowing how those prices were calculated, and you said at page 3752:

"A. Well that means that in the future, prices would be based on the regular mill basing point plus freight method."

That is right, is it?

A. Yes. That would mean that the old truck delivered prices must have been based on a freight rate pricing basis, because they haven't changed.

Mr. BROMLEY. It is true that the trucking delivery prices and the carload prices in some areas are the same, isn't it?

3596 The WITNESS. I imagine they are.

Justice STEPHENS. The Court will take the usual afternoon recess at this time.

(Thereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed.)

Justice STEPHENS. Proceed.

By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. The manufacturing distributors, such as Oakfield and Structural, to whom you sold patented board at a discount, were in direct competition with you, were they not?

A. In some instances they were, yes.

Q. They solicited, these manufacturing distributors, and sold to the same class of trade that you did, did they not?

A. They did, they sold to dealers.

Q. And having purchased from you, they sold to the same class of trade as you solicited, the same product as you sold?

A. Exactly.

Q. So that in a very real sense, by selling them your patented board you enabled them to stay in business and compete with you, didn't you?

A. As to board products, yes.

Q. And therefore you testified, isn't it the fact, that if one of these distributors took away your customers by underselling you, you would feel free to refuse to supply him that material any longer?

3597 A. Well, the occasion never arose. I think I testified that that would have been given consideration.

Q. And that would have been true, wouldn't it, Mr. Tomkins, without regard to whether or not your prices were fixed by some licensor?

A. Yes, without regard to that.

Q. You, as a matter of independent business judgment, would stop supplying any distributor who, as you said, consistently and in large volume, undersold you to your customers on the product which you were selling him?

A. Unless I were advised that it was illegal to do it, I would, yes.

Q. Well, you never were advised, were you, that it was illegal for you to do that as a matter of individual action?

A. Not so far, no, sir.

Q. And when you said on page 3705, beginning at line 3:

"Q. But it is pretty clear, as you stated, that if Oakfield or Connecticut or Structural were selling to your dealers at a lower price, you don't believe they would stay in business very long?

"A. Whether it was board or anything else, no one would."

there you did not mean, did you, that any company other than your own would have anything to do with the decision as to whether or not you would sell such a distributor?

3598 A. No, sir, I never implied that.

Q. And you never had any agreement or understanding with USG or anyone else that you would stop selling any manufacturing distributor who sold below dealer prices, did you?

A. No.

Q. You were asked some questions about excessive dunnage. A licensee who was so intentioned could make a present of perfectly good wallboard or plasterboard, by including in a car of board a large amount of what he called dunnage, could he not?

A. Yes, that is possible.

Q. You said that it was the practice to use defective or broken plasterboard or wallboard to brace the load of good wallboard or plasterboard, did you not?

A. Yes, that is the practice of my company.

Q. Now if a manufacturer used a large amount of perfectly good board, and said he had put it in there for the purpose of bracing the other board, it would be possible for him to give a concession to a purchaser by making him a present of a substantial amount of perfectly sound board, wouldn't it?

A. Yes.

Q. And you understood, did you not, that this provision that excessive dunnage would be considered to be a violation of the license, referred only to the possible prac-

3599 tice of a manufacturer rebating on the price by making a present of a considerable amount of good board, calling it dunnage, when it was not required as dunnage?

A. Yes, it would constitute a rebate.

Q. At page 3729, in talking about the perforated lath, when you were asked why you signed the perforated lath license, you said:

"A. Well, I understood that other licensees had signed the perforated lath agreement ——"

Then you were interrupted, and finally Justice Stephens asked you if you had finished your answer, and you said that you had.

Isn't it the fact that it was also a reason for your taking out that license, that you desired to be made competitive with the other licensees, who were competing with you?

A. Yes, I understood, as I stated, that other licensees had taken out that license. We found it necessary to sell perforated lath, and I felt that we had to be in a position to produce it.

Q. And you thought you had to have a license so that you could be in a position to produce it in order that you could compete with the licensees who were operating in your territory, did you not?

A. Well, I made no inquiry as to whether or not the license was necessary, but assumed that it was, inasmuch as the other companies had agreed to it.

3600 Q. By this time, that is the time you took this license, perforated lath had become a very valuable product, much sought after in the market, hadn't it?

A. Yes, and the sale was increasing rapidly.

Q. And you wanted to be in a position, if you could, to sell it lawfully, didn't you?

A. Yes, indeed.

Q. And as you said, Kelley had already, prior to that time, started the manufacture of a machine to accomplish the perforations?

A. Yes, sir, he had started that prior to the Newark Company's acquisition of his stock.

Q. It wasn't Mr. Keady, was it, who told you that all of the licensees in the business, except National, had a perforated lath license?

A. I believe it was Mr. Keady.

Q. I ask you that because the fact is that they all did not have. Did you know that?

A. I didn't know it. My understanding was that the licensees, particularly those in the East, with the exception of National, had signed this license agreement for perforated lath.

Mr. STEFFEN. I think it ought to appear that that is the fact, isn't it Mr. Bromley?

3601 Mr. BROMLEY. What is the fact, that all the licensees in the East except National had a perforated lath license agreement?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes.

Mr. BROMLEY. I meant by my statement that Texas never took one, or National.

Mr. STEFFEN. He testified as to National, and he limited his answer to the Eastern manufacturers.

Mr. BROMLEY. All right.

By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. Now you gave some testimony about minimum quantities, and referring again to Exhibit 372, and the last words in the second paragraph, "minimum quantity 7500 sq. ft.", you said that you understood that the United States Gypsum bulletins at that time set that minimum for pool cars, do you remember that?

A. Did I say that I understood that the bulletins so stated?

Q. That is the way I remember it.

A. In reading this letter I assumed that the bulletins provided for the elimination of the trucking area, and also noted that in specifying the territories for carload and pool carload shipments, it limited the quantity to 7500 square feet. My assumption that that was a limitation of the license agreement was simply because it appears in this letter with the other license agreement limitations.

3602 Q. Did you know that the bulletins in effect at this time did not make any such requirements?

A. No, I didn't know one way or the other.

Q. If you, on the other hand, for the Kelley Company, had determined to make such a requirement, it would not violate the bulletins, would it?

A. Oh, no.

Q. Because the bulletins all the way through only make provision for minimum requirements—you knew that, didn't you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So you were free to place any limitation on the minimum quantities that you would deliver in pool cars that you wanted to, weren't you?

A. Yes, sir, if it was not in the bulletin as a limitation, it was one that we imposed ourselves.

Q. Then you were asked some questions about minimum quantities in truck loads: If a manufacturer should agree with a dealer to sell him 7500 square feet of board at a price, at the truckload price, and then should deliver that over a period of time, as required, in small quantities, say 500 or 1000 feet at a time, would that be rendering a service to the dealer which would be of value to the dealer in dollars and cents?

3603 A. Yes, it would eliminate the cost of warehousing and handling to a large extent, and provide the dealer with a great convenience, and make it possible for dealers with inadequate financial assets to purchase board in small quantities.

Q. So that the 7500 square feet is a normal truckload of board?

A. Usually we deliver board in larger quantities by truck, today.

Q. And if you made a practice of making small deliveries to a dealer, you would normally, in the normal course of business, expect to charge him more?

A. If the delivery costs us more, we would expect to be paid at a higher price.

Q. So that if a manufacturer would agree with a dealer to sell him 7500 feet of board at the price specified for a truckload in a United States Gypsum bulletin, and then proceed to deliver it in dribbles over a period of time, he would in effect be giving the dealer a price concession, would he not?

A. Yes, I would consider that an indirect price concession.

Q. At page 3726 you testified in line 16 that metallized board sold at a proportionately high price. You meant merely, did you not, that metallized board sold at a price higher than plain board or lath?

3604 A. Yes, high in relation, high relative to plain board or lath.

Mr. BROMLEY. May I have the letter from Mr. Tomkins to Mr. Eldred of November 17, 1937?

Justice STEPHENS. Is that in evidence, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, sir, it is Exhibit 380.

(Government's Exhibit No. 380 was thereupon handed to the witness.)

By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. Will you look at that, please, Mr. Tomkins?

A. Yes.

Q. The writing of this letter was initiated by you yourself, and not by anyone from the United States Gypsum, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And the situation referred to in the letter had to do with a shipment made direct to the contractor's job, which by-passed the dealer's yards, didn't it?

A. That is correct, yes, sir.

Q. Now if any manufacturer such as your company made a practice of delivering, for some dealer, direct to the contractor at the job, that was a business practice which would antagonize dealers generally, wasn't it?

A. Yes, that apparently was what happened in this case.

Q. And when you say, in the second sentence of Exhibit 380, "as I think it possible we may be called upon 3605 for some explanation", you were referring to the fact that you were afraid the dealers would ask you to explain why you were violating that business practice, weren't you?

A. I am not sure at this time exactly what I had in mind other than apparently this transaction had received some publicity. Whether I had in mind we might receive a question from the Board Survey Company, or that we might be called to account by our dealers in Philadelphia, I don't know, at this time.

Q. Well, in the first sentence you say that the publicity, or "excitement" was among the dealers in Philadelphia.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And they were the buyers?

A. They were the buyers.

Q. And it was that excitement, because they were your customers, which primarily concerned you, wasn't it?

A. Yes, sir, that was our chief concern.

Q. At the bottom of page 3764, in relating your conversation with Eldred, beginning at line 21, you said:

"A. My recollection of it is that Mr. Eldred said he had inquired of his salesman in Philadelphia as to whether this delivery had been made directly to the job, and that his salesman had denied it."

As in the prior instance, isn't it the fact, Mr. Tomkins, that what you suspected was going on was that your 3606 truck, making the delivery presumably to a dealer in Philadelphia, had been met by an Oakfield salesman on the way, who had diverted the truck to the contracting job?

A. Yes. I believed, if the truck had made a job delivery, which was denied, that it could only have been made at the instance of a representative of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation.

Q. And isn't that why you went to Mr. Eldred and asked him about it?

A. Yes, that is the reason I asked him to investigate it and find out what the facts were.

Q. Because only Mr. Eldred or his salesman would know whether, as a matter of fact, the Oakfield salesman had diverted your truck?

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. And so far as the dealers in Philadelphia were concerned, all they would know about it was that a Kelley truck had made a direct job delivery, isn't that true?

A. If this delivery had been made, that would have been true, yes, sir.

Q. So that even though, if it had been done, the diversion was the result of an Oakfield act, nevertheless, the Kelley Company would get the blame so far as the dealers were concerned, isn't that right?

3607 A. Yes, the Kelley Company was getting the blame.

Q. Now in the Bartlett letter to you of December 27, 1937, which is Exhibit 381, you have already explained that the letter should have been addressed to Kelley instead of Newark, because Kelley and not Newark was the licensee, have you not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you explain to us why it was that dealers were opposed to job deliveries?

A. Well, basically it takes the control of the dealer's business away from him. If a dealer does not purchase materials, warehouse them and subsequently deliver them to jobs, he has no real function, he becomes more in the nature of a broker than a dealer.

Q. And it is the fact, isn't it, that it is and always has been the attitude of these dealers in this country that manufacturers who sell to dealers should deliver the goods to the dealer, and not to the dealers' customers?

Mr. STEFFEN. I object to that as being entirely too broad. No witness can answer what all dealers in this country object to, or how all deliveries are made.

Justice STEPHENS. Well, if the phrase "this country" is to be construed as being used with all dealers, it is too broad. I thought the witness would understand the question to mean dealers in this trade in the area which we are discussing.

3608 If the witness doesn't understand that, you had better rephrase the question, Mr. Bromley.

Mr. BROMLEY. I will withdraw the question.

By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. Isn't it true that as far as you know the situation, that the dealers in your area with whom you are acquainted object to a manufacturer making a delivery direct to a job, on a sale to a dealer?

A. Yes, sir, all of the dealers with whom I have had experience feel very strongly on that question. They do not want manufacturers delivering to their customers directly to the jobs.

Q. And therefore it is and always has been your business policy to deliver goods sold to dealers, to the dealer's place of business?

A. Yes, sir, for that and other reasons.

Q. Now, coming to the second instance, the Structural situation in Philadelphia, and particularly Mr. Bartlett's letter to you of May 17, 1938, which is Exhibit 387, again this letter, you say, was erroneously addressed to Newark because Kelley at the time had the license, and not Newark, isn't that right?

A. That is right, yes, sir.

Q. And again, in the instance referred to here, Kelley was making the deliveries to Structural in Kelley trucks. That is right, isn't it?

3609 A. Well, in trucks either owned by Kelley or hired by Kelley.

Q. Now will you look at the answer of May 20, 1938, which is Exhibit No. 388. In the second paragraph there is a reference to "irregularities". You have told us, have you not, that that referred to reports that you had that Structural was selling board bought from the Kelley Company at prices below Kelley's prices, to dealers?

A. Yes, that or deliveries to jobs.

Q. Now isn't it the fact that you had decided that the Kelley Company would not sell in Philadelphia prior to the time that you received Exhibit 387?

A. We had decided not that the Kelley Company would not sell in Philadelphia, but that it would not continue to deliver for the account of Structural in Philadelphia.

Q. I see. And you had decided that prior to the time that you had received Exhibit 387, hadn't you?

A. Yes, simply on the basis of cost.

Q. And didn't you discontinue making sales to dealers in that area, yourself?

A. No, we reduced our volume of business in Philadelphia. We did not discontinue all sales in Philadelphia, then or at any time.

Q. And isn't it the fact that in your use of the word "irregularities" in Exhibit 388, you meant only to 3610 indicate that your discontinuance was a matter of business policy so far as Kelley was concerned, and had nothing to do with the performance of any obligation which you may have assumed that you had under the license?

A. No, there had been no question raised. We had discontinued the sale in Philadelphia to Structural several months before we were put on notice that Structural was believed to be quoting low prices for delivery direct to the job.

Q. Is it the fact that in localities other than the Philadelphia area, you went right ahead selling Structural as before?

A. Yes, always.

Q. So that then it is the fact that so far as this complaint is concerned, Exhibit 387, you never went to anybody representing Structural with respect to it?

A. To the best of my knowledge we did not. We were not doing business with Structural in the territory covered by this complaint, and we so advised the United States Gypsum Company.

Q. How much of your business, during this period of time, up until say 1943, was represented by sales to manufacturing distributors?

A. It would be a very rough estimate that I could give you on that.

3611 Q. How much?

A. Maybe at the rate of five or six million feet per year, to all distributors, out of a total of roughly thirty million feet.

Mr. BROMLEY. Now may I have the United Clay Products invoice, Exhibit 375-C?

(Thereupon, Government's Exhibit No. 375-C was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. Will you please look at that, Mr. Tomkins?

Before I go to that, Mr. Tomkins, did you ever have any agreement or understanding of any kind with respect to the prices of gypsum products other than white plaster?

A. We never had any as to white plaster or any other gypsum product, except board.

Q. Now I want you to assume for the moment, if you will, in connection with Exhibit 375-C, that the Kelley Company had a mill at Delawanna, New Jersey, which was a basing point mill, and that Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation had a place of business in Washington, and that you were selling patented plasterboard to Oakfield.

Justice STEPHENS. Please read that question. The Court's attention was on this exhibit, and I missed it.

(Thereupon, the pending question was read by the reporter.)

3612 By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. The price which Kelley would charge Oakfield would be the mill base of $13, plus the freight from Delawanna to Washington, would it not?

A. That is correct.

Q. And in the instance on Exhibit 375-C, that price would be $14.96 in Washington, if the freight there represented the freight between Delawanna and Washington?

A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Now isn't it the fact that it is the universal practice for customers of manufacturers to be charged a price made up of the mill base price, plus the freight to destination?

Mr. STEFFEN. I object to that, your Honor, on the ground that the word "universal" calls for so much information ——

Mr. BROMLEY (interposing). I will withdraw the question.

By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. In this business, isn't it the usual custom for the manufacturer to charge the customer a mill base rate to which the freight to destination has been added?

A. Yes, that is the usual custom.

Q. And isn't it the usual practice for the customer, when he gets the shipment, to go to the railroad and pay the freight bill?

A. Yes, that is customary.

Q. So that at that point, if the customer had paid the manufacturer, he would have paid the freight twice, 3613 wouldn't he?

A. Yes, if the manufacturer included it in his invoice.

Q. Therefore, the invoice always shows on its face a freight credit to the customer, doesn't it?

A. In that instance it does, yes, sir.

Q. And the freight credit which is shown to the customer is always the amount of freight which the customer actually pays the railroad, isn't it?

A. Yes, it would have to be.

Q. It would have to be?

A. Yes.

Q. Now since the invoice is generally sent after the event, at the time the customer receives the invoice he has already paid the railroad freight, and sent his freight bill to the manufacturer, and the manufacturer has put on the invoice a credit in the sum represented by the amount of the freight bill, isn't that right?

A. Well, I think sometimes our invoices beat the shipments to the customers. They should. The invoices are made on the day of shipment, and usually get there ahead of the shipment.

Q. But whatever the fact is, the credit which you give the customer is always the freight which he pays to the railroad?

A. Yes, I believe that is correct?

3614 Q. Now in this instance the freight which was a part of the price was $1.96, was it not?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. That was the freight from Philadelphia to Washington, wasn't it?

A. Yes.

Q. That was because Philadelphia was a basing point and Delawanna was not?

A. That is correct.

Q. And the reason that you only charged your customer $1.96 was that since USG had a mill at Philadelphia, it could undersell you unless you charged the customer in Washington the same freight rate that USG would charge the customer, isn't that so?

A. Yes, that is correct.

Mr. STEFFEN. The reason is that the bulletins provided for that price.

By Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. That would have been true without any bulletins, wouldn't it? You couldn't have competed with USG if it had a mill in Philadelphia and you had one in Delawanna, without some such arrangement?

A. We either would have had to sell at a lower price at our mill, or absorb some of the freight so as to equalize our price with the United States Gypsum Company's price.

Q. Coming back to Exhibit 375-C, the fact is that 3615 the $1.96 is the freight from Philadelphia to Washington which goes into the price of $14.96?

A. Yes, that is the rate.

Q. That is the rate from Philadelphia to Washington?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now the freight credit that you gave Oakfield is the amount of freight which was actually paid by the customer that received the goods in Washington, isn't that correct?

A. Yes, that was figured at 19 cents.

Q. And that was because the actual freight paid to the railroad was the freight from Delawanna?

A. That is right.

Q. Now of course in this instance Oakfield did not pay the railroad, did it?

A. No, in this instance probably Oakfield's customer, the United Clay Products, paid the railroad.

Q. The United Clay Products paid the railroad $77.94, but it would be the fact, wouldn't it, that Oakfield on its invoice to United Clay Products, would give United Clay Products a credit in the same amount—that is, the freight actually paid by United?

A. Yes.

Q. And that would be because Oakfield would probably charge United $13 plus $1.96, the going dealer price, is that right?

3616 A. That is correct.

Q. So that at that moment of time, the customer, United, would have paid the freight twice, once in the price to Oakfield, and once to the railroad?

A. If that had been done.

Q. And that is the reason that on the invoice from Oakfield to United, Oakfield would give a credit of $77.94, the amount which United had paid the railroad for freight?

A. Presumably it would.

Q. And since Oakfield had given that credit to United, Kelley in turn would give credit to Oakfield in the same amount, is that right?

A. That is right.

Q. That would result in Oakfield giving United a credit of $77.94, which was $17 more than the freight in the delivered price?

A. Yes, $17 more than the 14-cent freight rate would be.

Q. And Kelley would give Oakfield, likewise, a credit for $77, which was $17 more than the amount of the freight which Kelley got in the delivered price?

A. That is right.

Q. So that it would end up by the Kelley Plasterboard Company absorbing $17 of freight?

A. Yes, that is the difference between the freight from Philadelphia to Washington and the freight from 3617 Delawanna to Washington.

Q. And it would end up with Oakfield paying $13 plus the Philadelphia freight of $1.96, less 12½ per cent on $13?

A. That is correct.

Q. And it would end up with United paying for that, $13 plus $1.96, or the Philadelphia freight?

A. Yes.

Q. Now with relation to Exhibit 374, which is the letter notifying the Oakfield Gypsum Corporation of a freight increase, look again at that Exhibit 375-C. If, at the time that this transaction was accomplished, the freight rate from Philadelphia to Washington had been increased from 14 cents to 15 cents, and Kelley had known about it but Oakfield had not, it would have resulted in a loss to Oakfield, wouldn't it?

A. Yes.

Q. Because if Oakfield had not known that the freight from Philadelphia to Washington was 15 cents, instead of 14, Oakfield would have charged United $14.96?

A. Yes.

Q. And then when Oakfield had come to get its bill from Kelley, it would have been charged, for the same board, $15.10, or 15 cents times 1400, instead of 14 cents times 1400, is that right?

A. That is correct.

3618 Q. A 15-cent freight rate on 1400 pounds, instead of $1.96, would be $2.10.

A. That is right.

Q. So that the price which Kelley would charge Oakfield, based on the new increased 15-cent rate, would be $13 plus $2.10, or $15.10, whereas Oakfield, not knowing of the increase, would have accepted an order from United at the old price of $14.96?

A. That is true; yes, sir.

Q. And Oakfield would then be out 14 cents per thousand feet because of its ignorance of the freight increase which went into the price, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. So do you now say that Exhibit 374, the freight notification sent to Kelley to Oakfield, was information which Oakfield should have in connection with its purchases of patented board from the Kelley Company?

A. Yes, it was information which Oakfield would have to have.

Q. Because any company would want to know its cost before accepting an order from a customer at any price, wouldn't it?

A. It is a good practice, yes. (Laughter.)

Mr. BROMLEY. That is all.

Justice STEPHENS. How much redirect examination do you have, Mr. Steffen?

3619 Mr. STEFFEN. I will try to make it very brief, your Honor, because I think Mr. Tomkins wants to get away.

Justice JACKSON. Will you be finished by four o'clock?

Mr. STEFFEN. Possibly.

Mr. O'DONNELL. If the Court please, I have a few questions on cross-examination which I don't believe will take more than five minutes at the most.

Justice STEPHENS. Very well, proceed.

CROSS-EXAMINATION by Mr. O'DONNELL.

Q. Mr. Tomkins, I believe you testified that the Newark Plaster Company had been engaged in the manufacture of white plaster for a great many years. What was the date of the incorporation of the company?

A. The Newark Plaster Company was incorporated in 1911.

Q. And from 1911 down until the purchase of the stock of the Kelley Company, it had never sold its plaster to the dealer trade, or thereafter, as far as that goes?

A. It made all its sales to the Calvin Tomkins Company.

Q. The Newark Plaster Company was, as I understand it, a New Jersey corporation.

A. Yes.

Q. And the Calvin Tomkins Company was a New York corporation?

3620 A. Yes.

Q. Was the Newark Plaster Company, throughout the period that it was engaged in the manufacture of this white plaster, known to the dealer trade for the product which it manufactured?

A. No, it was not. The dealer contacts were all made by Calvin Tomkins Company.

Q. Now with reference to the Kelley Plasterboard Company, at the time the Newark Plaster Company purchased its stock, was the Kelley Plasterboard Company known to the dealer trade for the products which it manufactured?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. And throughout the period from 1937 through to 1939, that is, to January 1, 1939, at which time the Newark Plaster Company merged the Kelley Company, wasn't it to your interest to maintain the two companies as separate and distinct legal entities?

A. We believed there was an advantage in continuing the operation of the Kelley Plasterboard Company as nearly as possible in the same way that it had operated prior to our acquisition of the company.

Q. After the Newark Plaster Company had acquired the stock of the Kelley Plasterboard Company, did the Kelley Plasterboard Company continue to maintain its own office, separate and distinct from that of the Newark Plaster Company?

A. It did. It operated in exactly the same way it had prior to the change in stock ownership.

3621 Q. And where was the office of the Kelley Plasterboard Company located?

A. Delawanna, New Jersey.

Q. Did the Kelley Plasterboard Company have a plant superintendent, separate and apart from the plant superintendent of the Newark Plaster Company?

A. It did.

Q. And who was he?

A. Mr. Loeffler.

Q. And had Mr. Loeffler been the plant superintendent of the Kelley Plasterboard Company prior to the time that the stock was purchased by the Newark Plaster Company?

A. He had, for many years.

Q. Did the Kelley Plasterboard Company have a different office plant manager from that had by the Newark Plaster Company?

A. Yes, it did.

Q. And they had that office plant manager throughout the period from 1937 to January, 1939?

A. Correct.

Q. Who was he?

A. Mr. Wileman.

Q. And he had been the office plant manager of the Kelley Plasterboard Company prior to the time when the Newark Plaster Company purchased its stock?

3622 A. That is right.

Q. And did the Kelley Plasterboard Company also have a sales manager separate and apart ——

A. (Interposing.) It did. Mr. McGrath was the sales manager who continued in that capacity.

Q. And he had been sales manager of the Kelley Plasterboard Company prior to the purchase of its stock by the Newark Company?

A. Yes.

Q. Were the employees of the Kelley Plasterboard Company, as far as possible, maintained intact as those who had previously worked for Mr. Kelley?

A. Yes, the same employees were retained, and as few changes as possible were made.

Q. Now I think you testified that the Newark Plaster Company had larger facilities for the manufacture of white plaster than it found necessary to use in furnishing the dealer trade with white plaster?

A. That is correct.

Q. And after the purchase of the Kelley Company stock, did the Newark Plaster Company use those facilities for the manufacture of stucco?

A. It did.

Q. Was that stucco manufactured by the Newark Plaster Company throughout the period from 1937

3623 through to the early part of 1939, sold by the Newark Plaster Company to the Kelley Plasterboard Company?

A. Yes, it was sold by Newark to Kelley.

Q. And paid for by the Kelley Plasterboard Company?

A. It was.

Q. Which keeps its own books—or rather, kept its own books of account in reference to these transactions?

A. That is right.

Q. After the merger of the two companies on January 1, 1939, did the Newark Plaster Company sell patented board or lath direct to the dealer trade?

A. No, it did not. It sold board to the Calvin Tomkins Company.

Q. As it had done when it was a manufacturer of white plaster, from that time on the Newark Plaster Company likewise sold all of its board to the Calvin Tomkins Company?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. O'DONNELL. If the Court please, there is one matter that I think might be cleared up by this witness.

On page 3765 of the transcript, line 13, your Honor asked this witness, or perhaps the question was addressed to Mr. Steffen:

"Justice STEPHENS. Is it being offered as a declaration of Newark or Kelley?"

3624 I find that the witness did not make it clear as to which company this letter was written by.

Justice STEPHENS. What letter?

Mr. O'DONNELL. Exhibit 380, to which your Honor was referring at the time that question was asked. Mr. Steffen's reply was merely:

"Mr. STEFFEN. On one part, yes."

Justice STEPHENS. That is the letter relating to the alleged excitement among dealers in Philadelphia, and the one which referred to Harry McCormick?

Mr. O'DONNELL. That is right, your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. What is your point?

Mr. O'DONNELL. It appeared that your Honor was addressing that question to Mr. Steffen, I believe, as to whether or not this particular letter was being offered as a declaration of Newark or Kelley and there was no reply by Mr. Steffen to your Honor's question.

Justice STEPHENS. Mr. Steffen said:

"On one part, yes."

I am not sure that I understand what your point is, Mr. O'Donnell.

Mr. O'DONNELL. As I understand your Honor's question, I believe you asked Mr. Steffen if this letter was being offered as a declaration of Newark or Kelley. The response of Mr. Steffen does not appear to answer that question.

3625 Justice STEPHENS. Do you wish to expand your answer, Mr. Steffen? The answer is not clear. It says: "On one part, yes." I don't quite see what that means.

Mr. STEFFEN. I don't either, your Honor. I think what I should have said was—yes, and that we regard Newark and Kelley at this time as being substantially one concern. Certainly Mr. Tomkins was acting for—he was president of Newark, I believe, and was also acting as president of Kelley. So that as far as I know, there is no issue on the responsibility for the actions of Kelley, and I had not intended to draw any distinction.

Mr. O'DONNELL. Could the witness be shown a copy of Exhibit No. 380?

The WITNESS. I have it here, Mr. O'Donnell.

By Mr. O'DONNELL.

Q. Mr. Tomkins, in writing the letter identified as Government's Exhibit 380, were you writing that letter as president of the Kelley Plasterboard Company, a licensee of USG Gypsum Company?

A. Yes.

Mr. O'DONNELL. I wish to make an objection to this letter being offered by the Government as an admission against the Newark Plaster Company.

I have no further questions.

Justice STEPHENS. Let the Court see the original letter, Mr. Marshal.

3626 (Thereupon, Government's Exhibit No. 380 was handed to the Court.)

Justice STEPHENS. Do you wish to be heard on that, Mr. Steffen? The witness having testified that he was writing Exhibit 380 as an officer of Kelley, Mr. O'Donnell objects to it being received in evidence as a declaration of Newark. What is your contention with respect to that?

Mr. STEFFEN. Our contention is that Newark was responsible for what Kelley was doing during the period after they purchased the stock of Kelley. The letter is certainly binding upon Mr. Tomkins because he was acting in both capacities. The evidence has developed that the directors, or a majority of them, were the same, and that the officers, or a majority of them, were the same, and that the business was under the almost complete control of Mr. Tomkins, who was also president of Newark.

It seems to me that that is sufficient to show that the letter is admissible against Newark and Kelley, and of course against Mr. Tomkins.

Justice STEPHENS. The objection will be overruled, with the understanding that how far this exhibit binds Newark is a matter which will ultimately be determined when the argument is made at the close of the case with respect to all the evidence as binding against any defendant.

3627 Mr. STEFFEN. I should like to ask two or three questions.

Justice STEPHENS. You may.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION by Mr. STEFFEN.

Q. I think you testified, Mr. Tomkins, in answer to a question of Mr. Bromley's, that you were free to sell plaster at any price you saw fit. Isn't that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And that you have been, even after you became a licensee of USG?

A. Yes, sir, we can set our own prices for the sale of plaster.

Q. Now Mr. Bromley made an illustration of a case where a manufacturer had sold board, and also had sold plaster which at that time was selling at $10 on the market, at a $2 price. You would regard that as a subterfuge or a rebate, would you not, on the sale of board?

A. I certainly would, yes, sir.

Q. And would you think that you were free to sell plaster at that price under the bulletin regulations?

A. Not if I considered it a rebate. If I were establishing a price for plaster, I can do that in my own discretion, but if I am doing it as an evasion of a contract I have made, I would consider that to be improper.

Q. Now you testified that you regard the license agreements as very valuable assets, and that you 3628 considered that when you bought the Kelley stock. Do you remember that?

A. I do.

Q. Did you make any investigation at that time of the patent situation?

A. I did not, no, sir.

Q. What did you base your understanding on to the effect that those were very valuable assets?

A. The fact that gypsum wallboard in the East had been manufactured under these patents for a substantial period of time.

Q. That is, it was your understanding that it had been manufactured under those patents?

A. That was my understanding. I did not feel that we would be justified in undertaking to manufacture a board without a license agreement, and consequently find ourselves entangled in a lawsuit. I didn't feel that it was necessary for my company, which was a small one, to investigate the validity of the patents, or the legality of the license agreement, when it had been established in the industry and apparently had been unquestioned for a number of years.

Q. In other words, you took the license agreement and the patents at face value?

A. Exactly.

Mr. STEFFEN. I have no further questions.

3629 RECROSS EXAMINATION by Mr. BROMLEY.

Q. Did you submit to your counsel, Mr. DeWitt, the matter of an opinion on the legality of the license?

A. He investigated the legal features of the entire transaction, in acquiring the Kelley Company. I know he read the license agreement, and I assume it met with his approval, as he made no objection to it.

Justice STEPHENS. Is there any other recross?

(No response.)

Justice STEPHENS. Mr. Adams, the Court will have to ask you to come back tomorrow morning to be heard on the Redfield matter and on Exhibit 324, I believe, which is the answer in the Beaver Products case.

May this witness be excused now?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes, your Honor.

Mr. BROMLEY. Yes, sir.

Mr. JOHNSTON: If the Court pleases, before we adjourn I would like to inquire if a set of the exhibits that are to be used tomorrow is available, so that we can have them tonight?

Mr. STEFFEN. They are available with the clerk.

Justice STEPHENS. And you may obtain them from the clerk.

You are excused, Mr. Tomkins. Thank you for attending the Court.

(Witness excused.)

Justice STEPHENS. Announce the recess.

(Thereupon, at 4:15 o'clock p.m., an adjournment was taken until 10:00 o'clock a.m., Tuesday, February 15, 1944.)

3632 IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES
FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Civil Action No. 8017

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, PLAINTIFF,

v.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY; NATIONAL GYPSUM COMPANY; CERTAIN-TEED PRODUCTS CORPORATION; THE CELOTEX CORPORATION; EBSARY GYPSUM COMPANY, INC.; NEWARK PLASTER COMPANY; SAMUEL M. GLOYD, doing business under the name of TEXAS-CEMENT PLASTER COMPANY; SEWELL L. AVERY; OLIVER M. KNODE; MELVIN H. BAKER; BROR H. DAHLBERG; HENRY J. HARTLEY; FREDERICK G. EBSARY; and FREDERICK TOMKINS, DEFENDANTS.

SEVENTH FLOOR, INTERNAL REVENUE BUILDING,

WASHINGTON, D. C., TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1944.

The above-entitled cause came on for further hearing at 10:00 o'clock a.m., pursuant to adjournment, before Honorable Harold M. Stephens, Honorable Finis J. Garrett, and Honorable Joseph R. Jackson, sitting as the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

Appearances. (Same as heretofore noted.)

3640 ARGUMENTS ON QUESTIONS OF LAW

Justice STEPHENS. We will next hear argument on the two questions of law which have been raised. One was with respect to Exhibit 324, the Beaver Products answer, and the other was with respect to the al-3641 leged waiver of privilege with respect to the exhibit identified in the Grand Jury proceedings by Mr. Redfield. What number was that?

Mr. ADAMS. Exhibit 233.

Mr. STEFFEN. I am handing the Court mimeographed copies of our brief, and I wanted to call Your Honors' attention to the fact that we made one typographical error. Paragraph 27 was listed as 28.

Justice STEPHENS. Where is that?

Mr. STEFFEN. On the first page, and it has now been corrected.

Justice STEPHENS. Exhibit 324 is the answer of Certain-teed in the Beaver Products case, is it not?

Mr. ADAMS. That is right.

Justice STEPHENS. And Exhibit 233 was the letter from Mr. Redfield?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes.

Justice STEPHENS. Mr. Adams, since you are the moving party as to Exhibit 324, you may proceed on that topic.

Mr. ADAMS. I think the record shows that this argument is in support of a motion by Certain-teed Products to strike out Exhibit 324, on the ground that it should not originally have been received in evidence since the exhibit is the answer of the defendant Certain-teed Products Corporation in this suit in the Northern District of Illinois between it and the United States Gypsum Company, 3642 and is not a verified answer. Consequently, in our view, it is not admissible in evidence in this trial as binding upon the defendant Certain-teed Products, or as constituting an admission by it.

As I see this problem, there doesn't seem to be any substantial difference between the Government and ourselves as to what the rule is. I think probably this question rather turns on the application of this rule, as is so frequently the case, particularly when you are dealing with matters of evidence.

The rule has become firmly imbedded in the procedural cases in the Federal courts, and in our brief—I won't refer to them now specifically—we have set out the cases which seem to us to say that where a pleading is not under oath, and is not signed by the party but is only signed by counsel, it is not competent to prove an admission by the party unless there is a showing, on the part of the person offering the document, that the facts contained in the pleading were known to the party, communicated by the party to his counsel, and the counsel was instructed by the client to put the facts or the statements in the pleading.

It seems to me that that is a very wise rule. I don't want to slander the entire profession. It does seem to me, however, that it is very sensible that counsel 3643 should not be permitted to commit their client merely in a pleading, where such commitment would affect the client's rights in a subsequent and other proceeding.

During the course of the first proceeding where the pleading is offered, the client has a right to change its position in the course of the proceeding, as the facts may develop. Therefore, it can't be harmed particularly by what statements counsel may have made, in perfectly good faith, in behalf of the client.

When we come to a later and other proceeding, it seems to me that you should not permit counsel, in the absence of a clear showing that the client knew about the facts that are alleged and that the client authorized counsel to put those facts in the pleading, to put that pleading in evidence in the later and other proceeding.

Moreover, as I will touch on later, it is important that the client should not be bound by the assertions or conclusions of law of his counsel. That seems to me to be a very practical and at the same time important reason for the rule. If counsel wish to take a legal position, as in an answer as they did in this case, they are stating legal conclusions which the client doesn't know anything about, and wouldn't understand if he did.

Now when you look at this case—the complaint is in evidence, it was a suit by the United States Gypsum 3644 Company which sought fundamentally to restrain Certain-teed, or rather, Certain-teed and Beaver, from going through with this transaction whereby Certain-teed was acquiring the Beaver assets, on the fundamental ground that to do so would deprive the United States Gypsum Company of important rights under this license agreement—a completely different issue faces this Court here. Certain-teed's counsel put in an answer. In the course of the answer, particularly in paragraphs ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). Will you please restate briefly—I missed one or two words that broke the connection—please restate briefly the nature of the suit by United States Gypsum against Beaver Products?

Mr. ADAMS. As I understand the suit, the purpose of the suit was permanently to restrain Certain-teed and Beaver from consummating the transaction.

Justice STEPHENS. What transaction?

Mr. ADAMS. Whereby Certain-teed was about to acquire the assets of Beaver, it being contended that that would deprive the United States Gypsum of substantial rights under the license agreement, it being apparent that Certain-teed did not intend to follow the provisions of the agreement and that would be a way for Certain-teed and Beaver to evade the license agreement.

3645 It would seem to me that the issues were different than they are in this case. However, I don't want to go into the question of the issues, here.

We are particularly interested in the paragraphs of the answer which are paragraphs 27, 28 and 29. I do not now propose to argue whether or not those statements constitute an admission, except in one limited sense, as I think that has already been determined by the court in its previous ruling. I merely call attention to it so that Your Honors may see now the reason why the document was offered.

The pleading itself was signed by counsel, it was not signed in any way by the client, not verified. Verified pleadings, as the Court of course knows, constitute, in a sense, a solemn admission and are admissible. This was not verified. Therefore, the question arises as to whether or not the Court can properly say whether the filing of this pleading was authorized—I don't think that perhaps is a proper word—whether or not, under these cases, the client knew about it and instructed the counsel to make this defense on these facts in its behalf.

We say that there is absolutely no evidence upon which this Court can find that fact. The Government, on the contrary, says that circumstantially—a favorite device of the Government when it knows that there isn't any 3646 direct evidence and can't obtain any such evidence, to say that circumstantially something is so.

Well, in this case we say that isn't even any circumstantial evidence which would amount to compliance with the rule, showing a connection and knowledge and understanding by the client of what was being done.

Justice JACKSON. Where in the world did counsel for Certain-teed secure knowledge of the things that are set out in those paragraphs, particularly paragraph 28?

Mr. ADAMS. They might have secured knowledge of those facts in almost any number of ways.

Justice JACKSON. And that is what skillful counsel would do?

Mr. ADAMS. He certainly would. I think certainly that in any case, counsel gets his facts where he can and puts in those facts.

But when it comes down to a point of binding his client by those facts, I think it is a wholly different question.

Now in this case, the Government starts out by saying—I must say to my surprise—referring to page 2 of their memorandum, that "Members of the Cravath firm were present at conferences of the Certain-teed officers when the matters alleged in Exhibit 324 were being considered, as

Mr. Adams admitted before this Court (Tr. p. 1917)." That is not so. The transcript at page 1917, which I have before me, shows that we were discussing an exhibit 3647 which was excluded from evidence and is not before this Court, and all I said was:

"I am in a position to prove, your Honor, that at that time Certain-teed was advised by the Cravath firm, and that Mr. Adkins was associated with that firm."

I ask Your Honors to place that statement against the statement in the Government's memorandum, which says specifically: "Members of the Cravath firm were present at conferences of the Certain-teed officers when the matters alleged in Exhibit 324 were being considered, as Mr. Adams admitted before this Court (Tr. p. 1917)."

I think that disposes of that suggestion by the Government.

Justice JACKSON. Well, your alleged admission here pertains to what exhibit? You said it didn't pertain to Exhibit 324.

Mr. ADAMS. My alleged admission referred to Government's Exhibit No. 210, which was a document having to do with a conference which the Government said took place on February 2, 1928. We had an argument there about privilege on that document. The Court finally held that the document wasn't properly identified. The Court didn't finally hold that it was to be excluded on the ground of privilege, but the Government has never yet produced a witness who could identify the document, and it isn't in evidence.

3648 So the Government is taking the liberty of talking about a document which is not in evidence, and trying to commit me to a statement about that document which isn't true. So that statement, as far as the Government is concerned, is wrong.

Now the next point that the Government makes is that there was an exhibit which was introduced in evidence as No. 212, which is quoted on page 3 of the Government's memorandum, dated March 1, 1928. I think the important part of it is quoted by the Government, and it is not necessary for the Court to look at the whole exhibit. However, that was a memorandum that George M. Brown made and has identified in this case.

Now the Government says that the wording of paragraph 27 is almost a paraphrase of the last paragraph of that memorandum, which they then quote. We don't agree.

Nor do we agree that the statements contained in paragraphs 28 and 29 of the answer have anything to do with the suggestions contained in that paragraph of the memorandum. However, I think that it is very important, and the Government has wholly failed, to call to the Court's attention what Mr. Brown's testimony was.

He was asked, at page 2762 of the record:

"And do you recall what the nature of your defense was?

"A. No."

3649 He was referring to this lawsuit that we are now discussing.

"Q. But there was a decision, as you testified, to put in an answer?

"A. That is my best recollection.

"Q. And do you recall having told your counsel to put in an answer?"

3650 I don't know exactly what the old gentleman meant by that. He first says, in answer to a question:

"Q. And do you recall having told your counsel to put in an answer?

"A. I don't recall telling him, but my best recollection is that we did."

Then the next question is:

"Q. Do you recall what you may have told him to say in the answer?

"A. No."

So the Government picks out an exhibit which contained some statements which relate to the answer, and says that it has complied with this rule by merely having shown the Court that someone in the Certain-teed Company knew some of those facts, when that same individual testified in this case that he didn't know what, if anything, he told his counsel.

Now I wish to call to the Court's attention my own position in this case with respect to this client, as I have pointed out to this Court on other and numerous occasions. We have had a complete change in the management of Certain-teed since 1936, and I think that fact is important when the Government tries to bind us by an admission made by a previous administration, if it were an admission. I think we are entitled to have all the rules of evidence carefully complied with.

3651 Now your Honors may have noticed that from time to time during this trial I have been forced to take positions with respect to matters of evidence, which may have seemed to be going quite a ways in being technical, but that is because of my unusual position with respect to the change in ownership, control and administration of this business.

Now in this case we have an attempt here to foist upon us an admission made in 1928, if it was an admission. What I say is that there is no evidence at all that the facts which are pleaded in the answer, except in a very vague way, were ever known to the client, and as far as the record shows, were never communicated by the client to counsel, and which counsel may have gotten from any source and which, so far as this record is concerned, were not in the answer at the instructions of the client.

That last seems to me to be the most important fact because if you are going to bind a client, and this is on the agency theory, it seems to me that you ought to have more than this to show that the agent was acting within the scope of his auhority.

There is another phase of the matter which I think I should call to your attention. As I look at these paragraphs of the answer, they seem to me to constitute conclusions of law by the pleader. They are arguments of law as to the legal effect of the license agreements and the position which the parties find themselves in under 3652 the license agreement, and it seems to me ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). Do you think you could get the gentleman that drew that answer to concede that?

Mr. ADAMS. I think I could get him to concede that, all right.

Mr. BROMLEY. I had nothing to do with it. (Laughter.)

Mr. ADAMS. As a matter of fact, I think that should be stated.

But I believe that the paragraphs of this answer are nothing more than arguments of law in an equity suit where it was proper pleading to plead in that way. Naturally counsel wanted to take advantage of whatever arguments of law they could make, and they did so. But in so far as saying that this argument of law is something which is binding upon Certain-teed as an admission, it seems to me that in the state of this record we are going a very, very long ways.

I don't know whether I should take the time of your Honors to go over this in full, but I would call to your attention that paragraph 29, for example, says:

"This defendant further alleges, on information and belief, that the complainant has unlawfully sought to dominate and monopolize the wallboard industry, in substantial restraint of trade, and in violation of said final decree entered June 3, 1923, and of the Anti-Trust Laws of the United States, not only by controlling prices under 3653 its license agreements or otherwise, but also by granting rebates to customers and by other unfair practices, in violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act of the United States," and so on and so on.

It seems to me that that is nothing more nor less than an able presentation of a legal argument which was properly found in an equity suit. I don't think we ought to be bound by it in any sense as expressly or impliedly constituting an admission on our part.

I have cited in our brief, under Point II, some cases generally on this proposition.

In particular there is one of them there where the question had not to do with a pleading, but rather with testimony which was given by a witness in a lawsuit. That is Sturm v. Boker (1893), 150 U. S. 312, at pages 335-337.

The Supreme Court said:

"What the complainant said in his testimony was a statement of opinion upon a question of law. Where the facts are equally well known to both parties, such statements of opinion do not operate as an estoppel. If he had said in express terms that by the contract he was responsible for the loss, it would have been, under the cases, an opinion as to the law of contract, and not a declaration or admission of fact which would estop him from subsequently taking a different position."

3654 It seems to me that that is all that this can be said to constitute as far as this case is concerned.

That is all I have to say on this point, your Honor.

I have, as you know, filed a brief some time ago, or rather the Government filed a brief some time ago, on Exhibit 233.

Justice STEPHENS. That is the Redfield matter?

Mr. ADAMS. That is right.

Justice STEPHENS. We will dispose of them separately, and have all the argument on this topic at the one point in the record.

Proceed, Mr. Steffen.

Mr. STEFFEN. I propose to make a very brief argument, your Honor.

It seems to me, in looking over the brief or memorandum submitted by Mr. Adams, that he goes back for his authorities to some rather early cases such as Combs v. Hodge, which is a Supreme Court case, and the Diebold Safe Company case, and that those cases did assert, as one ground of their decision, that pleadings not signed or verified by the client, would not be admitted in evidence as admissions.

Those are very old cases, they have been repeated in a number of decisions, but there has been no very careful analysis, as I have found, in the decisions, of the reasons why they might be good law. On the contrary, I think I can say that those cases are, for the most part, dic-3655 tum, and on a very limited set of facts, and that it is generally recognized that whenever there is anything to show the authority of the attorney, or anything to show—which is the simpler way—that he was acquainted with the facts of the matter concerning which he pleads by the complaint, that those matters which are put in the pleadings are admissible on the same basis as any other admissions.

That is to say, an attorney in signing a pleading is no different than an officer of the corporation. They are both agents in a sense, and they can both be authorized in the same way.

The older cases had to do with an individual client, and there might be greater sanctity in having an individual client sign the agreement. This case came up in a more modern situation, where you have a corporation, the Certain-teed Products Corporation, and when they engage counsel, as your Honors know full well, counsel are perhaps better conversant with many of the facts involved than are the officers of the company. It would be more or less waste motion to ask an officer of the company to sign in order to make the papers binding upon the corporation. The officers of the corporation engage counsel, competent counsel, and ask them to prepare their pleadings, and they prepare their pleadings, the facts are laid before counsel, and it seems to me that in this day and age a statement by counsel 3656 appearing in pleadings as to facts, must constitute an authorized admission on the part of the client.

That is the position which I think Mr. Wigmore would sustain, that we have moved on from the day of Combs v. Hodge.

That takes us to the question of what authority was given to counsel in this case. Mr. Adams has made a point that Mr. George M. Brown on the stand was unable to remember just what he told counsel.

Referring to page 2762 of the transcript—I think Mr. Adams referred to that—I asked the question:

"Q. And do you recall having told your counsel to put in an answer?

"A. I don't recall telling him, but my best recollection is that we did.

"Q. Do you recall what you may have told him to say in the answer?

"A. No."

He didn't recall what he had told counsel to put in the answer, but he did very clearly recall that there was to be an answer filed, and there was an answer filed, which I take it is a direct engaging of counsel to put in an answer in this case.

And while Mr. Brown may have been unable on the stand here to recall what he instructed be put in the answer, the fact that he instructed counsel to put in an 3657 answer is the significant thing.

I think that Mr. Brown—I defer to your Honors' judgment on this—was unable to remember much of anything that took place. We had him on the stand all morning, and he couldn't tell us what took place in his meetings with Mr. Avery on March 1st or February 28th. He was there for two or three hours with Mr. Avery on an afternoon, and two or three hours the next morning, and he couldn't remember anything excepting that nothing came of it.

Then he gets back to New York, and he writes our Exhibit 212 which is his own memorandum, and in Exhibit 212 he outlines exactly, as we see it, what was subsequently put in the answer by counsel for Certain-teed.

He says, "We must put in an answer"; "We must assert that USG is mainly interested in domination and not interested primarily in royalties"—and while it may not be an exact paraphrase of the answer, as we have said in the memorandum, a comparison indicates that the matters placed in the pleadings are substantially identical with the position which Mr. Brown stated should be taken by his company, and the fact that he doesn't remember it on the stand I think is a circumstance to be considered, but is not controlling at all.

Now we have cited, in our brief under Point II, some of the rulings which have held that where counsel is given access to facts by a client, and could, in fact, 3658 only get those facts from his acquaintance with the client's business, that that constitutes a sufficient showing of a submission to the attorney of the facts, and an authorization to prepare what is necessary by way of an answer.

As to those cases that I refer to, the leading one, probably, in the State court, is Johnson v. Russell—an old case—(1887) 144 Mass., 409.

That case, though, I might point out, was referred to by the Court in the Redfield case, and was regarded as stating a sound proposition for purposes of the Federal courts, that where counsel are given access to information concerning the nature of the case, and they put in an answer in accordance with that, that that constitutes an admission on the part of the client as respects the matters pleaded.

Now we have a third point here, which I think ought to be considered rather carefully by the Court.

On page 9 of the memorandum we set out what the rules of procedure, or rules of practice were, obtaining in the equity courts in 1928, when this pleading was filed, and it there states that where counsel—and I might point out that verification was waived in the complaint, verification by the client—it there states that where counsel signs a pleading, as was done in this case, that that constitutes a certificate on his part "that he has read the pleading, so signed 3659 by him; and that upon the instruction laid before him regarding the case, there is good ground for the same; that no scandalous matter is inserted in the pleading; and that it is not interposed for delay."

Now we take a rather serious view of that. It seems that when counsel signs his name to a pleading under a rule of court of this character, that he makes a representation, or makes a statement that he has received instructions, that his pleadings are in accordance with those instructions, that there is nothing in there that is intended to be scandalous or for the purposes of constituting delay.

In this case, it was Mr. Bromley's firm, although as Mr. Bromley stated he had nothing to do with the case, and I don't think the Court should lightly assume that that firm put in an answer on facts which were purely fabricated.

Justice GARRETT. Would it make the slightest difference, as a matter of law, as to whether it was the same firm that was then representing the client?

Mr. STEFFEN. No, your Honor.

Justice GARRETT. It wouldn't make the slightest difference as a matter of law?

Mr. STEFFEN. No, we are just bringing that out in order to embarrass Mr. Bromley, for fun, if we may. (Laughter.) It was Mr. Bromley's firm, but that has no bearing on the case.

Justice JACKSON. We used to say, when I practiced law in New York, that that firm was so big it was 3660 a law factory. (Laughter.)

Mr. STEFFEN. I may say that it is a very trustworthy firm ——

Justice JACKSON (interposing). There is none better.

Mr. STEFFEN. And when they signed a pleading, as they did in this case, and when they certified that they did receive instructions from their client, I submit that they meant what they said, and there has been no showing by Mr. Adams that these pleadings were not authorized, and that they were ever disavowed. They went ahead for over a year and Mr. Brown finally settled it by signing the license agreement. So there seems to me there is almost nothing to Mr. Adams' argument.

As to conclusions of law, this is a court in equity, and when it examines the exhibit, if there are any improper conclusions in there, I think the Court can be trusted to give due weight to that fact.

Justice STEPHENS. Do you wish to comment, Mr. Steffen, upon Mr. Adams' statement with respect to the reference on page 2 of your brief to his alleged admission?

Mr. STEFFEN. That may have been error. We have checked the record this morning right here. It was our assumption, on reading it, that Mr. Adams in making his statement certainly recognized that members of the Cravath firm were present during the conferences. Exhibit 3661 210, which was referred to, recited that lawyers were present. Also I recall, although I haven't yet put my finger on it, that C. O. Brown told us that he thought it was prepared by counsel, or someone said he thought it was prepared by counsel.

Our evidence is not very good on that, as you can see.

I didn't mention Exhibit 211, which I think is further make-weight argument, but it indicates that the Cravath, De Gersdorff firm was in communication with Certain-teed during this period, and concerning these matters.

Justice STEPHENS. Do you mean Exhibit 211 or 210?

Mr. STEFFEN. I mean Exhibit 211, which is still another exhibit.

Justice STEPHENS. Do you wish to reply?

Mr. ADAMS. Your Honor, I see in Mr. Steffen's argument what seems to me a fundamental weakness.

His cases, I think, where they have allowed these pleadings as admissions, where they are unverified, rely very heavily on the proposition that counsel could only get these facts from the client and that therefore, by some inference, the client is bound.

Well, that certainly couldn't be true in this case. Counsel could have certainly gotten all the facts that are in this answer practically out of Moody's or Standard Statistics or any place like that.

3662 The second thing is that, as the cases show, it must be shown that counsel was given access to these facts by the client, and the record is absolutely sound on that point. There is no showing of any kind that Certain-teed ever made any facts, with reference to this lawsuit, available to the Cravath firm, or to Winston, Strawn & Shaw, of Chicago, their other counsel.

I think it should be brought out here, since there is such a wholesale delivery of orchids to the Cravath firm, that we also had lawyers in Chicago.

Justice JACKSON. Was that Silas Strawn?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes.

Justice JACKSON. We will give him an orchid, too. (Laughter.)

Mr. ADAMS. I agree with all the kind things that have been said about these eminent lawyers, but it doesn't seem that that helps any.

There is an old equity rule about the certificate of counsel amounting to nothing more or less than a certificate that he had been retained in the case, and in New York practice it is called an affidavit of merit, indicating that the lawyer thought it was a meritorious defense.

But that is a very far cry from saying that the client placed him in possession of specific facts contained in a pleading, and authorized him to plead them in that way.

3663 The last thing I have to say is that Mr. Steffen says that there is no showing that the statements contained in this pleading were ever disavowed. It seems to me they were disavowed in a very practical way. The Certain-teed Products Corporation settled the lawsuit and took a license, and I think it is important that this Court should recall that this is not a case which went to litigation and was tried, but this is a pleading which was put in at an early stage in the case, a case which was later settled, constituting an admission or disavowal, if you want to put it that way, of the position taken in the answer.

Justice STEPHENS. We will take the morning recess at this time.

(Thereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed.)

Justice STEPHENS. Mr. Adams, on the second point—or is this the Government's motion on the second point?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes, your Honor, it is.

Justice STEPHENS. Will you refresh me on it, briefly?

Mr. ADAMS. Exhibit 233 was offered in evidence as a memorandum of Redfield, a lawyer for Certain-teed. It was excluded from evidence.

Justice STEPHENS. And the Government is asking to re-offer it?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes.

3664 Justice STEPHENS. Then we will give the Government the opening in this matter.

Mr. STEFFEN. May it please the Court, this is a reoffer of Government's Exhibit No. 233 which, as you will recall, was a memorandum written by Mr. Redfield who is connected with patent counsel for the Certain-teed Products Corporation, and it was duly identified by Mr. Redfield when it was presented here, and the question was raised at the time as to whether or not the memorandum was privileged, and the grounds upon which your Honor excluded the evidence are stated at page 2890 of the transcript, and they included the ground that it was privileged and that the privilege had never been waived.

I call your attention to page 2 of the Government's brief, where Justice Stephens makes the following statement:

Justice STEPHENS. The Court has examined the offered document, proposed Exhibit No. 233, during the recess, and given consideration to the authorities and the contentions of counsel. The Court is of the view that on the record the document is privileged, and that there was no waiver; that there was a claim of privilege by Mr. Redfield in the Grand Jury proceedings, and that there is no showing before the Court that he was authorized to waive the privilege thereafter; and that identification of a document does not constitute a waiver."

In order to establish waiver it was necessary, of course, for the Government to introduce the telephone conversation between Mr. Redfield, on the one hand, and Mr.

3665 Dowd, who was a representative of Certain-teed Products Corporation, and at the time that that conversation was offered, we asked Mr. Adams whether Mr. Dowd was an officer of the corporation.

We have set out on page 2 of the memorandum the colloquy which resulted, as follows:

"Mr. KNUFF. Mr. Adams, will you admit that Mr. Dowd was an officer of the corporation at that time?

"Mr. ADAMS. He was not.

"Mr. KNUFF. He was not an officer of the corporation?

"Mr. ADAMS. No.

"Mr. KNUFF. What was his position with the corporation?

"The WITNESS. I don't know.

"Mr. KNUFF. I meant that for Mr. Adams.

"Mr. ADAMS. I think that at that time he was comptroller, he was not an officer. That is not an officer. That is not an officer of the corporation, it is merely a title of the man who heads up the accounting department."

And of course when it appeared, as it did then, that Mr. Dowd was not an officer, and apparently therefore not one who would be authorized to waive the attorney-client privilege, we proceeded no further, practically, except to get the evidence in concerning the conversation, for the purposes of making a reoffer later.

After that, we proceeded to find out whether Mr. Dowd was or was not an officer, and we have checked cor-3666 respondence which appears as an appendix to the brief. We also went to the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission's files showed that he was reported as an officer; and of course Moody's shows him to be an officer; and Mr. Adams now admits that he was an officer during the time when this conversation took place, that is in June, 1940.

Now I take it, therefore, that it is an established fact that Mr. Dowd was an officer. He was the vice president and comptroller, and the correspondence which we have had with Mr. Dowd establishes that he was in charge of the matter of supplying documents under the subpoena which the Government had served some weeks before.

There is a series of letters between the Government and Mr. Dowd indicating various discussions concerning the compliance with the subpoena.

Justice STEPHENS. Is that without dispute?

Mr. STEFFEN. I have the record here.

Mr. ADAMS. Yes, there is no question about that, your Honor. I may say, your Honor, that when I made that statement I knew that Mr. Dowd had been originally the comptroller of the company, and I knew that he later had become an officer and director; it was my understanding that he had become an officer and director at the same time, that is, sometime in 1941. I know Mr. Dowd, and I knew about his promotion, and I thought that he had 3667 come up to be an officer at the same time that they made him a director. That is why I made the statement to the Court.

I find now, since I have checked it up, that actually he had become a vice president in March, about three months before this incident took place, that is to say, in March of 1940.

So when I made that statement to the Court I was relying on a recollection which it turns out was wrong.

Justice STEPHENS. Well, is it without dispute that he was the officer in charge of responding to the subpoenas issued by the Government for the production of documents?

Mr. ADAMS. As to that, I am not prepared to say. I am certainly prepared to admit that he wrote the letters to which Mr. Steffen refers.

Justice STEPHENS. I see.

Mr. STEFFEN. Having established that Mr. Dowd was an officer at the time, and in charge of the matter of supplying documents, or apparently in charge of the matter of supplying documents under the subpoena, the next question becomes one of whether or not there was an actual waiver by Mr. Dowd of the attorney-client privilege.

That turns on the conversation that Mr. Redfield and Mr. Kelleher had with Mr. Dowd.

As it appears from the evidence, when Mr. Redfield was called upon to identify or to testify concerning 3668 Government's Exhibit No. 233, he raised the question informally that that was a privileged document. Mr. Kelleher then said, "If that is privileged, let's see whether we may or may not introduce it." And between the two, Mr. Kelleher and Mr. Redfield, they proceeded to call up Certain-teed in New York.

Now I think we must get those facts clear. Mr. Adams, in his memorandum at page 11, says:

"In this case no such proof exists and, in fact, the contrary was shown. Thus Mr. Redfield testified as follows:

"Q. And whom did you ask for when you called the Certain-teed office in New York?

"A. I don't think I asked for anyone. I think the Assistant United States Attorney called. I don't know who he asked for."

Now Mr. Adams states that as being all the evidence that there is in this very brief record to show how that conversation took place, and that is also false.

I will read you from page 2880 of the testimony where the question was asked:

"Q. And did you later contact any official of Certain-teed Products Corporation as to whether or not they would waive that privilege?

"A. That is a little difficult to answer categorically. I spoke to the Assistant Federal Attorney and told him that it was my feeling that there was a privilege 3669 here and that I was in no position to waive it, but that I should assert it and, together (note the word "together") we called Certain-teed in New York."

Now that is a far cry from the short excerpt that Mr. Adams would have this Court rely upon as being all that transpired when they called the office of Certain-teed.

Now, look at page 2882, also, at the bottom of the page. Mr. Adams is questioning the witness:

"Mr. ADAMS. And you had no way of identifying that person as being Mr. Dowd, had you?

"The WITNESS. Not other than the fact that both the United States Attorney and myself called Certain-teed and this man answered, who we both believed was Mr. Dowd and who represented himself as such on the telephone."

Those are statements that are unchallenged in the transcript, and they indicate that both Mr. Redfield and Mr. Kelleher called up Certain-teed; that a man answered, who said he was Dowd; and that then the conversation occurred which constitutes the waiver.

Now if you will look at page 8 of Mr. Adams' brief, he insinuates that there wasn't any waiver. At page 8 he says:

"The statement attributed to Mr. Dowd by the witness Redfield before the Grand Jury was limited to permission to identify the documents. It is most significant that the Government in its memorandum fails to state 3670 this controlling fact to the Court."

Well, let's read about that. From page 2886 and 2887 of the transcript let us find out what the witness said:

"Q. And what did they tell you to do, the New York office of Certain-teed?

"A. I explained what I have just explained to you, and asked what they wanted me to do, and it is my recollection that Mr. Dowd said, "Well, I don't know, we have nothing to hide, we have thrown our records open to the Department of Justice, and so far as I can tell there is no reason that you should not testify."

That goes much beyond the excerpt which Mr. Adams put in his brief, and which he would ask this Court to rely upon as being all that transpired by way of waiver.

The fact is that Mr. Kelleher and Mr. Redfield together called up Certain-teed, got Mr. Dowd on the phone, stated the situation to Mr. Dowd, and Mr. Dowd then made this statement, "Well, I don't know, we have nothing to hide * * * so far as I can tell there is no reason that you should not testify."

Justice JACKSON. What is that page?

Mr. STEFFEN. That is from pages 2886 and 2887.

That, we consider, is a complete waiver. The waiver occurred right then.

Now let's see whether they understood it the way that wording would imply that they did. They then 3671 proceeded to go in to the grand jury, as Mr. Redfield testified, and we have shown you the grand jury minutes. He then was shown Government's Exhibit No. 233 and he identified it. The exhibit was given a grand jury number and it became evidence upon which the grand jury was then entitled to rely in determining whether or not to vote an indictment.

There is no requirement, in the case of a grand jury, for the item to be offered in evidence; there is nobody to receive it; you simply present it to the grand jury, it is duly identified, it is a very serious and solemn proceeding, and when the grand jury is offered evidence, the Government's attorney must use every care to see that the evidence that the grand jury may act upon is evidence which subsequently could be used to sustain the charges made in the indictment.

In this case, they very carefully procured a waiver from the Certain-teed Products Corporation, and they then proceeded to place it before the grand jury; the grand jury could and did apparently rely upon it as evidence upon which it could vote a true bill.

It seems to me that the matter of waiver is completely established in the case. I think your Honor's statement that identification of a document by counsel is not in itself a waiver, is perfectly correct in the situation which we have before us.

3672 Identification before a law court is simply identification of a paper. There is no testimony required and it is not evidence. But when you present it before a grand jury, the matter becomes, then, evidence upon which the grand jury can act.

The cases which Mr. Adams has cited upon telephone conversations do not sustain his position so far as I can ascertain. We have cited a series of cases where it appears that the person calling a business house, who does not know the name of the person who answers, or is not acquainted with him and does not know his voice, but if, in fact, you have called the business house, and if in fact you got, as is apparent in this case, someone who is quite familiar with the matter in question, judging by the answer made, those are circumstantial matters which completely identify or are deemed to identify the speaker as being the man whose name he claims to have—and in this case that would be Mr. Dowd.

There are no cases cited in Mr. Adams' brief which recite anything to the contrary. The closest one, as far as I can make out, is the case of Smithers v. Light, over on page 12 of the brief, which is a Pennsylvania case, and I can take up those facts briefly.

The broker in that case received a telephone call from somebody who said his name was Light, telling the broker to sell certain stock. An hour later that same company called up and said to sell it at a different price, and 3673 the broker thereafter sold the stock.

Now as the transaction stood, at that point they didn't know who Light was.

That is the reverse of this transaction. In this case we were calling up and asking for Certain-teed, and getting a man who said his name was Dowd, who was a representative of Certain-teed, and when the conversation starts that way, the cases recognize that that is circumstantial identification of Dowd, but that when the conversation starts the oher way, the man calling up is not circumstantially identified.

There was a third conversation in this Smithers v. Light case, where a clerk in the afternoon of that day called up Mr. Light, or somebody at that number, and Light got on the phone, presumably. The clerk then wished to give a notification to him that they had sold the stock. The witness thereafter went on the phone and talked to whoever was on the phone, and the question was whether or not he could testify that he had talked with Light.

The Court, in a rather close decision, said that he might not, that Light had not been circumstantially identified because he didn't place the call, that is because the witness didn't place the call, and that somebody else, some clerk, had placed the call, and it was left open as to whether he had properly called Light or somebody else.

3674 In this case the testimony is perfectly clear that Mr. Redfield and Mr. Kelleher together called up Certain-teed, so that there is no question about the matter. I can say that the way that is usually handled is that the attorney, in this case Mr. Redfield, will say to the United States Attorney, Mr. Kelleher, "I think this is privileged", and they will say, "Well, let's call up" and they will go into an office and one or the other will call up. They can't both talk at the same time, and probably Mr. Kelleher would do it because it was probably at Government expense. They will say, "We will get Certain-teed." Then the phone will be turned over right there to Mr. Redfield. The conversation goes on and, as Mr. Redfield said, "We both understood it was Mr. Dowd, and both believed it was Dowd."

So that as far as we can see, on the matter of privilege, which is the matter which we are discussing here, the privilege was completely waived and we would say that it was waived at the time of the conversation. The subsequent actions in placing the evidence before the grand jury are corroboration of that waiver.

Now on the point of whether or not this is the first occasion upon which a waiver could be asserted, I think the facts display to the contrary.

Justice STEPHENS. You mean that this is the first occasion on which the claim of privilege could be asserted?

3675 Mr. STEFFEN. Yes, your Honor,—for the reason that the claim of privilege was clearly and carefully brought to the attention of the officers of Certain-teed at a point of time when that evidence could have been refused. In other words, they had a very clear-cut and well-presented opportunity to say, "We wish to claim our privilege," at that time.

Mr. Redfield knew, certainly, that if it was going to go before the grand jury, that it would become evidence. So it seems to me that they then had their opportunity.

I want to say further, on that score, that it is always open to a person who has documents subpoenaed, to move to quash the subpoena. You have an opportunity, earlier than the subsequent trial, to assert the claim of privilege, and at that time they had a definite opportunity to assert their claim of privilege, and refused to do so. On the contrary, they said, "We waive our privilege", or words to that effect.

Mr. Knuff points out that Mr. Kelleher is in the South Pacific, and of course we are unable to call him.

Mr. ADAMS. If the Court please, it seems to me that one very important thing that I should state at the outset, and which the cases indicate is of importance, is that we assert here, as I have stated earlier, that we are in a position to prove, through Mr. Dowd, we believe, that Mr. Dowd never had any such telephone conversation.

3676 Justice STEPHENS. Will you repeat that, please?

Mr. ADAMS. I say that we regard it of importance here that we assert, as I stated when we originally raised this point, that we can produce Mr. Dowd to testify that he never had any such telephone conversation.

Justice STEPHENS. Do I understand that you are asking now to produce him to testify to that effect?

Mr. ADAMS. No. I mentioned that only because it seems to me that it is important in considering this question.

This is not a question where we are merely trying to prevent this document from going in evidence on a technical rule of law. We have a position here of substance. As to whether or not this Court thinks it is necessary, or will think when we get through with this argument, to call Mr. Dowd on this point, I will defer consideration of that.

But I want to make it clear at the outset here, as I have tried to previously, that as far as we are concerned, we believe that Mr. Redfield was mistaken ——

Justice JACKSON (interposing). Well, do you think that privilege was claimed by Certain-teed?

Mr. ADAMS. I do.

Justice JACKSON. Where?

Mr. ADAMS. I will answer that in this way. Before I answer that, if I may, your Honor, I should like to have an opportunity to see the grand jury minutes again.

3677 (Thereupon, a copy of the grand jury minutes in question were handed to Mr. Adams by Government counsel.)

3678 Justice JACKSON. Mr. Adams, if, in fact, it were Mr. Dowd who spoke over the telephone from New York, would your situation be different?

Mr. ADAMS. I really don't think so, under the circumstances of this case. I think I can bring that out.

Justice JACKSON. Well, it was just an inquiry. I was wondering as to that, if in fact he had talked over the telephone.

Mr. ADAMS. Getting back to that phase of the argument, the Government, it seems to me, as Justice Stephens pointed out when we argued this before, has rather confused these two things: First, we have to see whether or not, on a fair construction of what happened in the Grand Jury, whether what happened in the Grand Jury constitutes a waiver. I don't think there can be any question but that the mere fact that a witness is asked to identify a document does not constitute a waiver. That is all he was asked to do, and that is all that he did. There is no question about that. The cases are perfectly clear that identification of a document does not constitute a waiver. There are any number of them cited in the brief.

Then you come to this question—Well, now, what was he authorized to do? The question of authorization, I say at the outset, has nothing to do with it, and I say for that reason that whether he was an officer or wasn't an officer 3679 has nothing to do with it. The question before us here is what actually happened. Was that document divested of its confidential character by any act of Certain-teed? It seems to me perfectly clear that it was not.

Justice JACKSON. Aren't you taking the wrong way around? Was the claim of privilege ever asserted by Certain-teed, after it was delivered in response to a subpoena that turned it over to the Government?

Mr. ADAMS. The claim of privilege was asserted by Certain-teed at the first time it could assert it, which is here in this court room.

Justice STEPHENS. Couldn't it have asserted it by moving to quash the subpoena, going before a United States District Judge at the time of the Grand Jury proceeding and objecting to having that document put in before the Grand Jury?

Mr. ADAMS. I suppose I can answer that by saying that it could have, but we had no reason to believe that this case was ever going to be tried, for that matter. We could have asserted it, I have no doubt, at some earlier time.

Justice STEPHENS. I don't see the force of that. If the waiver of a privilege or the failure to assert a privilege is conditioned upon the client's pre-vision as to whether, at some time later, it would have been valuable to him to claim the privilege, there would be no way of ever determining the question of privilege. I thought the law 3680 was that in order to claim a privilege, since one must respond to a subpoena unless the subpoena duces tecum is quashed in some manner, he must assert the privilege at the first reasonable opportunity or else be taken to have waived it.

Mr. ADAMS. Well, it seems to me that under the facts in this case, this is the first reasonable opportunity, because you want to consider that what Mr. Dowd—if there was any such conversation—was asked was whether or not he would permit the witness to identify the documents, and he said that that is what he would do.

Mr. Steffen has suggested that we haven't put the whole conversation, which took place in this court room, in the brief. As a matter of fact, we did set the whole thing out. And I say that the conversation before the Grand Jury, to which the Government made no reference, read in the light of the statements in this Court, boils down to this; that the witness was authorized to identify the document, that that is not, and could not be by any stretch of the imagination, a waiver of the privilege; that before the Grand Jury he was told he could identify the document, and that he did so.

Justice JACKSON. Then it was before the Grand Jury, was it?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes. But the client had not authorized him to waive any privilege, the client had simply authorized him ——

3681 Justice JACKSON (interposing). The client didn't claim any privilege, that is the thing I am getting at. When was the claim made, not whether they waived it particularly? You waive it if you don't claim it.

Mr. ADAMS. It seems to me that the answer to that would be this: They call up and say, "Are you willing to waive this privilege?"

He answers by saying, "We are willing to have you identify the document." In other words, we are willing to have you go that far, but no further. Therefore, we waive nothing further.

Mr. STEFFEN. I insist Mr. Adams stay with the record. The witness stated here that he was told he could testify regarding the document, not merely identify it.

Mr. ADAMS. He was asked this ——

Mr. STEFFEN (interposing). I am talking about the testimony before the Court.

Mr. ADAMS. I am talking about it, too. He said that before the Grand Jury he was told he could identify the document.

Now as far as Judge Jackson's question is concerned, the client was asked, "Will you waive the privilege?"

He said, "You can identify the document." In other words, we reserve whatever rights we have.

3682 In this court room it seems his testimony was entirely consistent with that. Testifying 3½ years later, he testified that he called up and asked what they wanted him to do, that is to say, identify the documents. That is as he testified before the Grand Jury. Then he said:

"Mr. Dowd said, 'Well, I don't know, we have nothing to hide, we have thrown our records open to the Department of Justice, and so far as I can tell there is no reason that you should not testify.' "

And then Mr. Knuff said, consistent with the Grand Jury position:

"Q. And did your identify the document?"

And the answer was:

"A. Yes."

In other words, his testimony here is entirely consistent with his testimony before the Grand Jury, that all he was ever authorized to do was to identify the document. To that extent the waiver of the privilege never became operative, there never was any waiver of the privilege. We were asked, "Will you waive?" We said, "You can identify". "Identify," under the cases, is clearly not a waiver. Therefore, we have not waived.

Now that is my position on that point. I don't know whether I have made it clear.

Justice JACKSON. You have

3683 Mr. ADAMS. Now on this question of the telephone call, I want to repeat that we have taken the position that there never was any such telephone call as far as Mr. Dowd was concerned.

Now we get to ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). Before you go to that question, clear up one other point. It seems to me that it is something more than a matter of words, whether we talk in terms of waiver or claim. Of course, a privilege once acquired exists until it is waived.

But one of the rules is, as I understand it, that when you are called upon to produce a document, you do waive the privilege unless you claim it at the first reasonable opportunity. When was the privilege claimed here?

You say the first opportunity to claim privilege was before this Court. That seems a strange position, Mr. Adams.

Certainly there must be some way in which a person who is served with a subpoena duces tecum in a Grand Jury proceeding can protect himself against having a confidential document disclosed before awaiting some theoretical trial which may follow years after a Grand Jury proceeding. Why can't the person who is the subject of a subpoena go before the United States District Judge who issued the subpoena and claim that this document is privileged and therefore he is not obliged to produce it?

3684 Mr. ADAMS. It seems to me that the complete answer to Your Honor on that phase of it is that Mr. Redfield did claim the privilege.

Justice STEPHENS. That doesn't seem to me to be an answer to my question, because my question is: How do you justify your position that this Court is the first time they ever had a chance to claim privilege?

Mr. ADAMS. Maybe I am wrong about that, and I ought to say that we have ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). Whether they did claim it down there is another question, but I understand your contention is that he couldn't waive it down there under any circumstances because this Court is the first chance he had a right to claim it.

Mr. ADAMS. Maybe I should state that this way,—that we are continuing to claim the privilege. Mr. Redfield claimed it, there is no question about that. Mr. Redfield was not authorized to waive it, and he didn't waive it. Nothing he said in the Grand Jury waived it. He merely identified the document, which the Government agrees does not constitute a waiver.

Justice STEPHENS. Thank you, I see your point.

Now proceed to the next topic, about the telephone conversation.

Mr. ADAMS. The telephone conversation—we are 3685 discussing here the question of the so-called business house rule. That rule has developed, as I understand it, as the modern business methods have included a wider use of the telephone. But the fundamental rule still remains which was introduced by the courts at the time the telephone began to be used for business, and that is that you have to have identification of the voice.

Now the question here, when you apply the business telephone rule, is this: If you call up a business house and someone answers the 'phone, that is a common occurrence, and it is said to be reasonable to suppose that you got the man that you wanted to talk to.

But that is an extension of the ordinary rule requiring identification of the voice, and therefore the courts have very carefully protected that by saying: It is necessary that when you call up, when you want to prove a business telephone call, you show clearly and distinctly and unequivocally that the person who says he made the call actually made that call himself.

Now the cases have said, for example, that where a man in his office says to his stenographer, "Get me Jones, of the Smith Company, on the telephone", in the absence of the telephone records or proof of the 'phone operator, you can not introduce that telephone call, because there is an intervening agency there which is necessary to complete the chain of proof.

3686 Now in this case, there is no such evidence. Mr. Steffen points out that on a couple of occasions the witness said that "together we called up Certain-teed", but the only evidence in the case—and upon this I believe I can not be challenged—as to who actually made the telephone call, is the evidence which I quoted in my brief, as follows:

"Q. And whom did you ask for when you called the Certain-teed office in New York?

"A. I don't think I asked for anyone. I think the Assistant United States Attorney called. I don't know who he asked for."

Now there is no evidence, even, that it was Mr. Kelleher, in this record. It might have been any number of the men across the street there who were present. But it seems to me, in view of the fact that we so vigorously assert that Mr. Dowd did not talk on the telephone, that they have got to ——

Justice JACKSON (interposing). Of course, that is not evidence. Are you going to bring Mr. Dowd down here, if necessary, to testify?

Mr. ADAMS. Yes.

Justice JACKSON. Then it will be a question ——

Mr. ADAMS (interposing). Then it would be a question of fact. I don't think we need to go that far, Judge, because I said that on the state of this record, it is 3687 perfectly clear that while he said they made the telephone call together, when you get down to the vital point of voice identification, which is what we are talking about here, someone other than the witness picked up the telephone and made a call to another point, the witness didn't do that. Someone else, an Assistant United States Attorney, did that. Now the witness may have been in the room or he may not have been in the room.——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). I don't understand that the Government is relying upon voice identification. There isn't any claim, is there, that either Mr. Kelleher or Mr. Redfield knew Mr. Dowd's voice? The contention is that they asked for Certain-teed and got a man who said he was Dowd, and it is now conceded that Dowd was an officer, and therefore there is circumstantial proof that they were talking with someone representing the company with authority to act.

That is your position, isn't it, Mr. Steffen?

Mr. STEFFEN. Yes, and the man who spoke was obviously familiar with the transaction.

Mr. ADAMS. When I speak of voice identification, Your Honor, I am speaking of this whole rule, and this call to a business house is merely an extension or a relaxation of the voice identification rule. It is in that sense that I 3688 referred to voice identification.

But the rule requires that in order to come within what you might call this exception to technical voice identification, you must show that the party wanting to introduce the conversation and testify to it actually himself made the call to the business house, and you can't have proof that someone else did, as in this case. The proof is clear that no matter whether he said, at two or three places, "Together we made the call", the fact is, when you get down to actually showing who made the call, it was not made by Mr. Redfield but was made, according to his testimony: "I think the Assistant United States Attorney called. I don't know who he asked for."

Justice STEPHENS. Now the voice identification rule, as I understand it, isn't any different from an eye identification rule. A person seeking to rely upon a conversation with an alleged agent of a mercantile institution, of course, must show that he was talking with some authorized person. He might show that by saying that he had a conversation with him in which he saw him and recognized his features. He might show it by saying that he talked to him and recognized his voice, whether over the telephone or otherwise. Now the present rule is simply another form of identification, isn't it? It proceeds upon the theory that if a telephone call is put in to a mercantile firm, and a voice responds, a person responds stating that he 3689 is with that firm, and giving a name, and apparently being familiar with the subject matter of the conversation, that is taken as evidence that one is talking to some representative of that firm. What difference does it make—I don't see the point of your fine distinction—what difference does it make whether the call is put in by A or by A's stenographer or by A's cooperator, as it is asserted here?

Mr. ADAMS. I don't regard it in any sense as a fine distinction, Judge.

Justice STEPHENS. That is what I am trying to understand. What is the distinction?

Mr. ADAMS. It seems to me that it is important because of the widespread opportunities for fraud if you relax this rule—not that I am suggesting any fraud here—but because of the widespread opportunity at least for misunderstanding, as undoubtedly occurred here.

Justice JACKSON. You might extend that to the telephone exchange girl, mightn't you? She might ring the wrong number.

Mr. ADAMS. The cases are perfectly clear on that, Your Honor, that in order ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). Suppose I pick up a telephone and call up a mercantile institution, and that institution responds and some person purporting to represent it talks to me. That is what, as I understand it, Wigmore talks of under this new rule of telephonic circumstantial identification. Suppose I tell my secretary to do that in my presence, is it any less worthwhile, circumstantially?

3690

Mr. ADAMS. It seems to be perfectly clear—and I think the cases are perfectly sound in holding ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). What is the distinction?

Mr. ADAMS. The distinction is this, that when you call up on the telephone yourself, you put the number in, or dial it, and go through that operation of getting that company. When you tell someone else to do it, we have no proof, and you don't know, whether that other person actually did it.

Now let me read on that point ——

Justice STEPHENS (interposing). Suppose the other person did it in one's presence? That is the contention here, that Mr. Kelleher and Mr. Redfield were acting together.

Mr. ADAMS. It could very easily be done in someone's presence and still a misunderstanding arise.

Just let me speculate a minute there, Your Honor. Suppose, as may well have happened in this case, Mr. Kelleher gets on the phone and says to his operator, "Get me Certain-teed Produets Corporation in New York." The call comes back, "I have Certain-teed Products Corporation on the phone."

3691 "Who is this?"

"This is an Assistant United States Attorney in Washington. We want to talk to somebody about waiving a privilege."

They explain in detail what they want.

The operator says, "Well, Mr. Dowd will be in charge of that." They say, "Wait a minute."

Dowd then turns out to be busy, or something else, and some entirely different person in the Certain-teed organization gets on the phone.

Kelleher, or whoever it might be, may think he is talking to Dowd, and he isn't talking to any such person.

Mr. STEFFEN. He says he is Dowd.

Mr. ADAMS. It may be of fundamental importance that we have evidence in this case by the person who actually did the telephoning and who got Dowd on the wire, to state that that is who it was.

Justice STEPHENS. Do you want to call Mr. Dowd down here to testify that he did not have that conversation?

Mr. ADAMS. If Your Honors think it is necessary.

Justice STEPHENS. It isn't for us to say whether it is necessary. You must make your own foundation for your motion, or for resisting the Government's motion, rather.

Mr. ADAMS. Well, it seems to me, according to the tenor of Your Honor's questions, that I am required to answer that I want to call Mr. Dowd.

3692 Justice STEPHENS. If you draw any conclusive inferences from what you call the tenor of our questions, you make quite a serious mistake. The only reason we ask questions is to give counsel the opportunity to resolve questions that come up in our mind. I don't know how in the world we are going to decide these questions. I can't forecast and speculate as to whether it will be necessary to call Mr. Dowd or not, and you are certainly not entitled to draw any inferences from my comments as to what my state of mind is on that particular point.

Mr. ADAMS. I didn't mean to suggest that, of course. What I meant to make as a point there was that the evidence was once excluded, and it was not necessary at that point to call Mr. Dowd. Now it may have been excluded, as the Government believes, because of my error in stating to the Court what Mr. Dowd's position was. That may be true.

Now my position here is that the telephone call is not admissible, do you see? If the Court believes that on the state of the record the telephone call is admissible, that is what I meant to get at when I was asking my question.

Justice STEPHENS. Well, we can't rule on the thing piecemeal very well, Mr. Adams. I don't see how we can do that. We have to read these briefs and read these cases, and under your theory, then we have got to come back to the court room and announce how far we agree and how 3693 far we disagree on the ruling. It would seem to us better to get this whole matter before us at once. If you feel that it is an essential element in your case to prove that this conversation never occurred, and that Mr. Redfield and Mr. Kelleher were entirely mistaken, that they didn't have any such conversation, I suppose that is a preliminary question of fact which may bear upon the ultimate decision on this question.

Mr. ADAMS. The only reason I raised it here, Your Honor, was because, if the telephone call is admissible—and I don't want to suggest that Your Honors should rule at any time on that point except in your discretion—if it is admissible, obviously I think I should call Mr. Dowd to testify with respect to that telephone conversation.

Justice GARRETT. Mr. Adams, may I ask you—I don't have the record containing Mr. Redfield's testimony before me, and my recollection is a bit hazy; of course, it has been refreshed by the reading here this morning—but isn't it a fact that Mr. Redfield did testify that he talked, himself, with someone there who represented himself to be Dowd?

Mr. ADAMS. There is no question about that.

Justice GARRETT. And so the mere fact that Mr. Kelleher might have been the one who made the call, if Mr. Redfield actually talked with the man and if he was the proper person with whom to talk, what difference does it 3694 make who went through the mechanics of putting in the call for the man?

Mr. ADAMS. Answering your question, the first question, there is no question about it that Mr. Redfield testified that he did talk with someone who said he was Dowd. There is no question about that.

Answering the other portion of your question, it seems to me that it is still important that the fundamental requirement be complied with, that the person who wants to put in the conversation should testify that he made the telephone call.

Justice STEPHENS. I didn't mean to suggest by my statement, Mr. Adams, that we wish to put you to unnecessary trouble and expense in these busy days and days of difficult transportation. If we can reach a conclusion with respect to whether the telephone conversation is or is not admissible, perhaps we can find a way of announcing that so, if it is not necessary for you to call Mr. Dowd, you will not have to go to that trouble. Perhaps that can be arranged.

My point is that I don't want you, representing your client, to omit to put anything in here that you think may be necessary to your client's protection because of any speculative ideas you have as to how the Court is going to rule on the admissibility of a telephone conversation.

Mr. ADAMS. That is a responsibility that counsel has to assume, and I certainly do assume it, Your 3695 Honor. I don't want to suggest that I am trying to evade that. As far as Mr. Dowd is concerned, I assume that he is now in Chicago ——

Justice STEPHENS. I will say very frankly to you that I was much influenced, in the decision which I, as far as I was personally concerned, reached on this point when it came up before, by the statement of yours, undenied by the opposite party, that Mr. Dowd was not an officer of the company and had no authority, in consequence, to make a waiver. But that has entirely a new light now. There was no contest on that point before, and we took your statement for it. The thing that is before us now is in an entirely different light.

Mr. ADAMS. I am very sorry that that error crept in.

Justice STEPHENS. I am not criticizing you at all. We all make those mistakes in the course of busy practice, I realize that.

But that was, it is only fair to say to you, one of the important grounds of my decision, and I think that is true with my colleagues.

Mr. ADAMS. I quite agree. It was important to me when I based my argument on it.

I don't know exactly how I should leave this with Your Honors: I assume that you will defer taking any steps today with respect to this point?

3696 Justice STEPHENS. We won't make any ruling today, because we want to read these briefs and these cases much more carefully than we have been able to—two of them this morning are entirely new to us—and we want to consider it and have a conference on it. There is no other testimony hanging upon these rulings, so we would prefer not to do it in a rush, because it is important to both sides that we rule upon these matters soundly. We don't have very much time during the busy days of taking testimony to go into extensive case reading. There is so much of the record reading to do in the evening.

We will not put you at a disadvantage, however. If we reach a conclusion, Mr. Adams, that this telephone conversation is admissible, knowing that you do want to call Mr. Dowd in such event, we will not foreclose you an opportunity of doing that before a final ruling.

Mr. ADAMS. I appreciate that very much, and that was all that I was referring to earlier.

Justice STEPHENS. Thank you.

Mr. Steffen?

Mr. STEFFEN. I have another matter, if I may present it very briefly.

Justice STEPHENS. Do you want to reply to Mr. Adams?

Mr. STEFFEN. I don't think a reply is necessary, Your Honor, other than to say that if it becomes 3697 important to have Mr. Dowd, we would suggest that he be put on as part of the defendants' case, at that time, rather than at this time.

Mr. ADAMS. Of course, in answer to that, I have no understanding that there will ever be a defendants' case.

Justice STEPHENS. Isn't that a preliminary question of fact bearing upon the Court's ruling on the admissibility of evidence which is being put on now?

Mr. STEFFEN. It could be done either way. We feel we have made a prima facie showing. If Your Honors agree with that, it would still be open to them, either now or at some later point, to put Mr. Dowd on. I think it would be more convenient, from the Government's standpoint, to go ahead with our regular case and not go into a collateral matter than can be put on properly on rebuttal.

Mr. ADAMS. I would like to make my position clear. I am sure the Court, on this one point of evidence, is not intending to put me in any position where I would be waiving any motion to dismiss at the end of the Government's case.

Justice STEPHENS. No.

Justice JACKSON. Of course not. It will be handled in the usual way. When the Government is finished, then if the motion is denied you will call your witnesses.

Justice STEPHENS. But this is a different situation. Here we have evidence offered, and whether 3698 or not it is admissible depends upon a preliminary question of fact. It seems to us that ought to be determined, at least it seems to me that that ought to be determined now, if it depends upon a question of fact. It is like offering a confession in evidence. You ought to hear voir dire testimony as to whether or not the confession was voluntary, and hear both sides of that testimony on the voir dire.

I should think, if we have to get into the question as to whether or not this conversation occurred, that we ought to hear from Mr. Dowd now, if he is going to testify, and not later.

Mr. STEFFEN. My other matter will take about four or five minutes, and I think I should call it to Your Honors' attention.

Justice STEPHENS. Just a moment, please.

Mr. BROMLEY. I wanted to be heard on this matter for just a moment, if I might, if Mr. Steffen does not wish to reply.

Justice STEPHENS. Which matter?

Mr. BROMLEY. Exhibit 233.

Justice STEPHENS. You may.

Mr. BROMLEY. Let me say first, although I do not care to inject myself into the argument, it seems to me I might be helpful if I called to the Court's attention the questions which some of you have asked with regard to 3699 waiving the privilege.

I think Mr. Adams' position is unsound where he says that this is the first time Certain-teed could assert the privilege. I think there have been at least three occasions on which that privilege could have been asserted. First, he could have moved to quash the subpoena on the ground that the documents called for were privileged. Second, he could have asserted it before the Grand Jury. And third, he can assert it now.

But does the fact that he failed to move to quash waive the privilege? It seems to me clearly it does not. Suppose the Government served USG today with a subpoena duces tecum calling for the production here of documents which were privileged. Would the fact that we did not immediately rush into court with a motion to quash deprive us of our right to assert the privilege when the witness took the stand with the documents in hand? It seems to me the answer is clearly no. We could claim, the company could claim that privilege when the witness took the stand, because all that had happened in response to the subpoena duces tecum was that a representative of the company brought the documents to court. I think that witness on the stand would have to identify the documents and could make no claim of privilege up to that time. The claim would properly be assertable when it was sought by 3700 the Government to introduce those papers in evidence; and the fact that, the claim being made at that time, the Government contended we hadn't prior thereto moved to quash the subpoena, would never by any court be construed as a waiver of the assertion of the privilege on the stand.

Now it seems to me here that Certain-teed, not having moved to quash the subpoena, the Grand Jury subpoena, didn't waive anything. Its representative still had the right to claim the privilege before the Grand Jury. That, Mr. Redfield did. He claimed it. That is what caused the telephone conversation. As a result of the telephone conversation, he went in before the Grand Jury, still not waiving his privilege, merely identifying the document, so that the privilege was not waived then. Therefore, it follows it can be now asserted by Certain-teed.

Mr. ADAMS. I thought that I had, in answer to Judge Stephens' question, said that I didn't think there was any waiver by Redfield before the Grand Jury.

Mr. BROMLEY. You did, yes.

Mr. ADAMS. Maybe I didn't make that clear.

Justice STEPHENS. Well, what I understood you to say was that there was never an opportunity to claim privilege until you got to this Court.

Mr. ADAMS. I think I did say that originally, and I 3701 later changed my position.

Justice STEPHENS. Yes, that is right. That is what caused me to ask these questions.

Mr. ADAMS. I thought I made my position consistent with what Mr. Bromley is now saying, although I am grateful to him for raising it again.

Mr. BROMLEY. Now I go to another point.

In paragraph 1 of the Government's memorandum upon the admissibility of Government's Exhibit 233 for Identification, the third sentence of the first paragraph says:

"No question was raised as to its relevance or materiality."

If that be so, it was only because we had no opportunity to raise it, since all of the argument took the form of an objection on the ground of privilege. I desire to say now that it is our position that this document is immaterial and irrelevant, and I should think now probably was the proper time for us to note that objection. It hasn't anything to do with any charge in the complaint, and clearly is not in furtherance of any conspiracy charged in the complaint, and I think it is clearly immaterial.

If both objections, however, be overruled by the Court and the document be received in evidence, then the defendants certainly desire that the Government be ordered to recall Mr. Redfield so that we can cross-examine him upon the contents of the memorandum, an oppor-3702 tunity to do which has not yet been accorded us.

So I would like the record to show, if I may, please, that we now object to the reception of this document on the ground that it is immaterial and irrelevant because not in furtherance of any conspiracy charged in the complaint; and, secondly, that if it be received, Mr. Redfield should be produced in order to be cross-examined by the defendants upon the document.

Justice STEPHENS. What do you say, Mr. Bromley, to the apparent contention of the Government that although Mr. Redfield did claim the privilege, he was later told by Mr. Dowd—if we take the telephone conversation as proved and as legally dependable—that they had nothing to conceal, that they had turned their documents over to the Government, and that he could go ahead and testify?

Mr. BROMLEY. I listened carefully to the reading of that testimony. I thought that testimony was qualified by his specific testimony in which he said: "You may identify the document." I thought the words "go ahead and testify, we haven't anything to conceal", merely meant that he was at liberty to go in before the Grand Jury and testify to anything they asked him, but with respect to this privileged document he must stop with its identification.

Mr. STEFFEN. If there is any doubt on that, Your Honor, the witness, Mr. Redfield, said:

3703 "I explained what I have just explained to you"—that is, that there was a claim of privilege concerning this particular exhibit, and then Mr. Dowd replied, as it appears in the transcript, "* * * we have nothing to hide, we have thrown our records open to the Department of Justice," and you are permitted to go ahead and testify.

Before the Grand Jury, as Mr. Adams also pointed out, he also said that he was authorized to identify, and the two things are not dissimilar and not in conflict. He was authorized, with regard to this particular document—this was the occasion of the telephone call—to go ahead and present it before the Grand Jury and identify it and testify concerning it, if necessary. It so happened that we asked him no questions. The document spoke for itself and it was duly identified and became a Grand Jury exhibit.

Mr. ADAMS. I think I should make one statement there. We think that the conversation sums up to being an authorization only to identify.

I would like to add one further thought, that if it is believed that there is any continuing authorization to Mr. Redfield, that that does not exist, and if we have power to revoke, if it was ever given, we do revoke it.

Justice STEPHENS. What is this other matter you wish to present, Mr. Steffen?

3704 Mr. STEFFEN. It is a matter with regard to witnesses, and I perhaps should present it just now. It will take just a moment.

Justice STEPHENS. If it will take only a moment.

Mr. STEFFEN. After Your Honor's statement of the recess, we looked over the different witnesses we were going to call, and we have not called either Mr. Gloyd or Mr. Chism from the Texas Company. You will recall that Mr. Gloyd was supposed to be here in December of last year, then he was excused until January; and in January Mr. Johnston, I believe, stated that he was unable to travel. The situation now is that he has not testified.

Our suggestion is this: In view of Mr. Gloyd's health and his advanced age—I think he is 79—that we co-operate with Mr. Johnston and take Mr. Gloyd's deposition. We suggest March 7 as the date; and while we are down there taking the deposition of Mr. Gloyd, we might also take Mr. Chism's deposition. If that is agreeable to all parties, we will give the necessary notices and that can be taken during the Court's recess.

3705 Mr. JOHNSTON. Now if the Court please, as to Mr. Chism, he is awaiting the call of the Government. He has been under subpoena, but is about the only one left there to run that business, and I asked that we be given at least a week's notice when they wanted him. If they would rather take his deposition in Oklahoma, and not have him come here, that would be entirely satisfactory.

As to Mr. Gloyd, the story is quite different. He is in bad health, and getting worse instead of better. The Government knows this ——

Justice JACKSON (interposing). What is wrong with him, Mr. Johnston?

Mr. JOHNSTON. He has a bad heart condition and arteriosclerosis of the brain. His doctors refuse him the privilege of going anywhere or doing anything. The FBI, at Government counsel's suggestion I presume, have been making an investigation, and have made a report on him. FBI representatives recently talked to his doctors, and the doctors tell me that it would be extremely hazardous to put him on the witness stand either for a deposition, or to bring him here, that they wouldn't take the responsibility for the results.

He has had two or three attacks, one very serious one, and his private physician told me that he might drop over dead on the witness stand. Now under these circumstances, if necessary we will make a showing—maybe before this case nds he might show an improved condition, but 3706 his doctors say no, that his condition will gradually get worse instead of better.

Now in that connection, I stated to counsel a few days ago that as to all of the documents they may want to identify if they had Mr. Gloyd on the witness stand, if they would designate them I would go over them with counsel, and I thought we would have no trouble about the identification of any documents that he could identify if he were on the stand.

For the Court's information in that connection, our documents and records were not subpoenaed. The Government requested that we furnish them, and thus avoid a subpoena, which we did.

Then the Government made photostatic copies of all of those records, and returned the originals to us, or the copies, whichever the case may have been.

So that the Government now has a complete file of such documents and records and correspondence as we had through the years.

Therefore, my suggestion to counsel is that we might sit down and go through all of these documents and see which ones they want to use that Mr. Gloyd could identify if he were on the stand.

I think perhaps that is the best way to reach this thing, because I say to the Court, seriously, that I am not going to take the responsibility of suggesting that Mr. Gloyd, in his present state of health, take the witness stand.

3707 Mr. STEFFEN. Mr. Johnston has referred to an FBI report, and we have asked for information concerning Mr. Gloyd's health.

As we get it, he spends from two to three or more hours a day in his office, daily, and from the standpoint of a layman he looks to be in very good health.

He has, I think, two or three doctors. One, Dr. Langston, advised that he believed Gloyd was physically able to make a trip to Washington, but felt that the emotional upset of a trial would be worse than the trip. However, Dr. Langston saw no objection to taking a deposition if Gloyd would not be subjected to grueling examinations. Both doctors, that is, I believe, Dr. Langston and Dr. Fishman, believed that Gloyd would make an unsatisfactory witness due to his failing memory in the past two years.

Our thought on the matter of taking depositions was that we have some matters in addition to simply identifying documents, that we would like to have Mr. Gloyd's testimony on, if he still remembers such matters, and we feel that we should have an opportunity to develop that. Our purpose would be to conform as nearly as possible to Mr. Gloyd's requirements, maybe interrogating him one or two hours a day. In fact the entire examination will be short.

On the other point, of making a stipulation, we have had very poor success in getting any stipulations on the facts in this case, at all, and while I am sure Mr.

3708 Johnston would be glad to co-operate, our experience is that the result finally turns out to be that we don't agree, and that we have wasted a lot of time.

It occurred to us, purely as a matter of cooperation, that if we could go down and take Mr. Gloyd's deposition, conforming it to his health requirements, that we could also take Mr. Chism's deposition at the same time, and we would do that of course recognizing that we are perhaps losing the advantage of having the Court see Mr. Chism and determining whether his testimony is good or bad. But we had thought that we would do that.

Justice STEPHENS. Well, there is nothing before the Court that the Court can rule upon. The Court will say that if there is a showing made by Mr. Johnston, through dependable physicians, that it would injure the health or threaten the life of Mr. Gloyd, the Court would hesitate very much to order a deposition taken. I assume the Government would not want to take it under those circumstances?

Mr. STEFFEN. That is correct, your Honor.

Justice STEPHENS. If there is a dispute between doctors on the subject, then the Court will have to make the usual determination of fact. The Court urges counsel on both sides to work this matter out by cooperation rather than by Court order, if that is possible of accomplishment. That is all we can do at the present time. If you cannot 3709 come to an agreement during the next day or so, upon this matter, or before we adjourn for the recess the latter part of this month, then you will have to make your motion, I suppose, for the taking of depositions, and serve the same, and Mr. Johnston will have to take such steps as he sees fit to proceed to protect himself.

Mr. STEFFEN. We will give him due notice as to the time, so there will be no question as to the dates.

Justice STEPHENS. Have you a witness for this afternoon?

Mr. STEFFEN. Oh, yes.

Justice STEPHENS. We will then recess until two o'clock.

(Thereupon, at 12:30 o'clock p.m., a recess was taken until 2:00 o'clock p.m. of the same day.)

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

OCTOBER TERM, 1947

No. 15

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, APPELLANT, vs.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY, NATIONAL GYPSUM COMPANY, CERTAIN-TEED PRODUCTS CORPORATION, ET AL.

APPEAL FROM THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

FILED NOVEMBER 26, 1946.

VOLUME 3

Pages 2451-3700

AFTERNOON SESSION

3710 (The trial was resumed at 2:00 o'clock p. m., pursuant to recess.)

Justice Stephens: Proceed, gentlemen.

Mr. Knuff: George N. Lenci!

Thereupon, GEORGE N. LENCI called as a witness herein by the United States, having been first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Mr. Knuff: May it please the Court, do Your Honors have before you the exhibits that Mr. Lenci will identify? The first one is a letter of the Universal Gypsum & Lime Co., dated May 9, 1927.

Justice Stephens: Yes, we have them.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Your name, sir, is George N. Lenci, and you spell your last name L-e-n-c-i; is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Where do you live, Mr. Lenci? A. In Summit, New Jersey.

Q. My understanding is that you are Vice President of the Ebsary Gypsum Company; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you have been connected with the Ebsary 3711 Gypsum Company for how many years? A. Since 1911.

Mr. Knuff: If Your Honors please, we are now calling Mr. Lenci as if on cross-examination, under Rule 43(b).

Justice Stephens: Very well.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. When was the Ebsary Gypsum Company organized? A. 1911.

Q. In what state? A. New York State.

Q. And who are the officers of the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. Mr. F. G. Ebsary is President; I am Vice President; we have two other Vice Presidents, C. M. Winslow, who is Vice President in charge of Operations, and Frederick Hermansen, who is in charge of Transportation and warehousing.

Q. Mr. C. E. Hough is connected with the company, is he not? A. He is Treasurer.

Q. Who is the Secretary? A. The Secretary is Frank W. Allen.

Q. The Ebsary Gypsum Company manufactures and sells gypsum products consisting of plaster, both neat and sanded, is that correct? A. That is correct.

3712 Q. And gypsum board? A. Yes.

Q. And lath? A. Yes.

Q. Perforated lath? A. Yes.

Q. Metallized lath? A. Yes.

Q. Gypsum block? A. Yes.

Q. What other gypsum products? A. I think you have covered them all.

Q. The Ebsary Gypsum Company has a mine and a board plant at Wheatland, New York, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And Wheatland is on the B & O Railroad, formerly the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. You also have a sanding plant at Newark, New Jersey, is that correct, a mixing plant, rather? A. Yes, a mixing plant.

Q. The mixing plant that you have in Newark, New Jersey, and the plant at Wheatland, New York, are they the only two plants that the Ebsary Gypsum Company has? A. They are, yes.

3713 Q. Into what states do you ship your products, Mr. Lenci? A. Well, we ship into all of the Northeastern part of the United States.

Q. The so-called New England States? A. Well, including the New England States and down as far South as the Carolinas, and West to Ohio, Indiana and occasionally into Illinois. Generally speaking, it is in just the Eastern part of the country.

Q. When did Ebsary begin the manufacture of board? A. In 1928.

Q. And at that time, Ebsary manufactured what is known as an open-edge board, is that correct? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: What is our next exhibit number?

Mrs. Gillette: No. 401.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit No. 401, the same being a letter dated May 9, 1927, addressed to Ebsary Gypsum Company and signed Universal Gypsum & Lime Company, W. G. Stromquist, Eastern Sales Manager. That letter was received by the Ebsary Gypsum Company, was it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now at the time you received—

3714 Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Let the Court read it, please.

Mr. Knuff: I beg your pardon.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 401 for Identification.)

Justice Stephens: Proceed.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. At the time you received this letter, you were not manufacturing any kind of board, is that correct, either open or closed-edge board? A. That is right, yes.

Q. You say you did start to manufacture the open-edge board in 1928? A. Yes.

Q. You did purchase open-edge board from Universal Gypsum & Lime Company, did you not? A. Open-edge board?

Q. Open-edge board. A. I don't think this was an open-edge board.

Q. You purchased closed-edge board from them? A. I believe so, yes.

Q. And the board that is referred to in the letter of May 9 is a closed-edge board? A. I believe it is.

3715 Q. You will notice that in the second paragraph of this letter, it states:

"It is understood—"

Mr. Bromley: Just a moment. I object to any examination on the letter prior to the time it is received in evidence, if it is received.

Mr. Knuff: We now offer in evidence, if Your Honors please, Government's Exhibit No. 401.

Mr. Bromley: I object to it on the ground of no proper foundation, and therefore incompetent; and also immaterial because it has no relevancy to any charge in the complaint, for the following reasons: First, it is dated prior to the time that any conspiracy is charged in the pleadings; secondly, there is no charge that Ebsary is a manufacturing distributor; and, of course, at this time Ebsary was not a licensee, although Universal was. So I don't see what relevancy it has to any charge in the complaint.

Justice Stephens: What have you to say, Mr. Knuff, first as to identification?

Mr. Knuff: That it was received by Ebsary Gypsum Company, as Mr. Lenci has testified.

Justice Stephens: Well, the statement that a piece of paper has been received doesn't necessarily identify it. He hasn't testified who he received it from, or whether it was sent by this company to his knowledge, or as to the 3716 signature of Stromquist.

Mr. Knuff: I didn't hear the last.

Justice Stephens: He has only stated that he received this piece of paper, as I understand his testimony. I didn't understand that you asked him to identify the signature or to state who he received it from.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Stromquist was at one time employed by your company, was he not? A. He was, for a short time.

Q. When? A. In 1930.

Q. That is after the date of this letter? A. Yes.

Q. In what capacity was he employed? A. Sales Manager.

Q. And for how long was he so employed? A. I think about 6 or 8 months.

Q. And you believe that this is the signature of W. G. Stromquist, do you not?

Mr. Bromley: I object to what he believes as incompetent.

Justice Stephens: Objection sustained.

Are you familiar with Mr. Stromquist's signature, Mr. Lenci?

3717 The Witness: Your Honor, I haven't seen Mr. Stromquist's signature in probably 12 or 14 years.

Justice Stephens: The signature can't be proved by belief, Mr. Knuff. You can ask this witness whether or not he has seen signatures of Mr. Stromquist, is familiar with his writing, and ask him whether or not he is able to testify whether this is his signature. That is the orthodox way, if there is objection on the ground of identification.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You have testified that Mr. Stromquist was employed by the Ebsary Gypsum Company, have you not? A. Yes.

Q. And you are familiar with his signature, are you not? A. I was at that time.

Q. And this letter, the letter that has been marked as Government's Exhibit 401, came from the files of the Ebsary Gypsum Company, did it not? A. It did.

Q. And you furnished it to us under subpoena? A. Yes.

Q. And it came into the Ebsary Gypsum Company in the usual course of business, did it not? A. I believe it did.

Q. And you acted upon the contents of this letter, 3718 did you not? A. I don't quite understand.

Q. Did you buy board from the Universal Gypsum & Lime Company as suggested in this letter?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as calling for a conclusion —"as suggested in this letter"—and therefore as incompetent.

Justice Stephens: Objection sustained.

Mr. Knuff: If Your Honor please—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) I don't quite see why, Mr. Knuff, the Government doesn't go at this thing in the orthodox way. Why do we need to take so much time on all these debates between counsel on the matter of identifying signatures? Can't you call Stromquist?

Mr. Knuff: I don't know where he is.

Justice Stephens: Can't you call somebody who knows his signature?

Mr. Knuff: We were under the impression that Mr. Lenci knew his signature, because he worked for the Ebsary Company for 6 or 8 months. Here we have a letter that came out of his files.

Justice Stephens: Haven't you had an opportunity to examine this witness, before you put him on, as to whether he could identify this signature?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, and Mr. Lenci told me last night
3719 that it was his signature.

At least, Mr. Lenci, that is the way I understood you, that you felt this was his signature.

The Witness: May I repeat what I said?

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Certainly. A. I said, "I believe it is his signature," but I would not say for sure that it was, because I was not absolutely certain. That I would have to say anyway.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Varian, is there any dispute about this?

Mr. Varian: I had never known anything about Mr. Stromquist but it was a letter that was in the files of the Ebsary Gypsum Company.

Justice Stephens: It seems too bad to take up so much time, in this long and complicated case, in debating about things that ought to be stipulated to, if they can be. There probably is no doubt about the authenticity of this letter, and yet if objection is made the Court is bound to apply the rules of evidence.

This witness testifies to nothing but a belief or an opinion as to whose signature this is.

Mr. Knuff: If Your Honor pleases, may I go further?

Justice Stephens: Yes.

By Mr. Knuff:

3720 Q. Did you buy board from the Universal Gypsum & Lime Company, sometime after May 9, 1927? A. My recollection is that we bought a small quantity of board from the Universal Gypsum & Lime Company shortly prior to the time we went into production ourselves.

Q. And you went into production when? A. In 1928.

Q. In what part of 1928? A. I don't recall, but I think it was either the spring or very early summer.

Q. Is there any doubt in your mind that this is Mr. Stromquist's letter and Mr. Stromquist's signature, Mr. Lenci?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as repetitious.

Justice Stephens: Let me hear the question.

(The question was read by the reporter.)

Justice Stephens: He has just said that there is.

Mr. Knuff: He said he believed that it was Mr. Stromquist's signature.

Justice Stephens: Let me examine the witness a minute. Perhaps it will save a little time, perhaps not.

How long was Stromquist with you?

The Witness: I think about 6 or 8 months, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Did you have a day-to-day association with him?

3721 The Witness: Yes, more or less.

Justice Stephens: Did you exchange memoranda with him?

The Witness: No, because, being in the same offices, there wasn't very much occasion for that.

Justice Stephens: Did you see any of the letters or memoranda that he wrote?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Did you ever see his signature?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Well, are you able to state whether or not this is his signature? Just answer that yes or no.

The Witness: I couldn't without a qualification.

Justice Stephens: What causes you to doubt it?

The Witness: Because there are other letters in this group of exhibits which also are signed W. G. Stromquist, which are not written the same as this, and I am not sure which is which.

Justice Stephens: You think possibly it might have been written by his secretary for him?

The Witness: I think possibly it might have, yes.

Justice Stephens: It seems to the Court, Mr. Knuff, that the witness is being properly careful.

Mr. Knuff: Well, here is the position that the Government takes, Your Honor. We filed and served upon the Ebsary Gypsum Company a subpoena calling upon 3722 the Ebsary Gypsum Company to produce certain documents. The Ebsary Gypsum Company, before they could produce certain documents, had to undertake to determine what documents were called for in that subpoena. They undertook to and they did determine what documents were called for. They came in with the documents, and among the documents that they came in with was Government's Exhibit 401.

In effect, Ebsary Gypsum Company said to us, "You have served us with this subpoena. We now comply with this subpoena. We give you this document. We think that this document answers the description in the subpoena. We have taken it from our files; we have kept it in our files from 1927 to 1940; we regarded it as a paper of some importance or we wouldn't have kept it in our files. We are therefore complying with your subpoena and we are giving you the paper that you asked for."

It seems to me, in view of those facts, that this is a proper identification. They certainly wouldn't have kept something in their files that they didn't believe was an authentic document; and by their keeping it in their files and by their handing it over to us, they expressed their belief that the document was authentic.

Justice Stephens: It seems to the Court, Mr. Knuff, at least to two members of the Court, Judge Garrett and myself—I think Judge Jackson has a doubt on the sub-3723 ject; and in fairness to him I must state that—that you are arguing two different things. You are arguing that the possession of this document might be some evidence that the company regarded it as having some value. But we don't think that you have shown it to be a letter of the Universal Gypsum & Lime Company. It probably is, but you haven't proved it, and under objection we have got to rule according to the rules of evidence. This witness very carefully and painstakingly says that he can not identify this signature because it differs from other signatures of Stromquist, and he thinks it might have been written by some secretary.

Mr. Knuff: It was received in the regular course of business and acted upon, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: That is a mere assumption on counsel's part, that it was received in the regular course of business. That assumes that it was started out from the Universal Gypsum & Lime Company's offices. I don't want to debate upon it any more. The objection is sustained.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I notice, Mr. Lenci, in the upper left-hand corner of this document there appears "Copy sent to"—and then what is that word? A. It says, "Copy sent to C. M. Winslow".

Q. And in whose handwriting is that? A. That is 3724 the handwriting of one of the girls in that office.

Q. Do you recognize that handwriting? A. I recognize her writing, yes.

Justice Stephens: Is that on the photostat?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, Your Honor, up in the upper left-hand corner.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. And that would indicate, sir, that this letter did come into your office? A. Yes, certainly.

Justice Stephens: There is no dispute about that. You needn't take any more time up on that. He has already testified it came to his office, but you haven't shown where it came from.

Mr. Knuff: Well, if Your Honor pleases, I don't want to labour the point, but here you have the stationery of the Universal Gypsum & Lime Company. You have a letter on that stationery; and it came, as I interpret the witness' testimony, in the usual course of business; and the girl in the office puts a notation on it, "Copy sent to C. M. Winslow"; and Mr. Lenci did testify that they did buy some lath, or some board, or whatever the subject matter of this letter was, from the Universal Gypsum & Lime Company sometime prior to their going into production in 1928.

Now here you have got a letter coming in—if it
3725 isn't a letter of the Universal Gypsum & Lime Company, it seems to me that the Universal Gypsum & Lime Company can come into court and say that it isn't—but at least we have established a prima facie case that a letter, in the usual course of business, coming into a business house, was received in that business house. It prima facie comes from the person whose name appears on it.

Justice Stephens: I am sorry, Mr. Knuff, but it seems to me and Judge Garrett that you are arguing contrary to the most elementary rules of evidence with respect to the identification of documents. The objection is sustained.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You stated, Mr. Lenci, that you did buy some board from Universal Gypsum & Lime Company a short time prior to the time when the Ebsary Gypsum Company got into production at their plants? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How much did you pay for that board? A. I don't remember, now.

Q. Well, will you look at the letter and see if that letter refreshes your recollection?

Justice Garrett: What letter? This letter that has not been identified?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, Your Honor.

Mr. Bromley: If the Court pleases, I object to his 3726 using this exhibit, 401 for Identification, for the purpose of refreshing his recollection.

Justice Stephens: Well, I don't see the force of that, Mr. Bromley. Anything that refreshes recollection, if it does, can be used, whether a stick or a stone or a loose piece of paper. One's memory may be refreshed by an event or a letter or a postscript or a scrap of paper, if it is so refreshed. Of course, he can't read from that.

That objection is overruled.

You are not supposed to read from this letter, because it hasn't been identified yet, but if it does refresh your recollection so that you can testify from your own memory, state first whether or not it does—does it?

The Witness: It does in a general way, Your Honor, yes. I think I can answer the question and save a little time.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Since your memory has been refreshed, do you recall how much you paid per thousand square feet for that board? A. My best recollection is that we paid the $30 price, less a commission which amounted to about 10 percent. That is my recollection.

Q. That would be 10 percent on $30, is that correct?

A. Approximately that. As I remember it, we had 3727 about a 10 percent margin on that board.

Q. And that would indicate that you paid $27 for the board, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now had you any conversations or any correspondence with Mr. Stromquist as to how you should sell this board? A. I don't remember anything about that, sir, it is so long ago I don't remember. I read the letter, but that doesn't refresh—

Q. (Interposing) Does the letter refresh your recollection? A. It honestly doesn't refresh my memory. There was very little of it, you see what I mean, very little of that board bought.

Mr. Knuff: So that we will not lose any time, I now here make a motion for permission to subpoena W. G. Stromquist. I don't know where he is, but I assume that he lives more than 100 miles beyond the jurisdiction of the District of Columbia. May we have that permission, and I will make every endeavor to get Mr. Stromquist here.

Justice Stephens: Do you know where he is?

The Witness: The last I heard, I understood he was in Chicago. I think he was with the Masonite Company, although I am not certain.

Justice Stephens: You think there is no possibility, 3728 Mr. Varian, in the proper protection of your client, of stipulating to this?

Mr. Varian: What was that, Your Honor?

Justice Stephens: You think there is no possibility of your stipulating to this? I don't require you to do so, of course. You must use your own judgment. But it seems too bad to bring a witness, in these days of difficult transportation, from as far as Chicago if there is any possibility of stipulating to the identity of this signature or to this letter having been sent to you by Universal Gypsum & Lime Company. The practical probabilities are, of course, that it was.

Mr. Varian: I haven't any doubt, finding that letter in the Ebsary papers, that it was a letter that was received by the company from Mr. Stromquist. But I can not speak for the other defendants who are interested in this.

Justice Stephens: I understand that.

Mr. Varian: I have no objections to conceding, for the purposes of the Ebsary Gypsum Company, that that is Mr. Stromquist's signature and that he was an employee or officer of Universal.

Justice Stephens: I want you to be quite clear that the Court is not requiring you to do that at all. You must do it thoroughly of your own accord. I am just trying to save time.

3729 Mr. Varian: Yes. Well, I am very anxious to save time.

Justice Stephens: If that stipulation is made, that is as high a level of identification as the identification of the witness, if he knew the signature. That being true, we reach the question of materiality.

Mr. Knuff, what do you say as to the objection of Mr. Bromley that this is not material or relevant, there being no charge that this company was a manufacturing distributor and there being no license at this time? What is the relevancy and materiality of the letter?

Mr. Knuff: If Your Honor will turn to paragraph 47 of the complaint, you will note we say there that "The combination was formed during the period between the month of September 1925 and early in the year 1930."

Now here is the situation as applies to the materiality. Beaver took out a license with USG on July 29, 1926. Universal took out a license with USG on September 17, 1926. Atlantic took out their license on March 5, 1927. Texas took out their license on April 18, 1927. And, of course, at this time USG was the licensor.

Now here you have five companies that were operating under a license agreement. Four of them were licensees, and one was the licensor. Under this license agreement it was provided that USG had the right to fix the price of gypsum board.

3730 Here we have one of the companies who was a licensee of USG selling board to another company, and at the same time they told this other company, "You will respect our price policy, you will sell this board at a certain price, you will base your freight not from Wheatland but from our plant at Oakfield, you will use the weight of 1850 pounds.

We think that is evidence of the conspiracy that has already been formed, going back at least to 1925 and probably back beyond that.

Here you have the Universal telling another company, which later became a licensee of USG, "Yes, we will sell you board, but we want you to respect our price."

We think it is very material, Your Honor, and very relevant.

Justice Stephens: What do you say to that, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: In paragraph 47, to which he has called the Court's attention, the statement merely is that the combination was formed during the period between September 1925 and early in the year 1930. Now that could be any time between 1925 and 1930.

If you will turn over to paragraph 121, you will see that the second sentence says: "Since the year 1929, all gypsum board sold by all manufacturers and all manufacturing distributors in the Eastern area has been sold at uniform and non-competitive prices dictated by U. S.

3731 G., with a resultant elimination of all price competition in the distribution of gypsum board from manufacturers to dealers."

Then in paragraph 122, the first sentence reads: "Said uniform and non-competitive prices have been, throughout the period of the operation of the combination, substantially higher than those prices prevailing at the time of the formation of said combination in the year 1929."

Now that, to me, makes the generality of the allegation in paragraph 47 specific, and shows clearly that they don't contend that there was any combination prior to 1929, or that there was any price uniformity prior to 1929.

Mr. Knuff: Of course, we can't let that statement of Mr. Bromley go unchallenged, that we don't contend that there was any conspiracy before 1929. We do contend that there was a conspiracy in existence before 1929.

Justice Stephens: Well, where in the complaint do you charge it?

Mr. Knuff: In paragraph 47 we say that, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Yes, but that is in conflict with the statements in paragraphs 121 and 122, that it was formed in 1929.

Mr. Knuff: The completed combination covering all board probably occurred in 1929, but it didn't have its genesis in 1929.

Mr. Bromley: I would like to raise the further 3732 point that—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Just a moment, Mr. Bromley.

(The Justices conferred among themselves.)

Justice Stephens: All right, we will hear you further now, Mr. Bromley, but while you are speaking, please speak on this subject: There is some doubt in the minds of the Judges, under the very broad construction of the complaint taken by the majority of the Court, as to whether this is admissible, in view of the allegations of paragraphs 121 and 122; but there is another point of view, it seems to me, which can be urged, and which I assume is what Mr. Knuff is really contending, and that is this: It is true the complaint alleges that the combination was formed in 1929—paragraphs 121 and 122—but the defendants deny there was any combination at all, and the Government doesn't contend that the combination came into existence as the result of one act or one conference or one agreement, it claims that it developed gradually out of roots reaching back into relationships and litigations and associations and trade transactions, over quite a long period of time. The complaint alleges a good many of those items. Isn't the Government entitled to try to prove the combination by proving that circumstances antedating 1929 are of such a character as lend an inference to the existence of a combination by 3733 1929?

Is that what you contend, Mr. Knuff?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, Your Honor, and I have particular reference to page 24 and page 25 of our trial brief. While I didn't call Your Honors' attention to those specific pages, those are the cases that I had reference to, the American Equipment Company v. Tuthill Building Material Company, and those cases.

3734 Justice Stephens: Well, this isn't so much a question of cases; it is a question of the nature of the conspiracy.

What do you say, Mr. Bromley, as to the point just made by myself?

Mr. Bromley: Well, I should be willing to accept that as a general statement. But here this proffered testimony hasn't any materiality even as a root, because it can best be illustrated, it seems to me, by the ruling of the majority the other day when you permitted, although not specifically alleged, the Government to prove that one licensee sold board to another, and that that board was resold by the purchasing licensee at a certain price.

Now here Ebsary was not a licensee. So that that, at the outset, distinguishes this situation from that. Ebsary was only a plaster manufacturer. Ebsary, if it was anything, in 1927, was a manufacturing distributor because it was neither a licensee nor a manufacturer of board; it made only plaster.

Now the paragraph that has to do with manufacturing distributors, Paragraph 108, on page 28 of the complaint, says:

"Throughout the period from the year 1929 to the date of filing this complaint, U.S.G. and its licensees have, by concerted action, induced and coerced manufacturing distributors purchasing gypsum board from U.S.G. and its licensees to resell said gypsum board to dealers and consumers at the bulletin prices determined and fixed by U.S.G. for 3735 sales of board by its licensees to dealers and consumers, as described in paragraph 91 hereof."

We asked them who they were talking about and they gave us a list of names, and the Ebsary Gypsum Company does not appear on that list. So I don't see how it is possible to apply the general rule, the soundness of which I think is clear, to this situation where they now want to show some background, true, but the background hasn't anything to do with any manufacturing distributor whom they allege was subject to the control of these defendants in his resale policies.

And it is because Ebsary—if it was written and received—at the time it got the letter was neither a licensee nor a manufacturer of board, but was merely a plaster manufacturer, and therefore by definition was a manufacturing distributor, and there is no charge to which this could be relevant. That is why it seems to me that the thing is clearly immaterial and not covered by the Court's ruling of the other day, even in principle.

Mr. Knuff: We don't contend—and this is one of the few times that you will hear me say that we admit something—we don't contend that the Ebsary Gypsum Company was a manufacturing distributor. What we say the Ebsary Gypsum Company was, is that it was a manufacturer. Here you have four companies who had entered into this license agreement with U.S.G., and under the license agree-3736 ment, U.S.G. was fixing the prices. One of those four companies was fixing the price of board on the resale.

Now here we have a continuing conspiracy, and we contend that what one of these companies did during this period is certainly relevant and competent testimony to explain, and to high-light, just exactly the extent and the scope of this conspiracy.

Justice Stephens: Did Universal have a license at the time this letter was written?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, Your Honor.

Mr. Bromley: Ebsary did not.

Mr. Knuff: There were four licensees at this time—Beaver, Universal, Atlantic and Texas. Under Mr. Bromley's argument, if the Ebsary Gypsum Company was a manufacturing distributor then this is certainly evidence that they were controlling the prices to manufacturing distributors—on his own argument.

Justice Stephens: But you don't charge that.

Mr. Knuff: We don't charge that, but even on his own argument it would be evidence of that.

Justice Stephens: Well, if you don't charge it, why are you entitled to prove it?

Mr. Knuff: We don't say that they are, and we don't think they were.

Justice Stephens: And you excluded them from 3737 your bill of particulars by not naming them.

Mr. Knuff: And we still say they aren't.

Justice Stephens: Still you say you can prove they were.

Mr. Knuff: I say it would be evidence, merely on Mr. Bromley's own statement.

Justice Stephens: Is there a substantial amount of evidence of this type to come in?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, I would say that there is quite a bit of it, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: We will take a recess for five minutes.

(Whereupon, a five minute recess was taken, after which the hearing was resumed.)

3738 Justice Stephens: Mr. Knuff, what resale price fixing do you charge in the complaint? You charge resale price fixing in respect of manufacturing distributors and on metallized board—anything else?

Mr. Knuff: Well, under the broad conspiracy charge we say that there was a resale price fixing for all board. I think that came within the ruling of your Honors in the broad construction of the complaint the other day, and I think that under that ruling we would be allowed to show it.

We say in paragraph 121—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Isn't it a little misleading—I don't mean intentionally of course—to speak of that class of transactions with which we dealt in the reserved rulings in which the Court by a majority ruled that the complaint was broad enough to charge the fixing of prices upon purchased board, as distinguished from board manufactured under the licenses, isn't it a little confusing to describe that as a resale price fixing, and put it in the same category as the metalized board and the manufacturing distributors' resale price fixing alleged?

Mr. Knuff: Well, I don't attribute any magical significance to that, and I don't think the Court means to infer that I do by the use of the word "resale". I say that if you have price fixing, you have price fixing, it can be resale price fixing, original price fixing, or what not. Here is the situation in this case, and I think it is important that the 3739 Court get it.

Beaver was a licensee at the time, at the date of this letter; Atlantic was a licensee; Texas was a licensee and Universal was a licensee.

United States Gypsum Company was the licensor.

You have five companies there, all having the same price policy. That is, USG was fixing the price for five companies, themselves and four other companies. Here you have one of the companies whose prices were fixed, fixing the prices for Mr. Ebsary's company, the Ebsary Gypsum Company.

I think that that is evidence that there was a conspiracy to fix prices. It is a declaration of one of the co-conspirators in furtherance of the conspiracy. This co-conspirator says, "Yes, I will sell you board, but if I do sell you board, you must observe my price policy", and on that basis, the board was sold.

This is not just an independent, isolated transaction, it is a transaction by one of the original four licensees, and as I say—and I cannot emphasize it too strongly—at this time you had five companies who had an identical price policy, and you have one of those five companies imposing that price policy on the Ebsary Gypsum Company.

Mr. Bromley: Now let's test the soundness of that. Where would my friend draw the line? Suppose, instead of being what it is, this letter was a letter from Uni-
3740 versal, a licensee, to a dealer, in which Universal said, "Now I am going to sell you my material, but, Mr. Dealer, you observe the prices I tell you."

Would my friend say that that, under any construction of the pleadings, would be material? There isn't any charge here that dealers' resale prices were fixed, and yet a dealer's price is a resale price, is a resale transaction, in the same sense that this is. We have got to stop somewhere. We couldn't, it seems to me, possibly permit testimony that this conspiracy, as alleged in these pleadings, was broad enough to include the 20,000 dealers.

Now they have said what it was, and it seems to me that that is an attempt to go as far beyond it as it would be if they came in with a sudden claim that the conspiracy encompassed the fixing of dealers' prices, or contractors' prices. It hasn't any relevancy to what they say was the unlawful combination.

I am not certain now but what my friend would take the position that he would think it competent and material to try to prove a fixing of dealers' resale prices. I would like to hear him say whether he would or not.

Mr. Knuff: No.

Mr. Bromley: Well, I think that that tests it, then. Of course you have got to draw a line somewhere. You have got to draw it, as they drew it in the pleadings, and 3741 in the Bill of Particulars.

Justice Stephens: Well, we have discussed the matter thoroughly and heard counsel, and we are agreed that the objections are well taken.

We think that this evidence could be relevant only, that is this item of evidence, Exhibit 401 for identification, it could be relevant and material only to prove resale price fixing by manufacturing distributors only, or by some person in some such position.

The complaint limited that charge, as explained by the Bill of Particulars, to certain companies, and this company was not one of them.

The Court does not, by this ruling, restrict the Government from proving the genesis of the conspiracy, and the dealings between the licensees, and the litigations and transactions and tradings alleged, but we think the objections to this particular exhibit are well taken.

Sustained.

Mr. Knuff: If I understand your ruling, your Honor, and assuming the correctness of it, we feel that this evidence, although it only goes to the question of fixing the resale price of manufacturing distributors, is likewise competent because, although we do not charge the defendant, Ebsary Gypsum Company, with being a manufacturing distributor, yet Mr. Bromley says that apparently that is what 3742 Ebsary Gypsum Company was, a manufacturing distributor.

Assuming that that is correct, you have here then a situation where—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) You are rearguing this question, are you, Mr. Knuff?

Mr. Knuff: No, I want to see what my limitations are in so far as getting this letter in evidence. I wish your Honor would bear with me for just one moment.

Justice Stephens: The Court doesn't want to seem not willing to bear with you, Mr. Knuff, but sometimes the Court gets the impression that because it is sufficiently patient and sufficiently anxious to make all of its ruling very clear to counsel, and state the reasons why it acts as it does upon every class of evidence that doesn't just involve a routine ruling, that counsel get the impression that they are entitled to keep arguing these things after the rulings, and that isn't a good way to make the trial move along. We have to come to an end of the argument at some time.

Mr. Knuff: I appreciate that, your Honor, but I want to make this one point, and then if I may, I won't say any more.

Justice Stephens: Thank you.

Mr. Knuff: After 1929 we charge in our complaint that the defendants fixed the price of the manufacturing distributors. Now taking Mr. Bromley at his own word, 3743 that the Ebsary Gypsum Company was a manufacturing distributor in 1927, what they did in 1927 would be some evidence of what they were doing in 1929, and on that basis, if for no other reason, we think this exhibit is competent.

Here you have the manufacturing distributors' price being fixed after 1929. Mr. Bromley says that in 1929 Ebsary was a manufacturing distributor. All right, we say that if their prices in 1927 were fixed as a manufacturing distributor, that that is evidence of what was done after 1929.

Justice Stephens: With other manufacturing distributors?

Mr. Knuff: With other manufacturing distributors.

Justice Stephens: Well, haven't you evidence to prove what was done in respect of other manufacturing distributors, without going into that with respect to this one?

Mr. Knuff: We have other evidence, but we certainly think that this is competent to prove that, on that theory.

Justice Stephens: What do you say to that, Mr. Bromley, if anything?

Mr. Bromley: In the first place, it must be remembered that after 1929 Ebsary was not a manufacturing distributor because it became a licensee. If, after 1929, Ebsary were a manufacturing distributor, there might be something to his argument, but the fact that away back in 1927, if it be the fact, there is some evidence that this company was controlled, is no evidence that after 1929 other companies 3744 were controlled. It hasn't any relevancy to it, and it hasn't because the status of this company changed in 1929, when it became a licensee.

Justice Stephens: His contention is something like the "other crimes" argument, as I get it, in a criminal case, that because Universal was willing to dictate the price to Ebsary as a manufacturing distributor in fact, though not so called in the complaint, in 1927, that that is some evidence that Universal was committing that kind of act, that there is a common design and scheme running through this situation, so that evidence of this act is evidence of another one of the same quality.

Mr. Bromley: It seems to me to be too remote, and in view of the charges in the complaint, to have no relevancy to the charges contained in the complaint.

Justice Stephens: Well, thank you for your further argument, but I am sorry, we are still unconvinced on this particular item of evidence.

It is excluded.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Do you recall, Mr. Linci, at what price you sold the board that you purchased from Universal, and by the "board you purchased from Universal", I mean the board that you testified you purchased from them just a short time before your company got into manufacture.

Mr. Bromley: That is objected to as immaterial.

3745 Justice Stephens: What is the purpose of that?

Mr. Knuff: That hasn't anything to do with this exhibit, your Honor. The purpose of that is to—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) I take it for granted that it hasn't—you are going to another line of testimony?

Mr. Knuff: Yes. The purpose of that is to show the resale price fixing by one of the original conspirators in this case.

Justice Stephens: The resale price fixing through Ebsary?

Mr. Knuff: That is right. Ebsary observed this price policy under an agreement, as we understand it, with Universal.

Justice Stephens: Well, that is the very same question over again, isn't it?

Mr. Knuff: I thought we were arguing on this letter, your Honor, the admissibility of Exhibit 401. I may be wrong on that.

Justice Stephens: I thought that had been ruled upon.

Mr. Knuff: That was ruled upon before. Now my question is not directed to the introduction of this exhibit, but my question is directed to the resale by Ebsary Gypsum Company of board purchased by them from Universal.

Justice Stephens: You mean under the general charge of purchases of board?

Mr. Knuff: That is right.

Justice Stephens: And selling board at prices
3746 fixed by a licensee?

Mr. Knuff: That is right.

Justice Stephens: In other words, you are going to the general ruling of the majority of the Court that there was a buying and selling of board between the various defendant licensees, and the selling of that board under the bulletin prices, even though it wasn't manufactured and sold by a particular one?

Mr. Knuff: Well; at the time I have reference to, your Honor—I want to be perfectly frank with your Honor—Ebsary Gypsum Company was not a licensee. My question is directed to a time preceding the time when Ebsary signed the license agreement.

Mr. Bromley: It is covered by the ruling just made. It is the same question all over again.

Justice Stephens: I think it is exactly the same question as was presented by the arguments on Exhibit 401. The objection is sustained.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit No. 402, the same being a copy of a letter dated May 29, 1927, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company, Caledonia, New York, and signed W. G. Stromquist.

3747 (The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 402, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. That is Mr. Stromquist's signature, is it not, Mr. Lenci? A. My answer to that would have to be exactly the same as to the other one.

Mr. Knuff: Mr. Varian, will you admit that Government's Exhibit No. 402 for identification is a copy of a letter that was received by Ebsary Gypsum Company from the Universal Gypsum & Lime Company?

Mr. Varian: I cannot stipulate that, because I do not understand that this came from Ebsary's files. You told me so last night.

Mr. Knuff: That is correct, it did not.

Mr. Varian: So I cannot stipulate anything about it, because I don't know anything about it.

Mr. Knuff: Mr. Finck, will you state that the letter marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 402, was received by the Government from the National Gypsum Company?

Mr. Finck: I don't know whether it was or not.

Mr. Knuff: Didn't you furnish that to us under the subpoena?

Mr. Finck: I don't believe so. There is no indication on it as to our mark.

3748 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit No. 403, the same being a photostat of a letter dated January 8, 1930, and signed W. G. Stromquist, Eastern Sales Manager.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 403, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Are you able to identify that as Mr. Stromquist's signature, Mr. Lenci? A. No, sir.

Mr. Knuff: Mr. Finck—

Mr. Finck: (Interposing) I haven't seen the letter; I don't know anything about it.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Marshal, hand it to Mr. Finck.

(Thereupon, Government's Exhibit No. 403 for identification was handed to Mr. Finck.)

Mr. Knuff: Is it correct, Mr. Finck, that that letter, Government's Exhibit 403 for identification, was furnished to the Government by the National Gypsum Company from the files of the National Gypsum Company, and that the attached bulletin was likewise furnished by the National Gypsum Company at the same time?

Justice Stephens: Furnished by National?

3749 Mr. Knuff: Furnished by National, yes, your Honor.

Mr. Finck: It came from the files of the National Gypsum Company and was submitted subject to the subpoena.

Justice Stephens: You mean it was furnished to the Government?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, furnished to the Government from the National Gypsum Company, from the files of the National Gypsum Company, in response to a Government subpoena.

Justice Stephens: Do you concede, Mr. Finck, that the letter, Exhibit 403, with its accompanying bulletin, was received from Universal?

Mr. Finck: No, I do not. I cannot stipulate its authenticity, or that it came from Universal.

Justice Stephens: Proceed.

Mr. Knuff: May we have permission, if your Honor please, to subpoena W. G. Stromquist?

Justice Stephens: I am not sure, Mr. Knuff, offhand, whether that application for a subpoena has to be in writing or not. Of course if you need the witness, you are entitled to get him here, but your applications heretofore have been made in writing, and I have forgotten the rule for the moment.

Mr. Knuff: We made one application, not in writing, and that was for Mr. Redfield. However, we have no objection to making the application in writing.

Justice Stephens: I don't want to put you to 3750 that trouble unless it is necessary, of course. Let me look up the rule.

Mr. Knuff: I don't think you will find it in the rules, it will be under the Sherman Act.

Justice Stephens: There is a provision in the rules, I think, with respect to witnesses living beyond one hundred miles.

Mr. Knuff: Well, it is the Sherman Act provisions that govern, as I recall. The Sherman Act says that the permission of the Court must first be had to obtain the attendance of a witness who lives beyond the jurisdiction of the court a distance of more than one hundred miles. I believe that is Section 22 or 23 of the Sherman Act.

Justice Stephens: But there is a rule on the subject also.

(After examining Rules.)

It is a combination of the statute and the rule, I find. There seems to be no requirement for a written application when the application is made in open court, and the Court will order the clerk to issue the subpoena upon the showing thus far made by the Government of its need of the witness W. G. Stromquist. You may obtain the subpoena at your convenience.

Mr. Knuff: Thank you, your Honor.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, you attended a meeting at Chicago in May, 1929, at which other manufacturers of gypsum 3751 board were present, is that correct? A. That was the time of the license meeting, in 1929, yes.

Q. And the date of that meeting in Chicago was May 22 or May 23—I believe it was May 22 and May 23, is that correct? A. Well, I thought it was May 21 and May 22.

Q. Well, it was sometime in the latter part of May, 1929? A. That is right.

Q. Now before you went out to Chicago it is a fact, is it not, that you knew that such a meeting was going to be held? A. My recollection on that is not too clear. I do know that we were going out there in connection with a proposed license, board license.

Q. And you had gone to Chicago pursuant to a previous arrangement, had you not? A. There must have been something to bring that about, yes. I don't know the exact circumstances.

Q. And at the time you went there Mr. Fred Ebsary accompanied you? A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Harlan Rippey accompanied you? A. Yes, Judge Rippey.

Q. When you got out to Chicago you did attend the meeting of the manufacturers at the Palmer House 3752 in Chicago, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. And there were present at that time, Sewall L. Avery, representing the United States Gypsum Company—is that not correct? A. Yes.

Q. And Charles F. Henning, representing USG, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. John MacLeish, representing USG? A. I believe so.

Q. And Niagara Gypsum Company was represented by M. A. Reeb, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And National Gypsum Company was represented by M. H. Baker, isn't that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not Mr. Ralph Burley, the vice president of National, was out there at that time? A. I don't remember.

Q. You do remember Mr. Baker being there? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember whether Mr. Finck was there? A. I don't.

Q. Do you remember that Mr. C. O. Brown repre-
3753 sented Certain-teed at that meeting? A. I believe that Certain-teed was represented, but I do not remember who was their representative.

Q. Was George M. Brown there? A. I am not sure.

Q. You are not sure whether George M. Brown was there, or you are not sure whether C. O. Brown was there? A. No, sir.

Q. Could your memory be refreshed on that? A. It probably could, yes.

Q. Was Warren Henley there? A. I am not sure.

Q. Are you sure that somebody from Certain-teed was there? A. Yes, I believe there was.

Q. But you are not sure who that person was? A. No.

Q. Was the Universal Gypsum & Lime Company also represented at that meeting? A. Who was the representative—

Q. (Interposing) My understanding is that Eugene Holland— A. (Interposing) He was the president or receiver at that time, was he not?

Q. Yes, he represented Universal. A. He might have been there, I am not quite sure.

Q. Do you know whether Stephen Kelley was out 3754 there? A. I think he was.

Was Atlantic Gypsum Products Company represented at that meeting? A. I think so.

Q. They were represented by L. I. Neale, vice president, is that correct? A. I think so.

Q. And was Mr. Willard B. Fuller there at the time also? A. I am not sure whether Mr. Fuller was at that meeting or not. I do recall having seen him at one of the meetings in Chicago.

Q. But you are sure of Mr. L. I. Neale? A. I think Mr. Neale was there.

Q. How about Mr. Channing, the secretary and counsel of the Atlantic Gypsum Products Company? A. I believe he was, because I think that is the first time I met Mr. Channing.

Q. Was any person representing Texas Cement Plaster Company at that meeting? A. I don't think so.

Q. And as to American Gypsum Company, did any person represent American Gypsum Company at that meeting, or were they represented? A. I don't recall, I don't recall.

Q. You did testify before the Grand Jury down 3755 here in the District, did you not? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Knuff: I thought I had Volume 2 of the Grand Jury testimony here. It happens that I do not have that volume here but I will have it here tomorrow, your Honor.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Now the meeting was held at the Palmer House in Chicago? A. That is right.

Q. And it lasted two days, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall that Mr. Sewell Avery, at that meeting, outlined the history of the patent litigation over the closed-edge board? A. I have not a very clear recollection of what he said.

Q. Well, do you recall whether or not he did outline or speak about the patent litigation over the closed-edge board? A. I think so.

Q. When you say you "think so", do you mean by that, that that is your best recollection at the present time? A. Yes, it is.

Q. You don't mean that you are just deducing that, you mean that it is your present recollection, is that correct? A. Yes.

3756 Q. And do you recall that Mr. Sewell Avery explained that certain companies in the gypsum industry had undertaken to manufacture a closed-edge board, and in the manufacture of that closed-edge board they had infringed the United States Gypsum Company's patents—do you recall that? A. I don't remember how far he went into that because it was all general knowledge, and whether he would take the time to go over that again or not, I don't remember.

Q. Well, I wonder if you, instead of my asking you these questions, could give me your best recollection of just what you recall Mr. Avery said at that meeting in Chicago. A. Well, I don't think he said very much except that we were all there, he welcomed us as prospective licensees, and—

Q. (Interposing) Were you all in one room? A. Yes.

Q. Those people you have mentioned? A. Up to this point, yes.

Q. Go ahead. A. Then we broke up to discuss our individual licenses.

Q. Outside of the fact— A. (Interposing) I am speaking for our own company.

Q. Yes, I understand that. Your recollection is that Mr. Avery made a short statement in which he welcomed all the prospective licensees, is that correct?

3757 A. Yes.

Q. Don't you recall that Mr. Avery made the statement that it would be a good thing for the industry if all the companies manufacturing board did become licensees of the United States Gypsum? A. I rather think he did, but I don't remember his wording.

Q. When you say you "rather think he did", you mean by that, do you, that that is your best recollection? A. I have no definite recollection as to what he did say or what he did not say.

Mr. Bromley: Then I move to strike out the previous answer.

Justice Stephens: It may go out.

Mr. Knuff: Just on that particular point, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: That is right.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Do you recall that Mr. Avery and Mr. MacLeish both discussed the demoralized price conditions in the gypsum industry for the years 1927, 1928 and 1929? A. No, I don't remember that.

Q. You say you don't remember any such discussion? A. No.

Q. And do you recall that Mr. Avery and Mr. MacLeish stated that this demoralized condition could be cor-3758 rected by the industry taking out licenses from the United States Gypsum Company whereby United States Gypsum Company would fix the price on gypsum board? A. No, I don't remember that.

Q. You don't remember that now? A. I remember that he spoke about the advantage of taking the board license, but as to carrying it to other products, I don't remember that.

Q. I am talking about the board itself. A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall that Mr. Avery told you that if all companies would take out a license from USG, that that would correct the demoralized condition which the board industry now found itself in? A. The board industry, yes.

Q. That is what I meant to say, and if I didn't say that, I meant to. Do you recall Mr. Avery saying that? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall Mr. MacLeish also saying that? A. I don't remember whether he repeated that or not.

Q. Do you recall at that time that Mr. MacLeish, or Mr. Avery, illustrated their point by saying that under the General Electric case it was permissible for the owner of a patent to fix the price of a patented product? A. I remember that was mentioned by either one or 3759 the other, yes.

Q. And do you know whether or not the license agreement was gone over, item by item, and the principal points of that license agreement explained either by Mr. Avery or Mr. MacLeish? A. No, not in that way.

Q. Well, how do you recall it? A. We apparently had a draft of a license, to the best of my knowledge, that is as I recall it, and we immediately protested because that draft contained the statement that Ebsary Gypsum Company had infringed the patents of the United States Gypsum Company, and also it had a clause providing for us to pay damages to United States Gypsum Company. We had never been a manufacturer of the closed-edge board up to that point. We had no cases against us, we were not infringers, and we could not sign that contract.

So Judge Rippey and Mr. MacLeish left the group, and between the two of them they thrashed out a license which was applicable only to the United States Gypsum Company and the Ebsary Gypsum Company, and was satisfactory to both companies, which we signed.

That is the history of that. There was not a general discussion as to—would you like to sign this, or would you like to have this in? We went into a session with Mr. MacLeish and Judge Rippey, and thrashed out our troubles, and signed the license.

3760 Q. Isn't it a fact that either Mr. Avery or Mr. MacLeish did discuss the salient features of this proposed new license agreement before the entire assemblage there? A. I don't recall definitely, no.

Q. You don't recall that definitely? A. No.

Q. Do you recall whether or not there was a discussion in the meeting as to abandoning the manufacture of open-edge board? A. No, I don't. Speaking for our own company, we were most anxious to abandon that.

Justice Jackson: Were you making it then?

The Witness: We were making open-edge board, and we had been for just about a year, probably eight to ten months.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you state that you did intend to abandon the manufacture of open-edge board? A. I don't know whether we made the statement or not, but it was quite evident that we wanted to, because we didn't like it.

Q. I see. It is true that you did cease manufacturing the open-edge board after you became a licensee of USG, is that correct? A. We had a certain quantity of paper left on our hands, in our inventory, at that time, the 3761 time we signed up, which was only suitable for making open-edge board, and as soon as we were able to use that type of paper up, we abandoned the open-edge board and have never made any of it since.

Q. I see. Did Ebsary Gypsum Company sign the license agreement at that time? A. We signed it in Chicago, yes.

Q. And you signed on the 22nd day of May, 1929, is that correct? A. I believe it was on the 22nd, it was in May, anyway.

Q. Did you sign that the first day of the meeting, or the second day of the meeting? A. It would be my impression or my recollection that the license was talked over between Judge Rippey and Mr. MacLeish on the first day, and a fair copy made which was executed on the second day.

Q. And after you signed the license agreement did USG submit to you a bulletin showing the prices of closed-edge board? A. After we signed. It wasn't immediately upon delivery of the signed license, but it may have been the next day, although I am not certain, or the same afternoon. It wasn't immediately upon its signature, anyway.

Q. I show you, sir, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit No. 404, the same 3762 being a letter, dated May 23, 1929, addressed to George N. Lenci, vice president, and signed by C. Henning, vice president in charge of sales.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 404, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you please look at that exhibit, Mr. Lenci? That letter, dated May 23, 1929, is the letter that you refer to as having been given you at the conclusion of the meeting on May 23, is that correct? A. I believe it is, yes, sir.

Mr. Knuff: We now offer in evidence, if your Honor please, Government's Exhibit 404 for identification.

Mr. Bromley: We make only the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 404 was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Now at that time, Mr. Lenci, if my understanding is correct, your company was not manufacturing a closed-edge board—is that correct? A. Not at that time.

3763 Q. And the United States Gypsum Company knew that your company wasn't manufacturing a closed-edge board, is that not correct? A. I believe so.

Q. Didn't you tell them that you were not manufacturing a closed-edge board? A. Well, it was common knowledge that we were not.

Q. Didn't you specifically tell them that you were not manufacturing a closed-edge board? A. Well, I don't know whether we told them so or not. They knew it.

Q. Let's see whether you didn't tell them. The original draft of the proposed license had a clause in it that said that Ebsary Gypsum Company had been infringing the United States Gypsum patents, did it not? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And didn't you tell the United States Gypsum Company that you were not infringing the United States Gypsum Company patents because you were not manufacturing a closed-edge board? A. Yes, that is probably true, yes.

Q. As a matter of fact, it took you some time before you were able to get into production on the closed-edge board, did it not? A. It was a short time, I don't remember just how long.

3764 Q. It was sometime in July, was it not? A. Probably.

Q. Well, wasn't it sometime in July? A. I haven't got a record of the date, but it was probably about a month or so later.

Q. When you say "probably", do you mean by that, that that is your best recollection now? A. I believe so.

Q. That was sometime in July? A. I think so, yes, sir.

Q. And when you received this bulletin, did you price your open-edge board to follow the prices that were contained in Government's Exhibit 404?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that question on the ground that it assumes facts not in evidence. First, the bulletin on its face in the third line applies only to board manufactured by this company. Second, as I read it, there are no prices set for open-edge board.

I may say, in explanation of what I started out to say, that paragraph 1 refers only to the prices at which the licensee may sell board manufactured by them, embodying the improvements set forth in the Utzman patent, No. 1,034,746. That is the closed-edge patent.

Mr. Knuff: Will you please read my question, Mr. Reporter?

Justice Jackson: I don't believe Mr. Bromley is 3765 through yet.

Mr. Knuff: I am sorry, I thought he was.

Mr. Bromley: Therefore, it seems to me that the question is incompetent because it assumes that the bulletin applies to the board that is not manufactured, which is a fact not in evidence, and it assumes that it also applies to open-edge board, which is also a fact not in evidence.

Mr. Knuff: Now, Mr. Reporter, will you please read my question?

(Thereupon, the pending question was read by the reporter.)

Mr. Knuff: That is all I have asked him, whether the prices of his board followed these prices in here.

Justice Jackson: Do you mean were they the same?

Mr. Knuff: That is right, your Honor.

Mr. Bromley: I think that is a different question.

Mr. Knuff: That is the exact question.

Justice Stephens: Well, if you want to inquire whether the prices at which open-edge board was sold were the same prices as the prices stipulated in this bulletin with respect to the board manufactured and sold under the license, we have already ruled that you can ask that; but the question which you did ask was phrased in a manner which assumed two facts not in evidence. Objection to that is sustained.

You are not foreclosed from inquiring as to what 3766 I just spoke of.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. The price at which you sold your open-edge board was what, Mr. Lenci? A. I don't remember the exact prices, but they were lower than the prices in the first bulletin.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Lenci, that you priced your open-edge board to sell at the same price USG had fixed for their "seconds"? A. I don't remember. I know it was much less than the regular price, than the other prices in here—

Q. (Interposing) Much less than what?

Mr. Bromley: Might he finish his answer, please?

Justice Stephens: Finish your answer.

The Witness: Because no matter whether we had a license or not, it didn't overcome the customers' objection to buying open-edge board.

The mere fact that we had a license didn't make him look, didn't make the customer look on the open-edge board with the feeling that he wanted to pay more money for it. We still continued to sell the open-edge board for any price we could get for it.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Well, isn't it a fact, Mr. Lenci, that you testified before the grand jury down here that you priced 3767 your open-edge board at the same price that USG specified for their "seconds"? A. I don't remember, I could have my memory refreshed on that, but I do not recall it now, sir.

Q. Isn't that what you did? A. I don't remember.

Q. Well, didn't you price your open-edge board at the same price that USG specified in their bulletins for "seconds"? A. I don't remember.

Justice Jackson: Don't you have those minutes there?

Mr. Knuff: Unfortunately I do not have them. I thought I had, but I am making a note now to be sure to have them here tomorrow, your Honor.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, gypsum board has always been sold on a delivered price basis, has it not? A. By that you mean a price at destination, instead of a price at the mill?

Q. That is right. A. To my knowledge, yes.

Q. It has always been sold that way? A. Yes.

Q. Say in April 1928, if you had a customer in Rochester who wanted to buy board from you, you would determine the price to that customer by taking your mill price and adding to your mill price the amount of freight 3768 from Wheatland to Rochester, and that would give you the delivered price into Rochester? A. In 1928?

Q. Say in April, April 1, 1929. A. In April of 1929?

Q. That is right. A. No.

Q. How would you do it? A. We would find out what the price was in Rochester, and endeavor to meet that competing price in Rochester.

Q. You would meet the competing price in Rochester? A. Yes. In other words, we were quite new in the business, and we had to meet the conditions as we found them in these various markets.

Q. And if you were selling board in Buffalo, you would find out what the price was in Buffalo, and meet that price, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And if you were selling board in Utica, you would find out what the price was in Utica, and you would meet that price, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. In other words, you didn't determine your price in Rochester or Buffalo or Utica by first taking your mill price and then adding to it the freight from your 3769 mill to Rochester or Buffalo or Utica? A. No, we had to take what the customers were already paying.

Q. I see.

On August 1, 1929, if you were selling board in Rochester, how would you determine that price, or how would that price be determined?

Mr. Oliver: What kind of board are you talking about?

Mr. Knuff: Closed-edge gypsum board that Ebsary was manufacturing under the license.

Justice Stephens: Is there any dispute about that at all?

Mr. Bromley: None.

Mr. Knuff: I just want to get it clear how that price was determined.

Justice Jackson: It was mill price, plus freight, was it not?

Mr. Knuff: Not from Mr. Lenci's mill, however.

Justice Jackson: No, it wouldn't be.

Justice Stephens: Proceed.

The Witness: That is the reason I was looking through here. (Witness referring to Exhibit No. 404) At that time I believe it would be from Oakfield, plus the freight from Oakfield to Rochester.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Let's take a specific illustration. Suppose you were selling a 3/8-inch No. 1 grade wallboard in Rochester, 3770 and suppose, further, that that wallboard was a closed-edge wallboard that you manufactured under the license. Now you would take the $20 base price, would you not? A. That is right, that is the mill price.

Q. And to that you would add the freight from Oakfield to Rochester? A. That is right.

Justice Stephens: What Oakfield is this, the town of Oakfield?

Mr. Knuff: Oakfield, New York, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Where was your plant?

The Witness: At Wheatland, New York.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Oakfield is located in Genesee County, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your plant is located in Monroe County? A. Right.

Q. Oakfield is on the New York Central? A. Yes.

Q. And Wheatland is on the B. & O.? A. Yes.

Q. Wheatland is about eighteen miles south and west of Rochester, is that not correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And Oakfield is west and a little bit to the 3771 south of Rochester, is that correct? A. Approximately, yes.

Q. About thirty-six miles from Rochester? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now in determining the price that you would quote in Rochester, you would take your mill price of $20 a thousand square feet, and to that add the freight rate from Oakfield to Rochester, would you not? A. That is right.

Q. Although the board that you shipped came from Wheatland? A. Yes.

Q. You would ship your board from Wheatland to Rochester, but you would add the freight from Oakfield to Rochester, is that correct? A. At that time, yes.

Q. And if you were selling board in Buffalo, you would likewise quote the mill price, plus freight from Oakfield, is that not correct, from Oakfield to Buffalo? A. Yes, that is the opposite illustration.

Q. And if you were selling in Utica, you would take your mill price of $20, plus your freight from Oakfield to Utica? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: We will take an adjournment 3772 at this time.

It occurs to the Court to suggest, in respect of the testimony of the witness Gloyd, the possibility of counsel considering agreeing upon written interrogatories which could be presented to Mr. Gloyd and answered without the formality of putting him on the witness stand or having him examined and cross-examined orally. Would that be possible?

Mr. Steffen: We will consider that, your Honor. I want to point out that his memory is apparently bad, and we are entitled to ask leading questions, and it might be very important that we refresh him on something or other in order to obtain an answer.

Justice Stephens: Well, the Court hopes that counsel can work the matter out by some cooperative arrangement which will get the necessary testimony and at the same time not interfere with his health.

You may announce the recess until tomorrow at ten.

(Thereupon, at 4:00 o'clock p. m., an adjournment was taken until 10:00 o'clock a. m., Wednesday, February 16, 1944.)

3773 IN THE

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Civil Action No. 8017

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY; NATIONAL GYPSUM COMPANY; CERTAIN-TEED PRODUCTS CORPORATION; THE CELOTEX CORPORATION; EBSARY GYPSUM COMPANY, INC.; NEWARK PLASTER COMPANY; SAMUEL M. GLOYD, doing business under the name of TEXAS CEMENT PLASTER COMPANY; SEWELL L. AVERY; OLIVER M. KNODE; MELVIN H. BAKER; BROR H. DAHLBERG; HENRY J. HARTLEY; FREDERICK G. EBSARY; and FREDERICK TOMKINS,

Defendants.

Seventh Floor,
Internal Revenue Building,
Washington, D. C.
Wednesday, February 16, 1944.

The above-entitled cause came on for further hearing at 10:00 o'clock a. m., pursuant to adjournment, before Honorable Harold M. Stephens, Honorable Finis J. Garrett, and Honorable Joseph R. Jackson, sitting as the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

APPEARANCES:

(Same as heretofore noted.)

3778 Thereupon, GEORGE N. LENCI the witness on the stand at the time of adjournment, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Direct Examination (resumed)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, I believe yesterday we were talking as to who attended the meeting in Chicago at the Palmer House on the 21st or the 22nd of May, 1929, and I asked you whether or not Certain-teed had attended that meeting, and you said you felt that they had but you were not sure who represented Certain-teed at that time. Do you remember that? A. Yes.

Q. Have you had occasion now to refresh your recollection as to who did represent Certain-teed at that meeting? A. Yes.

Q. Will you tell us who it was, please? A. I believe Mr. C. O. Brown and Mr. Whittemore.

Q. Mr. Audenreid Whittemore and Mr. C. O. Brown, or was it George M. Brown? A. C. O. Brown.

Q. C. O. Brown, you think? A. Yes.

Q. I also asked you yesterday, with reference to 3779 the same meeting in Chicago at the Palmer House, this question:

"Don't you recall that Mr. Avery made the statement that it would be a good thing for the industry if all the companies manufacturing board did become licensees of the United States Gypsum?"

And your answer was:

"I rather think he did, but I don't remember his wording."

Have you had occasion to refresh your recollection since yesterday as to that? A. Yes.

Q. What, if anything, did Mr. Avery say at that time, sir? A. Well, I have given a good deal of thought to that during last evening, to try to put the facts together as I could remember them. And as I recall it, when we met, Mr. Avery made a very short, informal talk, said he was glad to see us all there, and that we were all familiar with the long, drawn-out litigation which had existed in the gypsum industry; and that now that we had the right, following the General Electric decision, to sign a license of this type, or they had the right to issue a license of that type, that he felt that that was a very good move in the industry.

Q. And Mr. Avery did, at that time, talk about the demoralized price conditions in the industry? A. I don't 3780 remember that he mentioned the demoralized price conditions, I really do not.

Q. Before the Grand Jury, sir, you were asked the following question—

Mr. Bromley: (Interposing) May it please the Court, I object to this use of the Grand Jury minutes.

Justice Stephens: Is this for the purpose of refreshing recollection?

Mr. Knuff: That is right, Your Honor.

Mr. Bromley: Then he should be shown the minutes, if anything, and they should not be read to him.

Mr. Knuff: I would like to have the record show just exactly what he did testify to before the Grand Jury, and the only way I can get that in the record is to read it into the record.

Justice Jackson: Are you trying to impeach him or refresh his recollection?

Mr. Knuff: Both.

Justice Jackson: Which are you going to do first?

Mr. Knuff: I am going to try to refresh his recollection—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) Then why don't you show him the minutes?

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, I want to show you Volume 2 of the 3781 testimony taken before the additional Grand Jury in the District of Columbia on the 18th of April, 1940, and I want to call your attention to page 93 of that testimony, and I want you to read between the places on that page where I have indicated with pencil marks, please. A. (After reading) Yes, I have read it.

Mr. Knuff: Let the record show that I am submitting the volume of the Grand Jury minutes referred to, to counsel for the defendants.

(Grand Jury minutes handed to and examined by defendants' counsel.)

Mr. Knuff: Does the Court care to see it?

Justice Stephens: Hand it to the Court, Mr. Marshal.

(Grand Jury minutes handed to and examined by the Court.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, since reading the excerpt from your testimony before the Grand Jury, has your memory been refreshed as to whether or not Mr. Avery did speak about the demoralized price conditions in the industry? A. Yes, to this extent, that I will have to answer practically the same as I did in that, that probably he did discuss it.

Q. And by "probably" you mean that that is your best recollection? A. Yes.

3782 Q. And when you say that you will have to answer as you did in that, you mean that you will have to answer the same way as you answered before the Grand Jury, is that what you mean? A. That it probably took place, yes.

Q. And again, by "probably" you mean that that is your best recollection? A. Yes, but I can't say, "Yes, he did say this."

Q. You can't give his exact words, is that what you mean? A. I can't give his exact words because I honestly do not remember the wording.

Q. We realize that. But it is your best recollection now, after your memory has been refreshed, that there was some discussion at that meeting about the demoralized price conditions that existed in the board industry; is that correct? A. I don't like to quibble, but I think there probably was. I can't say that there definitely was, because I honestly am not sure.

Q. Do you mean by that that it is your best recollection? A. Yes, all right.

Justice Jackson: Do you realize what you are say-

3783 ing?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Justice Jackson: You say first that you can't remember; then you say it is your best recollection by saying "probably". Which is it?

The Witness: I mean it is my best recollection that there probably was that discussion.

Justice Jackson: But you don't mean, when you say "probably", that it probably is your best recollection?

The Witness: No.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Lenci, let me say this to you: We don't want you to draw inferences as to what you think, as a matter of probability, happened, because that is the Court's job. What we ask witnesses to do is to testify what did happen, or what was said. Now that doesn't mean that you have to remember or are expected to remember exact words, but it does mean that we are asking you at least to remember, if you can, the substance and effect of a conversation or statement. If you don't remember that, and if you mean by "probably" that you are drawing an inference as to what occurred, then you shouldn't say that you recollect it. If you do recollect, if you have a recollection at the present time as to what, in substance and effect, was said, then it is all right for you to say so. But please keep that distinction in mind.

The Witness: I understand.

3784 Justice Stephens: In other words, counsel aren't permitted—and I am not suggesting that counsel are trying to—to argue you into a position of saying what probably did take place or probably did not take place, on the basis of an inference. If you don't remember that, say so. You are not guilty of any offense if you don't remember.

Mr. Bromley: I move to strike out all of his testimony on the ground that it is perfectly apparent that he doesn't remember, that all he is doing is inferring.

And in connection with those Grand Jury minutes, I would like to ask him now: You haven't any recollection, now, as to what Mr. Avery said or didn't say on this subject, have you?

The Witness: Not the exact words, no, sir.

Mr. Bromley: I am not talking about the exact words. You haven't any recollection as to whether he said anything about this subject or not, have you?

The Witness: Only so far as I have answered before. I believe that he did.

Mr. Bromley: I move to strike out all of his testimony on the ground that all this witness does is believe or infer, and he doesn't recollect anything.

Mr. Knuff: I think that his answer is perfectly consistent. He said he believed, and when I asked him about that he said he meant that that was his best recollec-

3785 tion. I think his answer is perfectly consistent.

Justice Stephens: Well, the Court thinks it may stand, but the Court will frankly state, Mr. Knuff, that the Court will give practically no weight to it because it is so obviously close to the line of pure speculation or inference.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Lenci, the board prices in the industry were at that time demoralized, were they not? A. That is correct.

Justice Jackson: What do you mean by "demoralized"?

The Witness: They were very low. We were selling our materials below cost.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. And at that time, open-edge board sold on the market at from $6 to $7 a thousand square feet less than the closed-edge board, did it not? A. Yes.

Q. How did USG meet the competition of the open-edge board at that time?

Mr. Bromley: Objected to as incompetent because calling for a conclusion.

Mr. Knuff: This is on cross-examination—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) Why don't you ask him if he knows?

3786 Mr. Knuff: He does know.

Justice Jackson: Ask him that.

Mr. Knuff: This is cross-examination.

Justice Jackson: I know it is, but you can't call for a conclusion like that on cross-examination.

Justice Stephens: This isn't cross-examination as if the witness had already been examined on direct. These are leading questions.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Do you know how USG met the competition of open-edge board? A. Yes, I do.

Q. How did they meet that competition? A. If I might explain, which would possibly make it clearer, they had two grades of board, one which was known as Sheetrock, which was always their first line of material—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Who do you mean by "their"?

The Witness: The United States Gypsum Company. And in order to meet competition from other cheaper boards, or open-edge boards, they established a second board, which I believe they called the Crown board, and used that, selling it at a lower price, to meet competition.

Justice Jackson: Competition with what?

The Witness: With the open-edge boards on the market.

3787 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. The Sheetrock that USG was manufacturing at that time was their first quality board, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that board was a highly advertised board, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. At that time, the United States Gypsum Company put on the market a board of inferior quality to the Sheetrock, known as Crown Board, did they not? A. Yes.

Q. And that is what the USG considered their No. 2 board, isn't that correct? A. I believe so, yes.

Q. Did USG at that time mark it second grade board, or second? A. No.

Q. Now what is the difference between a No. 2 board and a second? A. Well, a No. 2 board is a board which is actually manufactured to meet competition, but it is a perfect board in its class, I might say. A "second" is a board of either the first or second grade, which is actually defective in manufacture, has some real imperfection in it, and is not of first class material.

3788 Q. The No. 2 board was a board that was manufactured to certain specifications, while a "second" was an imperfection of a manufactured board; is that right? A. That is correct.

Justice Jackson: I wish you would clear up for me, Mr. Witness, the difference between the Sheetrock, or the No. 1 board, and the No. 2 board. In what way do they differ? A. As I understand it, the Sheetrock board—and when I say "Sheetrock" I mean the first grade board—was made of the very highest class of materials. The paper was perfect, the caliper of the board was perfect, the width was perfect, and it had thorough inspection all the way through and was strictly of first class material. It was like a Cadillac car.

Then, in order to make this competing board, they used a slightly lighter weight of paper. The inspection was not quite as careful. If the board was a 1/32 or 1/16 off in width, it was still usable on the job; it was not imperfect, but it was not absolutely standard. And there were differences of that kind. There might be slight specks in the paper, which would keep it from being used without being painted, or something of that kind.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Carrying your analogy with the Cadillac car
3789 further, would you say that the LaSalle might be an illustration of the No. 2 board? A. Yes.

Justice Jackson: Oh, no. (Laughter). I happen to have had both, so I know. (Laughter).

The Witness: I will put it this way: The first grade board was the Cadillac; the second grade board was the Chevrolet; and the "seconds" were the Buick of 1941, where they had to change all the spark plugs.

Justice Jackson: That is right, that had a poor engine. (Laughter).

Mr. Knuff: Will you show the witness Government's Exhibit 404, please?

(Government's Exhibit 404 handed to the witness)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Concerning Government's Exhibit 404, I believe you testified yesterday that you received this exhibit on the second day of the meeting that was held at the Palmer House; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And that was handed to you? A. Yes.

Q. Did you attend a party at Sewell Avery's home after that meeting? A. Yes.

3790 Q. And who were at that party?

Mr. Bromley: I object to this as immaterial. What is this, some social occasion?

Mr. Knuff: I am not going into what happened at the party other than to see who was at the party. Here you have all the board manufacturers—

Justice Jackson: Is this preliminary to something?

Mr. Knuff: Just to show that they all got together out there.

Justice Jackson: After the licenses were signed?

Mr. Knuff: That is correct.

Justice Stephens: And you are not intending to show any conversations concerning the issues in this case?

Mr. Knuff: I think definitely that it has a bearing on the issues in this case.

Justice Stephens: Are you intending to show what took place at the party, or what was said there, in respect of any issues in this case? If not, how can the fact that these gentlemen attended a social affair have any bearing whatever upon this situation?

Mr. Knuff: I want to show exactly that the only persons that were at that party were the people that were in attendance at the previous meeting at the Palmer House. I am not going to ask this witness to violate any rule of guest and host.

3791 Justice Stephens: We are not thinking that you are going to do that at all, Mr. Knuff, but we are trying to keep the record down to the material issues. It is big enough as it is. How can the fact that these men went to a social party, that circumstance, have any bearing upon the issues in this case? He has already testified what they did, and there is no dispute about it, anyway.

Mr. Knuff: I think it has a material bearing, but if Your Honor thinks otherwise, I will abide by Your Honor's ruling.

Justice Garrett: In other words, you feel that the Court should conclude, because they had a social party following the business meeting, that—well, what do you ask the Court to conclude from that?

Mr. Knuff: That that was the end of the price war.

Justice Stephens: It seems to the Court a non sequitur. Objection sustained.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. After you received the bulletin of May 23, 1929, did you telegraph your New York office as to the prices that your New York office should quote on board and lath? A. Yes.

Q. And did you instruct Mr. Diegel to advise the members of your firm as to the prices that should be quoted on gypsum board and gypsum lath?

3792 Mr. Oliver: May I ask what board you are talking about?

Mr. Knuff: Gypsum board and gypsum lath that was sold by Ebsary Gypsum Company.

Mr. Varian: Open-edge or closed-edge?

Mr. Knuff: The witness has clearly answered that at this time they were not manufacturing a closed-edge board. Now it can only mean the open-edge board.

Justice Stephens: Then state it, Mr. Knuff, so that the record will show it.

Mr. Varian: They were purchasing the other board outside, so we might as well have the whole story.

Mr. Knuff: Thank you very much, I am glad to know that.

What is my question?

(The question was read by the reporter as follows:

"Q. And did you instruct Mr. Diegel to advise the members of your firm as to the prices that should be quoted on gypsum board and gypsum lath?"

By Mr. Knuff.

Q. (Continuing) —either open or closed-edge? A. I wired Diegel to notify our salesmen to quote these prices.

Justice Jackson: On what, closed or open-edge board?

The Witness: On our open-edge board?
3793 Justice Jackson: Your open-edge board?
The Witness: Yes, sir.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did Mr. Diegel prepare a letter that was signed with your name? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: I don't quite understand you, Mr. Lenci. You say you wired Mr. Diegel to quote these bulletin prices on open-edge board?

The Witness: To quote prices on open-edge board. He didn't ask me what the prices were, yet.

Justice Stephens: I understood he was referring to these bulletin prices in Exhibit 404, and I thought you testified yesterday that you couldn't get bulletin prices on open-edge board because the trade wouldn't take it at those prices.

Mr. Knuff: If your Honor pleases, this is preliminary to clearing that up.

Justice Stephens: Very well.

Mr. Bromley: I don't think the record should be left this way. It seems to me that the record looks as though the witness had been talking about bulletin prices; whereas, he said yesterday that, of course, he wasn't talking about bulletin prices.

Justice Stephens: That is the Court's understand-3794 ing, because he is being examined on Exhibit 404.

Mr. Knuff: I think if Your Honors will bear with me just a minute, we will have this whole thing cleared up.

Justice Jackson: All right.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, I show you what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 405.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 405 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you look at that exhibit and state whether or not that is the letter that was prepared pursuant to the telegram that you sent? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: Will you identify that for us so we can tell what you are talking about?

Mr. Knuff: It is dated May 23, 1929, Your Honor, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company, Newark, New Jersey, Attention Mr. Ed. A. Niel, Jr., and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company, George N. Lenci, Vice-President.

Mr. Oliver: I would like to see a copy of it.

Justice Stephens: Have defendants' counsel a copy of it?

Mr. Bromley: We have just been handed a copy
3795 of it now. We have never seen it before.

Justice Stephens: Take your time and examine it.

Mr. Knuff: We now offer in evidence, if Your Honors please, Government's Exhibit No. 405.

Mr. Bromley: We make only the usual objection to it.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 405 was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Now, Mr. Lenci, will you please refer to Government's Exhibit 405, and also refer to Government's Exhibit 404. In Government's Exhibit 405, you quoted, did you not, "3/8" Gypsum Lath (16x48—16x32—32x48) @ $13.50 per M ft. F.O.B. Mill"? A. That is correct.

Q. And will you refer now to Government's Exhibit 404. That is the same price that Government's Exhibit 404 contains for closed-edge lath, is that not correct?

Justice Stephens: Where is that?

Mr. Knuff: That will be found, Your Honor, right after the word "SECONDS", about a quarter of an inch below the word "SECONDS" you will see that.

3796 Justice Jackson: Is that lath?

Mr. Knuff: Plasterboard is lath.

It is the paragraph that begins: "1/4" and 3/8" Gypsum Plasterboards"—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) "either bundled or unbundled"—

Mr. Knuff: (Interposing) Yes, "all sizes—$13.50 per M sq. ft."

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. The price that is mentioned in Government's Exhibit 405 for gypsum lath, open-edge gypsum lath, was the same price that was furnished you in Government's Exhibit 404 for closed-edge lath, is that not correct? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: Now I don't understand that, because this item "3/8" Gypsum Lath", which you refer to, in Exhibit 405, doesn't say whether it is open-edge or not.

Mr. Knuff: Mr. Lenci has testified that that is what he was telling his salesmen to quote on open-edge lath.

The Witness: That is correct, we were not making closed-edge board at that time.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. And the lath mentioned in Government's Exhibit 405 is open-edge lath, is that correct? A. Yes.

3797 Mr. Knuff: Is that clear to Your Honors now?

Justice Stephens: Yes, thank you.

Justice Jackson: Yes.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Now refer to Government's Exhibit 405, and the price of open-edge wallboard "4x6-12' long 15.00 per M ft. F.O.B. Mill"—do you see that? A. Yes.

Q. And that was the price for open-edge wallboard, is that not correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now refer to Government's Exhibit 404—"3/8"—Gypsum Wallboard SECONDS—$15.00 per M sq. ft."

Mr. Knuff: Do your Honors see that? It is just above the paragraph in which 1/4" and 3/8" Gypsum Plasterboards are mentioned. It immediately follows the #1 and #2 Grade Gypsum Wallboard quotations, and there is probably a space of a quarter of an inch—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) It says there, "Gypsum Wallboard SECONDS"?

Mr. Knuff: That is right.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Now the price that you mentioned in Government's Exhibit 405 was the same price that was furnished 3798 you for closed-edge gypsum wallboard Seconds in Government's Exhibit 404, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. I show you what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 406, the same being a copy of a letter dated May 23, 1929, addressed to "All Salesmen", and signed "George N. Lenci". Will you please look at that exhibit, sir? A. Yes, sir.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 406 for Identification.)

Mr. Knuff: Before taking up Exhibit 406, there is an item on Exhibit 405 that I inadvertently overlooked.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, will you get before you Government's Exhibit 405, please? A. I have it.

Q. You will notice on the left-hand side of that exhibit there are some notations in longhand. Do you recognize that writing? A. Yes, it is mine.

Q. It is your writing? A. Yes.

Q. And as I read it, it says: "To be discontinued 3799 as soon as new board is ready", is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. What did you mean by that? A. If you will notice, right to the right of that the open-edge has a black mark alongside of it.

Q. I notice it. A. And I believe that I intended to say that the open-edge board would be discontinued as soon as the new board was ready.

Q. And this reference here meant that as soon as you got into production on your closed-edge board, you were going to discontinue the production of your open-edge board, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now then, Exhibit 406 for Identification is a memorandum to your salesmen prepared for your signature, is that correct? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We now offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 406.

Mr. Bromley: We make only the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit
3800 No. 406 was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. And Government's Exhibit 406 contains the instructions that were sent out to your salesmen in order that they would be able to quote on open-edge lath, and open-edge wallboard; is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. And the prices mentioned in Exhibit 406 are the same prices that were mentioned in Government's Exhibit 405, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now will you get before you, sir—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) What is this handwriting at the bottom of Exhibit 406? If that has any bearing, since it is all in evidence we ought to have it read to us, because some of it I don't understand. What does that say, Mr. Lenci?

The Witness: Well, the series of figures there are, I think, the weights of the board. And then the comment at the bottom is "Joint Filler $3.60 per case F. O. B. Mill".

Mr. Knuff: I was going to take that up later, Your Honor.

Justice Garrett: Mr. Knuff, will you pardon me if I ask the witness to return a moment to Exhibit 405?

3801 Mr. Knuff: Certainly.

Justice Garrett: I didn't quite understand this. In explaining the handwriting on the left side of the page, I understood the statement in the question put to you to be that it was your intention to discontinue the manufacture of open-edge board when the new board was ready.

The Witness: That is correct.

Justice Garrett: And it had reference, then, not to the prices named here, but to the discontinuance of the manufacture of open-edge board?

The Witness: Yes. If I might explain, if you care for it, it is impossible to make both an open-edge board and a closed-edge board at the same time. You have to make one or the other, because your equipment is different for the two types of board. And when we stopped making the open-edge board we were through with it for good.

Justice Garrett: I would have interpreted that, myself, to mean that they were to discontinue the quotation of prices on open-edge board when the new board went into production. But, of course, I take your interpretation.

The Witness: If you have in mind if we had any open-edge board still in stock, of course we would have to sell that at this price.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Isn't Judge Garrett's understanding the correct
3802 understanding, Mr. Lenci, that is, that after your closed-edge board machine was put in operation, you were going to cease quoting on your open-edge wallboard? A. If we had any stock, we would have to sell it. After we had sold our inventory of open-edge board—

Q. (Interposing) And you had your new—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Let him finish his statement.

The Witness: After we had sold our inventory of open-edge board we would be through with that, and naturally that price would cease.

Justice Stephens: You would make no more of that board?

The Witness: We would make no more of that board.

Mr. Knuff: Does that clear it up for you, Judge Garrett?

Justice Garrett: I think so.

So long as you had any open-edge board to sell, you were going to sell it at these prices?

The Witness: If we could get that much for it.

Justice Garrett: Yes, if you could get it.

The Witness: That is right.

Justice Garrett: In other words, those were the prices that they were authorized to quote, that your salesmen were authorized to quote?

The Witness: That is right.

Justice Garrett: So long as you had any open-edge
3803 board on hand, no matter whether you then had discontinued its manufacture or not?

The Witness: That is right, that is correct.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, Mr. Varian has said that at this time you were buying closed-edge board; is that correct? A. We had bought a few cars, I don't know how many, but very few cars of board, and I don't know whether it was wallboard or lath.

Q. But you had bought either lath or board, is that correct? A. We had bought some, yes.

Q. And from whom did you buy that?

Mr. Bromley: I object to this as immaterial. This is the same matter that was ruled on yesterday.

Mr. Knuff: This is not the same matter that was ruled on yesterday. Here we have now a licensee buying board, apparently from another licensee, and this comes, I think, within the charge of the conspiracy in the complaint.

Justice Jackson: Why don't you phrase your question that way? You didn't ask him whether it was after he took the license or not.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. After you took the license, and before you got your plant in operation, did you buy any closed-edge board 3804 or lath? A. Well, now, I want to answer that very clearly so that all will understand me. Before we took our license, our plant had been in operation for about 8 or 10 months.

Q. That is right.

Justice Jackson: Making what?

The Witness: Making open-edge board.

And after we started making open-edge board, we did not buy any board from anybody else, because we had our own board. So consequently, we were not buying board from another manufacturer either during the time when we were manufacturing an open-edge board or after we took the license.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I understood Mr. Varian to say that after you took the license you had purchased some closed-edge board? A. No, that is not correct.

Mr. Varian: I was only referring to his testimony as to what he bought from Universal, which he testified to yesterday.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You now say, Mr. Lenci, that you were not—and did not, after you became a licensee of USG—purchasing closed-edge board from any other manufacturer? A. To the best of my recollection, we didn't.

3805 Q. Did you sell any closed-edge board to any other manufacturer after you became a licensee? A. Well, very much later on.

Q. Very much later on? A. Yes. I have in mind when the Newark Plaster Company had their fire, and we sold some board to them at that time.

Mr. Bromley: That was in 1940, you mean?

The Witness: Yes. And in order that the record may be complete, I think we sold a small quantity to the Atlantic Gypsum Company.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. That is what I was coming to. You secured permission from the USG to sell to Atlantic at a discount, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. And you did sell to Atlantic at a discount? A. Yes.

Q. And for how long a period did you sell to Atlantic? A. Not very long, they did not take very much from us.

Q. I realize, of course, that it is almost impossible to fix dates, but can you give us an approximate date when this board was sold to Atlantic? A. I would say it was probably a year or two prior to the purchase of the Atlantic by 3806 National, somewhere in the middle 30's.

Q. Somewhere in the middle 30's? A. Yes.

Q. Now did you sell board to any other board manufacturer, other than Newark and Atlantic? A. I don't remember.

Q. Either metallized, perforated or plain? And by "board", I mean wallboard and lath. A. I don't recall any.

Justice Stephens: The Court will take the morning recess at this time.

(Thereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed as follows:)

3807 Justice Stephens: Proceed.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you get before you, Mr. Lenci, Government's Exhibit No. 404, please? A. Yes, sir, I have it.

Q. Turn to page 3, of that exhibit, if you will. You will notice at the bottom of that page, this statement:

"The following are billing weights used at all basing points:"

Do you notice that? A. Yes.

Q. I show you, sir, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 407, being a letter dated May 24, 1929, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company, Newark, New Jersey, attention of Mr. Ed. A. Niel, Jr., and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company, Inc., by George N. Lenci, vice president.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 407, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Is that a letter, Mr. Lenci, that was sent out over your signature to your Newark office? A. It was sent out. I don't know that I signed it because I think Diegel wrote the letter in my absence.

Q. But you had previously authorized him, in your 3808 telegram, to do so, had you not? A. I don't remember.

Justice Stephens: Who did you say you thought wrote it?

The Witness: Mr. Diegel, who was my assistant. But I don't remember.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You do know that this letter was sent out from your office, do you? A. Oh, yes.

Q. And you know that your name was signed to it? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We offer in evidence Government's Exhibit No. 407.

Mr. Bromley: We make only the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 407 was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Now the weights that are mentioned in Government's Exhibit 407 are the same weights that are mentioned at page 3 of Government's Exhibit 404, is that correct? A. Yes, they are the same.

3809 Q. And the weights that you used in Government's Exhibit 407 were those that you used for open-edge board, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. In figuring the billing on your open-edge board, Ebsary Gypsum Company used the weights mentioned in Government's Exhibit 407, is that correct? A. Yes, with this exception, that I don't think we were able to get the full price that we mentioned.

Q. I am not asking you about the price. I said—in sending out quotations and in billing your customers for open-edge board, you used the weights that are mentioned in Government's Exhibit 407?

Mr. Bromley: It seems to me that that question ought to be separated, in fairness, between sending out quotations and billing, because they are two entirely different things.

Justice Stephens: Read the question.

(Thereupon, the pending question was read by the reporter.)

Justice Stephens: The question is double. Ask first about quotations, and then about billing. Sustained.

Mr. Knuff: All right.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. In sending out quotations on open-edge board, you used the weights that are mentioned in Government's 3810 Exhibit 407, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in billing your customers for open-edge board you used the weights mentioned in Government's Exhibit No. 407, is that correct? A. I can't say "yes" to that.

Q. You can't? A. I don't know.

Q. Before you became a licensee, was it your practice to use arbitrary or fictitious weights in quoting on board, or did you use the actual weights? A. We didn't use either one.

Q. What did you use? A. We had to meet conditions as we found them in each market we went into. In other words, we met the condition as we found it. We didn't make up a price of our own and say, "That is our price." We were only a small producer, and we had to take conditions as we found them, and if we were able to sell at those prices, all right.

Justice Stephens: I thought the question was about weights, Mr. Lenci.

The Witness: It was. He wanted to know if we took a mill price and added an arbitrary weight to figure the cost to destination.

Justice Stephens: I see. You are talking about the 3811 time before the license?

The Witness: Yes. That was the question.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You say that you had to meet the competition prior to the time you became a licensee, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And in quoting on board, you met that competition by quoting the prevailing price, or by quoting a lower price, isn't that correct? A. Yes.

Q. You couldn't cut the price on the freight, could you, that was established by the railroad? A. We had nothing to do with the freight.

Q. So that whenever you did meet that competition, you met it by cutting on the price of board, isn't that correct? A. Yes.

Q. On your mill price of board? A. It eventually worked back to the mill price, because we took the selling price, less the actual freight which had to be paid, leaving the price at the mill.

Q. Now turn to Government's Exhibit No. 404 again, please. On page 2 you will notice that it says:

"Truck deliveries from New Brighton Mill add $3.00 to New Brighton base prices, or $2.00 to Oakfield delivered carload prices."

3812 Do you notice that? A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell us what the business reason was, if you know, for having the truck prices increased over the New Brighton price, or over the Oakfield carload price?

Justice Stephens: Will you please read the last two questions to me, Mr. Grover?. I don't quite clearly get what you are asking about, Mr. Knuff:

(Thereupon, the record was read by the reporter as requested.)

The Witness: I don't know what the reason for that was.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. On that same page you will notice this statement:

"Truck deliveries from New York and Newark Warehouses, add $2.00 per M sq. ft. to warehouse prices."

Do you notice that? A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell us, if you know, what the business reason was as to why truck deliveries were increased $2 over the warehouse price? A. Well, the material was brought by rail to New York and Newark, and if an additional service had to be given by way of trucking, $2 was added for that additional handling, warehousing and delivery by truck.

Q. I see. In other words, this $2 represented an 3813 additional service that was performed— A. (Interposing) For the customer.

Q. For which the customer was charged $2 over the warehouse price, is that correct? A. Over the price at the warehouse, or f. o. b. cars.

Q. I notice on page 2, on the right-hand side of that page, that there are some notations such as "22.15", and then I can't make out what that other writing is. Can you interpret that for us? A. I wrote it. I could speculate on what that is, but I don't know whether it would be true.

Q. I don't want you to speculate. If you haven't any present recollection— A. (Interposing) I don't have.

Q. You don't have any? A. No.

Q. I also notice just following the statement:

"Truck deliveries from New York and Newark Warehouses, add $2.00 per M sq. ft. to warehouse prices", that there are some penciled notations such as "3/8—15 1/2; 1/2—" and then I don't know whether that is "17" or "170"; and then following the 17 or 170, whichever it is, there is "23.10".

All that is bracketed and to the right of the bracket you will notice what looks to me like the word "trucks". A. It is "trucked".

3814 Q. Trucked? A. Yes.

Q. What does that mean? A. If I might explain, in the early stages of the plasterboard business, in New York, the customers bought it at so much per board, and those prices there are for 15-1/2 cents on 3/8-inch board, and 17 cents on 1/2-inch board, represented as the price per unit, per board, rather than the price per thousand square feet.

Q. And what is that $23.10, what is that figure? A. That would be $23.10 per thousand square feet.

Q. Delivered how? A. Delivered by truck.

Q. From where? A. That is what that memorandum would mean, I believe.

Q. From where, from the Newark and New York warehouses? A. I think so, because it follows immediately after that.

Justice Stephens: That "15-1/2" means what?

The Witness: 15-1/2 cents per board.

Justice Stephens: What does the figure "17" mean?

The Witness: 17 cents per board for 1/2-inch board.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that practice of quoting "per board" abandoned? A. It eventually was.

Q. It eventually was abandoned? A. Yes.

3815 Q. It was a recognized practice in the industry before this time, and at this time? A. Yes. It goes back a great many years. The custom in New York had always been to buy what they called "plasterboards" on a unit basis. It goes 'way back even before the time that any so-called gypsum board was made. It goes back to the early stucco board.

Q. And the 15-1/2 cents represented the price per board for 3/8-inch board, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And the 17 cents represented the price per board for 1/2-inch board? A. That is right.

Q. Mr. Lenci, I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit No. 408, the same being a letter addressed to Mr. George N. Lenci, dated May 24, 1929, signed United States Gypsum Company by C. Henning, Vice President in Charge of Sales.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 408, for identification.)

Justice Stephens: Is that in this additional set?

Mr. Knuff: It came in with the list you had yesterday, and it should follow the letter of May 23, 1929, Gov-
3816 ernment's Exhibit 404, which was the first bulletin issued by USG after the license was signed.

Justice Stephens: What is the date of the letter?

Mr. Knuff: The date of Exhibit 408 for identification is May 24, 1929. On the left hand side of this letter, your Honor, you will find a grand jury exhibit number "8". Maybe that will help you to locate it a little more expeditiously.

Justice Stephens: I will find it eventually. It is not in this set.

Mr. Knuff: I will see that your Honor gets a copy of it.

Justice Stephens: Excuse me, I have it now. I am sorry to have delayed you.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, did you receive Government's Exhibit 408? A. Yes.

Q. Was that handed out at the meeting in Chicago, or did that come to you by mail, if you know? A. I think it came by mail.

Q. It came by mail? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: If your Honor pleases, we now offer in evidence Government's Exhibit No. 408.

Mr. Bromley: We raise only the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Let me read it, please.

Mr. Knuff: Pardon me.

3817 Justice Stephens: Received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 408 was received in evidence.)

Mr. Knuff: I call your Honors' particular attention to paragraphs 2 and 5 of that letter, paragraph 2 starting, "Minimum Prices to Manufacturers and Jobbers", and so forth; and paragraph 5 beginning with, "You will please send us a list of the jobbers", and so forth.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, on May 24, 1929, you were selling gypsum board and lath to jobbers, were you not? A. I don't remember.

Q. You say you don't remember whether or not you had any jobbers? A. I don't remember at that time. We never had very many, and unless you refresh my memory, I can't remember.

Q. Do you remember a firm by the name of Coeyman? A. Yes.

Q. Were they jobbers? A. Yes.

Q. And were you selling gypsum products to Coeyman at this time? A. I don't remember whether it was 3818 just at that time, or not.

Q. Well, at approximately that time. A. We had sold him as a jobber.

Q. You had? A. Yes.

Q. You can't think of any others? A. Sometime prior to that I think we sold the Abbey Company. I don't remember any others just now.

Q. But your best recollection is that you were selling to jobbers at or about this time, but the number of jobbers you cannot now tell us, is that correct? A. They were very few.

Q. Very few? A. Yes.

Q. In the phrase, "Minimum Prices to Manufacturers and Jobbers", you notice the word "Manufacturers" there? A. Yes.

Q. What was your understanding as to the meaning of "Manufacturers"? Did you understand that that meant that that was the price that you could sell the manufacturers who were manufacturing gypsum products but not manufacturing board, or did you understand by the word "manufacturers" that that meant that you could sell to a manufacturer who was also manufacturing board? A. I 3819 don't remember whether there was any distinction made or not.

Q. I see. You will notice that the last paragraph of the letter states:

"You will please send us a list of the jobbers to whom you are selling patented board."

Do you notice that? A. Yes.

Q. Did you send that list to Mr. Henning? A. I think so.

Q. You are not sure at the present time? A. I am not sure, but I think we did.

Q. Do you know, Mr. Lenci, whether other manufacturers were selling through jobbers at this time, or about this time?

Justice Stephens: By "other manufacturers", do you mean other licensees?

Mr. Kniff: Other than Ebsary.

Justice Stephens: Other licensees?

Mr. Knuff: Other licensees, yes, sir.

Justice Stephens: You can answer that "yes" or "no", whether you know or not.

The Witness: I am not sure, no.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You are not sure whether they were? A. No. The reason I hesitate on that is that we were doing busi-3820 ness in a very limited territory.

Q. Did you have any trade information on it at all? A. I don't recall any.

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 409, the same being a letter, dated May 25, 1929, addressed to Mr. George N. Lenci, and signed United States Gypsum Company by C. Henning, Vice President in Chg. Sales.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 409, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive that letter, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We now offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 409.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 409 was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You have before you Government's Exhibit No.
3821 404? A. Yes.

Q. You will notice in Government's Exhibit 409 the words, "Acme, Texas"? A. Yes.

Q. That was an addition to the basing points mentioned in Government's Exhibit 404, was it not? By that I mean that Acme, Texas, was added to the list of basing points that were contained in Government's Exhibit 404, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now will you look at the same paragraph where the towns of Oakfield, New York, Gypsum, Ohio, Plasterco, Virginia, and so forth, are mentioned. Do you notice that? A. Yes.

Q. Are these places where the United States Gypsum Company, if you know, had mills? A. I know that they had mills in several of those places.

Q. In what places? A. Well, there is no question about Oakfield, or Gypsum, or Plasterco, or Fort Dodge, Iowa, or Southard, Oklahoma.

Q. What about Grand Rapids? A. I am not sure.

Q. What about Acme, Texas? A. I don't remember.

Q. And Sweetwater, Texas? A. I don't know as 3822 to that.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 410, the same being a letter dated June 7, 1929, addressed to George N. Lenci, and signed by C. Henning, Vice President in Charge of Sales.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 410, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive that letter, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: I now offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 410.

Mr. Bromley: The usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 410 was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. On the first page of that letter there is a penciled notation at the left-hand side, at about the middle of that page. Can you tell us what that means? A. Well, it reads, "#2 & Seconds".

Q. What is the meaning of that, sir? A. I be-3823 lieve that was just to call attention to the fact that the prices on No. 2 board and seconds had been changed from the previous bulletin.

Q. Now at that time do you know whether United States Gypsum was selling seconds? A. No, I don't know.

Q. You don't know whether they were or not? A. No.

Q. Do you know what their policy was as to the sale of seconds? A. No, I couldn't state that, I don't know.

Q. You don't know? A. No.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 411, the same being a letter dated June 19, 1929, addressed to George N. Lenci, Vice President, and signed United States Gypsum Company, C. Henning.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 411, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive that letter, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: I now offer in evidence Government's Exhibit No. 411.

3824 Mr. Bromley: The usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 411 was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you look at the last paragraph of that letter, reading, "For shipment in straight or mixed cars delivered to dealers in Grand Rapids, Mich., switching limits, add $1.00 per M sq. ft. to prices listed above."

Do you notice that? A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell us what the business reason was, if you know, why $1 was added to the prices listed above in that letter? A. Well, the prices listed above are the prices f. o. b. cars, Grand Rapids mill, and in order to make the price to the customer within the switching limits of Grand Rapids, $1 was added to cover the cost of loading and the switching charge, the handling by the railroad, to the customer's yard, the customer's siding.

Q. Was that an average cost, Mr. Lenci, if you know? A. I have no way of knowing.

Q. You haven't any way of knowing? A. I have 3825 no way of knowing.

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 412, the same being a letter, dated June 19, 1929, addressed to Mr. George N. Lenci, Vice President, and signed, United States Gypsum Company, C. Henning.

Did you receive that letter? A. Yes.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 412, for identification.)

Mr. Knuff: I now offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 412.

Mr. Bromley: The usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received in evidence, subject to the usual declaration with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 412 was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, will you look at the block on that letter, on the first page, dealing with the minimum prices to dealers' warehouses in Brooklyn, Queens, Manhattan, and Bronx Counties. Do you notice the block that I refer to?

3826 A. Yes.

Q. You will notice that there is a minimum truckload of 10,000 square feet mentioned. Do you notice that? A. Yes.

Q. And going down the page into the block relating to the delivered price in truck loads in Nassau County, Long Island, and Westchester County, New York, you will notice that there was a minimum truckload of 8,000 square feet. A. Yes.

Q. And going down to the next block, you will notice that there was a minimum truckload of 7,500 square feet—do you notice that? A. Yes.

Q. Now Government's Exhibit 412 was the first price bulletin in which USG had prescribed minimum truckload quantities, is that correct?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that question as assuming a fact not in evidence, or contrary to the evidence, because this prescribes a price for a truckload.

Mr. Knuff: My question has only been directed as to the minimum truckload requirements. I haven't asked the witness anything about price.

Mr. Bromley: My objection is that there is no minimum truckload requirement. There is a specification of a price for a minimum truckload.

3827 Mr. Oliver: I object on the ground that he is asking the witness—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Just a moment. Let us read this so we can pass on one objection at a time.

I suppose it is a matter of interpretation, Mr. Bromley, whether that is a price on a minimum truckload basis, or whether it is a minimum truckload. That being true, the question might be objectionable, Mr. Knuff, as being double. You may have to have some explanation as to which this is.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, this is the first bulletin—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Just a minute, Mr. Knuff. Did you have something, Mr. Oliver?

Mr. Oliver: My point was that the question called for a conclusion. He is asking if this was the first bulletin issued by United States Gypsum covering that. How does the witness know?

Justice Stephens: The question meant—issued to him, as I understood it. Did you understand this question to mean, Mr. Lenci, the first bulletin you received in which the subject of minimum truckloads was mentioned?

The Witness: That is the way I understood it. That is the reason I was looking at these other papers to see if truckloads were mentioned in there.

By Mr. Knuff:

3828 Q. Mr. Lenci, this was the first bulletin you had received from the United States Gypsum Company which prescribed a minimum truckload quantity at a prescribed price, is that correct? A. I believe it is.

Q. Can you tell us what the business reason was, if you know, why there was a minimum so prescribed? A. Well, I could only speculate as to what their thoughts were when they issued this.

Q. You don't know, do you? A. We had nothing to do with the issuance of it.

Q. Would your answer be the same with reference to what the business reason was as to why an 8,000 square foot minimum truckload was prescribed? A. It would have to be the same.

Q. Now at this time were you manufacturing closed-edge board? A. I am not sure. We must have been very close to it. We may have been.

Q. Did you comply with the United States Gypsum price bulletins, did your company comply with the United States Gypsum price bulletins, as to price, terms and delivery requirements? A. Only if we were making the closed-edge board.

3829 Q. In other words, if you were not delivering a closed-edge board you didn't have a minimum truckload requirement, is that what you mean? A. Only as we established one, due to our own economic conditions.

Q. Were you shipping into Brooklyn and Queens and Manhattan by truck? A. Yes.

Q. And what size trucks were you using at that time? A. What do you mean by "what size"?

Q. Well, two-ton or a truck on which you could load 5000 or 10,000 square feet? A. We didn't own any trucks, we hired trucks.

A. And we hired the heavy trucks, large trucks.

Q. On the second page of Exhibit 412 you will notice that the name "Middlesex County, N. J." appears, and underneath it a block of towns. Do you see that? A. Yes.

Q. Could you deliver—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) Did you say "would" or "could"?

Mr. Knuff: Could.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Could you deliver at the prices specified on page 1 of this bulletin, and in the minimum quantities specified 3830 on page 1 of this bulletin, at the bottom of the page, by truck, into any towns in Middlesex County, New Jersey, not mentioned on page 2 of this bulletin?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that unless he means to call for his understanding of the bulletin.

Justice Stephens: What he could do—

Mr. Knuff: (Interposing) Well, I meant of course whether he understood that he could only deliver into the towns mentioned, or whether he could deliver to any towns in Middlesex County which were not mentioned.

Justice Jackson: By reason of this bulletin?

Mr. Knuff: That is right. Suppose I start over again.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. There were certain towns mentioned on page 2 of Exhibit 412 as being in Middlesex County, New Jersey. Now those towns were not the only towns in Middlesex County, New Jersey, were they? A. No.

Q. There were other towns in that county? A. I believe so.

Q. Was it your understanding that you could not deliver into those unnamed towns, by truck, the minimum quantity of board at the specified price? A. No, I think these towns were merely named here as a matter of convenience. There was no limitation. If there was any town in 3831 Middlesex County that was not on this list, we still could deliver to it.

Q. You still could deliver to it? A. Oh, yes. This was merely a matter of convenience, I believe, and there was no limitation on it.

Justice Stephens: What is the handwriting on the left-hand side of page 2 of this exhibit, if you know?

The Witness: I haven't any idea as to whose writing that is. It isn't mine. It is bad, but it isn't mine.

Justice Stephens: Very well.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Is it your understanding that you were not limited by the bulletins to the towns and territories specifically covered by the license bulletins? A. Yes. You are referring to these—

Q. (Interposing) I am referring generally, sir, to your understanding of the bulletins.

Suppose that the license bulletin mentioned delivery by truck into Monroe County, New York, and that was the only county that was mentioned in the license bulletin. Is it your understanding that you could deliver by truck at the same price and in the same quantities, into Genesee County? A. No, not if they specified Monroe County.

Q. In other words—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) Are they con-
3832 tiguous counties, by the way?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, they are, as I understand it.

Justice Jackson: I just wanted to know.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. In other words, the license bulletins, when they placed a definite price, and a definite limitation as to loads, and a definite area, precluded you from delivering at the same price and the same minimums, to any other area than that specified in the license bulletin?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that unless he calls for the witness' understanding.

Mr. Knuff: That is what I am asking for, as I recall.

Justice Stephens: Very well.

Justice Jackson: That is intended by the question.

Justice Stephens: Give your understanding as to the effect of the bulletins, as you dealt with them, in respect of the matter inquired about.

The Witness: In all of these bulletins they mentioned lists of counties in which we could make deliveries. We could quote and could sell into those counties mentioned, but if a certain place was not mentioned, if a certain county was not mentioned as being open for trucking deliveries, we could not establish it on our own account.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Now in Exhibit 412 you will notice at page 2
3833 that it says, "Hudson County, N. J.—all towns".
A. Yes.

Q. And for Middlesex County they list some towns. Do you notice that? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: That is on page 2?

Mr. Knuff: Page 2, your Honor.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You say it is your understanding that you could ship into the unnamed towns in Middlesex County at the same price and the same minimums as you could ship into those named towns? A. That would be my interpretation.

Q. What would be the reason, if you know, for naming these specific towns? Why not say, "Middlesex County, New Jersey—all towns"? A. I don't know. Take Hudson County, for instance, that is practically all one city, Jersey City. So there would be very little point in covering it any other way.

Essex County is Newark and The Oranges, and very little else.

Union County is Elizabeth and a couple of other towns.

Then when you get out into the country, as a matter of convenience I think these others were listed.

But there never was any limitation that we could 3834 sell a town in Bergen County because it was listed and if there was a town next door to that, which didn't happen to be listed, that we could not sell that.

Q. That was your understanding? A. That was my understanding.

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 413, the same being a letter dated June 21, 1929, addressed to George N. Lenci, and signed by C. Henning, Vice President in Charge of Sales.

Did you receive that letter?

Justice Jackson: It is not in my file.

Mr. Knuff: I am sorry, I will see that you are furnished with a copy of that.

Justice Stephens: That is Exhibit 413?

Mr. Knuff: 413, your Honor.

In order to expedite the case, I am going to withdraw that exhibit.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has now been marked as Exhibit No. 413, the same being a letter dated June 26, 1929, addressed to George N. Lenci, and signed by C. Henning. Did you receive that letter, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 413, for identification.)

3835 Mr. Knuff: We now offer in evidence Government's Exhibit No. 413.

Mr. Bromley: We make only the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 413 was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. What is the meaning of the penciled notation appearing at the top of that letter just under the address? A. Seconds and #2.

Q. Can you tell us what is meant by that? A. That is a memorandum I put on there calling attention to the fact that this was a change in the price of seconds and No. 2 board.

Q. Now you notice when you come down to 3/8-inch No. 2 grade gypsum wallboard, that the price changed from $18.75 per thousand square feet to $20 per thousand square feet?

Justice Jackson: I haven't that one either.

Mr. Knuff: I am sorry, your Honor, that you don't have it. I will furnish you a copy.

Justice Garrett: I have the letter which you de-3836 scribe, but I can't find that item that you have just referred to.

Mr. Knuff: It is immediately following the list of towns listed on the first page.

Justice Garrett: Yes, I have found it now. Thank you.

Mr. Knuff: I now offer in evidence Government's Exhibit No. 413.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 413 was received in evidence on page 4129 of this transcript.)

Justice Stephens: That is quite a long exhibit, and if you are going to have a substantial amount of examination on that, we might as well take the noon recess at this time.

(Thereupon, at 12:15 o'clock p.m. a recess was taken until 1:45 o'clock p.m. of the same day.)

3837 AFTERNOON SESSION

(The trial was resumed at 1:45 o'clock p.m., pursuant to recess.)

Justice Stephens: Proceed, gentlemen.

Mr. Knuff: Judge Jackson, during the lunch hour I sent over to the Department, and I have obtained a negative photostat of Exhibit 413. We didn't have any more positives over there.

Justice Jackson: Well, in good business, particularly banking, there is always a "yes" window and a "no" window. I guess this is the "no" window. (Laughter.)

Thank you. What is the number of that again?

Mr. Knuff: Exhibit 413, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: You may proceed.

Thereupon, GEORGE N. LENCI the witness on the stand at the time of recess, resumed his testimony as follows:

Direct Examination (resumed)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, I call your attention to the item on Exhibit 413 immediately following the basing points, that is, 3/8" #2 Grade Gypsum Wallboard—price changed from $18.75 per M sq. ft. to $20.00 per M sq. ft. Do you notice that? A. Yes, sir.

3838 Q. That is an increase in your #2 Grade Gypsum Wallboard of $2.50 over the original bulletin price of May 23, is it not? A. It is an increase of $1.25—not in our price, it is in the USG's price.

Q. That is what I say. It is an increase, is it not, of $2.50 over the May 23 price? A. Yes.

Q. And likewise, on your 3/8" Wallboard SECONDS, the price of $17.50 per M sq. ft. is an increase of $2.50 over the May 23 USG bulletin prices? A. That is right.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 414, the same being a letter dated July 9, 1929, addressed to George N. Lenci, Vice President, and signed C. Henning, Vice President in Charge of Sales.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 414 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive that bulletin, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: I now offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 414.

3839 Mr. Bromley: We make only the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 414 was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You will notice, Mr. Lenci, that in Government's Exhibit 414 no mention is made of No. 2 board in that bulletin? A. That is right.

Q. That means that a licensee who was manufacturing board would be unable to sell a No. 2 board, is that not correct?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as incompetent because it calls for an interpretation of the bulletin, the interpretation in the question being obviously unsound.

Mr. Knuff: I think, if Your Honor pleases, that is proper cross examination.

Justice Stephens: I don't seem to be able to get counsel to understand the Court's view of that type of examination, Mr. Knuff. I have ruled twice, now, that while the rules permit you to lead, they do not permit you to cross examine as if this witness had been called on direct 3840 examination and is therefore a witness whose understanding might be gone into as bearing upon the meaning of his direct testimony. Whether the effect of these license bulletins was to prevent a particular item of conduct, I should think we would have to determine, as a matter of law, from the bulletins.

Mr. Knuff: I don't think that these bulletins are clear enough so that the Court can, without any further explanation, determine what they do mean.

Justice Stephens: The Court very carefully indicated to you yesterday or the day before that it does not assume or intend to restrict the Government from proving what was done or what was not done after receiving the bulletins. You are entitled to show that, of course, and if the bulletins are ambiguous it may well be that we will get to a point where the interpretation by conduct might be shown. That is a matter we might have to have argument upon before we made a ruling.

What is the question which is objected to?

(The pending question was read by the reporter.)

Justice Stephens: The defendants have not been objecting, this morning, to your examining this witness upon the understanding he had as to the requirements of the bulletins, but you don't even ask that in this question.

Mr. Knuff: I will rephrase my question, Your 3841 Honor. I accept that correction. I assumed that my question had included that. That is what I meant to convey by my question.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, you understood, did you not, by the bulletin of July 9, that when there was no quotation given for No. 2 board in that bulletin, that you would not be permitted to sell a No. 2 board? A. It was my understanding that this July 9 bulletin indicated that the price was established for a 3/8" wallboard, not specifying, any longer, a difference between No. 1 grade and No. 2 grade. That was my interpretation of it.

Q. If, at that time, you were manufacturing a No. 2 wallboard, and this bulletin had been issued, could you have continued to sell your No. 2 wallboard?

Mr. Bromley: That is the same question. I object to it on the same ground.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Is it your understanding that you could have continued to sell that wallboard? A. Well, we never made a No. 2 wallboard.

Q. I understand that. A. If we had, and had sold it, it would have to have been sold at this price in here, which represents the price of 3/8" wallboard, without classification.

Q. And heretofore, there had been a difference
3842 in price between the No. 1 wallboard and the No. 2 wallboard, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And it is your understanding that if you had manufactured a No. 2 wallboard, you would have had to sell that No. 2 wallboard at the same price as for the No. 1 wallboard, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 415, the same being a letter dated July 24, 1929, addressed to George N. Lenci, Vice President, and signed C. Henning, Vice President in Charge of Sales.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 415 for Identification.)

Mr. Knuff: I offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 415, Your Honor.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Did you ask him if he had received it?

Mr. Knuff: No, I say I am offering it now.

Justice Stephens: Did you ask the witness if he had received this letter?

Mr. Knuff: I beg your pardon, I guess I didn't.

3843 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, did you receive this letter? A. Yes, I did.

Mr. Knuff: We now offer it in evidence.

Justice Stephens: The exhibit is received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit No. 415, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Do you notice, Mr. Lenci, in the third paragraph, it says:

"$16.46 per M sq. ft. in 20-ton minimum cars.

"$15.91 per M sq. ft. in 30 or 40 ton minimum cars."

Do you notice that? A. Yes.

Q. What was the business reason for making a differential in price between a 20-ton and a 30 or 40-ton car, if you know? A. I know. At that time we were not doing business ourselves in the Chicago area, but I do know that a great many Western railroads had one freight rate for a 20-ton car but a slightly lesser rate if the car was loaded to a heavier weight. Is that clear? In other words, the 3844 freight rate would be less on a 40-ton car, per ton, than it would be on a 20-ton car.

Q. Well, what has the freight rate to do with a differential in price, if you know? A. Well, these prices here represent a mill price plus freight or switching charge to these various destinations mentioned in these first four or five paragraphs.

Q. Well, your price was always a delivered price, was it not, the price that you quoted? A. Yes.

Q. Now then, what would the difference in freight rate have to do with the differential in the size of the car, per thousand feet? A. That is quite simple. If the material cost so much at the mill, and it cost a certain amount to deliver a 20-ton car to a certain destination, but a 40-ton car could be taken to that same destination at a lesser cost per ton; the corresponding delivered price would be less by the difference in the cost of transportation.

Q. Is it your understanding that the business reason was to try to equalize the delivery price so that a 20-ton car could be delivered at the same price as a 30-ton car? A. No. It is just the opposite. It was giving the customer the benefit of the lower price if he bought a larger quantity.

3845 Q. Well, is this $16.46 per thousand square feet a delivered price? A. Yes.

Q. That is a delivered price? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: Let the Court understand that. How can that be unless it was known exactly what the freight rate was?

Justice Jackson: They evidently knew what the freight rate was, didn't they?

The Witness: They must have known what the freight rate was when they established this, and that probably represents an average to these various points in the Chicago suburbs.

Justice Stephens: I see.

The Witness: Can I make that clear for you?

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. It isn't clear to me. A. These prices are fairly arbitrary. I am not familiar with the exact prices, but suppose the price at the mill was $15.00, and the freight rate on a

20-ton car was $1.50 a thousand. That would be a price, delivered, of $16.50. But suppose the railroad says, "If you ship a 40-ton car we will give you a correspondingly lower freight rate, and your freight will only be $1.00
3846 a thousand." It would be $15.00 at the mill plus only $1.00, which would make $16.00 at destination, in return for the customer buying a larger quantity.

Justice Stephens: Those freight rates were sufficiently stable so that you could depend upon them as guiding your price on a delivered price basis?

The Witness: Yes, they were all I. C. C. published rates, and this represents probably the average to these points.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. What do you mean by "average costs" within that area? I think you used the words "average cost". A. Yes.

Q. What do you mean by that? A. I didn't write these bulletins, you understand.

Mr. Bromley: He didn't say "average cost".

Justice Stephens: You mean average freight rate, do you not?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. What do you mean by that? A. I didn't write these bulletins, as I say, and I am only speculating. I am trying to explain it to the Court.

Justice Stephens: Don't speculate about it if you don't know how these prices were figured out. I think it is 3847 clear now.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. What do you mean by "average freight"? A. Let's use Washington as an example, to make it clear. Suppose Washington downtown had a rate of $1.25 to Bethesda, and $1.30 to Silver Spring, and $1.35 to Chevy Chase. The average of those would be $1.30. That would be the average rate which might well be established for deliveries to various suburban points around the center of Washington.

In other words, if you didn't do that you would have a dealer in Chevy Chase getting one price, and right next door you would have a dealer getting still a different price, and over at Silver Spring you would have a dealer getting another price. You have got to keep the people who are doing business in the same area, more or less on the same price basis.

Q. I see. And the purpose of this was to assure everybody in Chicago, whether he was on the North side of Chicago or the South side of Chicago, that they could get their board at the same price; is that correct? A. Yes, because they were all competing in the same little suburban towns.

Q. They were competing in what way, in price or 3848 in service? A. I am speaking now of the dealers.

Q. There was no price competition, was there? A. I am speaking of the customer; the dealer, who had to sell to the ultimate consumer, had to be able to buy at the same price as his next-door neighbor.

Q. I show you what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 416, the same being a letter of the United States Gypsum Company dated July 25, 1929, addressed to George N. Lenci, and signed C. Henning, Vice President in Charge of Sales.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 416 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive that letter? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We offer in evidence, if Your Honor pleases, Government's Exhibit 416.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit No. 416, was received in evidence.)

3849 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. On Exhibit 416, Mr. Lenci, do you see any price on that bulletin for Seconds? A. No, this appears to be only a plasterboard bulletin.

Q. Well, is there any price on there for Seconds of plasterboard? A. No.

Q. There never was a price for Seconds on plasterboard under the bulletins? A. I don't think there was, no.

3850 Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 417, the same being a letter dated July 26, 1929, addressed to George N. Lenci, and signed by Mr. Henning.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 417, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive that, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We now offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 417.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 417 was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. The last paragraph of that letter reads:

"Plasterboard not delivered by our trucks to dealers warehouses. Please disregard the minimum price for delivery by truck given in our letter of July 25."

Can you explain what that means? A. That is a 3851 correction of the July 25th bulletin, of the second paragraph on the third page. That paragraph reads, "for truck deliveries to dealers warehouses". This letter of July 26th is apparently correcting that, by saying that plasterboard is not delivered by trucks to the dealers' warehouses. It is merely a correction in the wording of the previous bulletin.

Q. Is it your understanding that this meant there would be no truck deliveries to the dealers' warehouses out of Charlestown, Massachusetts? A. That is right.

Q. I show you Government's Exhibit 418, for identification, the same being dated August 3, 1929, addressed to George N. Lenci, and signed by Mr. Henning, Vice President in Charge of Sales.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 418, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive that, Mr. Lenci?

Justice Garrett: Just a moment, please. The next one in order here is the one of July 31st.

Mr. Knuff: I am omitting that, your Honor.

Justice Garrett: You are not offering it?

Mr. Knuff: I am not identifying it or offering it.
3852 Justice Garrett: All right.

The Witness: Yes, I received that.

Mr. Knuff: I now offer in evidence, if your Honor please, Government's Exhibit 418 for identification.

Mr. Bromley: I make only the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 418 was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. By this time, I take it, Mr. Lenci, the Ebsary Gypsum Company was making closed-edge wallboard and plasterboard, is that correct? A. I would say so, yes.

Q. And you had been making it for some little time prior to the receipt of this exhibit? A. I believe so, yes.

Q. Did you know when the Utzman patent expired? A. In August 1929, I forget the day.

Q. August 5th or 6th, 1929. And you received a bulletin from the licensor on August 3, 1929, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now after August 6—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) That is not 3853 exactly correct, is it? Did you receive it on August 3d, or was it dated August 3d?

The Witness: It was dated August 3d.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. It was dated August 3d? A. Yes.

Q. And you received it within a day or two after that, would you say? A. Yes.

Q. Now then, did you ever receive a bulletin, after August 6, 1929, advising the Ebsary Gypsum Company that you were not required to follow the previous bulletins that were sent you? A. No.

Q. You never received such a letter? A. No.

Q. After August 6, 1929, you continued to sell board, and lath, at the same prices that you had sold it previous to August 6, did you not? A. To this extent. This was a transition period. We still were closing out our old materials and working ourselves up to the new basis. Without reference to some other records I could not say whether we were actually securing these prices, at this time, or not. You see what I mean? We had commitments, we had closed orders ahead.

3854 On your closed-edge board that you were selling after August 6th, did you observe bulletin prices?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as incompetent, as assuming facts not in evidence. There weren't any bulletin prices after August 6. Every one of these notices is limited, in the opening paragraph, to the Utzman patent, and the contract specifically provided that there should be no right to fix prices after the expiration of this patent on August 6, 1929.

Justice Stephens: The objection is sustained. You may ask him what prices he charged after August 6, 1929, and you may ask the Court to compare them with the previously announced bulletin prices.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. On your closed-edge board and on your closed-edge lath, did you comply with all the terms and conditions of the bulletins that were sent you prior to August 6, and on those products which were sold by you prior to August 6, 1929?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as calling for a conclusion.

Justice Jackson: I wish you would break up that question a little bit, Mr. Knuff. It involves too many things.

Mr. Knuff: I will try to do that.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, I am referring now to the period prior to August 6, 1929. You understand that? A. Yes.

3855 Q. And I am also referring to closed-edge board. Do you understand that? A. Right.

Q. On your sales of closed-edge board, did you comply with the terms and conditions of the USG bulletins? A. Prior to August 6?

Q. That is right. A. I can't tell you, I don't know.

Q. You don't know? A. I don't know. I say that honestly because, like everyone in the business, we all had orders and contracts taken ahead, and we had to fulfill our prior obligations. Now whether we had cleaned up those obligations and gotten into these new prices, and were securing these new prices, or not, I cannot answer, I do not know.

Q. Those commitments you had were on open-edge board, were they not? A. We had to fill them with something.

Q. I am just referring, Mr. Lenci, to closed-edge board. A. I know that.

Q. Did you comply with all the terms and conditions of the USG bulletins that were issued prior to August 6, 1929?

Mr. Bromley: He has answered that and said that he can't possibly tell. I object to it as repetitious.

3856 Justice Stephens: Sustained. You are not foreclosed from asking what terms and conditions he did sell on, if he knows.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you comply with any of the USG price bulletins on closed-edge board prior to August 6th? A. We probably made some sales on the higher basis, but we had a great many that we had to clean up at older and lower prices.

Q. Now what are you referring to when you say you had to "clean up"; are you referring to open-edge or closed-edge board? A. We had orders for board—

Q. (Interposing) What kind of board? A. Any kind of board; and if we couldn't fill them with open-edge board, our customers expected us to make deliveries and we had to make deliveries with whatever board we had, and that towards the last, up near this period, was closed-edge board. We moved from one type of board to another in completing these orders. So I can't honestly say that we were fulfilling the terms of these bulletins in full.

Q. You probably were complying with some of those bulletins as to some of the orders, is that correct? A. That is quite possible.

3857 Q. And after August 6, 1929, did the Ebsary Gypsum Company change its sales policy on closed-edge board? A. No.

Q. Do you know if other licensees, after August 6, 1929, sold board at the same price that they had sold it prior to August 6?

Mr. Bromley: That calls for a "yes" or "no" answer.

Justice Stephens: Do you know about that?

The Witness: I don't know that, no, sir.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. If they had sold it, would you have known?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as speculative.

Mr. Knuff: I think it was brought out very clearly by Mr. Higgins that this is a very competitive industry, and the minute there was a change in price it was known throughout the industry.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Isn't that true, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes, but you must remember—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Yet it is a speculative question. The objection is sustained.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you have any trade information that after August 6, 1929, there was any difference in price policy in the industry than there was before August 6th, with reference to closed-edge board and lath? A. I don't remember.

3858 Q. You don't remember? A. No.

Q. Prior to May 22, 1929, the board situation was in a demoralized condition, I believe you have testified. A. It was in a very bad condition.

Q. Now after August 6, 1929, did the industry return to that condition? A. No.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 419, the same being a typewritten sheet of paper headed, "June 6th Discussion."

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 419, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you look at that, Mr. Lenci?

Justice Stephens: Have we that before us?

Mr. Knuff: You should have that, your Honor.

Justice Jackson: Is it this paper that has a lot of numbered sentences on it?

Mr. Knuff: That is right, your Honor.

Justice Jackson: There is no date on mine.

Mr. Knuff: The date is probably under the clip at the top.

By Mr. Knuff:

3859 Q. The paper that you have before you, Mr. Lenci, was prepared by you, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. And it was prepared after you had attended a meeting in Chicago on the 6th of June, 1929, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And it was prepared a few days after that meeting, is that correct? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We offer in evidence, if your Honor pleases, Government's Exhibit 419.

Mr. Bromley: I object to it as incompetent. I am not sure what it is, yet. It seems to me that no proper foundation has been laid for it.

Justice Stephens: We don't understand what it means, Mr. Knuff, and unless we do we cannot very well tell whether it has any bearing on the issues in this case. Can you have it explained a little further?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, I can have it explained.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr: Lenci, the paper that you have before you purports to contain notes of a meeting that you attended in Chicago on the 6th of June, 1929, does it not? A. Yes.

Q. And these are notes of the discussion that was 3860 had at that meeting, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And you attended that meeting? A. Yes.

Q. And you prepared the notes shortly after that meeting was held, is that correct? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: I think, if your Honor pleases, that it is now properly identified.

Mr. Bromley: I don't understand that these notes would be competent in the absence of an attempt to develop from the witness what happened at the meeting.

Justice Stephens: You don't show what the meeting was, and who was at the meeting. For all we know, it might have been a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Elks. (Laughter.)

What was the meeting, and who was there? You can perhaps tell us that informally.

Mr. Knuff: All right. I was under the impression that I could refer to the items—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Ordinarily that is true, but there are exceptions. We cannot rule upon exhibits as to their materiality and competency unless we know what they mean, and as to competency here, we can't tell yet whether this is offered to refresh his recollection, 3861 or as past recollection recorded, and if so, what—and until the word "what" is explained, we don't know whether it is relevant to any issue in the case.

Of course there are words on it which indicate that it has some relevancy, some relationship to the issues in the case, at least. It refers to "board" and "bubble board", and other things that we have heard of before.

We will permit you to examine the witness on this a little further, subject to a motion to strike if you do not develop that it is competent and material—in order that we may understand what it is.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. There are sixteen items on this exhibit, are there not, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. And they represent sixteen topics that were discussed at the meeting of June 6, 1929, which you attended, do they not? A. Yes.

Q. Who was present at that meeting that you can recall? A. I don't remember the individuals, but I think most of the licensee companies were represented.

Q. Was the United States Gypsum Company represented at that meeting of June 6? A. Yes.

3862 Q. Who attended for United States Gypsum Company, Mr. Avery, or Mr. MacLeish, or both? A. I don't really remember who attended for them. I know that Mr. Henning attended.

Q. Was Certain-teed represented there? A. I think so.

Q. Was National represented there? A. I think so.

Q. And of course you were present. A. Yes.

Q. And who else was present for Ebsary? A. I don't know whether anyone else was present at that meeting, or not. I have no record here to refresh my memory.

Q. Was any person there representing the Kelley Plasterboard Company? A. I don't think so.

Q. Was there anybody representing Atlantic Gypsum Company, present? A. I believe there was.

Q. That was Mr. Neale? A. It probably was Mr. Neale.

Q. When you say "probably", do you mean that that is your best recollection? A. Yes, I believe Mr. Neale was there.

Q. Was Mr. Channing there? A. I don't know, I 3863 don't remember.

Q. Was Texas Cement Plaster Company represented there at the meeting? A. I don't remember. I would say that Mr. Chism attended one of the early meetings, but I do not remember whether it was this individual meeting or not.

Q. Where was this meeting held? A. In Chicago.

Q. At the Palmer House in Chicago? A. I think so, I think so.

Q. On May 22nd and 23rd, 1929, when you were in Chicago, and at the time Ebsary signed the license agreement, was June 6 fixed as the date for a meeting of the licensees? A. I don't recall.

Q. Who called the meeting of June 6th? A. Charlie Henning—Mr. Henning.

Q. And what did he tell you the purpose of this meeting was? A. I don't remember that.

Q. How did he notify you that there was going to be a meeting held on the 6th of June? A. Well, sometimes we would get a telephone call, or a telegram, or a letter. It might come in either way.

Q. You don't know whether you received a telephone call, or a telegram, or a letter from Mr. Henning?

3864 A. No, I don't recall.

Q. But you know it was Mr. Henning that conveyed the information to you that there would be a meeting on the 6th of June, 1929? A. Yes, he acted as the chairman, and he was the usual one who called the meetings, in fact he always called the meetings.

Q. And do you recall what information was conveyed to you as to who would be present at that meeting? A. As to the few notices which I do remember getting, the letter would simply say, "There will be a meeting of the licensees" on such-and-such a date at such-and-such an address, and no agenda was given, or anything of that kind.

Q. You don't recall, Mr. Lenci, if I understand you correctly, whether or not you received a telephone call, or a telegram, or a letter advising you that a meeting was going to be held? A. That is right.

Q. But you did go to Chicago on the 6th of June? A. Yes.

Q. And you attended a meeting there? A. Yes.

Q. And the various companies that you have mentioned attended that meeting also? A. Yes.

3865 Q. Now what was discussed at that meeting? A. Well the first thing mentioned on this memorandum is bubble board contracts and—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Don't read from the memorandum. You were asked what was discussed at the meeting. If you remember yourself, tell us from your own memory.

The Witness: I was using this purely as a reminder.

Justice Stephens: That is all right. Have you no independent recollection of what took place at the meeting, without that memorandum?

The Witness: Not completely, no. I would have as to one or two of the items.

Justice Stephens: And this proposed Exhibit 419 does refresh your recollection as to what took place?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state what did take place at that meeting of June 6th, with reference to bubble board? A. At the June 6th meeting Mr. Henning asked us to be sure to have our lawyers check up on the bubble board contracts which had been, as I recall it, submitted just prior to this time.

You see—going back to the May meeting—Mr. Avery told us about the bubble board invention or patents, rather—.

Q. (Interposing) Did he tell you that at the May 3866 meeting or at the June meeting? A. At the May meeting. And following that meeting there were contracts, as I recall it, mailed to the various licensees, to be submitted to our attorneys, for them to check. Mr. Henning asked us to please get after our counsel to look over these licenses, these proposed licenses, and to send them in or make comments upon them.

Q. You say that Mr. Henning told you to get after your attorneys to have them check over these agreements, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. What was Mr. Henning's hurry about that, do you know? A. I don't know.

Q. You don't? A. No.

Q. At the meeting where Mr. Avery told you about this bubble board arrangement, do you recall that Mr. Avery stated to you that he had been in Europe a few months previous for the purpose of purchasing ships to haul gypsum from Nova Scotia to the United States, and while he was in Europe he had contacted the inventor or the owners of the Bayer patent, and that he had found out from the owners or the inventor that the United States was going to be thrown open for the use of their patent in two respects: One, as to gypsum; and two, as to cement; and that Mr. Avery had received the American rights 3867 for the gypsum business. Do you recall that? A. I recall the greater part of it. I don't remember his reason for going to Europe to buy a ship, I don't remember anything about that part of it. But I do recall what he said about the Bayer patent being thrown open for use in the United States for cement and gypsum, and Mr. Avery said he had secured the rights to use the Bayer patent in gypsum. I do remember that.

Q. Do you recall that Mr. Avery told you that the reason why he had secured the rights for the Bayer patent was because Mr. Roos had an application in the Patent Office for a patent, and that there was an interference proceedings in the Patent Office between Mr. Roos and Mr. Bayer? Do you recall that? A. I don't remember all of that. I do remember that there was a Roos application. I don't remember whether Mr. Avery explained that or not.

Q. You are not sure of that? A. No.

Q. Now the so-called American application for the bubble process was known as the Roos application, is that correct? A. That is, the American applicant was Mr. Roos.

Q. Carlisle K. Roos? A. I don't know his first name.

Q. He was connected with the United States
3868 Gypsum Company? A. I believe so, yes.

Q. Did Mr. Avery at that time, that is at the May meeting, explain the advantages of the Roos process? A. I don't remember that he differentiated between the Roos and the Bayer processes. He did speak on the advantages of the bubble system, as we have always called it.

Q. And what were the advantages that Mr. Avery spoke of? A. Well, the great advantage was the saving in weight.

Q. Did he specify as to how much weight could be saved by the use of the so-called bubble board process? A. I don't know that he put it in figures, but we realized it was quite a large amount. We could understand from his explanation that a lot of this dense matter in the board would be supplanted by these bubbles, and the board's strength would not be lessened at all, but it would reduce the weight.

Q. And Mr. Avery explained all that to you at this May meeting? A. Yes, at the May meeting.

Q. That is your recollection on that? A. Yes.

Q. And subsequent to that, the United States Gypsum Company had sent you and the other licensees a license agreement covering the use of the bubble process, 3869 is that right? A. It is my recollection that that was sent between the May meeting and the June meeting, which was the reason for the memorandum here that the bubble board contracts were to be considered by various counsel.

Q. So that when you got to Chicago on the 6th of June, Mr. Henning called your attention to the fact that the licensees had received a tentative draft of the bubble license, and Mr. Henning asked you, and asked all the rest of the gentlemen who were present, to have their attorneys hurry up and check into that application, is that correct?

Mr. Bromley: I don't think he said anything about hurrying up in his answer.

Justice Stephens: The witness did not use the words "hurrying up". That is not a correct statement of his answer. But you may ask him what was said.

The Witness: I am sorry Mr. Bromley said that because I was going to say the same thing, and I wouldn't want you to think that he led me, because I don't recall that he hurried us.

Mr. Bromley: I withdraw the objection.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. What did he say? A. He simply mentioned that they had been sent out—I think they were sent directly to counsel and not to the companies—and for us to see whether they were going to go through or not.

3870 Q. Now at that meeting on the 6th of June, was there any discussion as to whether or not the American Gypsum Company would be offered a license similar to the license that Ebsary had signed in May? A. Yes, it is my recollection—may I refer to this to refresh my recollection?

Justice Stephens: If it refreshes your recollection you may do so. He wants your best recollection, but there is no objection to your using that to refresh your recollection.

The Witness: I don't want you to think I have an artificially good memory, because I haven't, but this does refresh my memory.

Justice Stephens: Very well.

The Witness: It was stated at the meeting that American hadn't taken a license, but that they would later.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Who said that, if you recall? A. My recollection is that Mr. Henning made the statement, but I am not sure.

Q. Did any of the other persons present make any comment as to whether or not it was desirable for American to become a licensee? A. I don't recall.

Q. You don't recall that? A. No.

3871 Q. What was your own attitude on that, or the attitude of your company? A. We were not too directly interested, because we operated in different areas. We did not overlap.

Q. So it didn't make any difference to you whether or not American did become a licensee? A. Not too much, no.

Q. Now at that meeting on June 6th, was the question of jobbers in the industry discussed? A. Yes.

Q. Who discussed that? A. Mr. Henning.

Q. What did he say about it? A. He asked all the licensees to send to him a list of the companies they were selling as jobbers.

Q. And did he say anything else other than for you to send the list? A. I don't recall. The idea was to see how many of them there were.

Q. Did Mr. Henning at that time state that the United States Gypsum Company did not market their products through jobbers, their gypsum products? A. I don't remember.

Q. You don't recall that? A. I don't recall that.

3872 Q. Did any of the licensees make any comment as to jobbers at that time? A. I don't recall that.

Q. You don't have any recollection at all about it? A. I have no recollection.

Q. But you do know that Mr. Henning made the suggestion that all the licensees were to send in a list of their jobbers? A. Yes.

Q. Or was it just your company, which? A. I think they were all asked.

Q. They were all asked, that is your recollection? A. That is my recollection, yes.

Q. Now you have noted on this exhibit, "Dealer Distributors—send list." What do you mean by that? A. I am sorry now but I could not tell you at this late date what the difference was between a dealer distributor and a jobber.

Q. You haven't any recollection? A. I don't really know.

Q. You haven't any recollection as to the meaning of that item on this list?

Justice Stephens: Well, the question strictly speaking is whether that item on the list refreshes his recollection. This isn't in evidence. But you can ask him directly, of course, since he is an experienced businessman, 3873 about those distinctions, if he wishes to adventure upon them.

Mr. Knuff: I am only asking him as to his recollection of the things that are on this list.

Justice Stephens: Well, I think—and I say this only in the interest of saving time—that the list should be used.

to refresh his recollection, and not his recollection used to identify the list. Perhaps we mean the same thing. I thought the witness understood that he was entirely free to testify as to what he recollected, independently of this, and he is entirely free to consult this list, which has been marked Exhibit 419 for identification if it refreshes his recollection, and if it does, he may testify to his refreshed recollection. But this isn't in evidence yet, and therefore he could not testify as to what the list means. That is what you last asked him, with respect to one item.

Mr. Knuff: Probably your Honor is correct. I didn't mean to do that.

Justice Stephens: Thank you. Proceed.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. At the meeting of June 6, 1929, was there any discussion concerning manufacturers and carload and less-than-carload manufacturers? A. Well, if there was, I cannot remember now what it was.

Q. Was there any discussion at the meeting of June 6 concerning mail-order houses as an outlet for gypsum 3874 products? A. Yes, I do remember that.

Q. I believe you brought that up yourself, did you not? A. I may have.

Q. What is your recollection concerning that, Mr. Lenci? A. Well, there was a question as to whether the large mail-order houses should be sold at a cheaper price than the builders' supply yards in their same towns, and I believe the custom in the past had been to sell them at a 10 per cent discount below the usual dealers' price in each particular town. We thought that was not quite right, that they should not have the advantage over the outfit with its own yard.

Q. What is that again? A. That they should not have the advantage over the builders' supply yard in the same town.

Q. In other words, you brought up the question as to whether or not the mail-order house should have a price advantage over the building supply dealer, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And it was your thought that the mail-order house should not be sold on any more favorable basis than the building supply dealer, is that correct? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. And whom did you make that statement to, or did you make any such statement at the meeting, let me put it that way? A. I don't know whether I started it or 3875 whether someone else spoke about it, but I believe I expressed my views along the same lines as I have just now.

Q. Did you specifically ask whether Mr. Avery was selling to Montgomery, Ward & Company at that time? A. I don't know.

Q. You don't recall that? A. No.

Q. You knew at that time that Mr. Avery was on the Board of Directors of Montgomery, Ward & Company, did you not? A. I don't know just when his connection did start. I know that he has been, for a number of years, but whether it went back as far as 1929 or not, I don't remember.

Q. Wasn't it your thought that if United States Gypsum Company was selling to Montgomery, Ward & Company, the other dealers should be in a position to sell to Sears, Roebuck & Company? A. Well, no, I think we were looking to protect the local dealer.

Q. You were entirely against favoring the— A. (Interposing) The mail-order house.

Q. The mail-order house? A. Yes.

Q. And you so expressed yourself at the meeting? A. Yes.

Q. Did any other persons express themselves at 3876 that meeting, also, in that respect? A. I have really forgotten now, but I believe some of them did.

Q. But you can't tell us now who did? A. No.

Q. At the meeting of June 6th, was there any discussion concerning the price at which gypsum products should be sold to house wreckers? A. Yes.

Q. Your use of the words "house wrecker" is synonymous with the term "bathtub yard", is it not? A. Yes, they are practically the same thing.

Q. Just what is a bathtub yard? A. Well, a bathtub yard, or a house wrecker, is a dealer that sets up to buy second-hand material from buildings that are wrecked, or in some cases he may do the wrecking himself. That gives him a nucleus of second-hand lumber and second-hand plumbing equipment. With that as a basis, he calls himself a dealer and puts in a line of other new materials, and they were known throughout the trade as house wreckers or bathtub yards.

The question came up as to whether they were considered dealers or not, and they are dealers, and were so considered.

Q. And that was discussed at the meeting of June 6? A. Yes.

3877 Q. And at that meeting what position did you take on that? A. I don't remember whether I took any position on it or not. I can't remember it, but I do remember it was discussed, and if I took any position it would be that they were dealers.

Q. These so-called bathtub yards are quite numerous in the State of New Jersey, are they not? A. There are plenty of them, but there are not as many as there were.

Q. Now was there any discussion as to whether these bathtub yards should be sold at dealer prices, or not? A. No, the question was as to whether they were to be recognized as dealers.

Q. And was there any decision made at that time? A. And they were, yes.

Q. And who made that decision? A. Mr. Henning.

Q. Mr. Henning? A. We didn't make decisions.

Q. And what did Mr. Henning tell you about that, that the USG would recognize these wreckers or bathtub yards as dealers? A. Yes.

Q. And that they could be sold on a dealer basis?

3878 A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: We will take the afternoon recess.

(Thereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed.)

3879 Justice Stephens: Proceed.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. At the June 6 meeting that we have been previously discussing, was there any discussion concerning the price which the Government was to be charged for gypsum board and lath? A. Yes, there was.

Q. What was that discussion? A. The discussion was that on any direct sales to the Government departments, they were to have the benefit of the dealer's price.

Q. And do you recall who participated in that discussion? A. I don't know whether it was a discussion or a statement by Mr. Henning. I don't think it was a discussion, I think it was merely a statement which he made.

Q. Do you recall whether any of the persons in attendance at the meeting commented on Mr. Henning's statement? A. I don't remember what the comments were, but I believe everybody felt that was the right thing to do.

Q. Everybody felt that it was all right to sell the Government gypsum board and gypsum lath at— A. (Interposing) Yes. You see, at that time the Treasury Department was purchasing, and to a certain small extent 3880 the Army, and on direct purchases we felt they were entitled to the lowest price.

Q. And by "direct purchases", what do you mean? A. When they placed orders with any of the gypsum board producers.

Q. Like National or Certain-teed or yourself? A. Yes.

Q. Any of the people that were manufacturing gypsum board, you felt it was perfectly all right for the Government to buy that board directly from the manufacturer? A. Yes.

Q. And it didn't necessarily have to go through a dealer? A. That is right.

Q. And that the price the Government would get would be the dealer price? A. That is right.

Q. And Mr. Henning told you that that would be done? A. He told us that that was to be what was done.

Q. And you all agreed that that was the fair and right thing to do? A. We didn't agree that it was, but we felt that it was.

Q. At the meeting of June 6, was there any discussion concerning whether or not there should be a differ-
3881 ential on the purchases of wallboard when it was picked up by a truck at a mill or at a warehouse? A. I believe there was. I believe the statement was made that it cost more at the mill, for instance, when a customer's truck backed in to be loaded with a small quantity of material, than would be the case in our usual course of business to take the material right from our kilns to the boxcar and load the cars.

Q. Do you recall who made that statement? A. No, I don't.

Justice Stephens: Will you please read that answer? I didn't understand it.

(The answer was read by the reporter.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Now when you say it cost more, you meant by that, Mr. Lenci, did you not, that you could handle a large order for gypsum board or gypsum lath cheaper than you could handle an order for, we will say, a thousand square feet? A. Yes.

Q. In other words, if a man came in and bought 1,000 square feet of gypsum board, and there were 30 such customers, it cost you more to handle that 30,000 square feet of gypsum board than it would cost you to handle 30,000 feet sold to one customer? A. That is right.

3882 Q. And that would be because of the amount of the bookkeeping involved, and the additional service, and so forth? A. Yes.

Q. And you felt that on these small purchases at the mill, or it was felt, rather, that there should be a differential over and above the price that you would get for quantity purchases? A. That is right.

Q. What had been the practice of your company before that? Did you sell a thousand square feet of board at the same price that you would have sold 30,000 square feet of board, before, that is, at the same unit price? A. I don't really remember.

Q. You don't recall what the practice was? A. No.

Q. Do you recall what the practice of the industry was? A. No, I don't.

Q. When you put wallboard on the studding, the joints between the two boards, as a general rule, are imperfect, or not perfect; is that correct? If you take two pieces of wallboard and put them on the studding like this (indicating), the joint is not a perfect joint, is that correct? A. No, there is a visible joint there.

3883 And in order to get that joint to a certain degree of perfection, you fill that crack in there with so-called finisher, is that correct? A. We call it joint filler.

Q. Joint filler? A. Yes.

Q. Now at the June 6 meeting, was there any discussion as to this filler? A. I believe there was. There had been a badly abused custom of giving away filler, which in a way was a rebate, they would give any quantity of filler.

Q. You say there had been a custom in the gypsum industry to supply filler on an order of wallboard, is that correct? A. In some cases, yes.

Q. And that filler was supplied free of charge, is that correct? A. It sometimes was charged for and at other times given away.

Q. And you say that that custom of either selling it or else giving it away, had been prevalent in the gypsum industry for some time, is that correct? A. Yes, as I recall it.

Q. Was there any discussion as to the advisability of discontinuing the giving away of filler with board or-

3884 ders? A. I don't know whether it was a discussion or whether it was a statement made by Mr. Henning that a gift of filler would be considered a rebate. It was more in that light.

Q. Was there any general discussion concerning that? A. I don't think so.

Q. You don't believe there was any discussion about that? A. I don't think so.

Q. At the June 6 meeting, was there any discussion as to the amount of protected board that USG had on hand? A. Yes.

Q. Now what do you mean by the term "protected board"? A. Well, all of the companies had orders booked ahead. I mean, that is the usual way of doing business. Your dealer would buy, at that time, not for a specific job but he would buy 400,000 feet or 500,000 feet at a fixed price—

Q. (Interposing) For future delivery? A. Yes, so he would know what that was going to cost him.

Q. Yes. A. And we were all caught with these unfilled orders on our hands. And Mr. Henning, I remember, said that their company alone had 3 million feet for which they were obligated at lower prices, which was a business obligation that would have to be fulfilled. We had the same 3885 thing, on a smaller scale, and I imagine the other companies had.

Q. In other words, the dealer in gypsum board or gypsum lath might order 50,000 feet of board today, from a producing company, for future delivery; is that correct? A. Well, at that time there were two or three dealers around New York, and I think the same thing existed in other large cities—we had one particular dealer who would buy in 500,000 foot lots. He would place an order for a half a million feet to be delivered on call, and when we signed the license agreement we had several of these orders on our books; and that was the reason this morning, when you were asking me if we secured the high price immediately, I had to say no, because these orders ran along for a period of months.

That brings up the next question, that before these orders were completed we ran out of open-edge board and had to complete the low-price orders with the board which we were making at that time, which was a closed-edge board. That ran over a period of maybe 3 or 4 months.

Q. In other words, you explained to Mr. Henning that you had orders on hand for a considerable amount of open-edge board for delivery, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And that you didn't have the open-edge board to deliver to cover those orders? A. Yes.

3886 Q. And you asked Mr. Henning if you could sell closed-edge board to take care of your open-edge board commitments, is that right? A. That is right.

Q. What did Mr. Henning tell you? A. He said that that was all right.

Q. Now on this protected board question, when a dealer buys board for future delivery, what was the custom as to the maximum time at which delivery could be made? A. Well, I think those delivery dates were very loose.

Q. Well, now, what do you mean by "loose"? A. I mean that at that time—you are getting into 1929 and 1930—if an order was offered to us, we would take it and be glad to have it on our books, knowing that eventually it would be filled. In other words, we were not too tight with our final delivery dates.

Q. In other words, if somebody came in and ordered 10,000 feet of board from you, to be delivered on demand, you would take the order; is that correct? A. Well, 10,000 feet is—

Q. (Interposing) A small order? A. It is only a part of a carload. But the usual way is that the dealer would 3887 say, "Well, I am figuring on such-and-such a job, which will need a certain quantity of board. I am placing my order with you for this material." That job might not be completed for 2 or 3 or 4 months, and he was protected with us, and he knew that his board was going to cost him so much. That is what this protected board item is.

Q. To make this specific, on the Pentagon Building down here, when the contractor took the job to construct that Pentagon Building, in order to protect himself he placed with the manufacturer an order for so many million feet of gypsum board—would that be correct? A. He bought some gypsum board, yes.

Q. And it may have been a year before that gypsum board would have been used; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And in the meantime, if prices went down, would he be given the advantage of the decline in that price? A. He would take it.

Q. He would take it? A. He would take it. The customer is always right.

Q. But if prices went up, the manufacturer was obligated to sell at the price that the dealer contracted for? A. That is right.

Q. And is that the discussion that was held out in 3888 Chicago on the 6th of June? A. No, that is slightly different.

Q. What was the discussion out there? A. The discussion out there was that these orders were to be filled at the price at which they were booked. It didn't go into the question of whether, if the price went down, then the contractor was going to buy it at a less price, or anything of that kind. It wasn't as full as that.

Q. Was there any discussion as to the length of time you would be permitted to protect a contractor on his purchases? A. I don't remember any.

Q. You don't recall any? A. I don't recall any at all.

Q. Was there a bulletin ever issued concerning that? A. I think much later on there was. In fact, I am quite sure there was.

Q. By "much later on", do you mean a year or two years? A. I would say probably 2 or 3 years later.

Q. Two or three years later? A. Yes. The later bulletins, I think, provided that—I am not sure of the language—but the idea was that only on specific jobs could orders be booked ahead, and that we couldn't take orders for unlimited quantities unless some particular building was involved.

3889 Now at your meeting on June 6, did you have any discussion concerning the patent markings that you would put on the board? A. No, that wasn't a discussion. I remember that quite well, because we were new in the business, and we didn't know how to mark our board, and I saw Mr. Henning in his office and asked where to buy labels similar to those that they were using at that time, which contained the patent numbers, and he gave me the address of a label printing house in Chicago that I visited that same afternoon, and I placed an order for labels.

Q. Then at the meeting of June 6, there was no general discussion concerning— A. (Interposing) That wasn't a general discussion, that was something I took up with him personally.

Q. At the June 6th meeting, was there any discussion as to what the price of No. 1 gypsum board was going to be on the 7th of June? A. No, this memorandum—I beg your pardon, I can't refer to that.

Justice Stephens: You can use it to refresh your recollection. But answer the question, if there was any such discussion, if you do remember such discussion.

The Witness: No, I don't remember.

By Mr. Knuff:

3890 Q. There wasn't any discussion as to the price that was to be made the following day? A. I don't think so.

Q. Was there a price change made the following day? A. I think there was.

Q. On No. 1 board or No. 2 board, or on both? A. Well, I haven't got the exhibit here before me. I think I had it this morning.

Mr. Knuff: May I have Exhibit 410, please?

(Exhibit 410 handed to the witness.)

Justice Stephens: Of course, the Court does not forbid you to use parts of this exhibit as past recollection recorded if there is any part which is the record of a past recollection. But I suppose you can clear this up by looking at these bulletins, can't you?

Mr. Knuff: That is the reason I asked for Exhibit 410, and I am going to ask him to refer to that.

Justice Stephens: Go ahead.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Do you have that exhibit before you? A. I have it, yes.

Q. Now on June 7, was there a price change? A. There was on June 7, yes.

Q. And what item was changed? A. That was the 3891 change in the price of No. 2 board and Seconds.

Q. Was it an increase or a decrease in price? A. It was an increase.

Q. No. 2 board was increased from what to what? A. No. 2 was increased from $17.50 to $18.75 per thousand square feet.

Q. And your Seconds were increased from what to what? A. From $15.00 to $16.25 per thousand square feet.

Q. Did the price of lath remain the same? A. Yes.

In order to clear up the record, it may be that this was handed us as we left, I am not certain.

Q. When you say "this", you have reference to Exhibit 410? A. Exhibit 410. It may have been handed to us, although I do not remember that circumstance.

Q. This morning, I understood you to say that you received it through the mail. A. That is what I thought, because it is dated a day later, and I don't think it was handed to us. You see, my memorandum was made up after I got home, and it may have included this information which I would have gotten by the time I got back to New York.

Q. Was there anything said at the meeting of June 6 with reference to when another meeting was going 3892 to be held, of the licensees? A. Yes.

Q. When was the next meeting going to be held? A. June 26.

Q. At the June 6th discussion was there anything brought up about the Hite and Haggerty patents, do you recall? A. I don't think so, I don't remember that at all.

Q. Do you know what I mean by the so-called Hite and Haggerty patents? A. Yes.

Q. The Haggerty patent is the patent that has starch in it? A. That is correct.

Q. And you have no recollection of a discussion at the June 6 meeting concerning the Hite and Haggerty patents? A. No.

Mr. Knuff: If Your Honors please, we now offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 419. This is a memorandum made by the witness from the meeting that was held in Chicago on June 6, 1929, and as I understand this witness he made this memorandum himself and it purports to give a resume of the matters that were discussed at that meeting.

Justice Stephens: Have you any objection?

Mr. Bromley: Do I understand it is only being 3893 introduced because it was used to refresh recollection?

Mr. Knuff: It is being introduced for several purposes. One is that it is past recollection recorded; and, second, it is offered as a declaration of a co-conspirator.

Mr. Bromley: Well, I object to it, if that is the ground of the offer. Since it has been used to refresh recollection, I suppose it could be offered and received on that ground, but on that ground only.

Justice Stephens: Well, the Court has always been of the view, Mr. Bromley, that items which are used to refresh recollection, while they may be exhibited to the witness, and should be exhibited to counsel and the Court so that there may be a determination of whether or not they could reasonably be used to refresh recollection, are not themselves evidence, and are therefore not admissible.

Mr. Bromley: Well, I object to it on that ground, then.

Justice Stephens: But past recollection recorded is another thing. If the witness has forgotten the transaction, but at the time of it made a statement of what took place at the transaction and can now testify that it is a correct statement of what took place at the transaction, then under the doctrine of past recollection recorded it can come in itself. But this witness has given full testimony as to what did take place in this meeting of June 6, and 3894 therefore there is no need of having it in as past recollection recorded.

So far as it being a declaration is concerned, it is no different as a declaration from the statement he has made, which is more extended.

Why do you need this?

Mr. Knuff: Well, I certainly think that this exhibit, as an exhibit, is certainly corroborative. I think it is a declaration, and for that purpose I would like to have it in the record.

Justice Stephens: We are all three of the view that it is not admissible in evidence as evidence, and it is excluded.

The declarations which you claim it to be have really been made by this witness himself in his description of the conversation. And it isn't an intelligible declaration, as such, it is simply an itemization of points which were discussed at this meeting; and the witness has stated that it does refresh his recollection.

But as I have stated, it isn't necessary as past recollection recorded, because the witness has a present memory. So it is excluded from evidence and not received.

Mr. Knuff: I don't know, but possibly we are going to have quite a considerable number of declarations of this kind.

3895 Justice Jackson: We will rule on them as they occur.

Mr. Knuff: Very well.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, Government's Exhibit 420, the same being a letter dated June 21, 1929, addressed to Mr. H. W. Rippey, Powers Building, Rochester, New York, signed George N. Lenci, Vice President.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 420 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Do you recognize that, Mr. Lenci, as a copy of a letter that you sent to Mr. H. W. Rippey? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: I offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 420.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit No. 420, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked
3896 for identification as Government's Exhibit 421, the same being a letter dated June 21, 1929, addressed to the United States Gypsum Company, and signed George N. Lenci, Vice President.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 421 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Do you recognize that, Mr. Lenci, as a copy of a letter that you sent to the United States Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Q. Now at that time, that is, on June 21, 1929, were you in production yet on your closed-edge board? A. I can't tell you, I don't know.

Q. What is your best judgment on that?

Mr. Bromley: I object to his judgment. If he can't tell, he can't tell.

Justice Stephens: Objection sustained.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Your license agreement was signed on May 22, 1929? A. That is right.

Q. How long did it take you to equip your plant to get into production on closed-edge board?

Mr. Bromley: I object to it as repetitious. He has already said a month, about.

Justice Stephens: It has been answered.

3897 Mr. Knuff: I don't believe that question has been answered.

Justice Jackson: Is that correct, a month?

Mr. Knuff: He didn't say any such thing as "a month".

Justice Jackson: Did you say "a month"?

The Witness: I don't know the exact time.

Justice Stephens: I thought you testified this morning that it took you about a month to get into operation.

The Witness: Mr. Knuff asked me yesterday, and I said somewhere between a month and two months. It was a very short period. We had to change the equipment to turn the edge.

Justice Stephens: It has been answered, then. He did testify either yesterday or this morning to that effect.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that on big board or lath that it took you from a month to two months to get into production? A. Yes, it would apply on both, because the machinery for turning the edges was similar for both products.

Q. And do you know when you finally completed your change-over completely so that you were manufacturing nothing else but closed-edge board? A. I don't know the exact time, no, sir.

Q. Can you approximate that time? A. It would be a pure guess.

3898 Q. What? A. It didn't take long, but I don't know how long.

Q. Did you replace your entire board machine? A. No.

Q. You just changed your old board machine over to meet the new conditions? A. Can I explain what the change involved?

Q. Yes.

Mr. Bromley: I object to it as immaterial. What has that got to do with the case?

Mr. Steffen: It may refresh his recollection as to how long it took him to get into production. We would also like to know where he got his machinery.

Justice Stephens: Read the last two or three questions and answers.

(The record was read by the reporter.)

Justice Stephens: What do you wish to prove by it, Mr. Knuff?

Mr. Knuff: I want to refresh this witness' recollection, if it can be refreshed, as to whether or not the extent of the changes would indicate to him when the change-over was completed.

Justice Jackson: Hasn't he already testified it was between one and two months?

Mr. Knuff: Yes.

3899 Justice Stephens: What is the importance of the exact date of the change? I am not saying that it is not important, I just want to know so I can make a sensible ruling.

Mr. Knuff: Look at the first paragraph of this letter, please: "* * * * we are changing our price list immediately in accordance with this information."

Justice Stephens: Is this Exhibit 421?

Mr. Knuff: This is Exhibit 421, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Let me read it again.

Now, what do you want to prove by the question in connection with the equipment?

Mr. Knuff: I want to know whether or not, at that time, they were pricing their open-edge board, or whether this change related to the price of closed-edge board. Obviously if the change-over hadn't been made, what they were doing at this time was pricing the open-edge board in accordance with the information that the bulletin contained.

Justice Stephens: Then you may have an answer to the last question, if it is preliminary to trying to fix the witness' memory on the time of the actual commencement of manufacture of closed-edge board. The objection is overruled.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You started to answer the question by making an explanation, and at that time Mr. Bromley made an 3900 objection. The Court has said that you may make the explanation. Will you proceed, Mr. Lenci? A. The only change involved was—when you make an open-edge board, the board is made wider than necessary and at the far end of the machine there are saws that cut off the raw, damaged edges. When you make a closed-edge board, you use a wider paper and that paper is turned at the beginning of the process. In other words, the paper goes into the machine and the plaster goes on top of it, and the edge is turned over and tucked under the top sheet of paper. The only changes in the machine were the elimination of the cutting saws, the trimming saws, at the far end; and the substitution of the little machine for turning the edges at the near end of the machine.

Q. There would be another change also, and that would be that you would have to secure a wider width of paper in order to turn it over, would you not? A. Yes, that is true.

Q. Now then, do you recall how long it took to make these change-overs? A. It wouldn't take very long. I couldn't give the exact time, but it was just a question of a few weeks, 2 or 3 or 4 weeks, probably.

Mr. Knuff: If Your Honor pleases, we offer Exhibit 421 in evidence.

3901 Mr. Bromley: We make only the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit No. 421, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you look at the next to the last paragraph of that exhibit, Mr. Lenci, and see whether or not that refreshes your recollection as to whether or not you were distributing your products through jobbers on or about June 21, 1929?

You mentioned Coeyman this morning, and you also mentioned the Abbey Company this morning, do you remember that? A. Yes.

Q. Now I notice in here the name G. B. Raymond & Company. Do you see that? A. Yes.

Q. Were they jobbers? A. Yes.

Q. And I notice the name Eastern Builders Supply Company, Baltimore, Maryland; were they jobbers? A. Yes.

Q. In addition to those three, and the Abbey
3902 Company, can you recall any other jobbers that you were distributing your products through? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know the Teachout Company in Cleveland? A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear of them? A. I have heard of them.

Q. You weren't distributing through the Teachout Company? A. No.

Q. Did you know the name of Orin Perry in New York? A. Yes.

Q. Were you distributing through Mr. Perry? A. No.

Q. Do you know whether or not Mr. Perry was a jobber?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as incompetent. Mr. Perry has already told us what he was.

Justice Stephens: What is the opinion of this witness worth in the face of Mr. Perry's own testimony as to what he did?

Mr. Knuff: Mr. Perry told us what he did—

Justice Jackson: This man's opinion wouldn't make any difference, would it, since Mr. Perry told the Court what his business was? It couldn't change it.

Mr. Knuff: That is probably right.

3903 Justice Stephens: Objection sustained.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, I show you what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 422, the same being a letter of July 3, 1929, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company and signed John E. MacLeish.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 422 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive that letter? A. Did you say from the United States Gypsum Company?

Q. No, signed John E. MacLeish. A. Oh, yes.

Q. You say you did receive this letter? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We offer it in evidence, if your Honor please, as Government's Exhibit 422.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to the declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit No. 422, was received in evidence.)

3904 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. In this exhibit, Mr. Lenci, I notice that there was to be a meeting held on July 9, 1929. Did you attend that meeting? A. I don't remember.

Q. You did attend a meeting on the 22nd of May, and you attended one on the 6th of June? A. Yes.

Q. Now between the 6th of June and the 9th of July, did you attend any meetings? A. I don't remember.

Q. And by "meetings", I mean meetings with other gypsum manufacturers, concerning a proposed license agreement. A. Yes.

Q. You don't remember? A. I don't remember.

Q. And you don't recall whether or not you attended this meeting on the 9th of July? A. No.

Q. You have no recollection about that? A. No.

Q. Were you at a meeting on the 26th of June? A. No. While you were asking about this, I was trying to think back about the 26th of June, and I was wondering 3905 if that meeting hadn't been put off until July 9th.

Q. Do you recall whether it had or not? A. No, I don't. I am just trying to think. I don't remember.
3906 Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 423, the same being a copy of a letter dated the 17th day of July, 1929, addressed to H. W. Rippey, and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company, by George N. Lenci, Vice President.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 423, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Would you state, Mr. Lenci, whether or not you wrote that letter? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: I offer in evidence Government's Exhibit No. 423.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 423 was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You will notice in the second paragraph of that letter, Mr. Lenci, that there was a meeting to be held on July 25, at the Palmer House—do you notice that? A. Yes.
3907 Q. Do you know whether or not you attended that meeting? A. I don't recall, but I do recall making a trip to Chicago during that summer with Mr. Rippey. Whether it was for that meeting, or the one before, or one after it, I don't know. It might have been this one.

Q. When you say you made a trip to Chicago with Mr. Rippey, can you tell us whether that trip was between the meeting that you attended on June 6th, and July 25th, as mentioned in the second paragraph of this letter? A. I don't really know.

Q. You can't place the date between the 6th of June and the 25th of July? A. No.

Q. Mr. Rippey was not with you at the meeting on the 6th of June, was he? A. I don't think so. No, he was not at that meeting.

Q. Now at this meeting that you said you went out to attend, that you went out to Chicago to attend, with Judge Rippey, who else attended that meeting other than yourself and Mr. Rippey? A. I don't remember.

Q. Did any person? Were any other companies represented? A. I really have no recollection of it at all.

Q. All that you can recall now is that at some time, you believe in the summer of 1929, you did go to Chicago 3908 to attend some meeting with Mr. Rippey? A. Yes.

Q. And that is the extent of your present recollection? A. Yes, that is right. I don't have anything to place it in my mind.

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 424, the same being a letter dated April 5, 1930, addressed to yourself and signed by C. Henning.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 424, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state whether or not you received that letter. A. Yes.

Q. Now the date of that letter is April 5, 1930—do you notice that? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We now offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 424.

Mr. Bromley: The same objection.

Justice Stephens: Let the Court read it.

(After reading proposed Government's Exhibit No. 424.)

Received, subject to the usual reservation with re-
3909 spect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 424 was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Now on April 5, 1930, was the Ebsary Gypsum Company manufacturing an open-edge board? A. No.

Q. They had completely changed over their plant so they were then manufacturing a closed-edge board, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. Do you know at that time whether the United States Gypsum Company was manufacturing an open-edge board? A. No.

Q. Do you mean that they weren't, or do you mean that you don't know, which? A. I don't think anybody was making an open-edge board.

Q. No person was making an open-edge board in the industry at that time? A. No.

Q. You will notice on the left-hand side of this letter a memorandum. Can you translate that for us? A. I think it reads, "See correction in letter of April 15th".

Q. Is that your handwriting? A. Yes, that is my 3910 handwriting.

Q. "See correction in letter of April 15th"? A. Yes.

Q. What does that mean? A. I imagine that later there was another letter written by United States Gypsum Company under date of April 15th which corrected something in this. I don't know.

Q. You will notice in Exhibit 424 that it states, "Sizes only of 16″x48″ and 16″x32″ bundled".

Do you notice that? A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell us what the business reason was for confining the size to 16″x48″ and 16″x32″, if you know? A. Yes, I know what it was.

Q. What was the reason? A. The whole point of this bulletin is that in manufacturing gypsum board there are a certain number of boards which are not perfect, and they are cut up into small sizes which we call "recuts", and this bulletin was setting a price for these recut boards made from the big boards which were made in the usual way, with a closed edge.

Q. That was called an open-edge board? A. They were called recuts, not open-edge. Everybody knew them as recuts.

Q. They were an open-edge board? A. They might 3911 be open-edge or closed-edge. One side, if it happened to be that it came with a finished edge on one side of the board it was cut from, might have a finished edge, or it might have an open edge. But they were known as recuts, and this bulletin was to tell us that we could sell recut board in certain territories, which recuts where made from board made under the license.

Q. And you could sell that in certain territories and you could also sell that only in certain sizes, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. What was the business reason why those sizes were limited, if you know? A. I don't know.

Q. And this bulletin only applied to certain designated areas, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And what is the reason, what is the business reason, if you know, why only certain designated areas were prescribed as a recut market? A. Well, if you will look over the list of cities there you will see that they are mostly the larger cities in the Eastern part of the United States.

Q. What is the business reason? A. And the dealers in these larger cities could dispose of these recut boards much easier than a dealer in a small country town who 3912 bought board and had to keep it a long while in that town.

Q. And you would say that the business reason for that, then, was that this recut board could be disposed of in larger cities to a greater advantage than it could in smaller communities? A. That is right.

Q. And you could only sell this board in certain designated areas, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And the areas were all designated in the license bulletins? A. That is right.

3913 Justice Stephens: The Court will take the afternoon recess at this time.

Just a moment, however, before we adjourn.

I would like to call the attention of counsel on both sides of the case, but especially of Government counsel who raise this question so frequently, to the little text-book called "Hughes on Evidence", which is based on Thayer's "Cases on Evidence", and is one of the best books that I know of. I don't do this in any school-teaching sense of the term, but only to illustrate how the Court is making its rulings and why it is making its rulings as it is on past recollection recorded and present recollection refreshed. I have found in my experience as a judge that this little statement here is as clear and definite and well-founded a statement of the rule as exists. It will perhaps save a lot of time if counsel understand the basis of the Court's rulings.

Section 21, at page 336, states:

"For the purpose of refreshing his present memory a witness may examine memoranda. Where the examination is made for this purpose it is immaterial by whom, or when, the memoranda were made. In this case, the memoranda themselves are, as a rule, inadmissible. After making the examination, the witness testifies independently of them.

As said by Lord Chief Justice Ellenborough, 'If upon looking at any document he can so far refresh his memory as to recollect a circumstance, it is sufficient, and it 3914 makes no difference that the memorandum is not written by himself, for it is not the memorandum that is evidence, but the recollection of the witness.'"

In Section 22 it is pointed out that:

"Although a memorandum which is used by a witness merely to refresh his memory is not, as a general rule, admissible in evidence, the opposing counsel have the right to inspect it and to cross-examine him upon it. Moreover, the jury (in this instance the Court) also have the right to inspect it" in order "to test the veracity of the witness." • • • "'The other party had a right to know what the memorandum was on which he relied, and whether it had any legitimate tendency to bring the fact in controversy to mind. It would be a dangerous doctrine which would permit a witness to testify from secret memoranda in the way which was permitted here'."

That makes perfectly clear—and it is supported by a substantially unbroken line of authorities—that where you are refreshing a present recollection, while the memorandum is inspectable by Court and counsel, it is not evidence itself and it isn't admissible in evidence.

On the other hand, when you get to past recollection recorded, there the rule is, as set forth in Section 23:

"Not only may a witness use memoranda to refresh his present memory, but he may also adopt memoranda as a record of past recollection. In the former case he 3915 testifies independently of the memoranda, in which case the memoranda themselves, as previously stated, are usually inadmissible. In the latter case his testimony is based upon the memoranda which are themselves admissible. In the former case he swears to an actual present recollection. In the latter case he swears to recorded facts because of his confidence in the correctness of the memoranda. As said by Chief Justice Simpson, 'The rule upon this subject, in its broadest outline, embraces two classes of cases: first, where the witness, after referring to the paper, speaks from his own memory and depends upon his own recollection as to facts testified to; second, where he relies upon the paper and testifies only because he finds the facts contained therein'."

It is essential, in the second case of past recollection recorded, "that the memorandum was made at or about the time the events recorded therein occurred, and that it be verified and adopted by the witness as a record of past recollection"—in which event the witness is not testifying to his present memory, he is only testifying to the correctness of the memorandum, and his oath as to that makes the memorandum, since he states it was made at or about the time of the events which it purports to describe, and since he states that it describes them correctly—makes the memorandum itself admissible in evidence.

Now I apologize for taking the amount of time I 3916 have on this, but we have been debating, ever since the beginning of this case, as to whether these little items are admissible in evidence, and I state this for the guidance of counsel so that they will understand the rules the Court has followed and which it believes are well settled.

Now Exhibit 419 for Identification, since you state it is typical of a large class of evidence, seems to have been used by the witness to refresh a present recollection, and is not past recollection recorded. It doesn't even purport to be a past recollection recorded, in any sense of being a completed declaration. It is merely an itemization of disconnected statements which the witness himself did not say was a complete record of what took place at the meeting to which it is alleged to relate. He states merely that it refreshes his memory.

We are not assuming to rule that the Government cannot introduce declarations which are partly oral and partly in writing, if they are in the nature of declarations. But it was made perfectly clear through this witness that this was merely a memorandum being used to refresh recollection.

I hope I have made the Court's rulings clear.

Did you want to say something, Mr. Knuff?

Mr. Knuff: I guess I had better not.

Justice Stephens: Feel quite free to do so if you don't understand the Court's statement.

Mr. Knuff: I understand your Honor's statement.

3917 (Whereupon, at 4:10 o'clock, p. m., the hearing was recessed until Thursday morning, February 17, 1944, at 10:00 o'clock).

3918 IN THE

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Civil Action No. 8017

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY; NATIONAL GYPSUM COMPANY; CERTAIN-TEED PRODUCTS CORPORATION; THE CELOTEX CORPORATION; EBSARY GYPSUM COMPANY, INC.; NEWARK PLASTER COMPANY; SAMUEL M. GLOYD, doing business under the name of TEXAS CEMENT PLASTER COMPANY; SEWELL L. AVERY; OLIVER M. KNODE; MELVIN H. BAKER; BROR H. DAHLBERG; HENRY J. HARTLEY; FREDERICK G. EBSARY; and FREDERICK TOMKINS,

Defendants.

Seventh Floor,
Internal Revenue Building,
Washington, D. C.,
Thursday, February 17, 1944.

The above-entitled cause came on for further hearing at 10:00 o'clock a.m., pursuant to adjournment, before Honorable Harold M. Stephens, Honorable Finis J. Garrett, and Honorable Joseph R. Jackson, sitting as the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

APPEARANCES:

(Same as heretofore noted.)

3922 Thereupon, GEORGE N. LENCI the witness on the stand at the time of adjournment, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Direct Examination (resumed)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 425, the same being a letter dated April 15, 1930, addressed to George N. Lenci, and signed C. Henning, Vice President in Charge of Sales.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 425 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive that letter?

Justice Jackson: That is in this second group of exhibits?

Mr. Knuff: I believe it is in the second group of letters that I furnished the Court. It is dated April 15, 1930. It is on the letterhead of the United States Gypsum Company and is dated April 15, 1930, Judge Jackson—a one-page exhibit.

Justice Jackson: I have it.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive that letter, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

3923 Mr. Knuff: We offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 425.

Mr. Bromley: We make only the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit No. 425, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 426, the same being a letter addressed to Mr. Fred Ebsary, President, and signed C. Henning, Vice President in Charge of Sales. That is dated June 3, 1930.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 426 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that letter received at the office of the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We offer in evidence Government's Exhibit No. 426, Your Honor.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

3924 Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit No. 426, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 427, the same being a letter dated February 11, 1931, addressed to Mr. Fred Ebsary and signed C. Henning, Vice President in Charge of Sales.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 427 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I ask you whether or not that letter was received at the offices of the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We offer in evidence Government's Exhibit No. 427.

Mr. Bromley: We make only the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

3925 (The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit No. 427, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, referring to Government's Exhibits 425, 426 and 427, is it your understanding that these bulletins refer to the price of recut gypsum board, known as recuts? A. Yes.

Q. Is it your understanding that that is the same class of board that was covered by the bulletin offered in evidence as Government's Exhibit 424? A. May I see that exhibit?

(Government's Exhibit 424 handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. If I understand your testimony correctly, you said that it was your understanding that Exhibit No. 424 applied to recut gypsum lath, and I want to know whether Exhibits 425, 426 and 427 are bulletins covering the same character of lath? A. Yes, it is.

Justice Stephens: In other words, where the words "open-edge gypsum board" are used in those exhibits, it doesn't mean board manufactured as open-edge gypsum board but board manufactured as closed-edge board 3926 and then recut?

The Witness: That is correct.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what have been marked for identification as Government's Exhibits 428 and 428-A, 428 being a carbon copy of a letter dated January 20, 1930, addressed to Mr. C. F. Henning, and signed George N. Lenci, Vice President; and 428-A being the original of a letter which purports to be a reply to your letter of January 20, 428-A being dated January 22, 1930, addressed to you and signed C. Henning, Vice President in Charge of Sales.

(The documents referred to were marked as Government's Exhibits 428 and 428-A for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you write the letter of which Exhibit 428 is a copy, and did you receive the reply which is marked Government's Exhibit 428-A? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 428 and 428-A, Your Honor.

Mr. Bromley: And we make only the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents referred to, marked as Govern-
3927 ments Exhibits 428 and 428-A, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, in exhibit 428 you wrote to the United States Gypsum Company and asked them whether or not the Teachout Company of Cleveland, Ohio, may be considered as a wallboard jobber. What was your purpose in writing that letter? A. Well, at the present time, I have not the slightest recollection of why I asked for that information. We were not selling in Ohio, as I remember it, at that time, and I don't really know. We might have had an inquiry, but that would be purely suppositious.

Q. You haven't any present recollection as to the purpose in writing this letter? A. Not the slightest.

Q. After you received the reply from Mr. Henning, advising you that the Teachout Company was not considered a jobber, do you know whether or not you sold the Teachout Company? A. No, we never had previously, nor have ve since, sold to the Teachout Company.

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 429, the same being a copy of a letter dated February 13, 1930, addressed
3928 to Mr. C. F. Henning and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company, George N. Lenci, Vice President.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 429 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you tell us whether Exhibit 429 is a copy of a letter that you did write Mr. Henning? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We offer in evidence Government's Exhibit No. 429.

Mr. Bromley: And we make only the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit No. 429, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You will notice in the first paragraph of that letter, you are asking the United States Gypsum Company whether Winslow & Company, of Portland, and John Varick, of Manchester, New Hampshire, are considered as jobbers. Can you tell us the purpose or the reason why you wrote that letter to Mr. Henning? A. I think 3929 that we had an inquiry from our New England salesman—

Q. (Interposing) When you say you "think", do you mean by that that that is your present recollection? A. That is my present recollection.

Q. Go ahead with your answer. A. That finishes it. The inquiry asked if we could sell these two companies as jobbers.

Q. You had an inquiry from your New England representative asking whether the Ebsary Gypsum Company would be in a position to sell them as jobbers? A. Yes.

Q. And why did you write to Mr. Henning? A. Well, I wrote to him because at that time the question of jobbers was still open.

Q. By that, what do you mean, Mr. Lenci? When you say "the question was still open", what do you mean? A. As I remember—you might correct me if I am wrong—I think this is prior to the time when the bulletins specified that jobbers were to be sold at the dealer price.

Mr. Bromley: That is right.

Mr. Knuff: That is correct.

The Witness: And we, being new in the business, did not know whether or not these people were jobbers, and I was asking for this information.

3930 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Well, didn't your company determine for itself as to their policy as to who was and who was not a jobber? A. Yes, but I was asking for whatever information I could get.

Q. Well, did you think, at that time, that Mr. Henning could give you some information as to whether or not they were jobbers, these firms? A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall whether or not he did give you the information? A. That I don't remember, whether we got a reply or not.

Q. Do you recall whether or not you sold Winslow & Company of Portland, Maine, and John Varick of Manchester, New Hampshire, as jobbers? A. My recollection is that we did not sell either of those companies at that time, but very much later—and by that I mean 10 years later—I think we sold John Varick.

Q. As a jobber? A. No, as a dealer.

Q. What was the sales policy of the Ebsary Gypsum Company, at that time, as to selling through jobbers? Was it favorable to having its products sold through jobbers? A. No, it was not.

3931 Q. It was not? A. That is right.

Q. The policy of the Ebsary Gypsum Company at that time was to distribute their products through dealers rather than through jobbers, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And has that been a consistent policy from that time up to the present time—and by that I mean, has it been the consistent policy of the Ebsary Gypsum Company to sell through dealers rather than through jobbers? A. That has always been our policy.

Q. Now can you tell us what reasons you had for adopting that policy? A. Well, the primary one was that we got more money for our material.

Q. Is that the only reason? A. That is the principal reason.

Q. Were there any other reasons? A. The other reason would be that if you were selling a jobber in a large town, and then you had other dealers there, this jobber very often would take the material which he bought at the jobber's discount and sell it to the ultimate consumer in competition with our own dealers that were paying us our usual dealer's price, and we set up an artificial competition against ourselves.

3932 Q. By saying that you "set up an artificial competition against yourselves", did you mean that the person that you sold as a jobber would be in a position, probably, to cut the price, and since you were furnishing the material you would be more or less competing with yourself; is that what you mean? A. That is exactly it.

Q. And you didn't want the jobbers, you didn't want any person to be in a position to be able to cut the price of the product, is that correct? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. Because if they did, they would compete with you? A. Yes.

Q. And you would be furnishing— A. (Interposing) Furnishing the material at a cheaper price.

Q. I see.

Now when you say that they would be in a position to cut the price, do you also mean that they would be in a position to cut the price to dealers? A. I can only speculate on that.

Q. Well, what do you mean by that? A. Well, they would have a commission as a jobber—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Do you mean a discount?

3933 The Witness: Yes, a discount. They would have a jobber's discount. Say, for argument's sake, it was 10 percent. They could split part of that commission and keep, say, 5 percent, and undersell us with one of our dealers by the other 5 percent.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Now you say that they could "split" that 10 percent. Split it with whom, the dealer? A. Yes, they would keep 5 percent and quote the dealer 5 percent less than we would quote the dealer.

Q. And that is another reason why you were opposed to jobber distribution of your products? A. Yes.

Q. You wanted the good will of your dealers? A. That is correct.

Q. And you wanted to sell those dealers at a uniform price, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 430, the same being a letter dated August 8, 1930, addressed to Mr. Fred Ebsary and signed C. Henning, Vice President in Charge of Sales.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 430 for Identification.)

3934 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state whether that letter was received at the office of the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We offer in evidence, if Your Honors please, Government's Exhibit 430.

Mr. Bromley: We make only the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit No. 430, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Prior to the time that you received Government's Exhibit 430, what was the jobber's commission or discount, in percentage? A. I think it was 10 percent.

Q. Ten percent? A. Yes.

Q. That is, the person who was acting as a jobber, if lath was selling at $13.00 a thousand, they bought it at a discount of 10 percent, or $1.30 off that price? A. That is my recollection.

Mr. Bromley: That appears in Exhibit 408 as 10 percent.

3935 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 431, the same being a memorandum dated 9/22/30, addressed to you and signed George P. Turner.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 431 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You received this memorandum from Mr. Turner, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. At that time, Mr. Turner was the Sales Manager for the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. At that time, yes.

Q. And Mr. Turner directed the sales policy of your company at that time, did he not? A. I would like to correct that. He was the City Sales Manager for the New York City area.

Q. For the New York City area? A. That is right.

Q. And he performed a function similar to that performed by Mr. Gallagher of the United States Gypsum Company —do you know Mr. Gallagher? A. Yes, I do.

3936 Q. Mr. Gallagher is the City Sales Manager for the United States Gypsum Company? A. Yes, except Mr. Turner never had the authority that Mr. Gallagher does.

Q. In the City of New York, Mr. Turner directed the sales policy of the Ebsary Gypsum Company, is that correct? A. I would say he followed out the sales policy of the Ebsary Gypsum Company.

Mr. Knuff: We offer in evidence, if Your Honors please, Government's Exhibit 431.

Mr. Bromley: And we make only the usual objection.

Mr. Oliver: I object to it, Your Honor, on the ground that it is only binding on Ebsary and not on the other defendants.

Justice Stephens: That raises no new point, Mr. Oliver. All of these declarations of individual defendants are offered to bind all the defendants, but are received subject to the usual reservation with reference to the declarations of alleged co-conspirators, that a conspiracy must ultimately be shown and the declaration be shown to be in execution or furtherance of the conspiracy. Are you raising any point different than that?

Mr. Oliver: I think it is in the same category as that answer of Certain-teed in the Beaver case, and when you ruled on that, you ruled that it was only binding on 3937 Certain-teed. This seems to be a declaration of the same kind, to me.

Justice Stephens: That was offered as an admission, was it not, rather than a declaration?

Mr. Oliver: That is possible, Your Honor.

Justice Jackson: That is what it was, as I remember it.

Justice Stephens: I don't see any difference, Mr. Oliver, between this and any other class of declaration we have had. The objection is overruled. The exhibit is received subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit No. 431, was received in evidence.)

Justice Stephens: It may be, of course, that the Court misunderstood the nature of the offer of the answer in the Beaver Products case. The Court is trying to keep all of its rulings strictly consistent. It is very difficult, in such a complicated case as this. But I thought that was in a different category than the general declarations which have been offered.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked
3938 for identification as Government's Exhibit 432, the same being a letter dated March 4, 1932, addressed to Mr. F. G. Ebsary, President, and signed C. Henning, Vice President.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 432 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did the Ebsary Gypsum Company receive that letter? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Let the Court have time to read that, Mr. Knuff, so that we can understand your examination.

Mr. Knuff: I am sorry.

(Exhibit 432 examined by the Court.)

Justice Stephens: Proceed, Mr. Knuff.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 433, the same being a letter dated February 16, 1934, addressed to Mr. George N. Lenci, and signed C. Henning, Vice President.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 433 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

3939 Q. Was Government's Exhibit 433 received in the office of the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 434, the same being a letter dated December 3, 1934, addressed to F. G. Ebsary, President, and signed C. Henning.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 434 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I will ask you if that letter was received at the office of the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 435, the same being a letter dated October 29, 1935, addressed to Mr. F. G. Ebsary, and signed C. Henning, Vice President.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 435 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I will ask you if that letter was received in the office of the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

3940 Mr. Knuff: We offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 432, 433, 434, and 435.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection to these last four exhibits.

Justice Stephens: They are received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents referred to, marked Government's Exhibits 432, 433, 434 and 435, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. If I understand these exhibits correctly, Mr. Lenci, Mr. Frank Miller was the first Executive Secretary of the Board Survey Company, and he was succeeded by Mr. H. F. Sadler in 1934; and Mr. Sadler, in turn, was succeeded by Mr. E. W. Carey as the Executive Secretary of the Board Survey Company; is that your understanding? A. That is correct.

Q. And these three gentlemen, that is, Mr. Miller, Mr. Sadler and Mr. Carey, were the only Executive Secretaries of the Board Survey Company? A. They are the only ones I ever heard of.

Q. And after October 29, 1935, complaints, if any, were sent to the office of Scott, MacLeish & Falk, the attorneys for the Board Survey Company; is that correct? A. 3941 I don't think that letter of October 29 reads just that way. The second paragraph says that the complaint shall be filed in the usual way with the Board Survey Company, who in turn will refer the complaint to Scott, MacLeish & Falk.

Q. I accept that correction. A. Yes.

Q. What was the Board Survey Company, Mr. Lenci? A. I don't know.

Q. You don't know what it was? A. I think it was merely a subsidiary of the United States Gypsum Company. That is all I know about it. I don't know anything about it.

Q. When you had any complaint as to any violation of the license agreement, that is, if you felt that another licensee was not complying with the license agreement, you would send that complaint to the Board Survey Company? A. That is right.

Q. And the Board Survey Company would, in turn, if you know, investigate the merits of your complaint, and would take such steps as were necessary to correct the complaint, if the complaint was justified; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Lenci, I show you what have been marked Government's Exhibits 436 and 436-A, 436 being a letter 3942 dated April 20, 1932, addressed to Mr. Hough and signed Ted Ehrlicher; and 436-A being a typewritten copy of Exhibit 436.

Mr. Knuff: If Your Honors please, in order to expedite the reading of this exhibit, we had 436-A typed. That is an exact copy of 436.

Justice Stephens: Thank you.

(The documents referred to were marked Government's Exhibits 436 and 436-A for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, who was Ted Ehrlicher? A. He was one of our New Jersey salesmen.

Q. And who was Mr. Hough? A. Mr. Hough was our Treasurer.

Q. The Treasurer of the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: Ehrlicher, you say, was one of your salesmen?

The Witness: Ehrlicher was our New Jersey salesman.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Do you identify Government's Exhibit 436 as a letter that was received by Ebsary Gypsum Company from Mr. Ehrlicher? A. Yes.

3943 Mr. Oliver: May I see that for just a moment?

Justice Stephens: Yes.

(Thereupon, Government's Exhibit No. 436 for identification was handed to Mr. Oliver for examination.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked Government's Exhibit 437, the same being a letter dated May 5, 1932, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company and signed C. E. Hough.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 437, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive that letter, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. I show you—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Just a moment, let the Court read it. We must be familiar with each of these as we go along.

Mr. Knuff: I am sorry.

Justice Stephens: Proceed, Mr. Knuff.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 438, the same being a copy of a letter dated May 6, 1932, addressed to the Board Survey Company, and signed George N. Lenci.

3944 (The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 438, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state, Mr. Lenci, whether that is a copy of a letter which you sent to the Board Survey Company? A. Yes.

Justice Garrett: Mr. Knuff, does that have more than one page?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, your Honor, it is a two-page letter.

Justice Garrett: Yes, I see it now, thank you.

Justice Stephens: Proceed.

Mr. Knuff: Will your Honors indulge me for just a moment, please?

Justice Stephens: Yes, certainly.

Mr. Knuff: If your Honors please, will you skip, in your sets of the exhibits, the letter dated May 16, 1932, and the letter dated May 17, 1932, and then go to the next letter.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked Government's Exhibit 439 for identification, which is a letter dated June 9, 1932, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company and signed by C. E. Hough.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 439, for identification.)

3945 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I ask you whether or not that letter was received. That bears in ink, the notation, "Government's Exhibit 36", which was the exhibit number used in the criminal case.

I wonder if we can take the morning recess at this time.

Justice Stephens: Yes, we will take our morning recess at this time.

(Thereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed.)

Justice Stephens: Proceed.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, did you receive Government's Exhibit 439? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 440, the same being a carbon copy of a letter dated June 9, 1932, addressed to Mr. C. F. Henning, Vice President, and signed George N. Lenci, Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 440, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I ask you if that is a copy of a letter that you sent to Mr. Henning. A. Yes.

3946 Justice Stephens: Referring to Exhibit 439, so that it will be clear in the record whom it refers to, one cannot tell from the face of it whom it refers to—

Mr. Knuff: (Interposing) You mean "Gypsteel"?

Justice Stephens: Yes, what does that mean?

The Witness: Let's start from the beginning. The Structural Gypsum Corporation—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Just answer briefly. To whom did Mr. Hough refer, if you know, in his use of the word "Gypsteel"?

The Witness: The Structural Gypsum Corporation.

Justice Stephens: That is all.

The Witness: That was their trade-mark. "Gypsteel" was the trade-mark of another product manufactured by the Structural Gypsum Corporation, and the company became generally known as "Gypsteel". For the record, they became later a part of the American Cyanamid Company.

Justice Stephens: Thank you.

Let us read this June 9th letter.

All right, you may proceed.

Mr. Knuff: Will your Honors please skip the next two letters, the one dated June 17, 1932, and the one dated June 25, 1932, and I will take up the next letter.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I now show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked
3947 Government's Exhibit 441 for identification, being a copy of a letter dated June 25, 1932, addressed to C. F. Henning, and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company, George N. Lenci.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 441, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I will ask you, Mr. Lenci, if that is a copy of a letter, the original of which was sent to Mr. Henning. A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 442, the same being a letter dated July 16, 1932, addressed to the United States Gypsum Company and signed George N. Lenci, Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 442, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I will ask you if that is a copy of a letter, the original of which was sent to the United States Gypsum Company. A. Yes.

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 443, the same being a copy of a letter, dated July 26, 1932—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Are you skipping 3948 this longhand memorandum?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, I am not going to offer that.

Justice Stephens: This one you are now referring to is dated July 26, 1932?

Mr. Knuff: Yes. It is addressed to the United States Gypsum Company and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company, George N. Lenci, Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 443, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I will ask you if that is a carbon copy of a letter, the original of which was sent to the United States Gypsum Company. A. Yes.

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked Government's Exhibit 444 for identification, the same being a letter, dated August 1, 1932, addressed to George N. Lenci, and signed C. Henning, Vice President.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 444, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I ask you if that letter was received. A. Yes.

3949 Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked Government's Exhibit 445 for identification, the same being a carbon copy of a letter, dated August 10, 1932, addressed to Mr. Ebsary, and signed George N. Lenci, Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 445, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I will ask you if that is a copy of a letter, the original of which was sent to Mr. Ebsary. A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 446, the same being a letter, dated August 16, 1932, addressed to the United States Gypsum Company and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company, George N. Lenci, Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 446, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I ask you if that is a carbon copy of a letter, the original of which was sent to United States Gypsum Company. A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We now offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 436, 436-A, 437, 438, 439, 440, 441, 442, 443, 444, 3950 445, and 446.

Mr. Bromley: May it please the Court, we make the usual objection, and in addition thereto we would like the record to show that we object to all of these exhibits on the ground that they are immaterial because they relate solely to an issue already heretofore determined adversely to the Government in the criminal case.

Justice Stephens: You are protecting your record in the matter of res adjudicata?

Mr. Bromley: Yes.

Justice Stephens: That objection is overruled.

The exhibits are received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 436 to 446, inclusive, were received in evidence.)

Justice Stephens: This might be an appropriate time to say, Mr. Oliver, in respect to the objection you raised this morning as to Exhibit 431, that I think I made a statement which might be a little confusing and I ought to correct it.

Exhibit 324, which was the answer of Certain-teed in the Beaver Products case, was received in evidence, and at page 2861, the Court made the following statement:

3951 "Justice Stephens: The Court is agreed that Exhibit 324 is admissible in evidence as an admission of Certain-teed, binding upon Certain-teed, for whatever weight it may be entitled to. It seems to the Court that in view of the nature of the statements in the answer, and the added fact that later Certain-teed did take a license, that it may be said to constitute an admission. But the Court is also agreed that it cannot, at least in the present state of the record, be admitted as binding upon the other defendants as a declaration either in furtherance of or in execution of a conspiracy. It would seem to the Court that, if anything, it would be contrary to the furtherance or execution of the conspiracy."

That was the distinction we had in mind with respect to that, and not the distinction which has been suggested, that it was different from other declarations because it was an admission. That, I think, would be a false distinction because all of these declarations are admissible so far as the hearsay rule is concerned, on the theory that they are admissions.

The rule that makes them binding, if made by one conspirator, as against others, is not a rule of evidence, it is a rule of substantive law that holds one conspirator to the acts or declarations of another conspirator if a conspiracy is shown, and if it is shown that the acts or declarations are in furtherance or execution of the conspiracy.

So the distinction there was not between an admis-
3952 sion and a declaration. There is no distinction really between the two. It is between an admission, which appears not to be in furtherance or execution of the conspiracy, and one which may be shown to be of such nature.

Proceed, Mr. Knuff.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, under date of August 16, 1932, did you write a letter to the Board Survey Company concerning Orin F. Perry of New York City? You don't have anything in front of you regarding that, Mr. Lenci.

Justice Stephens: Read the question, please. I was looking for something in these letters also.

(Thereupon, the pending question was read by the reporter.)

The Witness: I don't recall.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Could your memory be refreshed as to whether you did write such a letter? A. I believe it might be.

Q. I would like you to look at this paper and see whether or not this paper does refresh your recollection.

Mr. Knuff: The paper I am handing to the witness is in the books of exhibits that your Honors have before you, and the letter is dated August 18, 1932. I am not having it marked as an exhibit at this time because I do not 3953 know whether or not we want to use it as an exhibit.

Justice Stephens: Thank you. Where does it occur with reference to these last exhibits?

Mr. Knuff: Immediately following Exhibit 446, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Thank you. Have counsel for the defendants seen it?

Mr. Bromley: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Very well, proceed.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Does that letter, Mr. Lenci, refresh your recollection as to whether or not you did write a letter to the Board Survey Company concerning Orin F. Perry? A. I think it does.

Q. Do you have the carbon copy of that letter, Mr. Lenci? A. No, sir, I haven't got it.

Q. You turned over to us— A. (Interposing). We turned over everything we had.

Mr. Knuff: I might say, if your Honor pleases, that we don't have the carbon copy of this letter.

Justice Stephens: Ask him if he remembers the episode, and what the complaint was.

The Witness: I remember the circumstances, yes, I don't remember the identical letter referred to that I wrote. But my complaint was that the Certain-teed were still con-3954 tinuing to sell Orin F. Perry as a jobber.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. And what was your complaint as to that? A. I believe that this took place after the time that the jobbers were to be sold only at the dealer's price, and not with a special commission to jobbers.

Q. And you complained to the United States Gypsum Company that Orin F. Perry was being sold by Certain-teed as a jobber, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. You did receive a letter from the Board Survey Company acknowledging your letter of the 16th of August, 1923, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. In addition to the paper that you have before you, did you ever receive anything further, any other letter, from the United States Gypsum Company, with reference to this same matter? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know what the ultimate disposition of the matter was? A. Well, I do know that eventually—when I say "eventually" I mean after a period of time—

Q. (Interposing) How long a period of time? A. I would say sometime probably during that year, or 1933—3955 the practice was discontinued of giving him a special discount.

Q. Mr. Orin F. Perry was unable, then, to buy the board at the dealer discount?

Mr. Bromley: Dealer discount?
Mr. Knuff: I beg your pardon—jobber discount.
The Witness: So far as I know, yes.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. And you say that that took place sometime after August 18, 1932, or early in 1933. A. I couldn't say the exact time because it is such a long time ago, but it was sometime thereafter.

Q. Did you have any occasion to make any further complaints concerning Mr. Perry other than the complaint that you made under date of August 16?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as assuming facts not in evidence. The complaint wasn't against Perry, it was against Certain-teed, because Certain-teed sold at a discount.

Justice Jackson: To Perry?
Mr. Bromley: To Perry, yes.
Justice Stephens: That objection is well taken.
Mr. Knuff: What was my question?
Justice Stephens: Read the question.

(Thereupon, the pending question was read by the reporter.)

3956 Justice Stephens: The point of the objection, Mr. Knuff, is that the complaint was not against Perry but against Certain-teed.

Mr. Knuff: I don't believe my question said it was, it said "concerning".

Justice Jackson: Why don't you rephrase your question?

Mr. Knuff: Very well.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you have any further occasion to complain that any licensee was selling Orin F. Perry and giving Mr. Perry a jobber's commission? A. I don't recall. I mean at the present moment I do not remember.

Q. If you did have an occasion to make such a complaint, do you think you would remember now? A. Well, it is hard to pick out—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) How can you know?
The Witness: I don't know.

Mr. Knuff: Now there is a series of letters, if your Honors please, that I am going to have marked at this time only for identification. I do so because Mr. Lenci is the person who can identify them, and I don't think that this would be the proper time to offer them in evidence because it would just break the continuity.

Justice Garrett: Well, you do not offer that letter
3957 of August 18th?

Mr. Knuff: No, your Honor, I do not. It hasn't even been identified as far as I know.

Justice Stephens: Yes, that is not necessary.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked Government's Exhibit 447 for identification—and if your Honors please, Government's Exhibit 447 will appear immediately following Government's Exhibit 438 in the books of exhibits which you have—this being a letter dated May 16, 1932, addressed to the Board Survey Company and signed George N. Lenci.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 447, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state, Mr. Lenci, whether or not that exhibit is a carbon copy of a letter, the original of which was sent to the Board Survey Company? A. Yes.

Justice Garrett: Pardon me, that is the letter of May 16, 1932?

Mr. Knuff: That is correct.

Justice Garrett: To Board Survey from Ebsary?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, and the first paragraph of the letter reads:

3958 "Please let us have a reply to our letter of May 6th".

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 448, the same being a copy of a letter, dated May 17, 1932, addressed to George N. Lenci, and signed C. Henning, Vice President.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 448, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. In connection with the word "signed", Mr. Henning's signature is typed, and Exhibit 448 is apparently a typed copy, not a carbon copy, of a letter bearing date of May 17. It appears in your Honor's books immediately following the letter of May 16.

Mr. Lenci, the original of the letter marked Government's Exhibit 448 for identification was received by you, was it not? A. I don't remember it. Oh, yes, I beg your pardon.

Q. Do you wish to change your answer, that it was received by you? A. Yes.

Q. And is this a copy of a letter that was received by you? A. We received the copy, I have no record of the original.

3959 Q. I understood that you had made this copy—

Mr. Bromley: (Interposing) I don't dispute it, if the Court please. It was received in the criminal case.

Justice Stephens: You don't raise any question as to its identification?

Mr. Bromley: No, sir.

Justice Stephens: The record may show that.

Mr. Knuff: Do any other defendants raise any question as to the identification of this document?

(No response.)

Justice Stephens: It may be taken as identified, then.

With respect to that previous letter of May 16, what was the answer of the witness as to that?

Mr. Knuff: My understanding is that it was a carbon copy of a letter, the original of which was sent to the Board Survey Company.

Justice Stephens: Very well.

Mr. Knuff: Will your Honors now turn to the next two exhibits following Exhibits 439 and 440, which are the next two exhibits that I want to have marked.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, Government's Exhibit 449, the same being a copy of a letter, dated June 17, 1932, addressed to Mr. C. F. Henning, Vice President, and signed George N. Lenci, Secretary.

3960 (The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 449, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state, Mr. Lenci, whether that is a carbon copy of a letter that you sent to Mr. Henning? A. Yes.

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 450, the same being a letter, dated June 25, 1932, addressed to George N. Lenci, and signed Frank M. Miller.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 450, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive that letter, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: Can we stipulate, Mr. Bromley, that that is Mr. Miller's signature?

Mr. Bromley: Yes.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 451—which will follow in your Honors' books immediately after Exhibit 446—it being a letter, dated August 18, 1932, addressed to 3961 George N. Lenci, and signed Frank M. Miller.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 451, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that letter received, Mr. Lenci, by you? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: I don't presume, as to these letters that are signed by Frank M. Miller, that there is any question as to Mr. Miller's signature, is there, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: No, there is no question as to his signature.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 452, the same being a letter, dated May 26, 1932, addressed to Mr. C. F. Henning, Vice President, and signed George N. Lenci, Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 452, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I will ask you if that is a carbon copy of a letter, the original of which was sent to Mr. Henning. A. Yes.

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked
3962 for identification as Government's Exhibit 453, the same being a letter dated May 31, 1932, addressed to the Board Survey Company, and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company, George N. Lenci, Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 453, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I ask you if that is a carbon copy of a letter, the original of which was sent to the Board Survey Company? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 454, the same being a letter, dated June 9, 1932, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company, and signed C. E. Hough, Treasurer.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 454, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that letter received by you, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 455, the same being a letter dated June 11, 1932, addressed to the Board Survey Company and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company, George N. Lenci.

3963 (The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 455, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I will ask you if that is a carbon copy of a letter, the original of which was sent to the Board Survey Company. A. Yes. In connection with that, there are some penciled memoranda of names in the corner which were not made by our office or by our company.

Q. Can you tell us what you refer to? A. There is one word, "Beatty", and under that it says "Tomkins Rockwall".

Q. Those were not made by your company? A. Those have been added since this carbon left our office.

Q. Do you recognize the handwriting? A. No, I don't.

Mr. Knuff: In connection with the handwriting that Mr. Lenci has referred to, I want to state to the Court that I don't know whose handwriting it is, and I don't attribute any particular significance to it.

Justice Jackson: There isn't any.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 456, the same 3964 being a carbon copy of a letter, dated June 21, 1932, addressed to the Board Survey Company and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company, George N. Lenci, Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 456, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I ask you to state whether or not that is a carbon copy of a letter, the original of which was sent to the Board Survey Company. A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 457, the same being a letter, dated June 23, 1932, addressed to George N. Lenci, Secretary, and signed Frank M. Miller.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 457, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that letter, Mr. Lenci, received by your company? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: I assume, Mr. Bromley, that there is no question as to Mr. Miller's signature.

Mr. Bromley: On this one, no, sir.

By Mr. Knuff:

3965 Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 458, the same being a letter, dated September 21, 1932, addressed to George N. Lenci, Secretary, and signed Frank M. Miller.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 458, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state whether that letter was received by your company, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. I show you—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Do you stipulate that signature also, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, your Honor.

Mr. Knuff: Thank you.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 459, the same being a letter, dated September 24, 1932, addressed to the Board Survey Company and signed George N. Lenci.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 459, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

3966 Q. Will you state, Mr. Lenci, whether that is the original letter that you sent to the Board Survey Company? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification, Mr. Lenci, as Government's Exhibit 460, the same being a carbon copy of a letter, dated September 27, 1932, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company and signed United States Gypsum Company—Vice President.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 460, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Can you tell us, Mr. Lenci, whether or not you received the original of this letter? A. Yes.

Q. You will notice that Exhibit 460 is a carbon copy of a letter that we obtained from the United States Gypsum Company's file. Do you now state that you received the original of that letter? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 461, the same being a letter, dated December 6, 1932, addressed to the United States Gypsum Company, and signed George N. Lenci, Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Govern-3967 ment's Exhibit No. 461, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state, Mr. Lenci, whether that is the original letter that you sent to the United States Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, Government's Exhibit No. 462 for identification, the same being a carbon copy of a letter, dated December 23, 1932, addressed to F. G. Ebsary, and signed United States Gypsum Company.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 462, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Can you tell us whether you received the original of the letter of which Government's Exhibit No. 462 is a carbon copy? A. I don't remember receiving the original, but I do know that we were given that consent, which was probably in that letter referred to.

Mr. Knuff: I wonder if Mr. Bromley will stipulate that this a carbon copy of a letter, the original of which was sent by Mr. Henning to Mr. F. G. Ebsary.

Mr. Bromley: Yes.

By Mr. Knuff:

3968 Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 463, the same being a letter, dated May 8, 1933, addressed to Ebsary Gypsum Company, and signed Frank M. Miller.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 463, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state, Mr. Lenci, whether you received that letter? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: Can it be stipulated, Mr. Bromley, that that is Mr. Miller's signature?

Mr. Bromley: Yes.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I now show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 464, the same being a letter, dated May 11, 1933, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company and signed Frank M. Miller.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 464, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive that letter, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

3969 Mr. Knuff: May it likewise be stipulated, Mr. Bromley, that that is Mr. Miller's signature to that letter?

Mr. Bromley: Yes.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I notice on the upper left-hand corner of the letter of May 11, 1933, there is some writing in longhand. Can you translate that writing? A. It was for that reason that I was able to say at once that I had received that letter, because the handwriting in the upper left-hand corner is mine, and it reads, "Copy to New York—5/13".

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 465, the same being a letter, dated May 29, 1933, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company and signed Frank M. Miller.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 465, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state, Mr. Lenci, whether that letter was received by the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: And I presume it can likewise be stipulated, Mr. Bromley, that that is also Mr. Miller's signature?

Mr. Bromley: Yes.

3970 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Now on the lower left-hand corner I notice some longhand writing. Will you translate that for us? A. That is in my handwriting also, and it reads, "Copy to EHD & Ask for reply".

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 466, the same being a letter, dated May 31, 1933, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company, and signed Frank M. Miller.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 466, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Can you tell us whether that letter was received in the office of Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: And likewise, Mr. Bromley, may it be stipulated that that is Mr. Miller's signature?

Mr. Bromley: Yes.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. On the lower left-hand corner I also notice some longhand writing. Will you translate that for us? A. That is in my handwriting, and it reads, "Copy to EHD—ask him to please write so that I can reply".

Q. And who is "EHD"? A. "EHD" was E. H.
3971 Diegel, who was my assistant.

Q. He was your assistant? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: There is also some handwriting just to the right of the letters "EHD" in ink, on the photostat which the Court has, reading, "Sent 6-2". Is that your handwriting?

The Witness: No, that is the handwriting of my secretary, it being a memorandum of the date that she sent that.

Justice Stephens: Thank you.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 467, the same being a letter, dated June 13, 1933, addressed to the Board Survey Company and signed George N. Lenci.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 467, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state, Mr. Lenci, if that is the original letter that you sent to the Board Survey Company? A. Yes, it is.

Justice Stephens: How many more of these have you, Mr. Knuff?

Mr. Knuff: Well, I have quite a number more—

Justice Stephens: Then we might as well take our 3972 recess at this time.

(Thereupon, at 12:20 o'clock p. m., a recess was taken until 1:45 o'clock p. m. of the same day.)

3973 AFTERNOON SESSION

(The trial was resumed at 1:45 o'clock p.m., pursuant to recess.)

Justice Stephens: You may proceed.

Thereupon, GEORGE N. LENCI the witness on the stand at the time of recess, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Direct Examination (resumed)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit No. 468, the same being a copy of a letter dated June 13, 1933, addressed to the Board Survey Company and signed G. N. Lenci.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 468 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you tell us whether the original of that letter was sent to the Board Survey Company? A. The letter, or rather, the body of the letter is a copy of a letter sent to the Board Survey Company. The memorandum at the top did not go to the Board Survey Company.

Q. That was put on for your own office information? A. That is an inter-office communication.

3974 Q. And who put that on? A. I dictated it.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 469, the same being a letter dated June 15, 1933, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company and signed Frank M. Miller.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 469 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state whether you received that letter, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: May it be admitted, Mr. Bromley, that that is Mr. Miller's signature?

Mr. Bromley: Yes.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 470, the same being a letter dated November 21, 1932, addressed to George N. Lenci and signed Edward H. Diegel, Sales Manager.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 470 for Identification.)

3975 Justice Jackson: Are we supposed to have a copy of that up here? Where does it fit in? That last exhibit, Exhibit 469, completed this last set.

Mr. Knuff: I am sorry. The Clerk has them. It is not the Clerk's fault, however, as I put those over there late today.

Mr. Johnston: I would like to remind the Court that we haven't seen any of those that he is offering now, and we want the privilege of looking at them before they are offered.

Justice Jackson: You are entitled to do that.

Mr. Knuff: I suppose that that is because I have been going so fast that I caught up with myself this morning.

Justice Garrett: Mr. Knuff, may I interrupt you here? This morning you began offering, here, with what number, I don't recall?

Mr. Knuff: Exhibit 447.

Justice Garrett: You began offering them for the purposes of identification.

Mr. Knuff: That is right.

Justice Garrett: You stated at that time that this witness was the one by whom these letters could be identified.

Mr. Knuff: That is correct.

Justice Garrett: And that they were not being 3976 introduced as evidence. You are not introducing them—as I understand it, you are not going to introduce them today as evidence?

Mr. Knuff: We have changed our opinion since I made that statement. We are going to introduce them today, Your Honor.

Justice Jackson: Do you have to get such a long, long list before you offer them all? Does that fit in with your plans? I am just wondering how we can keep them all in mind if there are separate objections made to several of them.

Mr. Knuff: They logically fall into three separate and distinct categories. One will begin with Exhibit 451 and will take in certain exhibits; then another category will begin with Exhibit 447 and end with 457, exclusive of 451—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) Well, you can do your own grouping as you make the offer.

Mr. Knuff: That is what I intended to do, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: We should know, however, whether you are marking them merely for identification or otherwise, because if you are marking them for introduction we must read them very carefully so we can understand them for the purpose of understanding objections.

Mr. Knuff: I didn't think we would reach them today.

Justice Garrett: So far, there has not been the 3977 slightest objection on the matter of identification. In fact, counsel for the defendants have agreed to the identification of signatures.

Now suddenly we are confronted with the proposition that you are going to introduce them as evidence. It is very trying to have to—it is all right, of course, if you are going to introduce them as evidence, but there could have been so much time saved by having them identified and then taking them as evidence at the same time.

However, proceed as you like.

Mr. Knuff: We have, I believe, only about two more to be marked, and then the three groups, as I have indicated, will be introduced.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive Government's Exhibit 470 for Identification from Mr. Diegel, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Edward Diegel is Sales Manager for the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. Yes, my assistant.

Q. And generally, he is in charge of the sales of the Ebsary Gypsum Company, under your direction? A. Yes.

Q. He is not a local sales manager? A. No.

3978 Q. I show you what has been—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Just a moment. Since you are going to offer these, we will have to read each of them.

Mr. Knuff: Excuse me. I just have one more before I will offer the three groups in evidence.

(Exhibit 470 examined by the Court.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 471, the same being a copy of a letter dated November 28, 1932, addressed to the Board Survey Company, signed Ebsary Gypsum Company, G. N. Lenci, Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 471 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state whether or not that is a carbon copy of a letter the original of which was sent to the Board Survey Company? A. Yes.

Q. This morning, I asked you concerning a letter that you wrote to the Board Survey Company, dated August 16, the reply to which was marked Government's Exhibit 451.

Mr. Knuff: Will you please show Mr. Lenci that 3979 exhibit, please?

(Government's Exhibit 451 handed to witness.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Do you have before you that letter, Government's Exhibit 451? A. I have the Board Survey letter of August 16, yes.

Q. Do you recall that this morning I asked if there were any further complaints sent to the Board Survey Company concerning the sale by any licensees to jobbers, and your reply was, as I recall it, that you didn't think there were any further complaints? Do you remember that? A. Yes; and didn't I follow that up, in response to a question from the bench, by saying—

Q. (Interposing) As I recall your testimony, you said the condition was corrected later that year or in the first part of 1933. A. Yes.

Q. Now do you have before you Government's Exhibit No. 471? A. Yes.

Q. In view of what you have before you now, do you care to make any change in your previous testimony? A. Well, we were still complaining up to as late as November of 1932.

3980 Q. Of 1932? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: Now, if Your Honors please, we offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 451, 470, and 471.

Justice Stephens: Since you stated that you were not offering these exhibits at this time, I didn't read two or three of them, because I didn't want to hold you up. I assumed if you offered them later I would have a chance to read them before then.

(Exhibits 451, 470 and 471 examined by the Court.)

Justice Stephens: Is there any objection to these exhibits? Have counsel for the defendants seen them?

Mr. Johnston: I am a little like counsel for the Government, I am getting so mixed up on these exhibits I don't know whether we have seen all of them or not.

Mr. Knuff: I am not mixed up.

Mr. Johnston: As I understand it, they are offering 451 but nothing before that; then they skip over to 470?

Justice Stephens: They are offering 451, 470, and 471. Just those three, now.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: If there is no other objection, they will be received in evidence subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents referred to, marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 451, 470, and 471, were received in 3981 evidence.)

Justice Stephens: The Court Reporter has kindly offered, the record may show, to save the Court the use of so many words in this particular situation, and wherever the Court uses the phrase "the usual reservation", the Court Reporter will write out the entire statement that the Court has been using.

Mr. Knuff: I now offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 447, 448, 449, 450, 452, 453, 454, 455, 456, and 457.

Justice Stephens: That is 447 to 457, inclusive, serially?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, except 451, which has previously been offered in evidence and received.

Justice Stephens: Oh, yes.

There is attached to Exhibit 448, Mr. Knuff, a little slip which reads—a typewritten slip, attached to it by a staple—I can't quite see it all, but it reads—

Mr. Knuff: (Interposing) "Attached is a copy of USG's acknowledgment to our letter of May 6. This for your information. GNL."

Justice Stephens: And then there are two words at the top, the names of Ebsary and Hough.

Mr. Knuff: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Is that part of the exhibit?

3982 Mr. Knuff: Yes, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Were you aware of that when you identified it?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Is there an attached copy? Oh, I see. The little slip is an office memo, and 448 is the copy to which it refers.

Mr. Knuff: That is my understanding of it, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Is there any objection except the usual objection?

Mr. Bromley: I do not understand what the Government has in mind by grouping these exhibits as it has. Will the Government at some future time attempt to rely upon some inference that because I haven't said anything about it I admit that all these letters relate to one subject matter, or that they are complete with respect to one or more subject matters? Because I don't make any such admission. They are obviously incomplete. There are letters that are not here, and the letters as they are grouped by Government counsel have no understandable scheme, they don't relate to the same subject matter, they relate to a whole variety of different things. I don't know why he groups them this way, if he has any reason.

Mr. Knuff: I have a very definite reason for 3983 grouping them in this way.

In the first place, it was more convenient for us to do it—at least, we thought it was more convenient for us to do it this way. And the letters relate to the policing of the industry, which is specifically charged in the complaint. There are various different types of policing.

Mr. Bromley: Well, is it your contention that these exhibits which you now offer in a group, relate to one type of policing?

Mr. Knuff: No, there are various types of policing in here, various phases of policing.

Mr. Bromley: I didn't understand that there was any issue in this case about policing, by the licensor, of the licensees' prices. I had supposed that that was admitted.

Mr. Knuff: It is the extent and character of the policing, and what they did pursuant to the policing.

Justice Stephens: Well, is there any objection except the usual objection?

Mr. Bromley: No, sir.

Justice Stephens: Then Exhibits 447, 448, 449, 450, 452, 453, 454, 455, 456, and 457 are received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents referred to, marked as Govern-
3984 ment's Exhibits Nos. 447, 448, 449, 450, 452, 453, 454, 455, 456, and 457, were received in evidence.)

Mr. Knuff: We now offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 458 to 469 inclusive.

Justice Stephens: Is there any objection except the usual objection?

Mr. Bromley: May I have just a minute, if the Court pleases?

Justice Stephens: Yes, certainly.

(Exhibits examined by defendants' counsel.)

Mr. Bromley: We make only the usual objection, but in making it I do not admit that these letters are either complete or relate to the same subject matter or to one or more subject matters. It seems to me that, again, they are hopelessly confused and mixed up and quite incomplete.

Justice Stephens: The exhibits are received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents referred to, marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 458 to 469, both inclusive, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. In 1932, Mr. Lenci, the Ebsary Gypsum Com-
3985 pany was selling board and lath to the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company at a manufacturer's discount, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And before you could sell that board and lath to the Connecticut Adamant, you had to have USG's permission to do so, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And did you secure USG's permission to sell the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company at a manufacturer's discount? A. Yes.

Q. The Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company is a plaster manufacturer located in New Haven, Connecticut, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. And they manufacture plaster and plaster products, but do not manufacture board? A. That is correct.

Q. And were you the supplier of that company's needs—or your company, rather, was the supplier of that company's needs for board and lath, is that correct? A. Only in a very small way.

Q. You didn't sell them their entire needs? A. Oh, no.

Q. They bought from other manufacturers than 3986 yourself? A. They did.

Mr. Knuff: May I have Exhibit 467, please?

(Government's Exhibit No. 467 handed to witness.)

Mr. Knuff: May I also have Exhibit 463?

(Government's Exhibit No. 463 handed to witness.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. The Board Survey Company had filed a notice or had written you a letter to the effect that the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company was offering patented board, manufactured and sold by you, to the New Haven Reserve Supply Company and other New Haven dealers in quantity, at the licensor's minimum price to you; do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. Now subsequent to receiving that letter, did you have an occasion to go to New Haven in connection with some other business that you had? A. Yes.

Q. And at that time did you see Mr. Kellogg, who was the principal stockholder of the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company? A. Yes, I saw Mr. Kellogg.

Q. And did you ask Mr. Kellogg whether or not he was selling to the New Haven Reserve Supply Company at prices less than dealer prices; do you recall that? A. My recollection is not absolutely clear on that.

3987 Q. Well, what is your best recollection? A. I would take it from my letter of June 13 that I did do that.

Mr. Bromley: I move to strike that answer out as merely a statement of conclusion.

Justice Stephens: Read the answer.

(The answer was read by the reporter.)

Justice Stephens: Do you have any recollection of doing it?

The Witness: Not an independent recollection.

Justice Stephens: It may go out.

Justice Garrett: I don't know whether it is important or not, but embraced in your question, Mr. Knuff, was the statement that Mr. Kellogg was the principal stockholder. That was embraced in your question. Were you testifying, or is that in evidence anywhere, or is it of any importance? You asked him if he had gone there to see about other business, and if he then talked with Mr. Kellogg, the principal stockholder. I don't know whether it is of any importance at all, but if so, have we any evidence that Mr. Kellogg was the principal stockholder?

Mr. Knuff: I don't think it would be seriously questioned. As I understand it, the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company was a concern that was what you might call a family-owned concern; and Mr. Kellogg, who recently died, 3988 and who was the gentleman that I had reference to, I believe was the principal owner of the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company.

Do you know, Mr. Lenci, whether Mr. Kellogg was an officer of the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company?

The Witness: I believe that he was, and that was the reason I answered that question as I did, that I saw Mr. Kellogg.

I don't know whether he was the principal stockholder or not.

Justice Stephens: You should take pains, Mr. Lenci, when these leading questions are asked you which contain a recital of facts, if you don't understand or agree to that recital of facts to say so. Otherwise, we get matters in the record which ought not be in the record.

The Witness: Thank you.

Justice Garrett: Upon my own responsibility, and not on the responsibility of my associates on the Court, I would like to ask this: We are dealing with these letters now, many of them to the Board Survey Company. The witness stated earlier in the day that the Board Survey Company—I think I quote the idea, though probably not his language, accurately—was a subsidiary of USG. For my information, I would like to know if it was a subsidiary of USG or if it was an organization formed after these licenses had 3989 been taken, and was an organization in which every licensee had an interest? I suppose it took some money to support it. Did the licensees support it or contribute to it, or was it purely a subsidiary of USG?

Mr. Bromley: Well, it was an agency of USG, all of the stock of which was owned by USG, and the money to run which was loaned to it by USG. The licensees had no interest in it whatsoever. It was formed after the licenses were taken for the purpose of bringing about compliance with the licenses in situations where one licensee would complain against another. It was set up as a separate organization, really a separate department of USG, and its sole function as a corporation was to receive complaints of license violations by licensees, from other licensees; investigate them, and call them to the attention of the offending licensee.

Justice Stephens: Is that the understanding of the Government?

Mr. Knuff: Well, it is my understanding that the Board Survey Company was a wholly-controlled agency of the United States Gypsum Company, and that they did receive complaints. I will go along that far with Mr. Bromley's statement.

Mr. Bromley: I think the reason for it was that the licensor didn't feel that complaints ought to be handled by its own sales department, which was in active competition for business with these licensees; and that it would 3990 be fairer if it could get an organization that had some element of impartiality in it, and was completely divorced from USG's own sales activities.

Justice Stephens: Now, you seem to halt, Mr. Knuff, at agreeing that the licensees had no interest in it. Do you claim that they had a financial interest in it?

Mr. Knuff: I don't believe that the licensees had any interest in it at all. I think that the financial interest was entirely in the USG Company. I don't think any of the licensees had any financial interest in it.

Justice Garrett: These exhibits that you are now offering, and which have been offered and received in evidence, and the examination which you are now proceeding with, relate to this so-called policing that is referred to here in the complaint, and one instrumentality, at least, of what you charge, was this Board Survey Company; is that correct?

Mr. Knuff: That is correct, Your Honor.

Justice Garrett: And that was entirely a subsidiary of USG, and the licensees had no interest in it and contributed nothing to its support—it was not, in other words, a creation of the licensees after taking the licenses?

Mr. Knuff: I don't know how it was created. I don't think the licensees had any financial interest in it. I think the licensees had an interest—not financial, how-3991 ever—in the maintaining of the policing agency, but I don't believe they had any financial interest in it at all.

Justice Garrett: All right.

Mr. Bromley: Or any stock interest.

Mr. Knuff: Or any stock interest,—I don't believe they did, but I don't know. Maybe Mr. Lenci could enlighten us as to his company.

Justice Garrett: Was that incorporated, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: It was an Illinois corporation, formed after the licenses were signed.

Justice Stephens: What you mean, I suppose, Mr. Knuff—if I don't state this correctly you are at liberty to disagree—is that you claim the licensees had an interest in such an agency as the Board Survey Company being in existence and carrying on its activities because it was in the interest of the licensees, and each of them, that there should not be violations of the licenses by others?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, I would agree heartily with that statement.

Justice Jackson: That is really obvious, isn't it?

Mr. Knuff: I thought it was.

Mr. Bromley: What we said about it, at the time we formed it, is contained in Exhibit 432, a letter of March 4, 1932, which Mr. Henning wrote to the Ebsary Gypsum Company.

Justice Garrett: I read that, but it didn't explain
3992 it quite fully enough for me to thoroughly understand it.

Justice Stephens: You may proceed.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I wonder, Mr. Lenci, if your recollection could be refreshed as to how you received your information concerning the sales of Connecticut Adamant Company to the New Haven Reserve Supply Company. Do you think it could be refreshed? A. It might be, yes.

Q. I would like to have you read your testimony that you gave at the trial in the District Court here on the 20th of October, 1941, beginning at the bottom of page 558 and going over to the middle of page 560.

(The testimony referred to was handed to the witness.)

Justice Stephens: While the witness is reading that, will you read me Mr. Knuff's question, please?

(The record was read by the reporter.)

The Witness: Yes, I have read it.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Marshal, hand to counsel, and then let us see, the testimony referred to.

Justice Jackson: I think counsel have their own copies.

Justice Stephens: All right, let us see it, then.

(The testimony referred to handed to the Court.)

Justice Stephens: What pages is this between?

Mr. Knuff: From the bottom of page 558 to the 3993 middle of page 560.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Since reading this testimony, has your memory been refreshed, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. Did you go up to New Haven? A. I went to New Haven, as I said before, to see Mr. Kellogg, regarding gypsum block. We were selling gypsum block to the Connecticut Adamant Company. That is a different product entirely. And I believe in the course of the conversation—

Mr. Bromley: (Interposing) I object to what he believes, if Your Honor please.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. When you say "believe", do you mean by that that that is your best recollection? A. My present recollection is that I asked Mr. Kellogg if he were selling the New Haven Reserve Supply Company.

Q. And what did Mr. Kellogg tell you? A. He said no.

Q. At the top of Exhibit 468, I believe you testified that you dictated the memorandum that appears on the top of that exhibit, and that what is dictated there did not appear on the original; is that correct? A. Yes.

3994 Q. Will you just tell the Court what is meant by that memorandum, please?

Justice Stephens: Let us hear what it contains, first. Since it is in evidence, it is all right to read it. We can't see it the way these exhibits are bound. Read it to us, will you, please?

The Witness: It is addressed to E. H. Diegel. "Please note reply. You will note that I have avoided making a justification of the right of the Connecticut Adamant to sell any quantity at the carload price as I feel that it will weaken our case against the Paragon and American Hardwall. They only asked us how Connecticut Adamant could resell our board at the dealer's price, and this I have explained."

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you explain what you meant by "weakening your case against the Paragon and American Hardwall"? A. At the present moment, I can't remember just what that was.

Q. Well, did it have reference to the trucking situation around Syracuse, the trucking area? A. I don't remember exactly what it was.

Q. What is the reference to the carload price there, what does that mean? A. Well, the Board Survey Com-

3995 pany's inquiry was—how could our board be sold by the Connecticut Adamant Company to the New Haven Reserve Supply Company if we were not selling the Connecticut Adamant Company at less than the dealer's price, and in making that inquiry they had overlooked the fact that they had granted us the right to sell the Connecticut Adamant Company as a manufacturing distributor.

Q. You had previously called their attention to that fact, had you not? A. Yes, but apparently they had forgotten it.

Q. Well, what is the meaning of "sell any quantity at the carload price"? I just don't understand what you mean by that. A. Well, they couldn't understand how the Connecticut Adamant Company could pay us the full dealer's price, f.o.b. cars New Haven, and resell it to anyone else at the dealer's price, which would represent no profit, having forgotten that the Connecticut Adamant Company at that time was either getting the 10 percent or the 12-1/2 percent manufacturing distributor's discount.

Q. And you say that the Board Survey had overlooked the fact that you had the licensor's permission to sell them at a discount? A. Yes.

Q. And how would that fact weaken any case that 3996 you had against Paragon or American Hardwall, if you recall? A. I have been trying to place that in my mind, and honestly I can't remember.

Q. Maybe we can stir up some of the embers of your memory.

The Paragon Plaster Company, and the Paragon Plaster & Supply Company, and American Hardwall Plaster Company, were the three owners of Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation; is that correct? A. I can't say that they were the three owners. They were interested in the ownership.

Q. They were interested in the ownership? A. Yes.

Q. Does the fact that they were interested in Oakfield revive your memory to any extent? A. No; I know that, I know that.

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 472, the same being a letter dated July 29, 1929, addressed to George N. Lenci, and signed C. F. Henning, Vice President in Charge of Sales—and then opposite and below the "g" in Mr. Henning's name is a small "m".

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 472 for Identification.)

3997 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that letter received by you, Mr. Lenci? A. I think it was, there is nothing on it to identify it.

Q. You supplied that to us from your files? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: I wonder, Mr. Bromley, if it can be stipulated that the signature to the letter was an authorized signature?

Mr. Bromley: I don't know anything about it.

Mr. Knuff: It is definitely not Mr. Henning's signature, I can see that.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 473, the same being a letter dated March 26, 1930, addressed to George N. Lenci and signed C. Henning, Vice President in Charge of Sales. Was that letter received in your office? A. Yes.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 473 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 474, the same being a letter dated March 4, 1931, addressed to George N. Lenci, Vice 3998 President, and signed C. Henning, Vice President in Charge of Sales.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 474 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that letter received in your New York office? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: In the books of exhibits that are now before Your Honors, you will find that the next exhibit is dated March 17, 1931. Just skip that for the time being, please.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 475, the same being a letter dated June 4, 1936, addressed to George N. Lenci and signed C. Henning, Vice President.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 475 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that letter received by you? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 476, the same being a letter dated February 7, 1936, addressed to George N. Lenci, and 3999 signed C. Henning, Vice President in Charge of Sales.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 476 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that letter received by you? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We now offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 472, 473, 474, 475, and 476.

Justice Stephens: Is there any objection on the grounds of identification as to any of them?

Mr. Johnston: We haven't had an opportunity to go over them.

Justice Stephens: Take your time, gentlemen.

(Exhibits examined by defendants' counsel.)

Mr. Bromley: We make only the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: There is no objection as to identification of any of them, even 472?

Mr. Bromley: No, sir.

Justice Stephens: They may be received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents marked as Government's Exhibits 472, 473, 474, 475, and 476 were received in evidence.)

4000 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. The five exhibits that you have just identified, Mr. Lenci, relate to meetings that were held on the days specified, and were what might be designated as meetings of licensees; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. The dates on which these meetings were held were not the only dates on which meetings of licensees were held, is that correct?

Mr. Oliver: We object to that question on the ground that it assumes that the witness has testified that meetings were held on these dates. I recognize that the letters are notices of such meetings, but that is all.

Mr. Knuff: I will clear that up.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Were meetings held on those dates, if you know? A. I don't know.

Q. You received the notices of the meetings? A. We did.

Q. Did you receive notices of meetings other than those notices? A. I can't recall.

Q. Did you attend a meeting on August 6, if you know?

Mr. Bromley: What year?

Mr. Knuff: 1929.

4001 The Witness: I don't recall.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you attend a meeting on April 3, 1930? A. I don't remember.

Q. And did you attend a meeting on March 10, 1931? A. No.

Q. And did you attend a meeting on June 10, 1936? A. I don't remember.

Q. Did you attend a meeting on February 19, 1936? A. I don't remember.

Q. Did you attend any licensee meetings? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: Did I understand you to say that you did not attend one on March 10, or that you didn't know?

The Witness: I did not attend the March 10th meeting.

Justice Stephens: If there was one then, you didn't attend it?

The Witness: That is right.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was there a meeting held in the Commodore Hotel on October 17, 1932, if you know?

Justice Jackson: At the Commodore Hotel in New York?

Mr. Knuff: In New York City, yes.

The Witness: I don't remember.

By Mr. Knuff:

4002 Q. Could your memory be refreshed as to that? A. Yes.

Q. I show you, sir, what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 477, and I ask you to look at it, please.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 477 for Identification.)

Justice Stephens: That consists of three pages—

Mr. Knuff: (Interposing) The October 17th meeting is just one page, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: I see. They are differently dated. What number is this going to be?

Mr. Knuff: Exhibit 477.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Have you looked at Government's Exhibit 477 for Identification, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection as to whether or not you attended a meeting of licensees in the Commodore Hotel on the 17th of October, 1932? A. Yes, I did attend that meeting.

Q. And the exhibit that you have before you is a memorandum in your own handwriting, is that correct? A. That is correct.

4003 Q. And when was that made, Mr. Lenci? A. Very shortly after the meeting.

Q. The same day or the next day? A. Within the next two or three days.

Q. Within the next two or three days? A. Yes.

Q. Who was present at the meeting on the 17th of October, 1932? A. For the United States Gypsum Company—

Q. (Interposing) Who represented them? A. Mr. Henning and Mr. MacLeish.

Q. Was Atlantic represented? A. Atlantic Gypsum Company was represented by Mr. Neale.

Q. Was the Kelley Plasterboard present at that meeting, or represented, rather? A. The Kelley Plasterboard Company was represented by Mr. Kelley.

Q. And was the Ebsary Gypsum Company represented? A. We were represented by Mr. Ebsary, Mr. Hough, Mr. Diegel, and myself.

Q. You had four there? A. Yes, it was in our own home town.

Q. And was National represented at that meeting? A. Yes, National was represented by Mr. Baker.

4004 Q. That is Mr. M. H. Baker? A. Yes.

Q. The President of National? A. Yes.

Q. And was Certain-teed represented at that meeting? A. Yes, by Mr. C. O. Brown and Mr. Roos.

Q. And was American represented at that meeting? A. American was represented by Mr. Black.

Q. That is Arthur Black? A. Arthur Black.

Q. And was Universal represented? A. Universal was represented by Mr. Eugene Holland.

Q. Texas was not at that meeting, is that correct? A. I have no record of Texas being there.

Q. How long did the meeting last? A. Well, just that one day. I don't remember whether it lasted a morning and afternoon, or just a single session. I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember whether it started in the morning and finished later in the afternoon, or whether it was an afternoon session and finished late in the afternoon—your recollection is not sufficiently clear as to that? A. No.

Q. At that meeting, was there any discussion as to the results of an audit that the United States Gypsum 4005 Company had made of the books of the various licensees some time previous to that? A. Yes.

Q. And who led that discussion? A. Well, as I recall it, the meeting was called as the result of the audit.

Q. Do you know who called the meeting? A. Well, the United States Gypsum Company called it.

Q. United States Gypsum? A. Yes. And as I remember, Mr. MacLeish had a record of the audit that had been made, and he was very much perturbed at the number of violations of the terms of the license bulletins.

Q. And did Mr. MacLeish point out that American had allegedly violated their agreement in 361 different ways, involving $45,000, which represented about 4 million feet of board? A. No, Mr. MacLeish did not use any names.

Q. He didn't use any names? A. He did not use any names. We knew our own when we came to the figure, because we had already been given a copy of our audit.

Q. I notice that on Exhibit 477, you have noted "1", "2", "3", and so forth, and then on the outside of that margin you have indicated "2", "5", "4", "6", "3", "1", and 4006 "7", and I was just corresponding— A. (Interposing) That was purely in the realm of speculation on my part.

Q. That was just speculation on your part? A. Yes.

Q. You were No. 4, is that correct? A. I was No. 4, yes.

Q. And according to Mr. MacLeish, the Ebsary Gypsum Company had allegedly violated the licensing agreement 711 times, to the extent of $50,000, and involving about 6,700,000 feet of board; is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Is that your recollection as to that? A. I remember the 711.

Q. Did Mr. MacLeish say what possible alternatives there were in case the situation didn't improve? A. Yes, he made the statement that if the situation did not improve, there were only three things to do: either to cancel the licenses; or for the United States Gypsum Company to institute damage suits against the licensees; or to eliminate the price control feature entirely from the licenses.

Q. Was there any discussion by any of the licensees as to what course of action USG should pursue? A. No.
4007 Q. That was just a statement made by Mr. MacLeish, that there were three things open for the licensor: either to cancel the license, or to bring an action for damages, or to waive the price control feature in the license agreements? A. That is correct.

Justice Stephens: We will take the afternoon recess at this time.

(Thereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed as follows:)

4008 Justice Stephens: Proceed.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. At this meeting of October 17, 1932, Mr. Lenci, after Mr. MacLeish had said that the United States Gypsum Company had three courses to pursue, that is, either to cancel the agreement, bring an action for damages, or to remove the price control feature from the licenses, what expression of opinion did any of the licensees make as to that statement of Mr. MacLeish's?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as repititious. He has already said, "None".

Mr. Knuff: I didn't so understand him.

Justice Jackson: Is that right?

The Witness: Yes, we were just told what they would do if we didn't behave ourselves.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. What was that, you were told what would happen if you didn't behave yourselves? A. We were told that if we didn't improve this condition they would take either one of these steps.

Q. Did you use the word "behave"? A. Maybe I did.

Mr. Knuff: Will you read the answer, Mr. Reporter?

(Thereupon, the record was read by the reporter.)

The Witness: That is my wording and not theirs.

4009 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. That is the way you understood their language, is that correct? A. To put it more correctly, we were told that we would have to abide by the license and the license bulletins, or that otherwise they would take one of these three courses of action.

Q. Your license wasn't cancelled, was it? A. No.

Q. And USG didn't bring a suit against Ebsary Gypsum Company for damages, did they? A. No.

Q. And the price control feature of the license wasn't abrogated in so far as Ebsary was concerned? A. No.

Q. Do you know of the license of any other licensee that was cancelled after this meeting? A. No, I don't know of that.

Q. Do you know of any lawsuit brought by USG for contributory infringement of the patent, after this meeting, against any other licensee? A. I don't know of that.

Q. Do you know of any license having the price control feature removed after this meeting of October 17? A. I do not know that.

Q. Now at this meeting there was a discussion con-
4010 cerning low prices, is that right? A. No, that was not a discussion, that was part of Mr. MacLeish's statement.

Q. What was his full statement? A. He gave us first the tabulation of the results, and then following that he said, "These violations fall into these various classifications".

Q. What were those classifications? A. They were low prices—do you want me to explain this as I go along? There is no point in my reading them all off and then going back to them again.

Q. I want you to explain, Mr. Lenci, your present recollection of just what Mr. MacLeish said at that meeting, and you can use the exhibit that you have before you marked for identification as Exhibit 477, to refresh your recollection. A. Well, the first item was low prices. That was very simple to understand. Those were prices at which board products had been sold at less than the bulletin prices.

Q. Yes? A. The next item is old prices—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Are you telling us what Mr. MacLeish said?

The Witness: Yes, not in his words, though.

Justice Stephens: I understand.

4011 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did Mr. MacLeish indicate what he meant by "low prices"? A. Yes, prices below the bulletin prices.

Q. I see, prices that were below the minimum prices fixed in the bulletins? A. Yes.

Mr. Bromley: Could we have it stated—prices by whom?

The Witness: By the licensees.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did he discuss the extent of the low price variations, that is did Mr. MacLeish discuss that? A. No, there was no breakdown given.

Q. If I understand you correctly, he simply undertook to catalog the various violations into certain sub-heads, is that correct? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. And in that catalog, or as one of the headings in that catalog, there was the subject of prices that were below the minimum price established by the United States Gypsum Company? A. Sales by the licensees at prices below those established in the bulletins.

Q. Did he talk about what the old prices were? A. Well, a great many of these violations fell into this classi-4012 fication because the audit started with the date of the very beginning of the price control.

Q. That was in May of 1929? A. May of 1929—and consequently, there were a great many orders on all of the companies' books at prior prices, and those naturally were below the bulletin prices, or a great many of them were below the bulletin prices, which were in effect after the licenses were granted.

Q. Are you explaining what is meant by "old prices", or are you relating what Mr. MacLeish said? A. That is what he said.

Q. That is what he said? A. Yes.

Q. In other words, Mr. MacLeish was excusing the low prices, is that correct? A. He understood what they were.

Q. He understood that? A. Yes. The accountants, in making their audit, made no attempt to edit the matter at all, they simply made a transcript in their own form, of the figures.

Q. Did Mr. MacLeish talk about the excessive discounts, the alleged excessive discounts? A. He did. I have just forgotten what that discussion was. I don't remember just what that was.

Q. Was there any discussion by Mr. MacLeish as 4013 to rebates, that is, that a licensee would sell board at a price, and then make a rebate to a customer later on? A. I have forgotten just what that discussion was.

Q. There was some discussion concerning rebates? A. When I say "discussion" I mean that Mr. MacLeish made some statement regarding that, but I have forgotten what it was—

Q. (Interposing) Had you finished your answer? A. I have forgotten just what it was.

Q. Did Mr. MacLeish discuss the matter of culls in the industry? A. Yes.

Q. What is the meaning of the term "cull"? A. Well, a cull is a board which is not fit for sale, fit for use.

Q. It is an imperfect board? A. It is an imperfect board, and they were used for dunnage.

Q. And what did Mr. MacLeish say about that? A. That some of the complaints were due to the fact that the licensees were putting in an unusual number of boards as culls, for packing, which in reality were first-class material and in a way were a rebate.

Q. And did Mr. MacLeish say that that practice
4014 would have to cease? A. Yes.

Q. Now what about seconds, was there any talk about seconds there? A. No, I don't think so.

Q. Would you say that seconds were the same as culls? A. No.

Q. They are not the same as culls? A. No.

Q. What is the difference between a second and a cull? A. Well, a second is a poor board which is usable, but an honest cull is no good for use in building.

Q. That is an imperfect board that hasn't any use— A. (Interposing) That hasn't any use, yes.

Justice Jackson: It is so imperfect that it hasn't any use?

The Witness: That is right.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. And a second is an imperfect board that can be used? A. That is right.

Q. Did Mr. MacLeish discuss the advertising policies of the various licensees? A. Yes.

Q. What did he say about that? A. The complaint was that at that time a great many of the dealers were demanding that the licensees buy advertising matter, or 4015 paint fences for them, or decorate their offices, or furnish materials with which to fix up their offices, and things of that kind—

Q. (Interposing) And Mr. MacLeish— A. (Continuing)—without charging for it.

Q. Let me understand you. Some of the dealers had been asking the licensees to defray the cost of billboards, is that what you mean? A. Yes, among other things.

Q. And some of the licensees were doing that? A. That had been done to an excessive extent which was, in effect, again a rebate.

Q. That is what Mr. MacLeish said? A. Yes.

Q. And did Mr. MacLeish say that that advertising policy would have to be corrected? A. Yes.

Q. Now suppose a dealer wanted to advertise Ebsary Gypsum Company's products in a newspaper, would you be allowed, under your understanding of what transpired at the meeting of October 17, 1932, to defray any of the cost of that advertising? A. I don't remember that that sort of advertising came up for discussion.

Q. That wasn't discussed? A. No.

4016 Q. It was just billboard advertising, and the painting of dealers' offices, and what other kind of advertising was discussed? A. Well, those were the principal items. A dealer would decide that he wanted to repaint his whole place, fences and everything else, and on the fence there would be a small sign of one of the manufacturers, but the manufacturer would have to spend the money to do the whole job.

Q. And it was Mr. MacLeish's thought that that was, in effect, a rebate, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. How about carpenters' aprons, were they discussed by Mr. MacLeish at that time? A. I don't think they were.

Q. They weren't discussed? A. I don't recall that they were.

Mr. Knuff: That isn't meant to be facetious. Later on we will show something concerning carpenters' aprons.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was there anything said by Mr. MacLeish as to the freight that might have been deducted from bills rendered the dealers? A. No, that isn't what that memorandum on here means. It means that in making up—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) State what Mr.

4017 MacLeish said, if anything.

The Witness: That is what I am trying to do—that the licensees, in figuring their delivered prices, did not use the proper freight rate from the mill to destination, which resulted in making a lower delivered price than should have been made.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was there any discussion as to switching charges? A. Yes.

Q. What was the discussion that Mr. MacLeish brought up? A. The statement there was that in certain cities the cars would be placed for two different yards to unload, and the Interstate Commerce Commission would provide a switching charge for that service; and that that should not be absorbed by the shipper, or the licensee.

Q. If I understand you correctly, on a car coming into Washington, a pool car coming into Washington, D. C., consigned to two different consignees, under the tariffs of the railroad company there is a switching charge for moving the car after it is first placed, is that correct? A. That is my understanding, yes.

Q. And Mr. MacLeish told the licensees that if any of the licensees were absorbing that switching charge, that that was improper under the license? A. Yes, that in effect it reduced the price.

4018 Q. And did Mr. MacLeish say that that practice would have to stop? A. That that would have to be corrected, yes.

Q. Now do the railroads charge anything, in addition to the regular rate, on a stop-over car? A. Yes, that again applies to pool cars.

Q. What is meant by a "stop-over" car, first? A. Well, using this as an example, suppose a car is shipped from Philadelphia to Washington, but contains material for a dealer in Baltimore, which is an intermediate point. The railroad, for what is known as a "stop-over charge" will permit that car to be stopped in Baltimore for partial unloading, and then continue on to the ultimate destination.

Q. And some of the licensees had been paying that stop-over charge, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And Mr. MacLeish said that that practice would have to stop? A. Yes.

Q. Now was there anything discussed concerning warehousing? A. As to warehousing, that has reference to cases where a licensee would make an arrangement with a dealer, and pay that dealer a warehousing charge, which merely was a cover for paying that dealer to buy his material, in effect a rebate.

4019 Q. According to Mr. MacLeish? A. Yes.

Q. If you wanted to rent warehouse space in, let us say Brooklyn, to warehouse your board, you were not permitted, under the license bulletins, according to your understanding, to rent that space from a dealer? A. No, and we wouldn't want to do it either.

Q. Well, in the first place, you weren't permitted to do it under the license bulletins? A. That is correct.

Q. According to your understanding? A. Yes.

Q. That is your understanding? A. That is my understanding, yes.

Q. If you wanted to warehouse your board in Brooklyn you would have to patronize some person other than one of your patrons, according to your understanding? A. Not necessarily other than one of our patrons, but we could not patronize any building supply dealer who might be a customer of any licensee.

Q. What was the business reason for that, Mr. Lenci? A. The reason for that would be that if you were anxious to influence your sales to a specific dealer, you could go to that dealer and say, "I will pay you $50 a month", or "I will pay you $100 a month if you will put my material in 4020 stock", and theoretically somebody else would come and pick it up.

Q. Well, suppose you wanted to, bona fide, rent warehouse space, what was the business reason for preventing you from renting warehouse space as you understand it? A. Because the thing was not for the purpose of renting space, it was done for the purpose of influencing sales.

Q. Now my question asked concerning a bona fide warehouse arrangement. Suppose you wanted, honestly, without any thought of making a rebate, to warehouse goods in Brooklyn. What was the business reason why you couldn't rent warehouse space from a dealer, if there was any business reason, according to your understanding?

Mr. Bromley: Do you contend there is anything in the bulletins that would prevent a bona fide transaction, as distinguished from a fake or false rebate transaction, from being consummated?

Mr. Knuff: We do.

Mr. Bromley: Well, there wasn't, and the bulletins already in evidence show that.

Mr. Knuff: There is a blanket order under those bulletins, a blanket prohibition under those bulletins, that is quite apparent if you will examine the bulletins. We will bring that out later on and show the blanket prohibition against renting warehouse space from a dealer.

Justice Jackson: We will read the bulletins, I suppose.

4021 Mr. Knuff: That is right.

Justice Stephens: It seems to the Court that perhaps we could save some time here. No objection is being raised to your asking this witness his understanding of the bulletins, but doesn't the last question really become argumentative? Isn't it one for argument as to what the bulletins mean, and as to what they may or may not prevent?

Mr. Knuff: I didn't think it was, but if your Honor thinks so, I won't pursue it any further because we are going to develop it in just a little more orderly fashion, later on.

Justice Stephens: Very well.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. There was a discussion at that October 17th meeting concerning jobbers, was there not? A. Yes.

Q. What was that discussion? A. I don't remember. There were so many discussions regarding jobbers, that I don't know.

Q. You mean that the matter of jobbers, the subject of jobbers, was a matter of very frequent discussion between licensees and the licensor? A. Well, you can see that from the letters that we had here this morning.

Q. I referred to two letters this morning. A. Yes.

4022 Q. Do you say that it was a matter of frequent discussion, the jobber situation? A. Yes.

Q. And you cannot tell us what the discussion was at this meeting of October 17, with reference to jobbers? A. Well, as I recall it, my best recollection is that the discussion was that a bulletin had been issued which put jobbers and dealers on the same basis, but that in spite of that, some of the licensees had continued to sell jobbers at a discount below the dealer price.

Q. And was there a discussion at that meeting that the manufacturers should discontinue that practice? A. I don't think that there was a discussion of it, I think Mr. MacLeish made a statement that it was one of the things that would have to be corrected.

Q. That the jobbing situation would have to be corrected? A. Yes.

Q. And that the licensees would not be permitted to sell a jobber at a discount? A. They would have to sell jobbers according to the bulletins.

Q. Which means that they wouldn't be able to sell them at a discount? A. Yes.

Q. Was there any discussion concerning the freight

4023 rates at that meeting? A. Well, I think the discussion on freight rates there is the same as I have already explained.

Q. That is, with reference to your using too low a freight rate or absorbing the switching charge, or paying the stop-over charge? A. Primarily in not using the correct freight in figuring the price to destination.

Q. Could it also mean using a wrong basing point? A. No.

Q. Not a wrong basing point? A. No.

Q. Was there any discussion concerning the freight and allowances at that meeting? A. There is no "and" in my notes, that is a "t". It is "freight allowances". I don't recall just what that was.

Q. Do you recall that there was some discussion concerning freight allowances? A. Yes, otherwise I wouldn't have made the memorandum, but I don't remember what it was.

Q. Was there any discussion concerning the f. o. b. mill price? A. I don't remember what that was.

Q. You don't recall that? A. No, I don't.

4024 Q. Do you recall that Mr. MacLeish brought up the fact that at the Fair at Chicago, the National Gypsum Company had accepted some of the World's Fair bonds in payment for goods that were sold out there, and that Mr. MacLeish said that that practice would have to stop, that you could only sell for cash. Do you recall that? A. I do remember something of that kind, yes.

Q. Do you know how much material the National Gypsum Company sold to the Chicago World's Fair? A. No, I don't.

Q. And do you know what justification National Gypsum Company gave for their action in accepting these World's Fair bonds? A. No, I don't.

Q. But Mr. MacLeish was rather insistent that that practice should not continue in the future, is that correct?

Mr. Bromley: Just a moment. That assumes that he said anything about it. The witness says he doesn't remember.

Mr. Knuff: He says that there was some discussion about that, but that he does not recall just exactly what the discussion was.

Justice Stephens: Well, of course under Rule 43 (b) you are entitled to lead the witness, but even in leading the witness, you may not assume facts not in evidence. You 4025 may interrogate the witness as to what Mr. MacLeish did say on that subject, if he remembers anything.

Mr. Knuff: I will limit my question in accordance with your Honor's suggestion. What was my question?

Justice Stephens: Re-ask the question. Ask what Mr. MacLeish said, if anything, on this subject of taking bonds in payment for material by National. Answer that question.

The Witness: I don't really remember.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You don't recall what it was? A. No, I remember that the statement was made by Mr. MacLeish, but as to what the details were, I really don't remember.

Q. Well, do you recall whether Mr. MacLeish said that that practice couldn't continue in the future, that it would have to stop? A. I don't remember.

Q. Was there a discussion at the October 17th meeting concerning commission men being employed by the licensees? A. There weren't really any discussions on these matters. These were all statements made by Mr. MacLeish, that such-and-such a violation fell into this class or into that class. And he said, to go back, that the question of rebates came about through the employment of men selling on commission, and that the audit showed that these commission men, if they didn't have a good month, would be 4026 very apt to give part of their commissions away to the customer, and that therefore the employment of commission men was a bad practice.

Q. That the employment of commission men was a bad practice? A. Was a bad practice, yes.

Q. And that that practice would have to cease? A. That that would have to be discontinued.

Q. Now I get the impression—I don't want to get it erroneously—but I do get the impression from what you have said that Mr. MacLeish was the only person that did any talking up there, and that the licensees just sat there and didn't say anything. Am I wrong in that impression? A. No, I wouldn't say that, but the whole meeting was to present this audit, and Mr. MacLeish's or the United States Gypsum Company's reaction to the audit, and to explain what caused the differences, and to suggest methods to improve conditions.

Q. And when Mr. MacLeish said it was a bad practice for the industry to employ salesmen on a commission basis, what did the other members who were present at that meeting, say about that? A. Well, there were very few commission men employed, and the ones who had them said that they would be glad to rearrange them and put them on a salary basis.

Q. You say that there were very few commission
4027 men, commission salesmen, employed in the gypsum industry? A. Yes.

Q. And the licensees that did employ commission salesmen said that they would be very glad to discontinue their employment, that is the employment of commission men, and put the commission men on a salary basis? A. Yes.

Justice Jackson: Mr. Knuff, is it necessary that you repeat the answer to the question, just to have him say "yes"?

Mr. Knuff: No, I don't think so.

Justice Jackson: You have been doing that. I think on actual check yesterday you did it thirty-two times, and you have been doing it all day today. You are piling up a tremendous record, and the witness' answers are his answers. Then if you repeat his answers to him, and say, "Is that right?" that doesn't add anything to the strength of his answer.

Mr. Knuff: I quite agree with your Honor, and I was not conscious that I was doing it, and will try not to do it in the future.

Justice Stephens: We don't want you to be self-conscious, we want you to be at ease in this examination. We all have our individual methods. But it is a fact of which we have all been aware for several days, that you have been following the practice that Judge Jackson has just 4028 spoken of, and in the course of ten days' examination, it does take a lot of time and energy.

Mr. Knuff: I accept that as a criticism that is worthwhile, and I will try to correct it. I wasn't conscious that I was doing it.

Justice Stephens: We all fall into habits, of which we are not aware.

Justice Jackson: If we were in your place, we probably wouldn't do as well as you are doing.

Mr. Knuff: Well, I am not so sure that you probably wouldn't do better.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Now was there any discussion as to meetings of licensees that were to be held in the future? A. Well, in the period from 1929 to 1932 there had been a tremendous number of bulletins issued, piecemeal, and honestly none of us could be blamed for making mistakes. Mr. MacLeish said that the only way to handle that would be to have meetings a little more frequently, and that when these different misunderstandings as to the meaning of a bulletin came up, we should get them straightened out at these meetings, instead of going on and creating a record such as we had been doing in the previous three years.

Q. And was there anything said concerning a more comprehensive return that the licensees should file with 4029 the royalty statements? A. Yes. I believe up to that time the statements had been very brief, and the United States Gypsum Company felt that that should be itemized in a little greater detail, and include with it an affidavit signed by a responsible officer of each licensee when it was submitted, and that they should be turned in once a month.

Q. Do you recall what the form of the affidavit was? A. Well, the affidavit was itemized as to the type of board, whether it was wallboard or plasterboard or lath, and the price was carried across, and the total taken, and the amount of royalties, which was on a percentage basis, figured, and the amount carried at the bottom as being the amount of royalty due from each licensee to the licensor.

Q. I don't believe you understood my question. I believe you are giving me the form of the return, but I don't believe— A. (Interposing) I thought that was what you asked for.

Q. No, my question was—was there any suggestion as to what the affidavit should contain, that is such as that the affiant had observed the bulletin prices, and that this was a correct return, and so forth—do you understand what I mean by that? A. Yes.

Q. Was there any discussion, or was there any 4030 suggestion from Mr. MacLeish, as to the form that that affidavit should take, if you remember? A. I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember that? A. No.

Mr. Knuff: If your Honor pleases, we offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 477, and I am not unmindful of your Honor's ruling of yesterday. I am offering it in good faith—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) I am sure you are. Is there any objection to it?

Mr. Bromley: That is objected to as incompetent.

Justice Stephens: What is your theory of its admissibility?

Mr. Knuff: My theory of its admissibility in this case, your Honor is this.

It is certainly a written declaration. It is perhaps not a complete declaration, but nevertheless it is a declaration and on that basis it should be admitted.

On the other hand, I think it should be admitted to corroborate the oral testimony that Mr. Lenci has given today. He has here said what was discussed out there, or rather at that meeting. Now I think if the exhibit itself is in evidence, it will corroborate that testimony. Here is the memorandum that was made, here is the way it was testified to today, and I think it corroborates rather 4031 fully Mr. Lenci's testimony.

In addition to that, I think that it is admissible on the theory of past recollection recorded.

Now I realize that there are statements in the text which say that a document that is offered on the theory of past recollection recorded is only admissible because the witness doesn't have any present recollection. But it seems to me that even if the witness does have a present recollection, that that fortifies what he said, and it should be doubly admissible on that basis.

This document was made by Mr. Lenci, it is in his own handwriting, it was made within a few days after the meeting was held, and we think that it is relevant, we think it has probative value, and we think that it should be admitted.

If your Honor recalls—Mr. Steffen has just called this to my attention—there were certain items on this exhibit where Mr. Lenci didn't recall just exactly what was said about them. And on that basis, or at least to that extent, I think it is unquestionably past recollection recorded.

Justice Stephens: He hasn't yet testified that it is a record of his past recollection.

Mr. Knuff: He has testified, as I understood this witness, that he made this memorandum within a few days after the meeting was held. I understood him to say that it was a correct resumé of the matters that were brought up 4032 at that meeting. Now I may be wrong on that.

Justice Stephens: I don't think he testified to that. It is possible that it is admissible, or that part of it might be admissible, as past recollection recorded if he would qualify it as such.

The Court doesn't mean to make an over-strict or extreme application of these rules. The Court does wish to keep the record down, and the Court also wishes to apply the rules, it is the Court's duty to apply the rules strictly in every case to the best of its ability.

It seems to me, although I will be glad to hear you further, and hear adverse counsel, that all this amounts to is an itemization of topics which were discussed, and that the witness has so fully stated all that was discussed, that there isn't any problem of confirmation or corroboration or refreshing or recording recollection any further.

4033 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, is Government's Exhibit 477 for Identification a correct resumé of the matters that were discussed at the meeting in the Hotel Commodore on October 17, 1932? A. To the best of my knowledge it is a record of the various topics which were discussed.

Q. And is it a correct record? I am not asking you if it is a full record, but is it a correct record of the topics that were discussed? A. It is a record of the topics, without explaining what each one was.

Q. And this is in your own handwriting, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. And it was made within a few days after the meeting? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: Do you wish to be heard, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: I think that still doesn't qualify it under the theory of past recollection recorded. It doesn't help us to have a list of the topics, once counsel has gone over it and had him explain what happened at the meeting.

Justice Stephens: If I may illustrate the way it strikes me, for the purpose of aiding counsel, if this witness, when called to the witness stand, had said he did not remember what topics were discussed at that meeting, but that he did remember that after the meeting he had made a list 4034 of those topics, and that he had made that list correctly, and that he had made it at or about the time of the meeting—if it was material then to show what topics were discussed there you would have a clear case of past recollection recorded.

But the witness himself has testified, with the aid of this document to refresh his recollection, as to everything in it and a great deal more. So it ish't a record of his past recollection which he has no memory of now. It is a mere statement of topics which he does have a memory of now.

It seems to me that your contention would abolish the rule of past recollection recorded, Mr. Knuff, and present memory refreshed, because on your theory every such item or every such document should come in, whether you call by one name or another, to confirm what the witness has said, when what the witness has said doesn't need any confirmation.

I don't understand that there is any dispute about what he has said. Do you dispute the witness' statement, Mr. Bromley, as to what went on at this meeting?

Mr. Bromley: No, your Honor, I think what he said is substantially true.

Justice Stephens: You may, I assume, wish to qualify or modify his statement through cross examination, but there isn't any denial that such a meeting was held?

Mr. Bromley: No.

Justice Stephens: Or that Mr. MacLeish was there?

4035 Mr. Bromley: No, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: And that he discussed these topics?

Mr. Bromley: Oh no, there isn't any denial of that.

Justice Stephens: We do not mean to restrict the Government so narrowly that it can't put in items which really amount to declarations, or records of past memory, but it seems to us that this is a mere case of present recollection refreshed, and such documents are not admissible.

I will say frankly to you that it seems to us that you do not need it; the witness has testified to everything in it. How can your case be harmed if it isn't in evidence? It is already in evidence that he did make a record of these topics.

Mr. Knuff: I don't believe the middle portion of this is in evidence, your Honor, that is beginning with where the figures 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, and so forth, appear. I don't think he discussed those because he said he could remember his because of the "711", but that he couldn't remember anything about the rest.

Justice Stephens: If you take those Items 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, and the columns of figures and items and notations which follow them, and put them in alone, as a record of topics which were mentioned at this meeting by Mr. MacLeish, on the theory that he cannot remember those, and that they do constitute a list of topics, what do they mean? A document to be admissible must be intel-4036 ligible.

Mr. Knuff: I didn't ask him what they meant because I know what they mean and I know that he can explain what they mean. I didn't ask him what they meant because—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) If you want to develop by further inquiry—

Mr. Knuff: (continuing) —because I knew that he couldn't exactly remember 4,000,000 feet, or 6,700,000 feet, and so forth. I know exactly what they mean and I know that the witness knows what they mean—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Just a moment. If you can develop by further inquiry that those items are a designation of topics mentioned by Mr. MacLeish, which this witness cannot remember now but knows that he did truly record, that part of the document might possibly be admissible as past recollection recorded.

Justice Jackson: Maybe my recollection is faulty, but I thought the witness testified as to what those things meant, in the first column, after the 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7, that there were shown the number of violations, involving a certain amount of money and involving a certain number of square feet. Now he doesn't know to which of the licensees any of these applies, except as to his own. But as far as what they mean is concerned, I think he has told that. Maybe that is just my imagination, though.

Mr. Knuff: No, I don't think it is your imagina-4037 tion, your Honor. I think there was an imperfect development of that because I knew that Mr. Lenci couldn't remember 3,500,000 or 2,800,000, and that is the reason I didn't go into it. I know that Mr. Lenci can explain what the figures 2, 5, 4, 6, 3, 1 and 7 on the left hand margin of the paper, mean in relation to the figures 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 which are inside the margin line. I know that he can explain that.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, the figure "1" under the word "Result" refers to what company? A. You asked me that before—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) That has already been answered.

The Witness: Those figures on the left I can only answer by saying that I was speculating that they did apply to those companies.

Justice Jackson: Didn't you say that the names of the companies were not mentioned?

The Witness: Correct.

Justice Stephens: We will take the recess at this time until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock.

(Whereupon, at 4:05 o'clock, p.m., the hearing was recessed until Friday morning, February 18, 1944, at 10:00 o'clock.)

4038 IN THE

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Civil Action No. 8017

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY; NATIONAL GYPSUM COMPANY; CERTAIN-TEED PRODUCTS CORPORATION; THE CELOTEX CORPORATION; EBSARY GYPSUM COMPANY, INC.; NEWARK PLASTER COMPANY; SAMUEL M. GLOYD, doing business under the name of TEXAS CEMENT PLASTER COMPANY; SEWELL L. AVERY; OLIVER M. KNODE; MELVIN H. BAKER; BROR H. DAHLBERG; HENRY J. HARTLEY; FREDERICK G. EBSARY; and FREDERICK TOMKINS,

Defendants.

Seventh Floor,
Internal Revenue Building,
Washington, D. C.,
Friday, February 18, 1944.

The above-entitled cause came on for further hearing at 10:00 o'clock a. m., pursuant to adjournment, before Honorable Harold M. Stephens, Honorable Finis J. Garrett, and Honorable Joseph R. Jackson, sitting as the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

APPEARANCES:

(Same as heretofore noted.)

4040 Last night before we adjourned, we were discussing the admissibility of Exhibit 477, and during the evening I read the exhibit over very carefully, and compared it very carefully with the testimony of Mr. Lenci. It seems to the Court that it is not admissible in evidence except possibly in part.

It is used to refresh present recollection, and the recollection being refreshed, the exhibit is not needed in evidence and is not admissible in evidence.

To offer it as a whole, past recollection recorded, is to offer it on a factual theory completely conflicting 4041 with the theory that it refreshes present recollection.

There is one part of the exhibit which might possibly be admissible as past recollection recorded, and that is the four-column portion which commences in the middle of the exhibit. The first column has the figures 1 to 8, inclusive. The second column commences with the figure 361 and ends with the figure 172. The third column commences with the figure 45,000 and ends with the figure 35,000. The fourth column commences with the figure 4,000,000 and ends with the figure 2,800,000.

Now the witness testified that he could not himself independently remember those figures, but that he did record them as figures mentioned by Mr. MacLeish at this meeting to which the exhibit relates, of October 17. He testified that he could not allocate those figures to any particular licensee except the figure in the fourth line, 711, which he attributed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company.

Now if it is material and relevant in this case, under any of the issues, to show that Mr. MacLeish, for the United States Gypsum Company, charged that the defendants as a group had been guilty of the numbers of violations involving the numbers of dollars and the numbers of square feet described in those columns, I suppose those items would constitute a past recollection recorded, as those figures were testified to as having been stated by Mr. MacLeish.
4042 I will hear the Government very briefly on its contention that they are relevant to any issue in this case. How can they be relevant? What do they prove? The charge here is not violation of the license agreements, but violation of the Sherman Act.

Mr. Knuff: I think they are relevant, but I don't think it is a matter of great importance, and we are not going to urge it.

Justice Stephens: The Court wants to be liberal and fair in respect of the introduction of the case of both the Government and the defendants. We want to err on the side—if there is any error—of giving both parties a full opportunity to present their case.

What do you claim the relevancy of the figures is?

Mr. Knuff: It would show, if Your Honor please, that the bulletins themselves were not clear, and that there was regulation here; and that the regulations, the bulletins that were doing the regulating, were anything but clear, because here you have the amount of violations that are set forth in this exhibit, and I think it was Mr. MacLeish's contention that possibly the regulations weren't clear and that is the reason they did have so many violations; and to overcome that they felt that there should be more frequent meetings of the licensees so that that wouldn't happen in the future.

4043 Justice Stephens: And if it is proved that there had to be frequent meetings of the licensees, and that the bulletins were not clear, and that that occasioned the numbers of charged breaches of the licenses, what does that prove? It may prove something, but I don't understand it yet. What does it prove as far as the Government's case is concerned?

Mr. Knuff: Well, as I say, Your Honor, in so far as the Government's case is concerned, that, in and of itself, doesn't prove anything, those figures don't prove a thing.

Justice Jackson: You don't attach any importance to it?

Mr. Knuff: Not at all, Your Honor.

Mr. Bromley: May I be heard, Your Honor?

Justice Stephens: Certainly, Mr. Bromley.

Mr. Bromley: It seems to me that this question which Your Honor has raised, raises a fundamental question. Over the recess I have been trying to find out, if I could, just what it is the Government thinks it has a right to prove in this case by either the provisions of the price bulletins, or these meetings, or these complaints that were made to the Board Survey Company, and I can not find any ground on which they are material or relevant, particularly in view of the fact that in the criminal case, in Mr. Kelleher's 4044 opening, at page 188, he said:

"At the outset, you should understand that we make no contention in this case that there was anything illegal in the way these companies sold and determined the price at which they would sell the board which they manufactured, to dealers."

And he reiterated that concession again and again. For instance, at page 197, he said:

"As I said before, no contention is made that USG or its licensees violated the law in selling at prices fixed by USG, to dealers."

There are 10 pages of his opening, between pages 188 and 198, in which it seems to me that he concedes, without any reservation, the entire legality of every provision in the price bulletins, the entire legality of what Mr. Knuff has referred to as policing.

That matter came up time and time again while this very witness was on the stand and these very exhibits were being offered, things like this would happen—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) Were they received in evidence, these exhibits, in the criminal trial?

Mr. Bromley: Only a very few of those that are now being offered, and those that were received had to do not with policing the licenses, but with a charge of the fixing of the resale prices of manufacturing distributors.

4045 Justice Jackson: Were they offered in evidence, the others?

Mr. Bromley: They are all mixed up, some of them were and some weren't.

Justice Jackson: That is just a matter of curiosity.

Mr. Steffen: I can answer your question specifically. They were offered, and Mr. Bromley insisted that they be admitted.

Mr. Bromley: Yes, in so far as they had to do with resale price fixing.

What I started to say was that Mr. Kelleher would frequently make statements like this, at page 671 of the testimony:

"Of course, we don't charge that the elimination of commission men among the licensees was illegal."

Then at the bottom of page 672, I said to him:

"So that you will concede, Mr. Kelleher, that this bulletin in provision"—meaning commission men—"was not made as a result of any unlawful understanding or agreement between the licensor and the licensees?

"Mr. Kelleher: I have made that concession so often, Mr. Bromley, that I don't see any necessity for it again."

Justice Stephens: Read that again, will you, please?

Mr. Bromley: (Reading):

"Mr. Bromley: So that you will concede, Mr. Kelle-4046 her, that this bulletin provision"—commission men—

"was not made as a result of any unlawful understanding or agreement between the licensor and the licensees?

"Mr. Kelleher: I have made that concession so often, Mr. Bromley, that I don't see any necessity for it again."

Justice Stephens: That has to do with the provisions of the license which forbade the payment of commissions?

Mr. Bromley: Yes.

Justice Stephens: That is, rebate in the form of commissions?

Mr. Bromley: Rebating through commissions.

I only used this reference on page 672 as illustrative of the fact that the 10 pages to which I referred, beginning at page 188 in his opening, can be, it seems to me, readily demonstrated as being a binding concession that all these price bulletins, all these licensees' meetings, all of the complaints—and mind you, there were many, many complaints involving the prices at which licensees sold to dealers, where USG would find a dealer selling at a low price or some other licensee would find a dealer selling at a low price, and they would think that was evidence that the supplying licensee must have been cutting his price to the dealer, and there were many, many of those transactions—were not illegal.

And we find the exhibits about to come up now. In 4047 other words, we find here, it seems to me, an attempt to attack every provision in the price bulletins and every attempt of the licensor to try to secure adherence to those provisions, on the ground that all of those provisions and all of those attempts were illegal; whereas, in the criminal case, Mr. Kelleher conceded without reservation that they were all lawful and legal and not the result of any conspiracy, and that the only illegal thing about them was that when these defendants attempted to control the resale price of the manufacturing distributors, then that overstepped the limits of lawful price control and that activity became unlawful.

So it seems to me that we are again faced with the same situation as we were in the Calvin Tomkins matter, where the Government has made a specific concession, without any reservation of any kind, that this whole price fixing scheme and its enforcement was entirely lawful and legal, except so much of it as attempted to extend price fixing beyond its lawful limits. And we admit this, that we can not control resale prices.

So I say that the Government has conceded that up to the point where they say we attempted to extend price control too far, and attempted to bring into that control resale prices, the Government concedes that all of our activities were lawful.

4048 So I think this question raises a fundamental proposition as to whether any of this evidence is material.

I thought my friend, when he introduced the subject of this first meeting, was probably going to try to prove that at this first meeting something was said or done which would be material to the charge that the license agreements were a mere subterfuge; or that something was said or done at this first meeting about trying to control the resale prices of manufacturing distributors. And, of course, he would have a right to do that, to go into every one of these meetings and prove, if he could, that something was said or done which supported the charge of subterfuge, or supported the charge of resale price fixing.

But now we are through with this first meeting, and there is no suggestion of anything of that kind. Rather do we find it proffered on the basis that it is material to attack price fixing by the licensor of the licensees' prices, a position which the Government not only abandoned before but conceded was perfectly lawful under the General Electric case.

So I say that on that ground, this evidence is entirely immaterial.

Justice Stephens: I was puzzled, I will say to the gentlemen for the Government as well as the defendants, as to why the Government was proving all of this detailed 4049 matter.

It occurred to me, Mr. Bromley, that perhaps the Government's theory was along the line of showing that the pattern of the license agreements, the complication thereof, the manner of carrying them into effect, with respect to area limitations and limitations on the amount of board which must be sold, and the like, carried the price fixing plan beyond the limits of the General Electric Company doctrine.

But that, I would think, could be shown by the bulletins.

Mr. Bromley: That is just what Kelleher conceded it did not do, that is my point. He conceded that this plan, as we worked it out, was protected by the General Electric case, and that there was nothing unlawful about it, nothing unlawful about such a provision as commission men, or any of the other provisions—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Provided it was in good faith and not a subterfuge.

Mr. Bromley: Provided it was not a subterfuge. That is the very point I am trying to make. And in these 10 pages to which I referred, Mr. Kelleher lists these provisions about trucking areas, and minimum quantities, and pick-ups, and commission men, so there can't be any doubt as to what he was talking about and as to what he conceded.

And I call those pages to Your Honors' attention in 4050 the hope that you will read them—they are too long for me to read now—but I make the point that he takes up these very things, jobbers, and those items, that the Government now seems to be attacking as illegal. So that there is no confusion as to the extent of Mr. Kelleher's concession of legality. And he takes up these very meetings.

So that it seems to me that under the principle established in this trial with regard to the Calvin Tomkins concession, and its binding effect, that the Government is foreclosed to level an attack now on the provisions of the price bulletins as being illegal, or on the activities of the Board Survey Company in securing adherence to the contractual obligations of the licensees.

Justice Stephens: Let us hear from the Government.

Mr. Steffen: I am rather surprised at the argument that Mr. Bromley is making. Obviously, we don't have here the references to the pages in Mr. Kelleher's opening, and are not prepared to give the Court chapter and verse on what we have to say, at the moment.

Justice Stephens: If you would prefer, the Court will take a recess and let you read that, and the Court can read it.

Mr. Steffen: I would prefer to give you at the moment a brief statement, with a reservation of the right to cite chapter and verse later.

4051 Justice Stephens: Very well.

Mr. Steffen: Mr. Bromley has made this point, which he tried to make when we first started this discussion back on the question of interrogatories, the first day in this court room; and at that time I challenged Mr. Bromley, and he took to water, as I think he will have to now.

Mr. Bromley, in the course of the criminal trial, kept insisting that Mr. Kelleher conceded, as he has been doing here all the time, various things. And he wanted Mr. Kelleher to concede that the patent license agreements were legal, and that all the regulations under the patent licensing agreements were legal.

I brought out at the time we first brought this thing up, a year and some months ago, that Mr. Kelleher did not make that concession, and we do not make that concession; and the sections or the paragraphs which Mr. Bromley has cited to you must be read in the context in which they took place in order that you can get any notion of what the issues were and what the concessions or arguments were before the criminal court.

Let's get down to facts.

I have the indictment here in the criminal action, and

I think I ought to read it in order to make it perfectly clear, for purposes of this discussion.

On page 8 of the indictment the charge is made, in 4052 Paragraph 13:

"Beginning in the year 1929, the exact date being to the Grand Jurors unknown, and continuing to the date of the presentation of this indictment, the defendants and the corporations hereinbefore named as co-conspirators, and others to the Grand Jurors unknown, have been continuously engaged in a wrongful and unlawful combination and conspiracy in restraint of the aforesaid trade and commerce in gypsum board between the States and the District of Columbia in violation of Section 3 of the Act."

Paragraph 14 says:

"Throughout the period of time aforesaid the manufacturers, including each of the defendant corporations and the distributors, acting in part through the individuals named as defendants herein, were engaged within the District of Columbia in an unlawful combination and conspiracy"—this is the essential part—"to establish, fix and make uniform and non-competitive the distributors' resale prices to dealers and consumers for gypsum board purchased from the manufacturers by the distributors and resold by the distributors in commerce between the States and the District of Columbia as aforesaid."

That was the issue, that was the charge that was before the Court in the criminal case, that is, that the Government charged the defendant USG and the licensees with 4053 having fixed and controlled the resale prices of distributors to dealers. And that was all that was involved, that was the issue.

And Mr. Kelleher—I don't have the section at hand—but Mr. Kelleher very carefully, in his opening statement, and I cited it to Your Honors a year or more ago, said that as respects the other violations—and those are the violations which we are now raising this morning, in this case—as respects the other violations we make no point one way or the other, we make no concessions. And he made no concessions, and I don't make any concession that Mr. Kelleher made any concessions, that those matters were legal. They weren't in issue, that is all that was involved, they weren't in issue in the criminal case. The only things that were in issue in the criminal case—and it was a very narrow question—are what we have charged here in Paragraph 45(e), I think:

"concertedly inducing and coercing manufacturing distributors to resell, at the prices raised and fixed by said companies as aforesaid. * * *"

That is the charge which was tried in the criminal case, and that was all that was charged in the criminal indictment, and there was no relevance to most of the matters which we have brought up here.

These exhibits, the one that Your Honors ruled upon just a moment ago, the memoranda of meetings at which Mr. Lenci was present, were introduced only as respects one or two items, those having to do with resale price maintenance by distributors. All the rest of the matter was certainly not conceded as being legal, nor was it conceded or stated to be illegal. The matter was not in issue and wouldn't have been relevant before that Court, and we most positively are going to stand on that.

Now if I can take up the constructive argument as to why we do think this evidence is relevant, granting that we made no concessions to exclude it,—and I certainly want to be heard at length before any ruling to the contrary is made on that point,—we consider that this evidence concerning all of the meetings that took place after 1929, between licensees and licensor, is perhaps almost conclusive evidence to show what the purpose of the defendants was when they went into the agreement in 1929, that is, it is very strong evidence from which the Court can infer that their purpose was not simply to take out a license and to be permitted to make a closed-edge board; their purpose was to control and to stabilize the entire industry in all respects.

And as you have seen this evidence as it is coming on, they have gone into great detail as to how you are going to handle switching charges, and advertising; as to whether you can or can not have a commission man; as to whether you can sell through jobbers; as to what the price should be for switching charges in Grand Rapids, Michigan—and I could go on in great detail—as we said yesterday, as to whether or not you can give away carpenter's aprons in order to promote the sale of board, and as to what sizes of board you may have, or what the standardization of the board should be.

That is, in the first instance, an indication of what their real purpose was when they entered into the 1929 agreements, that is, to end the price war and stabilize the industry. And all that sweep of evidence is certainly admissible for that purpose.

4056 It is next admissible for purposes of showing that they have gone completely beyond the protection afforded them by the General Electric case.

The General Electric case said that it is permissible, where you have a patent completely covering a product, and a valid patent, to fix the price at which a licensee may sell the article which he manufactures.

The agreements here, made in 1929, in Paragraph 2 specify that this license—and you may notice that that Paragraph 2 comes just immediately after they open their contract, and that is the thing they had in mind—that this license is given upon the condition that the licensor may fix the minimum price or prices at which the licensee may sell the patented board, or so-called patented board.

Now on that one little provision—and there are none other such in that long agreement—they have to build this entire system of trade regulation. They couldn't go any farther because the General Electric case said that they had only a right to fix prices. Under that right to fix prices they tell you whether you can warehouse your goods in a dealer's warehouse; they tell you whether you can ship less than 7500 square feet in a truck; whether you can go beyond this county and into the next county—they tell you everything you can do about your business under the "right to fix prices" as they say.

4057 Now if they have gone too far they have no defense in this case, and that is all charged in great detail in this complaint, and I think I should bring it out in order that we will have this perfectly clear.

We charge, in Paragraph 45, that:

"Said companies have entered into, have carried out, and are carrying out said combination for the purpose and with the effect, of restraining, dominating, and controlling the manufacture and distribution of said gypsum products in the Eastern area."

This evidence is certainly evidence concerning the control of distribution of products in the Eastern area, so-called.

Now that is carried on—and if you will refer to Paragraphs 89, 90, 91 and 92 of the Complaint you will see the whole set-up of policing and control which has been established—all within this one little paragraph giving them the right to fix prices. Within that they set up the Board Survey Company. They look down each other's collars with great care to determine whether they may have cut the price ten cents at some point or other. If they have, then there is an investigation—and they carry that out to the point of investigating what the manufacturing distributors have done. As I say, that is all charged in the complaint in very great detail.

4058 Paragraph 91 says:

"From time to time throughout said period, U.S.G. has circulated among its licensees numerous bulletins setting forth the aforesaid prices and terms and conditions of sale for gypsum board. The licensees, throughout said period, have adhered to said prices and terms and conditions of sale. The prices and terms and conditions of sale contained in said bulletins will sometimes be referred to hereinafter as the bulletin prices. Said bulletins, copies of forms of which are set forth as Exhibit No. 7 in the appendix hereto, have contained the following limitations and regulations upon sales of gypsum board by the licensees".

That follows the general provision in paragraph 90 that:

"Throughout the period from the year 1929 to the date of filing this complaint, U.S.G. has determined and fixed the selling prices and terms and conditions of sale of its licensees. Throughout said period the licensees of U.S.G. have sold all gypsum board manufactured by them at the prices and on the terms and conditions of sale determined and fixed by U.S.G. as aforesaid."

Then we list the whole series of terms and conditions from (a) to (u), covering everything.

You have to have an arbitrary billing rate. Even though your board doesn't weigh the exact amount, you still have to bill at an arbitrary weight.

4059 Then in subparagraph (e) it says:

"(e) minimum quantities of gypsum board for: (1) Carload sales; (2) delivered truck sales; (3) pickups at mills or warehouses; (4) mixed carload and truckload sales; and (5) pool car sales".

Then we get over to paragraph 121, which states in general terms the effect of the combination:

"By means of the combination, the defendants have controlled and dominated, for more than ten years, the manufacture and distribution of 100% of the gypsum board and 80% of the plaster and miscellaneous gypsum products manufactured and sold in the Eastern area", and so forth.

So that the charge of an unreasonable regulation of the distribution of products, that is regulation which constitutes a restraint of trade, is completely made in the complaint, and this evidence all comes in, first, to show that their real purpose was to control, that it was subterfuge; second, to show that whether it was subterfuge or not, they have gone completely outside of any provisions or protection which might be afforded them under the General Electric case, and that it is a straight case of regulating an industry from beginning to end.

Therefore, it is necessary for us to show in detail just what they have been doing in order to show how unreasonable this is. Many of these things that we are offer-4060 ing you are picayune, but being picayune is, itself, evidence of the detail and care with which they have gone into the matter of regulation, and that is charged in the complaint as being a restraint, and we propose to prove just that, and I think there is no question but what we can.

I must say, in closing, that Mr. Kelleher did not concede, and I do not concede, that he at any point ever said that these matters were legal or were not to be brought up at a proper time. Mr. Kelleher said that so far as the case before the District Court was concerned—we didn't look at the patent licenses—he was not looking at the patent licenses, he didn't test those at all.

So far as the regulation of all these matters was concerned, so far as price fixing by licensees was concerned, which is the gist of this case, I mean general fixing of prices under the license agreements, that was not at issue; it was a little narrow issue of whether these licensees had controlled the resale price of manufacturing distributors and therefore, everything else, practically all of the matter that we have in this case, was over to one side.

I don't know that there is any issue up. I would suggest that we proceed with the evidence.

Justice Stephens: Well, that is true. Nevertheless, this is a clarifying discussion, and it is helpful to have at the present time because the Court was going to make 4061 a suggestion to counsel for the Government, if there is to be a great deal more of this type of evidence, as to how it perhaps can be put in with much less consumption of time. Since it is obvious that objection will be made to the introduction of this evidence on the ground that it is irrelevant under the charges in the complaint, we might as well hear from Mr. Bromley, in reply, and look at these statements of Mr. Kelleher, and then we will be in a position to rule on such an objection if it is made.

What do you say, Mr. Bromley, in response to Mr. Steffen's argument?

Mr. Bromley: May it please the Court, it seems to me that it is not a question of what the charges in the complaint are, but it is a question of whether or not the Government has waived them in the criminal case in such fashion that it ought not to be permitted to contend that those charges are illegal.

I don't know what my friend means when he says that Mr. Kelleher did not waive them; I cannot understand any clearer language, picking out one of these little points, than the first language that I read on page 672.

There I was examining this very witness, Mr. Lenci, and trying to go into the purpose and effect of the bulletin provision about commission men, and Mr. Kelleher objected, and the court wanted to know why he objected.

Then I said, after Mr. Kelleher had made some 4062 statements to the judge:

"So that you will concede, Mr. Kelleher, that this bulletin provision was not made as the result of any unlawful understanding or agreement between the licensor and the licensees?"

Justice Jackson: Was that really a matter in issue in the criminal case? As I understood Mr. Steffen, the indictment in the criminal case was narrow, and it centered just on one subparagraph in the present complaint.

Mr. Bromley: Well, of course that argument by Mr. Steffen is just the reverse of what he is making here. He says that under paragraph 44 or paragraph 45 he is entitled to prove anything. Now the indictment had a paragraph as broad as his paragraphs 44 or 45, and that was paragraph 13 of the indictment, reading:

"Beginning in the year 1929, the exact date being to the grand jurors unknown, and continuing to the date of the presentation of this indictment, the defendants and the corporations hereinbefore named as co-conspirators herein, and others to the grand jurors unknown, have been continuously engaged in a wrongful and unlawful combination and conspiracy in restraint of the aforesaid trade and commerce in gypsum board between the States and the District of Columbia", in violation of the Sherman Act.

So there was the broad charge there. True, it
4063 was followed by other paragraphs which narrowed it, perhaps, but that is not the important thing. The important thing is that I was trying to get him there to take a position as to whether the indictment was broad or narrow, and that this question was up there just as it was here, as to whether this charge was a broad one or a narrow one.

And in connection with that argument, and in order to support his position, he made concessions with respect to this broad conspiracy alleged in paragraph 13, that I needn't bother about litigating that because he conceded that all of it was lawful; and that took it out of the case although charged in broad language, he took it out of the case by conceding that it was lawful.

I don't think it makes any difference whether that determination was res adjudicata or was litigated or not, or could have been litigated or not, so far as the point which I am now arguing is concerned, because all I am now arguing is that in connection with the dispute between us at the criminal trial as to whether this indictment was broad or narrow, he convinced the court that it didn't make any difference, even if it were broad, because the Government conceded the legality of everything that we did up to the point of trying, as he said, to fix resale prices.

So I don't think it makes any difference whether those issues were litigated there or not. In connection 4064 with that question, a concession was made just exactly in the same fashion that the concession was made with respect to Calvin Tomkins.

Now it didn't make any difference whether the indictment charged that this Calvin Tomkins device was lawful or unlawful. The fact is that, the point having been raised there, Mr. Kelleher conceded that the pricing by Calvin Tomkins was lawful, and this Court has ruled that that should be binding on the Government.

Now this situation is precisely the same, and all I argue is that there was a binding concession made as to the legality of everything we did up to the point of the charge that we attempted to fix resale prices, and the Government ought now to abide by it and not try to go back on it.

That is why I wanted the Court to read the ten pages in Mr. Kelleher's opening because that serves as the foundation from which these other concessions flowed later on.

Mr. Steffen: I want to say as to the Calvin Tomkins matter, that we did, quite cheerfully, concede that we would be bound by anything that Mr. Kelleher said concerning the Calvin Tomkins matter.

But note carefully that the Calvin Tomkins matter was as to manufacturing distributors. It had to do with the very issue that was before the court in that case—and I, quite decently, I thought—said that we would be 4065 bound by anything that Mr. Kelleher had agreed to in that case.

I didn't think that he had actually agreed as far as your Honors went, but we have made no point of that. But note carefully that it is a very different situation.

Whateyer Mr. Kelleher conceded as to whether the Calvin Tomkins Company was to be identified with the Newark Company and that there was no illegality in the fact, as testified to here, that Newark actually sold the Calvin Tomkins Company and the Calvin Tomkins Company actually sold at bulletin prices, Mr. Kelleher took that out of the case. So, as far as that transaction is concerned, we haven't anything to do with it.

But that concession only had to do with the very issue that was before the Court.

As far as our paragraph 45 (e) is concerned, that concession will hold, but there is no binding concession, or any concession, by Mr. Kelleher that the whole civil case is out of consideration, because he stated explicitly, and we will cite you the point, that the civil case was to come on later and at that time the whole question of the legality of the patent license agreements and of everything that was done under those agreements, would be tested out, and that is what we are doing here in so far as we have charged it in the complaint.

As I pointed out, the whole matter of distribution has been charged in the complaint as being a restraint 4066 of trade, and completely beyond the scope of the protection, if any, afforded by the General Electric case.

Justice Stephens: Did your complaint charge both? Is it the theory of your complaint to charge, first, that the agreements are illegal because they go beyond the proper limits of the General Electric case; and, second, that they are mere subterfuge?

Mr. Steffen: Yes. Let me make that clear, your Honor.

In our paragraph 44 we charge broadly restraints of trade. Then we have provided in the remainder of the complaint a series of different illustrations of restraints. One of them is price fixing; another one is standardizing products; another one is eliminating jobbers; and another one is control of distribution—such as we have here.

Then in paragraph 46 we say that all of this was done by subterfuge.

Now in so far as we put in evidence to show subterfuge, what we are doing is to negative the defendants' answer, and their defense. Their defense is that everything they did was legal because they had a patent license agreement, and that everything could be done under the patent license agreement.

We just say that in so far as we can show that it was subterfuge, that defense is out of the case.

Justice Stephens: You say that even if it were 4067 legal, still it wasn't bona fide?

Mr. Steffen: We would say that, yes.

Mr. Bromley: In answering your Honor's question, there certainly is no charge in their equity complaint that these provisions of the bulletins were unreasonable. All you have to do is look at paragraphs 90, 91, and 92 of the complaint. They are just recited as background and there is no charge that they are unreasonable or unlawful, by any stretch of the imagination.

Mr. Steffen: We don't have to use the word "unreasonable", your Honor, if we recite what they were doing, and if what they were doing is clearly beyond what anybody is permitted to do, which was the case here. The Court itself determines whether or not it was unreasonable, as a conclusion of law.

Justice Stephens: Well, the Court will first make one or two other corrections of the record, my transcripts now having been brought to me.

I have no corrections to suggest in the morning.

In the afternoon session, at page 4280, Mr. Knuff, in your question commencing at line 7, you say:

"Q. The Board Survey Company had filed a notice or had written you a letter to the effect that the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company was offering patented board,

manufactured and sold by you, to the New Haven
4068 Reserve Supply Company and other New Haven dealers in quantities", and so forth.

I think that should be singular, "in quantity". That is the phrase used in the previous questioning or the answers by the witness on that subject, as I remember it, and I think there is an exhibit also which refers to "in quantity". I don't know whether it is especially material, but I call it to your attention, it is your own phrase. You can make it show what you think it should, of course, but I thought you said "in quantity".

Mr. Knuff: I think that that is the way the question should have been phrased, "in quantity".

Justice Stephens: That may be changed then to "in quantity".

Page 4295, line 14, I think the word "that" should be stricken out after the word "attend".

Mr. Knuff: That is correct.

Justice Stephens: Page 4315. Mr. Knuff, your question, commencing at line 24, says:

"Q. I saw two letters this morning".

Did you mean that? I didn't quite understand what you meant by that. Perhaps it is correct, I don't know.

Mr. Knuff: I probably should have said that "I referred to two letters this morning", which is correct. I referred to the letter of August 16th and the witness had 4069 before him the reply of the 18th acknowledging the letter of the 16th.

Justice Stephens: Then that is all right. I thought probably you meant to say "you saw two letters this morning", but if you said "I", we will leave it as it is.

Mr. Knuff: I didn't see the two letters, I only saw one. The letter of August 18th said that it was in reply to a letter of August 16th. It should be, "I referred to two letters this morning".

Justice Stephens: Then that change may be made.

Mr. Bromley, will you mark in that record the pages of Mr. Kelleher's alleged concession, and also the ten pages that you referred to, and we will take the morning recess and look at it. Perhaps you had better make a list of those references for our information.

Mr. Bromley: Yes, your Honor.

Justice Garrett: Mr. Bromley, I think you had there also a printed copy of the indictment from which you read, did you not?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, your Honor.

Justice Garrett: I wonder if we may borrow that also?
Mr. Bromley: Yes, your Honor.
Justice Stephens: You may announce a recess for fifteen minutes.

(Whereupon, at 11:00 o'clock a.m., a fifteen-minute recess was taken, which was later extended to 1:45 o'clock p. m.)

4070 AFTERNOON SESSION

(The trial was resumed at 1:45 o'clock, p. m., pursuant to recess.)

Justice Stephens: Strictly speaking, there is nothing before the Court upon which to rule. The last exhibit which was offered was finally excluded.

The Court has read with care the statements of Mr. Kelleher in the criminal trial, and has also read the complaint. The two questions which seem to be raised, informally—first, as to what the complaint charges; and, second, as to what was conceded in the criminal case—will be passed upon, if necessary, when some objection is made which actually raises them, so that the ruling will not be in the nature of an advisory opinion.

You may proceed, then, with the Government's case until some objection arises which presents these two questions, or either of them.

The Court has a suggestion to make to Government counsel in respect of the manner of presentation of the case and this class of testimony. It is merely a suggestion, and it may be it is not feasible to carry it out because, in the first place, we all have to try cases our own individual way, in the large, and every man has somewhat different methods of workmanship; and, second, it may be that the nature of the exhibits and the difficulties 4071 under which you are working won't make this possible.

But it has occurred to us, gentlemen for the Government, that much time could be saved in the court room with reference to three classes of exhibits, or rather, with respect to exhibits which affect three classes of testimony:

A very large number of bulletins have been put in evidence, sent to Ebsary; a substantial number of notices of meetings have been put in evidence, sent to Ebsary; and a great deal of evidence of complaints of infractions of the license agreements have been put in evidence—all of these being in the form of documentary exhibits.

Now, of course, where exhibits are, so to speak, unique and present some individual problem which the Court must rule on or understand with respect to each exhibit, it is highly desirable, then, that each exhibit shall be presented separately so that the Court can rule on it and have it in or out of the record and a ruling clearly made on it at the time.

But it has occurred to us that, for example, if you have 25 bulletins to introduce in evidence, you might have them marked all at one time, serially, by the Court Reporter, and present them to the witness—or to the defendants, if the defendants are willing to admit that they were sent—have the witness identify all of them, after looking at them, by an answer to one question which 4072 mentions them inclusively, then offer them all at once, except that you might, of course, wish to particularize by asking the witness a particular question about one exhibit as to whether it dealt with the alleged elimination of jobbers; another, whether it dealt with the area in which trucking could be done; another, whether it dealt with the basing points; and another, whether it dealt with commissions.

But where exhibits all follow a pattern, where notices all follow a pattern or notices of infractions all follow a pattern, it occurs to us that if you could introduce them in groups that way, it would save the time of the Court Reporter having to mark them all separately, the lawyers examining on them separately, and examining each signature separately, and perhaps we could accomplish in an hour what might otherwise take two or three hours.

That, I repeat, is just a suggestion that may not be feasible. I assume it will not be feasible at the moment, because you would have to rearrange your exhibits, and you are not expected to follow it now, even if it is a good suggestion.

Mr. Knuff: I think it is a good suggestion, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Now you may proceed.

Mr. Knuff: Mr. Lenci, will you take the stand, please?

4073 Thereupon, GEORGE N. LENCI, recalled as a witness, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Direct Examination (resumed)

Justice Stephens: Which is the next set of exhibits?

Mr. Knuff: The memorandum beginning November 15, 1932, a long memorandum.

Justice Jackson: In longhand?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Right next to the one we have just been discussing?

Mr. Knuff: That is correct, Your Honor.

Justice Jackson: Next to Exhibit 477.

Mr. Knuff: Yes.

My understanding is that Government's Exhibit 477 was objected to and the objection was sustained; is that correct?

Justice Stephens: Yes. You finally stated, at the close of the discussion this morning, that you didn't regard those four or five items in the middle of the page as of any importance, and therefore that exhibit was excluded. The Court thinks you have really presented in evidence everything by the oral testimony of the witness that is material to your contentions under this aspect of the case. Even if the fact that he wrote the exhibit tends to confirm 4074 his statements that the meetings were held, the record already shows that he wrote the exhibit because he testified that he did.

Mr. Knuff: I was just trying to conform my action here to what Mr. Bromley suggested in the criminal case. Mr. Bromley there suggested that they be offered, in the criminal case, and I was just following that.

Justice Stephens: You are entitled to offer anything you want to and get a ruling on it and make your record.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, did you attend a meeting—you understand, of course, that you are still under oath? A. That is right.

Q. Did you attend a meeting, Mr. Lenci, of licensees on the 15th of November, 1932, at the Hotel Commodore in New York City? A. I don't remember.

Q. I show you what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit No. 478.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 478 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I will ask you to take a look at that and see if that refreshes your recollection? A. Yes.

4075 Q. Your answer to my previous question, then, is that you did attend a meeting at the Commodore

Hotel on November 15, 1932, and I take it by that you mean the Commodore Hotel in New York City; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Who was present at this meeting?

Justice Stephens: Have you had time to look that over?

The Witness: I have just glanced at it.

Justice Stephens: Suppose you read it over carefully and see if it refreshes your recollection, and perhaps you can then tell us.

Justice Jackson: It is all in your handwriting?

The Witness: Yes.

(Exhibit examined by the witness and the Court.)

Justice Stephens: Proceed.

Br. Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, Government's Exhibit 478 for Identification is a memorandum that is made in your handwriting, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Did you make it at the time of the meeting? A. I made it at the time of the meeting or very shortly thereafter.

Q. And does it purport to list the various subject matters that were discussed at that meeting? A. Yes.

4076 Q. And the list that you have made there, is that a correct list of what was discussed at the meeting? A. I think so.

Q. When you say you made it a short time after the meeting, do you mean a matter of days or a matter of weeks or a matter of hours? A. It was probably within the next day or so.

Q. The next day or so? A. Yes.

Q. Who was present at that meeting? A. The United States Gypsum Company was represented by Mr. Henning and Mr. MacLeish.

The Atlantic Gypsum by Mr. Neale and Mr. Fuller.

The Kelley Plasterboard Company by Mr. Kelley.

The Ebsary Gypsum Company by Mr. Ebsary and myself.

The National by Mr. Baker.

The Certain-teed by Mr. C. O. Brown and Mr. Roos.

Q. What Roos was that, Edwin G. Roos or Carlisle K. Roos? There are two Rooses, Carlisle K., who was employed by the United States Gypsum Company, and— A. (Interposing) This was Ed Roos of the Certain-teed.

Q. I see. A. American was represented by Mr.
4077 Black, and the Universal by Mr. Holland.

Q. Texas was not at that meeting? A. Texas was not there.

Q. Who acted as chairman of the meeting, if any person? A. There was no formal set-up to the thing at all.

Q. How long did the meeting last? A. I don't remember now, but it was not over the one day.

Q. Were notes of the meeting formally taken, that is, by a stenographer or secretary? A. No, it was entirely informal.

Q. An informal meeting? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you say no person acted as chairman? A. There was no formal set-up at all. The meeting was called by the United States Gypsum Company, and that was all there was to it.

Q. Now at that meeting, were any complaints discussed? A. I believe there were.

Q. What complaints were discussed?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that on the ground that it is immaterial and irrelevant to any issue in this case.

Justice Stephens: Are you raising the question which was informally argued this morning?

4078 Mr. Bromley: Yes, sir, I think I am.

Justice Jackson: In other words, it is immaterial and not relevant because of the concession that you argued about?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, sir.

Justice Stephens: And also, I assume, because you contend the complaint does not charge that these agreements were illegal?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: And the practices under them?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Well, that presents the questions which were informally argued this morning.

We have reached the conclusion, gentlemen, so far as the concession is concerned, that the contentions of the Government in respect of that are correct.

We think Mr. Kelleher's concessions were limited to the case which was on trial. Pages 188 to 198 of Volume 1 of the transcript of the criminal proceedings handed to the Court by Mr. Bromley, and also pages 671 to 673 of Volume 2, have been carefully read by the Judges, and it is true therein, as you point out, Mr. Bromley, that Mr. Kelleher gave a very careful discussion or statement or description of the provisions of the license agreements, and of the practices thereunder, which are the sub-4079 ject of description in the present complaint. But we think in three instances it was made clear by Mr. Kelleher, two or three instances, and once by the Court, that Mr. Kelleher's concession was limited to that case.

At page 188 of Volume 1, he said:

"At the outset, you should understand that we make no contention in this case that there was anything illegal in the way these companies sold and determined the price at which they would sell the board which they manufactured, to dealers. Instead, as I have already explained, the indictment charges the defendants with inducing distributors who bought gypsum board from them, to resell that board at the same prices and on the same terms and conditions upon which the defendant companies themselves sold it. Therefore, you will see that in order for you to understand how they fixed these distributors' prices, it is necessary for you to know how they determined their own prices."

Then he refers to the contracts, the license agreements of 1929 and 1930, and very fully describes the practices under the license agreements, as well as the terms and conditions thereof.

At page 197 he said:

"Now, let me again stress this so it will be perfectly clear. As I said before, no contention is made that USG or its licensees violated the law in selling at prices fixed 4080 by USG, to dealers. You may therefore assume, for the purposes of this case, that in so far as USG controlled the prices of its licensees to dealers, it was merely exercising that unusual privilege accorded by the law to a patentee. That, however, does not mean that the licensees' scheme and operation was not unlawful."

Then after that he went on to describe the alleged illegality charged in that criminal case, of control of resale prices.

Now in the other volume, Volume 2, Mr. Kelleher said, at page 671:

"Your Honor, I wouldn't raise this objection, because I understand the reason Your Honor has admitted that testimony about commission men. Of course, we don't charge that the elimination of commission men among the licensees was illegal."

Then Judge Goldsborough said, at page 672:

"Of course, I am sure that the jury understands that there is no issue between the Government and the defendants in connection with the defendants' relation to the licensees; no issue in this case at all."

We think, reading the whole of the statement of Mr. Kelleher, that it is clear he was not making a concession except for the purposes of that case, and was limiting the attention of the jury to the issues in that case.

4081 Now, however, on the second question, as to whether or not this complaint charges that these agreements and the practices thereunder are illegal, we would like, if possible, to defer ruling upon that.

I will state frankly that I am still in some doubt upon that subject. My colleagues, perhaps, have reached a conclusion, but I am in some doubt upon it, and I would like to hear a little further from the Government, and perhaps briefly from the defendants, to help me clear up my doubt.

I will say first to the defendants that the contention made by the defendants this morning came to me as somewhat of a surprise. Perhaps I have been obtuse about understanding the defendants' contentions. I do recollect the defendants contending in one or two instances heretofore that the complaint didn't charge these agreements to be illegal upon their face, and yet I have had the impression throughout this case that it was pretty generally understood there were two issues here, two outstanding issues: (1) whether or not these agreements, and the practices under them, transcended the proper limitations of the General Electric doctrine; and, (2) whether, even if they did not, they were mere subterfuges.

As I understand the General Electric case, it is that a patentee may, in a license agreement, impose conditions and terms of sale, including prices, but not necessarily 4082 restricted to prices, provided they are within the reasonable limits of the patent monopoly protection. And I supposed that one of the issues of law in this case was whether or not the terms and conditions of these license agreements, including these bulletins, including the various practices such as limitation of area and basing point provisions, freight charges and limitation of quantities sold, and amounts to be loaded into trucks, and the like, were within or without the proper limits of reasonable protection of a patent monopoly, and that therefore we would have to hear what these practices were in operation, so as to test their reasonableness.

But then I thought that the second contention of the Government was that even if these practices were technically legal, they were all entered into merely as a subterfuge and cloak, and not in good faith, for a general stabilization scheme.

It seems to me—my memory may have failed me—that the license agreements came into evidence without objection, and that the bulletins and these various other practices we have been hearing about here, have come into evidence without objection, except the usual objection. I therefore had the understanding thus far, Mr. Bromley, that there wasn't any question as to those two issues being in the case.

But I can see how I may have been misled—and I 4083 don't use that term, of course, invidiously—I may have been obtuse or I may have been inadvertently misled. It may be that the defendants' theory was that this evidence was all coming in only under the subterfuge issue, and not under the illegality issue.

But since your informal argument was made this morning, Mr. Bromley, I will say to the Government that my mind has been cast into some doubt on the question whether or not this complaint does charge illegality in the license agreements and the practices thereunder.

4084 Paragraph 45, it is true, charges a general conspiracy in violation of the Anti-Trust Laws, and in paragraphs (a) to (e) in general terms is stated the manner and effects of the combination and conspiracy charged.

But paragraph 46 says that, "Said combination was entered into and has been, and is being, carried out by the defendant companies in part under the guise of numerous license agreements purporting to relate to the use of certain patents owned by the defendant USG in the manufacture of gypsum board. To give color of legality to such combination, the defendant companies, and other companies hereinafter named, concertedly agreed among themselves to enter into, and did enter into, said license agreements. Said license agreements are not bona fide patent license agreements reasonably designed to secure to USG the pecuniary reward for valid patent monopolies, but were entered into and executed for the illegal purposes described in paragraphs 44 and 45 hereof".

Now it would seem to me that fair pleading—and I use that term as a term of art, and not with any reflection upon whoever may have drawn this complaint—it seems to me that fair pleading might arguably have required the Government, if it is charging two things, to have said those two things in terms, and to have said, "We charge not only that these were not bona fide patent license agreements, but also 4085 that they were illegal agreements, and that the practices under them were illegal, even if they were entered into without subterfuge".

Upon examination of paragraph 91 of the complaint, where the control of prices and terms and conditions of sale for gypsum board are stipulated and set out in detail, I fail to find any place in that paragraph, or in subsequent paragraphs in the complaint, exclusive of the prayer, which, in terms, anywhere says that those conditions and practices under the license agreements were illegal.

As to the prayer, paragraph 3 asks the court to adjudge and decree that each of the license agreements is in violation of Sections 1, 2 and 3 of the Sherman Act, but that is a prayer which would be proper even if the sole charge was that the license agreements were entered into as subterfuges.

Of course the sixth paragraph of the prayer, as amended, and the fifth paragraph, asking cancellation of the provisions of the aforesaid license agreements which authorize price fixing and royalties, and contain the other prohibitions and conditions referred to, and which restrain or seek to restrain the defendant companies from entering into any license agreements containing those provisions, smack more of illegality than of subterfuge.

But it seems to me that the complaint, in terms, does not charge these license agreements as being a violation of the Sherman Act so far as the General Electric case is concerned.

4086 Now of course you can argue to the contrary, that the Government is entitled to prove what is alleged in its complaint. There has been no motion to strike out of the complaint anything as surplusage, and the Government is entitled, therefore, to prove the allegations of paragraph 91 and the practices under it, since it has charged those practices, and then ask the Court to draw the conclusion that they are illegal, for any reason.

It may well be that the complaint is broad enough, when you read paragraph 91, and the prayer, and paragraph 45, all together, to fairly advise the defendants that they are charged with these two things, illegal agreements and illegal practices under them; and subterfuge.

I confess that my mind is somewhat in a state of doubt on this, and I don't like to make a ruling when it is in a state of doubt.

I don't mean to say that I have any doubt—Judge Jackson thinks I have misspoken—I don't mean to say that I have any doubt that the complaint does charge that the agreements were subterfuges. The complaint charges that in terms.

But I have some doubt myself as to whether the charge is made in the complaint that the agreements were, aside from the question of subterfuge, illegal because they went beyond, and the practices under them went beyond, the protection accorded under the General Electric doctrine.

4087 I have some question also—perhaps this is a little academic before we get to the actual ruling—I have some question also, if this complaint does not charge that these agreements are themselves illegal, and the practices under them are illegal because going beyond the proper limits of the General Electric doctrine whether or not this evidence that is being offered now, if it must be looked at purely in terms of the subterfuge charge, is any evidence of subterfuge.

It seems to me—I say this with reservation because it may be connected with other evidence which might put a different light upon it—but it seems to me it would prove the opposite of subterfuge. It seems to me the evidence that there were detailed bulletins sent out, and that there were constant corrections and changes of those bulletins, the evidence that there many meetings held at which the United States Gypsum Company insisted that the terms of these agreements be kept, and at which it complained about large numbers of violations of the agreement, and the evidence that a great many complaints were made by the defendants against each other—would tend to prove that they were taking these agreements very seriously and insisting that they be abided, rather than treating them as a sham and a cloak.

But it may well be, of course, that I am looking at the matter too partially; it may be that your claim of 4088 subterfuge is based upon some other evidence that the Government has to offer with respect to the attitude of the defendants towards these agreements, and my mind is entirely open upon that subject. I am not ruling that the evidence is not admissible at the present time on the theory of subterfuge, and my colleagues are both agreed that it is. I am inclined to think it is, subject to connection.

Looking at it alone, without connection, it would seem to me to be doubtful proof of subterfuge, but more inclined to be proof to the contrary.

I state these things very frankly because I always want to open my mind to counsel on both sides, so that they can have a full chance to convince me of my errors, if any. I would like to avoid a ruling for a few days, if possible.

I have made it perfectly clear, I think, that we all agree, and I don't understand that there is any contention by the defendants, Judge Jackson, that the complaints do not charge subterfuge; we are agreed that they do. Clearly the complaint does charge, in paragraph 46, that these agreements were subterfuge.

Justice Jackson: And the exhibits are properly admissible under that charge.

Justice Stephens: I think they are properly admissible, provided they are properly connected with other 4089 evidence which will show subterfuge.

Justice Jackson: Of course the evidence has to come in piecemeal.

Justice Stephens: That is right.

As to the other question, as to whether or not this complaint charges a violation in the license agreement, if there is some way to avoid an immediate ruling on the subject so that I can think about it further, and have a little more discussion on it by counsel, I would like us to do that, because I think counsel are entitled to a vote by all three of the Judges on the subject.

Will there be any difference between this evidence that you are now offering, so far as it relates to subterfuge and the evidence so far as it relates to illegality? If not, we can hear it all and then we can later hear whether or not it is applicable to the illegality charge if the complaint is ruled to contain an illegality charge, and the defendants could be protected if we take it all in now, by reserving the right to move to strike it out so far as it applies or may be said to apply to the charge of illegality, if the Court should rule that the complaint does not contain a charge of illegality.

Do you see any objection to that, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: No, sir, I think not. It seems to me that that can be done all right.

While our minds are on the precise point, I would 4090 like to say something that I didn't say this morning.

My position has always been that under paragraphs 90 to 92, inclusive, the evidence contained in the license contracts and in the bulletins, to which I did not object, was material because, while there is no charge of any illegality so far as price fixing by the licensor upon the licensees is concerned, the theory of this bill of complaint is that these lawful controls, exercised by the licensor upon the licensees' prices, were carried over into unlawful fields.

Now if you look at paragraph 96 you will see that it says at the very outset:

"The control by USG of gypsum board manufactured by its licensees, described in paragraphs 90 to 95 hereof, has been exercised from time to time throughout the period from the year 1929 to the date of filing this complaint upon gypsum board of the licensees not covered by valid patents involved in the license agreements", and so forth.

There is one charge that has directly to do with these bulletin provisions, not that they were unreasonable to the extent that they affected the licensees' price, but that they were carried over to material not covered by the license agreements. The same thing appears in paragraph 103 where it is alleged, in the second sentence, that from time to time we carried the terms and conditions in the bulletins to plaster and other products that were not properly, of course, subject to price control, because unpatented.

4091 Also, in paragraph 108 it is alleged that:

"Throughout the period from the year 1929 to the date of filing this complaint, U.S.G. and its licensees have, by concerted action, induced and coerced manufacturing distributors purchasing gypsum board from U.S.G. and its licensees to resell said gypsum board to dealers and consumers at the bulletin prices determined and fixed by U.S.G. for sales of board by its licensees to dealers and consumers, as described in paragraph 91 hereof".

So that I conceived of the license agreements and the bulletins as being quite material, because the Government was going to prove, not that it attacked them because they controlled the licensees' prices, or because they were unreasonable, not that they did that at all, but that the conspiracy was to carry those lawful terms and conditions into fields where the law didn't protect us, like purchased board, like the resale price of manufacturing distributors, like the sale prices of plaster and miscellaneous products that were not covered by any patent.

Now if the complaint had charged what I say it does not charge, that these terms and conditions in our price bulletins went too far in themselves, vis-a-vis the licensees, wouldn't the complaint have said, in terms, "Well, USG, you had the right to fix the price"—when the Govern-
4092 ment listed all these things from (a) to (u) on page 23, and paragraph 91, where they list all these prohibitions of the bulletin—wouldn't you have thought that any fair pleader would have said, "Why it is all right for USG to fix a price, that is contained in subparagraph (a) here, but when we get down to (d), specified areas in which dealers may pick up, that is unlawful because it is unreasonable."

But the pleader doesn't make any differentiation in any of these things from (a) to (u). He says, "Here is what USG did, it fixed the price and the terms and the conditions of sale".

Of course, all you have got to do is to read these things to see that they all have to do with price, they all affect price, they all are prohibitions against ways in which licensees could evade a fixed price by rebating or doing something else that would affect the price fixed by USG.

Justice Stephens: You contend, I assume this is dehors the present argument, but just to be clear—I suppose you contend that even if the complaint does charge those things to be illegal, that they were legal for that reason—because they relate to price.

Mr. Bromley: That would be our fundamental legal argument, and the General Electric case said that you could fix any term and condition that had a reasonable relation to price.

So that first I find no charge that these specific 4093 things that were regulated by the bulletins went beyond price. The pleader doesn't draw any line, he lumps them all together. He says, "Here is what USG did under its asserted right to control prices". As I read the complaint, the Government doesn't attack that at all. But it does go on to say that having set up this lawful scheme to control the licensees' prices, the licensees who manufactured these goods under the patents, these defendants got together and extended it into several fields which were plainly unlawful, and that they tried to extend it into resale price fixing.

Well now, of course our position is that we had no right to control resale prices. We don't dispute the Government about that. If we did control them, we were wrong. We say we did not control them and we never attempted to exercise any control except upon the price of our licensees. Now the complaint definitely charges that we did try to control resale prices. It definitely charges that we tried to control plaster prices and prices of other unpatented products. It definitely charges that we tried to control the price of board that wasn't subject to the licenses in the sense that it was purchased by the seller, and not manufactured.

So the reason I didn't object to the licenses and to the bulletins, was that I thought they were material to what was the heart of this complaint.

In all that I have said now, I have left out of con-4094 sideration the subterfuge argument which I think is perhaps as important a charge as this.

I agree that they did charge us with setting this thing up as a phoney scheme, not intending to exercise our legal rights, but setting it up as a subterfuge, and that we never carried it out.

The reason that I may sometimes in my statement have been confused about the existence of the issue of which your Honor speaks, is that I sometimes think that when the Government gets into the Supreme Court it may say, and it may have a right to say, "Well, let's forget about all the evidence in this case, we want you to overrule the General Electric case", and if the Supreme Court overruled the General Electric case, whether we had this complaint or any other complaint I guess our whole defense would fall.

But I have been confused between whether they could do that because it is charged in the complaint, which I do not think to be the fact, or whether they could do it just anyway, saying that the General Electric case was wrong and that a patent owner hasn't the right to control prices at all.

I sometimes have not drawn the distinction clearly because I have always felt that they probably could argue that some day and probably would. But I don't think that changes the fact that the complaint does not charge that these regulations of ours are unreasonable in any 4095 particular whatsoever, and all that the complaint charges is that they were unlawful because they were extended into fields where we had no right to extend them, like the resale price field.

Justice Garrett: Mr. Bromley, may I ask you this. Referring to paragraph 91 of the complaint, and the detailed statements under that, in so far as those detailed statements relate to board manufactured under the patents I suppose the defendants would admit that, wouldn't they, in so far as it relates to board?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, I think we admitted it in our answers.

Justice Garrett: I thought so.

Justice Stephens: That is, you admit that you did apply these terms and conditions of the license agreements set out in paragraph 91 to the sale of board manufactured under the license?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, those are summaries of them. We admit them as set out in the bulletins.

Justice Garrett: That is the way I understood it.

On the question of subterfuge, I expressed myself with my colleagues when we were consulting this morning, and I would like to say this in justice to myself.

I am somewhat doubtful about the relationship of subterfuge to the question of the legality of the license agreements. In other words, I don't quite understand just what may be meant by the term "subterfuge" if that be 4096 separated from the question of legality of the license agreements. That is a doubt in my mind that I would like to hear Government counsel on.

I agreed, as the Presiding Judge said, that the testimony was admissible here under the subterfuge ground, but I should like to say that I agreed to that with the understanding that the question of whether subterfuge, as a matter of law, would affect the legality of the license agreements, was a question to be determined as a matter of law by this Court eventually at the end of the case.

Now I perhaps have not made myself clear, and I do not know that there is any particular disagreement between us about that, but I felt—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) I would be glad to hear argument of that sort myself. I have understood, Mr. Steffen, that the drafter of this pleading was intending to charge subterfuge. Perhaps I should say it this way. It seems to me that it would have been possible for the drafter of a pleading like this to charge two things: First, that these agreements and the practices under them were illegal because they went beyond the reasonable protection of a patent monopoly; but second, that even if they did not go beyond the reasonable protection of a patent monopoly, they were not entered into in good faith, that the defendants did not regard them as binding, for one reason or 4097 other, did not regard them as having any real foundation, and the defendants extended them to fields beyond the fields which are within the proper purview of the General Electric doctrine.

As I said, I had been under the impression that the parties on both sides of the case were trying this case on both of those issues, but as I reexamine the complaint now, in the light of this morning's argument, my mind has doubt as to whether or not there is a charge of illegality in the agreements themselves and the practices under them by the licensees themselves, on their manufactured board, as distinguished from extending the application of the agreements to resale price fixing, purchased metallized board, and such other items.

I would like to hear you briefly, on the Government's side, on the doubts that arise in my mind.

It does seem to me, frankly, that it would have been fairer—and I use the term as a term of art in pleading, and not as a term of criticism—to make the complaint much more specific or explicit than it is, so we could all be advised more explicitly than we have been.

It may well be that the complaint is broad enough as a matter of law, to support both charges.

Mr. Bromley: I made an error in my statement which I had better correct now, if I may, if the Court pleases.

When I talked about the complaint charging an illegal extension of the bulletin provisions to the field of 4098 purchased board, I should have said purchased metallized board, so far as the complaint is concerned.

Mr. Steffen: I would like to talk very briefly, your Honor, and I hope I will be able to get our position rather clearly stated.

On the matter that came up just now, that the particular issue was a fairly narrow one of whether Mr. Lenci could testify concerning some complaints that were registered at the time of a licensees' meeting at which all of the licensees and the licensor were present, there is no question I take it, in anybody's mind, but what that is literally stated, I will not say charged, but literally stated in paragraph 92 of the complaint:

"The licensees frequently have filed complaints with U.S.G. of alleged violations of bulletin prices by other licensees and U.S.G. has, through the aforesaid agencies, regularly investigated said complaints. U.S.G. and its licensees have held numerous meetings at which the prices and terms and conditions of sale prescribed by U.S.G. in said bulletins and at which complaints of violations by licensees of said bulletin prices were discussed for the purpose of obtaining adherence by the licensees to said bulletin prices."

Now the question that seems to be causing trouble is whether or not there is any charge of illegality in connection with that recital, and whether that can come in 4099 as evidence on any issue which is properly within the terms of the complaint.

Clearly we have given notice of that particular matter, and there is no question on that score.

Now that gets to the question of what are the charges in the complaint, and why would that be relevant to establish or prove a charge in the complaint.

Now in the discussion so far we have not mentioned what the Government has consistently regarding as being the charging paragraph of the complaint, which is paragraph 44. That is the only place where we say that anything is wrong. I mean that you can search the complaint all the way through and you will find that is the only place.

Take resale prices, we don't say that that is wrong; we don't say that standardization is wrong—I mean with adjectives.

We said that it was wrong in paragraph 44, we said that these defendants have conspired to restrain trade, and that these defendants have conspired to monopolize the gypsum industry.

Those are the charges, those are the assertions of wrongdoing.

Then we have related in considerable detail the particular wrong-doing in which we find the defendants engaged, and among them, as Mr. Bromley has said, is that there is price fixing, which of course is the essential charge 4100 here; there is resale price control on the part of the manufacturing distributors; there is standardizing of the product for the purpose of, in effect, monopolizing it; there are a number of matters, such as we are developing here, concerning the means of sale, the amount of board you can put in a truck, the territory where you can sell, and all those matters are related as things which constitute, we believe, restraints within the charge of the complaint that the defendants have restrained trade.

Then we have related the whole series of different things which constitute restraints. Take the basing point matter, for example, that alone is almost enough to base this whole complaint on.

These defendants, under paragraph 44, are charged with restraining trade in violation of Section 1; under paragraph 45 we say they are doing it for the purposes of dominating and controlling the distribution of gypsum products throughout the Eastern area.

Then we proceed to say, in paragraphs 47 to 119, in detail, what they did by way of carrying out or effecting those charges which are made in paragraph 44, the charges of wrong-doing.

And this evidence here that we are offering is extremely relevant, it seems to me, for purposes of showing that the defendants were going to great lengths to control 4101 the pricing, the discount terms, and everything, practically, having to do with the business. That is a control of distribution as we see it within the general charge of the complaint.

Now let's take the matter of the license agreements, You can see from that, that the license agreements are subordinate. They are one of the means by which the defendants have been enabled to control the whole industry that, we say, they have controlled.

We don't say that that is, per se, an offense. The offense is charged in paragraph 44.

I can give you an example. Suppose the defendants all got together and they said, "Now what we want to do is dominate this industry, we want to stabilize prices, we want to standardize goods, we want to eliminate competition, and so on—how can we do it?"

Well, somebody says, "We have got a General Electric case that says if you can find a patent, and you can all agree to take out a license under that patent and pay nominal royalties, then we are within the law".

That, looked at all alone, might well be within the General Electric case. I mean it might be a nice little patent licensing agreement. Yet the whole thing might be done for purposes of subterfuge, for purposes of controlling the entire industry as we have charged here.

Therefore, it isn't the subterfuge which is, per se, 4102 wrong, it is the fact of what they did with their subterfuge, the license agreements.

That covers getting into the agreements. We will now take a look at what they did. They didn't even get into a valid agreement, as we see it, they got into license agreements that, as we see them, go much farther than anything allowed in the General Electric case.

The agreements provide here, as we relate in paragraph 91, that they can fix minimum price, they can specify delivery zones, they can do anything from (a) to (u), and there is nothing in the General Electric case, as I read it —that is a matter of law for the Court to decide—which would say that that is a valid license agreement within the protection afforded by the General Electric case.

Note that this is a matter of defense. We make our charge that they have violated the Sherman Act by doing various things, and that the license agreement was a subterfuge to that end.

Then the defendants come in, as part of their affirmative defense, and say "But we have got the General Electric case, we have got valid license agreements".

We then say, more as an argument to meet their affirmative defense—maybe it is out of turn here, it might be a criticism—but in order to meet that defense we say that that same evidence is useful to show that they 4103 didn't even come within the General Electric case, that it doesn't even allow them to get such protection as the General Electric case might provide.

So far as any effort on our part to upset the General Electric case is concerned, we have said, and I would like to reiterate it again, because Mr. Bromley brought it up, we have said very explicitly that we do not seek to upset or overrule or to change the General Electric case. That is said on page 45 of the trial brief to the Court. We said there:

"The Government in the present case has no purpose to overthrow the General Electric holding. But it is respectfully submitted that the pattern of the present combination of manufacturers is much more clearly akin to that held illegal in the Masonite case than it is to the situation in the General Electric case".

That is, that the General Electric case, as we see it, doesn't apply to this situation at all.

If it did apply to this situation, I mean if they had kept within the allowances given them under the General Electric case, still they could have used a perfectly nice looking patent and patent licensing agreement, well within the terms of the General Electric case, for the purpose of getting general control.

All our evidence up to the present time, or pretty nearly the present time, as to demoralized conditions and 4104 everybody getting together on May 22nd and May 23rd, all coming in on the same agreement, was all designed to show that their main interest there was to get under the shelter of something or other so that they could get price fixing, and not because they were primarily interested in the particular patents. They were interested in closed-edge board, certainly, but they were also interested, and much more so as we contend, in getting under the shelter of price control, so that they could stabilize their business.

That is the evidence of subterfuge, not the only evidence but the first evidence of subterfuge.

Now as to Judge Garrett's statement as to subterfuge and illegality, have I made myself clear, Judge Garrett, that the agreements might be legal in some sense, and still they might be used as a subterfuge?

Justice Garrett: I think I understand your position.

Justice Stephens: I have had a little difficulty with that myself, unless you spell it out on this theory.

If you say the agreement is legal—assume that for the moment, assume that there is, to use your phrase, a little agreement sufficiently narrow to be within your contention with respect to the General Electric case; and you say, "Let's assume that that is legal".

Now how can it be legal and also be a subterfuge unless one of two things has occurred: (a) it is carried 4105 beyond, in actual practice—though legal on its face—it is carried beyond in actual practice its face, and is applied to items which are clearly beyond the proper limits of a patent licensing agreement under the General Electric document; or (b), unless, although it is legal on its face, it was just a fixed-up agreement in which no one had any really serious intentions, that the parties went through a mere form of signing an agreement which, though legal on its face, was regarded by all of them as a mere form and without any proper foundation.

Now except in those two ways how can you think of a legal agreement as being subterfuge?

Mr. Steffen: I see your Honor's question, certainly.

Justice Jackson: That would be enough, to come under either one of those two situations, to make it subterfuge.

Mr. Steffen: Yes, but we still have a third.

The American Equipment Company case, which we cite on page 24 of our trial brief, had to do with this sort of a situation.

The brick people in Chicago decided that they wanted to stabilize their industry, and allocate certain quotas to different people. So they said, "Well, let's all take out a license under a particular patent having to do with a loading device". One of the conditions of that loading device patent agreement was that they should not load more than a certain amount in certain territories.

4106 The Court said that looked at all alone, the patent might have been all right, but when used for the purpose of allocating territories between the brick people, that it was being used for purposes which the Sherman Act condemns. The Court said "We will disregard the patent and the license under it, and say that what you really are doing is trying to stabilize and regulate your industry."

Justice Stephens: That is my category (a).

Mr. Steffen: All right, that is a good category. What was your category (b)?

Justice Stephens: That although the defendants entered into a license agreement which, on its face, was legal, they entered into it merely as a matter of form and without any good faith, and without a belief that it had a proper foundation.

Mr. Steffen: And the third, I think, your Honor, is one of the things that we are faced with here. A third category would be when they have entered into it and have gone completely beyond the license agreement by their bulletins and regulations under it.

If you will read the license agreement it just says that the licensor reserves the right to fix minimum prices, and that sounds simple enough.

Justice Stephens: Don't you regard the bulletins as really a part of the license agreement?

4107 Mr. Steffen: We regard them as going completely beyond the price terms in the license agreements.

Justice Jackson: Don't they refer to the license agreement in the opening paragraph of each bulletin?

Mr. Steffen: Yes. They are an outgrowth of it, certainly, but I think they go beyond—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) You mean if considered a part of the license agreement or if considered as separate, beyond the proper limits of the General Electric case; but you do consider, don't you, from a factual standpoint, that the bulletins and the directions sent out in connection with the bulletins, were really part and parcel of the license agreement?

Mr. Steffen: I don't know what is tied up with that. I say they are an outgrowth of the agreement. I think they are an extrusion that got 'way off from the agreement, and it is certainly not, as Mr. Bromley says, a simple exercise of the fixing of prices. It seems to me that they went much beyond that, although they did it under the cloak of having a license agreement and a provision to fix prices.

The question is of great importance to us, certainly, and I hope that we may be heard again in more detail, if necessary.

Justice Stephens: Well, thank you, Mr. Steffen.

Do you wish to reply, Mr. Bromley?

4108 Mr. Bromley: No, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Well, we thank counsel on both sides.

We will then proceed to take this evidence.

The Court rules that the class of evidence which we have been dealing with is admissible, subject to connection, on the theory of subterfuge, and will receive the evidence so far as it may be said to apply to a charge of illegality, as distinguished from subterfuge, subject to a motion to strike if the Court should later determine that the complaint does not involve a charge of illegality.

(Justice Stephens and Justice Jackson conferred off the record.)

Justice Stephens: One of my colleagues has some doubt as to the clarity of that ruling. I will therefore add that it is not intended to indicate that if the evidence be stricken out to the extent that it is offered as applicable to the charge of illegality, it would also be stricken out as far as the charge of subterfuge is concerned.

4109 Mr. Steffen: Mr. Knuff points out that I neglected to state to the Court that Paragraph 44 expressly states that the defendants are parties to illegal contracts, and of course, in our prayer we are asking for either the cancellation or the modification of the contracts. The very first sentence in Paragraph 44 is squarely on that point.

Justice Stephens: What do you say to that, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: I say that that is the same thing all over again. I assume that if they prove we carried our lawful price restrictions into unlawful fields, that we would all be parties to unlawful contracts.

Justice Stephens: Well, we will proceed, gentlemen.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, at the November 15th meeting, the meeting of November 15, 1932, was there a complaint discussed at that meeting concerning certain dunnage that was sold by either Tomkins, Tomkins Rockwall, or some Tomkins company? A. Yes.

Q. What was the nature of that complaint? I am very sorry that I can't make my question any clearer, but I can't do it because the memorandum that I have in front of me doesn't indicate whether the dunnage was sold by Tomkins Rockwall, or what Tomkins company it was. Now, can you clarify that for us? A. Well, it happens I can, in that case, because that was m own particular complaint.

4110 Q. What is that? A. That was our own complaint. We were complaining that the Atlantic Gypsum Company—you will see the reference there to Mr. Neale, he was their manager—that the Atlantic Gypsum Company were including in shipments to either Tomkins Brother or Tomkins Rockwall Company, dunnage board of a quality which enabled Tomkins to resell it, which was in effect a rebate or a cut in the price, and which put us at a disadvantage.

Q. The Atlantic Gypsum Products Company was selling to the Tomkins Rockwall Company, is that correct? A That is correct.

Q. And in turn—I don't want to transgress and repeat—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) Go ahead, you have your own style, Mr. Knuff. Don't feel that you are circumscribed at all.

Justice Stephens: We don't want you to feel self-conscious, Mr. Knuff. Just try and save what time you can.

Justice Jackson: I just made that as a suggestion.

Mr. Knuff: I do want to have the record clear.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Tomkins Rockwall in turn were reselling that 4111 to customers, is that correct? A. Yes, but that isn't what we were interested in.

Q. What were you interested in? A. We were interested in the fact that the Atlantic Gypsum Company, a licensee, was shipping dunnage board which was, in effect, first-class board, at no cost to the customer, which was a violation.

Q. And who referred the problem to Mr. Neale to investigate, if it was referred to him? A. Well, my recollection is that I made my complaint, of course, to the United States Gypsum Company, and that Mr. Henning asked Mr. Neale to investigate it.

Q. And Mr. Neale said he would investigate it? A. Yes.

Q. Now was there any discussion as to how this problem of dunnage was to be handled in the future? A. Well, that first complaint led to the second notation which I have on my list, that all of the licensees were asked by the United States Gypsum Company to mail to the Board Survey Company the details of just how much dunnage they were putting in these cars, and what kind of dunnage it was, whether it was really dunnage which was board which was no good, or whether they were overloading their cars with good board and calling it dunnage, which was, in effect, a cut in price, 4112 Q. And Mr. Henning suggested, is that correct, that all the companies that were present there mail to him the details as to their practice concerning the use of dunnage; is that correct? A. That is correct, except that he said to mail it to the Board Survey Company.

Q. The Board Survey Company? A. Yes.

Q. Did he assign as his business reason for that, that the licensor would be guided by the practice as it would be detailed in the letters that they would receive? A. I didn't hear the first part of your question.

Q. I don't believe the question is very clear.

Did Mr. Henning say that the licensor desired this information so that it could formulate a consistent policy concerning dunnage? A. I don't recall whether Mr. Henning said he would do that or not, but I think he was anxious to get the information and possibly do something of that kind later.

Q. He made no statement as to that? A. No. In other words, he was collecting information.

Q. Now then, was there a complaint made by someone that the National Gypsum Company sold Maftex below their regular established price for Maftex, in con-4113 nection with a sale of board?

Justice Jackson: What is Maftex?

Mr. Knuff: I was going to ask this witness. I don't know, myself.

The Witness: Suppose I answer that first. Maftex is an insulating type of board, a fiber board like Celotex or Insulite.

Justice Jackson: It is not a gypsum product?

The Witness: It is entirely outside of the gypsum industry.

There also was a complaint made by our company that the National Gypsum Company, in trying to make a sale of gypsum board to Axinn Brothers, were maintaining the price on gypsum board but quoting an unusually low price on the Maftex board which was, in effect, unduly influencing the sale.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. And your complaint was that you wanted National Gypsum Company to maintain their established price for Maftex, is that correct? A. That would be the effect of it, yes. In other words, we didn't feel that they should take a material such as Maftex, which had a reasonably stable price—I am not familiar with the exact details—and suddenly make a low price on that to influence a com-
4114 bination sale of Maftex and gypsum board.

Q. What happened to that discussion? A. I see that there is a question mark after that. I don't know what disposition we made of that. I think we merely made the complaint, and Mr. Neale was to investigate.

Q. Mr. who? A. Mr. Neale. Mr. Baker, I mean.

Q. Mr. Baker was going to investigate that? A. Yes.

Q. You don't know whether Mr. Baker said that if National was selling Maftex below the established price, that he would see that that was discontinued? A. I don't recall what his statement was, if any.

Q. Was there any discussion concerning a man by the name of Sol Bloom? A. That isn't Sol Bloom.

Justice Jackson: He is in Congress.

The Witness: This is another S. Bloom.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. This is an "S. Bloom"? A. Yes, this is S. Bloom. It probably was Solomon, but I am not sure.

Q. What was the discussion? A. That was a complaint—I don't know whether we made it or not, but it was one that we were familiar with, because it happened two 4115 or three times. At that time there was a differential in effect between the price of board in straight carload lots and in truckload lots, and we made the complaint that the National Gypsum Company had shipped a carload of board to Brooklyn, and on arrival had trucked it to these three different customers of theirs, without any additional charge, which was, in effect, below the bulletin price.

Q. It was your understanding at that time that the license bulletin did not permit the manufacturer to pay for the transportation from the car to the dealer's warehouse? A. Not when the product was sold at the carload price.

Q. In other words— A. (Interposing) The carload price was lower than the truck price, and if the manufacturer included trucking and did the trucking service, he was, in effect, making a donation of the cost of the trucking, which was a violation of the price established by the bulletins, at that time.

Q. Between what points was the trucking being done, between the railroad car and the dealer's warehouse or between the plant of the manufacturer and the dealer's warehouse? A. The car was shipped from the National Gypsum Company's plant in Upper New York State, by rail, to Brooklyn, and sold f. o. b. car Brooklyn and billed at that price, and that is where the sale should have stop-
4116 ped. But in addition to that, they took the contents of this car and delivered it to three different dealers' yards, without further charge.

Q. I think I understand that now.

Justice Jackson: Does that mean from the railroad yards in Brooklyn over to Corona, Long Island?

By Mr. Knuff:

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Q. Was there any discussion concerning National donating some boards to Feldman Lumber Company? A. There was, but I don't remember that that was our complaint. That was a complaint in connection with the matter of advertising, that is, giving away boards for completing work in a customer's office. This happened to be a very small one, it was only 7 boards involved.

Q. Was there a complaint concerning the—I am sorry, I can't make out your writing any better, Mr. Lenci— A. (Interposing) The Cinder Products Company.

Q. (Continuing) —Cinder Products Company of Syracuse, and if there was any complaint who made it and what was the nature of the complaint? A. I don't recall who made the complaint.

Q. Do you recall the nature of the complaint? A. It is my recollection that at that time—no, I am not sure, I don't want to say that, because I am not certain. The gist 4117 of it is that there was a sale below the minimum established at that time by the bulletins, by Certain-teed.

Q. That is not a sale below the minimum price, but a sale—A. (Interposing) Of a smaller quantity.

Q. Of a quantity less than the minimum quantity? A. Less than the minimum established at that time.

Q. Was there any discussion concerning the Structural Gypsum Company selling some board to S. Bloom? A. That was a complaint that we made, that the Kelley Plasterboard Company must be selling Structural at a price which would permit them to make very small deliveries.

Q. What do you mean by that? A. Well, the complaint was that the Structural delivered 2970 square feet of board to S. Bloom. Well, of course, these things aren't complete. These are merely headings on this exhibit. But we felt that if Kelley had charged the correct price to Structural, there would have been no margin in it for them to make such a small delivery.

Q. Well now, wasn't your complaint along this line, Mr. Lenci, that under the license bulletins the licensor prescribed certain minimums that could be sold, and your complaint was that the Structural Gypsum Company was not complying with those minimums, and that the Structural Gypsum Company sold 2970 feet to S. Bloom? A.
4118 Yes, that is to a certain extent correct, but it goes back to the fact that they must have had some special concession from Kelley to enable them to do that.

Justice Jackson: You mean they couldn't have sold such a small quantity?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You say that you objected to Structural selling less than the minimum quantity provided in the bulletins? A. No. My complaint was against the Kelley Company for permitting Structural to get themself that advantage.

Justice Stephens: We will take a recess at this time for five minutes.

(Thereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed as follows:)

Justice Stephens: You may proceed.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, at the trial in the District Court on October 16, 1941, with reference to Structural selling 2970 feet to S. Bloom, do you recall that you were asked concerning that down there? A. Yes.

Q. And you explained the meaning of that transaction in this language, and I am reading from page 509, Mr. Bromley—

4119 Mr. Bromley: (Interposing) It seems to me that this ought to be shown to him, if it is being used to refresh his recollection.

Justice Stephens: Show it to the witness. Mark it out and show it to the witness.

Mr. Knuff: This isn't Grand Jury testimony.

Justice Stephens: That is very true, but you are just using it to refresh recollection, so it isn't coming into evidence itself.

Mark the beginning and the end so that we can see it.

Mr. Knuff: The witness is being handed his testimony before the District Court, given on October 16, 1941, and has been referred to page 509 of his testimony, beginning with line 16 and ending with line 23.

Will you read that, Mr. Lenci, please, to yourself?

Justice Stephens: Show it to Mr. Bromley.

Mr. Knuff: Mr. Bromley, I believe, has it in front of him.

Justice Stephens: Then show it to the Court.

(Testimony handed to the Court for examination.)

Justice Stephens: Proceed with the examination.

Mr. Bromley: I object to showing only this particular excerpt from page 509, and ask that the witness be permitted to read the rest of page 509 and down to line 10 on page 510.

4120 Justice Stephens: The witness should be allowed to read the whole of his testimony on that topic, and he may do so.

Mr. Knuff: I haven't any objection at all.

Justice Stephens: I am sure you haven't.

Mr. Knuff: I thought that was a complete statement.

(Witness handed testimony for examination of additional portion.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You have seen your previous testimony, Mr. Lenci, have you not? A. Yes.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection any more definitely? Has your recollection been refreshed? A. Yes.

Q. Now what was the complaint that was registered as to Structural selling 2970 feet to S. Bloom? A. Well after reading that testimony there—you must realize that I was the first witness in the criminal case, and naturally I couldn't go through the 6 weeks of that case without picking up additional information and having my memory refreshed in various ways; and with what I know now, I believe the statement I made today is more nearly correct than the one I made in the criminal case.

Q. You think, then— A. (Interposing) And if I might go a little farther, I think if you will see what is on 4121 the following page there, it ties it up with Kelley, which is what I said in my answer a few minutes ago.

Q. In the fall of 1932, were you not under the impression, Mr. Lenci, that the owner of a patent could fix the terms and conditions under which that patented article could be disposed of at resale? A. At one time I was, and I don't know up to what time that impression lasted, but I will be honest and say that I believe at a certain point that the ownership of a patent carried right through. I am not a patent lawyer, so I didn't know any different.

Q. And you were under the impression at one time that the owner of a patent could fix the price at which the patented article could be sold, and the terms and conditions under which it could be sold, down to the ultimate purchaser; isn't that correct? A. At one time I did believe that, yes.

Q. And at that time, didn't you believe that since the United States Gypsum Company was the owner of the patent, and that they had licensed Kelley to make the board, and Kelley in turn had sold it to Structural, didn't you believe at that time that that gave Kelley and the USG the right to determine the price and the terms and conditions at which Structural could resell that board? A. I 4122 don't know whether my misinterpretation of the patent law carried along to that late date or not. I don't know just when I learned better.

Q. You don't know whether it was at that time or not? A. I don't know whether it was before that or afterwards.

Q. But at one time you did believe just that? A. I did.

Q. I notice in the next to the last line on Government's Exhibit 478 for Identification, the word "Dusol" appears. That is the last word in the next to the last line. Did you have any discussion at that meeting concerning the L. A. Dusol Company—or is that "Dusol"? A. Unfortunately, there are two Dusols.

Q. There is a George Dusol, is that correct? A. I don't know.

Q. And an L. A. Dusol? A. "L. A." sounds familiar. I know there were two of them.

Q. And George Dusol was a salesman employed by the Kelley Plasterboard Company—don't you recall that? A. One of the Dusols worked for Kelley.

Q. And L. A. Dusol was a jobber in Brooklyn, isn't that correct? A. I am not sure whether he was a jobber 4123 or a lumber dealer.

Q. You are not sure? A. I am not sure.

Q. Can you tell us what the word "Dusol" refers to here? A. In this particular case, it was a complaint made by one of the licensees—I don't remember now which one, or whether it was a combination of several—that the Atlantic Gypsum Company's salesman, Mr. Grossman, had been handing out cash rebates to the various companies, lumber companies, mentioned here. Do you want me to say who they are?

Q. Yes. A. It was the Wagman Lumber Company, the Kings Highway Lumber Company, the Astoria Lumber & Trim Company, the Feldman Lumber Company, the Dusol Lumber Company, the Southern Lumber Company, the Williamsburg Lumber Company, and S. Skoblisky. And as part of the same complaint, someone made the complaint that Certain-teed and the Ebsary Company also were rebating to S. Skoblisky.

Q. This Dusol, then, appears just as one of the receivers of the rebate that was made by Grossman of Atlantic? A. That is correct.

Justice Jackson: You say those were cash rebates?

The Witness: Those were actually cash rebates.
4124 That is, the claim was that they were cash rebates.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Now, was there any discussion at this meeting on the 15th of November concerning the discount that should be allowed to manufacturing distributors? A. I don't know that there was any discussion. I think the licensor simply said that there would be a change made, establishing the rate of discount at which gypsum board could be sold to other manufacturers of plaster products who were not manufacturers of board. Up to that time, I believe the discount had been 10 percent, and they now established a basis of 12-1/2 percent discount on lath and plasterboard, and 15 percent on wallboard.

Q. And previous to that, the discount had been 10 percent? A. As I recall it, up to that time it had been 10 percent. I don't know whether it was slightly higher on wallboard, or not.

Q. You don't recall whether or not there was any discussion concerning that? Your present recollection now is that USG made the announcement that there would be a change in that discount rate? A. Yes. I don't think there was any discussion.

Q. Now was there any discussion concerning the Upstate New York trucking situation? A. There must 4125 have been, because I have a memorandum here that the United States Gypsum Company was to make a recheck of that situation. But I don't remember what it was.

Q. You don't recall the discussion? A. I do not.

Q. I see our old friend Dusol is again mentioned in your memorandum. Was there any discussion concerning whether Mr. Dusol had ceased to do business as a jobber? A. I don't know if there was any discussion. Mr. Kelley made the statement that this particular Dusol—whichever one he was—was no longer a jobber being sold at a special discount as a jobber, but was being sold as a dealer.

Q. Was there any discussion concerning commission men? A. Yes. I am just trying to interpret my reference here. The reason I say that is that some of these names mentioned were not really commission men, but were jobbers. Abbey, Coeyman, Perry and Elhyde were in the classification of jobbers, and Colonel Lawton and Blanchfield were commission men.

Q. Can you tell us whether or not there was a discussion that thereafter there would be no more commission men employed in the gypsum industry? A. Subject to correction, I think that it was at about that time that the 4126 United States Gypsum Company issued a bulletin that the employment of commission men would be taken as a violation of the license agreements.

Q. That it would be considered by the United States Gypsum Company as a violation of the license agreements? A. Whatever the wording was in the bulletin.

Q. And your present recollection is that there wasn't any general discussion about that? A. I don't think so.

Q. Simply that Mr. Henning made the announcement at this time that commission men— A. (Interposing) Must be cleaned up.

Q. Blanchfield was a salesman employed by the Ebsary Gypsum Company on commission, was he not? A. He was employed by us with a substantial salary, and a bonus above that. By that, I mean he was not just a nominal commission man, but he had a real salary, and if he made sales above that he was entitled to a commission.

Q. And wasn't it the understanding at that meeting that your arrangement with Blanchfield should not be terminated until after Colonel Lawton's employment was terminated?

Mr. Bromley: I object to the question as incompetent so far as the use of the word "understanding" is concerned.

Mr. Knuff: I am asking as to his understanding of the discussion.

4127 Mr. Bromley: No, you said "wasn't it the understanding at the meeting".

Justice Stephens: Read the question.

(The question was read by the reporter.)

Justice Stephens: Objection sustained.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was it your understanding, Mr. Lenci, that your arrangement with Mr. Blanchfield should not be terminated until after the company that employed Colonel Lawton terminated his services? A. It went a little further than that. We made the very definite statement that we would not make any change in our arrangement with Mr. Blanchfield until Colonel Lawton's situation was cleaned up.

Q. And Colonel Lawton was employed by whom? A. At that time, I believe he was representing the Atlantic Gypsum Company.

Q. On a commission basis, is that your understanding? A. That is my understanding.

Q. And in spite of the fact that USG had said that from now on the commission men would no longer be permitted under the license agreements, nevertheless you were not going to discharge Mr. Blanchfield until after Colonel Lawton's services with Atlantic were terminated? Is that 4128 correct? A. Yes.

Q. Was there any discussion concerning how Paragon of Syracuse and the American Hardwall Plaster Company were to be sold, that is, were they to be sold as jobbers or were they to be sold on a dealer basis? A. I am not altogether clear on that, but it is my recollection that Mr. Kelley, representing the Kelley Plasterboard Company, said that he would sell the Paragon Plaster Company of Syracuse, the Paragon Plaster & Supply Company of Scranton, and the American Hardwall Plaster Company of Utica, as dealers and not as jobbers.

Q. Is that quite correct, Mr. Lenci? Were the Kelley people selling Paragon of Syracuse or the American Hardwall Plaster Company or the other Paragon Company at all—weren't all those sales to Paragon and American Hardwall Plaster and the Paragon Plaster & Supply made by Oakfield? A. Not necessarily. I am quite certain that a great many sales were made directly from the manufacturer, in this case Kelley, to the ultimate consignee.

Q. You mean that the board was shipped by Kelley to the— A. (Interposing) Yes. And so far as I know, it was sold to them. The reason I say that, if you want to know why I say it—

4129 Q. (Interposing) Yes. A. (Continuing) —is because we did sell, at one time, one or two carloads to the Paragon Plaster Company in Syracuse, and the Oakfield Gypsum Products Company never entered into the matter at all, it was a direct sale from our company to Paragon. And I think maybe Kelley did the same thing.

Q. When you say you think that, you mean that that is you best recollection? A. That is my best recollection and information, yes.

Q. Now at that time, there was a man in Providence, Rhode Island, by the name of Cartier, was there not? A. Yes.

Q. And he was a jobber there, was he not? A. Yes; yes, he was a jobber.

Q. And there was some discussion that Mr. Cartier should no longer be continued as a jobber, but he should be sold as a dealer? A. I think at that time the Kelley Plasterboard Company were selling Cartier, and Mr. Kelley made the statement that he would sell Cartier, from that time on, as a dealer and not as a jobber.

Q. Well, there must have been some discussion concerning Mr. Cartier before Mr. Kelley got up and said, "I am going to sell Cartier now as a dealer." What was that 4130 previous discussion? A. I don't know, sir. Probably someone said, "What is the situation regarding Cartier?"

Q. When you say "probably", do you mean that that is your best recollection? A. Yes.

Q. And Kelley said, "I am now selling him as a dealer, not as a jobber"? A. Yes.

Q. The 7th line on the 2nd page has reference to exchanges or sales between manufacturers at less than the established minimum for Eastern territory. What was that discussion, Mr. Lenci? A. We had a warehouse in Newark, New Jersey, and the United States Gypsum Company also had a warehouse in Harrison, New Jersey, which was just across the river about a mile from ours. I believe at one time we were short of one particular size, and we asked the USG if we could go down to their warehouse and pick up a small quantity of this particular size in order for us to fill out a load to a customer. Mr. Henning said that he did not feel they wanted to make any exchanges between themselves or us, or to permit any exchanges between any manufacturer, of less than the minimum truckload that was in effect at that time.

4131 Q. And was the whole question of exchange, the policy with reference to exchanges, was that made the subject of a general discussion? A. I don't think so; I think that is simply something I asked him and he said, "That is what we are going to do."

Q. Then this notation that you have here didn't come up for a general discussion at that meeting? A. No, a lot of these things were not the subject of general discussions. They were matters where I would ask him, or someone else would ask him, and he would say, "This is what you have to do."

Q. You said that Coeyman and Perry and Elhyde were jobbers, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. What was the discussion concerning them? A. Well, as I think I said before, it was just about at this time that the USG issued a bulletin to the effect that jobbers were to be sold at the same price as dealers.

Q. Well, that bulletin was issued in August of 1932 and this meeting took place in November of 1932? A. Yes.

Q. What was the discussion; why were they brought up at this time? A. I don't remember, unless the licensor asked some of the licensees whether or not they 4132 were still selling those people at the jobber price.

Q. You haven't any recollection, any definite recollection, as to what this note means? A. No; they were probably checking up on violations.

Q. I notice that there is a note here concerning Plastergon, Weyman and Allen—and I can't make out the next two words. What are those next two words? A. Central Plumbing Company.

Q. Was there a discussion concerning those? A. There must have been, but I don't remember what it was, now.

Mr. Knuff: We offer in evidence, if your Honor pleases, Government's Exhibit 478.

Mr. Bromley: Objected to as incompetent.

Justice Stephens: We think the witness has been testifying from presently refreshed recollection, and that the exhibit is not necessary in evidence. It is not received in evidence, it is excluded.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you attend a meeting at Chicago on December 13, 1932, Mr. Lenci? A. I don't remember.

Q. Could your memory be refreshed? A. I believe so.

Q. I hand you what has been marked for identi-
4133 fication as Government's Exhibit 479.

(The document referred to was marked for identification as Government's Exhibit No. 479)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Have you examined Government's Exhibit 479 for Identification? A. Yes.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection? A. It does.

Q. That is a four-page memorandum, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. In whose writing is it? A. In mine.

Q. When was it made, Mr. Lenci? A. Within a day or two after the meeting, I believe.

Q. That is, within a day or two after December 13th? A. Yes.

Q. Where was that meeting held? A. In Chicago.

Q. At the Palmer House? A. I am not sure, I don't remember whether it was or not. A good many of the meetings were held at the Palmer House but I don't recall whether they all were, or not.

Q. Was USG represented at that meeting?
4134 A. The United States Gypsum Company was represented by Mr. Henning and Mr. MacLeish.

Q. And what other companies were represented there, and who represented them? A. The Universal Gypsum & Lime Company was represented by Mr. Holland and Mr. Krumholtz; the Atlantic Gypsum Company was represented by Mr. Neale; the Kelley Plasterboard Company, by Mr. Kelley; the Ebsary Gypsum Company, by Mr. Ebsary and myself; Certain-teed Products Corporation, by Mr. Henley; the National Gypsum Company, by Mr. Baker; and the American Gypsum Company, by Mr. Black.

Q. And no person represented the Texas Cement Plaster Company? A. No.

Q. I believe at that meeting there was a discussion concerning the policy of the industry regarding sales of gypsum products through commission men? Am I correct in that assumption? A. I don't believe there was a discussion of it. I think Mr. Henning made the statement that now all of the commission men had been cleared up, or the situation regarding all commission men had been cleared up, with the exception of Blanchfield and Parker, and both of those men were our men. We said that we would now see that they were taken care of.

Q. And by "taken care of" you meant that you 4135 would change their status from commission men to men working on a straight salary, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And was that done? A. We did it with Blanchfield, and let Parker go.

Q. There was a complaint made by Mr. Kelley concerning the United States Gypsum Company soliciting Cartier of Providence, Rhode Island, was there not? A. Yes.

Q. What was that complaint? A. Well, you will recall that at the previous meeting Mr. Kelley said that he did not consider that Cartier was a jobber and that he would sell him as a dealer. Now at this present meeting Mr. Kelley made the statement that after he discontinued selling Cartier as a jobber, the United States Gypsum Company approached Cartier to make him a jobber.

Justice Jackson: Violations all around. (Laughter)

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: We will take the recess at this time until Monday morning.

(Whereupon, at 4:00 o'clock, p.m., the hearing was recessed until Monday morning, February 21, 1944, at 10.00 o'clock).

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Civil Action No. 8017

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY; NATIONAL GYPSUM COMPANY; CERTAIN-TEED PRODUCTS CORPORATION; THE CELOTEX CORPORATION; EBSARY GYPSUM COMPANY, INC.; NEWARK PLASTER COMPANY; SAMUEL M. GLOYD, doing business under the name of TEXAS CEMENT PLASTER COMPANY; SEWELL L. AVERY; OLIVER M. KNODE; MELVIN H. BAKER; BROR H. DAHLBERG; HENRY J. HARTLEY; FREDERICK G. EBSARY; and FREDERICK TOMKINS,

Defendants.

Seventh Floor,
Internal Revenue Building,
Washington, D. C.,
Monday, February 21, 1944.

The above entitled cause came on for further hearing at 10:00 o'clock a.m., pursuant to adjournment, before Honorable Harold M. Stephens, Honorable Finis J. Garrett, and Honorable Joseph R. Jackson, sitting as the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

APPEARANCES:

(Same as heretofore noted.)

4142 Justice Stephens: That may be stricken.

I should like to have it explained to me, either by the witness or by counsel, why it was contended to be a violation of the license agreements if there 4143 were exchanges of small lots of board between the licensees. It was testified by Mr. Lenci that one of the complaints made at one of these meetings was that one of the licensees was exchanging, with another, small lots of board. It wasn't clear to me why that was asserted to be a violation of the license agreement.

I don't know that it is material, but it is one of the things I didn't understand.

Mr. Bromley: Has Your Honor the place in the record where that appears?

Justice Stephens: I am afraid I didn't make a note of that. I think there were two places where Mr. Lenci testified that one of the companies would be out of a certain class of board and he would trade some other board for a small lot of the board that he was out of, and that that was complained about as a violation of the agreement.

Mr. Lenci: Page 4424?

Justice Stephens: Yes, there it is. Starting at line 9 it reads:

"Q. The 7th line on the 2nd page has reference to exchanges or sales between manufacturers at less than the established minimum for Eastern territory. What was that discussion, Mr. Lenci? A. We had a warehouse in Newark, New Jersey, and the United States Gyp-4144 sum Company also had a warehouse in Harrison, New Jersey, which was just across the river about a mile from ours. I believe at one time we were short of one particular size, and we asked the USG, if we could go down to their warehouse and pick up a small quantity of this particular size in order for us to fill out a load to a customer. Mr. Henning said that he did not feel they wanted to make any exchanges between themselves or us, or to permit any exchanges between any manufacturer, of less than the minimum truckload that was in effect at that time.

"Q. And was that whole question of exchanges, the policy with reference to exchanges, was that made the subject of a general discussion?"

I didn't understand why that was alleged to be a violation of the license agreement. Perhaps it is not important. You may call the witness and proceed with the case.

Thereupon, GEORGE N. LENCI, the witness on the stand at the time of adjournment, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Direct Examination (resumed)

Mr. Bromley: As I understand it, if the Court pleases, I don't think there was anything in the bulletins about this, nor do I think it was a complaint of a violation. Rather, it was something that Mr. Lenci asked Mr. Henning about, and Mr. Henning expressed himself as Mr.

4145 Lenci testified. But I don't believe that there was anything in the bulletins about it, nor was there any claim by Mr. Lenci that there was any violation of the license agreement or any of the bulletins.

Justice Stephens: There was one other reference to it, in the testimony, by this witness. So I thought there was some importance attached to it by Mr. Lenci.

Mr. Knuff: Maybe I can bring it out.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, you stated that you desired to make some exchanges on board or lath of particular sizes that your warehouse was out of, and that you had sent your truck over to Harrison to the United States Gypsum Company warehouse for those boards. And I infer from that that the USG did not give you the particular boards or the small quantity of boards that you wanted; is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And then you took that up with Mr. Henning at a later time, and Mr. Henning told you that on all exchanges of board, the exchanges should be based upon the minimum truckload; is that correct? If not, you straighten me out. A. They were not exchanges, they were proposed to be outright purchases by one licensee from another licensee, or from the licensor. In other words, if one particular 4146 licensee was out of a particular type of board at the moment, he could go to one of the other manufacturers and buy, as a favor, a small quantity to fill out the missing quantity.

Justice Stephens: That is what you meant by the use of the word "exchange"?

The Witness: I didn't know I used the word.

Justice Stephens: Yes, you did.

The Witness: I should not have used the word "exchange" in connection with that. It was purely a favor that we were asking to be granted.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. It was an accommodation? A. Yes.

Q. You were short a particular type of board, and you wanted to buy enough board to make up that shortage? A. Yes.

Q. And that accommodation was at first refused you, and you took that up with Mr. Henning. And Mr. Henning said that in the future, all sales between manufacturers should be based upon the minimum truckload; is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Was there a provision in the license bulletins with reference to that, if you know? A. I don't recall whether there was or not.

Mr. Knuff: I think when we adjourned on Friday,
4147 we had before us the question of Government's Exhibit 479, which is the meeting of December 13, 1932.

(Government's Exhibit 479 handed to witness.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I believe we had just finished a discussion concerning USG soliciting a man in Providence by the name of Cartier. At that meeting in Chicago, on the 13th of December, 1932, was there a discussion concerning the trucking situation in Upstate New York, and if there was any such discussion will you tell us just exactly what the discussion was? A. As I recall it, at this time there was no provision for the licensees to truck into the areas surrounding the plants of the Paragon Plaster Company in Syracuse and the American Hardwall Plaster Company in Utica—

Q. (Interposing) Let me interpose one question. There was a provision, it is your understanding, that in the counties adjacent to the mills in Western New York, the license bulletins did permit trucking into certain counties adjacent to those mills; is that correct? A. They did so provide, yes.

Q. And you might consider that as the zone nearest the mill, and then there was a zone farther away from the mill in which trucking was not permitted; is that correct? A. That is correct.

4148 Q. Now go ahead with your answer. A. But it was the practice of both the Paragon Company and the American Hardwall to make truck deliveries throughout the territory adjacent to their mills, and we were anxious to be put in a position to compete with those two companies.

Q. You could only ship into that area by railroad? A. We could only ship into that area in carloads.

Q. And you wanted that area opened up so that truck shipments could be made into the counties in which Oakfield and Paragon, and so forth, were delivering by truck? A. Paragon and American Hardwall.

Q. And you took that up with Mr. Henning at the meeting? A. Yes.

Q. And what did Mr. Henning say about that? A. As I recall, he said he would give it consideration, and might make some arrangement for that.

Q. Were you the only person that brought that question up for discussion, or did other manufacturers also bring that up for discussion at that time? A. I don't recall. I know that I brought it up, but I don't remember whether anybody else advocated it or not.

Q. You don't recall whether there was any discussion or not? A. No.

4149 Q. Now at Linden, New Jersey, the Structural Gypsum Company had their mill, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And was there any discussion at the meeting on December 13, 1932, concerning the fact that Structural had a dealer at their mill, and if there was any such discussion what was it, please? A. Well, there was such a discussion, yes. You will recall that at that time the Kelley Plasterboard Company was selling the Structural Gypsum Board Corporation. We could not understand how, if Kelley was getting the correct price for his material from Structural they could make an arrangement to have a dealer located in their plant and put out material in competition with the licensees who were doing business directly without all this intermediate expense.

Q. When you say "they couldn't do that", whom do you mean, Structural or Kelley? A. Kelley.

Justice Stephens: What do you mean by "having a dealer located in their plant"?

The Witness: It was a complicated arrangement. Of course, we couldn't get the details of it. Here they have a manufacturing plant, and then they have in one end of it a dealer's yard set up—

4150 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You are referring to Structural? A. I am referring to Structural.

Justice Stephens: Who was the dealer?

The Witness: He was a local dealer in the territory there, I forget what his name was. It put the rest of us at a disadvantage.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. And the matter was referred to Mr. Kelley to straighten out; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Kelley was at that meeting, wasn't he? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ask Mr. Kelley whether or not they were selling at the regular bulletin price to Structural? A. I don't remember whether Mr. Henning asked that or not, but I do know that he told Kelley to investigate it and see that it was taken care of.

Q. Now at that meeting, Mr. Lenci, was the discount to manufacturing distributors discussed, that is, the amount of the discount to manufacturing distributors? A. Yes, it was.

Q. Who brought that up? A. Mr. Kelley.

Q. Now, at that time what was the discount to 4151 manufacturing distributors? A. At that time there was a discount of 15 percent on the wallboard, and 12-1/2 percent on the lath and plasterboard. And Mr. Kelley thought that that was too much of a discount to allow these other manufacturers, and wanted to reduce it to 10 percent.

Q. What, if anything, did the other manufacturers say about that? A. I don't think anybody made any comment on it, and Mr. Henning said that so far as he was concerned, he thought that the 15 percent and 12-1/2 percent were all right, and he would not make any change in the bulletins.

Q. Was there any question brought up at the meeting on December 13th concerning National having a warehouse with the Trygar Lumber Company? A. Yes, there was. I don't remember who brought that question up.

Q What was the discussion? A. The complaint was that the Trygar Lumber Company, at Perth Amboy, New Jersey, was renting warehouse space to the National Gypsum Company. I sort of put that backwards. The National Gypsum Company was renting space from the Trygar Lumber Company. That was a violation of the bulletins under the license agreement, which provided that no manufacturer should have these warehousing arrangements with 4152 dealers, which were in effect a price concession or rebate.

Q. And National reported that their previous arrangements with the Trygar Lumber Company no longer existed —is that the significance of that? A. Yes.

Q. Was there any discussion at that meeting concerning the Elhyde Lumber Company delivering as a jobber? A. That was a complaint made by the Atlantic, and I don't remember the details of that at the present time.

Q. Do you recall the attitude that the Certain-teed people took concerning that complaint, and by "Certain-teed people" I mean Mr. Henley, who represented Certain-teed at that meeting? A. The Certain-teed people denied the complaint, denied that this condition existed.

Q. Do you mean by that that Certain-teed denied that they were selling Elhyde as a jobber? A. That is correct.

Q. I notice our old friend Perry was up for discussion at this meeting on December 13—do you recall what that discussion was? A. I don't remember what that was.

Q. Did someone complain—let's see if I can refresh your recollection—did someone complain that Mr. Perry was still continuing to sell board as a jobber, and did Certain-4153 teed say that they hadn't sold Perry since May 12?
A. Yes, but I don't remember the details.

Q. Was there any question about the Downs Lumber Company in Boston acting as a jobber? A. Yes, there must have been, because I made a memorandum of it; but that wasn't my complaint, and I don't remember it.

Q. You don't remember that? A. No.

Q. Was there any discussion at that meeting as to whether or not Certain-teed was renting space, warehouse space, in the Elhyde Lumber Company's yard? A. Yes, that goes back to the Elhyde complaint we mentioned just a few minutes ago. Certain-teed denied that they had any arrangement with Elhyde, but someone developed the information that Mr. Elhyde was president of what was called the Cambridge Terminal Warehouse, and that the arrangement was by Certain-teed with the Cambridge Terminal Warehouse.

Q. And what was the discussion concerning that? A. It was just a statement of fact, I believe.

Q. Do you know what position Mr. Henning took about that? A. No, I don't remember.

Q. You will recall, Mr. Lenci, at one of the pre-4154 vious meetings at the Commodore Hotel in New York, that you were requested, or the manufacturers were requested to send the detail of the dunnage that they put in their cars. Do you recall that? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Now was the amount of dunnage, and the reports that these other manufacturers sent in, discussed at the meeting at Chicago on December 13? A. Yes. Mr. Henning said that the Board Survey had received the information asked for at the earlier meeting, and that the 8 companies had reported the average amount of dunnage each of them was using.

Q. The 8 companies had reported the average amount that each was using? A. Yes.

Q. Or the 8 companies reported the amount that each was using, which? A. In our own case, we reported the average amount we were using, and I believe each company did the same thing.

Q. And after Mr. Henning got that report, did Mr. Henning make any statement as to what they would consider a fair amount of dunnage to be put in each car? A. Well, he took the total of the 8 companies and from that reached an average of 610 square feet per car, which repre-4155 sented an average figure of all the figures turned in; and he said that in view of that, and as most of the companies were using between 500 and 600 square feet, that that would be considered a fair amount of board, a proper amount of board to be used as dunnage to properly pack the car.

Q. Was there a general discussion by other manufacturers on this subject of dunnage at this meeting? A: There may have been some slight discussion, I don't think it was very much. There was some question, I know, as to American saying they only used 156 square feet per car, and we couldn't see how they could safely pack a car with such a small amount.

Q. American said that? A. No, the rest of us. At least, I will say that I could not understand how they could safely pack a car with only 156 square feet of dunnage.

Q. And you haven't any present recollection that there was any general discussion at that time? A. No.

Q. Did Mr. Henning say or indicate the size of the boards that would be considered proper to be put in a car for dunnage, that is, the width or the length, how the boards should be marked, and so forth? A. We were asked to use, as far as possible, narrow strips, that is, boards not 4156 over 12 inches wide, and these would be unusable on the job, and therefore could not be considered in any way as a gift or refund or rebate; and if it was necessary, especially with the wall board, which is the large board, to safely protect them, that whatever dunnage used wider than 12 inches would be stamped "dunnage" so it would be definitely identified as such.

Q. It was to be stamped in red letters 3 inches high with the words "Dunnage—not to be sold"? A. It didn't say "not to be sold", but as I recall it it was a big stamp marked "dunnage".

Q. I see. Did the other licensees agree to follow the suggestion of Mr. Henning as to this? A. I don't know that there was an agreement. I think he just said that that was what we would have to do.

Q. Did any person remonstrate as to that? A. No, we all felt that that was a good thing to do.

Q. You all felt it was a good thing to do? A. Yes, that the thing had been badly abused.

Q. On the third page, Mr. Lenci, of the memorandum that you have before you, on line 3, I just don't know what that means. Can you tell me?

That was simply a continuation of the explanation of the use of dunnage board. The first part that I have been talking about applies to the boxcars. Now, of course, all 4157 of us were doing trucking out of our various warehouses—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) This won't mean anything in the record, because you have called the witness' attention to certain words in line 3, but they don't appear in the record.

Mr. Knuff: I will bring that out.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Are those initials "DA"—"DA trucks"—and what do they stand for?

Justice Stephens: I don't see that, Mr. Knuff.

Mr. Knuff: The third line on page 3. It looks to me like "DA trucks".

The Witness: No, it is "On—O-n"—"On trucks large board on bottom (if required) and nothing on top." The words "if required" are in parenthesis.

Mr. Knuff: Is that clear to the Court? It is clear to me.

Justice Stephens: Yes.

The Witness: That is a continuation of the dunnage matter, and it meant that on truckloads of wallboard, the big board, we could put a large damaged board for dunnage on the floor of the truck to protect the bottom board of the load.

Justice Stephens: You mean that was a statement by Mr. Henning as to what could be done?

4158 The Witness: Yes. The reason for that is that if you put a number of 12-inch strips on the bottom, and then put a good board on top of that, that good board would be immediately damaged by all these little pieces.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Now at that meeting, there was a long discussion as to who should pay the stop-over charges on stop-over shipments, was there not? A. Yes. That applied to the West and Southwest parts of the United States, and I was not interested in it because we did not make any shipments to the West and Southwest.

Q. Can you give me in detail a little more about that discussion? A. I do not remember it, because I was not interested and had no reason to remember it.

Q. Gypsum board manufacturers sell to at least two classes of dealers. One you might consider as mason supply dealers, and the other type of dealer that the manufacturers sell to is lumber yard dealers—is that correct? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. Now the terms in the lumber trade were what, Mr. Lenci? A. It goes way back into history, apparently. The local dealers, the lumber yards, were always able to buy from the lumber producers on very long discounts, 4159 long-term paper. In other words, they got a carload in, and a great many of them would pay in 60, 90, or 120 days. That had been a custom built up through the past years.

Q. In other words, the payment on a carload of lumber wouldn't be due, maybe, for 60 or 90 days? A. And sometimes longer than that.

Q. And sometimes 120 days? A. Yes. But on the other hand, materials such as gypsum products had gotten into a different group, such as cement and lime and products of that kind, which had always been paid for on a much more prompt basis.

Q. That is, on a 30-day basis? A. Usually on a 30-day basis, and a discount of 2 percent was allowed for cash payments in 10 days; or, in the case of larger purchases, 2 percent on the 10th of the following month. And we didn't want to have—you see, at this time this was in the low part of the depression—we didn't want to have all our money let out on these long terms if we could avoid it, and we wanted to hold the gypsum end of the business into the 2 percent 10-day group, or 30 days net, rather than have it drop into the lumber classification. We were asked by the licensor not to offer these long terms as an inducement in order to make sales.

Q. There was a discussion concerning the propriety or adequacy of both classes of terms, was there not?

4160 A. I think the thing came about as a topic which Mr. Henning brought up and felt that that would be a good thing for us to do, and it was.

Q. And there was a discussion concerning it? A. There was a discussion, like I have just given it to you, more or less in the nature of an explanation. We all felt it was a good thing.

Q. And Mr. Henning said, then, that you were to stress payment within 30 days? A. Yes.

Q. Two percent cash in 10 days, and payment in 30 days? A. Yes.

You see, those had always been the gypsum terms, way back long before there was any wallboard or gypsum block or anything. It went back to the beginning of the gypsum industry.

Q. And were you to accept trade acceptances in payment for gypsum board? A. We were not to voluntarily offer to take notes, or offer to take trade acceptances, or offer to take bonds or other securities, in lieu of cash. But we were, of course, not prevented from accepting those in case a customer got in bad condition financially and we had to take whatever we could to secure the account. But they 4161 were not to be offered as an added inducement to make the sale.

Q. Now I notice—

Justice Stephens: Is that on the theory that that would be a kind of price concession?

The Witness: Yes. You see, this was in 1932.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. That is when there was a depression? A. Yes.

Q. I notice that you have a note to the left of the margin, and I take it that that note means "notified Diegel"—I can't read the rest of it. A. It says, "Notified Hough, Diegel, Regan"—those were three of our men.

Q. That was something you put there to call something to your own attention; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. In other words, you were to notify those three men as to the attitude that USG and the other licensees had concerning payment; is that correct? A. Yes, and that that was our policy.

Q. Was there any discussion at that meeting concerning the manufacturer being responsible for hired truckmen? A. Yes.

Q. Now I frankly don't know what I meant by the question "a manufacturer being responsible for hired 4162 truckmen", and I don't think it is a very intelligent question, but I didn't know what else to ask you in order to bring the discussion before the Court. What was that discussion? A. This applied in the territory where we were making truckload deliveries, and as you know, the license bulletins provided that we were to make truckload deliveries to the dealers' yards. In some cases we found that these dealers, when the truck got there, would give the driver a dollar or half a dollar or $2.00, and he would then go on from their yard and make a delivery to a job, which would be in violation of the license agreement. We were told by the licensor that if we had hired trucks, we would have to see that they abided by our regulations just as though they were our own trucks.

Q. Now, as I understand it, the deliveries were made not in your own trucks, but in hired trucks; is that correct? A. In our case, and in a good many of the other cases, they were in hired trucks.

Q. Now, what was wrong with a dealer re-hiring that truck to make the delivery to the job?

Mr. Bromley: May it please the Court, I am not always sure whether what the witness is answering he intends to indicate were things that happened at the meeting or 4163 didn't happen at the meeting. I have some difficulty in drawing the line. Can we have that made clear?

Justice Stephens: Yes, it should be made clear.

Was there any discussion on the subject of why that practice that you have just described, constituted a violation of the license agreements?

The Witness: Well, it was my understanding—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Was there any such discussion?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Tell what it was, then. Make clear in your own mind, Mr. Lenci, what you are being asked to tell us now; unless specific questions are asked on that topic, without objection, you are being asked not what your own opinion of these things is, but what Mr. Henning said and what discussions took place.

The Witness: Well, it first started with a complaint. One of the licensees—I don't remember which one it was—claimed that certain of the other licensees were permitting practices by hired truckmen which were in violation of the license agreement.

Justice Stephens: You have explained that that alleged violation consisted of the hired truckmen being in effect re-hired by the dealer to go out to a particular job and deliver a part of the load.

4164 The Witness: Yes.

Justice Jackson: Did I understand you to say "re-hired", or "slipped a dollar or two"?

The Witness: They weren't re-hired. This was a bribe to the driver.

Justice Stephens: I said re-hired, in effect, by the dealer.

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: That is what you meant, wasn't it?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Was there any statement by Mr. Henning or others there, as to why that was in violation of the license agreement?

The Witness: Yes. He said that the license bulletins provided that we were to make delivery to the dealer and not to the job, and this bribe to the driver merely made us make a job delivery.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Henning construed the additional payment to the truckman as a bribe, is that correct? A. That is what it was, there is no question about it.

Q. There is no question about it at all? A. No.

Q. And he took the position at this meeting that the 4165 dealer couldn't re-hire the truckman to deliver those goods to the job; is that correct? A. Well, it was not a re-hiring—

Q. (Interposing) Just answer my question.

Justice Jackson: Say yes or no.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did he take that position? A. No.

Q. He didn't take that position? A. Not that they couldn't re-hire the truck.

Q. He took the position that the giving of a dollar or $1.50 wasn't adequate compensation for the truckman to haul the goods from the dealer's warehouse to the job; is that correct? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. In other words, he objected to the amount more than to the practice, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. What did he say would be a fair amount of money to give to these truckmen to take the goods from the warehouse to the job? A. I don't think he got into that; but on the face of it, a great many of these truckloads were 10 or 12-1/2 ton loads, and our average trucking price around New York would be $1.50 a ton, which would mean 4166 that that truckload represented a cartage charge of about $15 or $20. On the face of it, giving a man a half a dollar or a dollar was purely a bribe, and nothing else.

Justice Jackson: I suppose these were just truck drivers?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Henning took the position that that was a violation of the license bulletins; is that correct? A. Yes. In other words, it was just a bribe, and actually the manufacturer was making the job delivery.

Q. Now at that time, you actually hired these trucks to make the deliveries, or the manufacturers hired some of the trucks to make the deliveries; is that correct? A. We hired the trucks to make deliveries to the dealers' yards.

Q. And they were independent contractors? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: Would you like to take the morning recess at this time?

Justice Stephens: Yes, we will take our morning recess at this time.

(Thereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed as follows:)

4167 Justice Stephens: Counsel for the Government has handed up to the bench this morning a copy of a notice to take depositions. Is that merely for the information of the Court? I don't know of any action the Court is required to take on it, under the rules.

Mr. Knuff: I had understood, your Honor, that the Court wanted four copies of everything that we filed with the Court. We always file the original with the clerk.

Justice Stephens: Yes, we are glad to have it. This is not the original, however, it isn't signed.

Mr. Knuff: That is a copy, the original has been filed with the clerk.

Justice Stephens: You are not asking for any action on it?

Mr. Knuff: Not at all.

Mr. Johnston: If the Court please, I assume they are proceeding under Rule 30. I should like to discuss the matter with counsel and the Court off the record, preferably in chambers, to see if we can come to some understanding.

I am satisfied that we will not be able to take Mr. Gloyd's deposition. I have here a report from his doctors, and since the matter came up the other day I arranged to have two other very eminent doctors examine him. I have letters addressed to your Honor.

Now I wouldn't like to have these get into the rec-
4168 ord, if there is any way of avoiding that, but I would like counsel to see them, and I would like the Court to see them, because there isn't any question but what Mr. Gloyd's condition is such that it would endanger his life to attempt to give a deposition or to appear on the witness stand.

Justice Stephens: We will be glad to take it up informally, although unless there is something actually before the Court I don't know that the Court has any authority.

Rule 26 provides:

"By leave of court after jurisdiction has been obtained over any defendant or over property which is the subject of the action or without such leave after an answer has been served, the testimony of any person, whether a party or not, may be taken at the instance of any party by deposition upon oral examination or written interrogatories for the purpose of discovery or for use as evidence in the action or for both purposes. The attendance of witnesses may be compelled by the use of subpoena as provided in Rule 45. Depositions shall be taken only in accordance with these rules."

That would seem to indicate that the matter is one between counsel unless there is some objection filed before the Court to the taking of the depositions on the ground of the physical incapacity of the proposed witness.

Mr. Johnston: Yes, we would move under Rule 30 (b), but before I filed that motion, I wanted to have this 4169 informal discussion to see if we could avoid the necessity for it.

Justice Stephens: You may do that informally, during a recess if necessary. Perhaps you can show these letters to counsel and come to some informal agreement on the subject.

Mr. Johnston: Yes, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Proceed with your examination.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was there any discussion at the December meeting in Chicago, Mr. Lenci, concerning the position that the gypsum manufacturers should take with their salesmen regarding pool cars? A. Someone must have brought that up, but I have no present recollection as to what it was.

Q. 32"x 48" wallboard would be what is known as "cut stock" wallboard, would it not? A. Yes.

Q. And do you know whether it was the practice of dealers to sell this 32" x 48" cut stock as regular wallboard? A. I believe that was a matter that affected principally the Middle West at that particular time.

Q. And was there any discussion? A. (Interposing) I don't think there was any discussion. I think Mr. Henning made the statement that certain of the dealers in that area were buying boards which were 32" x 48", at the price for cut stock, and that they were selling it and calling it 4170 wallboard, which had the effect of reducing our sales of wallboard.

Q. And Mr. Henning called that to your attention, is that correct? A. He called it to the attention of someone, I don't know who it was. It was not us, we had no part in it.

Q. What was the discussion about that? A. I don't know that there was a discussion.

Q. It was just simply a statement that it was cutting into the sales? A. Yes.

Mr. Bromley: Did you intentionally skip the note about patent markings?

Mr. Knuff: I did, I intentionally skipped it.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Since Mr. Bromley has called it up, what was the discussion concerning patent markings? A. I think Mr. Henning said that his attention had been called by some of his salesmen to the fact that certain boards were coming through, plaster board I think at that particular time, with no identification on them.

Justice Jackson: No patent markings?

The Witness: No identification or patent markings.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Now coming back to the 32"x 48" cut stock, did 4171 Mr. Henning suggest that the manufacturers do anything to stop this practice of the dealers selling this as regular wallboard? A. No, I don't remember anything like that.

Q. On the last page of this exhibit, Mr. Lenci, concerning the December 13th meeting, there is a reference to sales tax. Was the question of sales tax discussed at the December 13th meeting? A. It must have been. As I recall it, that was one of the times when there was agitation for a national sales tax, and if such a tax had gone into effect, which of course it did not, that it should have been added to the price and not absorbed by the manufacturer.

Q. In other words, the representatives at that meeting were all agreed that in case sales tax legislation was enacted, that the manufacturer should not absorb the sales tax but should add that to the invoice for which the dealer should pay, is that correct? A. I don't remember just the details of that. I think the matter was brought up by the licensor just in case it did happen.

Q. And was it the licensor's position that the sales tax should be passed to the dealer rather than have the manufacturer absorb it? A. Yes.

4172 Q. And that sales tax applied not only to gypsum board, but it applied to plaster and all other gypsum products, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And that was discussed at the meeting? A. I don't know that it was discussed—

Q. (Interposing) But that was the position— A. (Interposing) That was the position of the licensor.

Justice Stephens: You said that the sales tax "applied" to gypsum products. There wasn't any sales tax, was there?

The Witness: It never did go into effect, but there was some agitation concerning it.

Justice Stephens: What you meant was that if there was a sales tax, and if it applied to all of these products, then it should be passed on to the dealer?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Bromley: Does he mean that there was discussion at the meeting as to things other than patented board?

The Witness: Well, I have a memorandum here, in parenthesis, which would indicate to me that that was my own interpretation added to that.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. That is, your recollection now is that the sales tax, if enacted, would apply not only to the patented board, but that the sales tax should be passed on to the 4173 dealer on all other products that you were selling, is that your recollection? A. Well, it is my recollection that that was my interpretation of what we would do on other products.

Mr. Knuff: We now offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 479.

Mr. Bromley: The same objection as heretofore made concerning this type of exhibit.

Justice Stephens: The objection is sustained on the ground that the exhibit is used to refresh a present recollection.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked Government's Exhibit 480 for identification, the same being a copy of a letter dated December 7, 1932, addressed to the United States Gypsum Company, and signed G. N. Lenci.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 480, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was the original of that letter sent to the United States Gypsum Company? A. Yes, it was.

Mr. Knuff: We now offer in evidence Government's Exhibit No. 480, your Honor.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of al-
4174 leged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 480 was received in evidence.)

Mr. Knuff: While we are on the subject of the Structural Gypsum Company, will you show the witness Governments Exhibits 443 and 445, please?

(Thereupon, Government's Exhibits Nos. 443 and 445 were handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. In the first paragraph of Government's Exhibit No. 445, you make reference in the last line of the first paragraph to "Gyp Steel"—do you notice that? A. Yes.

Q. By that you meant the Structural Gypsum Company, is that correct?

Justice Jackson: That is already clear in the record.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Now in the second paragraph, the second line, there is a reference to a Mr. Williams, do you notice that? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Williams was connected with the Structural Gypsum Company, is that correct? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked
4175 for identification as Government's Exhibit No. 481, the same being a letter, dated December 19, 1932, addressed to Ebsary Gypsum Company and signed G. N. Lenci, Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 481, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. That letter was sent for the attention of Mr. E. H. Diegel, by you, was it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that carries into effect the discussion that took place in Chicago on December 13, 1932, is that correct? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 481.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 481 was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 482, the same being a copy of a letter, dated February 16, 1933, ad-
4176 dressed to the Board Survey Company and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company, G. N. Lenci, Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 482, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was the original of that letter sent to the Board Survey Company, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: I offer in evidence Government's Exhibit No. 482.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 482 was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 483, the same being a memorandum dated March 3, 1933, addressed to George N. Lenci, Secretary, and signed Ed. H. Diegel, Sales Manager.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 483, for identification.)

4177 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive that memorandum, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit No. 484, the same being a copy of a letter, dated March 24, 1933, addressed to the Board Survey Company and signed G. N. Lenci Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 484, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I will ask you if the original of that letter was sent to the Board Survey Company. A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 485, the same being a letter, dated March 28, 1933, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company and signed Board Survey Company, Frank M. Miller, Executive Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 485, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that letter received at the Newark office
4178 of the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We now offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 483, 484 and 485.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: All three exhibits are received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 483, 484 and 485 were received in evidence.)

Justice Stephens: Are you skipping the March 17th letter, the first of this series? We have a letter in this series which you handed to the Court, on the top of the series, addressed to John A. Kling. Are you skipping that?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, your Honor. Mr. Lenci has said that he didn't attend that meeting on March 10th, and I was going to use it for the purpose of refreshing his recollection if he had been there. But he said he didn't attend that meeting.

Justice Stephens: I see.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit No. 486, the same being a letter, dated April 13, 1933, addressed to the Board Survey Company and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company, George N. Lenci, Secretary.

4179 (The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 486, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Is that the original letter that was sent by you to the Board Survey Company? A. Yes.

Q. I also show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 487, the same being a copy of a letter, dated April 17, 1933, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company, and signed Board Survey Company—Executive Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 487, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive the original of that letter, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: I would like to have this letter marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 488. It is a copy of a letter, dated April 17, 1933, addressed to Mr.

Arthur R. Black, and signed Board Survey Company—Executive Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 488, for identification.)

Mr. Knuff: I would now like to offer in evidence 4180 Government's Exhibits 486 and 487. These two letters have been identified by Mr. Lenci as being—Exhibit 486, the original of the letter that he sent to the Board Survey Company; and 487— a copy of the letter that the Board Survey Company addressed to Mr. Lenci.

Government's Exhibit 488 was obtained from the files of the United States Gypsum Company—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) You are not offering Exhibit 488?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, your Honor, I am going to offer that. Exhibit 488 is connected, by internal reference, to Exhibits 486 and 487.

I am now offering Government's Exhibits 486, 487 and 488.

Justice Stephens: Where did you say you obtained 488?

Mr. Knuff: Exhibit 488 was obtained from the files of either the United States Gypsum Company or the Board Survey Company, I am not quite sure which, at the present time, but it was furnished to us in response to subpoena.

Justice Stephens: Is it an original, or a copy?

Mr. Knuff: It is a carbon copy, your Honor. We do not have the original of the letter. It was not turned over to us by the American Gypsum Company.

Mr. Bromley: We make only the usual objection to Exhibits 486 and 487.

We make the usual objection to Exhibit 488 and 4181 also object to it as incompetent because there is no proper foundation. The Government had Mr. Black here and could have identified this letter when he was here, it seems to me.

Justice Stephens: Exhibits 486 and 487 are received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents marked as Government's Exhibits No. 486 and 487 were received in evidence.)

Justice Stephens: As Exhibit 488 is objected to as incompetent, that raises every objection under the topics of competency, including the best evidence rule. You have not yet accounted for the original or shown that this is a true copy. The objection is not upon the ground of relevancy or materiality, except the usual objection, but it isn't shown by this witness to be a true copy of a letter from the Board Survey Company to Black, nor is the absence of the original accounted for.

Mr. Knuff: In that connection, we contend first that the letter is sufficiently identified because it relates to a subject-matter that was brought to the attention of the Board Survey Company by Mr. Lenci's letter of April 13, 1933, where he says:

"These people as you know were jobbers of American Gypsum Company board and were supposed to have 4182 been put on dealer's basis."

Then, on the 17th of April, 1933, the Board Survey Company wrote a letter to the Ebsary Gypsum Company acknowledging the receipt of the letter that I just referred to; and on the same day, that is on the 17th of April, the Board Survey Company wrote a letter to the American Gypsum Company on the same identical subject.

Now that letter of April 17, 1933, Government's Exhibit 488 for identification, was furnished to us by the Board Survey Company, or the United States Gypsum Company. The original of that letter, we of course subpoenaed from the American Gypsum Company. The American Gypsum Company did not turn it over to us.

As I say, the carbon came from the files of the Board Survey Company or USG, whichever furnished the letter to us. It was, to all intents and purposes, a document that they believed came within the terms of the subpoena. It came from their files.

It is connected both as to subject-matter and as to date, by internal reference, and I think that it is circumstantially identified. If we had the original we would give it to you. We don't have it.

Justice Stephens: The question isn't whether it is identified, as I understand it. It may be internally identified in the sense that it is shown to be connected with, 4183 and a probable part of, this correspondence. But the objection as to competency includes the objection that it is not the best evidence, and how can internal connection show that it is a true copy?

Mr. Knuff: We subpoenaed the best evidence; we haven't got it; they didn't turn it over to us.

Justice Stephens: I understand that, but the best evidence rule says that you must produce the best evidence available, which in this case would be the original, and that if that is not available, you must prove that the secondary evidence is a copy of the original. What proof is there of that?

Mr. Knuff: The proof is that whenever USG turned it over to us we had a right to assume that this document is what it purports to be, a copy of the letter. They have said, "Here, Mr. Assistant Attorney General, is a copy of the letter that you have subpoenaed from us, we have had this in our files." And I think it would be safe to assume that the United States Gypsum Company, or Board Survey Company, must have tacitly said, "This is a copy."

Justice Stephens: Do you admit turning this over as a copy of the original letter from Board Survey to Black, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: We only admit turning it over.

Justice Garrett: Did the subpoena which ran to 4184 these various companies for these papers specify particular papers or was it a blanket subpoena calling for everything?

Mr. Knuff: In certain instances it did specify particular things. In other instances, the subpoena was, of necessity, very broad.

Justice Garrett: You don't know, of course, as related to this particular item here, whether it was specified or whether it was included in the broad provisions of a subpoena?

Mr. Knuff: I would hazard a guess on it, your Honor, and say that we didn't say "Give us the original of the letter of April 17, 1933". I am quite sure we didn't do that. We subpoenaed all the letters relating to certain classes of transactions. We asked the various people to go through their files and give us what they considered were the documents that fitted those classifications.

This was turned over, as I say—and as Mr. Bromley has now admitted—by either USG or Board Survey, as meeting the description that was contained in our subpoenas duces tecum.

Justice Stephens: Well, I can imagine that if a subpoena was specifically drawn and served upon an opponent to produce either the original or an exact copy, if available, and the copy was produced, that that might be taken by the Court as proof to the Court of an admission that it was an exact copy.

But there is no showing to that effect here.

4185 Is the letter really of grave importance to your case?

Mr. Knuff: I am not going to argue any further on it—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) We are bound to apply the rules of evidence when they are invoked, and there really isn't any evidence to the effect that this is a correct copy. The probabilities are that it is.

The objection is sustained to Exhibit 488.

You may, however, reoffer it, if you can call someone to prove that it is an exact copy of the original.

Mr. Knuff: We are not going to take the time of the Court to do that. I didn't think they would raise such a tempest in a teapot concerning this letter. I think you can see the difficulty that we probably would run into in trying to get any stipulations concerning letters.

Mr. Bromley: I still can't understand why counsel didn't ask Mr. Black about it when he had him here on the witness stand.

Justice Stephens: We cannot assume, Mr. Knuff, that the defendants do not have some good reason for urging an objection, and therefore we must rule according to the rules of evidence when an objection is made.

Mr. Knuff: Yes, your Honor.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 489, the same 4186 being a letter dated March 31, 1933, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company and signed Board Survey Company, Frank M. Miller, Executive Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 489, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that letter received by the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Q. I also show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 490, the same being a letter, dated April 10, 1933, addressed to George N. Lenci, Secretary, and signed E. H. Diegel, Sales Manager.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 490, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive that letter, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked as Government's Exhibit No. 491 for identification, the same being a copy of a letter dated April 12, 1933, addressed to the Board Survey. Company and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company, Inc., G. N. Lenci, Secretary.

4187 (The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 491, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you send the original of that letter to the Board Survey Company? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 492, the same being a letter, dated April 14, 1933, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company and signed Board Survey Company, Frank M. Miller, Executive Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 492, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive that letter, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit No. 493, the same being the carbon copy of a letter dated April 20, 1933, addressed to the Board Survey Company and signed G. N. Lenci, Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 493, for identification.)

4188 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you send the original of that letter to the Board Survey Company? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: I now offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 489, 490, 491, 492 and 493.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declaration of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 489 to 493, inclusive, were received in evidence.)

Mr. Knuff: In Government's Exhibit 489, if your Honors please, I particularly call your Honors' attention to the second paragraph of that letter.

Justice Stephens: Yes, we have read that.

The Witness: May I ask if it is proper at this time to bring up a typographical error in Exhibit 493?

Justice Stephens: Yes, you may comment on that.

The Witness: You will notice in the center of the second paragraph the word "board" is ruled out after "plaster." The word "board" should have been eliminated from the word "plasterboard" in the next to the last line of the letter, also.

4189 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was the correction made on the original of the letter as it was sent out? A. I am not sure, but it should have been, because that is the question and that is the correct answer.

Q. In other words, in the next to the last line, the word "board" should be deleted from the word "plasterboard"? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: What you mean is that when you wrote the letter you were intending to talk about plaster and not about plaster board.

The Witness: Yes, their question was—did we intend to give plaster away?

Justice Stephens: Very well. The exhibit itself cannot be altered, but your explanation of what you intended to discuss in the exhibit will appear of record.

Mr. Bromley: While we are on the subject, may I ask the witness if there is some mistake in the second paragraph of Exhibit 491?

The Witness: Yes, that is right.

Justice Stephens: What is the mistake there?

The Witness: The word "board" should not be there either.

Justice Stephens: Are you sure of that? I thought the charge here was that when you were selling board you were giving away plaster as a kind of rebate.

4190 The Witness: Well, the second paragraph should read:

"Whatever sales of plaster have been made to this firm have been made at the prevailing price and no special price made to induce board business."

Mr. Knuff: I don't believe, in Exhibit 491, your Honor, that that should be changed, because I think that the use of the word "plasterboard" there was the reason for the Board Survey letter of April 14, 1933, which is Exhibit 492.

The Board Survey Company, under date of April 14, 1933, Government's Exhibit 492, in the second paragraph say:

"We asked that you advise us as to whether or not you had donated to this firm plaster so as to reflect to it a rebate on its purchases of patented board from you". I think the reason for the second paragraph in Government's Exhibit 492 was occasioned by the use of the word "plasterboard" in Government's Exhibit 491.

Justice Stephens: The Court will have to refer it to the witness who wrote the letter.

The Witness: If there hadn't been this typographical error in the letter of April 12, 1933, there would have been no necessity for the letter of April 14.

Mr. Knuff: In other words, the letter of April 12 went out just as it is here, that is Exhibit 491?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: I see what you mean. Proceed.

4191 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification Government's Exhibit 494, the same being a letter, dated June 15, 1933, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company, and signed Board Survey Company, Frank M. Miller, Executive Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 494, for identification.).

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state, Mr. Lenci, whether Government's Exhibit 494 was received at your Newark office? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification, Mr. Lenci, as Government's Exhibit 495, the same being a letter, dated June 20, 1933, addressed to the Board Survey Company and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company, G. N. Lenci, Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 495, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Is that the original letter that you sent to the Board Survey Company? A. Yes, it is.

Mr. Knuff: I would like to have marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 496, a memorandum dated 4192 June 13, 1933, addressed to Mr. F. M. Miller, and signed H. F. Sadler.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 496, for identification.)

Mr. Knuff: At this time I will now offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 494, 495 and 496.

Exhibit 496 was furnished to us under subpoena by the United States Gypsum Company or the Board Survey Company. It is dated June 13, 1933, which is two days previous to the date of Government's Exhibit 494, and it relates to the subject-matter contained in Government's Exhibits 494 and 495.

We contend that it is connected by internal reference with Government's Exhibits 494 and 495.

Justice Stephens: Who is H. F. Sadler?

Mr. Knuff: Assistant to one of the Vice Presidents of the United States Gypsum Company.

Justice Stephens: Is that correct?

Mr. Bromley: That is correct. He is here in the courtroom and we are showing it to him.

Mr. Knuff: At that time he was assistant to one of the Vice Presidents.

Mr. Bromley: We make only the usual objection to these exhibits.

Justice Stephens: Received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of al-
4193 leged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 494, 495 and 496, were received in evidence.)

Mr. Knuff: In connection with Government's Exhibit 494, I call your Honor's attention specifically to the third paragraph of that exhibit, beginning—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) We have read it.

Justice Garrett: I suppose in connection with that paragraph we should also read the third paragraph of the reply.

Mr. Knuff: Yes, your Honor, the third paragraph of the reply, Government's Exhibit 495. Thank you, Judge Garrett.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 497, the same being a carbon copy of a letter, dated June 15, 1933, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company and signed Board Survey Company.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 497, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I will ask if you received the original of that letter. A. I don't remember this one specifically.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identifi-
4194 cation as Government's Exhibit 498, the same being a letter, dated June 20, 1933, addressed to the Board Survey Company and signed by you.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 498, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I will ask you if that is the original of the letter that you wrote to the Board Survey Company. A. Yes.

Q. Will you look at Government's Exhibit 497, in connection with Government's Exhibit 498, and I will ask you if Exhibit 498 is not a reply to the letter dated June 15, 1933, Government's Exhibit 497. A. That is correct.

Q. So that you would now say that you did receive the original of the letter dated June 15, 1933? A. That is right.

Mr. Knuff: I would like at this time to have marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 499, a memorandum dated June 13, 1933, addressed to Mr. F. M. Miller, and signed H. F. Sadler, Assistant to the Vice President.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 499, for identification.)

4195 Mr. Knuff: At this time I offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 497, 498 and 499. Government's Exhibit 499 is in the same category with, and what I have said concerning Government's Exhibit 496, equally applies to Government's Exhibit 499.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 497, 498 and 499 were received in evidence.)

Mr. Knuff: In Government's Exhibit 497 I call your Hon ors' attention specifically to paragraph 3 of that exhibit; and in Government's Exhibit 498, I call your Honors' attention to the last paragraph of that exhibit.

I should have—but through inadvertence I overlooked—called your Honors' attention to the last paragraph of Exhibit 499.

Justice Stephens: Very well.

Mr. Knuff: Mr. Bromley has called my attention to the fact that it is twelve-fifteen, and I wonder if you would care to adjourn at this time.

Justice Stephens: Yes, we will adjourn at this time until 1:45.

(Thereupon, at 12:15 o'clock p. m., a recess was taken until 1:45 o'clock p. m. of the same day.)

4196 AFTERNOON SESSION

(The trial was resumed at 1:45 o'clock p. m., pursuant to recess.)

Justice Stephens: You may proceed.

Thereupon, GEORGE N. LENCI the witness on the stand at the time of recess, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Direct Examination (resumed)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 500, the same being a letter dated April 24, 1934, addressed to George N. Lenci, and signed H. F. Sadler.

(The document referred to was marked Government's Exhibit No. 500 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you tell us, Mr. Lenci, whether or not that letter was received at your Newark office? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 501, the same being a letter dated May 3, 1934, addressed to the Board Survey Company and signed George N. Lenci.

4197 (The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 501 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I will ask you if that is a reply to the letter identified as Government's Exhibit 500, if that is your reply? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: I offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 500 and 501.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents referred to, marked as Government's Exhibits 500 and 501, were received in evidence.)

Q. I show you what have been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibits 502 and 502-A, Exhibit 502 being a telegram dated November 8, 1934, addressed to Mr. C. F. Henning and signed by the Ebsary Gypsum Company; and Exhibit 502-A being a pencilled notation attached to Government's Exhibit 502.

4198 (The documents referred to were marked Government's Exhibits 502 and 502-A for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state, Mr. Lenci, whether or not Government's Exhibit 502 is a telegram that was sent to Mr. Henning, and will you explain what Government's Exhibit 502-A is? A. Exhibit 502-A is a memorandum which was given to me by, I believe, Mr. Diegel—I think that is his writing—and serves as a basis for the complaint which we make in our telegram dated November 8, 1934, to the United States Gypsum Company.

Q. In other words, Exhibit 502-A is the memorandum that occasioned the telegram which was sent to Mr. C. F. Henning, which has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 502; is that correct? A. That is right.

Mr. Knuff: We offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 502 and 502-A.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents referred to, marked as Government's Exhibits 502 and 502-A, were received in evi-4199 dence.)

Mr. Knuff: If your Honors please, the next three photostats—one being dated March 10, 1933 addressed to Mr. C. F. Henning; another dated March 11, 1933, to Mr. Lenci; and the third being dated March 14, 1933—while we believe they are material and probably are admissible, yet we do not feel that we are going to offer them in evidence, so I will ask the Court to just omit the next three exhibits and we will come to the exhibit which is dated April 22, 1932.

Justice Garrett: And numbered?

Mr. Knuff: It will be marked as Government's Exhibit 503 for Identification.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 503 for Identification.)

Mr. Knuff: Mr. Finck, will you stipulate for the record, please, that Government's Exhibit 503, being a letter dated April 22, 1932, addressed to Mr. M. H. Baker, National Gypsum Company, was received by National Gypsum Company?

Mr. Finck: No, I couldn't do that.

Mr. Knuff: Did you not furnish the exhibit marked 503 for Identification to us by virtue of a subpoena?

Mr. Finck: This came from our files.

Justice Stephens: Is that the original?

4200 Mr. Finck: It apparently is an original letter signed by Frank M. Miller. I believe that that is the number that we put on there, but I know nothing else about it. I don't know who received it or anything about it.

Mr. Knuff: Will you stipulate that it came from your files?

Mr. Finck: Yes.

Mr. Knuff: Will you stipulate, Mr. Bromley, that the signature of Frank M. Miller is Mr. Miller's signature?

Mr. Bromley: Why don't you ask the witness about it?

Mr. Knuff: This letter wasn't addressed to this witness. It was a letter addressed to Mr. Baker.

I have no objection. I thought we could save a few minutes by getting a stipulation on the record.

Will you show the witness Government's Exhibit 503 for Identification, please?

(Government's Exhibit 503 handed to witness.)

Justice Stephens: Is that 503 the witness has?

Mr. Knuff: Yes.

Justice Stephens: I thought the one you handed Mr. Finck was the original.

Mr. Knuff: I didn't hand any to Mr. Finck. Someone at the counsel table did so.

Justice Stephens: I see.

By Mr. Knuff:

4201 Q. Is that the signature of Mr. Frank M. Miller?

A. This is the first time I have been asked to identify Mr. Miller's signature. Heretofore all the letters have been submitted to Mr. Bromley.

Q. That is right. You have received communications from Mr. Miller, have you not? A. Yes.

Q. Would you say that that is his signature? A. I think it is the same as the others, but I never saw him write it, so I don't know.

Mr. Knuff: We again ask Mr. Bromley if he will stipulate that that is Mr. Miller's signature?

Mr. Bromley: Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We now offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 503.

Justice Stephens: Is there any objection?

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit No. 503, was received in evidence.)

Mr. Knuff: In connection with this exhibit, if Your Honors please, I call Your Honor's attention to Govern-4202 ment's Exhibit No. 38, page 122, the third paragraph from the bottom, reading:

"The establishment or continuahce of warehouses, consigning of stocks," and so forth.

In the same exhibit, that is, Government's Exhibit 38, I also call attention to page 119, the fourth paragraph from the bottom, beginning: "The establishment or continuance of warehouses", and so forth.

Justice Stephens: We have looked at those now. Have you something to urge or offer concerning them?

Mr. Knuff: I want to call your Honors' attention to the last paragraph in Government's Exhibit 503 in connection with Government's Exhibit 38, page 122, the third paragraph from the bottom, and Government's Exhibit 38, page 119, the fourth paragraph from the bottom, and Government's Exhibit 38, page 117, the fourth paragraph from the bottom. Those are license bulletins referred to in the last paragraph of this letter:—the one of April 12, 1932, the one of April 14, 1932, and the one of April 16, 1932.

Justice Stephens: What do you want us to do about it?

Mr. Knuff: I am making a cross-reference.

Justice Stephens: For the purpose of the record to show the relationship of the exhibits?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, for the purpose of the record, I am making a cross-reference at this time so that if Your 4203 Honors care to look up the reference in that paragraph of Exhibit 503, you will have a ready cross-reference for it.

Justice Stephens: Thank you very much.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, Government's Exhibit 504 for identification, the same being a letter dated March 30, 1933, addressed to George N. Lenci, Secretary, and signed George F. Neal.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 504 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that letter received by you, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 505, the same being a letter dated April 12, 1933, addressed to the United States Gypsum Company and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company, F. G. Ebsary, President.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 505 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Is that a copy of a letter that was sent to the United States Gypsum Company, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

4204 Justice Stephens: Before you proceed, who was the Mr. Neal referred to in the previous letter?

The Witness: Neal was our New York State salesman.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 506, the same being a letter dated April 17, 1933, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company and signed Board Survey Company, Frank M. Miller, Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 506 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that letter received in your Newark office? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: I now offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 504, 505, and 506.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents referred to, marked as Government's Exhibits 504, 505, and 506, were received in evidence.)

4205 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, did you attend a meeting of the licensees in the Hotel Commodore on April 17, 1933? A. I don't recall. April 17?

Q. Either April 17 or April 27, 1933. A. I don't remember.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 507, and I will ask if that memorandum refreshes your recollection concerning a meeting held in April, 1933, in the Hotel Commodore? A. Yes. The date is April 27.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 507 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. The date of the meeting was April 27, 1933? A. Yes.

Justice Jackson: Where do you get that?

The Witness: Up near the top, the third line from the top.

Justice Jackson: I see it, thank you.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Who attended that meeting, Mr. Lenci? A. Well, the United States Gypsum Company was represented by Mr. Henning and Mr. Gallagher.

4206 Q. And who is Mr. Gallagher? A. Mr. Gallagher—I don't know his exact title, but he was what corresponded to the Eastern Sales Manager.

Q. Of USG? A. Yes.

Q. Was National represented? A. Yes, by Mr. Baker and Mr. Burley.

Q. And what position did Mr. Burley have with National? A. Vice President in Charge of Sales.

Q. Was Atlantic represented? A. Yes, by Mr. Fuller and Mr. Neale.

Q. Was Certain-teed represented? A. Yes, by Mr. Brown and Mr. McCausland and Mr. Roos.

Q. Was it C. O. Brown or George M. Brown, if you can recall? A. I am quite sure it was C. O.

Q. And Mr. Roos was Edwin G. Roos, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And was Universal represented at this meeting? A. Universal was represented by Mr. Holland.

Q. And was Kelley Plasterboard Company represented there? A. Yes, by Mr. Kelley. And the Ebsary Gypsum Company was represented by Mr. Diegel and myself.

4207 Q. Neither American nor Texas were represented at that meeting, is that correct? A. No, they were not.

Q. Was there any discussion at that meeting concerning plywood? A. Yes.

Q. What was the discussion? A. Well, first of all, to explain what plywood is,—which might make it a little simpler,—plywood is a lumber product, made of thin laminated sheets of lumber which are put together under pressure and make a wood sheet which is known in the trade as plywood. At that time they were selling a great deal of plywood in competition with gypsum board. It was used generally for the same purposes.

Mr. Henning made the statement that if they continued to encroach on the gypsum business, he might have to make some change in our prices,—in other words, lower our prices in order to meet this anticipated competition from an outside product.

Q. What did the licensees say about that? A. I don't know that we said anything about it. We naturally hoped that it wouldn't happen.

Justice Stephens: What do you mean by "they continued to encroach"?

The Witness: The plywood manufacturers.

4208 Justice Stephens: I see.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was there any discussion at that meeting concerning the Quaker City Supply Company? A. Yes, there was. Someone made a complaint—I don't know just which company it was. The Quaker City Supply Company was a customer of the Kelley Plasterboard Company, in Philadelphia. Whoever made the complaint made it on the basis that Kelley was selling Quaker City, who are dealers, at less than the dealer price.

Q. Well, was the complaint made that Kelley was selling them at a low price, or was the complaint that Quaker City was selling at a low price? A. Well, maybe I took a little short-cut on that. The Quaker City were putting out prices which showed that they must be buying at a low price from Kelley in order to quote the prices which they did.

Q. That is, someone made a complaint and referred to the low prices at which Quaker City was selling that board? A. That is right.

Q. And from that, that person inferred that Kelley must be selling Quaker City at a low price? A. At less than the dealer price.

Q. Was the matter referred to anyone for in-4209 vestigation, if you know, Mr. Lenci? A. I don't recall.

Q. Was there any discussion at that meeting concerning the Watertown— A. (Interposing) That would be the Watertown Builders Supply Company.

Q. Was there any discussion concerning them at that meeting? A. Well, their name was brought up, but at the present moment I don't remember what that was.

Q. Was that in connection with the low price at which they were selling material? A. Yes, but I don't remember the details.

Q. You don't remember the details? A. No, I don't.

Q. You recall, however, that it was in connection with some low price that the Watertown Company was using? A. Yes.

Q. Was there any discussion concerning the Atlas Builders Supply Company of Brooklyn? A. There must have been, but at the present moment I don't recall what it was.

Q. You don't recall? A. No.

Q. Was our old friend Perry again discussed at 4210 this meeting? A. There is a memorandum that Perry was not jobbing, but I don't know whether it was the company that was selling Perry said he was not, or whether the consensus of opinion was that he really had stopped—I don't know.

Q. All you can recall at this time is— A. (Interposing) That his name was brought up.

Q. Before the licensees, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Was Colonel Lawton's name brought up also, at that meeting? A. Yes, and my answer would be the same as to Colonel Lawton as with regard to Perry.

Q. Was there any discussion concerning the Oakfield Gypsum Company at the meeting on April 27, 1933? A. Yes, we complained about them.

Q. What was the nature of your complaint? A. Well, our complaint was that we could see no reason why these various subsidiaries of the Oakfield Gypsum Company should be sold when they, in actual practice, were dealers, or very close to it. We felt that the Oakfield Gypsum Products Company was the company which should be sold, and that the material should be shipped to them at Oakfield.

Q. That is, you complained that the American Hardwall Plaster Company, the Paragon Plaster Company, 4211 and the Paragon Plaster & Supply Company—that any orders for board that they might place should not be delivered from your mill, but should only be delivered to Oakfield; is that correct? A. Yes, our claim was that these three companies were using their ownership of the Oakfield Gypsum Company merely as a subterfuge to get material for themselves at their destinations at a manufacturing distributor's discount when, as a matter of fact, the largest part of their business was as dealers.

Q. And the position that you took was that board should only be delivered by Ebsary to Oakfield; is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And that it should not be shipped from the Ebsary plant for the account of Paragon, or Paragon Plaster & Supply, or American Hardwall? A. Yes, that was our argument.

Q. What disposition was made of that complaint at that time? A. I think Mr. Henning said that he was going to consider it, and would make that change.

Q. And would make the change? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether the change was ever made? A. I don't think it was.

4212 Q. You don't? A. I don't think it ever was.

Q. Now, if you were selling the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company at a manufacturer's discount, and the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company told you to ship to some dealer in Lower New York State, would you have made the shipment to the dealer direct, or would you have sent it up to Connecticut? A. First of all, we had no orders of that kind from the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company. Our experience with the Connecticut Adamant was entirely different from what it was with the Oakfield Gypsum Company. Any sales that were made to the Connecticut Adamant Company, they did all of their business with dealers; whereas, sales to the subsidiaries of the Oakfield Gypsum Company, these subsidiaries were really dealers. Do you get the difference that I am trying to explain there?

Q. I am afraid I don't. I wonder if you can make it any clearer? A. In the case of the Connecticut Adamant Company, sales to them were made on the basis that they were manufacturing distributors and their sales were not to the consumer but to a dealer; but when we sold the various subsidiary companies of the Oakfield Gypsum Company, their sales were direct to the consumer. In other 4213 words, they were using the manufacturers discount to give them an unfair advantage over corresponding dealers in the same territory.

Justice Stephens: They were really dealers, in other words?

The Witness: They actually were dealers. In each of these places they maintained warehouses and distributing plants, and bought as manufacturers, but sold as dealers, which we felt gave them an unfair advantage.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Well, now, the board that was ordered by the Paragon companies was all placed for the account of Oakfield, was it not? A. Not always, no.

Q. Well, on board that was placed for the account of Oakfield, what was your position on that? A. You must understand that I don't know, because we did not sell any of these companies at that time. So I can't tell exactly who placed the orders, whether they were placed by Oakfield or placed by their branches.

Justice Stephens: Just a minute. In order that this record may be clear and have continuity, unless the Court misunderstood you, there is a conflict in your statement. As I understood you to say not long ago, you said you thought Ebsary ought not sell these three alleged subsidiaries of Oakfield because it would give them an 4214 unfair advantage. You have just stated now that you didn't sell them at all.

The Witness: We made the complaint that others were selling them on that basis, which we thought was not correct.

Justice Garrett: Let me interpose for a moment. I had obtained the impression from past testimony that Paragon and American Hardwall and the other one, were not the subsidiaries of Oakfield but the parents of Oakfield—which is right?

The Witness: I can't answer that exactly. Theoretically, that is, it has been stated from time to time that those three companies were the owners of the Oakfield Gypsum Company, but I don't know.

Justice Garrett: I don't believe it is in your testimony, but it is in the testimony of other witnesses here that Paragon and American Hardwall and Paragon Plaster & Supply Company were the parents of Oakfield.

Mr. Knuff: It has been my understanding, Judge Garrett—and I don't know whether there is any dispute about it or not—that those three companies, the two Paragon companies and the American Hardwall, were the owners of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Company. In other words, Oakfield and the two Paragon companies and the American Hardwall Plaster were at least affiliated interests.

Now as I say, I understand that the parent companies were the two Paragons and the American Hardwall Plaster.

Justice Garrett: That would be the impression I 4215 had obtained from past testimony.

Mr. Knuff: That is my understanding.

Justice Garrett: But now there is some intimation—and I don't want to get confused about it—that Oakfield was the parent company of those other three companies. I think we ought to have that cleared up. I don't see any reason why it shouldn't be cleared up. I don't believe the complaint charges the relationship. I looked through it the other day to find if it does.

Mr. Knuff: It doesn't.

I would be willing to stipulate that the three companies, that is, the American Hardwall Plaster Company, the Paragon Plaster Supply Company of Scranton, and the Paragon Plaster Company of Syracuse, were the owners of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Company.

Justice Jackson: Owners of the stock of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Company?

Mr. Knuff: Yes. I don't know whether my brothers on the other side would so stipulate or not.

Mr. Bromley: That is my understanding, except that I don't know how much stock in Oakfield each one of the three owned, nor do I know that the three together owned all the stock. But my understanding is that the three together owned either all or a substantial part of the stock of Oakfield.

Mr. Knuff: That was my understanding.

4216 Justice Garrett: I think that is sufficient for the time being, at least.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Your complaint was that the Paragon companies and the American Hardwall—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) I think that is just as clear as crystal, the witness' testimony so far.

Mr. Knuff: I think that is correct. I am just falling into that bad habit that I have, Judge Jackson. I am unconsciously falling into it.

Justice Jackson: I know it is clear to me, and I assume it is to everybody up here.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was there any statement made at that meeting concerning perforated lath being used on the West Coast? A. Yes, I believe there was.

Q. What was the statement, and who made it? A. As I recall it, Mr. Henning—you see, up to this time we, I believe, had not had any experience with perforated lath—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) You mean Ebsary, do you, when you say "we"?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Henning was explaining that on the Pacific Coast they had been using perforated lath for some time, 4217 and that it had worked out very successfully there through one or two of the earthquakes.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Through one or two of the what? A. Earthquakes.

Q. That was back when? You don't mean the San Francisco Earthquake?

Justice Jackson: Oh, they are having earthquakes out there all the time.

Q. It didn't go back as far as the 1908 quake? A. No; but as I recall it, it was around the Southern California district, either in the late 20's or the early 30's. And they found out that the perforated lath held the plaster on the ceilings much better than the plain lath, and they thought that it might be a good thing to introduce it in the East.

Q. And what was the reaction, if there was any reaction? A. I think that was merely a statement that they were going to investigate it further.

Q. Do you recall if Mr. Henning said how long perforated lath had been in use on the West Coast? A. No, I don't know that he said that, but I do know from personal experience—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Just state what 4218 he said. That is what you are being asked about now.

The Witness: No, I do not.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Do you recall whether Mr. Henning said that the perforated lath had better fire-resisting qualities than the straight lath? A. I don't remember that he mentioned that, at this time.

Mr. Knuff: We offer in evidence Government's Exhibit No. 507.

Mr. Bromley: I object to it on the grounds heretofore stated with respect to other similar exhibits.

Justice Stephens: The objection is sustained on the ground that the exhibit is used to refresh a present recollection.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 508, the same being a letter dated May 8, 1933, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company and signed Frank M. Miller.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 508 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state whether or not that letter was received, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

4219 Q. I show you what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 509, the same being a letter dated May 17, 1933, addressed to George N. Lenci and signed George F. Neal.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 509 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that letter received in your Newark office, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 510, the same being a copy of a letter dated May 22, 1933, addressed to the Board Survey Company, Chicago, Illinois, and signed George N. Lenci.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 510 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state whether that is a copy of a letter the original of which was sent to the Board Survey Company, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 511, the same being a copy 4220 of a letter dated June 1, 1933, addressed to the Board Survey Company and signed G. N. Lenci.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 511 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Is that a copy of a letter the original of which was sent to the Board Survey Company? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: I offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 508, 509, 510, and 511.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents referred to, marked Government's Exhibits 508, 509, 510 and 511, were received in evidence.)

Mr. Knuff: The next 16 pages in your book of photostats we will omit.

Justice Jackson: Does that bring us to the telegram?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, Your Honor.

Mr. Bromley: Do you mean 16 pages or 16 exhibits?

Mr. Knuff: I mean 16 pages. Some of the ex-
4221 hibits would be more than one page.

That brings us down to the telegram of June 3, 1935. Then beginning with that telegram of June 3, 1935, omit the next 8 pages, which will bring us to the letter dated March 28, 1936.

(Discussion off the record.)

Justice Jackson: The letter of March 28th will then be Exhibit 512?

Mr. Knuff: Yes.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 512, the same being a letter dated March 28, 1936, addressed to C. F. Henning, Vice President, and signed George N. Lenci.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 512 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state whether that is a letter that you signed? A. Yes.

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 513, the same being a letter dated May 9, 1936, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company and signed Charles M. Price.

4222 (The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 513 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that letter received by your company? A. I think it must have been, although I have no separate recollection of it.

Q. I show you what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 514, the same being dated April 1, 1936, signed Kelley Plasterboard Company, Inc., by S. J. Kelley, President. It is on a complaint form.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 514 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that complaint form enclosed in the letter of May 9, 1936, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes, I believe it was.

Mr. Knuff: I would like to have marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 515, the original document, of which, as Your Honors can perceive, Government's Exhibit 514 is a copy. Exhibit 515 was obtained by the Government under subpoena from either the United States Gypsum Company or the Board Survey Company.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 515 for Identification.)

4223

Mr. Knuff: I now offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 512, 513, 514, and 515.

Justice Stephens: Where is the letter of April 1st to which Exhibit 513 refers?

Mr. Knuff: There isn't any letter of April 1st that we have been able to locate, and I think I can clear that up by this witness here.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You will notice in Exhibit 513, Mr. Lenci, that Mr. Price refers to your letter of April 1st. Do you notice that? A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any recollection of writing to the Board Survey Company under date of April 1st? A. No, my letter is dated March 28.

Q. Can you offer any explanation as to the reference to April 1st in Mr. Price's letter? A. No.

Mr. Knuff: If Your Honors will please notice, it was apparently a mistake in Mr. Price's letter, and the complaint is dated April 1st, 1936, and that is Government's Exhibit 514. Apparently that is what Mr. Price referred to as a letter. The letter of Mr. Lenci that should 4224 have been referred to was dated March 28, 1936.

Justice Stephens: Is there any objection, except the usual objection, to these exhibits?

Mr. Bromley: I don't understand—may I have the last statement of counsel read?

(The record was read by the reporter.)

Mr. Knuff: You can call the paper of April 1, 1936, either a complaint or a licensee's explanation—I don't mean to place any wrong catalog on that document.

Justice Stephens: Where is this letter of March 28?

Mr. Knuff: That is Government's Exhibit 512, Your Honor.

Mr. Bromley: To these four exhibits we make the usual objection; and in addition, it seems to me that this is another illustration of a completely erroneous impression created by the omission of a vital step in this correspondence. Exhibit 513 makes reference to a letter of April 1. Now we know from the criminal case that the letter of April 1 was the complaint of the Ebsary Company against the Kelley Company, to which complaint Exhibit 514 is an answer. Exhibit 514 has been referred to here by counsel as a complaint form. It isn't. It is a licensee's explanation form. Exhibit 514, the original of which is Exhibit 515, are both Mr. Kelley's answer to the complaint which Ebsary made against him on April 1, 1936.

4225 Justice Jackson: How can it be dated the same date? They are dated April 1, these so-called complaint forms.

Mr. Bromley: You see, the date of the explanation is not April 1, but May 1. It is dated April 1 at the top. I suppose that is a reference, again, to the complaint. But the date of the explanation is a month later. This whole series doesn't mean anything unless and until we can have the complaint which Ebsary made against Kelley, which is dated April 1, and which the Government has.

Justice Stephens: Can't the Government produce this letter of April 1?

Mr. Knuff: I will make an attempt to get it. I am frank to say that in the file that I was using for the preparation of this testimony, the letter of April 1 wasn't in there, or at least if it was I overlooked it. I will make an effort to find that letter of April 1, and see if we have it.

Mr. Bromley: Don't you have a file of the exhibits in the criminal case?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, we do.

Mr. Bromley: Does your file disclose the exhibit number of Exhibit 515, the exhibit number in the criminal trial?

Mr. Knuff: Exhibit 515 is Government's Exhibit No. 62 in the criminal trial.

4226 Justice Stephens: And it so shows on this photostat.

Mr. Bromley: Then this missing document will probably be Government's Exhibit 60 or 61 in the criminal trial.

Justice Stephens: It will be better, I think, to suspend a ruling on that offer until you find it, because these do not seem related and consequently do not seem intelligible, and we don't want to get anything in the record here that may cause a misunderstanding.

Mr. Knuff: I have here the testimony in the criminal case, and it may be that—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Have you the exhibits in the criminal case in the court room?

Mr. Knuff: I don't have the exhibits themselves, but I have the testimony.

Justice Jackson: Have you an index of them?

Mr. Knuff: That is what I am looking at now.

Justice Stephens: We will take a recess for five minutes at this time, and maybe you can find it in the meantime.

(Thereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed as follows:)

4227 Justice Stephens: Proceed.

Mr. Knuff: The ruling on Exhibits 512 to 515, inclusive will be held in abeyance?

Justice Stephens: Yes.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 516, the same being a letter, dated September 11, 1936, addressed to George N. Lenci, and signed United States Gypsum Company, C. Henning—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Mr. Knuff, those rulings which were held in abeyance are on Exhibits 512, 513, 514 and 515, is that right?

Mr. Knuff: 512, 513, 514 and 515, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: What is the next one?

Mr. Knuff: This will be Government's Exhibit 516. It is a letter dated September 11, 1936.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 516, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive that letter, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: I offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 516.

Mr. Johnston: Now if the Court please, I understand that these exhibits that the Government is starting 4228 on now have not been handed around so we haven't seen any of them.

Mr. Knuff: They were put on the clerk's desk this morning.

Mr. Johnston: That doesn't do us any good. We were supposed to receive them the day before. What we have been working on up to date are those that were given to us last week. Now these I have not seen.

Justice Stephens: Where is the set for defendants' counsel; are they still on the clerk's desk?

Mr. Bromley: We have one set here.

Justice Stephens: Then take your time and look at them.

Mr. Knuff: I might say that the reason that they weren't furnished before was because of the twenty-four exhibits originally proposed, which we have now eliminated this afternoon. We didn't tailor our case exactly the way it should have been tailored.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document marked as Government's Exhibit No. 516 was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, Government's Exhibits 517 and 518 for identification, Exhibit 517 being a copy of a letter dated September 14, 1936, addressed to Mr.
4229 C. F. Henning, and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company, George N. Lenci, Secretary; and Government's Exhibit 518, being dated September 18, 1936, addressed to George N. Lenci, Secretary, and signed United States Gypsum Company, C. Henning, Vice President. Exhibit 518 apparently is a reply to your letter of September 14, 1936, which is marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 517.

(The documents referred to were marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 517 and 518, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you send the original of Government's Exhibit 517, and did you receive in reply thereto, Government's Exhibit 518? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: I offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 517 and 518.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 517 and 518 were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. On Government's Exhibit 518, Mr. Lenci, I notice
4230 opposite the last paragraph, and to the left there, a notation in pencil. Is that in your handwriting? A. Yes, it is.

Q. Will you translate that, and explain what it means? A. Well, it reads, "Did this before writing".

Q. And by that, what do you mean, Mr. Lenci? A. That refers to the last paragraph in Mr. Henning's letter of September 18, in which he suggested that I get in touch with Mr. Gallagher, of the United States Gypsum Company, so as to get more information from him as to the competition from other materials.

Q. And your notation, "Did this before writing" indicates that you had already done what Mr. Henning suggested in his letter, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now in the last paragraph of the letter, the fourth line down, Mr. Henning refers to Ecod wood lath. What is Ecod? A. Well, Ecod was a combination lath made up of a wire mesh, with very large meshes, backed up with a paper.

Q. It wasn't metal lath? A. It was not metal lath, it was a very cheap product that came in rolls and it was used in what we call, around New York, the speculative apartment houses.

Q. Was it used as a base for plaster? A. Yes.

4231 Q. And it was a trade name of what lath, or what base—or was it a trade name? A. It was a trade name.

Q. And by whom was Ecod put out? A. I was going to say Reynolds, but I am not certain of that.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 519, the same being a letter dated July 20, 1938, addressed to Mr. Lenci, and signed E. J. Blanchfield.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 519, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive that letter, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Justice Jackson: Who is Mr. Blanchfield?

The Witness: Blanchfield was our Boston representative.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you what has been marked Government's Exhibit 520 for identification, the same being a copy of a letter, dated July 22, 1938, addressed to United States Gypsum Company, and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company, George N. Lenci, Vice President.

4232 (The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 520, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state whether or not that is a copy of a letter, the original of which was sent to the United States Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 521, and also what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 522; Government's Exhibit 521 is a copy of a letter, dated August 30, 1938, addressed to United States Gypsum Company, signed Ebsary Gypsum Company; and Exhibit 522 is likewise a copy of a letter, dated September 15, 1938, addressed to the United States Gypsum Company and signed George N. Lenci.

(The documents referred to were marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 521 and 522, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state whether or not the originals of those two letters were sent to the United States Gypsum Company? A. Yes, they were.

Mr. Knuff: I offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 519, 520, 521 and 522.

4233 Mr. Bromley: We make only the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 519 to 522, inclusive, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 523, the same being a letter, dated July 31, 1939, addressed to Mr. Fred Ebsary, and signed Ezra Sensibar, President, Cardiff Gypsum Company.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 523, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that letter received at your company's office? A. Yes.

Q. I show you a copy of a letter which is marked for identification as Government's Exhibit No. 524, the same being a carbon copy of a letter dated August 3, 1939, addressed to the Cardiff Gypsum Company, and signed George N. Lenci.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 524, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

4234 Q. Was the original of that letter sent to the Cardiff Gypsum Company? A. Yes, it was.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 525, the same being a letter, dated August 3, 1939, addressed to George N. Lenci, and signed Cardiff Gypsum Company, M. Gutman.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 525, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that letter received by your company, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 526, the same being a copy, of a letter, dated August 10, 1939, addressed to the Cardiff Gypsum Company, and signed George N. Lenci.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 526, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was the original of that letter sent to the Cardiff Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identifi-
4235 cation as Government's Exhibit No. 527, the same being a copy of a letter, dated September 18, 1939, addressed to the Cardiff Gypsum Company and signed George N. Lenci.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 527, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was the original of that letter sent? A. Yes.

Q. I show you—

Mr. Bromley: (Interposing) May it please the Court, I now notice that there are some thirty-five, approximately, of these documents, and I recognize them as having been introduced in the criminal case.

It is our position that they are entirely immaterial to any issue in this case, and I would like to state that now to save, if possible, the reading of all these documents, since it seems to be Mr. Knuff's intention to mark them, but not offer them until he gets all through.

I think Mr. Knuff will agree that the documents have only to do with the refusal of the United States Gypsum Company to grant a consent to the Ebsary Gypsum Company to sell this company board.

Now, as I read the complaint, there is no charge in the complaint that has anything to do with this. This 4236 company was not named in the Bill of Particulars as a manufacturing distributor, and there is no charge, as I see it, to which any of these letters could possibly have any relevancy.

Mr. Knuff: The letters are being offered for two reasons, your Honor. In the first place, it will be shown by either these letters, or by Mr. Sensibar himself, that Mr. Sensibar—

Justice Garrett: (Interposing) Would you mind facing the Court, Mr. Knuff? I can't hear you.

Mr. Knuff: I am sorry—that Mr. Sensibar's company, the Cardiff Gypsum Company, was a plaster manufacturer; that his company endeavored to purchase board from various companies, including this defendant; that his company had a reputation for cutting the price of plaster; that United States Gypsum refused permission to the Ebsary Gypsum Company to sell board to the Cardiff Gypsum Company.

These letters will not show that, but other testimony will show that. Likewise, that the United States Gypsum Company refused American, National and Certain-teed permission to sell board to the Cardiff Gypsum Company.

These are being offered for two reasons; first, we contend that they were trying to control the plaster prices, and because Ebsary had the reputation for cutting price on plaster—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Do you mean Ebsary?

Mr. Knuff: Cardiff Gypsum Company—because Cardiff had the reputation for cutting the price on plaster, 4227 they wouldn't make the board available to Cardiff when board would aid Cardiff in selling plaster.

These are also offered under paragraph—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Before you get to the second part. What charge in the complaint covers the first item you have referred to?

Mr. Knuff: That is in 45 (c), "concertedly raising, maintaining and stabilizing the general level of prices for plaster", and so forth.

Here you have a negative stabilization of the plaster prices in the refusal of the United States Gypsum to give their consent to their licensees to sell board to a manufacturer who had the reputation of cutting the price of plaster.

The second theory on which these are offered is contained in paragraph 121 of the complaint, that they "have completely eliminated from the distributive system wholesale distributors who might fail to maintain said prices". That is the last part of the last sentence of paragraph 121.

Justice Garrett: You wish to show, do you, that there was an effort on the part of some dealers or jobbers, or whatever you want to call them—we will cut out those names for the time being—by reducing the price of plaster upon which there was no patent, and which was not included in the license agreements, that they avoided the effect of the price fixed under the license agreements upon the 4238 patented products, by selling plaster at a low rate and thereby violated the license agreements, and that the defendants objected to that and prevented it. Is that what you intend to prove?

Mr. Knuff: No, your Honor. The defendants themselves have tied the price of plaster to the price of board by their license bulletins. In their license bulletins it says that although board may ostensibly be sold at a certain price, nevertheless, if plaster or other products are sold at a less price in order to influence the sale of the board—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) Less than what, less than the market price?

Mr. Knuff: Yes,—that that would be considered a violation of the license agreements.

Now here we have a plaster manufacturer who had the reputation for selling plaster at cut prices—

Justice Garrett: (Interposing) What do you mean by "here"?

Mr. Knuff: In the Cardiff Gypsum Company case.

Justice Jackson: At less than the market price?

Mr. Knuff: Yes. The Cardiff Gypsum Company had the reputation of selling plaster at reduced prices. The Cardiff Gypsum Company, in order to aid their plaster sales, wanted to have a board line. The Cardiff Gypsum intended to get board from the Ebsary Gypsum Company.

The Ebsary Gypsum Company under the license agreement could not sell to another manufacturer without 4239 the consent of the licensor. Ebsary endeavored to get that consent from the licensor, and the licensor refused to give that consent.

That is the only case we know of where a manufacturer was refused permission to buy board, and we contend that the reason why they were refused was because USG knew of their sales policies with reference to plaster, and because they had a reputation of being a price cutter on plaster, USG refused to give Ebsary the consent to sell board to them.

This would be evidence, certainly, of the allegations contained in paragraph 45 (e), that is, of, "concertedly inducing and coercing manufacturing distributors to resell at the prices raised and fixed by said companies as aforesaid, gypsum board purchased from said companies".

Justice Jackson: They wouldn't have much of a market, would they, if they sold to many people like you say this Sensibar outfit is? If they could indulge in what is sometimes called a "gift enterprise" and sell them ostensibly the board at dealer's price, and give them, as a gift, the gypsum, where would their market be? They would be just cutting their own throats, wouldn't they?

Mr. Knuff: That may be the case, but nevertheless we would like to show all the facts in this case.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Knuff, I am misled now. I thought a moment ago you said you were offering this evidence under paragraph 45 (c), but now you are 4240 talking about 45 (e). Cardiff wasn't a manufacturing distributor, were they?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, they were a manufacturing distributor.

Justice Stephens: Was it one of the manufacturing distributors mentioned in the Bill of Particulars, or complaint, as having its resale prices fixed?

Mr. Knuff: It is my best recollection that we have specifically mentioned the Cardiff Gypsum Company in the Bill of Particulars.

Justice Stephens: Is that correct?

Mr. Bromley: No, that is not correct.

Mr. Knuff: I may be wrong as to that.

Mr. Bromley: We have got the Bill of Particulars right here. You can look at it.

(Whereupon, copy of the Bill of Particulars was handed to Mr. Knuff.)

Mr. Knuff: Cardiff is not mentioned; I thought it was.

Justice Stephens: Then you do not rely on paragraph 45 (e), but simply on 45 (c).

Mr. Knuff: Well, it would still be evidence, not to prove that that particular company's price was fixed, but it would still be evidence from which the Court could infer that the United States Gypsum Company was fixing the prices of manufacturing distributors.

Justice Stephens: I thought that we ruled, in these reserved rulings of which we had so many not long 4241 ago— (after referring to the rulings of the Court) —no, I had in mind the ruling under Topic V, where we all agreed that the objection to the Perry testimony should be sustained, and the motion to strike granted on the ground that there was no charge in the complaint of resale price fixing on plaster, board and other gypsum products by wholesalers, as distinguished from manufacturing distributors.

You claim that this company is a manufacturing distributor and you claim that you have a right to show that the defendants fixed the resale price of this manufacturing distributor, in order to prove that they fixed it on someone else's products that someone else being a manufacturing distributor, although Cardiff is not so charged?

Mr. Knuff: That is right, your Honor.

Justice Jackson: That is for plaster, not patented board?

Mr. Knuff: For both.

Justice Jackson: Under 45 (c)?

Mr. Knuff: That only applies to gypsum board, but it is evidence to—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) Paragraph 45 (c) applies to gypsum board?

Mr. Knuff: I beg your pardon, I was looking at 45 (e). 45 (c) applies to plaster.

Justice Jackson: 45 (e) is out, isn't it, because Cardiff is not included—

4242 Mr. Knuff: (Interposing) We are not offering it to show the truth or falsity of their refusal to sell board to Cardiff, but we say, from the fact that they did refuse to sell them, that the Court could infer that they also refused to sell other manufacturing distributors whose names are mentioned in the Bill of Particulars, unless they maintain prices.

Justice Stephens: Well your first argument was, as I understood it, that you have a right to show, by these letters, and other letters, and other testimony, that USG refused to permit Ebsary and other licensees to sell gypsum board to Cardiff, because Cardiff was known to be a price cutter on plaster, and that that tends to prove the allegations of paragraph 45 (c), "concertedly raising, maintaining, and stabilizing the general level of prices for plaster and miscellaneous gypsum products manufactured and sold by said companies in the Eastern area".

And you also offer the same evidence under paragraph 121, the last sentence of which charges the elimination, "from the distributive system (of) wholesale distributors who might fail to maintain said prices".

Well, the whole of paragraph 121 refers to plaster, miscellaneous gypsum products, and board. The last sentence merely says, "For the purpose of maintaining said uniform and noncompetitive prices, the defendants have standardized the manufacture of board, have limited

4243 said distribution of board to themselves and to certain manufacturing distributors, and have completely eliminated from the distributive system wholesale distributors who might fail to maintain such prices."

I suppose that might be broad enough to apply to plaster prices.

Now what do you say, Mr. Bromley, as to their admissibility under those two paragraphs of the complaint?

Mr. Bromley: I think it should be borne in mind first, that the indictment in paragraph 18 specifically charged that:

"Pursuant to the combination and conspiracy, USG refused to permit manufacturers to sell, and manufacturers refused to sell, gypsum board to companies selling gypsum products at wholesale other than those named as co-conspirators named herein, because of the reputation of said companies for selling gypsum products at prices below prevailing prices".

And the Bill of Particulars that we got under that section named Cardiff. Now there is nothing like that section in the bill of complaint. This time, when we asked for a list of the manufacturing distributors, Cardiff was not named.

So against that background it seems to me there should be considered the thought now of whether it is covered by the complaint. I think that is a plain afterthought, and the two documents show very clearly that it was never intended to cover this situation by the complaint, but to cover it solely by the indictment.

4244 It seems to me that paragraph 45 (c) is plainly out, as Judge Jackson has said, because it does not refer to board, but just refers to plaster and other gypsum products than board.

In 45 (e) there is an allegation that the conspirators coerced the manufacturing distributors to maintain resale prices. I don't see how it is possible to assert that because USG did a perfectly lawful thing, it seems to me, in refusing to grant its consent to Ebsary to sell someone not named to be a manufacturing distributor, although very probably in fact a manufacturing distributor, that that is necessarily support to a charge that we conspired to force these manufacturing distributors to maintain prices on board—and that is the only charge, there is no charge that we conspired to force manufacturing distributors to maintain resale prices on plaster.

How does our refusal to sell Cardiff tend in any way to prove the charge that we agreed to coerce the manufacturing distributors to maintain resale prices on board?

As far as paragraph 121 is concerned—

Justice Stephens: Before you go to paragraph 121, repeat your statement as to 45 (c), in which you referred to Judge Jackson's point, please. I didn't clearly get that.

Mr. Bromley: The only allegation there is that the conspirators agreed to maintain the prices of plaster and miscellaneous plaster products other than board.

4245 I don't see how evidence that USG refused to permit Ebsary to sell board to Cardiff could in any way support a charge that the defendants agreed among themselves to stabilize the price of plaster.

Justice Stephens: Well, the argument of the Government, as I understand it, was that Cardiff was trying hard to get some board and couldn't get it, and that the Government has a right to try to show that the reason Cardiff couldn't get it was because it was a price cutter on plaster, and that that is circumstantial evidence tending to prove that the defendants were conspiring to keep the price of plaster up, i.e., they wouldn't sell to people who kept it down, wouldn't even sell board to them.

Mr. Bromley: Now as we have all agreed, there is no charge in the complaint that the defendants fixed the resale price of plaster, or fixed any other price of plaster than their own.

So that even on that theory, it seems to me to be remote to try to prove that we refused our consent to Ebsary to sell board to Cardiff, even though Cardiff was manufacturing plaster and even though Cardiff may have had a reputation as a price cutter.

Justice Stephens: Well, wouldn't it be some evidence tending to prove that the defendants kept their own prices on plaster up, if they tried to get rid of the fellow who 4246 cut the prices on plaster, because a lower price on plaster, by whomsoever sold, would tend to make it difficult to keep the price on plaster up, that is, of the plaster sold by the defendants themselves.

Mr. Bromley: Well, that might possibly be.

Justice Garrett: As a matter of fact, did this Cardiff Company manufacture plaster?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, sir.

Justice Garrett: They manufactured plaster, sold their own plaster manufactured by them, at a price which they fixed?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, sir. Of course when you get through with the whole line of testimony, all it shows is that the United States Gypsum Company refused to give its consent, which I assume anybody would say was perfectly lawful.

Ebsary was trying hard enough to get it, and we just told them no, that they couldn't have it. So again it doesn't prove a conspiracy. It proves the opposite. Ebsary would have very much liked to sell this company board, and we didn't want to give our consent, and we didn't.

Justice Stephens: What about paragraph 121, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: Paragraph 121 is under the effect of the combination. It is not a charge of the combination or its scope. The last sentence to which counsel refers, or the last part of the last sentence, "have completely eliminated from the distributive system wholesale distributors 4247 who might fail to maintain said prices", I think plainly refers to jobbers. I think a reading of the whole complaint shows that reference is to the allegations in paragraph 94 that we conspired to sell only to jobbers who sold to dealers, who maintained bulletin prices.

I did not before understand that the use of the words "wholesale distributors" was ever intended to broaden the scope of the allegations of the conspiracy, and I think all of us have understood that to mean merely jobbers.

Justice Stephens: Do you wish to be heard, Mr. Knuff?

Mr. Knuff: No, your Honor, I think not.

Justice Stephens: Of course there is no offer before the Court, but the Government states that exhibit numbers—

Mr. Knuff: (Interposing) Beginning with Exhibit 523 and going to 527, so far.

Justice Stephens: (Continuing) Exhibits 523, 524, 525, 526, and 527 are to be offered—do you offer them at this time?

Mr. Knuff: We will offer them, but we have not offered them yet. There are probably nine or ten other letters in this series—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) Is Mr. Bromley correct, that there are approximately thirty-five documents, beginning with Exhibit 523, all dealing with the refusal of USG to permit Ebsary—4248 Mr. Knuff: (Interposing) Yes, all dealing with that general subject.

Justice Stephens: There is nothing before the Court to rule on, but for the guidance of counsel we may say that if these letters, Exhibits 523 to 527, inclusive, are to be offered on the theory that the Government states—which I need not repeat because it is clearly stated on the record—that all of us are agreed, all of the Judges, that they are not admissible under paragraph 45 (e).

Judge Jackson and I are of the view that they are admissible under paragraph 45(c), where it is charged that the defendants concertedly raised, maintained and stabilized the general level of prices for plaster and miscellaneous gypsum products.

We think the proffered evidence may possibly support an inference that the defendants were trying to keep their own prices on plaster up, by keeping the prices of other people up, although it seems to Judge Jackson and myself that it might support a different inference, that it was a kind of indirect rebating or gift enterprise.

Judge Garrett is doubtful, I think, whether the evidence is admissible on any theory. In fact, I think it is his view that is not admissable under any theory of the complaint.

But since the majority of the Court think it is admissible, without commenting on its weight, this sugges-4249 tion is made by Judge Jackson, which seems to me worthy of your consideration, Mr. Knuff.

If you have got thirty-five, or any such large number of letters of this sort, since there seems to be no dispute by the defendants, why cannot it be agreed or stipulated that the United States Gypsum Company did decline to permit Ebsary and other licensees, if that is the fact, to sell board to the Cardiff Gypsum Company? That, at least, I should think could be stipulated to if it is true, and if it cannot be stipulated to that the Cardiff Company was a price cutter on plaster, you could prove that by someone else. By this method I think we could probably save half a day's work.

Mr. Knuff: If Mr. Bromley is willing to stipulate to that effect, all right.

Mr. Varian: Do these exhibits only apply to Ebsary's application, and the refusal of USG to give Ebsary the necessary consent to sell Cardiff at a discount?

Justice Stephens: That is my understanding.

Mr. Varian: They only apply to the Ebsary Company?

Justice Stephens: Yes.

Justice Jackson: But our understanding is that this is part of a chain of proof by which the Government would attempt to show that the other licensees were prohibited from selling to Cardiff.

Mr. Varian: All I know is what transpired in the 4250 criminal case, and my recollection is that there was no such evidence of refusal by USG. I think there, the other companies on their own account refused to sell to Cardiff.

Mr. Bromley: I will stipulate now that USG refused to grant the consent which Ebsary requested from it, under its license, for permission on Ebsary's part to sell patented board, manufactured by Ebsary, to the Cardiff Gypsum Company.

Justice Stephens: Thank you, Mr. Bromley. That stipulation, I should think, would save a great deal of proof.

Mr. Knuff: I think it will. You can see why we couldn't charge these people with regulating the price of the board sold by Cardiff, because Cardiff never sold any.

Mr. Bromley: I think I should add to that statement, that this occurred in October, 1939.

Justice Jackson: That is, the final refusal?

Mr. Bromley: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Now the Court has held in abeyance the ruling on Exhibits 512, 513, 514 and 515, in order for the Government to try to produce the letter of April 1st—

Mr. Knuff: (Interposing) That is Government's Exhibit 61 in the criminal trial, I believe.

Justice Stephens: See if you can have that here in the morning so that we can get that ruling cleared up.

In view of this stipulation by Mr. Bromley, you can perhaps, during the evening, eliminate a lot of these exhibits.

4251 Mr. Knuff: Yes, sir.

Justice Stephens: Announce the recess until tomorrow.

(Thereupon, at 4:05 o'clock p.m., an adjournment was taken until 10:00 o'clock a. m., Tuesday, February 22, 1944.)

4253 IN THE

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Civil Action No. 8017

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY; NATIONAL GYPSUM COMPANY; CERTAIN-TEED PRODUCTS CORPORATION; THE CELOTEX CORPORATION; EBSARY GYPSUM COMPANY, INC.; NEWARK PLASTER COMPANY; SAMUEL M. GLOYD, doing business under the name of TEXAS CEMENT PLASTER COMPANY; SEWELL L. AVERY; OLIVER M. KNODE; MELVIN H. BAKER; BROR H. DAHLBERG; HENRY J. HARTLEY; FREDERICK G. EBSARY; and FREDERICK TOMKINS,

Defendants.

Seventh Floor,
Internal Revenue Building,
Washington, D. C.,
Tuesday, February 22, 1944.

The above-entitled cause came on for further hearing at 10:00 o'clock a. m., pursuant to adjournment, before Honorable Harold M. Stephens, Honorable Finis J. Garrett, and Honorable Joseph R. Jackson, sitting as the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

APPEARANCES:

(Same as heretofore noted.)

4259 You may proceed with the examination.

Mr. Steffen: I should like to make a short statement in the nature of a correction of the record.

I think yesterday, in connection with the Cardiff letters that were being offered in evidence, the question arose concerning who was a manufacturing distributor, and the nature of our bill of particulars in connection with who was a manufacturing distributor.

It was called to our attention by Mr. Bromley that the Cardiff people were not named as manufacturing distributors, and I gathered from Your Honors' action that maybe that entered into your calculations in reaching the conclusion that perhaps that evidence was not admissible under our Paragraph 45 (e).

The bill of particulars, and the answer to the bill of particulars, were addressed to Paragraph 42 of the complaint, and Paragraph 42 of the complaint is a general statement concerning the distribution of gypsum board through plaster manufacturers. What it says is that:

"The defendant companies sell in interstate commerce a substantial part of the gypsum board manufactured by them to various small manufacturers of calcined gyp-4260 sum and plaster not engaged in the manufacture of gypsum board, sometimes referred to hereinafter as manufacturing distributors."

Now in answer to the question posed by the motion for a bill of particulars as to who we meant by manufacturing distributors, it is true that we did not mention the Cardiff Gypsum Company; and it is obvious that we couldn't have mentioned the Cardiff Gypsum Company, because they never sold to the Cardiff Company, it was not a manufacturing distributor. It is true, on the other hand, that it was a plaster manufacturer to whom, in ordinary course, these defendants should have sold gypsum board just as they did to the other plaster manufacturers who have become distributors.

Our contention is, and this evidence is offered upon the ground, that their refusal, the defendants' refusal to sell to a plaster manufacturer who satisfies credit requirements, who is in the same category as are the other plaster manufacturing distributors to whom they did sell, is very strong evidence of their purposes to maintain prices; and that when we offer this evidence, coupled with further evidence, indicating that their refusal was upon the ground, largely, that the Cardiff people had a bad reputation in the past for cutting prices on plaster, and therefore, of course, affecting the plaster market, it is very strong evidence, as we see it, to establish that they were attempting to maintain prices under paragraph 45(a) and also 45(e) 4261 of the complaint, as well, of course, as 45(c), upon which Your Honors stated that the evidence was admissible.

I might call Your Honors' attention to the case of the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation v. United States, which is in 309 U. S., and is our general authority for the proposition that where defendants gather together and refuse to sell, or refuse to consent to a sale to jobbers, for the reason that the jobbers may not maintain prices, that that is a straight violation of the Sherman Act.

But what I wanted to say primarily was to clear the record on the matter of our not having named the Cardiff people as a manufacturing distributor. In the nature of the case, we could not name them as a manufacturing distributor, because USG refused to allow them to be a distributor at all. They were, however, plaster manufacturers.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Steffen, paragraph 45(e) charges: "concertedly inducing and coercing manufacturing distributors to resell, at the prices raised and fixed by said companies as aforesaid, gypsum board purchased from said companies."

Mr. Steffen: That is right.

Justice Stephens: Now whether or not you named Cardiff as a manufacturing distributor, how could the evidence which you offered, which is evidence that the defendants refused to sell board to Cardiff, prove that they fixed its price?

4262 Mr. Steffen: We don't, of course, wish to say that they fixed the price of the Cardiff people, because they did not. What we offer it for is as evidence from which Your Honors could infer that they did fix and control the prices of manufacturing distributors because, when they were offered an opportunity to sell to a plaster manufacturer whose prices they were afraid they couldn't control, they refused to sell to him.

This is the one example that we have of where they have refused to sell to a plaster manufacturer, and we expect to establish that they refused to sell to this plaster manufacturer on the same basis that they were otherwise selling to manufacturing distributors, for the reason that this plaster manufacturer had a bad reputation for cutting prices; and that therefore it is evidence, we feel, from which the Court could infer that as respects those who were manufacturing distributors, they could control and did control the resale prices.

That is the argument that we wish to advance.

Justice Stephens: I want to be sure I understand it, because I thought we ruled that the proffered evidence was not admissible under paragraph 45(e). I am sure we did.

Mr. Steffen: I think so, but I think it was on a misconception concerning our bill of particulars.

Justice Stephens: I understand why you are making the statement, and therefore I want to understand your statement.

I don't yet understand how evidence that the defendants refused to sell board to Cardiff could tend to prove that they were fixing the price of other manufacturing distributors on board, since this company was only a plaster price-cutter.

Mr. Steffen: On that I will say this, that the defendants' contention is that when there is a cutting of prices on plaster sold in conjunction with board, that that constitutes a cutting of the price of board,—we pointed that out in Bulletin No. 5,—and that therefore, when they are faced with the problem of whether they want to sell to Cardiff, and they have this reputation of Cardiff cutting the price of plaster, they say that that constitutes an indirect rebate or cut on the price of board and therefore he wouldn't be maintaining the established bulletin prices on board as they see them; and, therefore, it seems to us to be very strong evidence that as respects those distributors to whom they do sell, they sell to them for the reason that they will maintain the prices, the resale prices on board. And I think our evidence will be overwhelming that they all have maintained the resale prices on board, and there was the possibility that Cardiff would not do that which, according to their own contentions, constitutes an indirect cutting of the price on board by virtue of their refusal to maintain the "established" prices on plaster.

Justice Stephens: Do you wish to be heard, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: No, Your Honor.

Mr. Steffen: I might say that the bulletin provision to which I referred is Government's Exhibit 37 at page 531, and it appears in the complaint at the top of page 96; and that is the provision that any lowering of the price of other commodities sold in conjunction with board will, according to the licensor, constitute a reduction in price of the board and will be contrary to the agreement.

Justice Stephens: Well, I confess, Mr. Steffen, that I am completely at sea as a result of your statement this morning, and the Court is in a state of unhappy division on the subject, because Judge Garrett doesn't think this evidence is admissible at all, and so ruled yesterday. Judge Jackson and I thought yesterday that it was admissible under 45(c).

Mr. Steffen: I think it is admissible under 45(c)—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) But we ruled definitely yesterday that it was not admissible under 45(e). I can't see yet how it is admissible under 45(e). It seems to me that Mr. Knuff and Mr. Steffen are arguing contrary inferences. It seems to me that Mr. Steffen is arguing 4265 that it is admissible on the "gift enterprise" theory under the bulletins, which theory has been discussed here very frequently and with which I am thoroughly familiar,—that a refusal to sell to a plaster manufacturer who cuts plaster prices might be evidence that the defendants didn't want a gift enterprise operating which would be an indirect rebate on the price of board. Well, that is one inference which may possibly be drawn from the refusal to sell a plaster manufacturer who is supposed to be a price cutter on plaster.

But Mr. Knuff is offering the evidence, as I understood it yesterday, on the theory that the refusal to sell a plaster manufacturer who was reputed to cut plaster prices supported an inference that the defendants were trying to keep the price of plaster up.

Mr. Steffen: I think they are both consistent, Your Honor.

Justice Jackson: That is your theory now, isn't it?

Mr. Steffen: Yes. Both are consistent. The same evidence as respects price cutting on plaster comes in under 45(c) for the reason that the defendants are charged with attempting to fix a price on plaster; and this evidence would indicate that they were not willing to sell to a plaster manufacturer, sell board to him, where that would increase his strength and where they would like to really 4266 eliminate him. I don't think it is highly essential, so long as it comes in under one or the other. I wanted to clear the record on the manufacturing distributor question.

Justice Stephens: You are entitled to do that.

But the Court has now ruled by a majority vote that this evidence is not admissible under 45(e). If that ruling stands, I take it you will assert it as error if the Government does not prevail in the case, but I confess that I can't see it under 45(e). It may be that I am obtuse about it.

Mr. Steffen: I want to make it clear also that we think it is relevant under 45(a), which has to do with the general control of prices to dealers.

The principal thing, or let us say the most important thing in this complaint is the control of prices from manufacturers to dealers, and this evidence would indicate that they were unwilling to sell to any plaster manufacturer who would not maintain the regular dealer prices, either directly upon the board, or indirectly by cutting the price of plaster. And we consider that the evidence, therefore, is admissible on that score, as well.

Justice Garrett: Let me ask you there—you say that they were unwilling to sell to a manufacturer of plaster who cut prices—

Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) On plaster.

4267 Justice Garrett: Yes, on plaster. I don't know, of course, what the cutting of the price of plaster meant. There was no fixed price. But you say they were unwilling.

Now so far as I get this, Ebsary wanted to sell to them?

Mr. Steffen: That is right.

Justice Garrett: And USG said, "No, you can't sell, we will exercise the control we have under our contract based upon the patents, and you can't sell."

Well, if Ebsary was trying to sell, and USG, in the exercise of a lawful right, assuming it was lawful, refused permission, how, then, would that bring Ebsary into a conspiracy?

Mr. Steffen: It doesn't look like a voluntary conspiracy, does it?

I would like to answer that, because I think Mr. Bromley stated yesterday that it was lawful, and I think Your Honor stated this morning that it might be regarded as lawful.

Justice Garrett: I said "if lawful".

Justice Jackson: "Assuming it was".

Mr. Steffen: Yes, "assuming it was". And I want to state that we do not grant that it is lawful for a group, USG and the other licensees together, to refuse to sell to any person for the reason only, as we expect to 4268 develop here, that he is a price cutter.

Now, reaching your direct question, how does it constitute a conspiracy? The fact is this, as we will establish, that Mr. Sensibar tried not only with Ebsary, but with a number of other manufacturers, to procure a supply of board. I believe the American, early in the game, were willing to sell to the Cardiff Company, and USG refused to grant consent, presumably for exactly the same reason, that is, that they were afraid Cardiff would cut the price on plaster, and therefore on one side depreciate the plaster prices and on the other give a rebate on their board, which was a double violation, as they saw it.

Now let's carry it on farther. Actually what happened is that each of these licensees and the licensor all refrained from selling to Cardiff. Now it may not be a voluntary conspiracy. It is true that Ebsary wanted to sell to begin with, but when the chips were down Ebsary didn't sell. In other words, they are in an agreement, the whole industry is in an agreement not to sell to Cardiff. It is the same proposition you have in your bank robbery—conspiracy. Here are four or five robbers that want to rob a bank, and they want somebody to drive a car, and they grab him and he says, "I don't want to go with you people." But nevertheless, if he drives the car and takes the robbers away from the scene of the robbery, you have a conspiracy 4269 and he is part of it.

These people are, we contend, conspirators, because that is what they actually did. And from the standpoint of the policy of the Sherman Act, which is to free the sale of commodities, we have a situation where we have a plaster manufacturer, with sufficiently good credit, who would normally be a proper person to buy board, who is refused a supply; and he is not refused a supply by one single person, he is refused a supply, when it adds up, by all of them.

And as I think we have said many times, and as the cases have said many times, what one person might do individually, that is, perhaps USG might refuse to sell individually and that would not constitute an offense—but a group of individuals may not combine to refuse to sell. And it becomes an offense when they all conspire or all agree together, however unwillingly, not to sell to a particular person. That is brought out by, I think, the Ethyl Gasoline case which we cited; and the principal authority to the contrary is the Colgate case, which is a single trader case, and that simply says that one trader may refuse to sell his products to a person whom he thinks is likely to cut prices.

But this is an agreement on the part of the total source of supply in the country, in effect, not to sell to 4270 Cardiff.

Justice Stephens: Well, are you asking for some further ruling?

Mr. Steffen: Not at the moment. We will proceed to offer certain evidence, and the ruling will come up at that time.

Justice Stephens: Then such rulings as we have made will stand.

Thereupon, GEORGE N. LENCI the witness on the stand at the time of adjournment, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Direct Examination (resumed)

Mr. Bromley: May I, before Mr. Knuff starts, make this statement in connection with my stipulation on page 4544?

Justice Stephens: Just a minute, let me locate that.

Mr. Bromley: I should like the record to show that I make that stipulation subject, of course, to both of my objections: first, to the testimony on the ground that it is immaterial to any change in the complaint; and, second, subject to the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Your stipulation is this:

"I will stipulate now that USG refused to grant the consent which Ebsary requested from it, under its license, for permission on Ebsary's part to sell patented 4271 board, manufactured by Ebsary, to the Cardiff Gypsum Company."

The record may show that your stipulation is made subject to those two objections; and that the objection as to immateriality is overruled, consistently with the reception of the evidence indicated yesterday; and that the evidence is received subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

Mr. Bromley: Thank you.

Mr. Knuff: I believe Your Honor referred to Exhibit 516 and said there was a word or phrase used in that exhibit that wasn't quite clear, and as I understood the Court, the word was "cut-back"—is that correct?

Justice Stephens: I believe that is it.

Mr. Knuff: I can't see the word "cut-back" in the exhibit. I see "cut stock" in there, but I don't see "cut-back".

Justice Stephens: I am sorry, "cut stock" is the word. What is "cut stock"?

The Witness: Cut stock is the board which is cut up from the larger boards which have been damaged in manufacture.

Justice Stephens: I see. Cut stock is what I intended to ask about.

What is a purlin?

The Witness: In a steel building, there are the 4272 heavy girders that carry the main load, and then there are smaller beams running in the opposite direction, and those are generally spoken of as purlins.

Justice Jackson: In the opposite direction or at right angles to the heavy beams?

The Witness: At right angles to the heavy beams, and they are the support for the gypsum board.

Justice Stephens: Thank you.

Mr. Knuff: Yesterday, if Your Honors please, the question came up, in connection with Exhibits 512, 513, 514 and 515, that there was an exhibit referred to in Government's Exhibit 513, a complaint dated April 1, that probably should be included. We have found the complaint that was referred to in Government's Exhibit 513, and Mr. Bromley, I understand, is willing to stipulate that what I now ask to be marked as Government's Exhibit 513-A is the complaint that is referred to in Government's Exhibit 513.

Is that correct, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: Yes.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 513-A for Identification.)

Justice Jackson: Have you copies for us?

Mr. Knuff: I haven't had an opportunity to get them photostated, but they will be photostated sometime 4273 today, and we will have them over for the Court just as soon as we possibly can get them over.

Justice Jackson: All right.

Justice Stephens: What is Mr. Bromley's stipulation?

Mr. Knuff: That Government's Exhibit 513-A for Identification is the complaint referred to in Government's Exhibit 513 for Identification.

Justice Stephens: Ruling was suspended on Exhibits 512, 513, 514 and 515. Are you offering 513-A?

Mr. Knuff: Suppose, for the purpose of clearing the record, I re-offer Government's Exhibits 512, 513, 513-A, 514 and 515.

Justice Stephens: Well, 513-A is not a re-offer. It has never been offered yet. You are now offering that?

Mr. Knuff: I re-offer all but 513-A, and offer 513-A.

Justice Stephens: Is there any objection now except the usual objection?

Mr. Bromley: No, sir.

Justice Stephens: They are received in evidence subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents referred to, marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 512, 513, 513-A, 514, and 515, were received in evidence.)

4274 Justice Jackson: I wonder if you used the correct word. There is no "complaint" mentioned in Exhibit 513. It is the word "letter".

Mr. Knuff: Well, while they do use the word "letter" in Exhibit 513, I think they referred to the complaint.

Justice Jackson: You mean that the letter referred to in Exhibit 513 is Exhibit 513-A?

Mr. Knuff: That is right.

Mr. Bromley: And I so stipulate.

Justice Stephens: Very well. And please furnish the Judges the usual photostats.

Mr. Knuff: Yes, sir.

Mr. Bromley called the Court's attention to the fact that there were quite a number of letters concerning this one transaction, and we have gone through these letters, last night, and we have culled from them quite a number, and Mr. Grover tells me that Government's Exhibits 523 to 527 have been marked for Identification.

We would like at this time to have marked for Identification—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Just a moment, 523 to 527?

Mr. Knuff: That is what Mr. Grover tells me.

Justice Stephens: They have been marked but not yet offered.

4275 Mr. Knuff: That is right.

Now we would like to have marked for Identification Government's Exhibit 528, the same being a letter dated September 18, 1939, addressed to Mr. George N. Lenci, and signed M. Gutman.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 528 for Identification.)

Mr. Knuff: Also, we would like to have marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 529—

Justice Stephens: Just a minute. Before you go any further, I thought the effect of the stipulation was to be that you would not have to introduce those letters.

Mr. Knuff: That wasn't my understanding.

4276 Justice Stephens: If you will read the last statement of the Presiding Judge appearing at page 4544 of yesterday's record, you will note that the idea was to save time.

There I stated:

"In view of this stipulation by Mr. Bromley, you can perhaps, during the evening, eliminate a lot of these exhibits."

The suggestion was made prior thereto, I believe by Justice Jackson, that if possible a stipulation might be entered into to the effect that the United States Gypsum Company did decline to permit Ebsary and other licensees to sell board to the Cardiff Gypsum Company, and the purpose back of that suggestion was to avoid the necessity of introducing the thirty-five letters that Mr. Bromley stated were in the series then under discussion. I thought, Mr. Knuff, that you agreed that the stipulation would save putting in a considerable amount of this evidence.

Mr. Knuff: We did eliminate some last night, and I am not going to offer the ones that we have eliminated.

Justice Stephens: Very well. Thank you.

Where is Exhibit 528?

Mr. Knuff: That is a letter, dated September 28, 1939—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) You mean September 18, 1939?

Mr. Knuff: No, if you will skip three, you will then come to the letter of September 28, 1939.

4277 I am sorry, I misunderstood Justice Jackson's question. Exhibit 528 is the letter dated September 18, 1939, to George N. Lenci from the Cardiff Gypsum Company.

I now ask that there be marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 529, a letter dated September 28, 1939, or rather a copy of a letter addressed to the United States Gypsum Company and signed George N. Lenci. That will be found by passing over the next three letters.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 529, for identification.)

Mr. Knuff: I also would like to have marked—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Let us have a chance to read this as they are presented. We must understand them all; otherwise, we cannot rule intelligently on them.

Proceed.

Mr. Bromley: May it please the Court, I don't understand the purpose of marking these letters, in view of the stipulation. For instance, this last one is just a request of United States Gypsum to grant permission to sell board to Cardiff. I have already agreed that we refused permission.

Mr. Knuff: The stipulation of Mr. Bromley in and of itself is colorless. He is stipulating to the obvious. If Mr. Bromley will stipulate that the refusal of USG to grant this consent was based upon the fact that the Car-4278 diff Gypsum Company had a reputation as a price cutter, then we will not bother with any of these exhibits relating to Cardiff Gypsum Company. But as I say, the stipulation that Mr. Bromley gives, that his company refused to grant the consent, is in and of itself meaningless. We have to show the color and the meaning of what USG did by the exhibits that we are now offering.

Mr. Bromley: I won't stipulate that because I don't think it is the fact.

Justice Stephens: Well, apparently the Court has wasted time in its attempt to save time.

Proceed and introduce your exhibits.

Mr. Bromley: Could I, with the Court's permission, ask counsel with respect to Exhibit 528 whether he is making a part of that exhibit the enclosure which, in my copy at least, is annexed to the letter and referred to in the first paragraph of the letter? I don't understand whether he is including that, or not.

Mr. Knuff: We are.

Justice Stephens: Very well.

Justice Garrett: Is that enclosure the list of points?

Justice Stephens: Yes.

Justice Garrett: So that that then—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing)—has to be treated as part of Exhibit 528.

Mr. Knuff: We would like at this time to have 4279 marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 530, a letter, dated September 29, 1939, addressed to George Lenci and signed Cardiff Gypsum Company, M. Gutman.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 530, for identification.)

Mr. Knuff: We would like to have marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 531, a copy of a telegram dated October 3, 1939, addressed to United States Gypsum Company and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 531, for identification.)

Mr. Knuff: We would like to have marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 532, a letter, dated October 3, 1939, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company and signed United States Gypsum Company, S. F. Bartlett.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 532, for identification.)

Mr. Knuff: In order to arrive at the next exhibit to be marked, just pass the next two pages.

I now ask that there be marked as Government's Exhibit 533 for identification, a memorandum dated October 7, 1939, signed F. W. Allen, Secretary.

4280 (The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 533, for identification.)

Mr. Knuff: We would like to have marked for identification at this time as Government's Exhibit 534, a copy of a telegram, dated October 11, 1939, addressed to the United States Gypsum Company and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 534, for identification.)

Mr. Knuff: We would also like to have marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 535, the original of a letter dated October 12, 1939, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company and signed by the United States Gypsum Company, S. F. Bartlett.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 535, for identification.)

Mr. Knuff: We would also like to have marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 536, a copy of a letter dated October 13, 1939, addressed to the Cardiff Gypsum Company and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 536, for identification.)

4281 Mr. Knuff: We would also like to have marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 537, a letter dated October 14, 1939, addressed to George N. Lenci, and signed Cardiff Gypsum Company, M. Gutman.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 537, for identification.)

Mr. Knuff: We would also like to have marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 538, a copy of a letter dated October 16, 1939, addressed to Mr. S. F. Bartlett, and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company.

(The document referred to was marked Government's Exhibit No. 538, for identification.)

Mr. Knuff: We would like now to have marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 539, a copy of a letter dated October 16, 1939, addressed to the Cardiff Gypsum Company and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company, George N. Lenci, Vice President.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 539, for identification.)

Mr. Knuff: We would also like to have marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 540, a letter dated October 17, 1939, addressed to George N. Lenci, and 4282 signed M. Gutman, Cardiff Gypsum Company.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 540, for identification.)

Mr. Knuff: I would like to have marked for identification at this time as Government's Exhibit 541, a copy of a letter dated October 21, 1939, addressed to the Cardiff Gypsum Company, and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 541, for identification.)

Mr. Knuff: I also would like to have marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 542, a telegram addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company, dated October 21, 1939, and signed United States Gypsum Company.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 542, for identification.)

Justice Stephens: We will take the morning recess at this time, gentlemen.

(Thereupon, a five-minute recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed.)

Justice Stephens: Proceed.

Mr. Knuff: I have just one more exhibit that I want to offer in connection with this Sensibar, or Cardiff.

4283 Gypsum Company, matter.

I ask that there be marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 543—and this will be found immediately following the letter of October 24, 1939, which I am omitting.—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) It is a copy of a telegram?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, a copy of a telegram, your Honor, dated October 25, 1939, addressed to the Cardiff Gypsum Company and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 543, for identification.)

Mr. Knuff: I assume, Mr. Bromley, that there is no question as to the identification of Government's Exhibits 523 to 543 for identification, inclusive?

Mr. Bromley: I don't know anything about them, about most of them.

Mr. Knuff: They were all introduced in the criminal trial; they were all marked as exhibits in the criminal trial, and were all received in the criminal trial.

Will you show Mr. Lenci Government's Exhibit 523 to 543, inclusive, please?

(Thereupon, Government's Exhibits Nos. 523 to 543, inclusive, for identification, were handed to the witness.)

4284 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, will you examine those exhibits, Government's Exhibits 523 to 543, inclusive, and tell us whether or not those exhibits represent the correspondence, telegrams, and a memorandum that was prepared in your office, all of which were occasioned by the offer of Cardiff Gypsum Company to purchase board from the Ebsary Gypsum Company?

Justice Stephens: You might clarify your record, Mr. Knuff, if the Court may suggest, by asking the witness to answer this question, as to whether or not each one of the items which purports to have been sent by the Ebsary Gypsum Company to the Cardiff Gypsum Company was sent; whether each one of the items purporting to have been sent by the Cardiff Gypsum Company to Ebsary, was received by Ebsary; whether each one of the items purporting to have been sent by Ebsary to United States Gypsum, was sent by Ebsary; and whether each one of the items purporting to have been sent by United States Gypsum to Ebsary was received—and then you will have to examine particularly—if he answers those questions in the affirmative—only on Exhibit 533, which does not explain itself.

Mr. Knuff: I will adopt your Honor's suggestion.

Justice Stephens: Thank you. Will you answer that question?

The Witness: I would say "yes" to your Honor's question.

By Mr. Knuff:

4285 Q. With reference to Government's Exhibit 533, will you state, Mr. Lenci, who Mr. F. W. Allen is? A. Mr. F. W. Allen is our Secretary, and he is also in charge of our Credit Department.

Q. And was this memorandum, Exhibit 533, a memorandum that was prepared by Mr. Allen concerning the credit of the Cardiff Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We now offer in evidence, if your Honor pleases, Government's Exhibits 523 to 543, inclusive.

Mr. Bromley: In addition to the usual objection which I make, the defendants object to these exhibits on the ground that they are immaterial to any charge contained in the complaint, and also immaterial in view of the stipulation made at page 4544 of the transcript.

Justice Stephens: The general objection as to immateriality is overruled.

What do you say as to the objection that they are immaterial in view of this stipulation, Mr. Knuff? The Court asks this question only in the interest of saving time. It does seem to the Court, Mr. Knuff, that all these letters prove is that Cardiff wanted to buy board from Ebsary, and that Ebsary wanted to sell board to Cardiff, and that Ebsary tried to get consent from USG, and failed.

Mr. Knuff: They prove the circumstances sur-4286 rounding the asking of that consent from USG. In the first place, USG's consent was asked in late September, 1939, I believe. Numerous telegrams passed between Ebsary and the United States Gypsum Company in connection with that application for a consent. In addition to that, the letters indicate clearly that there was an unusual situation in this case, because as shown by Exhibit 540, the United States Gypsum Company not only didn't act according to the usual manner in which they had heretofore acted, that is to pass upon applications rather promptly, but instead of that, they sent Mr. Bartlett and Mr. Spray, Cranston Spray, down to see Mr. Lenci, and Mr. Cranston Spray and Mr. Bartlett did contact Mr. Lenci, and Mr. Lenci asked Mr. Spray and Mr. Bartlett when the matter would be disposed of, and the reply was, I believe, that it would be taken care of shortly.

Now the usual procedure that the previous consents indicate, is that a manufacturer would ask permission of the licensor to sell a manufacturing distributor. In the course of possibly one, two or three days, that consent would be forthcoming. Here it took a matter of six weeks or over. In the meantime the investigation that USG was making was going on. The failure of USG to give their consent is absolutely meaningless without the background that highlights that consent.

That background is contained in Exhibits 523 to 4287 543, inclusive, coupled with other evidence that will follow.

For instance, the next exhibit will show that when Ebsary telegraphed the U. S. Gypsum Company for permission to sell the Structural Division of the American Cyanamid Company, on the same day that Ebsary sent that telegram the United States Gypsum Company answered that telegram and gave their consent.

Justice Jackson: I don't think that proves a thing at all, except that they were slow in one case, and fast in another, that is all.

Mr. Knuff: Well, as I say, we are going to try to develop from Mr. Lenci that sending Mr. Spray, a member of the Scott, MacLeish & Falk firm in Chicago, was certainly something unusual.

Justice Jackson: Oh, yes, and I think it is also unusual to grant credit to people who have gone through bankruptcy, which is what one of your exhibits shows. Naturally they wanted to make an investigation. But it is immaterial, as I see it, whether it was slow or fast. They eventually refused permission. You say that they had no right to do that, and Mr. Bromley says that they had. So that is all there is to that.

Mr. Knuff: Mr. Bromley says that they had a right to do that under the "single trader" doctrine—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) That is a matter
4288 for argument later on.

Mr. Knuff: That is right. That is the reason we want these exhibits in now.

Justice Stephens: Well, they are received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

The Court of course does not wish to assume to control how counsel on either side of the case shall try their case, but we are so shorthanded with judges in this jurisdiction that it seems a pity to take days of time going into matters that seem obvious, especially in view of the stipulation which covers most of the things that are proved by the exhibits; but perhaps we would save time by not making any suggestions about saving time.

These exhibits are received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 523 to 543, inclusive, were received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, will you refer to Government's Exhibit—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Judge Garrett calls my attention to the fact that I should have stated that these were received in evidence consistently with the ruling on exhibits of a similar character offered yesterday.

4289

Mr. Knuff: There weren't any such rulings yesterday.

Justice Garrett: That is sufficient. I just do not agree with the ruling.

Justice Stephens: I am referring to the ruling in which Judge Jackson and myself indicated that this class of evidence was admissible under paragraph 45 (c) of the complaint, but not under 45 (e), to which Judge Garrett dissented, thinking it inadmissible at all. That is clear now, I think.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, will you refer to Government's Exhibit 540?

At or about that time did you have any conversation with Mr. Bartlett, and with Mr. Spray, concerning your application, or the application of the Ebsary Gypsum Company, for permission to sell board to the Cardiff Gypsum Company? A. I believe I did, because there is a memorandum to that effect on this Exhibit No. 540.

Q. Do you remember what the conversation was? A. Well, first of all—

Mr. Bromley: (Interposing) If he is going to state it, I object to it as immaterial.

The Witness: First of all—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Just a minute. When there is an objection made, don't answer until we get 4290 a chance to rule on it.

The Witness: I am sorry.

Justice Stephens: The objection is overruled.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state, if you can remember, what the conversation was? A. What I was going to say was this. I have known Mr. Bartlett for thirty years, and it was his habit, when he was in New York, to drop in and have a little visit with me. I have known him since about 1907 or 1908—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Mr. Lenci, I don't want to stop you from stating anything that you think is necessary to make a complete answer to the question, but in your good will with reference to making this whole thing clear, you are sometimes taking an unnecessary amount of time. If you will just answer the question as to what that conversation was, then if counsel on either side of the case wish to bring out the habit of Mr. Bartlett to drop in on you, they can do so. If they don't think that is material or necessary, we can save that much time.

The Witness: I was trying to show that this visit was not specifically on this matter.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You did have a conversation with Mr. Bartlett
4291 and Mr. Spray? A. Yes.

Q. Will you tell us what the conversation was? A. The conversation regarding this was very short, to the effect that they had not had time to consider it, and that they were waiting for the Chicago office to pass on it, and as soon as they did, they would let me know.

Q. You had previously made an application to sell the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company at New Haven, Connecticut, and the Atlantic Gypsum Company, had you not? A. Yes.

Q. Now in connection with those applications, did anyone from the United States Gypsum Company come around and talk to you about those applications? A. No.

Q. Or, as to any other application that you made for permission to sell, had the United States Gypsum Company, on any other occasion, except this case, sent a representative around to see you? A. No.

Mr. O'Donnell: I object to that. I think the witness testified that the United States Gypsum Company did not send a representative there to talk to him on this matter, but that Mr. Bartlett just dropped in.

Justice Stephens: Read the last question and answer, and the objection by Mr. O'Donnell.

4292 (Thereupon, the reporter read the record as requested by the Court.)

Justice Stephens: I think that is a matter for cross-examination, Mr. O'Donnell. The objection is overruled.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, did you know the reputation of the Cardiff Gypsum Company in 1939 as to its price policies? A. No, I didn't.

Q. You say that you didn't know what its reputation was? A. No, we didn't operate in the same territory that they did, and we had no occasion to come in contact with them. They worked in the Middle West, and we worked in the East.

Q. At the criminal trial you were asked this question—

Mr. Bromley: (Interposing) What page is that?

Mr. Knuff: Page 618.

Mr. Bromley: I object to his reading from the record. If he wants to refresh his recollection, that is all right.

Justice Jackson: Maybe he is impeaching him, I don't know.

Mr. Knuff: I am going to use this for two purposes, first to refresh his recollection, and then to impeach his testimony.

Justice Jackson: Why not show it to him first, and see if his recollection is refreshed? After that, if you desire to impeach him, that is another thing.

(Thereupon, the transcript referred to was handed to the witness for examination.)

4293 Justice Stephens: Mr. Marshall, show it to defendants' counsel.

Mr. Knuff: I think they have a copy.

Justice Stephens: Thank you. Then show it to the Court, please.

(Thereupon, the transcript referred to was handed to the Court for examination.)

Justice Stephens: Very well, proceed.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, you have read the excerpt from your previous testimony before the court down here, given on October 20, 1941? A. Yes.

Q. Has your memory been refreshed by that? A. Yes.

Q. Now in 1939 did you know the reputation of the Cardiff Gypsum Company concerning its price policies?

Mr. Bromley: That calls for a "yes" or "no" answer, I assume.

Justice Stephens: Just answer that "yes" or "no".

The Witness: That is a hard question to answer "yes" or "no".

Justice Stephens: You can answer "yes" or "no" as to whether you knew the reputation of the Cardiff Gypsum Company with respect to its price policies.

4294 The Witness: Yes, I knew it.

Justice Stephens: Very well.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state whether or not that company had a reputation as being a price cutter?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as immaterial and incompetent because hearsay.

Mr. Knuff: Of course all testimony as to reputation is hearsay.

Justice Stephens: You are trying to prove his reputation as a price cutter, as a circumstance, whether true or not, bearing upon the action of the United States Gypsum Company in refusing permission to Ebsary to sell to the Cardiff Gypsum Company?

Mr. Knuff: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Do you intend to introduce additional evidence which will connect this with United States Gypsum Company's knowledge of this reputation?

Mr. Knuff: Here is a man that knows the reputation of that company—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) I understand your theory of all of this evidence is to prove that the reason that USG refused its consent was because it thought Cardiff was a price cutter, is that right?

Mr. Knuff: We will bring that out—

4295 Justice Stephens: (Interposing) I am asking you—do you intend to add evidence which will connect this with USG's knowledge?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Objection overruled.

Mr. Knuff: Will you read the question, Mr. Reporter?

(Thereupon, the pending question was read by the reporter.)

The Witness: Well, as I said, I had no direct information on it whatever, we never came in contact with them before this time, but through purely hearsay evidence I did know in the past that this company had had some reputation of that kind.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 544, the same being a telegram, dated November 8, 1935.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 544, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I also show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for identification—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Just a moment, Mr. Knuff. I am sorry to interrupt you again but the Court wishes to be sure that its rulings are correct.

4296 Judge Jackson and I, who are in the majority with respect to the admissibility of this class of evidence, have some question as to whether your inquiries as to the reputation of Cardiff go to the item which you sought to prove, to-wit, plaster. I don't think your questions embraced anything about plaster.

Mr. Knuff: That is what they were selling.

Justice Stephens: Why don't you ask the witness what the reputation of this company was with reference to price cutting on plaster, rather than as to its general reputation?

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, when you said that the Cardiff Gypsum Company had a reputation as a price cutter, did you mean that they had a reputation as a price cutter on plaster?

Mr. Bromley: I make the same objection as to materiality and competency.

Justice Stephens: Overruled.

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Knuff: You see at this time, your Honor, Cardiff wasn't selling board at all.

Justice Stephens: I understand that, but we are trying to keep this record as succinct and clear as we can, and I understood that the entire theory of all of this evidence which we have let in, was that Cardiff had a reputa-4297 tion for price cutting on plaster, and your questions didn't go to plaster.

Mr. Knuff: I accept your Honor's suggestion.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. You have before you, Mr. Lenci, Government's Exhibit 544, which purports to be a telegram dated November 8, 1935, addressed to United States Gypsum Company and signed Ebsary Gypsum Company.

I also show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 545, which likewise purports to be a copy of a telegraph dated November 8, 1935, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company, and signed United States Gypsum Company.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 545, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I now want to show you what has been marked as Government's Exhibit 546 for identification, which is a letter, dated November 8, 1935, addressed to the Ebsary Gypsum Company, and signed United States Gypsum Company, C. Henning, Vice President.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 546, for identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Will you state, Mr. Lenci, if the exhibits which 4298 you have before you are copies of telegrams sent or received, as well as the original of a letter that you received from the United States Gypsum Company? A. We received the telegram which is marked Exhibit 544, and we also received the letter which is marked Exhibit 546.

Justice Stephens: You say you received the telegram marked 544?

The Witness: I beg your pardon, we sent the telegram marked 544, and received the letter marked 546.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. And did you receive the telegram, a copy of which is marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 545? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: We now offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 544, 545, and 546.

Mr. Bromley: In addition to the usual objection, which I make, I object on the ground that they are immaterial to any issue in the case, and call attention to the fact that they are dated four years prior to the last series of Cardiff exhibits.

Justice Stephens: What do you say to that, Mr. Knuff? Doesn't that make them pretty remote if they were four years before the Cardiff episode?

Mr. Knuff: I don't think so, your Honor. They haven't any relation to Cardiff except to show how fast the 4299 United States Gypsum Company acted before this. In connection with that, I think it is quite significant. Maybe their weight is not very much, but I think they are entirely relevant.

Justice Stephens: Well, the objection is overruled; they are received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The documents marked as Government's Exhibits No. 544, 545 and 546, were received in evidence.)

Justice Stephens: The record may show, in the interests of saving time, Mr. Bromley, that you have a continuing objection to all of this class of testimony and evidence, although I do not foreclose you from raising special objections, as you see fit.

Mr. Bromley: Thank you, your Honor.

4300 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Now, pursuant to the consent that was given you in 1935, you did sell board to the American Cyanamid Company, to their Structural Gypsum Division; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Did you know Mr. Bartlett of the United States Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Q. In 1938 or in 1939, did Mr. Bartlett complain that the Structural was selling board and lath to dealers at prices that were below the minimum prices specified by USG for its licensees? A. He made an inquiry of that kind at one time. I can't place the date.

Q. Would you say it was in the year 1939, or 1938? A. It was in the latter part of the 1930's.

Q. And pursuant to that did he tell you what to do? A. I think he asked me to investigate—

Q. (Interposing) He asked you to investigate and see whether that was correct or not; is that it? A. I believe so, yes.

Q. And where did this conversation take place, in your office in New York City, that is, the conversation that you had with Mr. Bartlett? A. It was in New York. I 4301 don't remember whether it was in person or whether it was a telephone conversation, I don't remember as to that.

Q. Did you investigate and make inquiry from Structural Gypsum Company as to whether or not Structural was selling below the minimum prices specified by USG for its licensees? A. I asked Mr. McCormick, as I recall it.

Q. When you say you "asked Mr. McCormick", do you mean that you asked him personally, or do you mean that you called him on the telephone? A. I think it was a telephone conversation.

Q. And Mr. McCormick was who? A. He was in charge of sales for the Structural Division of the American Cyanamid Company.

Q. And what did Mr. McCormick tell you, if anything? A. As I recall it, he told me that they were not selling below the board prices which were in effect at that time.

Q. Did you ask Mr. McCormick as to what his future policy would be? A. I don't think so.

Q. Now after Mr. McCormick told you that they were not selling below the prices, did you communicate that information to Mr. Bartlett? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you recall whether you called Mr. Bartlett 4302 on the telephone? A. I don't remember, at the present time.

Q. Could your memory be refreshed as to that? A. It could be yes.

Q. I want to show you, Mr. Lenci, the testimony that you gave before the Court in the District of Columbia on the 20th day of October, 1941, at page 570, beginning with line 13, and ending with line 4 on page 571.

(Testimony referred to handed to the witness for examination; then handed to the Court for examination.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Since reading that testimony, Mr. Lenci, has your recollection been refreshed? A. Yes, it has.

Q. And can you state now that you did communicate the results of your talk with Mr. McCormick, to Mr. Bartlett—is that correct? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Now that is one conversation that you had with Mr. Bartlett in the latter 1930's, as you said. Did you have a second conversation with Mr. Bartlett where Mr. Bartlett complained that Structural was likewise selling board and lath to dealers at prices that were below the minimum prices specified by USG for its licensees? A. An-4303 other conversation separate from this one?

Q. About four months apart. A. I don't remember but one. There might have been two, but I don't remember any other.

Q. I would like to show you, Mr. Lenci, the testimony that you gave before the Grand Jury on April 22, 1940, at page 370, and I will ask you to read from the bottom of page 370, where I have indicated with a pencil mark, down to page 371 where I have likewise indicated with a pencil mark.

(Testimony referred to handed to the witness for examination; then handed to the Court for examination; then handed to Mr. Bromley for examination.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, I wonder if, by chance, your recollection has been refreshed as to whether you had more than one conversation with Mr. Bartlett, or a representative of the USG, wherein they complained that the Structural was selling board and lath to dealers at prices that were below the minimum prices specified by USG for its licensees? A. I am sorry, but at the present time I really can't recollect any other time.

Q. Do you recall, Mr. Lenci, that at that time, Structural Gypsum had a salesman employed by the name of 4304 Stremble? A. Yes.

Q. And do you know how he was paid by Structural? A. Well, I learned that he was a commission salesman.

Q. He was paid on a commission basis? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever complain to Mr. McCormick concerning Mr. Stremble's employment, and ask Mr. McCormick to have Mr. Stremble withdrawn as a commission salesman or do something else about it? A. I know that I complained about him. I don't know that I told him what to do with him, but I did complain about Mr. Stremble's practices.

Q. Can you tell us what you told Mr. McCormick? A. You see, at that time we were selling the Structural Division our gypsum board and lath, and this Mr. Stremble was located in Brooklyn and Long Island, and at the same time we had our own salesmen in that same territory, and we were selling our material to Structural and Stremble was selling our material to our own dealers and rebating to them, and I complained about that.

Q. Can you fix the time when this occurred, approximately? A. I would say in 1938 or 1939.

4305 Q. And did Mr. McCormick communicate further with you as to what happened to Mr. Stremble? A. Yes, he had a talk with Stremble and Stremble admitted that he was giving cash rebates.

Q. And did Mr. McCormick subsequently call you and tell you that? A. He told me that, yes.

Q. And did he further tell you that he had discharged Mr. Stremble? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 547, the same being a letter dated August 20, 1934, addressed to George N. Lenci and signed C. Henning.

(The document referred to was marked Government's Exhibit No. 547 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you receive that communication, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall when the Ebsary Gypsum Company signed the foil board agreement? A. It is my recollection, subject to correction, that it was in the latter part of 1935.

Q. I think it is in evidence, Mr. Lenci, that the 4306 metallized or foil board agreement which the Ebsary Gypsum Company signed was dated August 14, 1935. A. Yes.

Q. Now prior to the time that you signed this foil board agreement, did you purchase foil board, or metallized lath, from any other companies—and I particularly refer to the National Gypsum Company? A. To the best of my recollection, we bought possibly 3 or 4 carloads.

Q. And did you buy from any company other than the Ebsary Gypsum Company? Did you buy from the USG— A. (Interposing) Other than National, you mean?

Q. Yes, other than National, I beg your pardon. Did you buy from USG? A. No, I don't think we did.

Q. When did you start to manufacture foil board, Mr. Lenci? A. Right at the beginning of the year following. That would be 1936.

Q. In 1936? A. Yes.

Q. Now, Mr. Lenci, at what prices did you sell the board that you purchased from the National Gypsum Company? A. Well, I have no record of that, at the present time,—here, rather.

4307 Q. Well, did you sell the board for more or for less than the price specified by USG in its license bulletins?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that on the ground that he says he doesn't know, and it is repetitious.

Mr. Knuff: I am asking if he sold it for more or less.

Justice Stephens: Do you know whether you sold it for more or less?

The Witness: No; I don't know, even, if we had received the USG bulletins at that time.

Justice Stephens: Then the objection is sustained, if he doesn't know.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Could your memory be refreshed as to the prices on that? A. It might be.

Q. I would like to have you refer to a letter, that may subsequently be offered in evidence—it is not now marked for identification—but it is a letter dated March 16, 1935. Will you please look at that letter and see whether or not your recollection could be refreshed as to what prices this board, this foil board, was sold at? A. No, I am sorry, that wouldn't help me. This only gives—

Mr. Bromley: (Interposing) I object to his stating—

4308 The Witness: (Interposing and continuing)—the selling price to us.

Justice Stephens: Don't state what it says; if it doesn't refresh your recollection, that is enough.

Mr. Bromley: May the witness' answer be stricken in so far as it gives the contents, or purports to, of the letter?

Justice Stephens: It may go out.

The Court will take the noon recess.

(Thereupon, at 12:15 o'clock p. m., a recess was taken until 1:45 o'clock p. m., of the same day.)

4309 AFTERNOON SESSION

(The trial was resumed at 1:45 o'clock p. m., pursuant to recess.)

Justice Stephens: You may proceed, gentlemen.

Mr. Steffen: Your Honor, I should like to make a brief statement in regard to the Gloyd deposition—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) I have just returned to you the papers.

Mr. Knuff: Yes, we have them.

Mr. Steffen: We have examined the letters which Mr. Johnston gave us yesterday, concerning the doctors' reports of Mr. Gloyd's condition, and I want to make one or two statements concerning them.

I may say at the outset that we are a little bit surprised that the first one of these letters, being dated January 8, was not turned over to us at that time; and, secondly, the letters of February 18th we did not see until just yesterday.

At the time of the second investigation, or second examination of Mr. Gloyd, if we had had any opportunity at all we would, of course, have had a physican present so that we could have made some sort of a free examination as to his condition. I would say it seems to me that that is shooting from ambush, as Mr. Johnston says, to give us no information at all concerning either the original letter 4310 until just now, or the second examination of Mr. Gloyd's condition.

Now on the matter of Mr. Gloyd's condition, we want to assure the Court that we have no desire whatever to imperil his health, and I think I should say that if we were to take his deposition we would use every effort to save him from any excitement or grueling examination.

I will say that I think these doctors' examinations have probably been more grueling and have taken more time than anything we would do. Mr. Knuff has a very nice bedside manner, and will ask these questions politely and take such time and give him such time as is necessary for the answers.

I want to point out that in these letters, no one said that a deposition, as such, is not to be taken. They say if it is grueling or if it is to be under excitement, and things of that sort; and the doctors don't know what the nature of the examination is going to be. Therefore, they couldn't say that he could not withstand a deposition.

I want to say that one doctor, who we think ranks highest among these doctors, is Dr. Langston, who is a heart specialist, and his opinion is rather clear that the man is 79 years old, that he is, of course, having a failing memory in some degree, but that if the examination was conducted decently and in an orderly manner. he could un-4311 doubtedly answer the questions put to him, giving him necessary rest periods and what-not.

So that, on the evidence that Mr. Johnston submits, it seems to us right there that there is no clear showing that we shouldn't be permitted to take the deposition.

The statement as to failing memory, I notice that each of the doctors explain that his memory on recent events is poor. We don't want recent events. If we can get one witness that can tell us what happened in '25, '26, '27, '28, and '29, we will be very glad.

Justice Jackson: Was Mr. Chism connected with the company then?

Mr. Steffen: That is right.

Justice Jackson: During those years?

Mr. Steffen: Yes.

Justice Jackson: Why can't you get all the information from him that you could from Mr. Gloyd?

Mr. Steffen: Because he didn't handle some of the transactions directly with the USG officials. Our thought on this is that we can save time for the Court. I want to assure you that we would like to finish in two more weeks, and I would like to get this deposition in, in the interim, during the vacation—that is, the one of Mr. Gloyd and the one of Mr. Chism. We can handle them both if we go to Oklahoma City and take them.

4312 Justice Jackson: Couldn't you get the same result with written interrogatories?

Mr. Steffen: Frankly, I would say no. I think written interrogatories are the most hopeless way of getting information that is possible, particularly with a man that perhaps has a failing memory and we might have to prompt, one way or the other.

You will notice that he is a defendant, and we can ask leading questions, and we would like to have the opportunity to prompt and refresh him as the examination would proceed. And written interrogatories simply wouldn't work along that line,—he would say, "I don't remember", and that is all there would be to it. We couldn't say, "We would like to show you such-and-such a paper, and from that does that not refresh your recollection that this happened"—with the idea that we would get the information that we need from a deposition, and I don't see how it is possible under any other basis.

His testimony, I think, is essential to our case, particularly as it pertains to the Texas Company.

I am making that statement simply to indicate that our present disposition is to ask that we be permitted to take the deposition. If Mr. Johnston wants to move to have our motion for a deposition quashed, that is his privilege.

Justice Stephens: Do you wish to be heard, Mr. Johnston?

4313 Mr. Johnston: If the Court please, I will prepare and file a motion so that it can come before the Court.

I had hoped, and still hope, that in considering this motion these letters might be kept out of the record.

Justice Stephens: I don't see how that is possible, Mr. Johnston. The Government has a right to apply for the taking of the deposition. If you want to object to it, you will have to file a motion supported by the usual affidavits and evidentiary matters upon which the motion is based. They may not have to go into the transcript of testimony, but I don't see how they can be kept out of the formal records of the Court. I have read them all, as you kindly submitted them to me, and so have my colleagues read them. There is nothing in them discreditable to Mr. Gloyd at all.

Mr. Johnston: May I say a word off the record?

Justice Stephens: Yes.

(Discussion off the record.)

Justice Stephens: You may proceed, Mr. Knuff.

Thereupon, GEORGE N. LENCI the witness on the stand at the time of recess, resumed his testimony as follows:

Direct Examination (resumed)

Mr. Knuff: May it please the Court, yesterday I inadvertently led Mr. Lenci into making an erro-

4314 neous statement that I had not the intention of leading him to make, and I know that Mr. Lenci didn't have the intention to give the answer which he did, and I would like to correct that.

This is on page 4504, Your Honor. Justice Stephens called my attention to it this morning.

Justice Stephens: Yes.

Mr. Knuff: I don't think this needs to be taken for the record, because I am just going to read the questions and answers of the witness to bring back his recollection.

(Discussion off the record, in which Mr. Knuff read certain questions and answers to the witness from the testimony on February 21, 1944.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Do you recall that testimony? A. Yes.

Q. Now as a matter of fact, at that time, of course, Ebsary was not delivering—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) This isn't going to correct the record, Mr. Knuff, since you didn't have the record show your last few questions in the reading of this. The only way you can correct the record now is to call the attention of the witness, of record, to pages 4504 and 4505 of the transcript.

Mr. Knuff: I think that is correct.

By Mr. Knuff:

4315 Q. Mr. Lenci, I have read to you from your testimony appearing on page 4504 of the transcript beginning with line 14, and extending over to page 4505, line 12.

As a matter of fact, Ebsary was not selling anything to the Paragon Plaster & Supply or to Oakfield or to any of those companies at that time; isn't that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And when you used the word "Ebsary", you meant to use that as an illustration? A. Yes.

Q. So that what you meant by that was that as to any company who was selling Paragon or those companies, the delivery should be made by that selling company to the Oakfield Gypsum Products Company? A. To them at their plant, that is correct, yes.

Mr. Bromley: I don't think that clears it up. The last answer—"to them"—I don't know who "them" means.

Justice Stephens: Who did you mean by "them"?

The Witness: To the Oakfield Gypsum Products Company at the Oakfield Gypsum Products Company's plant in Oakfield, New York.

Justice Jackson: Does that clear that to you, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: No, sir.

Mr. Knuff: Well, let's see if we can clear it up, 4316 then.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. In 1932, or in 1933, Ebsary was not selling either to Oakfield Gypsum Products Company, nor were they selling to the American Hardwall Plaster Company, the Paragon Plaster Company, or the Paragon Plaster & Supply Company, were they? A. We were not.

Q. But you did make a complaint on April 27, 1933, to the effect that when any company, any manufacturing company which manufactured gypsum wallboard, sold board to the American Hardwall Plaster Company and the two Paragon companies, your complaint was that that company should deliver the board to Oakfield; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And when you said yesterday that Ebsary should deliver the board to Oakfield, you meant by the term "Ebsary" any other company which was supplying board to either Oakfield, the American Hardwall Plaster, the Paragon Plaster, or the Paragon Plaster & Supply Company; is that correct? A. Yes, I was just using the name "Ebsary" as an illustration.

Mr. Knuff: Now that is clear to me. I don't know if it is clear to everyone else here.

Justice Jackson: I understand what he said.

Mr. Bromley: I don't want to have my silence
4317 taken as agreement that it is clear, and I will try to have another go at it on cross-examination.

Mr. Knuff: In the list of photostats that Your Honors have before you, the last exhibit that we had identified and offered, I believe, was Exhibit 547, which is a letter dated August 20, 1934.

The next exhibit, which will be 548, appears following the next two photostats, and it is a letter dated April 1, 1935, addressed to George Lenci and signed National Gypsum Company, R.F.B., Vice President. I will ask that it be marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 548.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 548 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I will ask you, Mr. Lenci, if Government's Exhibit 548 was received by the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: I offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 548 and the attachment attached thereto.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Burley was with National, was he?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, Your Honor.

Mr. Bromley: May I see the exhibit? We do not seem to have a copy of the enclosure.

4318 (Exhibit 548 handed to Mr. Bromley.)

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit No. 548, was received in evidence.)

Justice Garrett: Just a moment, please. The letter of April 1, 1935, is Government's Exhibit 548?

Mr. Knuff: Yes.

Justice Garrett: Is the attachment Exhibit 548-A, or what?

Mr. Knuff: It doesn't have any number at all, and possibly the attachment should be numbered 548-A. I thought not, I thought it should be just attached to 548.

Justice Stephens: Has Exhibit 547 been acted upon?

Mr. Knuff: I was under the impression that it had been.

Justice Stephens: How about it, Mrs. Gillette?

Mrs. Gillette: I have no record of it.

Justice Stephens: I think there are a half a dozen exhibits not yet acted upon.

What do your records show?

Mrs. Gillette: Exhibit 546 was received.

Mr. Knuff: I would like to have Government's 4319 Exhibit 548, with the attachment, as one exhibit, but if the Court has any objection to it—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Do as you see fit about it.

Mr. Knuff: We also offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 547.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit No. 547, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, up until the time your company signed the foil board agreement, which was in August, 1935, were you able to purchase foil board at a manufacturer's discount?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as incompetent because calling for a conclusion.

Justice Stephens: Yes, that objection is well taken. You should ask him to state at what price he did purchase it, if he knows, and the Court will conclude whether it was at a manufacturer's discount under the terms of the bulletins.

4320 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Did you buy board, Mr. Lenci, from the National Gypsum Company, foil board? A. We did buy a small quantity from them.

Q. And did you get a discount from the purchase price of that board? A. It is my recollection we got it on some of those purchases.

Q. I mean at the beginning, were you able to buy it at a discount? A. No, by referring to this—may I refer to this?

Q. Yes. A. By referring to the copy of the letter attached to Exhibit 548, I would say we did not get a discount in the beginning.

Q. And later, after the agreement was signed, you were able to get the manufacturer's discount; is that correct? A. I believe so, I am not certain. I don't remember just when it became effective.

Q. Well, let's see if we can refresh your recollection, Mr. Lenci, on that.

I want to show you a letter dated October 8, 1935.

Mr. Knuff: That is in Your Honor's sets of exhibits, being the fourth item following Government's Exhibit 548.

4321 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I want you to read the pencilled notation which that letter bears, and see if your recollection is refreshed, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. And what is your answer to the question now, as to whether or not you were able to get the discount only after the foil board license was signed? A. My answer would be that prior to the time we signed the license, we had to pay the full dealer's price.

Q. And after you signed it, you were able to get the discount? A. I believe we were, yes, sir.

Mr. Knuff: Counting the letter of October 8 as the first letter, if you will leaf forward 8 letters you will come to the next exhibit, which will be Government's Exhibit 549, and which is a letter dated December 28, 1934. I ask that it be marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 549.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 549 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, I want to show you Government's Exhibit 549, which is a letter dated December 28, 1934, ad-4322 dressed to George N. Lenci and signed E. W. Carey, Executive Secretary.

Will you state whether or not that letter was received at the office of the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Mr. Knuff: Mr. Bromley, will you admit that that is Mr. E. W. Carey's signature?

Mr. Bromley: No; that did not come from our files, did it?

Mr. Knuff: No, that came from the Ebsary Gypsum Company's files.

Mr. Bromley: I don't know anything about it.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Do you know Mr. Carey's signature? A. Not very well, no, I am sorry.

Q. Was that letter received in the usual course of business? A. I believe so, it has our "Received" stamp on it.

Mr. Knuff: We offer in evidence Government's Exhibit No. 549.

Mr. Bromley: We make only the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document referred to, marked as Govern-4323 ment's Exhibit No. 549, was received in evidence.)

Justice Jackson: Does that include the list which follows?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, Your Honor.

Justice Jackson: Then that exhibit consists of three pages?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, it consists of three pages.

Justice Stephens: Proceed.

Mr. Knuff: The next exhibit, if Your Honors please, is Exhibit No. 550, which is a letter dated December 28, 1934, addressed to Mr. Arthur R. Black, and signed E. W. Carey.

I ask that it be so marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit No. 550.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 550 for Identification.)

Mr. Knuff: I now ask that there be marked for Identification as Exhibit 551—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Has Exhibit 550 an attachment?

Mr. Knuff: Exhibit 550 is the identical letter, in so far as the substance of the letter is concerned, as Exhibit 549, but it is addressed to Mr. Black.

4324 Justice Stephens: But do you include in the exhibit the attachment?

Mr. Knuff: We do, Your Honor.

Justice Jackson: Then let the record show that Exhibit 550 consists of three pages.

Mr. Knuff: Yes.

I would like to have marked for Identification Government's Exhibit 551, consisting of three pages, being a letter dated December 28, 1934, addressed to Mr. F. G. Krumholtz, Treasurer, and signed E. W. Carey.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 551 for Identification.)

Mr. Knuff: I would like to have marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 552, a one-page letter, dated December 28, 1934, addressed to Mr. M. H. Baker and signed E. W. Carey, Executive Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 552 for Identification.)

Mr. Knuff: I now offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 550, 551 and 552.

Justice Stephens: What is the last one received, Mrs. Gillette?

Mrs. Gillette: Exhibit 549.

4325 Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection; and in addition, we object because they are incompetent, on the ground that there is no identification.

Justice Stephens: Exhibits 550, 551 and 552 have not yet been identified. There is no testimony that this is the signature of Mr. Carey. Exhibit 552 is addressed to Baker of National Gypsum Company; 551 to Krumholtz of Universal; and 550 to Black of American—

Mr. Knuff: (Interposing) In connection with Government's Exhibits 550 to 552, inclusive, I think the exhibits identify themselves. Government's Exhibit 549 was offered in evidence and was received, subject to the usual objection. If you will note Government's Exhibit 549 and compare it with Government's Exhibit 550, they are identical, word for word. Government's Exhibit 550 was obtained by us, under subpoena, from the files of the American Gypsum Company, and as I say, it is word for word, signature and everything else, identical with Government's Exhibit 549.

The same is true as to Government's Exhibit 551. It is likewise identical, word for word, with Government's Exhibit 549.

Exhibit 552 is identical, word for word, with Government's Exhibit 549. Government's Exhibit 552 differs from Government's Exhibits 550 and 551 only to the extent that in 552 we do not have the attachments that 4326 were attached to Government's Exhibits 550 and 551. Otherwise, it is identical with 549.

Justice Stephens: What are you offering to prove by them, that they were received by Mr. Black and by Mr. Krumholtz, and by Mr. Baker?

Mr. Knuff: We are offering them to prove that they were sent by the Board Survey Company to the persons mentioned in the letters themselves, and came from their files.

Justice Stephens: Let me make an inquiry. American is in the background of Certain-teed. Who is speaking for Certain-teed here today? Is there anyone representing Mr. Adams?

Mr. Knuff: American is in the background of Celotex, if I may correct you.

Justice Stephens: That is right, I was looking at the American Cement Plaster. I misspoke myself.

What do you say to that, Mr. Oliver, concerning Celotex? Are you in a position to admit that Exhibit 550 was received by American?

Mr. Oliver: No, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: You are not?

Mr. Oliver: No.

Justice Stephens: Are you in a position to admit that it was taken from the files of American or of Celotex?

Mr. Oliver: I don't know that. They were taken 4327 long before I had anything to do with the case.

Justice Stephens: What about National? Mr. Finck, what about this letter to Mr. Krumholtz?

Mr. Finck: I am only in a position to state that that did come from the files of the National Gypsum Company.

And also, the letter addressed to Universal, I believe, came from our files. No, it did not, I am sorry.

Justice Stephens: No, that wouldn't be likely.

How about 552, Mr. Finck, addressed to Mr. Baker?

Mr. Finck: That is the one I was speaking about. That came from the files of the National Gypsum Company.

Justice Stephens: I was asking you about 551, addressed to Krumholtz.

Mr. Finck: That did not come from our files.

Mr. Knuff: We got that from the files of National. It came from the files of National on May 3, 1940. It was in Container Box No. 12. It was Item No. 20, and it was taken out by Mr. Wise.

Justice Stephens: Let's pass on these one at a time.

The first one is Exhibit 550. Mr. Oliver, for Celotex, refuses to concede that this was received by or that it was found in the files of American Gypsum Company, and there is no identification of the signature as that of E. W. Carey, and therefore no proof that it was sent or received, or who it was sent or received by.

4328 I don't see how you expect the Court to pronounce that identified.

Mr. Knuff: Whether it was sent or received makes no difference. It is still a declaration of the person who wrote it.

Justice Stephens: But it isn't proved that it was written by Mr. Carey. There is no evidence before the Court to that effect.

Mr. Knuff: There is no question as to Mr. Carey's signature on the previous document, Exhibit 549.

Justice Stephens: You are asking the Court to sit as handwriting experts and making witnesses out of the Judges. You can't do that. You will have to identify it.

Isn't Mr. Carey living, or is he not?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, he is, and is under subpoena. He has been here for days and days.

Mr. Knuff: He has not been here under subpoena for days and days at all.

Justice Stephens: Let's not have any acrimonious debate. We can make our affirmances and denials in a temperate way. Is he under subpoena?

Mr. Knuff: He is under subpoena, but he is not here under subpoena.

Justice Stephens: Is he in the court room?

Mr. Bromley: Not now.

4329 Justice Stephens: Is he in the city?

Mr. Bromley: Not now.

Justice Stephens: If he is under subpoena, he can be obtained, undoubtedly, and these things can be put in in the regular way. There certainly is no identification as to Exhibit 550. The objection to that is sustained.

Now as to Exhibit 551, that, you say, you are not prepared to admit, Mr. Finck, was taken from the files of Universal?

Mr. Fink: There is nothing on the letter to indicate that it came from our files, but if Mr. Knuff says that we sent it to them, I will agree to that.

Justice Stephens: We are of the view that none of these three exhibits are identified, 550, 551 and 552. You can call Mr. Carey to identify the signatures and testify, if he can, that they were sent out as they purport to have been sent out. You may re-offer them when they are properly identified.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 553, the same being a letter dated December 31, 1934, addressed to George N. Lenci, and signed E. W. Carey, Executive Secretary.

Will you state whether or not that letter was received at the office of the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A.

4330 Yes.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 553 for Identification.)

Mr. Knuff: I would like to have marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 554, a letter dated December 31, 1934, addressed to Mr. Arthur R. Black and signed Board Survey Company, E. W. Carey, Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 554 for Identification.)

Mr. Knuff: I am not unmindful of Your Honors' former ruling, but in order to get this on the record and to keep the numbering consecutive, I now offer in evidence Government's Exhibits 553 and 554.

Justice Stephens: Is there any objection to Exhibit 553 except the usual objection?

Mr. Bromley: No, sir.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit No. 553, was received in evidence.)

Justice Stephens: Do you object to Exhibit No. 554?

4331 Mr. Bromley: Yes, sir, as incompetent, and the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: The objection is sustained on the ground that it is not yet identified. It may be re-offered if it can be identified. Let me read it, Mr. Knuff.

Mr. Knuff: It is the same as Exhibit 553, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: You may proceed.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I show you, Mr. Lenci, what has been marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 555, the same being a letter dated December 31, 1934, addressed to George N. Lenci, and signed E. W. Carey, Executive Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 555 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Was that letter received in the office of the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Justice Jackson: Are you offering that?

Mr. Knuff: I am going to offer 555, 556, and some more, later on.

Justice Jackson: All right.

Mr. Knuff: I would like to have marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 556, a letter dated De-4332 cember 31, 1934, addressed to Mr. Arthur R. Black, and signed E. W. Carey, Executive Secretary.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 556 for Identification.)

Mr. Knuff: I would also like to have marked for Identification as Government's Exhibit 557, a letter dated December 31, 1934, addressed to R. F. Burley, and signed E. W. Carey, Exhibit 557 has attached to it a carbon of a reply, dated January 5, 1935, addressed to Mr. E. W. Carey and signed National Gypsum Company, Vice President.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 557 for Identification.)

Mr. Knuff: I would like at this time to offer Government's Exhibits 555, 556, and 557.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection to Exhibit 555.

Justice Stephens: Exhibit 555 is received in evidence, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit No. 555, was received in evidence.)

Mr. Bromley: With respect to Exhibits 556 and 4333 557, we make the usual objection, and also object on the ground that they are incompetent because not identified.

Justice Stephens: The objection with respect to incompetency is sustained. The exhibits may be re-offered if they can be identified.

Mr. Knuff: If Your Honors will please turn over five photostats, you will come to a letter dated May 10, 1935, which is a letter addressed to George N. Lenci and signed Board Survey Company, E. W. Ca[illegible] Secretary. I will ask that that be marked for Identifica[illegible] as Government's Exhibit 558.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 558 for Identification.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, was that letter received in the office of the Ebsary Gypsum Company, and did it come from the Ebsary Gypsum Company's files? A. Well, it is a copy of a letter, and, there isn't anything to show that we did receive it. There is no identifying stamp on it.

Mr. Knuff: I don't know whether the Court would take my word for it or not, but I can say that according to the system that we use in the Department, the markings we use in the Department, that letter was received from 4334 the Ebsary Gypsum Company, and came from their files. That is evidenced by the reverse side of the letter, where it is marked "E-9". That indicates to us that it came from the Ebsary Gypsum Company's files, and it was in the 9th container.

I don't know whether that will be satisfactory to the attorneys for the defense or not.

Justice Stephens: The Court has no question, of course, about your word, Mr. Knuff, but we can all be mistaken, and if there is a dispute about it the Court has to rule upon it on the basis of the dispute.

Are you still in the state of mind of not knowing whether that came from your files or not?

The Witness: I didn't have a chance to read the letter itself. I just looked for the identification marks.

Justice Stephens: Read it.

(Exhibit examined by the witness.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Would you say, Mr. Lenci, in view of what I have told you, that that was received from your company—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) By your company, you mean?

Mr. Knuff: It was received by us from his company.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. (Continuing) —that that was received from 4335 the Ebsary Gypsum Company's files? A. I really don't remember the letter itself, but I am willing to take your statement that it did come from our files.

Mr. Knuff: We offer in evidence Government's Exhibit 558.

Mr. Bromley: We make the usual objection.

Justice Stephens: Received, subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

(The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit No. 558, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, I want to direct your attention now to some practices that were probably governed by the license bulletins, and in particular I want to inquire as to what was the practice of the Ebsary Gypsum Company.

When you sell a truckload of board f.o.b. dealer's warehouse at the minimum price, do you hire the dealer's truck to haul the board from your mill? A. No, we do not.

Q. Do you know what the practice of other companies is under the same situation? A. Only just by observation.

Q. Do the other companies have the same practice?

4336 Mr. Bromley: I object to that as incompetent because based on hearsay and calling for a conclusion.

Mr. Knuff: He said "by observation".

Justice Jackson: I am wondering how many of the other companies' activities he observed?

Justice Stephens: What do you mean by saying you knew it "by observation"?

The Witness: Well, the biggest trucking area is the metropolitan New York area, and I have seen trucks delivering products of the other manufacturers.

Justice Jackson: All of the other manufacturers?

The Witness: The two principal competitors, in fact three of our competitors.

Justice Stephens: If you have seen it personally, you can tell about it.

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Do they have the same practice? A. Yes, they all contract with the trucking companies.

Q. Was that practice o ours based upon any provision in the license bulletins of USG? A. No.

Q. Well, now, suppose we take a look at Government's Exhibit 37, and look at page 531.

(Government's Exhibit 37 handed to Witness.)

4337 By Mr. Knuff:

Q. It is the last paragraph on the page, under "Rebates", and at about the 6th line down.

Mr. Lenci, will you look at that bulletin and see if you care to change your answer? A. No.

Justice Stephens: Just a minute, please. Do not answer until we read it.

The Witness: I am sorry.

(Exhibit examined by the Court.)

Justice Jackson: You answered the question "No."?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. I don't know what you mean by "no". A. You asked if I wanted to change my answer after looking at this exhibit.

Q. Yes. And you say you don't care to—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) The answer was no; isn't that what you said?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Jackson: Go ahead.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. When you say that your answer is no, do you mean by that that you never desired to hire the customers'
4338 trucks? A. The question of desire didn't enter into it. We had an established practice in our own business, in our own company. We had warehouses for years before we ever signed a board license contract, and we had continuing arrangements with trucking companies in Newark and in New York, and when we took on the board business we simply continued on with these same trucking contractors, or similar trucking contractors. So the bulletin made no change whatever in our practice.

Q. Mr. Lenci, when you sell board to a dealer at the minimum prices and that board turns out to be of poor quality, do you make any adjustment on the price of that board before you refer it to USG and get their consent?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as assuming facts not in evidence, to-wit, that he did refer it to USG.

Mr. Knuff: I am asking him for his practice, Your Honor, the practice of this company.

Justice Stephens: Read the question.

(The question was read by the reporter.)

Justice Stephens: The question assumes that he does refer it to USG. Therefore, it assumes a fact not in evidence. You can ask him whether he does.

Mr. Knuff: Suppose I break the question down.

Justice Jackson: That is it.

By Mr. Knuff:

4339 Q. Do you ever make any adjustments on board of poor quality? A. We have had to from time to time.

Q. Now then, whenever you make those adjustments, is it your practice to get the consent of USG before the adjustment is made? A. No, the way we actually—

Mr. Bromley: (Interposing) I object. That is an answer—"No".

Mr. Knuff: He is entitled to explain his answer.

Justice Jackson: I think he is.

Of course, you can get his explanation by just another question.

Justice Stephens: I suppose it goes back to the previous practice, Mr. Bromley, that a non-responsive answer is only objectionable—unless upon the ground of incompetency, irrelevancy and immateriality—in the mouth of the examining lawyer; so that objection will be overruled. But you should, so far as possible, in the interest of time, answer the questions directly, and you can be quite sure, Mr. Lenci, that either Mr. Knuff or Mr. Steffen or Mr. Bromley will bring out the whole truth before you are let off the witness stand.

Justice Jackson: You are doing a remarkably fine job anyway.

4340 The Witness: I was trying to give some additional information that would throw light on both sides.

Justice Stephens: We are not criticizing you at all.

The Witness: I will try to keep quiet.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. What is your practice? A. At the end of each month when we filed our royalty reports, if there were any settlements during the month for bad material, we attached to that a copy of the credit memorandum which was given to our customers, which showed an explanation as to why the credit was necessary.

Q. Do you know whether USG ever investigated the accuracy or the correctness of that credit memoranda? A. I have no way of knowing.

Q. Did they always allow your claims? A. Yes.

4341 Mr. Bromley: Just to make that clear, didn't this have to do only with royalties?

Justice Jackson: That is what you meant, isn't it? You didn't have to pay a royalty on the board, or so much of the board as was required to make the adjustment?

The Witness: That is right, but we had to file this information to show if we had made any credits for damaged material.

Justice Jackson: Would that make your royalty less?

The Witness: It would also affect our royalty, yes.

Mr. Knuff: My question, if your Honor please, was based upon the provision in Government's Exhibit 37, at page 534, beginning at the third line from the bottom of that page, "or through allowance or adjustments on board which the customer", and so forth.

Justice Jackson: Well, he is telling you what they did.

Mr. Knuff: That is right.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, when you sold board in pool or mixed cars in certain areas, for instance the Metropolitan New York-New Jersey area, was it your practice to specify the minimum amount that would be sold to anyone in the pool car? A. No.

Q. You didn't specify the minimum amount? A. No.

4342 Q. Mr. Lenci, if you had knowledge that orders for less than straight carload quantities of board had been pooled for the purpose of obtaining the carload price, would you have sold the board at the carload price?

Mr. Oliver: I object to that question as speculative.

Justice Jackson: Do you understand that question?

The Witness: No.

Justice Jackson: I don't understand the question either, Mr. Knuff.

Mr. Knuff: I will repeat it.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. If you had knowledge that orders for less than straight carload quantities of board had been pooled for the purpose of obtaining a carload price, would you have sold that board to the persons pooling the order, at the carload price?

Justice Stephens: Do you understand the question?

The Witness: It isn't very clear.

Justice Jackson: I don't understand it.

Justice Stephens: Pooled by whom, Mr. Knuff?

Mr. Knuff: The purchasers of board. Under the license bulletins, if three persons pooled their purchases to buy a carload of board, and if the manufacturer had knowledge that that was done for the purpose of obtaining the carload price, then that was considered by the licensor as a violation of the bulletins.

4343 Justice Jackson: Now your explanation is quite clear. Ask the witness.

Mr. Knuff: That is what I have done.

Justice Jackson: Not that way.

The Witness: Well, that is just a little different.

Mr. Oliver: I object. I think it is asking entirely for speculation. The question involves two assumptions. It seems to me that here we are trying to get the facts, not assumptions.

Justice Stephens: The objection is sustained to the question as asked. In view of all this explanation, possibly you can re-ask the question and the witness will understand it.

Mr. Knuff: Mr. Lenci, if three people pooled their orders—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Can't you get at it in a shorthand way, by asking this witness what the practice was that he observed with respect to pooled cars, if he knew about them?

Mr. Knuff: I can.

Justice Stephens: Do that.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. What was the practice that you observed in the industry with respect to pooled cars? A. That depends on what territory the pooled car was going into, and during what period of time, because the rules were different in different territories, and they varied during this fifteen-4344 year period.

Justice Stephens: Can you take any particular period and give an illustration of it to counsel?

The Witness: Yes. Early in the period, when there was a differential between carload prices and less than carload prices, which were either delivered by truck or mixed cars in the metropolitan areas, there was a differential of $2. Therefore, if three customers got together and fixed up a carload between them, and if we knew that those three customers were doing that for the purpose of taking advantage of the $2 differential, I would look upon that as a violation.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. And you wouldn't have sold them the car? A. No.

Q. And did you base your action upon the provisions of the license bulletins as you understood them? A. As I recall it, there was something to that effect in the early bulletins.

Q. Was it your practice, Mr. Lenci, to sell and deliver board in pool truckloads, or is there such a thing in the gypsum industry as a pool truck? A. Yes.

Q. There is? A. As I recall it, the rule is that the truckload had to have the minimum quantity specified for 4345 truckloads during whatever period of time it took place. In other words, the bulletins changed their minimums from time to time. If the minimum truckload was 7,500 square feet, and if you had a pool truckload, you could have 7,500 feet of board on it, and you could fill out with other materials. But you could not go below the 7,500 feet, as I recall it.

Q. Isn't that a mixed truck that you have in mind there? A. Speaking for our company, we never shipped any pool truckloads.

Q. Is there such a thing under the license bulletins—can you sell a pool truckload of gypsum board?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as incompetent, because calling for a conclusion. The bulletins speak for themselves.

Justice Stephens: Sustained. You may ask him what his practice was, and what his understanding was.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. What was the practice of the Ebsary Gypsum Company with reference to selling pool truckloads of gypsum board?

Mr. Oliver: I object because the witness has already answered that he didn't sell pool truckloads.

Justice Jackson: He can answer it again, although he did say that.

The Witness: I don't think we ever sold pool truckloads.

Justice Stephens: Announce the recess.

(Whereupon, a five-minute recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed.)

4346 Mr. Knuff: I have here, your Honor, four samples of board that I would like to have marked for identification as Government's Exhibits 45, 46, 47 and 48, respectively. That is not a misstatement—I mean 45, 46, 47 and 48.

Justice Stephens: Are they vacant numbers?

Mr. Knuff: We left the numbers from 1 to 100 to be used for certain classes of things such as contracts and exhibits of this nature. Then from 100 on are the letters and so forth which the witnesses are identifying.

Justice Stephens: All right.

(The samples of board referred to were marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 45 to 48, inclusive, for identification.)

Mr. Knuff: I would also like to have marked for identification two strips of tape, as Government's Exhibits 49 and 50, respectively.

(The strips of tape referred to were marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 49 and 50, respectively.)

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Mr. Lenci, I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 45. Will you tell us what that is, please? A. That is a sample of our wallboard.

4347 Justice Stephens: A sample of what?

The Witness: Wallboard.

Justice Jackson: Made by the Ebsary Company?

The Witness: Made by the Ebsary Gypsum Company.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Can you tell us when that sample was made? A. No, because I took that out of our stock. It was made within the last year or so.

Q. Is it from your regular production? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit No. 46, and ask you if you will tell us what that is. A. That is a sample of our metallized lath, or foil lath made by the Ebsary Gypsum Company.

Q. Can you tell us when it was made? A. About the same time as the other.

Q. And it is from your regular production? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit No. 47. Will you state for the record what that is, please? A. That is a sample of the regular gypsum lath made by the Ebsary Gypsum Company.

Q. Can you tell us when it was made? A. Within 4348 the last two or three years.

Q. And is it from your regular production? A. Yes.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit 48. Will you state for the record what that is? A. That is a sample of the perforated gypsum lath made by the Ebsary Gypsum Company.

Q. And made within the last one or two years? A. Yes.

Q. And it is from your regular production? A. That is right.

Q. I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit No. 49. Will you tell us what that is? A. Exhibit 49 is a sample of the tape—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) Tape?

The Witness: Tape—that we use to bind our wallboard in pairs for shipment.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. And does that tape have on it any patent markings? A. Yes, it has.

Q. And how long have those patent markings, how long have those same patent markings, been on that tape, or tape of that character, Mr. Lenci? A. Well, I have forgotten when they were revised the last time, but 4349 they have been on for six or eight years, approximately.

Q. The same markings? A. These markings, yes. Prior to that I believe there were different ones, and then they were corrected at some date during the latter 1930's.

Justice Jackson: You mean that the patent numbers were changed?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Knuff:

Q. Are those numbers that appear on that tape the only patent numbers that you are using? A. That I don't know; these are the patent numbers which we show, and I believe they were given to us by the United States Gypsum Company as being the proper patent numbers to put on the tape.

Q. Mr. Lenci, I show you what has been marked for identification as Government's Exhibit No. 50. Will you tell us what that is? A. Exhibit 50 is the tape that we use to bind our lath together in bundles of six, for convenience in handling.

Q. That tape has on it certain patent numbers, does it not? A. Yes.

Q. And how long have those— A. (Interposing)
4350 My answer to that would be the same as to the previous question.

Justice Stephens: You bundle your board in 2's and your lath in 6's?

The Witness: That is right.

Mr. Knuff: We can obtain photostats, if your Honor pleases, of the tape. I don't know how we can get photostats of the board.

Justice Jackson: You needn't mind that, we can see them.

Mr. Knuff: Would you like to have photostats of the tape?

Justice Stephens: I don't think that is necessary, we can look at them.

Mr. Knuff: We are not offering these at this time, we are simply having them marked for identification.

You may cross examine the witness.

Justice Stephens: Are you ready to cross examine now, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, your Honor.

Could I see the samples of the board and the tape, please?

(Thereupon, Government's Exhibits Nos. 45 to 50, inclusive, for identification, were handed to Mr. Bromley.)

Justice Stephens: Before you proceed—it occurs to the Court, Mr. Knuff, that unless there is some good reason why you don't want to offer these exhibits, the two pieces of tape and the four pieces of board, at the present time, that it might be well to offer them now because otherwise the witness might have to be recalled for further cross examination.

Mr. Steffen: We would rather not offer them now, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Very well.

Cross Examination

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Mr. Lenci, your company has a trade name for its wallboard, doesn't it? A. Yes.

Q. What is that trade name? A. Wallrite.

Q. One word, is it? A. One word.

Q. And Government's Exhibit 45 for identification is a small sample of your wallboard which, as marketed, comes in much larger sizes? A. That is correct.

Q. And the sizes in which you market it are shown on the red, blue and white advertising which is pasted on Government's Exhibit 45 for identification? A. There are sizes mentioned on there; I don't know whether that is a complete list, or not. I haven't checked that recently.

Q. Well, at least the product that is marketed as Wall-rite by your company, comes in lengths of 6, 7, 8, 9, 4352 10 and 12 feet, doesn't it? A. That is correct.

Q. And is either 32 inches or 48 inches wide? A. That is right.

Q. And it is either a quarter of an inch or three-eighths of an inch in thickness? A. Or one-half inch, yes.

Q. Or one-half inch? A. Yes.

Q. And it is made so that there is a side to be turned into the room, that is which would constitute the wall, the room side of the wall, and that is the side on which the exhibit number appears, isn't that so? A. That is correct.

Q. And that is the side which stands either as a finished wall, after it is erected, or which is painted for purposes of decoration, isn't that right? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. Now they don't ever put wallpaper over this, do they? A. Sometimes.

Q. Sometimes they put wallpaper over it? A. Yes.

Q. But it is so manufactured that it can constitute the finished wall itself without any wallpaper and without any paint? A. That is correct.

4353 Q. Although it can be either painted or wallpapered? A. That is right.

Q. Do you make this wallboard with a recessed edge so that the seams can be concealed? A. Yes, we do.

Justice Jackson: Is that a tongue-and-groove or a lap?

The Witness: It is neither one. Taking the cream face of the board, there is a slight depression parallel with the long edges, and that is filled with a thin plaster composition and a tape over it, which finishes flush with the surface of the board. That is known as a recessed-edge board.

Justice Jackson: I see.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. And when that tape and finisher is applied, the eye cannot detect any seam at all in the finished wall? A. We hope not.

Justice Jackson: That is the intention anyhow, isn't it?

The Witness: Yes, that is the intention.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Coming to Exhibit 46 for identification, that is a sample of metallized lath, you say? A. That is correct, yes, sir.

Q. And again this product, as well as plain lath, is sold under your trade name, in this case, Lathrite? A. That is correct.

4354 Q. One word? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is a sample of the product which, as marketed, comes in a larger size? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. And about what is the size in which it is marketed? A. The standard size for gypsum lath is 16 inches by 48 inches.

Q. This Exhibit 46 with the foil backing, is designed for the purpose of, in ordinary usage, having the foil backing next to the studding, isn't it? A. That is correct.

Q. This gray paper surface underneath the advertisement is on the inside or room side of the wall, and is the surface to which the plaster coat is applied? A. That is correct.

Q. And the purpose of the foil is to reflect both heat and cold so as to achieve an insulating result, isn't that so? A. That is correct.

Justice Stephens: How can you reflect cold? Cold is the absence of heat.

The Witness: I had rather not go into that. (Laughter.) There is a perefectly good answer for that, but I am not enough of an engineer to give it to you.

Justice Stephens: It sounds to me like reflecting dark.

4355 The Witness: Well, it doesn't reflect—maybe I had better not start this. (Laughter.)

Justice Stephens: Very well.

Mr. Bromley: When I said "reflect"—you are familiar with the simple test, as you not, where, if you hold this surface up towards the sun or toward a blast of cold air, and hold your hand in front of it, you can feel it come back at you, can't you?

The Witness: That is true.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Very definitely? A. Yes.

Q. The theory is that this foil will not let either a blast of cold air or a blast of hot air through the foil because it reflects it back in the direction from which it came? A. Yes.

Q. Now Exhibit 47 for identification again is marked Lathrite, but this is a sample of ordinary lath which is used generally in a size larger than this sample, for the purpose of serving as the plaster base, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. And is it true that this ordinary lath, of which Exhibit 47 for identification is a sample, again comes in a size, generally, 16 by 48 inches? A. Yes, sir.

4356 Q. And with respect to this ordinary lath, it doesn't make any difference which side is toward the interior of the room? A. They are both the same.

Q. Plaster will adhere to either side with equal facility? A. That is right.

Q. And is it true that this lath, when it is erected on the studding, is nailed so that the four-foot dimension runs horizontal to, or parallel with the floor? A. That is correct.

Q. Exhibit 48 for identification is another sample of your product, Lathrite, but this time in perforated form? A. That is right.

Q. It comes in the same size as the plain lath, does it not, 16 by 48 inches? A. Yes.

Q. And its use is similar, in that plaster will adhere to either side? A. Yes.

Q. And it is nailed up on the studding with the four-foot dimension in a horizontal position? A. That is right.

Q. And the holes through which the plaster goes, give the plaster coat added strength so that it can resist fire? A. It gives an additional key to the plaster.

4357 Q. When a dealer, having purchased these products from you, resells to the contracting or consuming trade, does he sell this board under your trade name? A. I don't quite get your question. Do you mean does the consumer ask for it by name?

Q. Well, does the consumer ask for it, or the dealer offer it, by name? A. It may be either way. Some dealers will feature our particular line. Other dealers will carry a line of several manufacturers. On the other hand, there are certain customers who will demand one particular manufacturer's product from the dealer.

Q. When you say "customers" you mean contractors or consumers? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: What I understood to have been asked of you was whether or not, if this board was sold by you to a dealer, and the dealer resold to a consumer, he sold it in this form under your trade name?

Justice Jackson: Does he sell it under the name of Lathrite when he sells your product?

The Witness: The chances are he just calls it gypsum lath.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Well, you conduct advertising, don't you, to advertise your trade names, Wallrite and Lathrite? A. To a 4358 certain extent. We don't do a great deal of advertising.

Q. Now when you commenced to manufacture this board, back in 1928, you made it with the edges open or raw all the way around, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And it is true, is it not, that in 1928 and 1929 you found this so-called open-edge board to be an unsatisfactory product for several reasons? A. That is correct.

Q. One of those reasons was, was it not, that it was expensive to make, and it was expensive to make because it was wasteful to make, isn't that so? A. That is correct.

Q. And the waste came from the fact that after it had been fabricated and spread out on this traveling belt of the board machine, a portion of it had to be trimmed off by these revolving saws, of which you spoke, on each side? A. That is correct.

Q. And that resulted in the accumulation, with some rapidity, of great piles of raw edges that were sawed off from the sides, did it not? A. Yes.

Q. That waste was unreclaimable, wasn't it? A. We couldn't use it for anything else whatever.

4359 Q. Didn't you also find, in 1928 and 1929, that the dealer trade demanded the closed-edge board, which was then being manufactured by certain of your competitors? A. Yes, we did.

Q. And therefore wouldn't you say that it became increasingly difficult, after you started to manufacture open-edge board, to sell it? A. It was extremely hard.

Q. At page 4045 of the record, between lines 9 and 17, you testified with respect to a meeting in Chicago in May, 1929, which you attended.

You received a draft of the proposed license from USG prior to the time that you went out to Chicago in May, 1929, did you not? A. Yes, that is my recollection.

Q. Now isn't it the fact that before you left to go out to Chicago in May, 1929, Mr. Ebsary and the rest of the responsible officers and directors of your company had determined and decided to take a license from USG? A. We very definitely realized that we would have to have a license in order to make a board which we could manufacture economically and which we could market.

Q. Hadn't you reached that decision, however, before you left for Chicago in May, 1929? A. Yes.

4360 Q. When you went out there, didn't you take your lawyer along with you for the purpose of attending to the legal details and putting the contract into a form acceptable to your company? A. That is correct.

Q. Now your lawyer was Harlan W. Rippey, was he not? A. Yes.

Q. He later was United States District Judge for the Western District of New York, wasn't he? A. Yes.

Q. Prior to that time he had his office and practice in Rochester, New York, didn't he? A. Yes.

Q. And later on he became, and is at the present time, a judge of the Court of Appeals of the State of New York? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: Is that correct?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Bromley, I don't find on page 4045 any reference to a license agreement. I call your attention to that only for the purpose of keeping the record straight.

Mr. Bromley: I inferred that from the fact that in line 6 the answer refers to a meeting of May 21st and May 22nd, 1929, the testimony being that at that time the license agreement was signed, that is on May 22nd.

4361 Justice Garrett: Also, lines 12 and 13 speak of the proposed license.

Mr. Bromley: Yes, as Judge Garrett says, lines 12 and 13 do refer to the proposed license.

Justice Stephens: I had understood you to say that his testimony showed, at page 4045, that the license contract had been presented to them before they went out there, and I don't find anything to that effect on that page.

Mr. Bromley: I was in error if I said that. I meant to ask him, independent of that testimony, if it wasn't the fact that prior to the time that he went out there a draft of the contract had been sent to his company.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. That is right, isn't it? A. That is right.

Q. You would say, wouldn't you, Mr. Lenci, that the primary reason for the Ebsary Company taking a license was its desire and need to manufacture a closed-edge type of board? A. Yes.

Q. You knew, did you not, at some time in May, 1929, at least, that the license which was offered, covered many patents other than the Utzman closed-edge patent? A. Yes.

Q. For instance, you knew, didn't you, that it covered the machine for the making of the patented closed edge?

4362 A. Yes.

Q. And you knew, didn't you, that that patent did not expire until sometime in 1937? A. I knew it was much later, I don't remember the date.

Q. So far as you were concerned, were you satisfied that your company needed the right to use all, or a substantial number of, these patents, in order especially to make the closed-edge type of board? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall that the license agreement which you say was executed on May 22, 1929, specifically provided that price control should expire with the expiration of the Utzman closed-edge patent, that is to say, on August 6, 1929? A. Yes.

Q. Now at any time during the course of your conferences in Chicago on May 21 and 22, 1929, or at any time prior thereto, did you have any knowledge as to what the prices would be, should they thereafter be fixed by USG? A. No, we did not.

Q. Did you have any discussion with Mr. Avery, or did you hear any, or with anyone else from USG, as to what the price or prices would be which would be fixed after you took a license? A. I never knew, and Mr. Ebsary didn't know, what those prices would be until after the licenses were signed and the first of the price bulletins was handed to us.

4363 That was our first knowledge, and I remember very well opening those letters to see what the price was going to be.

Q. Now at page 4047, in testifying as to who was present on May 21st and May 22nd, 1929, you said that Mr. Kelley was there. Isn't it a fact that Mr. Kelley did not attend at that time in connection with these negotiations at all, Mr. Lenci? A. I believe that was a mistake. I had no record to check myself with.

Q. And you now wish to correct your answer which appears at the top of page 4048, which was given to this question:

"Q. Do you know whether Stephen Kelley was out there? A. I think he was".

Do you want to correct that so as to say that your present recollection is that he was not there at all? A. Yes.

Q. At page 4048 you testified that you did not recall as to whether anybody was there representing American. Isn't it the fact, sir, that you have thought about that and your present recollection is that American was not represented by anyone, either on May 21st, May 22nd or May 23d, 1939? A. I don't believe they were represented.

Q. At page 4072 you testified, still with respect to the May 21-22 meeting, that Certain-teed was represented by Mr. C. O. Brown and Mr. Wittemore. Did you know that Mr. Brown has heretofore testified in this case and told us that he was not present at that meeting, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes, I have seen that in the record since. I believe it was George Brown who was there at that meeting.

Q. And do you wish now to correct your testimony so that it will appear that your recollection now is that Certain-teed was represented out there by George M. Brown and Mr. Whittemore, and not by Mr. C. O. Brown? A. That is right.

Q. At page 4052 you testified that you recalled that Mr. Avery said that if all companies would take out a license, that that would correct the demoralized condition which the board industry found itself in. Do you recall that testimony? A. I don't remember that exact wording, no.

Q. Well, you said "yes" to a question which had all those words in it, do you remember that? A. I didn't think that that was my wording. Yes, I probably did say that.

Q. Now isn't it the fact, sir, that you couldn't really recall anything that Mr. Avery said? A. It is a long time ago to remember the exact details of a meeting of that kind.

Q. Well, is it your recollection that Avery said anything in the way of a sales talk to the men who were out there at that time? A. Well, as I remember it, Mr. Avery didn't do anything to try to sell us the license. We had come out there, speaking for ourselves, anxious to take the license. He didn't have to convince us of the necessity for taking it.

Q. Don't you now remember that the other companies that were represented there also had determined to take licenses before they came there? A. I believe they had.

Q. Well then, wouldn't you say, Mr. Lenci, that there was no reason whatsoever for Mr. Avery to attempt to sell the proposition to anybody there present? A. I don't remember what he said, Mr. Bromley.

Q. Well you said, further on down the page—that is page 4052, in answer to the question:

"Q. Do you recall at that time that Mr. MacLeish, or Mr. Avery, illustrated their point by saying that under the General Electric case it was permissible for the owner of a patent to fix the price of a patented product? A. I remember that was mentioned by either one or the other, yes."

Now isn't it a fact, sir, that there was no discussion of the General Electric case at all until you and Mr. Rippey and Mr. MacLeish got off in a side room, and commenced to work on the form of the license which was to be offered and taken by Ebsary? A. Well, that might be, I don't 4366 remember whether it was in the general group or when we talked separately over our specific license. All I do remember was that it was mentioned while we were in Chicago on that trip.

Q. When you say "it", do you mean the General Electric case? A. The General Electric decision.

Q. That mention didn't take the form of saying, "Now we can correct this demoralized price condition because of the Supreme Court's decision in the General Electric case", did it? A. You say it did not take that form?

Q. It did not take that form, did it? A. I don't think it did.

Q. You said on direct examination that Mr. Avery made some reference to the litigation which was then in existence in the industry between his company and other companies. Do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. Well now, isn't it the fact that if Mr. Avery said anything about "demoralized conditions in the industry", he said it with reference to his mention of the many lawsuits which were then pending between USG and its competitors? A. Well, I think he laid a great deal more stress on the litigation feature than he did on the price feature.

Q. I am trying to find out from you, Mr. Lenci, if I 4367 can, whether it isn't the fact that you don't remember that Mr. Avery said anything about price control at all? A. Well, I think it must have been mentioned at one time, possibly in the meeting that we had with Mr. MacLeish and Mr. Rippey, because that was in the contract and would be one of the things which would be spoken about and talked over.

Q. Well, aren't you confusing the discussion between those two lawyers, MacLeish and Rippey, in your own negotiations, and what was said there, with what Mr. Avery said when he gave this little speech of greeting to the members of the industry assembled on May 21st? A. That may be, I don't remember at which meeting it took place.

Justice Stephens: We will have to take the afternoon adjournment at this time.

Before we do so, I would like to change my mind, Mr. Knuff, about one matter. If you can do so, without undue trouble, I would like to have photostats of those two pieces of tape. I would like to have a complete file, if possible, with every exhibit in it which is feasible to be in it, for the Presiding Judge.

Also, if you could, without undue difficulty, furnish me with duplicates of those samples of board and lath, when you offer them, I would like that also.

The Witness: I can do so, but it might take a few days.

4368 Justice Jackson: It would probably also be better if Mr. Lenci would furnish additional pieces of tape for us.

The Witness: I was going to say that when I got these additional samples, why not also send along extra pieces of tape? It would be much cheaper than trying to make photostats.

Justice Stephens: Yes, we would greatly appreciate that if you could do so. Just send them to the Government and they can deliver them to us.

(Thereupon, at 4:05 o'clock p. m., an adjournment was taken until 10:00 o'clock a. m., Wednesday, February 23, 1944.)

4369 IN THE

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Civil Action No. 8017

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY; NATIONAL GYPSUM COMPANY; CERTAIN-TEED PRODUCTS CORPORATION; THE CELOTEX CORPORATION; EBSARY GYPSUM COMPANY, INC.; NEWARK PLASTER COMPANY; SAMUEL M. GLOYD, doing business under the name of TEXAS CEMENT PLASTER COMPANY; SEWELL L. AVERY; OLIVER M. KNODE; MELVIN H. BAKER; BROR H. DAHLBERG; HENRY J. HARTLEY; FREDERICK G. EBSARY; and FREDERICK TOMKINS,

Defendants.

Seventh Floor,
Internal Revenue Building,
Washington, D. C.,
Wednesday, February 23, 1944.

The above-entitled cause came on for further hearing at 10:00 o'clock a. m., pursuant to adjournment, before Honorable Harold M. Stephens, Honorable Finis J. Garrett, and Honorable Joseph R. Jackson, sitting as the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

APPEARANCES:

(Same as heretofore noted.)

4371 You may proceed.

Thereupon, GEORGE N. LENCI the witness on the stand at the time of adjournment, resumed his testimony as follows:

Cross Examination (resumed)

Mr. Knuff: If your Honor pleases, I gave to the Clerk the photostats of Exhibit 513-A. I don't know whether you have them or not.

Justice Stephens: Thank you very much.

Mr. Steffen: Your Honor, I should like to make a 4372 short statement before Mr. Bromley begins.

I should like at this time to renew our objection to the right of defense counsel to ask leading questions upon their examination of a witness called by the Government as if upon cross-examination under Rule 43(b). And in this connection, I wish to base it, first, upon the ground that Rule 43(b) does not permit Mr. Bromley to ask leading questions, as we construe it; and, secondly, upon the ground that I think the Court might, as a matter of discretion, consider that it is improper for Mr. Bromley to ask Mr. Lenci leading questions in view of the examination as it proceeded yesterday, which disclosed that defense counsel have been in conference with Mr. Lenci and have taken up various matters with him, and in no true sense is he the Government's witness. He is represented here by Mr. Varian; on our first talk with Mr. Lenci, Mr. Varian came over as his counsel; and therefore, I think we must say that he, in all respects, is defense counsel's witness, although called by the Government, out of turn, as if upon cross-examination.

And on that matter of whose witness he might be, I would refer Your Honors to page 122 of the Proceedings of the Institute held here in Washington in 1938. The point was not very completely answered, but the Committee at that time stated, in effect—

4373 Justice Stephens: (Interposing) you mean the American Law Institute?

Mr. Steffen: No, the Institute which prepared these rules. The committee which prepared these rules stated, in response to a direct question, that the person calling a witness as if upon cross-examination was entitled to do with him everything which he might do if the defendant had first called him and he was then being cross-examined; and that therefore, the question of whose witness he was was an academic question. In other words, they refused to say that he was the witness of the person calling him as if upon cross-examination.

I would like to have a continuing objection, in the event Your Honors overrule me.

Justice Stephens: The record may show your continuing objection, and that it is overruled. We think it would be error to deny the defendants the right to cross-examine this witness. The witness seems to us a fair witness towards both sides in the case, and we do not think the rule contemplates that because the plaintiff calls a witness, the opposite party is denied the right of cross-examination.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. You said yesterday, on cross-examination, Mr. Lenci, that you thought price control must have been men-
4374 tioned in May, 1929, in Chicago, "because that was in the contract and would be one of the things which would be spoken about and talked over."

In connection with that answer—

Justice Garrett: (Interposing) That is on page—

Mr. Bromley: (Interposing) Page 4660, near the top.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Isn't it now your best recollection that if price control, or the General Electric case, were mentioned at all by anybody, it was mentioned in the conference between your lawyer, Judge Rippey, and Mr. MacLeish, and not by Mr. Avery? A. That may be right.

Q. Well, can't you give us your best recollection? A. Well, it is a long time ago, and it is awfully hard to place it exactly, but I do know that those things were discussed between Mr. Rippey and Mr. MacLeish.

Q. Well, isn't it the fact that you just do not have any recollection, so far as what Mr. Avery did or did not say on this subject is concerned? A. My recollection is not too clear.

Q. Well, isn't it more than that? Isn't it the fact, the true fact, that you have no recollection about it at all, and you merely think that the subject must have been mentioned by someone? A. Well, I know it was mentioned by someone.

4375 Q. And you know that because price control was in the contract? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: What page are you referring to?

Mr. Bromley: Page 4660, the first answer at the top of the page, on cross-examination.

Justice Stephens: Page 4660?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, sir, that is in yesterday afternoon's session, near the end.

Justice Stephens: Oh, yes.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. You were in Chicago in May, 1929, in connection with license matters, on May 21, May 22, and May 23, weren't you? A. Yes.

Q. And how many occasions, on those three days, were there on which all of the representatives of companies there present assembled in a room together? Did that happen once, twice, three times, or how many times? A. Well, to the best of my recollection, they all assembled there on May 21, on arrival,—I mean, that was the first day. I believe they all met on that morning. I don't believe there was another complete assemblage that afternoon, I am quite sure there wasn't, and I don't think there was the second morning. But I think during the second afternoon they 4376 were probably all there.

Q. Well, what was that occasion? A. Well, to make it a little clearer, after they met on the first day, they all broke up to consider their individual problems under the proposed licenses, to get their licenses straightened out and signed; and to the best of my recollection, that was done during the afternoon of the first day and the morning of the second day. And after that was completed, then they met during the afternoon of the second day.

Q. What was that meeting about? A. When the ones who were going to sign had signed up, I think they just naturally drifted back together again.

Q. Was anything done or said at that meeting? A. The reason I say I think they were mostly all there is because that was the time that the price bulletins were given out, the first bulletins.

Q. Well, is that all that transpired at this afternoon meeting on May 22, so far as you can remember, the giving out of the price bulletins? A. I don't think there was very much.

Q. You mean very much else? A. That is right.

Q. Now the next day, on May 23, there was a third occasion when all the representatives came together in 4377 a common place, was there not? A. Yes. That must have been in the morning, because most of us left on the trains leaving around noontime.

Q. And that was the occasion, was it not, at which the bubble invention was explained by Mr. Avery? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. Up to that time, had any mention been made by anyone from USG of the fact that there was a bubble invention covering the manufacture of light-weight board, so far as you can remember? A. That was the first I ever heard of it.

Q. And, of course, there was nothing in the license contracts that were executed on May 22, that covered the bubble invention? A. No.

Q. Now let me ask you this: At any of these meetings in Chicago in May, 1929, at any time, whether you were all together or whether you weren't, were there any understandings reached among you, or agreements, other than those expressed in the written license contracts, one of which you signed? A. No.

Q. And to make that specific, were you a party to or did you know of any agreement or understanding to the effect that the licensees would discontinue the manufac-4378 ture of open-edge board and no longer make it? A. Was there an agreement to that effect?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Q. Now you have told us, as I remember it, that so far as your company was concerned, it was your policy to go over, once you get the license, to the production of closed-edge board? A. We were very anxious to.

Q. And you determined, yourself, no longer to make open-edge board, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Now was that a matter which was determined by you and your company officials, independently of anyone else? A. Yes, very much so. We were very anxious to get into it, to make the closed-edge board.

Q. And at that time, in Chicago, or at any other time in 1929, did you have any understanding or agreement with anyone with respect to the prices which you would either quote or charge on such open-edge bo. d as you might sell after May 22, 1929? A. No.

Q. Did you have any understanding or agreement with anyone with respect to the prices which you would quote or charge for second grade board, or No. 2 board, 4379 which you might have on hand and offer for sale, and sell?

Mr. Steffen: That refers to open-edge?

Mr. Bromley: Open-edge, yes, not covered by the license.

The Witness: No, not any that wasn't covered by the license, no.

Mr. Bromley: Will you show the witness Exhibits 405, 406, and 407, please?

(Government's Exhibits Nos. 405, 406, and 407 were handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Will you tell us what prices those figures are that are mentioned in that exhibit, Exhibit 405? First, tell us whose prices they are? A. They are prices that we established, our company established, and sent to our salesmen for use, for quoting on our open-edge board as long as it lasted, and then you will note a reference to the new covered-edge wallboard, when ready.

Q. In the next to the last paragraph? A. Yes.

Q. Is it to be inferred from this Exhibit 405 that your company received these prices from its customers on any sales that were made of open-edge board? A. I doubt—

4380 Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) That asks for a conclusion, Your Honor, that you can't draw from this particular exhibit, certainly.

Mr. Bromley: I will withdraw it.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Can you tell us whether or not, as a matter of fact, your company received these prices from its customers to whom it may have sold open-edge board at or after this time?

Mr. Steffen: If you know.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. If you know, yes. A. Well, I was going to say I doubt very much if we did.

Mr. Steffen: I move to strike that, Your Honor. He simply states his doubts. He knows or doesn't know.

Justice Stephens: It doesn't seem to the Court that it ought to be stricken. You have asked this witness dozens of questions of this sort in the course of your examination, or Mr. Knuff has. Why should the defendants be denied the right to probe into what the defendant recollects?

Mr. Steffen: I have no objection to his probing. He just simply says, "I doubt", and that is what I want to have stricken.

Justice Stephens: I am of this view, and I think 4381 my colleagues share it, Mr. Steffen—I have announced it before in the course of similar objections—while it is true you have been asking leading questions of this witness, you examined him on direct-examination and you will rely, and you have a right to rely, upon the statements that he made as a foundation for the Government's case.

Now the defendants, as we understand the rules, are entitled to cross-examine him and to try to weaken the force of his direct statements. And one of the ways in which they can do that is to test the reasonableness of his direct statements, just as you could if you were cross-examining a witness who had been relied upon by your opponent on direct-examination. For that reason, to ask for conclusions or inferences, on cross-examination of witnesses who have been called on direct-examination, is permissible because it goes to the dependability or reasonableness or credibility or accuracy of his statements on the examination on which you rely.

This particular answer isn't of very great importance one way or the other, but since it does present that question we want counsel to be fairly advised upon it. It is not our view that it is forbidden, upon cross-examination, to go into the witness' state of mind, including his reasons, his doubts, his conclusions, his inferences, if to do so has a bearing upon the dependability, correctness, ac-4382 curacy or truthfulness of his statements on direct-examination. On direct-examination you often can't go into conclusions, because you are required there, if you are proving contracts, to show what actually happened, what was said, and there you are calling the witness as your own witness and you are accrediting him, you are relying upon him.

The fact that you lead this witness under Rule 43 doesn't alter the fact that you are relying upon him as the Government's witness, you are presenting his testimony with the hope of convincing the Court that it constitutes a part of the case of conspiracy and combination and unlawful price fixing.

It seems to us it would be error to deny to the opposite side the opportunity to attack the force of his testimony.

Mr. Steffen: I would like to say that we, of course, rely on any testimony, whether elicited on direct or upon cross-examination, and I don't think that goes to the question of whether he is our witness, or defendants' witness, or just a stray witness, which I think largely he is at this particular juncture.

My objection was not to the question, which I think was appropriate, but simply to the answer, which I thought was purely speculative and ought, therefore, to be stricken.

Justice Stephens: The objection is overruled. The motion to strike is denied.

4383 I might add that it seems to us, Mr. Steffen, the premise of your objection is unfounded. You say—I know you speak in good part and colloquially—"a stray witness", that he is neither your witness nor the other side's witness. But the plain fact is that you call him to prove your case, in part, and when you call him you rely upon his statements, you accredit them, you offer them to the Court. Therefore, the opposite party has a right to attempt to modify them, or qualify them, or indicate that he misunderstood your questions, or to vary them in any way in which it properly can; and we think this is not improper. You surely rely upon this witness' testimony, don't you?

Mr. Steffen: We most positively do rely upon this witness' testimony, but we rely upon it as we would upon any other evidence which we elicit upon cross-examination. And if I might state, without going into any lengthy talk and all in good part, we rely upon it as coming under Section 43(b), which says that "a party may call an adverse party, or an officer"—and Mr. Lenci is an officer—"of a public or private corporation or of a partnership or association which is an adverse party, and interrogate him by leading questions and contradict and impeach him in all respects"—it doesn't say "in some respects"—, "as if he had been called by the adverse party."

This rule has the force of statute, and it is bind-4384 ing upon any and all trial courts. That seems literally to say that it is as though Mr. Bromley had first called Mr. Lenci and we are then, under the rule, entitled to interrogate him by leading questions, to qualify and impeach in all respects as though Mr. Bromley had first called him. Of course, that goes to our basic objection, which Your Honor has kindly permitted us to have as a continuing objection, to all this line of testimony. But I think, in fairness to our case, we will have to insist upon that in order to protect our record.

Justice Stephens: You may make your record, and your record is fully protected, and we have no objection to your doing that. But I might say informally that I had something to do with the formulation of these rules. Indeed, I was the person, as Assistant Attorney General, who advised the introduction of the statute as a result of which the Supreme Court was given power to compile these rules. It was I and one other who selected Major Tolman, who later became Secretary of the committee at the time, to commence the work and I kept in close touch with it. And I may say that the rules have been a considerable disappointment to me. They seem to me to be very unfair to defendants. I don't think they were calculated to be so, but I think it is the almost universal judgment of the bar that the rules are extremely unfair to defendants and give an extreme advantage to plaintiffs.

4385 Of course, we are bound by them, and we realize that. And we are a trial court in good faith trying to obey them. I do not believe, and I do not believe the Supreme Court will take the extreme position, that they go so far in their advantage to plaintiffs and disadvantage to defendants as to deny to a defendant the right to ask leading questions of a defendant on whose testimony the opposite party relies. I think that would be extremely unfair, and I do not think the Supreme Court would sustain any such position.

Proceed with your examination.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Isn't it your best recollection now, Mr. Lenci, that as a matter of fact, your company did not receive, in the majority of instances, for its open-edge board, the prices which you directed your salesmen to quote in Exhibit 405? A. Yes, that is the reason I said I doubted very much if we did receive those prices, because at that time we had orders taken below these prices, and we were selling below these prices, had to sell below these prices.

Q. Well, isn't it the plain fact that in the market at that time, with closed-edge board being offered and sold by competitors, it was completely impossible for your company to get prices as high as these contained in these three 43[illegible] exhibits, for open-edge board? A. Yes, the customers wouldn't pay for it.

Q. And isn't it the fact that so far as your supply of open-edge board was concerned, in 1929, you had to take what you could get for it from your customers? A. We tried to get as much as we could for it. We didn't throw it away, because we couldn't afford to, but we did try to get as much as we could and to get out with the least amount of loss.

Q. And would you say that that resulted in a wide variation in the amount of the price which you received from different customers, over this period, for open-edge board? A. Yes, it did.

Q. Some reference was made on your direct examination to the fact that the prices contained in Exhibits 405, 406 and 407 were the USG bulletin prices. You understood, didn't you, at this time, that USG was not fixing your price for open-edge board? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. And it is the fact, then, that these prices in these three exhibits, 405, 406 and 407, while they may have been the same in amount as the prices fixed by USG for closed-edge board, were not USG bulletin prices? A. No, they were not.

Q. And did you have any understanding with 4387 USG or anyone else, that following your signing of the license you would direct your salesmen to quote for your open-edge board the same price that USG had fixed in its first bulletin for closed-edge board? A. No.

Q. Can you tell the Court what your reason was, if any, for sending these prices out to your salesmen? A. Well, we naturally were trying to get our price—get as much for this open-edge board, that we had left on our hands, as we could—and we sent these prices out to our salesmen as a sort of a standard to get up to. We knew we couldn't get any more than these prices, and we hoped we would get as near them as we could.

Q. And likewise, did you issue the instruction to your salesmen contained in the first paragraph of Exhibit 407, with respect to billing weights, as a matter of your own independent policy? A. Yes.

Q. And is it true that you had no agreement or understanding with USG or anyone else as to what, if any, billing weight you would use on open-edge board? A. No, there was no understanding or discussion about the weight of open-edge board.

Q. I said a minute ago, impliedly, in one of my questions, that the prices contained in these three ex-
4388 hibits were the same, in amount, as those contained in the USG price bulletins for patented, closed-edge board. Is that true, do you know? A. I believe that to be true. I would like to check it before I could say yes or no to it.

Q. Will you look at Exhibit 404, please? A. I don't think that my prices are as complete as the bulletin prices.

(Exhibit 404 handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Now looking at Exhibit 405 and Exhibit 404, the price of $13.50 which you sent on your 3/8" lath, open-edge, is the same figure as Exhibit 404, the USG price bulletin of May 23, sets for 1/4" and 3/8" plasterboards which are seconds—isn't that right? A. No—

Justice Garrett: (Interposing) Pardon me, Mr. Bromley. Exhibit 404 is a 3-page exhibit. Would you mind giving the line there?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, sir, on the first page, right in the middle of the page, the prices read starting at $20.00, $17.50, $17.50, and $22.50, and then $15.00. And then below the next paragraph you see a price of $13.50.

The Witness: That $13.50 price is for 1/4" and 3/8" plasterboards, but not seconds. That is a new 4389 paragraph starting there. The paragraph reading "SECONDS" refers to the line above it. It says 3/8" gypsum wallboard SECONDS—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) $15.00?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Well, turning to Exhibit 405, we find that you have instructed your salesmen to quote $15.00 for open-edge wallboard. A. Yes.

Q. There is an instance in which you set as your price, for the purpose of quotations for open-edge, first-grade wallboard, the same figure which USG had set for second-grade wallboard; is that true? A. For seconds.

Q. Seconds, closed-edge wallboard? A. That is correct.

Q. That $17.50 price in Exhibit 405 is a price which you instructed your salesmen to quote covering the sale of your new covered-edge wallboard when and if you should get into production of it and have it made? A. That is right. The first two words of the third paragraph, "When ready", should be attached at the end of that sentence which reads, "New covered-edge wallboard"—giving the sizes—"$17.50 per M sq. ft. f.o.b. mill, when ready." If you will notice, that correction was made 4390 in all of the copies at the time.

Q. And is that likewise true in the middle of Exhibit 406? A. Yes, you will notice a pencilled correction was made in that a long time ago.

Q. Looking again at Exhibit 405, the handwritten note on the left-hand margin, "To be discontinued as soon as new board is ready", I ask you again, was your decision to discontinue the manufacture of open-edge board your own determination and not the result of any understanding with anyone else? A. Yes.

Q. You said at page 4095 of the record that you couldn't make open-edge and closed-edge board at the same time.

You merely meant that as a matter of mechanical possibility or practicability, didn't you? A. Oh, yes.

Q. You had no understanding that you would not make them both at the same time, or any other time? A. No.

Q. Then on the same page, lines 21 to 23, in answer to a question of Judge Garrett you said, "If you have in mind if we had any open-edge board still in stock, of course we would have to sell that at this price."

4391 What did you mean by that answer? A. I don't get enough of the context there to recall.

Q. Judge Garrett said:

"I would have interpreted that, myself, to mean that they were to discontinue the quotation of prices on open-edge board when the new board went into production."

And you said:

"If you have in mind if we had any open-edge board still in stock, of course we would have to sell them at this price."

A. Well, I meant at the prices mentioned in my letter of May 23, 1929, Exhibit 405.

Q. When you said you would "have to sell" it at this price, you meant merely as a matter of business policy? A. Yes, that we couldn't get any more than that.

Q. You did not mean by that answer to indicate that you were compelled or bound to sell open-edge board at any specified amount, did you? A. No.

Q. Now, did I understand you to say that the Ebsary Company had never made a second-grade board? A. That is correct.

Q. At any time? A. That is right.

Q. Either open or closed-edge? A. That is right.

4392 Justice Garrett: Going back to that matter there, in view of the fact that I asked some questions about it,—I mean on page 4095,—in my questions I was seeking the interpretation of those notes on the side, and the witness stated that they meant they would discontinue the manufacture of open-edge board. The question of mine which you read was to the effect that I, independent of his explanation, would have interpreted them to mean that he would discontinue the quotation of those prices.

Mr. Bromley: And he said no, that wasn't so.

Justice Garrett: No, he said that meant they would discontinue the manufacture of the board after they began the manufacture of closed-edge board. That is the way I understand it.

The Witness: That is right.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. But would continue, Mr. Lenci, quoting prices on open-edge board until you had sold it all? A. That is right.

Q. And in your answer to Judge Garrett, you meant that you would go ahead quoting prices, such as are contained in Exhibit 405, getting what you could for the board, until it was all disposed of? A. That is correct.

Q. And, of course, after you ran out of your 4393 supply of open-edge board on hand, you discontinued quoting prices? A. Yes.

Q. You didn't have any to sell? A. That is right.

Q. Now, did you have any understanding or agreement with anyone with respect to standardizing your methods of manufacture, outside of any license agreement, I mean? A. As to the machinery to be used or the product to be made, which do you mean?

Q. Well, as to machinery to be used, first, outside of the license agreements. A. Well, there wasn't any understanding. There was only one place to go, that I know of, to buy a board machine.

Q. Where was that? A. That was the Ehrsam Manufacturing Company in Kansas. You see, there are not very many board machines sold, so you can't go around and buy a board machine like you can a LaSalle, and this was the only place we knew to go to buy a board machine, and we went to these people and they gave us a price on the board machine, and we bought one.

Q. This Ehrsam Company is no part of USG, is it? A. Oh, no.

Mr. Steffen: May I have that related as to time? When was that board machine purchased?

The Witness: It was purchased in 1928. It was 4394 in operation about the middle of 1928, so I would say it was purchased probably in the early spring of 1928. It took some time to install it.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Did you have any understanding or agreement that if you took the license, USG would raise or stabilize prices on patented board covered by the license? A. No.

Q. And you said yesterday, didn't you, that you never had any discussion at any time with Mr. Avery, or anyone else, as to what price he would establish after the execution of the license? A. That is correct.

Q. Did you have any understanding or agreement with anyone with respect to what price you should quote or charge for plaster? A. No.

Q. Or for other unpatented articles, such as tile block and Keene's Cement? A. No.

Q. And did you enter into or know of any agreement or understanding that jobbers would be eliminated from the distributive system of gypsum board? A. No.

Mr. Steffen: Those questions are all outside of 4395 the license agreement, as I understand it.

Mr. Bromley: Yes.

Mr. Steffen: Does the witness understand that?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Bromley: Well, inside the license agreement. You don't contend that there is any agreement in the license agreement that jobbers will be eliminated?

Mr. Steffen: We not only contend it, but I think we have proven it. The license agreements, followed by the bulletins.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Did you have any understanding or agreement with anyone else that at any time in the future a jobber discount would be discontinued, and the price to jobbers made the same as the dealer price? A. We had no understanding on it at all.

Mr. Steffen: That question also is outside of the license agreement and the bulletins?

Mr. Bromley: No, either out or in. However, I will limit it first to outside the license agreement.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. You didn't have any understanding that the jobber price would be, at some time in the future, subsequent to 1929, raised to the amount of the dealer price? A. No.

4396 Q. Now, was it your understanding that there was anything in the license agreement, or in the bulletins, which prohibited your selling your goods to jobbers? A. No.

Q. There came a time, in 1930, did there not, when you received a bulletin which fixed the jobber price at the same figure as the price for dealers? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, did you have any part in that determination, or did it come as a surprise to you when you got it? A. It came as an order, as a direction in the form of a bulletin. We had no part in making that up.

Q. You said yesterday that you knew the Utzman closed-edge patent expired on or about August 6, 1929. At any one of these occasions in May, 1929, when you were in Chicago, did you have any understanding, or did you know of any understanding or agreement, with anybody, that if you would sign your license and the others would sign theirs, USG would find some patent or find some way to continue price control after August 6, 1929? A. No.

Q. And after Mr. Avery disclosed to you gentlemen present on May 23 the scope and nature of the foam or bubble board invention, did you gentlemen, in your company, decide that you wanted to obtain the right to 4397 use that invention? A. Yes, we did.

Q. Do you recall what Mr. Avery said with respect to the matter of offering your company, and others, a license under the foam or bubble invention? A. I don't remember his exact wording, but I remember that he explained what it was, and that the USG had secured the American rights for it, and that it was going to be offered to us.

Q. Do you recall that he said the invention was in the application stage in the Patent Office? A. Yes.

Q. And you testified, at page 4161, in a manner similar to your present statement, that Mr. Avery said the USG had obtained the American rights to the Bayer invention. Now don't you recall that as a matter of fact, Mr. Avery told you that at this time there were three inventors of the foam or bubble system, each one of whom had filed an application for a patent in the United States Patent Office? A. I remember only two, I remember the Bayer patent, the Bayer application, and the Roos application. The other I don't recall.

Q. Don't you remember there was a man named Rice, who had also filed an application—R-i-c-e? A. I have heard that name, but I don't remember it.

4398 Q. Do you recall that Mr. Avery told you, on May 23, that these applications were all in interference proceedings at that very time in the Patent Office? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall further that so far as what you have called the American rights are concerned, what Avery said was that USG had a contract which provided that if Mr. Bayer won the interference proceedings then pending, USG would get exclusive United States rights, so far as gypsum was concerned, under any patent which might thereafter be issued to Bayer? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And you know, don't you, Mr. Lenci, that, of course, Mr. Roos eventually was given priority, and in 1934 or 1935, the foam-bubble invention patents were issued to Roos and not to Rice or to Bayer? A. That is right.

Q. And Mr. Roos, Carlisle K. Roos, was an inventor in the employ of the United States Gypsum Company at that time? A. That is right.

Q. What was the advantage, as Mr. Avery explained it, if he did, of the foam or bubble invention? A. Well, the primary advantage was that it would make a very much lighter board. This decrease in the weight 4399 would be a great saving in our freight charges, and it did have that result.

Q. Do you mean by that that it lowered the delivered price, made up of mill base plus freight, which the dealer-customer had to pay for board? A. Yes.

Q. That was because, weighing less, the freight that he had to pay was less? A. That is right.

Q. This system also did away with the necessity of using sawdust in the board, did it not? A. Yes.

Q. Up to this time, had it been your practice to introduce a certain amount of sawdust in the board in order to get lighter weight? A. Yes.

Q. And it was the fact, wasn't it, that due to the demand of the gypsum companies, sawdust was getting very difficult to obtain? A. It was hard to get, and you couldn't tell what kind of wood you might get, you would get all sorts of stains from the resin or the liquid in the sawdust.

Q. You mean the various chemical substances in sawdust would adversely affect the appearance of the 4400 board after it was made? A. Yes.

Q. And would those same chemical substances, present in the sawdust, also affect such things in production as the set of the gypsum? A. I don't recall that we had that trouble.

Q. In connection with Mr. Avery's disclosure of the foam or bubble invention, you took out a license sometime in October, 1929, I believe? A. Yes.

Q. Now, did you have any arrangement or agreement or understanding with anyone, outside of that license agreement, to the effect that you would take a license only if someone else did? A. No.

Q. And was it the independent decision of the management of your company to take a license under the bubble or foam inventions, and others specified in the license, because you desired to get the right to use the patents in your manufacturing processes? A. That is correct.

Q. You told the Court on direct that you went back to Chicago on or about the 6th of June—that is at page 4171—and that a meeting was held on that date in Chicago, and you were asked a great many questions, commencing at page 4170, and following, as to what discussions 4401 there were at that meeting concerning prices for patented board, and other matters.

Isn't it a fact that so far as prices and terms and conditions of sale were concerned, everything that was said there was limited to patented gypsum board, and did not extend to unpatented products? A. That is right.

Q. And isn't it true, Mr. Lenci, that that statement applies to your testimony with respect to all these meetings about which you have testified, from June 6, 1929, right on down through the licensee meetings? A. That is correct.

Q. Right down to the present time, if any have been held this late? A. Yes.

Q. That is to say, that the matters brought up there, and the questions asked and answered, had to do only with patented gypsum board and not unpatented products? A. That is right.

Justice Stephens: We will take the morning recess.

Before we do so, I should like to add to the Court's statement, concerning the objection of the Government to the asking of leading questions of this witness, the following:

The Court is well aware of the fact that Rule 43 provides that an opposite party or the officer of an 4402 opposite party, if it is a corporation, may be called, and that leading questions may be asked, and that he may be impeached or contradicted. But as the Court understands the reason for that rule, it was this,—that under the old rule, if a party plaintiff called a defendant to testify, or the officer of a corporate defendant, such party couldn't impeach him, or couldn't contradict him, even though he was very hostile actually, unless in the discretion of the Court it was permitted that he be cross examined.

That was unfair to the party calling such a witness. So I understand the purpose of the rule-makers was to relieve the party calling an adverse witness of that disadvantage. It doesn't seem to me to follow at all, from that, that the purpose of the rule-makers in drawing 43(b) was to strip the opposite party of all of the rights with respect to cross examination which the opposite party had always had with respect to a witness called by its opponent. It seems to the Court that the Government is asking the Court to construe this rule as if it read, in terms, not only that the plaintiff, speaking in terms of the present situation, may call an adverse witness, an adverse party, or the officer of an adverse party, and lead him, but as if the rule also explicitly stated that the defendant in such a situation was forbidden to cross examine the witness relied upon by the plaintiff because leading ques-4403 tions are a necessary part of cross examination.

It seems to the Court that the rules, although they do—I think it is universally accepted by all experienced judges and lawyers—operate, as drafted, unfairly in favor of plaintiffs, were certainly intended by the rule-makers to be fair to both sides, and it seems to the Court that they ought to be administered fairly to both sides except where they explicitly require an unfairness which the Court cannot escape because there is an explicit statutory direction, in effect, in the rules.

Mr. Steffen: May I say one word on the matter of fairness?

Justice Stephens: Yes.

Mr. Steffen: In this case, as Your Honors have observed, we have had to make out our entire case from gypsum men. We have no witnesses that can be looked at as plaintiff's witnesses in that they are favorable witnesses, and it is only because of that fact that we had to resort to the defendants, or officers of the defendants.

As I visualize the rule, it was intended to work either way, that a defendant likewise can call a plaintiff and put him on the stand. So it would seem to be, on that score, on paper at least, a perfectly fair rule.

Justice Stephens: Well, I think, Mr. Steffen—and I say this entirely in good part—that if you were in 4404 one of the very many cases in which the Government is a defendant—there are lots of them—you would find, if the opponents urged this rule, you would be very much disturbed by it.

We will now take the morning recess.

(Thereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed as follows:)

4405 Justice Stephens: Proceed.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. During your direct examination, Mr. Lenci, about this meeting of June 6, 1929, in Chicago, you were asked many questions similar to the one appearing on page 4170, as follows, beginning on line 6:

"Q. At the meeting of June 6th, was there any discussion concerning the price at which gypsum products should be sold to house wreckers?"

And you answered: "A. Yes."

Now at this meeting of June 6th, was there a discussion about prices? A. No, I think the thing was an inquiry as to how house wreckers should be classified under the bulletins.

Q. And when you say that you think the thing was an inquiry, you mean an inquiry from one of the licensees, made of the licensor? A. Yes.

Q. And was that inquiry in effect a question as to the interpretation, or provision, or lack of it, in the existing price bulletins? A. Yes.

Q. Was there any "give and take" in the sense of a discussion, as to what should or should not be the prac-

4406 tices or prices, followed by a vote or a decision in any form? A. Oh, no, no.

Q. And when you answered these questions which were addressed to you so frequently, in the affirmative, that this and that was discussed at the meeting, isn't it a fact that you meant merely to say that these matters were brought up by way of questions from the licensees, and answers given by the licensor? A. Yes. You must realize that those bulletins were entirely new to all of us, and we couldn't always understand what they meant, and we would make the inquiry and United States Gypsum Company's representative would say that this means so-and-so, or that this is interpreted in this way. We were looking for information.

Q. But you did not mean to suggest by your direct testimony that any agreement or understanding was reached with respect to what should or should not be in the bulletins? A. No.

Q. And did USG make any commitments or promises or undertakings as to whether it would make changes in the bulletins, or add new provisions to the bulletins in the future? A. No. If it was a simple question, like that question of house wreckers, I believe that was answered immediately by Mr. Henning, or whoever represented the USG. Sometimes we would ask questions which they would 4407 have to think about, and those would come out in later bulletins.

Q. You testified in this connection at page 4177, beginning at line 20, as follows:

"Q. And you say that that custom of either selling it or else giving it away, had been prevalent in the gypsum industry for some time, is that correct? A. Yes, as I recall it."

You were referring to the giving away of filler. Do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. Now the giving away of filler by the manufacturers was not a custom in the sense that it was a generally accepted or approved practice in the industry, was it? A. It was decidedly not approved.

Q. It was what the industry— A. (Interposing) It was a bad habit.

Q. It was what the industry regarded as an unfair trade practice, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And all you meant to say by that testimony with respect to that, was that it was an unfair practice which was indulged in frequently by many companies? A. That is right.

Q. Is it a fact that the giving away of filler, as you discussed it in your direct testimony, was merely an-4408 other way for a manufacturer to give a rebate in connection with the sale of his patented board? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall that at this very time, that is in June, 1929, there was in existence a set of fair trade rules adopted by the industry under the guidance of the Federal Trade Commission, for the gypsum industry? A. Yes, I believe that was in 1929.

Q. And do you recall that among such rules was what was known as Rule 13, entitled, "Unfair specific practices", which provided that included within the practices prohibited, where they constitute rebates or where they are indulged in for the purpose and with the effect of discriminating in prices, and terms among purchasers of the same class purchasing under like conditions, are, among other things, the furnishing of materials without charge? A. Yes.

Q. So that at this very time, at the time of this discussion at the June 6th meeting, in your industry the Fair Trade Practice Rules prohibited, as an unfair trade practice, the giving of rebates in indirect fashion, among others such as the giving away of free materials with an order of materials which were sold at a price? A. That is correct.

Q. And in connection with that meeting you tes-4409 tified at page 4182, that some questions were asked with respect to protected jobs—do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. And you gave the illustration on page 4181 of the contractor on the Pentagon Building who, in order to protect himself under his contract, would place an order with a manufacturer for a large amount of gypsum board. A. That is right.

Q. And you said that in connection with the meeting of June 6th there was some discussion about the taking of unlimited orders at a price, didn't you? A. Wasn't that, that we had taken orders which were not completed at that time? In other words, they had been taken without a limitation as to date of delivery by our company?

Q. Yes. You said there was some talk as to the length of time you would be permitted to protect a contractor on his purchases—no, I see you said you didn't remember any such discussion. A. That is right.

Q. Then you said that much later on a bulletin was issued by the licensor which provided that orders could be booked ahead only on specific jobs, and that the licensees couldn't take orders for unlimited quantities unless some particular job was involved. Was that right? A. That is my recollection, yes.

4410 Well, isn't it a fact that the only discussion that was had with respect to this matter, at that meeting, was that some of the licensees asked questions as to whether there was any restriction in the bulletins, or not? A. Yes, I think that we asked the same question ourselves.

Q. And the answer was that at that time there was no restriction in any of the bulletins? A. That is right, as I remember it.

Q. However, there was again another rule, do you recall, among the Fair Trade Practice Rules, Rule 16, which provided that a contract of sale which permits the buyer to cancel, or provide for a reduced price in the event of a market decline, and which does not permit the seller to cancel, or provide for an enhanced price in the event of a market rise, is lacking in mutuality and tends to induce controversy and breach of contract, and is therefore condemned by the industry? A. Yes.

Q. Now will you look at Exhibit 421, please?

(Thereupon, Government's Exhibit No. 421 was handed to the witness.)

Justice Garrett: Was the last provision you read one adopted by the Federal Trade Commission, or was it one of the regulations that was recommended—

Mr. Bromley: (Interposing) I was quoting from the regulations themselves, as adopted and approved.

4411 Mr. Steffen: May we have the date and also by whom they were adopted, please?

Mr. Bromley: June 10, 1929, is the date.

Mr. Steffen: And they were adopted by whom?

Mr. Bromley: They were adopted by the gypsum industry in March, 1929, and approved by the Federal Trade Commission thereafter on June 10. They are Defendants' Exhibit No. 3 for identification in this case.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Will you look at the first paragraph in Exhibit 421, please? A. Yes.

Q. You testified with regard to this exhibit that you could not precisely give the date when your new production facilities were in operation, but that it was sometime around a month or so after May 22, 1929. Do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. Isn't the reference in the first paragraph of Exhibit 421 to your changing your price list, a reference to a change in your price list so far as it affected orders for patented board which you might thereafter produce? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you understood at that time, did you not, that the price bulletins which you had received from the licensor up to June 21, 1929, applied only to patented board 4412 manufactured by your company? A. Yes.

Q. But is it the fact that prior to the time that you got into production, your company was nevertheless taking orders for patented board which you expected very shortly to produce yourselves? A. That is correct.

Q. And this Exhibit 421, and the reference to prices therein, is a reference to the prices which you were quoting for the patented board which you hoped to sell after you got into production? A. Yes.

Q. Of course, you are not sure as to whether or not by June 21, 1929, you were not, as a matter of fact, already in production, are you? A. We may have been at that time. We did it as quickly as we could.

Q. But at any rate, prior to the time that you got into production, and after you took the license, you did take orders for patented board for future delivery? A. That is correct.

Q. Now at the June 6, 1929, meeting in Chicago, there was some reference to the proposed bubble or foam license, was there not? A. Yes.

4413 Q. And do you recall what you did, if anything, after that meeting, with respect to taking the matter up with your lawyer? A. Well, as I recall it, the proposed contract had been sent or was sent either just before June 6th or just after June 6th, and as soon as we got it we sent our copy immediately to our lawyer.

Q. And by June 6th nothing had happened, you had not heard from your lawyer, which was the reason for the inquiry made by Mr. Henning at the June 6th meeting, wasn't it? A. That is right.

Mr. Steffen: I think that should be—if he knows. I don't see how he can state what Mr. Henning's reason was.

Mr. Bromley: Well, I thought the exhibit showed that Mr. Henning said he hadn't heard from the proposed licenses which had been sent out to the various licensees, and wanted to know what they were doing, if anything, about it.

Justice Stephens: Which exhibit is that—are you still on Exhibit 421?

Mr. Bromley: Exhibit 420, I think it is.

Will you show the witness Exhibit 420, please?

(Thereupon, Government's Exhibit No. 420 was handed to the witness.)

Justice Stephens: I am not sure that I get the point. Will you read the question and answer?

4414 (Thereupon, the record was read by the reporter, as requested.)

Justice Stephens: This letter is dated June 21, 1929—Exhibit 420. It has nothing to do with June 6th.

Read the previous question, the one to which objection was made.

Mr. Steffen: The one that the reporter read is the one to which I objected.

Justice Stephens: I am sorry, I seem to be lost.

Mr. Steffen: I said "if he knows". This witness couldn't have known what Mr. Henning's reason might have been for raising the question concerning bubble board, as far as I can determine, and I would like to have the witness simply answer if he knows that that was Mr. Henning's reason.

Justice Stephens: Do you wish to be heard, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: No. I had better start over again. I was under the impression, although I have lost the reference—that there was testimony indicating that Mr. Henning seemed to be in a hurry to get the bubble license agreement signed by Ebsary, or a question along that line.

Do you recall that, Mr. Lenci?

The Witness: There was a question of that kind, yes.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Now isn't it the fact that after June 6, 1929, after the June 6, 1929, meeting, that you referred the draft 4415 of the bubble board license to Mr. Rippey for consideration? A. Yes.

Q. And you heard nothing from him, at least up to June 21, 1929, because on that date you wrote him a letter asking him about it, Exhibit 420, didn't you? A. That is right.

Q. And you did that among other reasons because you wanted to be able to be entirely familiar with the situation when you got to Chicago on June 26, 1929, if you should be asked any questions about it? A. That is right.

Q. Now do you recall that in connection with Exhibit 420—

Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) I don't think there is any evidence that he was there at the June 26th meeting. Isn't that calling for facts not in evidence?

Mr. Bromley: I haven't said that he was.

Mr. Steffen: The question assumed that he wrote to Judge Rippey on June 21st in order to have information, I think you said, at hand when he attended the meeting on June 26th.

Mr. Bromley: In expectation of attending that meeting. It is shown by the letter that he expected to be there.

Justice Stephens: I think that is clear.

Justice Jackson: That is just a paraphrasing of 4416 the words in the letter.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Do you recall that at or about this time Judge Rippey informed you that he had had a talk with Mr. MacLeish, and that Mr. MacLeish had told Mr. Rippey that your company should decide whether or not they wanted to take this license before any consideration was given to the form of it?

Mr. Steffen: I object to that as hearsay, and not proper cross examination.

Justice Stephens: Read the question.

(Thereupon, the pending question was read by the reporter.)

Justice Stephens: You are asking that not for the truth of the statement, but as a circumstance indicating the reasonableness of this witness' conduct?

Mr. Bromley: Yes.

Justice Stephens: The objection is overruled.

Mr. Bromley: Will you read the question again?

(Thereupon, the pending question was reread by the reporter.)

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. And you thereafter did decide to take the bubble license, did you? A. We did.

4417 Q. And it was signed on or about October 18, 1929, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Now in connection with the negotiation and execution of that license, did you have any understanding with any one that you would take the license in order to induce USG to purchase the so-called starch patents of Haggerty and Hite? A. No.

Q. Can you recall when you first heard that USG had bought the Haggerty and Hite patents? A. No, I don't. It was sometime prior to October of 1929, that is as near as I can place it.

Q. And in connection with those patents were you ever a party to an understanding or agreement, or did you have any knowledge of any, whereby it was agreed among some or all of the gypsum manufacturers that they would, in the future, consider the use of the starch adhesive for bond as falling within the scope of the Haggerty or Hite patents, whether it did or not?

Mr. Steffen: I object to that, your Honor, as completely outside the direct examination, and it hasn't any basis or bearing to show the state of mind of Mr. Lenci.

Mr. Bromley: I can only say that it is charged in the complaint that as a part of the execution of the license which he has examined this witness upon, Exhibit

4418 11, the starch-foam-bubble license—there was an extraneous understanding to the effect which I have just mentioned.

Justice Stephens: Well, I understand that, but the objection here, Mr. Bromley, is that this ought to be brought out as a part of your case and not on cross examination because not covered by the direct. Now how do you connect it with the direct examination?

Mr. Bromley: Well, I only connect it because he has examined this witness about the exhibit concerning which it is charged there was an extraneous oral understanding.

Justice Stephens: Which exhibit is that?

Mr. Bromley: Exhibit 11. I appreciate that he has not examined about this oral understanding, and my position must be that I am entitled to go into it although he didn't mention it, simply because he went into the written license, and it seems to me that that is proper cross.

Mr. Steffen: We have no recollection of having made any examination on Exhibit 11 which would admit of this type of cross examination, or any examination at all with respect to Exhibit 11.

Mr. Bromley: You can see right in the memorandum of the June 6th meeting, and the testimony with respect to it, counsel for the Government asked questions as to whether Henning wasn't trying to hurry these people up to get them to sign Exhibit 11.

4419 Justice Stephens: Asked questions of this witness?

Mr. Bromley: Of this witness, yes, sir, and I refer particularly to page 4163 of the transcript, at which point questions were asked about the June 6th meeting and the bubble license—and the bubble license is Exhibit 11.

Mr. Steffen: He is now going, your Honor, into the Hite and Haggerty patents, which we were not discussing at all. They had to do with starch.

Mr. Bromley: But they were covered by Exhibit 11.

Mr. Steffen: A lot of other things were covered by Exhibit 11 which haven't any bearing upon our examination.

Mr. Bromley: Perhaps I can get at it this way. Does the Government withdraw the charge—

Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) We do not withdraw the charge.

Justice Stephens: What charge? Let Mr. Bromley finish.

Mr. Steffen: Any one that he asks.

Justice Stephens: That won't help the Court much. I want to know what Mr. Bromley is asking. He was asking whether you withdraw the charge, or a charge, and you interrupted him. Complete your statement, Mr. Bromley.

Mr. Bromley: Does the Government now withdraw the charge that in connection with the execution of the foam-bubble board licenses there was an extraneous oral understanding among the licensees, with the licensor, 4420 that they would all consider the use of adhesive for bond as falling within the scope of the Haggerty and Hite patents, whether it did or not?

Mr. Steffen: I distinctly do not, your Honor, and I am surprised that the question should ever be asked.

Mr. Bromley: On page 4186 he asked the witness about these very starch patents.

Justice Jackson: What did he say?

Mr. Bromley: (Reading)

"Q. At the June 6th discussion was there anything brought up about the Hite and Haggerty patents, do you recall? A. I don't think so, I don't remember that at all.

"Q. Do you know what I mean by the so-called Hite and Haggerty patents? A. Yes.

"Q. The Haggerty patent is the patent that has starch in it? A. That is correct.

"Q. And you have no recollection of a discussion at the June 6th meeting concerning the Hite and Haggerty patents? A. No."

Justice Stephens: Are the Hite and Haggerty patents the patents covered by Exhibit No. 11?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, among others.

Justice Stephens: Where is the examination of 4421 this witness on Exhibit 11?

Mr. Steffen: There was none, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Well, I understand that there is a dispute between counsel concerning that, and I am trying to find out whether there was or not.

Mr. Bromley: At page 4163. It starts at the bottom of page 4162.

Justice Garrett: That relates to the bubble patent.

Mr. Bromley: The bubble license, Exhibit 11, yes, sir.

Justice Stephens: Well, the Haggerty and Hite patents are starch patents, aren't they?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, and they are licensed under Exhibit 11, as well as the Roos patent.

Justice Stephens: Both the bubble and the starch patents are included in that exhibit?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, sir.

Mr. Steffen: That is correct.

Justice Stephens: Do you contend that the Government made any examination of this witness in respect of the Hite and Haggerty patents?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, sir.

Justice Stephens: At what point?

Mr. Bromley: At page 4186.

Mr. Steffen: I think, your Honor, that that testimony which has been referred to on page 4186 simply 4422 has to do with whether or not at the June 6th meeting there was anything said about the Hite and Haggerty patents, and the witness said that he didn't remember that there was, and the discussion ended there. There was no examination upon Exhibit 11, no examination as to the Hite and Haggerty patents.

The witness simply said that there was no discussion as to those at the June 6th meeting, and that ended it. If he wanted to cross examine—if there had been any discussion at the June 6th meeting—as to that matter, it would be, under the Federal rules, proper. But to take it to the June 26th meeting, and all subsequent meetings, and to go into a general discussion of Exhibit 11, is completely beyond the scope of our examination.

Justice Stephens: The examination of the witness, on page 4186, does not seem to include a reference to this exhibit, Mr. Bromley.

Mr. Bromley: No, it does not.

Justice Stephens: Read the pending question, please.

(Thereupon, the pending question was read by the reporter, as follows:

"Q. And in connection with those patents were you ever a party to an understanding or agreement, or did you have any knowledge of any, whereby it was agreed among some or all of the gypsum manufacturers that they would, in the future, consider the use of the starch adhesive 4423 for bond as falling within the scope of the Haggerty or Hite patents, whether it did or not?")

Justice Stephens: Well, the point seems to be a very close one, but we are inclined to view that the defendants are entitled to examine the witness in respect of the bubble patents in the form that the question was asked; but not, Mr. Bromley, with respect to the Hite and Haggerty patents, because this witness wasn't examined in respect of Exhibit 11, on the Hite and Haggerty patents.

We do not foreclose you, however, from cross examining with respect to the testimony appearing at page 4186, where the witness said, in answer to the question:

"Q. And you have no recollection of a discussion at the June 6 meeting concerning the Hite and Haggerty patents? A. No."

You are not foreclosed, of course, from examining, on cross examination, as to whether he had a recollection at any other time on that subject.

The objection is sustained in part to the extent indicated, and overruled in part to the extent indicated.

Mr. Bromley: I feel that I haven't stated my position very clearly about the matter, and I would like, if your Honors will permit me, to say this.

The Government examined about Exhibit 419 for identification, which contained Mr. Lenci's notes of the 4424 June 6th meeting; and the very first item, you will see, refers to these bubble board contracts.

Now as I understand the Government, while they somewhat tentatively admit that a price fixing patent license, if done by a single trader, is lawful, as I understand their position it is, among other things, that our license contracts were unlawful because they were somehow arrived at as a result of concerted action taken at a meeting.

In the complaint they charge that there were a great many side understandings arrived at at these meetings, which themselves rendered the license contracts a subterfuge and a sham and unlawful.

Where Government counsel examines a witness about one of these meetings at which these license agreements were discussed, it does seem to me that I ought to be able to ask the witness on the stand who has testified, although it was very briefly, about the fact that this bubble license was discussed at the meeting, that I ought to be able to ask him any question with respect to whether or not any so-called understandings, outside of the contract, were reached or were not reached, because when my friend comes to the argument he is going to argue that there was something wrong about these license agreements because they were discussed at a meeting.

The complaint charges, in very great detail, just what the Government alleges transpired among these 4425 people by way of sub rosa agreements.

I had thought that the right to cross examine was very broad, springing from the mere fact that the Government has opened up this June 6th meeting, as well as the subsequent meetings, which had to do with the negotiation and final execution of these license agreements which they so vigorously attacked.

Justice Garrett: I don't suppose, Mr. Bromley, that you would concede that up to now the Government has made any proof respecting the Hite and Haggerty patents that would support the allegations of the complaint, would you?

Mr. Bromley: No, sir, I don't think they have, but I think they may argue—

Justice Garrett: (Interposing) Then you are fighting something—

Mr. Bromley: (Interposing) I may well be, I may well be fighting a shadow, but I think they will argue that from the fact that these matters were discussed, as they interpret the testimony, at meetings, they became illegal.

Now I agree with your Honor, I don't see how, up to this moment, they can argue that they have produced any evidence that there was any sub rosa agreement to consider the use of adhesive for bond as falling within the scope of the Haggerty and Hite patents.

Mr. Steffen: I think this is now getting the matter
4426 into the record in another way, by argument.

Mr. Bromley: My statement is not testimony—I wish it were.

Justice Stephens: There is no testimony on the subject. Do you wish to be heard, Mr. Steffen?

Mr. Steffen: I have to be heard. Mr. Bromley has now got us into a "tentative" concession regarding the single trader doctrine. We make no tentative concession as to that.

The single trader doctrine is referred to, and it is referred to as coming up in the Colgate case, but we make no concessions on that score.

On the matter of what is the proper scope of cross examination, I think that Mr. Bromley is limited, as Rule 43.(b) provides, to the scope of our examination, and our examination, I think, opened up certainly the question as to whether at the June 6 meeting there was any discussion of bubble board, and I think that in so far as Mr. Bromley wishes, he can cross examine at length on bubble board.

The only point that we have at all as to the starch patent occurs at page 4186, and all that the witness said was that there was no discussion of the Hite and Haggerty patents at that meeting.

Justice Jackson: I was just wondering, Mr. Steffen, where, if one side, as the Government has in this case, opens up a meeting, and has a witness on the stand 4427 who purports to tell everything that occurred at that meeting, why adverse counsel cannot ask whether or not other things were discussed or were not discussed.

Mr. Steffen: At that meeting, yes, we would be glad to have that, but I don't think that opens up the whole sweep of negotiations in the next ten years. If he wants to stay with the June 6th meeting, fine.

Justice Jackson: Or at any other meeting wherein this witness testified that this was discussed.

Mr. Steffen: At any other meeting where he raised that topic. The Federal rule on cross examination is fairly strict—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) Oh, yes.

Mr. Steffen: (Continuing) —that you may not go beyond the bounds of the direct, and it is perfectly open to Mr. Bromley to bring on Mr. Lenci as his own witness at the proper time.

Justice Stephens: Well, the Federal rule on cross examination is strict in the sense that the Federal rule is not the old English rule that you could examine on anything charged in the complaint, or cross examination on anything charged in the complaint, within the issues.

At the same time the application of the rule as to what constitutes cross examination within the scope of the direct, inevitably involves, to a certain extent, the 4428 discretion of the Court.

Judge Jackson and I, in view of the further discussion with reference to Exhibit 419, are of the view that it is not improper for the defendants to cross examine this witness as to what happened at both the June 6 and June 26 meetings, or at any other meeting—

Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) He wasn't at the June 26th meeting at all, and he testified as to that.

Justice Stephens: I had understood you to admit that he was.

Mr. Steffen: No, we didn't say that.

Justice Stephens: Did this witness not testify about the June 26th meeting, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: As I remember it, he said he was at "other meetings", the dates of which he could not remember, and that appears at page 4201.

Justice Jackson: He said he did not attend the March 17th meeting—I remember that. Isn't that correct, Mr. Lenci?

The Witness: That is right.

Justice Stephens: Well, it seems to me frankly, gentlemen of the Government, that it is cutting it too fine, unfairly fine, as against the defendants, to restrict the cross examination as narrowly as you insist. Certainly you are relying upon the testimony of this witness concerning the bubble patents, and the Hite and Haggerty pat-4429 ents, to the extent that he gave any. He has testified that he attended the June 6th meeting. Whether he attended the other meeting he doesn't know, but he testified that he went to some other meetings.

We will take the noon recess and consider it during the recess.

(Thereupon, at 12:15 o'clock p.m., a recess was taken until 1:45 o'clock p.m. of the same day.)

4430 AFTERNOON SESSION

(The trial was resumed at 2:00 o'clock p.m.)

Justice Stephens: Since these questions of the proper scope of cross examination seem to be constantly arising, we have gone into this matter with some pains, and I will try to state very briefly the understanding of the law as we have it, so that counsel may be guided in the future, and perhaps time will be saved.

We understand that the distinction between the so-called American, or Federal, and the so-called English rule, is that the English rule permits cross examination on any subject within the issues, whether or not it was gone into on direct examination. That is not the American or Federal rule. The Federal rule limits the cross examination to the scope of the direct. But that means the subject of the direct examination, it means the topics gone into on direct examination, and inferences to be drawn, as well as explicit statements, from the direct examination.

Cross examination within the subject of the direct examination is a matter of right, and it is error to deny it. The extent to which it may go is discretionary.

What involves the subject of the direct examination of course is, to a certain extent, inevitably discretionary. Except where time is of the essence of an issue, the topic or subject, rather than the mere date on which it was 4431 discussed, is of primary importance.

The rules are as well stated, I think, and in as succinct form as they can be, in Jones on Evidence, Volume 3, Fourth Edition, Section 821.

I will not read the whole of the section, although I will ask the court reporter to copy it as the basis of the ruling of the Court. I will refer to one or two sentences which particularly apply to the situation we have here.

(Section 821 of Jones on Evidence, Volume 3, Fourth Edition, is as follows:)

Relation of Cross Examination to Direct Examination.—The American rule does not require that the cross examining counsel be confined to the phases of a subject that have been introduced in the direct examination. Where a general subject has been entered upon in the examination in chief, the cross examining counsel may ask any relevant question on the general subject; he is not bound to follow the line of examination pursued by the adverse party. Even as to matters which are purely defensive, some of the authorities hold that it rests in the sound discretion of the court to allow the defendant to cross examine the plaintiff's witnesses. Although there are instances in which it has been held to be error in a civil action to allow cross examination as to matters which are not connected with the examination in chief, yet the prevailing rule is that very much must be left to the discretion
4432 of the presiding judge in the determination of this question. It has been said: "Unless a trial court shall so far overstep the bounds as to admit that in cross examination which clearly has no connection with the direct testimony, an appellate court would not be justified in reversing a judgment for such cause, especially where the cross examination is upon facts competent to be proved under the issues in the case."

However, the rule limiting the inquiry to the general facts which have been stated in the direct examination must not be so construed as to defeat the real objects of the cross examination. One of these objects is to elicit the whole truth of transactions which are only partly explained in the direct examination. Hence, questions which are intended to fill up designed or accidental omissions of the witness, or to call out facts tending to contradict, explain or modify some inference which might otherwise be drawn from his testimony, are legitimate cross examination. Even in those states where the American rule is applied, it has been frequently held that, in cases involving fraud, the general rule may be properly relaxed in the discretion of the court.

Although the court may exercise a reasonable discretion in regulating or limiting the cross examination, yet it is clearly error to exclude cross examination upon subjects which have been included in the examination in chief. So far as cross examination of a witness relates either 4433 to facts which are in issue or facts which are relevant to the issue, it may be pursued by counsel as a matter of right.

It is not an uncommon practice for the cross examiner to call for a repetition of the statements which have been made by the witness on direct examination. Although such a course of examination generally confirms and strengthens the testimony of the witness, it is permissible, and occasionally develops a conflict of testimony.

Justice Stephens: Now applying that to the situation which we have before us at pages 4162 and 4163, this witness testified that at the May meeting the advantages of the bubble system or process were explained, and then, subsequent to that, the United States Gypsum Company had sent Ebsary and the other licensees the license agreement covering the use of the bubble process.

At page 4163 the witness testified that his recollection was that that was sent between the May meeting and the June meeting, which was the reason, as he said, for the memorandum here that the bubble board contracts were to be considered by various counsel, that is the memorandum, Exhibit 419 for identification.

Now the bubble board contracts which were the subject of the witness' testimony, were not merely bubble board contracts, they were Hite and Haggerty patent contracts also—4434 Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) Not at that time, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Please don't interrupt me, Mr. Steffen. Give me an opportunity to state my views once, and then I will hear you again, if necessary.

Mr. Steffen: Yes, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Exhibit 11, which was signed apparently on the 18th of October, 1929, and is the bubble board contract, is, as we read it, also the Hite and Haggerty contract. Both of these patents are referred to therein, and are the subject-matter of that license agreement. It seems to us, therefore, that the testimony of Mr. Lenci on direct examination goes to the negotiations and representations and discussions between the parties with reference to the adoption, ultimately, of those contracts, and that the mere fact that he didn't mention or remember, as he says on page 4186 that he did not, a discussion of the Hite and Haggerty patents, does not forbid cross-examination on the whole subject of the negotiations since they entered into a contract with respect to both the bubble board and the Hite and Haggerty patents.

Now those are the views of the majority of the Court, and that the cross-examination is therefore proper.

Judge Garrett, I think, is of a different view with respect to the examination, so far as it touches the Hite and 4435. Haggerty patents, of this witness.

Justice Garrett: I am of a different view, but I do not complain of the admission of it under the discretionary authority of the Court.

Justice Stephens: The objections are therefore overruled. You may proceed.

Thereupon, GEORGE N. LENCI the witness on the stand at the time of the recess, resumed the stand and was examined and testified further as follows:

Mr. Bromley: Will you read the pending qusetion?

(Thereupon, the pending question was read by the reporter, as follows:

"Q. And in connection with those patents were you ever a party to an understanding or agreement, or did you have any knowledge of any, whereby it was agreed among some or all of the gypsum manufacturers that they would, in the future, consider the use of the starch adhesive for bond as falling within the scope of the Haggerty or Hite patents, whether they did or not?")

Mr. Steffen: I object to the question, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Do you wish to be heard further?

Mr. Steffen: As to the form of the question, yes. I of course have objected to it as not being proper cross-examination, but I abide by your Honor's ruling on that.

4436 Justice Stephens: You are entitled to your exception, of course.

Mr. Steffen: Now as to the form, I think the form of the question is faulty. It goes into questions as to whether there was an adhesive bond faculty in this starch patent, and whether it has that feature or not is a matter not in evidence. It is an involved and not easily understood question.

Justice Stephens: Can you rephrase your question to eliminate that objectionable feature, or do you insist upon it?

Mr. Bromley: It seems to me vital since I am only attempting to ask him whether or not he had an understanding.

Justice Stephens: Read the question again which he is objecting to.

(Thereupon, the pending question was reread by the reporter.)

Justice Jackson: The question seems to me quite involved, Mr. Bromley. It isn't clear to me.

Mr. Bromley: I will withdraw it and start over again.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Did you have any understanding or agreement with anyone that in the manufacture of gypsum board under the so-called foam license, the licensees would consider the use of adhesive to secure bond as falling within the scope of the Haggerty and Hite patents?

Mr. Steffen: I object to that still, upon the ground

4437 that there is nothing that I know of in the record, and certainly nothing in the direct examination here, about adhesive to secure bond. I don't know what he means.

Mr. Bromley: That was all covered by the testimony of Mr. Holland and Mr. Whittemore who explained just how starch was used, and how it was vital in the manufacture of board in order to secure the bond between the paper and the gypsum core.

Justice Stephens: The objection is overruled.

Justice Jackson: Do you remember the question?

The Witness: I would like to have it asked again, please.

(Thereupon, the pending question was reread by the reporter.)

The Witness: No, sir.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. It is the fact, isn't it, Mr. Lenci, that your company was anxious to get into the production of board under the foam or bubble patents, prior to the effective date of your contract? A. Yes.

Q. And you sought permission from the licensor to use these patents prior to November, 1929, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. And you were told by USG that you could not have that permission because the transaction was subject 4438 to the approval of seven or eight Federal courts in the Middle West so far as the transfer of title of the Haggerty patent was concerned? A. Yes.

Q. And you did not get into production of this patented bubble-starch board until on or after the first of November, 1929, did you? A. That is right, it was very shortly after that date.

Mr. Steffen: I object to the answer, your Honor, if by that he is to testify that he was making a board that was satisfied by the terms of the patents. If he is speaking just generally that it was his understanding that they were making such a board, that is O. K.

Justice Stephens: The Court will not construe the answer to be binding as to the question of whether or not the board was technically within the patents. That is what you had in mind, isn't it?

Mr. Steffen: That is correct.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Now I should like to ask you some questions with respect to the operations of the Ebsary Company under the USG license.

Could you tell the Court briefly what factors are involved in price, other than the usual dollar amount, if any?

Mr. Steffen: I object to that as so far it is too
4439 generalized at the moment, as to "what factors are involved in price." If he wants to get it to a particular product at a particular time, I will still object, I think, on the ground that it calls for a conclusion.

Justice Stephens: Read the question.

(Thereupon, the pending question was read by the reporter.)

Justice Jackson: Do you understand what that means?

Justice Stephens: Do you understand the question?

The Witness: I think I know what he means, yes.

Justice Stephens: It seems to me that the question is not improper, Mr. Steffen, for the reason that the direct examination went very fully into the practices of the Ebsary Gypsum Company under the license agreement with respect to basing points, areas, the size of truck loads, carload lots, stop-over charges, switching charges, and the like, and as I understand it, the contention of the Government is that those are beyond the limitations of price fixing under the General Electric case, and are not within the reasonable protection of the patent monopoly.

Aren't the defendants entitled by cross-examination, if they can, to bring out that those practices do have some relation to price? Isn't that what you are trying to bring out, Mr. Bromley.

Mr. Bromley: Yes, sir.

4440 Mr. Steffen: I think, your Honor, that that calls for a legal conclusion. I think your Honors are going to have to decide, ultimately, whether the matter of standardizing board or telling the companies as to how they are to assume switching charges, and matters of that sort, are not largely matters of regulation, and not of price.

I think it is obvious so far that the defendants have attempted to stretch this price term just to the limit, and it isn't for any witness—and I think Mr. Lenci is as competent as any—to give the legal result as to whether or not a particular function is price, or whether it is regulation. That is for this Court to determine.

Justice Stephens: Well, that is quite true, we will have to determine eventually whether these regulations are within or without the proper limitations of the General Electric doctrine, but the direct examination went into the reasonable basis and business reasons for all these practices. If an additional business reason, in the view of this witness, was that they had some effect on price, or price protection, or price control, isn't that proper cross-examination since you went into that subject yourself?

Mr. Steffen: I have no objection to Mr. Bromley going into that subject at all. I object to having this witness say that this is price. I think he can ask this witness what 4441 he did and why he did it, and whether it was for business reasons, and as to whether they were good business reasons. But I object strenuously to permitting the witness to state a conclusion.

Justice Stephens: Judge Jackson has doubt as to what the question means. I think that we are all agreed that the line of examination which you are apparently entering into is a proper line of examination. Perhaps you can rephrase this question so that it will satisfy Judge Jackson's doubt a little bit, as to its meaning.

Justice Jackson: I haven't any doubt, I just don't understand the question. The witness thinks he does, however, and possibly the answer might clarify the question.

Mr. Bromley: I will withdraw the question and ask him this.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Isn't it a fact that many factors are involved in the price of gypsum board other than the actual dollar amount per thousand feet? A. Yes.

Q. For instance, if you were told that you could sell gypsum board at $13 per thousand square feet at your mill, would that enable you to operate as a commercial business matter? A. No.

Mr. Steffen: I object to that. How can the witness say whether he would be enabled to operate on a $13 price 4442 f. o. b. mill. What does he mean by "operate" or "be able to operate"—at a profit, or at a loss, or at $13 today, or tomorrow?

Justice Stephens: I understood the question to mean—was that a sufficiently practical definition or statement of price, or would it have to be attended by other limitations in order to make that price effective.

Mr. Bromley: That is what I meant.

Justice Stephens: Is there any objection to that?

Mr. Steffen: I don't understand what you mean by "to make that price effective".

Justice Stephens: To make $13 the price.

Mr. Steffen: As I get the question, Mr. Bromley starts out with a hypothesis that there is a $13 price f. o. b. mill, and from then on I am lost. I don't know what follows. Start with that, though, that suppose you had that price f. o. b. mill, today, I suppose, relating to gypsum lath.

Justice Jackson: That is just an arbitrary figure, I take it?

Mr. Bromley: That is all.

Justice Stephens: I think that the examination is entirely proper. It is, at any rate, obviously preliminary to a discussion of these various other factors which it is contended relate to price.

Mr. Steffen: We have no objection to his going into this line of questioning, but I think the questions ought to 4443 be intelligible.

Mr. Bromley: Can you answer the question?

The Witness: May I have the question?

Justice Stephens: The objection is overruled.

(Thereupon, the last question and answer were read by the reporter.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. In other words, you mean by that, that you would have to know whether that price applied to a large quantity or a small quantity, wouldn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And you would have to know whether that price applied to a situation where you were expected to make a free delivery, or whether the customer was to pay for the delivery, wouldn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Now you told us some time ago that in the gypsum industry for years, dealers were accustomed to pay a price made up of two factors, the mill price plus the cost of freight to destination, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Now a switching charge, to which reference has just recently been made, is a part of the freight charge made by the railroad, isn't it? A. That is correct.

4444 Q. For delivery by freight, by car? A. Yes.

Q. And if you were told by a licensor that your price that you must sell to a dealer at was the mill base price plus the carload freight, and you shipped to a customer where a switching operation was involved, if you bore the switching charge that would be cut in the price which the licensor had fixed, wouldn't it? A. That is right.

Q. It would be cut in the price in the same way that it would be if you bore the whole freight charge yourself? A. Yes.

Q. That is to say, if the price is made up of the price at the mill, plus the freight, then that price, instead of being $13, might be $14.50—and that is the price which the dealer is to pay you, is it not? A. At destination.

Q. At destination, yes. A. Yes.

Q. And that is the price which is fixed by the licensor in the bulletin to you? A. That is right.

Q. So that if you reimbursed him for a part of that $1.50, you would be selling the goods to him at less than 4445 $14.50, wouldn't you? A. That is right.

Q. And likewise, if you sold less than a carload to a dealer, at this $13 mill price, that would be a cut of the price that was fixed in the bulletin for less than a carload lot, would it not? A. Well, on our less than carload lots there was a specified price at the mill.

Q. Yes. Now if you delivered less than a carload lot to a customer, at the carload price, that would be a cut in the less than carload price, wouldn't it? A. That is correct, yes.

Justice Stephens: I don't understand that. I should think that would be a cut in the carload price.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Well, Mr. Lenci, if you sell a man less than a carload of gypsum board, and the price for that is fixed at $15 per thousand feet, and if you give him the carload price, you would sell it to him at $13, wouldn't you? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: I see what you mean.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. And that would be less than the price which you should have charged? A. That is right.

Q. Most of these factors, of which I have spoken, 4446 are factors which involve the rendition of some kind of service to the dealer, do they not? A. Yes, they go beyond the mere freight item—they cover, in a great many cases, warehousing and truckload deliveries beyond that point.

Q. For instance, free trucking to a dealer-customer is a service to the customer, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. It is a service to the customer which is worth money to the customer? A. Yes.

Q. And it costs money to render it, doesn't it? A. It certainly does.

Q. So that it has been the fact, over the years, has it not, that when the licensor fixed a price for delivery by truck, that that price was generally higher, in terms of dollars per thousand feet, than the carload price was? A. It was until recent years.

Q. Well, it was until recent years for the reason that, if you delivered goods purchased by a dealer to that dealer in a truck at your cost, you were rendering him a service which was worth money to him? A. Yes.

Q. And if you made a truck delivery to a dealer, 4447 of gypsum board, and charged not the price that was set for truck delivery, but the price that was set for carload delivery, that accommodation to him directly affected the price which he paid, and you realized, did it not? A. Yes.

Q. By the same token, if you deliver a small quantity of board to a dealer, say one thousand feet, instead of a carload to a dealer, the fact that you are willing to, and do, make frequent small deliveries to him constitutes a service to him which is worth money to him, doesn't it? A. The trucking item is much higher on a part load than it is on a full load, per square foot.

Q. And therefore, in the normal operation of your business, if you made small quantity deliveries by truck, you would expect to charge and receive more per thousand feet from any customer, wouldn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And if you had a price fixed for that, which defined a certain area within which you could make those deliveries, and you delivered to somebody outside of the area, at the price fixed for deliveries within the area, you would be serving that customer with a service which was worth more to him than it would be to people within the area, wouldn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Now was it the fact that you quickly found out, 4448 under the license agreement, that a licensee who lived up to the bulletin restrictions in good faith lost customers if another licensee violated the price provisions of the bulletins? A. Yes.

Q. And would you say that there are many ways of cutting the fixed prices, other than reducing merely the amount of dollars charged per thousand feet? A. Yes.

Q. Well, can you tell us some of those ways? A. Well, making small deliveries, or allowing very small pickups at warehouses; or making special arrangements with dealers for warehousing, and paying rent for warehousing in a dealer's warehouse. There are any number of ways. We made a great many complaints.

Q. Would granting an imaginary or unfounded damage claim be a way of making a rebate on the fixed price of board? A. Yes.

Q. Would it constitute a rebate on the price of board if you gave the purchaser other products for nothing? A. Yes.

Q. And would that same principle apply where you gave him other products at prices below prevailing market prices? A. Yes.

Q. Your memorandum of the first licensee meeting as I remember it indicates that for the first two years

4449 or so after November, 1929, there were a great many violations, according to USG, of the minimum prices which it fixed on the patented board—is that right? A. Yes.

Q. And you have testified that Mr. MacLeish said that your company violated the license agreement 711 times in a two-year period, is that right? A. That is right.

Justice Garrett: The memorandum to which you refer was excluded, was it not?

Mr. Bromley: Yes.

Justice Stephens: But the witness did testify from his own recollection as refreshed by that, that there were a large number of violations charged by Mr. MacLeish, and that 711 applied to his company.

Mr. Bromley: And the memorandum that he used was Government's Exhibit 477 for identification, I think, being his notes.

4450 Mr. Steffen: I think the record should show, Your Honor, that we object to all this testimony as to violation of price terms, as being testimony having to do with a conclusion of law, whether it is a price term or whether it is a regulation of the industry in general.

Justice Garrett: As I understand, you are not asking for a ruling. You just want the record to show the objection.

Mr. Steffen: That is correct.

Justice Stephens: The record may show a continuing objection, and that it is overruled.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Didn't you find out, after you had been in operation under the license for a couple of years, that all kinds of ways were being devised by your competitors, either directly or indirectly, to violate the minimum prices that were set by the licensor? A. Yes.

Q. And you understood, did you not, that it was because of the great number of violations, and for the purpose of attempting to enforce adherence to USG's price bulletins, that Board Survey was formed? A. Yes, that was my understanding.

Q. You knew that Board Survey was a part of the 4451 USG organization, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. Did you or your company have anything to do with its formation? A. Nothing whatever.

Q. Did you have any interest in it of any kind, direct or indirect—I mean financial interest? A. Not financial or otherwise.

Q. And you had no voice nor any part in its management or operation, did you? A. No.

Q. And at no time did anybody from your company ever participate in its management or operation? A. No.

Q. And that is likewise true as to its organization, is it not? A. That is correct.

Q. And you understood, didn't you, Mr. Lenci, that the meeting of October 17, 1932, to which you have testified, was called by the licensor because of the licensor's contention that the licensees were guilty of almost wholesale violations of the price bulletins? A. Yes.

Q. And according to Mr. MacLeish, the number of violations of the price provisions on patented board ran into the tens of thousands of dollars, and the millions of 4452 square feet of board, did it not? A. Yes.

Q. Did I understand you to say that Mr. MacLeish mentioned all of the items to which you have testified as appearing on your notes, Exhibit 477 for Identification, or only some of them? A. It is my recollection that he mentioned all of them.

Q. And is it a fact that he did that by way of illustrating the more frequent ways in which these alleged violations were accomplished by the licensees, according to his contention? A. Yes.

Q. And such things as you testified to, as advertising allowances, and switching charges, and stop-over charges, and warehousing arrangements, Mr. MacLeish stated, did he not, were regarded by the licensor as rebates when employed in connection with the purchase and sale of patented board? A. Yes.

Q. And all of these things, if used for the purpose, were ways of cutting the fixed board prices, were they not? A. They were, yes.

Mr. Steffen: I object to that, Your Honor, as a conclusion. He is asking for a construction of the li-4453 cense agreement from this witness, that this was a violation of the agreement.

Justice Stephens: How would you suggest that the defendants prove their defense except by questions like this?

Mr. Steffen: I would say, Your Honor, that this is distinctly not the way to prove their defense. They have the contract, as they have been telling us, in evidence. It has been in evidence since last November. And the construction of the contract, with the facts before the Court, is for the Court. It is not for this witness to say, "We think that constituted a violation of the contract", and they don't need any further proof.

Justice Stephens: You see the problem of the Judges, Mr. Steffen. We try to make these rulings in a fair and equitable way, and to give both sides a full chance to prove their case. I don't understand this testimony to be coming in at all to prove what the license agreement was.

Mr. Steffen: The question was—"Do you regard this as a violation of the contract?"

Justice Stephens: Oh, no, he didn't say anything like that.

Read the question.

(The question was read by the reporter.)

Mr. Steffen: I am sorry, I withdraw my objection.

4454 Justice Stephens: Of course, we are not going to permit witnesses to tell us what these license contracts mean, but I don't see how the defendants can be forbidden from showing what, under their business explanations, were the reasons for these practices which you condemn as a pattern of price fixing, illegitimate under the terms of the General Electric case. It seems to me that it would be clear error to stop this type of examination.

You may proceed.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. As I remember your testimony, you said that Mr. MacLeish, after going over these types of alleged violations, said many times that these practices would have to stop. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Lenci, that all he said was that these practices which he had listed and catalogued, in his opinion constituted violations of the minimum price bulletins on patented board? A. Well, he certainly did say that, yes.

Q. You also said, at page 4318, that he said only cash sales would be permitted. Didn't that statement to which you testified have reference to some question that was asked him as to the propriety of a company taking bonds of a customer corporation at their face value which, as a matter of fact, at the time they were taken, were worth only

4455 30 cents on the dollar? A. That question came up in connection with the Chicago Fair, and at the date of that meeting no one expected the Chicago Fair ever to pay out on those bonds, and we felt that that was taking an unfair advantage to sell material and take bonds in payment, which bonds were not worth their face value, their par value. We thought that that was a rebate or a cut in price.

Q. Well, don't you now say that you were in error when you said that MacLeish said that you could only sell your goods for cash? There was no such requirement as that, was there, in the bulletins? A. Well, possibly I didn't mean cash, but I meant for the equivalent in dollars of the prices specified in the bulletins.

Q. Well, none of your sales, as a matter of fact, were for cash, were they, or very few of them? A. No, not in the strict sense, no.

Q. You always extended credit to your customers, and the bulletins permitted that, didn't they? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Now subsequent to this meeting of October 17, 1932, the Board Survey Company, at least until 1937, investigated complaints which were filed with it by various licensees against other licensees or the licensor, did it not?

4456 A. Yes.

Q. Will you look at the following exhibits, please: 438, and 447 to 450, inclusive, and 452 to 457, inclusive?

(Government's Exhibits 438, 447 to 450, inclusive, and 452 to 457, inclusive, handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Would you say that these exhibits, Mr. Lenci, were examples of the kind of complaints which your company made to the Board Survey Company and which were considered by the Board Survey Company? A. Yes, they are.

Q. What is the fact as to whether or not all of your complaints with respect to alleged violations of USG bulletins, which you made to USG or to Board Survey Company, were limited to matters having to do with the price or the sale of patented gypsum board?

Mr. Steffen: We object to that on the ground that it calls for a conclusion as to what is meant by "price". I think that the question should be broken down into separate items so as to get the facts before the Court.

Justice Stephens: Read the question.

(The question was read by the reporter.)

Justice Stephens: We don't construe that question, and will not construe it, Mr. Steffen, as calling for a conclusion on the part of this witness that this board

4457 which he is asked about in the question was technically manufactured within the patent processes. What I understand the question is directed to, and my colleagues share my view, is the board which, in this witness' understanding, was being manufactured and sold by them under the patent, as distinguished from some other board.

Mr. Steffen: My objection didn't go to that point, although it appropriately might have gone to that point. I assume that Your Honors understood my objections on that score.

As I listened to this question, it seemed to me that Mr. Bromley is asking Mr. Lenci whether all of his objections had to do with matters of price under the bulletins or under the license agreements. Now when you ask that question—and it is undoubtedly in relation to these matters which we have been taking up, and probably some others which may be in the mind of the witness—you are asking for a construction of "price".

Now the license agreements provide that the licensor may fix the minimum price or prices, and under that contract stipulation they have issued all these bulletins; and they have construed it, or considered, perhaps, that whether it was price or not, they would make it look like price for purposes of getting within the contract.

Now when you ask the witness whether or not all 4458 of his complaints had to do with price, you are asking whether or not these complaints were properly within the price terms of the contract.

It seems to me that Mr. Bromley should ask him—"What did you do; what was your complaint about; was it about a rebate; was it about switching charges; was it about this, that or the other thing?"

With that all developed, then there is nothing further for him to talk about. It is for the Court then to determine whether that has to do with price or doesn't have to do with price as it comes up under the contract.

But when he asks a very omnibus question here which says, "Did all of your complaints have to do with price?" he is expecting to write into the record a conclusion by this witness that everything they ever did was a proper thing under the price terms of the contract, and that is a very obvious conclusion of law which it seems to me the Court must make and not the witness. It is very, I should think, improper cross-examination.

Justice Stephens: Well, the Court is certainly not going to conclude from this witness' testimony that he is testifying that these complaints were proper complaints in respect of price, because the question doesn't even include that term. It seems to me the objection that the question is of an omnibus character goes to its weight. You 4459 have a right to bring out on re-direct-examination, if you can, that he is mistaken when he says all the complaints went to price.

As I understand, the term "price" is not being used in the technical, legal conclusional sense—and it doesn't seem to me that the witness understands that it is—of what is proper under the General Electric case, but I thought the question was directed to bringing out whether or not the witness' complaints had to do with matters which, according to his understanding of the complaints, would affect the amount they would get paid for their product.

Isn't that what you are trying to find out about, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, sir.

Justice Stephens: I don't think that is objectionable, and the objection is overruled.

The Witness: My answer is certainly "Yes" to that question.

Mr. Steffen: Your answer was to the Court's question?

The Witness: Yes, and Mr. Bromley's question,—Mr. Bromley's question with the Court's interpretation of it.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Now, it wasn't very often, was it, Mr. Lenci, that you secured evidence that some one of your competitors had made a sale at a dollar figure less than the 4460 prescribed mill base price? A. No, it was usually in the form of some special service or some concession of some kind.

Q. Would you say that what you usually found out about and what you were usually complaining about was some indirect price cut? A. Yes, a great many of these were cases of indirect price cutting.

At one time, on the record there, there was a complaint of cash rebates, but that wasn't the largest complaint. The largest complaint we had was this type of thing.

Q. When you say "this type of thing", you refer to the exhibits before you, the numbers of which I mentioned a little while ago? A. Yes.

Q. You felt that this indirect price cutting was as much of a price reduction as though the board had been sold at a figure less than the mill base figure, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. And you were perfectly sincere in making these complaints, weren't you? A. We certainly were.

Q. Did violations of this kind, during the years subsequent to 1929, mean much to your company in amount 4461 of business which you lost or which you felt you might otherwise have secured? A. Yes, they did.

Q. In other words, if one of your competitors violated his contractual obligations under the license and made an indirect price cut, that fact alone might mean the difference between your getting the business and his getting the business, is that right? A. It very definitely did.

Q. And in 1932, how important had this matter of violations of price bulletin terms by your competitors become? A. Well, it had become extremely important.

Q. And what can you tell us as to how you felt with respect to the extent to which it was affecting your own volume of business, if any? A. Well, if you will notice, a great many of our complaints are around the New York and New Jersey metropolitan territory, and we had a warehouse in New York and a mill warehouse in Newark, and those two operations were dependent upon this New York-New Jersey territory, and they were very seriously affected by the competition from the other companies, especially those named in these complaints.

Q. Is it true that generally speaking, a building supply material dealer will buy, from the manufacturer, 4462 products like gypsum board at the lowest price offered to him? A. Yes.

Q. As you said the other day, in 1932 and in 1933, the country was suffering from a very severe depression? A. Yes.

Q. Would you say that during those years particularly, business was hard to get for your company? A. It was extremely hard to get.

Q. And what is the fact as to whether or not there was a great deal of competition with respect to each new construction job as it came along, particularly during those years? A. Well, there was competition not only for every job, but for every carload and every truckload order.

Q. I take it, Mr. Lenci, that you felt your company was living up to its contractual obligations under the license? A. We did, we took a great deal of pride in it.

Q. On the other hand, it is the fact, is it not, that your company was accused by your competitors of a very large number of violations during this period? A. We were.

Q. Wouldn't you say that your competitors were 4463 about as suspicious of you as you were of them? A. Well, I don't know what their state of mind was, Mr. Bromley.

Q. Well, it is the fact, isn't it, that over the years from 1932 to 1939, you complained a great many times, about the practices of your competitors, to Board Survey Company? A. Yes.

Q. And, of course, those complaints were limited, were they not, to licensees doing business in the area which you served with your products? A. Yes.

Q. And what is the reason that so many of these complaints seemed to have to do with the Kelley Plasterboard Company, can you tell us? A. Well, Kelley had a plant in Delawanna, which is quite close to the New York and Newark area where we were operating, it is within about 5 or 6 miles of our Newark plant, and they were very aggressive in the New York-New Jersey markets; and you can see from the nature of these complaints that they had men out on commission, and jobbing arrangements, and also they made a great number of sales through the Structural Gypsum Division.

Q. Would you say that Kelley was one of your most vigorous competitors? A. Yes, I would say—I 4464 would like to modify that, I would say that he was one of our most troublesome competitors.

Q. What about the Certain-teed Company? A. They, at that time, were not active in that area.

Q. Was there a time when they were a vigorous competitor of yours in that area? A. Not for any long period, no.

Q. What was another vigorous competitor, in that area, of yours? A. The United States Gypsum Company and the National Gypsum Company were both active there.

Q. Now, there was nothing secret about these complaints, was there, Mr. Lenci, so far as you were concerned? A. Not a thing.

Q. And you meant what you wrote to Board Survey, didn't you, when you complained? A. Yes, we certainly did.

Justice Stephens: The Court will take the afternoon recess at this point.

(Thereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed as follows:)

Justice Stephens: Proceed.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Will you look at Exhibit 438, please?

In the first paragraph of that letter, Mr. Lenci, 4465 you were complaining merely that a discount was being given to jobbers by some licensee, were you not? A. Yes, that should have been stated in there.

Q. What you said was "Referring to the recent bulletin of the United States Gypsum Company advising the licensees that selling through Jobbers had been eliminated."

You knew when you wrote that that all the bulletins had done was level off the price as between jobbers and dealers, didn't you? A. That is correct. It is merely shortened up there, because that is the way I understood it, and everybody else understood it the same way.

Q. Well, what is the way you understood it? A. The letter should have read, "advising the licensees that selling through jobbers at a discount had been eliminated".

Q. And when you said that you understood it, and that is the way everybody else understood it, you meant that they all understood that all that had been eliminated was the right of a manufacturer to sell a jobber at a discount, is that right? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. Referring to the second paragraph of Exhibit 348, what does that paragraph mean, Mr. Lenci? A. That means that Daniel Duskis, who was a dealer in Long Island, was buying Certain-teed board through Orin F.
4466 Perry. Daniel Duskis is a dealer, and he certainly would not buy from Mr. Perry if Mr. Perry was paying Certain-teed the dealer's price, which would indicate to me that Perry was still getting a jobber's discount from Certain-teed.

Q. Then it is your testimony, is it, that in the second paragraph, you were complaining to Board Survey about a price cut on the part of the Certain-teed Company? A. Yes.

Q. And you were complaining specifically that, based on the evidence of what Duskis was doing, that is, buying board from Perry, you felt Certain-teed was giving Perry a discount, which was prohibited by the USG bulletins then in effect; is that right? A. That is right.

Q. And you would admit, wouldn't you, that anyone unfamiliar with what you were talking about would not be able to say right offhand whether that paragraph was a complaint against Duskis or a complaint against Perry or a complaint against Certain-teed? A. They might not, if they were not familiar with the background.

Q. But you have no doubt, have you, but what it was your intention and purpose to complain about the price which Certain-teed was charging Orin F. Perry? A. That is our complaint.

4467 Q. And you felt that that price which Certain-teed was giving Perry was a cut price in the sense that it was lower than the price which the bulletins fixed for sales to dealers and jobbers? A. Yes.

Q. The third paragraph contains a reference to a USG price bulletin establishing a $2.00 differential between board shipped in mixed cars and full cars, for the metropolitan New York area, does it not? A. Yes.

Q. Now the effect of that bulletin provision was merely to permit a licensee to charge a higher price on a smaller quantity purchase, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. That is, the differential of $2.00 was a price $2.00 a thousand higher where the sale which a licensee made was a mixed carload sale rather than a full carload sale, wasn't it? A. That is correct.

Q. And that is merely a way of saying that where a licensee sells a smaller quantity of board than a full carload, he must charge a higher price per thousand feet, under the bulletins, isn't it? A. Yes.

4468 Q. And, of course, if a licensee sold a mixed carload of gypsum products, there would be contained in that mixed carload a smaller quantity of board than would be contained in a full carload, wouldn't there? A. That is correct.

Q. Now in the third paragraph, you make reference to that bulletin provision establishing the $2.00 per thousand higher price for a quantity of board less than a full carload, and in the next paragraph you talk about what the Tisdale Lumber Company of Flushing had done, do you not? A. Yes.

Q. Now the Tisdale Lumber Company of Flushing was a what? A. They were a dealer.

Q. And they had purchased less than a full carload of board from the Structural people? A. That is right.

Q. But they had only paid for it, per thousand square feet, the carload price? A. That is right.

Q. Now against whom were you complaining in that paragraph? A. I was complaining against the Kelley Plasterboard Company.

Q. And what was your complaint against the Kelley Plasterboard Company? A. I was complaining that 4469 the Kelley Plasterboard Company must have made some concession to the Structural Gypsum Corporation, below the bulletin price, on this board contained in the mixed carload shipped to the Tisdale Lumber Company.

Q. Now, at the time you made that complaint, you had no evidence whatsoever as to what actually was charged by the Kelley Company to the Structural Company, did you? A. No, we had no access to that.

Q. You knew, however, that under the bulletin provisions Kelley must charge Structural the dealer price less a specified discount of 12-1/2 percent for lath, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. You knew that much? A. Yes.

Q. That is to say, if the price for lath at that time was $13.00, the bulletin provided that Kelley must charge Structural the dealer price of $13.00 less 12-1/2 percent of $13.00? A. If it was in a full carload.

Q. If it was in a full carload? A. Yes.

Q. So that the only margin of profit for the Structural Company in that transaction was approximately 4470 $1.60 a thousand, or 12-1/2 percent of $13.00, wasn't it? A. That is right.

Q. Now, you found out that the Tisdale Company, a dealer, had bought, at the carload price, less than a carload quantity from Structural, did you not? A. That is right.

Q. And what did you conclude from that piece of evidence which you say you had? A. I concluded that the Kelley Company had not charged the $2.00 differential to the Structural Gypsum Corporation.

Q. And is that what you were complaining about in this paragraph of Exhibit 438? A. Yes.

Q. Now, the Tisdale Lumber Company, the dealer, of Flushing, New York, which had purchased this board from the Structural Company, was a prospective customer of yours, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. Under the USG bulletins, if you had sold 16,000 square feet of board to the Tisdale Lumber Company, you would have had to charge that company the dealer's price fixed for less than carload lots in the bulletins? A. That is correct.

Q. So that Kelley's cut price to Structural resulted in Structural being able to take away from you the 4471 Tisdale Company, one of your prospective customers? A. That is right.

Q. And you felt that you were, therefore, being injured in your business by the violation, on Kelley's part, of the prices fixed for its sales by USG, didn't you? A. That is right.

Q. And you felt, didn't you, that you were losing customers which you might otherwise have sold, because of price concessions which Kelley was making to Structural and others, below the proper prices set for Kelley in the USG bulletins? A. That is right.

Q. Now, look at the 6th paragraph of this letter. That is, I believe, the second mention of the subject of exchanges, to which the Presiding Justice referred the other day.

Will you please explain to us why you felt, if you did, that this business of exchanges was an indirect violation of the price bulletin provisions? A. Well, the price bulletins at that time provided for a price for a 5,000 foot minimum pick-up, and it was our feeling that if these dealers, as they ran short of material, could constantly go in and pick up a few boards, and maybe return others in place of them, that they were getting a special service in there which was hurting the rest of us, and they 4472 were doing something which was not contemplated in the price bulletins.

Q. And when you say "they" were doing something, you mean the Kelley Company? A. I mean the Kelley Compan in this case, yes.

You see, Ebsary Gypsum Company naturally established a 5,000 foot minimum pick-up on the basis of the bulletins, and if any of our customers ran out of a certain size they would come to us and buy a new truckload, putting in a larger quantity of the size they ran short of, and we would get a truckload order. But if they could go up to Mr. Kelley's plant and take back a few boards that they didn't happen to need, and get a few more of a different size, we just lost that sale, and that was giving them a considerable amount of extra service without any extra charge, and was a price cut, price concession.

Q. Well, let's see if I understand it. Suppose I bought you a full carload of gypsum board at the carload price of $30 per thousand. Now if I thereafter desired to buy from you a thousand feet of that same board, under your license you would have to charge me more than $30 per thousand feet, wouldn't you? A. Yes, there was no price set for a thousand feet.

Q.-All right. Say I wanted to buy 5,000 feet of board, under your bulletins you would have to charge me 4473 more than $30 a thousand, which was the full carload price per unit? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. And that is a normal business practice, isn't it, to charge less for a large quantity, per unit, than for a small quantity, per unit? A. Yes.

Q. There is nothing strange about that, is there? A. No.

Q. Now, if I took some of my board that I received in a full carload, and for which I paid $30 a thousand, and came around to your plant and exchanged it for 5,000 feet of the same kind of board, I would, in effect, be making a purchase of a small quantity at the carload price, wouldn't I? A. Yes.

Q. And that, in effect, would be a cut in the price, of $32, say, set for 5,000 foot quantities? A. That is right.

Q. Is that what this reference in the 6th paragraph, to exchanges, means? A. Yes.

Q. You looked upon the practice of permitting exchanges as an indirect price cut in the price of the small 4474 quantity exchanged, didn't you? A. That is right.

Justice Stephens: There is one phase of that type of transaction that I still don't quite understand. I understand now your point of view with respect to going in and buying 5,000 feet, which is a large amount. But I understood you to testify on your direct-examination by Mr. Knuff that there would be exchanges of a few boards made.

The Witness: That was in connection with exchanges between manufacturers.

Justice Jackson: That is not what you are talking about now?

The Witness: No, we are not talking about that now.

Justice Stephens: I see.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Well, let's talk about it. Suppose I am USG, and you are Ebsary. The same principle would apply, wouldn't it? If I took my own board and exchanged, for some of your board, a small quantity, that still might constitute a price cut in the small quantity of the board which you gave me, mightn't it? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: That is for the reason, if I may inquire, that an exchange is a form of purchase, and therefore, if you exchange a small amount it would be outside the bulletin provisions?

4475 The Witness: Yes. And besides that, it is quite an expense to the person who has the warehouse to handle these small quantities. The trucks would come in at unexpected times, and they would demand this special service, and it cost just as much to invoice a dozen boards as it does a carload.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Now, following out the suggestion of the Presiding Justice, if I purchase board from you, I can either pay for it in money or in goods, can't I? A. Yes.

Q. And if I— A. (Interposing) Well, to clear up this thing, these exchanges between manufacturers were not really exchanges. We wouldn't take a certain number of our boards to the USG's warehouse and trade them for their boards. We would go to their warehouse and ask them to give us a few boards of a type we happened to be short of at that particular moment, and we would pay for them in the usual course of business. That is what we were asking them to permit us to do, and they said they could only do that if we would take a straight truckload, they didn't want us to come in there and pick up a few boards as a matter of convenience. In other words, they weren't anxious, any more than we would be, to help out the competitor.

4476 Justice Stephens: So you weren't using the word "exchange" in the sense of barter?

The Witness: No.

Justice Stephens: You were using the word "exchange" to describe a transaction whereby you purchased from some other manufacturer less than the amount prescribed in the bulletin, and they, in turn, purchased from you in a similar manner?

The Witness: That is right.

Justice Stephens: I got the impression you were talking about trading board for board.

The Witness: It was known as exchanges between manufacturers, but it was not a true exchange.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Lenci, you know, don't you, that at the time you wrote Exhibit 438, there was nothing in the bulletins that prohibited this practice or bore on the practice at all? A. No, I don't believe there was.

Q. And all you did in this letter, Exhibit 438, was to ask the question? A. Yes.

Q. Now, do you know whether you ever got an answer? No answer is here among these letters. A. I don't think we did.

4477 Q. And you remember, don't you, that no provision was ever put in the bulletins about this subject, at any time? A. I don't think there was, I don't recall any.

Q. Now, will you look at Exhibit 447, please?

This letter of May 16, 1932, was a follow-up of Exhibit 438, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. You wanted Board Survey to take some action with respect to stopping the alleged Kelley violations, didn't you? A. That is right.

Q. And in addition, in Exhibit 447 you make some more complaints, do you not? A. Yes.

Q. In the second paragraph, do you see a reference to Dusol? A. Yes.

Q. Now what was that complaint? A. Well, that was a complaint that Dusol, who was their Brooklyn salesman, was offering the lumber dealers over there the right to come and pick up quantities of board from the Kelley Plasterboard Company less than the 5,000 foot minimum in effect at that time, but Kelley was charging them at the 5,000 foot price.

Q. So that he was selling board, at a price set for 4478 a large quantity, in small lots or quantities? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And you considered that to be a violation of the price provisions of the USG bulletins? A. That is correct.

Q. And that is why you complained? A. Yes.

Q. Was that practice of the Kelley Company detrimental to your business at that time? A. Yes, very definitely.

Q. And did you lose, or were you afraid that you would lose, dealer-customers because of what Kelley was doing through its salesman, Dusol? A. Yes.

Q. Now in the fourth paragraph of that letter, what was the complaint against Kelley referred to there? A. That was a complaint that the Kelley Plasterboard Company was selling Robert S. Green, who was a dealer in Baltimore, board below the bulletin price. That was a straight complaint of a price cut.

Q. That was a straight complaint of a direct price cut, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: What do you mean by "small board"?

The Witness: Gypsum lath. We usually spoke of 4479 the wallboard as big board, and the lath as small board.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. And in the next paragraph you refer to the fact that your fear is that you are losing customers by these violations on the part of the Kelley Company? A. Yes.

Q. In Exhibit 449, you were complaining about Kelley again, were you not? A. Yes.

Q. In the fourth paragraph, you are referring to a situation in which one of Kelley's salesmen is splitting his commission, and therefore giving a rebate to the purchaser on board, are you not? A. Yes.

Q. And that is made clear, is it not, in the last sentence of that paragraph: "We believe that the only way L. A. Dusol can work on this basis is through some split with George Dusol who is working as a salesman for the Kelley Plasterboard Company."? A. That is right.

Q. You believed at that time, did you not, that Dusol was a commission salesman of Kelley? A. Yes.

Q. And so far as you know, he was? A. I believe he was.

4480 Q. And your charge was that the price which Kelley was charging to its customers was indirectly cut below the stipulated figure by a refund, by this salesman Dusol, out of his commission, to the customer? A. That was our complaint.

Justice Stephens: Do you mean by that, by a "split commission", that the salesman for Kelley who was working on a commission basis, would therefore get paid a certain number of dollars as a commission on a sale, and would take some of those dollars and give them over to the dealer?

The Witness: That is right. You see, the dealer was his brother.

Justice Stephens: That would, in effect, reduce the price to the dealer?

The Witness: That is right.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. In connection with that question, Mr. Lenci, the use of commission salesmen by licensees, in connection with their board sales, gave rise to a great many abuses, in the period from 1929 to date, didn't it? A. Yes.

Q. You referred, in your answers to the questions just asked you by the Presiding Justice, to an actual return of cash to a customer, by a licensee's salesman, out of the commission paid by the licensee to his salesman, did 4481 you not? A. Yes.

Q. Well, there were other ways, weren't there, to accomplish commission splitting? A. Well, I think I had some complaint here where—no, that wouldn't be a commission split—of a direct cut in price, and also where a refund was made by salesmen other than commission men.

Q. But I refer to this situation: Wasn't it a common practice of some of these licensees to sell to a dealer, and then name one of the officers or employees of that dealer, or a relative of the dealer, as a commission salesman for the manufacturer, and pay him a commission, which he in turn gave to the dealer company? A. It seems to me there is a case of that kind. It doesn't come to mind just at this moment.

Q. But that was a practice which was frequently used, according to your information, in your area, wasn't it? A. Well, this Dusol matter is an outstanding example of that.

Q. Well, is that because there was some connection between the salesman Dusol, and the customer Dusol? A. They were brothers.

Q. They were brothers? A. Yes.
4482 Q. Well, is that an example of what I just said? Didn't the salesman Dusol give to the customer Dusol a part of the commission? A. Yes.

Q. Well, I am not talking about that situation at all, and I am trying to find out from you whether there wasn't another analogous situation in which a licensee-manufacturer would sell a dealer, and say to the dealer, "Now, if you will buy from me, I will make you or one of your employees, for the purpose of this transaction, a commission salesman of mine, and pay you a commission."? A. I don't recall, at the moment. I think there was something of that kind, but it has slipped my mind for the moment. Can you give me something to refresh my memory with?

Q. Weren't you active in the formulation of the NRA Code of Fair Practices? A. Yes.

Mr. Steffen: I think that comes up somewhat later, Your Honor. This is 1932 that we are inquiring about.

Mr. Bromley: I am trying to refresh his recollection.

Mr. Steffen: As to subsequent events?
Mr. Bromley: Yes.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. You were a member of the Code Authority,
4483 weren't you? A. Yes.

Q. Don't you remember that in formulating that Code, you considered this problem? A. I think we did. I haven't seen the Code since 1935, and I don't remember.

Q. I refer you to Rule 10 of the Code of Fair Competition for the Gypsum Industry, which provides:

"No member of the industry shall permit splitting of commissions or other compensation"—

Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) I don't think that should be read into the record, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: You may show it to the witness, Mr. Bromley.

Justice Jackson: Mark the portion you want him to read.

Mr. Bromley: It is Rule 10. It is marked in pencil.

(Document referred to handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Mr. Lenci, having read that rule, does it bring back to your mind at all that this very man, George Dusol, mentioned in the fourth paragraph of your letter, Exhibit 449, was really connected with dealer Dusol, and as a matter of actual fact wasn't a commission salesman 4484 for Kelley at all? A. Well, we had a pretty good idea that that was the case.

Justice Stephens: Hand that to the Court, please, Mr. Marshal.

(The Code referred to was handed to the Court.)

Justice Stephens: Hand it to counsel for the Government, if they wish to see it.

(The Code was handed to Government counsel.)

Justice Stephens: Proceed, Mr. Bromley.

Mr. Bromley: I will withdraw the last question.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Isn't it your recollection now, Mr. Lenci, that the George Dusol referred to in the fourth paragraph of Exhibit 449, was really connected with dealer Dusol and was not an employee of the Kelley Company at all? A. I certainly believe that he was connected with the Dusol Lumber Company.

Q. Isn't that an example of what I have been asking you, to-wit, an example of where a licensee-manufacturer—

Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) Your Honor, I would like to object to the last answer, which was answered in the form of "I believe", and I don't believe that that can be introduced as proof, if that is what Mr. Bromley wishes to do, that George Dusol was hired by Dusol & Son.

Justice Stephens: Your objection is well taken.
4485 What the witness believes is not to be retained in the record.

State what your recollection is, if it is refreshed, unless you mean by the word "believe" that that does reflect your recollection.

The Witness: Well, it was always our understanding that he had a financial connection with the Dusol Company.

Justice Stephens: Very well.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Was it also always your understanding that he had no employment by the Kelley Company as a salesman at all? A. No, I think he had some employment by the Kelley Company, too, on commission.

Q. Well, did he work for the Dusol Company or did he work for the Kelley Company, or for both? A. I would say for both.

Q. For both? A. Yes, because I know he was soliciting orders from other customers besides Dusol.

Q. Well, then, it was your understanding, at the time you made the complaint in the fourth paragraph of Exhibit 449, that he was paid a commission by Kelley, and gave some of it to Dusol, the dealer, for whom he also worked; is that right? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. And you were complaining because you thought 4486 that was a rebate by Kelley? A. That is right.

Q. Now the situation would have been just as objectionable, in fact perhaps more so, if Dusol had been employed solely by Dusol, dealer, and not at all by Kelley, wouldn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Well, is it your recollection now that that sometimes happened, that is, that licensees would pay commissions, ostensibly salesmen's commissions, to men connected with the customer and not connected with the manufacturer at all? A. I have at the moment no definite recollection of certain individuals.

Q. Wasn't it your understanding that the license bulletins of USG did not outlaw commission men, as such, but merely were aimed at prohibiting the practice of splitting commissions with customers to effect a reduction in the price? A. Yes.

Q. Will you look at the February 6, 1939, bulletin, No. 5, which appears, for the Court's convenience, at pages 95 and 96 of the complaint, beginning at the bottom of page 95.

(The bulletin referred to was handed to the witness.)

4487 By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Now, do you see that provision under "Rebates, Allowances, Etc."? A. Yes.

Q. And do you see that that provides that:

"Any sale of patented products, though ostensibly made at or above the minimum price established by licensor, will nevertheless be considered a violation of the provisions of the license if licensee directly or indirectly reduces the actual price charged by licensee below such minimum price by"—and then down four more lines—"splitting of salesmen's compensation or commissions with customers"? A. Yes.

Q. Now, wasn't it your understanding that that is all that was ever prohibited, at any time, by the licensor, so far as the activities of commission salesmen were concerned? A. Yes.

Q. You had commission salesmen in your company right through this entire period, didn't you? A. Well, I wouldn't say that we did, because we never liked commission salesmen.

Q. Well, as a matter of fact, from 1929 up until the present time, haven't you more or less without interruption had one or more salesmen compensated either partly or wholly by commission, on your payroll, whose time 4488 was devoted to the selling of patented gypsum board? A. Not continuously, no.

Q. Well, most of the time? A. A part of the time, yes.

Q. Now in Exhibit 450, the Board Survey Company acknowledged your complaints, and said that the matters were being investigated; is that right? A. Yes.

Q. Exhibit 452 is dated prior to Exhibit 450, do you notice? A. Yes.

Q. Now in Exhibit 452, you were explaining to the United States Gypsum Company, the licensor, that you did not have any jobbing arrangement with the Abbey Company, which meant a cut price; weren't you? A. Yes.

4489 Q. And in the fourth paragraph of Exhibit 452, in which you say that you "had no warehouse or trucking arrangement with Abbey and have no jobbing, warehousing or trucking arrangement with anyone else at the present time", you merely meant to deny some accusation that had been made against you that you were guilty of an indirect price cut to Abbey by means of some warehousing or trucking or jobbing arrangement, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. You understood, didn't you, Mr. Lenci, that there was no prohibition on the part of USG against your having a warehouse wherever you wanted one? A. That is right.

Q. But that the only prohibition was that you should not use a warehouse arrangement as a secret or indirect way to lower the price of the board which you were selling to the dealer from whom you leased warehouse space? A. That is correct.

Q. But you understood that if you had a bona fide lease of warehouse space, and you paid full value for it and you used it, that you could have that arrangement with anybody, including a dealer, didn't you? A. Yes. It happens that we didn't do that, but I understood it that way.

Q. In Exhibit 452 not only did you deny the accusation which had been made against you with reference to 4490 your sales to the Abbey Company, but you again called the attention of the licensor to the fact that you thought that some of your competitors had been guilty of this type of indirect price cutting, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Did you feel at that time that these warehousing, jobbing and trucking arrangements of which you felt your competitors were guilty, had a seriously adverse effect upon your own business? A. Yes.

Q. Will you look at Exhibit 453, please? In the first paragraph you refer to sales of board on a consignment basis, do you not? A. Yes.

Q. Would you say that the practice of shipping board to a dealer on consignment, at the price fixed in the bulletin say for a carload sale, was a device to effect a price cut? A. Yes.

Q. Will you please explain that? A. Well, using your example, if a dealer were shipped a carload of material and he could keep that in stock and not pay for it until he sold it, which might run over a period of months, that certainly was taking an unfair advantage of anyone else who would sell him and expect to be paid on the usual credit terms—

4491 Q. (Interposing) Well, if you shipped a dealer a carload of board on consignment— A. (Interposing) I hadn't quite finished my answer.

Q. Excuse me. A. Furthermore, in shipments on consignment, when that car is finally sold, the dealer will go to the manufacturer and say, "Well, there were 30,000 feet in that carload, but we only managed to sell 28,000, the car must have been short or the board was not up to quality, and we can't pay for the balance of the material"—which was a direct price concession, if allowed.

Justice Stephens: By shipping "on consignment" do you mean retaining title in the manufacturer until the price is paid?

The Witness: Yes. This was a practice that we did not follow ourselves, but I know how it worked. The manufacturer kept title, but put his goods in the hands of the customer and whatever the customer stated at the end of the period, the manufacturer had to accept in the way of payment.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Now of course the consignment relieved the customer of expense such as investment expense, didn't it? A. Yes.

Q. He had the use of his money and didn't have to pay for the board promptly, like other customers did?

4492 A. That is right.

Q. Wouldn't you say that if board were delivered by a licensee, a carload of board, on a consignment basis, to a dealer, that that was just as much a rebate to that dealer as it would be if the manufacturer had actually paid to the dealer in cash some sum such as $1 or $2 per thousand square feet of board? A. Yes.

Q. And do you remember that at this time Rule 17 of the Fair Practice Rules of the Federal Trade Commission had some relation to this consignment business? A. I believe there was something in the Fair Trade Practice Rules.

Q. Will you look at Defendants' Exhibit 3 for identification, page 5, Rule 17? Is that the rule which condemns the consignment business in the gypsum industry under the Fair Trade Practice Rules, Mr. Lenci? A. I don't think that that related to consignment.

Q. You don't? A. I think that that had to do with shipping cars without any order whatever from a customer; simply sending a car to a customer and expecting him to take it without an order.

Q. Well, if that had been done—

Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) Your Honor, I object to this. This document is handed to Mr. Lenci for the 4493 purpose of refreshing his recollection, and we are not here to construe the rules.

Justice Stephens: Well, I didn't understand, Mr. Bromley, that you were using this to refresh recollection. Are you or are you not?

Mr. Bromley: No, I am not.

Justice Stephens: If he is not, it seems to me—I will be glad to hear you, Mr. Steffen—that it is probably not improper cross-examination because it goes to the witness' understanding, and the alleged reasonable basis of these consignment rules.

Mr. Steffen: Well, the item that he has there, Defendants' Exhibit No. 3, is not in evidence, and I don't think it can be admitted in evidence, and we don't want any testimony concerning what that rule means, or concerning that rule even.

The witness can testify concerning his understanding of these matters that were being investigated upon in the light of it, but I don't think he can get that rule in indirectly.

Justice Stephens: We are not intending to get the rule in evidence, and I didn't understand that it was. I thought the examination was along just the lines that you stated, that he is being examined "in the light of" this rule, as shown him in this Defendants' Exhibit 3 for identification.

Mr. Steffen: For purposes of refreshing his recol-4494 lection, yes.

Justice Stephens: I suppose for more than that, I suppose the cross-examination is directed to showing the witness' understanding of the consignment rule.

Mr. Steffen: That is not in issue, his notion of the consignment rule in the Federal Trade Commission's Rules.

Justice Stephens: I am talking about the consignment rule in the bulletins.

Mr. Bromley: I am trying to cross-examine him to show that a consignment was an unfair trade practice, and a rebate.

Mr. Steffen: I think that question has been answered.

Justice Stephens: Rule 17 of the Fair Trade Practice Rules of the Federal Trade Commission is not being received in evidence, and if it has been read into the record it may be excluded. But the cross-examination itself we think is not improper.

(Thereupon, there was a conference between the Judges.)

Justice Stephens: My Brother disagrees with me and I of course will abide by any ruling the majority makes. I didn't understand that this examination was upon Rule 17 of the Federal Trade Commission Rules, but that it was only a reference to that for the purpose of testing the man's reasonableness and recollection with respect to the purpose of the consignment rule.

4495 Mr. Bromley: That is all I was intending to do.

Justice Jackson: I thought you were going to question him on Rule 17, and I don't think that would be proper, if it has only been marked for identification.

Justice Stephens: Re-ask your question. That will present the matter more clearly to all of us. Judge Garrett would like to be better informed.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Well, as of this date, the practice of shipping board on consignment was condemned by the gypsum industry as an unfair trade practice, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Mr. Steffen: We object to that, your Honor, as being completely outside the direct examination and not proper, and for the reason, further, that the rule appears in the bulletins as respects commissions and I don't see—as far as I know that may be made up in part because of the rule that appears in the bulletin—in other words, I don't think that a reference to Rule 17 and a discussion as to what the gypsum industry's policies were, based apparently upon some notion of Rule 17, is material to this line of examination.

Justice Stephens: This last question didn't mention Rule 17.

Mr. Steffen: I thought the "gypsum industry" was a reference from the paper which Mr. Lenci had before him.

Justice Stephens: I didn't so understand the question.

4496 Justice Jackson: I didn't understand it that way.

Justice Stephens: The objection is overruled.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. In your judgment, as of that time, that is as of May 31, 1932, the practice of shipping board on consignment constituted a rebate to the dealer who got that accommodation, did it not? A. Yes.

Q. And that is what you were complaining about in your Exhibit 453? A. That is correct.

Justice Stephens: We will suspend at this time for the afternoon.

Before we adjourn, let me say to Mr. Steffen or Mr. Knuff, whoever has charge of it for the Government, that we received this morning a motion with respect to the proposed deposition of Mr. Gloyd, with an affidavit and attachments. If you wish to file counter affidavits, please do so tomorrow, if you can, so that we can get a chance to consider them, and then have a brief discussion, if necessary, on Friday, so that we may make a ruling before we adjourn in order that you may know where you are going to be, both of you.

Mr. Steffen: We will file an affidavit tomorrow morning, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Thank you.

4497 (Thereupon, at 4:10 o'clock p. m., an adjournment was taken until 10:00 o'clock a.m., Thursday, February 24, 1944.)

4498 IN THE

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Civil Action No. 8017

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY; NATIONAL GYPSUM COMPANY; CERTAIN-TEED PRODUCTS CORPORATION; THE CELOTEX CORPORATION; EBSARY GYPSUM COMPANY, INC.; NEWARK PLASTER COMPANY; SAMUEL M. GLOYD, doing business under the name of TEXAS CEMENT PLASTER COMPANY; SEWELL L. AVERY; OLIVER M. KNODE; MELVIN H. BAKER; BROR H. DAHLBERG; HENRY J. HARTLEY; FREDERICK G. EBSARY; and FREDERICK TOMKINS,

Defendants.

Seventh Floor,
Internal Revenue Building,
Washington, D. C.,
Thursday, February 24, 1944.

The above-entitled cause came on for further hearing at 10:00 o'clock a.m., pursuant to adjournment, before Honorable Harold M. Stephens, Honorable Finis J. Garrett, and Honorable Joseph R. Jackson, sitting as the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

APPEARANCES:

(Same as heretofore noted.)

4502 Thereupon, GEORGE N. LENCI the witness on the stand at the time of adjournment, resumed his testimony as follows:

Cross Examination (resumed)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. With reference to what the Presiding Justice said a minute ago, Mr. Lenci, will you look at your answer beginning at line 5 on page 4784, and clear up for us your use of the word "short", in view of the fact that you 4503 seem to have assumed that the dealer said to the manufacturer, "Well, there were 30,000 feet in that carload * * *"? A. I have already seen the answer, just a moment ago.

What I intended to say there was this: Suppose we shipped a car with 30,000 feet, on consignment. The dealer would claim, when that material was all sold, that while we said there was 30,000 feet, there was only 28,000 feet or less, and that there was consequently a shortage there which he was not responsible for.

Justice Jackson: And he wouldn't pay for it?

The Witness: That is right. And there might be breakage that he wouldn't have to pay for, and it would leave the whole thing in a good deal of a mess when you got through.

Justice Stephens: I see what you mean.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. So if you allowed his claim when, as a matter of fact, his claim was a false one, you would be making him an allowance which would reduce the price; is that right? A. That is correct.

Q. Now will you look at page 4740. Will you read to yourself from line 13 to line 25, please? A. (After examining testimony). Yes, I have read that.

Q. I would like to re-ask my question beginning at 4504 line 18, Mr. Lenci, in this form:

The USG bulletins at some time or other fixed a price at which a licensee could sell gypsum board to a dealer and make the delivery by truck, did they not? A. Yes.

Q. And in so fixing that price, the bulletins would frequently define the area within which a licensee could deliver board to a dealer-customer at that price, would they not? A. Yes.

Q. And assume that the bulletins fixed a price of $15 for lath, if delivered by truck, within New York County, in metropolitan New York City. If your company made a truck delivery at the price of $15 to a dealer in Bronx County, you would be rendering a service to the Bronx dealer which might cost you more than $15, would you not? A. Yes.

Justice Jackson: Isn't Bronx considered part of the metropolitan district?

Mr. Bromley: It is, sir, but I was making a distinction between New York County and Bronx County.

Justice Jackson: You said the metropolitan district, I thought.

Q. Well, I will make it plainer. Let me ask you this:

4505 If the bulletin provided for a $15.00 price for deliveries within the five metropolitan boroughs of New York, and you made a delivery in Westchester County at $15.00 to a dealer, you would be rendering a service to that dealer which might cost you more than $15.00; isn't that right? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. In other words, if you made deliveries outside of the area specified in the bulletins, at the prices specified in the bulletins for deliveries within the area, you would be cutting the price which should apply to deliveries outside the area, wouldn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Now, we were talking, at the close yesterday afternoon, about rebates in the indirect form of sales of small quantities at a price fixed for a larger quantity, and sales on a consignment basis.

You recall, don't you, that in 1934, when the Code of Fair Competition for the Gypsum Industry was approved and adopted, that it was one of the requirements under that Code that all members of the gypsum industry file with the Code Authority their prices? A. Yes.

Q. And as you said yesterday—

Mr. Steffen: Your Honor, I object to this investigation of the Code Authority. It seems to me that that is 4506 certainly not within the direct-examination, and it is introducing a matter here which hasn't any bearing, as I see it, upon the examination as it has proceeded.

If Mr. Bromley, on his case-in-chief, wishes to introduce the NRA Code, it is his privilege to do so; but I don't think it should be brought in backhanded this way.

Mr. Bromley: Well, my purpose in doing this is because I conceive that the Government's direct-examination went into the field of inquiry of this witness as to whether or not things like consignment really affected price or didn't.

Now I would like to cross-examine this witness in an attempt to show things like the fact that consignment basis selling did affect price. And for that purpose I would like to develop that during some of the time these bulletins were in effect and provided for trucking areas and for minimum quantities, the NRA Code was in effect which, I hope to be able to show, recognized that a sale on a consignment basis was a way of cutting the price, and that other practices which appear in our bulletins, both before the Code, during the Code and after the Code, were, during the Code days, recognized by everybody as matters which directly affected price.

Justice Stephens: Do you wish to reply, Mr. Steffen?

Mr. Steffen: I do, Your Honor.

4507 It seems to me, from Mr. Bromley's present statement, that the error in his examination is apparent. He says that he wishes to develop from the NRA Code that matters of shipping on consignment, for example, affect price. That is definitely going into the NRA Code, which has not been introduced before the Court and we have no information before the Court as to whether the NRA was designed to affect price.

As a matter of fact, the NRA was designed to affect everything, and therefore his reference to the NRA Code would certainly not establish the point that he wishes to establish, and it would be introducing, as I have stated, some extraneous matter here which we have had no opportunity to present and which we would strenuously object to if it were offered directly.

It is irrelevant to a discussion as to what the gypsum industry was doing, and it is no excuse, whatever the NRA may have done is no excuse for anything that these defendants may have done. As a matter of fact, many of the regulations which were approved under the NRA—which, as Judge Garrett pointed out yesterday, was subsequently held unconstitutional—would have been direct violations of the Sherman Act. Therefore, he can not refer to what would be a violation for purposes of attempting to justify an action here. This case comes up unembarrassed 4508 by the NRA Code, and we are, I think, to listen to this evidence strictly on its own merits.

Justice Stephens: Of course, the NRA wasn't declared unconstitutional on any grounds touching the Sherman Act, but on the ground that it was an unconstitutional delegation of legislative authority, and the NRA contained exemptions with respect to the Sherman Act.

Now the Court is not of the view—is not assuming to hear these references to the NRA as any proof of what the NRA required, but the Court, as presently advised, is of the view, Mr. Steffen, that this is not improper cross-examination, for this reason: The Government has gone into these various bulletins and all the provisions thereof, which are so clear to all of us now that we don't need to mention them specifically, for the purpose of showing that they are illegal restrictions upon commerce.

Now the defense has a right to try to prove by cross-examination, if it can, that they were not illegal restrictions upon commerce, but that they were methods recognized in the trade as safeguards against price cutting.

In our understanding of the proprieties of cross-examination, where the witness has been presented by the plaintiff to prove a given theory, references may be made, in the course of cross-examination, to items of ever so varied a character, not introducible in and of them-4509 selves, as tending to prove a contrary theory, or to make reasonable the answers which the witness is being sought to give, on the cross-examination.

It seems to us not improper cross-examination, and is not an attempt to introduce into the record directly the NRA provisions. It is ordinarily a convention, in cross-examination, to try to call the attention of the witness, who has been called by the opposite party, to items which would tend to cause him to contradict or to modify his previous testimony, if that can be accomplished by the cross-examination.

Mr. Steffen: If that were the purpose, I think there might be little objection to it, but I think the attempt is to attempt to excuse what was done by the defendants by showing that under the NRA they had some regulations concerning consignment, and in so far as that is concerned, I think the whole scope of the evidence is immaterial and irrelevant, and I think it is misleading in that we have had no evidence here concerning the NRA Code, or whether the NRA Code would be legal under the Sherman Act. And I state to you that in many respects it would not. Therefore, he is appealing to an illegal practice for purposes of justifying what we contend here is also an illegal practice.

The whole scope of the evidence would be to clutter
4510 up the record and get a lot of irrelevant and misleading testimony before Your Honors, and it does nothing toward determining whether the witness has been telling the truth or not. We have no doubt on that score but what he has been.

Justice Stephens: It seems to the Court that it is not an attempt to put the NRA Code in evidence as either legal or illegal, but it is an attempt to refer to a circumstance which may cause the witness to put a construction upon his direct-examination of an opposite or qualifying character.

Is that your purpose, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: The objection is overruled.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Under the NRA Code, all members of the gypsum industry—

Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) I object to reading this into the record. Do you want to show the witness the NRA Code?

Mr. Bromley: I am not reading it in.

Mr. Steffen: We object to having statements of the NRA Code in evidence, either by reading from them or quoting from them or summarizing them. If you want to test the witness concerning the NRA provisions, I should think they might be shown to him.

4511 Justice Jackson: This man was a member of the Code Authority of the Gypsum Industry, wasn't he?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, he has so testified.

Justice Jackson: I think you can ask him what he understood.

Justice Stephens: The record may show your objection. It seems to the Court that you would restrict the cross-examination to a point where it would make it very difficult to conduct it. If the cross-examiner can not refer to items and describe items in sufficiently clear terms to bring them to the attention of the witness' mind, whether he reads them, summarizes them or shows them to the witness, I don't see how he can refer to items which may tend to change the direct-examination.

Of course, if this witness' recollection were being refreshed, we would certainly consistently enforce the ruling that anything which was offered to refresh his recollection should not get into the record. I don't understand that that is the purpose here.

The record may show a continuing objection, to protect the Government's objection in this matter, and that it is overruled.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Under the NRA Code, Mr. Lenci, each member of the industry was required to file with the Code Authority 4512 its complete price lists, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. And under that Code, each member was required to file with the Code Authority any change that it made in its prices? A. Yes.

Q. And under that Code, each member of the industry was forbidden to sell at prices other than those—

Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) Your Honor, I object to this. It is simply a direct reading into the record of the NRA Code. Why not put it in as an exhibit, or offer it? If he wants to ask the witness some questions as to what they did—that is all we asked—go ahead, but don't read the whole NRA Code into this record, for whatever purpose.

Mr. Bromley: This is all only preliminary.

Justice Stephens: The Court has carefully considered your objection, and understands that this is preliminary to asking the witness a question directed towards attempting to modify his testimony on direct-examination.

Mr. Steffen: May I move to strike the entire testimony, then, if it is for any other purpose than to attempt to modify?

Justice Stephens: I don't think you have a right to move to strike testimony which proves to be unsuccessful on cross-examination.

4513 Mr. Steffen: All right.

Justice Stephens: You may make such motions as you feel advised that you ought to make, of course, at any time, but the present objection is overruled.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. And under the Code, no member of the industry was permitted to sell at a price or prices below those filed, isn't that right? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, isn't it a fact, sir, that under the operation of the Code, if a member sold a small quantity of his product at the price fixed for a carload quantity, it was considered to be a price violation? A. Yes.

Q. And isn't it a fact, sir, that under the Code, if a member made a sale on consignment to a customer, it was considered to be a violation of his filed prices?

Mr. Steffen: I must ask, Your Honor—Mr. Bromley is obviously not asking or expecting that this witness is going to change his testimony. He is trying to explain and confirm his testimony, and under Your Honor's ruling this course of examination is utterly improper.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Steffen, the Court doesn't wish to argue the point with you. It has made its ruling as clear as it can. It tries to state the basis of its rul-4514 ings so that counsel will be advised that the Court has reasons for its rulings, and for the guidance of counsel. The Court was using the term "modify" in the conventional sense with respect to cross-examination. It seems to the Court that it would be error to deny to the opposite party the right to make reference to these matters for the purpose of asking the witness to make statements concerning the practices which the Government has examined upon, and which statements might be construed by the Court as modifications, qualifications, or reconstructions or different constructions of these practices than those put upon the witness' testimony and these practices by the Government.

The Government's contention under the direct-examination, as I understand it, is that the witness' testimony supports the inference that these bulletins, and all of the items under the bulletins which we have been discussing, are illegal restrictions upon trade, upon commerce.

Now the defendants have a right to try to prove, either by direct or cross-examination, that the actual effect of them was to protect price, not to regulate commerce. And the practice of the industry in respect of them is an item, it seems to me, which the defendants are entitled to call to the attention of the witness in order that they may contend that his testimony leads to a different construction of the practices than the Government insists upon.

4515 Mr. Steffen: I have no objection to their going into the practices of the industry, but when they appeal to an extra-legal matter, such as the NRA Code, for justification for anything that was done in the industry before or after the Code, the matter is not relevant to this proceeding and it seems to me to be improper cross-examination—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) You have made your position very clear upon that, Mr. Steffen, and I think your record is adequately protected. It may be that Government counsel has an entirely different view of what is proper cross-examination than the Court has, and we want you to feel free to urge your differences and to make your record.

If this case, at the close, should be decided against the Government, you may urge upon the Supreme Court, of course, that our conception of cross-examination is incorrect. We want you to be fully within your rights in doing that.

The objection is overruled.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. And you recall that you testified the other day, on direct-examination, that under the bulletins you felt your company was prohibited from making gifts of free materials to your dealer-customers? A. Yes.

Q. Well, that same thing was expressly provided 4516 in the NRA Code as being a rebate to the dealer from the seller, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And the Code prohibited a gypsum manufacturer from making a gift to a purchaser in connection with the sale of his goods, whether in the form of money or gifts or otherwise, didn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And the NRA Code also prohibited a member from indirectly reducing his price by furnishing other materials without charge to the customer? A. Yes.

Q. And the Code referred specifically, did it not, to this subject matter that you talked about the other day—advertising allowances? A. Yes.

Q. And provided that if a member of the gypsum industry should make a customer an allowance for advertising not actually placed, that that should be considered a rebate? A. Yes.

Q. And it also had a provision that allowing false or inflated damage claims should be considered a rebate, did it not? A. Yes.

4517 Justice Garrett: Mr. Bromley, I am not sure that I have understood as clearly as I should. Are you bringing this matter out here from that Code for the purpose of arguing that that Code was justification for the activities of these defendants?

Mr. Bromley: No, I am certainly not bringing it out for the purpose of arguing that the price fixing by USG was lawful because prices were fixed under the NRA Code. I am not doing that.

I am, however, seeking to bring it out to show that not only in the industry as a matter of practice and custom, but in a more formalized way, with the approval of the Government, provisions were considered by everybody as having a direct relation to price, of precisely the same nature which this witness' direct-examination has shown were contained in our bulletins, and interpreted by him in the way in which he has testified.

In other words, to make a specific example, this witness was asked a lot of questions about whether he could rent warehouse space from a dealer, with the obvious purpose on the part of the Government to show that that didn't have any relation to price and that that was a restriction that was unreasonable, that went way beyond the holding in the General Electric case.

Now it does seem to me to be material and per-4518 suasive if I can show to this Court, by cross-examination of this witness, that in the NRA days the NRA Code prohibited members of the industry from making warehouse arrangements with dealer-customers, for the reason that everybody knew that that was a dishonest sort of an arrangement which covered a hidden rebate. That is all I am seeking to develop this line of testimony for.

Justice Jackson: And you are seeking to do that in its proper relation to what were considered to be correct or incorrect practices prior to the NRA and subsequent to the death of the NRA?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, I am.

Mr. Steffen: I think I should be permitted to make a short statement in reply to Mr. Bromley.

Justice Stephens: You may.

Mr. Steffen: That is, I take it that he has stated the basis upon which he intends to argue upon this evidence at the closing, and he indicates that a warehousing arrangement, as he says, as everybody knew, was a dishonest arrangement, and that it constituted a rebate, and that therefore it should be abolished as an improper trade practice.

Now I think if it is permissible for Mr. Bromley to make use at all of these regulations, it is necessary to show that they were price regulations, and there is no show-4519 ing at all that these matters of warehousing, these matters of commission men, and all of the other things that were brought up in the NRA, were necessarily related to price at all. They didn't hesitate to regulate anything that they thought was an improper practice, price or no price, and it seems to me, therefore, that the appeal to the NRA, as a justification,—for that is exactly what Mr. Bromley's argument boils down to,—is not a proper appeal by way of cross-examination, that it introduces matters which have no probative value to establish his ultimate purpose—that is, that what the USG did was justified. We still object.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Can you recall, Mr. Lenci, what provision, if any, was made in the NRA Code having to do with warehousing or warehousing arrangements? A. Well, I think it was along this line, that it would be considered a price concession, a price cut, for a manufacturer to make an arrangement with a dealer to pay him rental for space, which was, in effect, a rebate.

Justice Jackson: In the dealer's warehouse?

The Witness: Yes. In other words, if the dealer bought a car of material, was buying material right along, and the manufacturer paid him rent in excess of what the value of that space might be if the manufacturer ever made 4520 use of it himself, but purely for the purpose of giving him a concession, that was a cut in price, it was a cash consideration for placing the business with that manufacturer.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Well, in that connection, do you recall that the NRA Code provided that the rental of warehouse space owned or leased by manufacturers, to dealers, at a rental less than what the fair value would be for other similar property in adjacent territory, shall be considered to be a rebate? A. If the rental was less—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) I am sorry, I missed that question. Will the Court Reporter read it?

(The question was read by the reporter.)

The Witness: That is the opposite form of it, that is rental of space by a manufacturer to a dealer at less than the value of the property.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. That is the reverse? A. That is the reverse situation.

Q. I see.

Well, do you recall that there was a provision in this Code as to the situation which I have been asking you about, namely, the rental by a manufacturer of warehouse space from a dealer? A. I think there must have been, 4521 because that was always a matter before us.

Q. And do you remember that so far as the NRA Code was concerned, that provision took the form of an absolute prohibition, and said that no member of the industry shall hereafter rent or lease or extend any existing lease for warehouse space for industry products from lumber or building material dealers? A. I believe there was a clause to that effect in there.

Q. Wasn't the purpose of that prohibition in the NRA Code because of the fact that the abuse was recognized to be so widespread that it was thought by the Code Authority and the members that the only way to stop the rebate was to prohibit the renting of any space at all? A. Yes.

Q. As between seller and buyer in this field? A. Yes.

Q. You were asked some questions with respect to the provisions of the USG bulletins which provided that it should be considered to be a rebate if you sold a mixed car, to a dealer, of board and plaster, and fixed your plaster price at a figure below your current price, or something to that effect.

Do you recall those questions and your answers? A. Yes, I do.

4522 Q. During all of this period, it is a fact, so far as your company was concerned, that you knew from day to day what your current market price for plaster was; isn't that right? A. Yes.

Q. I mean, you had every day—which changed from time to time—a published price for plaster, at which you would sell plaster? A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall that among the provisions of the NRA Code was one which provided that no industry member should offer for sale other commodities at prices below the member's current prices for such other commodities, for the purpose of influencing the sale of industry products? A. Yes.

Q. Now that is the same kind of a thing, is it not, as the provision in the USG bulletins to which you were testifying the other day? A. Yes.

Q. That practice of selling gypsum products of different kinds to one purchaser is known in the industry as a combination sale, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And it is also known as mixed car business? A. That is the commoner name for it.

4523 Q. But the type of order which is filled by a mixed car shipment is a combination order of board and plaster and other gypsum products, isn't it? A. That is right.

Q. And, of course, under the NRA Code it was specifically provided that there should be no splitting of commissions as between the seller's commission salesmen and the buyer of the products, isn't that right? A. Yes.

Q. Now, all of the things which I have mentioned to you in my questions this morning were, under the NRA Code, considered to be rebates or price cuts, weren't they?

Mr. Steffen: I should like to object to that. That asks for a construction of the NRA Code, and it is an attempt to make the witness testify that these matters were regularly construed, under the NRA Code, as constituting a price cutting or rebate, and it seems to me that he is not qualified to make that deduction. The NRA Code is not in evidence.

Justice Stephens: Read the question.

(The question was read by the reporter.)

Justice Stephens: Considered by whom, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: By the Code Authority.

Justice Jackson: Of which you were a member?

The Witness: Yes.

4524 Justice Stephens: Are you objecting to this, Mr. Steffen, on the ground it is not proper cross-examination, or on the ground that this witness is not qualified to say what these practices were considered to be by the NRA Code Authority?

Mr. Steffen: I thought I had a continuing objection on the matter of whether it was proper cross-examination.

Justice Stephens: You have.

Mr. Steffen: My specific objection, and the only reason I spoke at this moment, was that as I construe the question, it calls for a construction of the NRA Code. The NRA Code is not in evidence, and I don't think it ever will be; and I don't see how the witness could be qualified in any event to construe the Code or what was in the Code Authority's mind.

Justice Stephens: Since he was a member of the Code Authority, we think that objection is not well taken. Overruled. Judge Garrett dissents from that point of view.

Mr. Bromley: Do you remember the question, Mr. Lenci?

The Witness: You had better read it.

(The question was read by the reporter.)

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Wasn't it generally considered, Mr. Lenci, in 4525 the industry, before, during, and after the NRA period, that these practices about which I have been inquiring of you this morning were methods of cutting prices by a manufacturing seller? A. Yes, looking at it from a business standpoint.

Mr. Steffen: I object, because the question calls fc conclusion as to what the industry considered. I should think that that is entirely too broad.

Justice Stephens: If he knows that—and it would seem clear that he must, because of his experience in the industry—it would seem not to be the type of conclusion which is objectionable. My theory, and I thought it was shared by Judge Garrett and I know it is shared by Judge Jackson, of the propriety of this examination, Mr. Steffen, I apparently still haven't made clear.

You have conducted the direct examination of this witness to try to show that the purpose of these bulletins, and the regulations under them, was restraint of trade. It seems to Judge Jackson and myself—

Justice Garrett: (Interposing) On this question I am not in disagreement—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Very well.

(Continuing)—and also, then, to Judge Garrett, that the defendants have a right to try and show that the purpose of these regulations was not restraint of trade but 4526 was the prevention of unethical and improper and unfair practices.

Now, it would be proper cross-examination, it seems to us, to refer to items, whether in the NRA Code or in any other code, formal or informal, industry understandings, and the like, which might influence the purposes of the industry, which might tend to clarify or show what the purposes of the industry were. It should be as open to one side as the other.

Now surely the Court can be trusted, as Judges sitting here without a jury, not to be bound by the provisions of the NRA Code, and to look upon them only as items referred to in cross-examination to help bring out what was the real purpose of the gypsum industry in making these regulations.

The recess this morning will have to be for 10 minutes, rather than five minutes. It may be announced at this time.

(Thereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed as follows:)

4527 Justice Stephens: Proceed, gentlemen.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. At page 4687 of the transcript I asked you some questions, Mr. Lenci, as to whether you had any understandings, outside of the license agreement, and then at line 5 on page 4688, I said, "Well, inside the license agreement".

Now in connection with those questions, I would like to ask you now—did you understand that there was anything in your license contract, or in the bulletins, which provided that USG should raise or stabilize the prices of gypsum board? A. No.

Q. And did you understand that there was anything in your license contract or in the bulletins issued thereunder, which provided that USG should fix or control the prices of plaster, or the prices of other unpatented products, such as Keene's cement, block and tile? A. No.

Q. And did you understand that there was anything in the license contract or the bulletins which provided that USG should or would eliminate jobbers from the distributive system? A. No.

Q. At page 4709 of the transcript, beginning at line 3, I asked you a question about Mr. MacLeish and Judge Rippey, which I have now concluded did not express 4528 my intention. What I meant to ask you was this.

Do you recall that prior to the time you executed the bubble board license, you had been informed by Judge Rippey that Mr. MacLeish had said that the Ebsary Gypsum Company should decide first whether or not they were interested in the savings and the other benefits to be derived from the bubble invention, before they should proceed to the question of taking up with USG the form of the proposed license contract? A. That is, that Judge Rippey said that?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. And before you proceeded to negotiate the October, 1929, license, your company had decided that it did want to avail itself of, and use, the so-called bubble or foam board invention? A. That is correct.

Q. Now will you look at Exhibit 453, please?

(Government's Exhibit No. 453 was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Exhibit 453 is a complaint by you against what you considered to be an improper action by USG itself, isn't that so? A. Yes.

4529 Q. Now if it were true that USG, or a licensee, was making consignment sales to dealers in your territory, would that affect your ability to sell to those dealers to whom the consignment privilege was accorded? A. Yes, it would.

Q. And how would it affect your business? A. Well, if we sold these particular people we would expect to be paid on the usual terms; whereas, if some other company went in there and put the material in their warehouses, and said, "You don't have to pay for it until you sell it," that is a distinct concession—to our advantage.

Q. And might cause you to lose that customer, or a sale or sales to that customer? A. Yes.

Q. Will you look at Exhibit 454, please?

(Thereupon, Government's Exhibit No. 454 was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. In that exhibit your treasurer was reporting to you, was he not, that the Ebsary Company had lost a sale to a prospective customer because some licensee had not lived up to the minimum price requirements applying to a certain quantity sale of board? A. Yes, to that territory.

Q. Now the customer was Louis Brooks, of Wash-
4530 ington, New Jersey? A. Yes.

Q. And Tomkins Brothers, the concern which made the sale, was acting as an agent for the Atlantic Company, according to your understanding? A. Yes, Tomkins Brothers, Tomkins Rockwall Company, and the Atlantic, were all very closely associated.

Q. And if Tomkins Brothers was making a sale at a price and delivering by truck to Washington, New Jersey, that meant to you, did it not, that the Atlantic Company was not living up to the bulletin requirements? A. Yes.

Q. And that is what you were complaining about in this exhibit, isn't it? A. Yes, we were complaining that Washington, New Jersey, was not in the trucking area at all, and by Atlantic permitting the delivery of a truckload to this outside area, that was a price concession to this customer—to our disadvantage.

Q. Do you know what the price was which Brooks was charged for the truckload delivery? A. I don't remember the amount in dollars, but he was charged the price which was in effect in the nearest county to him, to which truckload deliveries were permitted.

Q. Now what was it, according to your contention,
4531 that Brooks should have been charged? A. Well, my contention was that he should have been sold only in carload lots because that was specified by the bulletins, and the fact that they sold a truckload in there was a concession, they gave Brooks a truckload shipment at less than it would have cost him to buy it from us in carloads, and deliver it and truck it, unload it.

Q. This situation is the same kind of a situation as was covered in your answers to my questions with respect to Metropolitan New York truck deliveries, and deliveries in Westchester County, is that right?

Mr. Steffen: If you understand that. I think the reference is a little vague.

Mr. Bromley: I will withdraw the question.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Do you remember earlier this morning I asked you to assume an illustration in which truck deliveries had a price fixed for Metropolitan New York, but not for Westchester, and the licensee made a truck delivery in Westchester at the New York price? A. Yes.

Q. Well, the thing that Mr. Hough was calling to your attention in Exhibit 454 was that kind of a situation? A. Yes.

Q. Now again, this complaint was one in which you felt that you had lost some business because of the At-4532 lantic Gypsum Company's violation of its agreement with USG, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. Will you look at Exhibit 457, please?

(Thereupon, Government's Exhibit No. 457 was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. That is a reply by the Executive Secretary of Board Survey Company to your complaint against Atlantic, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. By the way, your formal complaint to Board Survey Company is contained in Exhibit 455, is it not?

(Thereupon, Government's Exhibit No. 455 was handed to the witness.)

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Now referring again to the second paragraph of Exhibit 457, doesn't that paragraph spell out the correct price which Atlantic, through its agent Tomkins, should have charged Brooks? A. That is correct.

Q. And that correct price is $36.28, according to Exhibit 457, isn't it? A. That is right.

Q. And that price is figured on the basis of the delivery of a less-than-carload lot, at the less-than-carload 4533 price fixed in the bulletins? A. Yes.

Q. And if Atlantic had charged the correct price under its license and the bulletins, to Brooks, Atlantic should have charged the less-than-carload price for this truck delivery? A. That is right.

Q. Now the less-than-carload price fixed by the bulletins for a sale of a less-than-carload quantity outside of the trucking area, was mill base plus the less-than-carload freight to destination, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And in Exhibit 457 the Board Survey Company says, in effect, that Atlantic was guilty of a violation because it charged a price less than $36.28 for the delivery? A. That is right.

Q. By the way, is it the fact that under the published freight tariffs, as approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, generally less-than-carload freight rates per unit of 1000 feet are very much higher than carload rates, freight rates? A. Yes.

Q. There is a very substantial difference per unit of a thousand feet, is there not, between the carload freight rate and the less-than-carload rate? A. Yes, there is.

4534 Q. So that as I understand you, Mr. Lenci, you were not complaining against Tompkins Rockwall, but your complaint was against the Atlantic Company, a licensee, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And is it true that the usual way in which you learned about an alleged violation by a licensee was information as to what some third party was doing, generally a customer of a licensee? A. Yes.

Q. For instance, if you found that one of your dealer-customers was buying board from the Certain-teed Company, and in the sales to the consumer or the contractor by the dealer, he was getting a price at or about his cost from Certain-teed, you would be suspicious of that transaction, wouldn't you? A. Very.

Justice Stephens: Read that question, please.

(Thereupon, the reporter read the pending question as follows:

"Q. For instance, if you found that one of your dealer-customers"—)

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) That is far enough. I am not quite sure what you mean, do you mean "dealer-customers" or "dealer's customers"?

Mr. Bromley: "Dealer customers".

Justice Stephens: Very well, I didn't understand
4535 clearly what you meant, and therefore the question wasn't entirely clear to me.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Now under the bulletin provisions, if Certain-teed sold to a dealer, Certain-teed was obliged to charge that dealer the price fixed in the bulletins which was generally called the dealer price, isn't that right? A. Yes.

Q. And at one time, for lath, the dealer price would be $13 mill base, plus the freight to destination, wouldn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Now suppose you found that a dealer was selling that board to a contractor at or about that price, that is, at or about the mill price to the dealer, plus the freight to destination—you would conclude that the dealer wasn't doing that as a matter of good business if he was paying the proper price to his supplier? A. That is right.

Q. Because you would expect a dealer, generally speaking, to resell the board that he bought at a figure higher than his cost, wouldn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Now if you found that a dealer was selling contractors or consumers at about the figure which should have represented his cost from the Certain-teed Company, 4536 what would you conclude with respect to Certain-teed, if anything? A. I would conclude that Certain-teed had cut the price to that dealer.

Q. And you would conclude, wouldn't you, that the dealer was making his profit out of the cut which Certain-teed was giving him, below the bulletin price? A. That is right.

Q. And that would lead you, would it not, to complain not against the dealer, but against Certain-teed? A. Yes.

Q. But the basis of your complaint would be the evidence reported to you generally by your salesmen as to the price at which the dealer was selling the contractor? A. That is right.

Q. And it is true, isn't it, that you frequently were advised of what dealers were doing in the way of selling at low prices, not only by your salesmen, but by other dealer-customers who were in competition with the first dealer? A. That is right.

Q. If you were selling to two dealers in Astoria, Long Island, whose yards were adjacent to one another, and one of those dealers was undercutting the other, the man who was being undersold would complain to you that the supplier of his competitor must have been cutting the 4537 price to the other dealer, isn't that right? A. Yes.

Q. And the dealer who complained to you would complain because he would want you to meet the cut price? A. Yes.

Q. And that is the way you generally found out that some one or more of your competing licensees were probably violating the price bulletins, is that right? A. That is right.

Q. And isn't it a fact, Mr. Lenci, that over the years most of your complaints against licensees came up in that way, that is, through some reports to you by a salesman or a customer of what some customer of your competing licensee was doing, price-wise? A. Yes, they practically all would come that way.

Q. In other words, would it be fair to say that the evidence on which you generally based a complaint against a licensee was circumstantial? A. Yes, naturally.

Q. Because it was, generally speaking, impossible for you to know with any certainty exactly what the price was which a licensee had charged any particular customer of that licensee? A. That is right.

Q. In other words, these violations, and these price cuts by licensees, were generally concealed transactions, 4538 were they not? A. Yes.

Q. So that, generally speaking, the basis of your complaint against a licensee for violation of a bulletin, resided not in what the licensee was doing, but more generally in what his customer was doing? A. That is right.

Mr. Bromley: May the witness be shown Exhibits 431, 438, 449, and 454 and 455?

(Thereupon, the exhibits referred to were handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Look at the third paragraph of Exhibit 431, beginning "Astoria Lumber Company".

Isn't it a fact, Mr. Lenci, that from the attitude of the Astoria Lumber Company you concluded that the Kelley Plasterboard Company must have been cutting the price so far as that proposed business was concerned, in its sale to Astoria? A. Yes.

Q. You had no information at all as to what the Kelley Company actually was doing, did you? A. No, except that we didn't get the order, and we had fully expected to get it, it had been promised to us.

Q. But you inferred from the circumstance that 4539 you did not get the order from Astoria, that Kelley must be guilty of a license bulletin violation in its price to Astoria, didn't you? A. That is right.

Q Will you look at Exhibit 438, the second paragraph thereof? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now all you knew about that transaction was that a dealer named Duskis, was buying board from Orin F. Perry, which must have been sold to Perry by Certain-teed? A. Yes.

Q. That was the only information you had? A. Yes.

Q. From that you concluded, did you not, that Certain-teed must have been cutting the price to Perry below the dealer price? A. Yes.

Q. And in this instance you concluded that Certain-teed must have been selling Perry at a jobber's discount? A. Yes.

Q. In face of the fact that as of this time the correct price which Certain-teed should have charged Perry, even though he were a jobber, was the dealer price? A. That is right.

Q. So you concluded that Duskis could not have 4540 been buying from Perry—

Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) Your Honor, I make the objection that I think, as respects this exhibit, it is repetitious and I think that was all gone over yesterday.

Mr. Bromley: Not in this sense, I don't think.

Justice Garrett: In what way does it differ? It seems to me you went over all this yesterday, but you say now that you are going over it in a different sense.

Mr. Bromley: I was seeking to use it as an example of how the evidence of violations by licensees was circumstantial, in the sense that it needed a consideration on the part of the complainer of what the licensee's customer was doing, rather than what the licensee was doing. Perhaps I have sufficiently developed that.

Justice Jackson: You are abandoning that question, are you?

Mr. Bromley: I thought it was answered.

Justice Stephens: The answer may stand.

Mr. Bromley: However, I had not finished the question that I was asking, when Mr. Steffen raised the objection. Will you read my question as far as I had gone, Mr. Reporter?

(Thereupon, the pending question was read by the reporter as follows:

"Q. So you concluded that Duskis could not have been buying from Perry—")

4541 Mr. Bromley: (Continuing)—unless Certain-teed had been cutting its bulletin price to Perry?

The Witness: That is right. I might say, to clear that up, that we had sold a very large quantity of material to Daniel Duskis in years prior to this time, and on an equal basis we would unquestionably have received the business.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. You mean by that, that if the price had been the same he would have given you his trade? A. I fully believe so, yes.

Mr. Bromley: May the witness see Exhibit 486, please?

(Thereupon, Government's Exhibit No. 486 was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Isn't Exhibit No. 486 another example of an instance where your information on which you based your complaint to the Board Survey Company, initially came from a dealer? A. Yes.

Q. And is it correct that the phrase, "one of our dealers" in Boston means that this was a Boston dealer who had been, up to this time, or was at this time, a customer of yours? A. Yes.

Q. And he informed you, did he not, that he had been offered a carload of lath at the dealer price by Wy-4542 man & Allen? A. Yes.

Q. And of course you knew that Wyman & Allen had been jobbers of American Gypsum's board? A. That is right.

Q. Now what did you conclude from the information given you by this dealer-customer, as set forth in Exhibit 486? A. I concluded that the American Gypsum Company was continuing to sell Wyman & Allen Lumber Company at the dealer price, less a discount.

Q. And as of the date of this letter, Exhibit 486, the price which American should have charged Wyman & Allen was the dealer price without any discount, wasn't it? A. That is correct.

Q. So your complaint then was against American for a price violation? A. Yes.

Q. And the basis of your complaint was what Wyman & Allen were doing with respect to this Boston dealer who reported the instance to you? A. Yes.

Q. And it is a fact, isn't it, Mr. Lenci, that Exhibit 486 is a complaint against American for violation of its license, and the bulletins issued thereunder, and not a complaint against Wyman & Allen? A. Oh, no, it is a complaint 4543 against the American Gypsum Company.

Q. You knew that Wyman & Allen were not licensees, and that their price was not controlled by USG, didn't you? A. Certainly.

Q. Now didn't the same situation apply so far as these half-dozen or so manufacturing distributors are concerned? A. Yes.

Mr. Bromley: May the witness be shown Exhibits 440 to 446?

(Thereupon, Government's Exhibits Nos. 440 to 446 were handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. During the period of time covered by these exhibits, which was in the summer of 1932, isn't it the fact that you found that Structural was selling customers which you might otherwise have sold, in a way which left you non-competitive with Structural? A. Yes.

Q. And in Exhibit 440, you refer, do you not, to the fact that Structural was selling by truck in small quantities, and I refer you to the second paragraph of that letter? A. Yes.

Q. Now you knew, didn't you, that that kind of a delivery service in small quantities was a service to Structural's customers which cost Structrual money, and gave 4544 the dealer receiving that service a distinct advantage over his competitors? A. Yes.

Q. You were prohibited under the USG bulletins from giving that kind of service to those dealers, weren't you? A. Yes.

Q. You couldn't sell small quantities in truckloads at the price at which Structural was making the sale? A. That is right.

Q. And that caused you to lose prospective sales? A. Yes.

Q. And you were being very materially hurt by that kind of competition from the Structural Gypsum Company which was a manufacturing distributor, weren't you? A. Yes.

Q. Did you know, Mr. Lenci, that if Kelley were abiding by the bulletin restrictions on Kelley, so far as its sales to Structural were concerned, that Structural was receiving or should have been receiving only a small discount? A. Yes.

Q. Isn't it the fact, referring specifically to Exhibit 440, that you concluded from what you knew about Structural's practice, that Kelley must have had some deal with Structural which resulted in Kelley cutting its price, otherwise Structural could not consistently and regularly ren-4545 der this special type of service to its customers? A. Yes, that was our feeling about it.

Q. And what was your attitude during these years with respect to the Kelley-Structural relationship generally, if you can tell us? A. We had a feeling right along that Kelley was giving Structural a very much larger distributor's discount than was permitted by the bulletins.

Mr. Steffen: I object to that, your Honor, as simply the witness' feeling. I don't know on what basis that could be admissible.

Justice Stephens: Technically the use of the word "feeling" is incorrect. I assume you are trying to find out the witness' understanding of these relationships, and the attitude of Kelley?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, sir, and the basis of his complaints.

Justice Stephens: The objection is sustained to the use of the word "feeling", but you may rephrase your question.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. What was your understanding with respect to the Kelley-Structural relationship? A. We knew very well, from the result, that such an excessive discount must be given by Kelley to Structural to enable them to put out the prices and indulge in the practices which they did—4546 Q. (Interposing) When you say "them" and "they"— A. (Continuing) That came right back to customers that we were selling, so I should not have used the word "feeling". It was a very definite loss to us.

Q. When you used the words "them" and "they", you meant Structural, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And in so far as this situation is concerned, you wanted somebody to do something about it which would stop the practice so far as the Kelley Company was concerned, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. You knew that Kelley's sales to Structural were made by virtue of a written consent or permission running from USG to Kelley, didn't you? A. I assumed they had that consent, I never saw.

Q. You were familiar with the provisions of your license which provided that you couldn't sell a manufacturing distributor without USG's consent? A. That is correct.

Q. And you knew that Structural at that time was a manufacturing distributor? A. Yes.

Q. And it was your position that USG could withdraw that consent if it wanted to, was it? A. Yes.

4547 Q. And it was also your position that Kelley could stop selling Structural if it wanted to? A. Certainly.

Q. Did you have anything in your mind in making these complaints, of which Exhibit 440 is one, about the possibility that USG might be induced to change its bulletins so that you could become competitive with Structural? A. No, I don't think so.

Q. Wouldn't it have been possible for USG to have changed its bulletins at that time so that you could have made, to Structural's customers, the same kind of minimum quantity delivery by truck that Structural was doing? A. Well, if that was done we would not have been in favor of that, because that would be adding to the cost of our doing business.

Q. You wouldn't have wanted that change? A. No.

Q. By the way, speaking of trucking areas generally, was your attitude, and that of your company, in favor of extending trucking areas or restricting them? A. We were not in favor of trucking at all, for the reason, if you wish it—

Q. (Interposing) Yes, I would like to have it. A. Our plant is located in Upstate New York. The greater 4548 part of the business is around the Metropolitan areas of New York, Philadelphia and Boston, and unfortunately for our company, other manufacturers had plants in those three centers where they manufactured board, and they were able to take material directly from their plants, by truck, and make truckload deliveries throughout these areas. If we wanted to meet that condition we had to ship material from Upstate New York to the destination, warehouse it, and then truck it to meet that competition, and it meant a considerable cost to us, and our price was not made up of a price at the mill, plus freight to destination plus trucking. That isn't what we got paid. We got paid what the other company which was located in that area figured was its cost at the mill, plus a trucking charge.

Justice Stephens: Then if I understand you, your answer to Mr. Bromley's question is that you did not favor the extension of trucking areas, is that right?

The Witness: We did not.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Now that was true, generally, as to all licensees, wasn't it, Mr. Lenci? A. Well, I can't speak for the others, because some were in the same situation that we were in, and others were in the position of having plants in one or more of the metropolitan areas.

4549 Q. But at least so far as you were concerned, if you could have made the determination you would have abolished trucking altogether? A. Yes.

Q. At the prices fixed by USG? A. Yes.

Q. Because you felt that the prices fixed did not properly reimburse you for the expense of the trucking service? A. That is correct.

Q. Now in connection with your testimony the other day that you were confused as to the rights which the owner of a patent had, to control the patented product, wasn't your confusion due to the fact that you then believed that USG could withdraw the consent to Kelley, and that Kelley could refuse to sell Structural, but you did not appreciate that those actions could not have been taken as the result of a concerted agreement among the companies concerned? A. I didn't quite understand that.

Q. Well, I will withdraw it.

You told us the other day at page 4415 that you thought that the ownership of a patent carried the right in the patent owner to control the product even to a resale, do you remember that? A. Yes, at that time I did believe that.

Q. Well, you thought therefore, then, did you not,
4550 that not only could USG withdraw its consent to Structural, I mean not only could USG withdraw its consent to Kelley to sell Structural, and not only could USG stop selling Structural, but USG and anybody else could agree that that could be done? A. Yes.

Q. And I ask you again, you did not appreciate the distinction that while USG had a perfect right to withdraw its consent, and Kelley had a perfect right to refuse to sell, that that could not be done as a result of a concert of action among those companies? A. That is true.

Q. Now did this impression of yours, to which you testified on page 4415, arise because of anything that was said to you by anyone connected with USG? A. No, it was a fixed idea, apparently, that I had in my own mind, and had had for years, regarding patents. I must have read something that misled me, at some time, about it, and I had that idea.

Q. You didn't get that impression as the result of anything that was said or done at any licensee meeting, did you? A. No.

Q. And you didn't get that impression as the result of any understanding or agreement that you felt you 4551 had with USG or anybody else, did you? A. No.

Q. Now when was it that your mind was disabused of that impression, if it ever was? A. Well, it must have been early in the 1930's. As to who did it, I don't know. I must have learned better, that is all.

Q. Wasn't it specifically, Mr. Lenci, at one of the very first licensee meetings held in 1932? A. It may have been. You see the first 1932 meeting was that one with the long list of complaints, wasn't it?

Q. Yes. Don't you remember that it was Mr. MacLeish who told you what the law was in this respect? A. I think maybe he did mention it.

Q. And don't you remember that Mr. MacLeish explained that to you shortly after this first licensee meeting which occurred in October, 1932, as I remember it? A. I think maybe he did.

Q. And don't you recall that you had a discussion with Mr. MacLeish about this matter at a licensee meeting, late in 1932? A. I had forgotten it, but now that you mention it, it does seem familiar, it does recall it to my mind.

Q. Well, my information is that it was at the time of a licensee meeting, but either before or after the meet-4552 ing itself—does that accord with your recollection, or doesn't it? A. I don't remember it that far, Mr. Bromley.

Q. You will note, Mr. Lenci—again coming back to Exhibit 440, in the second paragraph—that you refer to Structural's practice of selling board in small quantities. Do you see that? A. Yes.

Q. Isn't it the fact, sir, that from the time of the date of this letter, on, and as long as Structural was in business, it continued this practice and always sold board in small quantities where desired by its customers? A. I believe they did. We had continual reports from our salesmen.

Q. And don't you know, sir, that USG as a matter of fact, never withdrew its consent which it had issued to Kelley to sell to Structural? A. That is true.

Q. And don't you know, furthermore, that Structural during the entire period of its business existence continued to buy and sell gypsum board? A. Yes.

Q. Your company and you, yourself, sold board to Structural, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. You testified in the criminal trial at page 689
4553 that your company continued to sell Structural during this entire period, and right down to the date of the indictment, at least? A. That is correct. The "entire period" referred to there doesn't go back as far as 1932.

Q. When does it start? A. It takes up, I think, after they stopped buying from Kelley, and I think for a while they bought from the U. S. Gypsum Company. I think we came in following that.

Q. That would be 1934 or 1935, then? A. It would be even later than that.

Q. So, for a period of years prior to 1940, at least, you continued to sell Structural? A. Yes, we sold them for three or four years at least.

Q. And they continued their sales practices and policies during that time just as they had existed prior thereto? A. That is right.

Q. I do not mean to create the impression that you stopped selling them in 1940. What is the fact, did you go on after 1940? A. We stopped selling them whenever it was that the American Cyanamid Company decided to discontinue their gypsum division; which was known as the Structural Gypsum Corporation.

Q. So that you continued to sell Structural right 4554 down to the time that Structural went out of the gypsum business? A. That is right.

Q. During the time that you did business with the Structural Company, did you ever have any understanding or agreement with them as to their resale prices for material purchased from you? A. No, we did not.

Q. And did you ever refuse to sell Structural at any time? A. No.

Q. Did you ever threaten them that you would refuse to sell them? A. No.

Q. And did you sell them in the Philadelphia area? A. Yes.

Q. I notice now that you testified in the criminal case that you sold Structural in the Philadelphia area beginning at the time that Kelley stopped selling them there, which was in the latter part of 1937—does that refresh your recollection as to the date? A. Yes, that is about right.

Q. Now when you were making the complaints to Board Survey which appear in Exhibits 440 to 446; inclusive, you knew that the Structural Company was aware of the fact that it was not bound by the provisions of any license 4555 bulletin, isn't that right? A. Yes.

Q. As a matter of fact, your salesmen reported to you that the Structural Company was publicizing the fact in order to get business, isn't that right? A. That is correct.

Q. In other words, they were publicly stating that their situation was different from that of the licensee manufacturers because Structural's price was not controlled, and they could sell to a dealer at any price they wanted to? A. They made that statement to our salesman.

Q. Of course that hurt your business, didn't it? A. That is right.

Q. And isn't it the fact that you complained to Board Survey about it because you didn't at all trust the good faith of Kelley in making sales to Structural? A. Yes.

Q. Will you look at Exhibits 436-A and 437, please?

(Exhibits Nos. 436-A and 437 were handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Do you see in the last paragraph of 436-A that your salesman Ehrlicher reports that Structural's salesman remarked that they now had the other manufacturers where they wanted them as they were not governed by any 4556 ruling set up by USG? A. That is correct.

Q. And in Exhibit 437, in the second sentence of the fourth paragraph, that fact is reported again to you, this time by Mr. Hough, is it not? A. That is right.

Q. Now will you look at Exhibit 463 and 464?

(Thereupon, Government's Exhibits Nos. 463 and 464 were handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Look first at Exhibit 464. That letter, dated May 11, 1933, is a complaint by Board Survey against your company, isn't it? A. That is correct.

Q. And that complaint has to do with your sales to Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company, doesn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company was one of these manufacturing distributors, like the Structural Gypsum, wasn't it? A. That is right.

Q. Now do you notice that in this document, in the last sentence, the situation is spelled out by Mr. Miller as follows: "This would hardly seem possible if your sales of patented board to the Connecticut Adamant Plaster 4557 Company, New Haven, Connecticut, had been made at the licensor's minimum price to you".

What Mr. Miller is talking about is the same type of thing as you and I have been discussing with respect to Structural, isn't it? A. That is correct.

Q. In other words, the evidence in support of this complaint, whoever made it, was that Connecticut Adamant had been selling board to Southbury Lumber Company at the licensor's minimum price, which was the dealer price, isn't that right? A. Yes.

Q. Now Southbury Lumber Company was a dealer, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. If Connecticut Adamant was selling to Southbury Lumber at the dealer price, that would cause one of your competing licensees to suspect that your price to Connecticut Adamant was lower than it should have been, isn't that right? A. That might have been.

Q. That is the precise nature of this complaint, isn't it? A. That is the nature of the complaint, yes.

Q. I am not trying to get you to admit that it was true. I am only trying to get you to admit that its nature was that it was inferred by whoever complained against you on the basis of what Connecticut Adamant was doing, that you must have been giving Connecticut Adamant a cut 4558 price. A. Yes.

Q. And that is the same kind of an inference which you were making against the Kelley Company as far as the activities of Structural were concerned, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Now look at Exhibit 463. This is another complaint by Board Survey against your company. It also involves the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company, does it not? A. Yes.

Q. And it states that the Board Survey is advised that the manufacturing distributor, Connecticut Adamant, is offering patented board to a dealer, the New Haven Reserve Supply Company, f. o. b. their warehouse, in any quantity, at the dealer price—isn't that the nature of that complaint? A. Yes.

Q. Now in that letter the inference is not spelled out, is it? A. No.

Q. But you understood, didn't you, that that was a complaint, not against what Connecticut Adamant was doing, but against what you were charged with doing in your price to Connecticut Adamant? A. Yes.

Q. And anyone in the industry, including Mr. Miller, would so construe Exhibit 463, wouldn't they? A.
4559 That is right.

Q. Look at Exhibit 465, which I think you said was a follow-up of Exhibit 463.

(Thereupon, Government's Exhibit No. 465 was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Exhibit 465 is another letter from the Executive Secretary of Board Survey addressed to your company, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And do you notice that there Mr. Miller says, "May we have a reply to our May 8th letter in regard to your sales of patented board to the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company, New Haven, Connecticut"? A. That is right.

Q. Now the letter of May 8th, referred to in Exhibit 465, is Exhibit 463, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. But even without the letter of May 29, 1933, Exhibit 465, you would have understood, wouldn't you, that Exhibit 463 was a complaint against you in so far as your price to your customer, Connecticut Adamant, was concerned? A. Yes.

Q. And was not a complaint against what Connecticut Adamant was doing with respect to its customer, 4560 New Haven Reserve Supply? A. That is right.

Justice Stephens: We will take the noon recess at this time.

(Thereupon, at 12:15 o'clock p. m., a recess was taken until 1:45 o'clock p. m. of the same day.)

4561 AFTERNOON SESSION

(The trial was resumed at 1:45 o'clock p.m., pursuant to recess.)

Justice Stephens: Proceed.

Thereupon, GEORGE N. LENCI the witness on the stand at the time of recess, resumed his testimony as follows:

Cross Examination (resumed)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Mr. Lenci, do you recall that you testified, in connection with the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company, that you had a talk with Mr. Kellogg, who was the head of that company? A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall that you said, at page 4287, your present recollection was that you asked Mr. Kellogg if he were selling the New Haven Reserve Supply Company? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember that at the criminal trial Mr. Kellogg was produced as a witness by the Government, and denied that anyone ever asked him about his prices or his practices? A. Yes, I remember that.

Q. Well, in the light of that testimony, do you still 4562 say that you, upon one occasion, did ask him about whether he was selling the New Haven Reserve? A. Well, as I recall it, when I first made that statement in the criminal case, I knew that I had talked to Mr. Kellogg about gypsum block, which was the occasion of my visiting him several times. He was selling our gypsum block for some work at the Yale University, and I thought it quite possible that I might have asked him that question about the New Haven Reserve Supply Company.

Q. Well, isn't that all you meant by your testimony on page 4287, that you thought it quite possible you might have asked the question? A. Yes.

Q. Well, that means, does it not, that you now have no recollection as to whether you did or not? A. I am not sure, no.

Q. Well, do you remember anything about the conversation at all, Mr. Lenci? A. Nothing at all definite as to the conversation, no.

Q. Well, if you did ask him whether he sold New Haven Reserve or not, you are pretty sure that you didn't mention USG in the conversation? A. I don't believe I did.

Q. Did you at that or any other time ever threaten 4563 to stop selling gypsum board to the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company? A. No.

Q. Did you at that or at any other time ever suggest that USG might cancel its consent to your company to sell the Connecticut Adamant Company? A. No.

Q. Now these questions have had to do with the New Haven Reserve Supply Company—you realize that, don't you? A. Yes.

Q. And you remember, don't you, that among the exhibits there was a complaint made against you based on what Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company was doing with regard to its customer, the Southbury Lumber Company? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever say anything to anybody from the Connecticut Adamant Company about their prices or sales or practices with respect to the Southbury Lumber Company? A. I don't think I did.

Q. At page 4779, and running over to 4781, you were asked some questions, concerning the bulletin provision with respect to rebates, about the splitting of salesmen's commissions—do you recall discussing that topic? A. Yes.

Q. And your attention was called to the provision 4564 in the licensor's bulletin of February 6, 1939.

At page 4320, beginning in line 3, you testified that Mr. MacLeish said, at the October 17, 1932, licensees' meeting, that the employment of commission salesmen was a bad practice and that it would have to be discontinued. Do you remember that testimony? A. Yes.

Q. Now, isn't it a fact that all that Mr. MacLeish said was that rebating through the device of splitting commissions payable to manufacturers' salesmen was a bad practice and was prohibited by the bulletin? A. Yes. If you want a further illustration of that, we had two examples of it in our own company.

Q. Two examples of what? A. Of the two types of commission men. We had one by the name of Blanchfield, and another by the name of Parker. Blanchfield was paid a very substantial salary and a bonus for sales above a certain amount. Parker was on a nominal salary and was really mostly paid by commissions.

Now with Parker we had difficulty, and I think the evidence shows, either in this case or the other, that we were charged with rebating through Parker, and when we asked Parker about it he finally admitted that he had given cash rebates to certain dealers. Now that was the 4565 type of men that we didn't want in the industry.

Q. Now, when you say "we" do you mean the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. The Ebsary Gypsum Company I am speaking of.

Q. When you testified, then, as you did at page 4429, that you let Parker go, you didn't mean that Parker was discharged because you understood that the bulletin required you to dispense with the services of commission salesmen, did you? A. We fired him because he admitted at that time, when we dismissed him, that he had given cash rebates to a customer, and we immediately let him go for that reason.

Q. Well, you did that, then, because you determined, as a matter of your own company policy, that that was what you wanted to do? A. We sure did, yes.

Q. And you did not do it because you thought you were required to do it by any provision of the bulletin? A. No.

Q. You now say, do you, that it was your understanding that no licensee had to discharge these commission men, and that their only obligation was to see to it that they did not rebate on the USG fixed prices by the device of splitting a part of their commission with the customer of the licensee?

A. I believe that was the intention.

4566 Q. I have noticed throughout the course of the trial that whenever testimony has been received about jobbers, or at least generally so, according to my recollection, it has appeared at some time or another that the particular company that was designated as a jobber was also engaged in the dealer business. Is that generally true of these jobbers as to whom you have been asked questions by Mr. Knuff? A. Some of them were, and some were not.

Q. At pages 4225 to 4227, you gave an illustration of why you would not sell a jobber at a discount in a large town where you had other dealer customers, and made reference to the fact that you found that a jobber would often take material which he purchased from you at a discount, and sell it as a dealer to the ultimate consumer, in competition with your own sales. Do you remember that? A. Yes.

Q. Now, am I correct in understanding that at the times when the USG bulletin permitted licensees to sell jobbers at a discount, the understanding in the trade of the word "jobber" was that they were a class of distributor whose customers were not contractors or consumers, but whose customers were dealers? A. Yes.

Q. And it never was intended, was it, or so understood by you, that a licensee could give a discount to a 4567 dealer under the bulletins? A. No.

Q. So that where you had a jobber who did two types of business, that is, jobbing in so far as his sales to dealers were concerned, and retailing in so far as his sales to consumers were concerned, it was always a difficult matter to know whether or not that individual was or was not entitled to a discount, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And was it true that many of these jobbers would buy on the representation that their business was jobbing; then, having gotten the board from you or some other licensee at a discount, they would proceed to engage in business as a dealer and sell to consumers and contractors? A. Yes.

Q. And, of course, if they did that, since they received a discount on the dealer's price, they were enabled to undersell other dealers in competition with them for the same class of consumer trade? A. That is correct.

Q. And that resulted in complaints being made to you from those of your dealer customers who, not being jobbers, did not get a discount from you? A. That is right.

Q. In one of my questions, I think I said that these 4568 jobbers, when they resold to consumers, would make those resales in competition with you. That isn't correct, is it? A. In competition with the local dealers.

Q. In competition with the local dealers? A. Yes.

Q. And in situations where those local dealers were your customers, that would cause the local dealers to feel resentful at you because you had permitted the particular dealer to whom you gave the discount to receive a competitive advantage? A. Yes.

Q. You told us at one time, as I remember it, that as far as your company was concerned, you did business with very few jobbers? A. Yes, we had very few.

Q. Was one of the reasons for that this reason which I have just mentioned, that it was difficult to find out whether the so-called jobber to whom you gave a discount confined his business to the jobbing business? A. Well, it wasn't so much that as a policy with us that we felt we wanted to do business directly with the dealers. We were not particularly interested in selling to jobbers at all, because in the territories in which we did business we had our own salesmen, and a jobber had very little to offer 4569 us. We felt that we would much prefer to do business directly with the dealers' yards.

Q. Well, is it true, then, that you found, in the operation of your business, that a jobber, so far as gypsum board was concerned and gypsum products generally, performed no function which was of any value to you? A. He usually got in our way.

Q. And, of course, since his customer was the consumer or the contractor, he was in direct competition with you all the time, wasn't he? A. Yes.

Mr. Bromley: I withdraw that question, I misspoke myself.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. And since the jobber to whom you sold at a discount sold dealers as his customers, he was in direct competition with your company in the selling of board? A. That is correct.

Q. And you felt, didn't you, that to give him a discount, in your situation, would be, in effect, giving him money for nothing? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever find that your sales coverage of your territory was so slender that you needed your sales efforts to be supplemented by jobbers' activities? A. Not in the areas where we operated.

4570 Q. You said that there came a time when USG, in its price bulletins, eliminated the jobber's discount, and fixed the price to jobbers at the same figure as the dealer's price, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And you have told us, I believe, that you never knew of any understanding or agreement with USG, or anyone else, at any time, that this would be done? A. They did it on their own initiative, and notified us through the bulletins.

Q. Now, of course, that bulletin, you understood, applied only to patented board? A. That is correct.

Q. And it is the fact, isn't it, that your company has always, to some extent at least, given a jobber discount to real jobbers, so far as plaster and other gypsum products which were unpatented are concerned? A. That we did give discounts to dealers?

Q. Yes. A. Only in an extremely limited way, because as I said before, we had very little business with jobbers, through jobbers.

Q. I should have made it plain to you that my question was that you have always, during this period, sold plaster to jobbers, whenever you have done so, at a dis-

4571 count? A. Yes.

Q. I think you inadvertently, or I, perhaps, used the words "sold to dealers"—you meant jobbers? A. Yes.

Q. And isn't it the fact, Mr. Lenci, that right up to the present time you have given a jobber discount on plaster to Mr. Spease of the Fairmont Wall Plaster Company? A. Yes.

Q. And when did you start to do business with Mr. Spease, do you remember? A. It was when the Oakfield Gypsum Company was taken over by National, whatever the date was.

Q. About 1937 or 1938, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Do I understand you to say now that ever since that time you have sold plaster to the Fairmont Company at a discount? A. That is correct.

Q. And that discount has been about 15 percent, hasn't it? A. About that, yes.

Q. Will you look at Exhibit 431, please?

(Government's Exhibit 431 handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Will you look at the second paragraph of Ex-
4572 hibit 431, please? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now when Mr. Turner, the writer of this memorandum, your sales manager, wrote you that it was his understanding that there were not to be any more jobbers, didn't you understand by that sentence merely that under the bulletin the discount to jobbers had been eliminated, so far as your sales to jobbers were concerned? A. Our sales of board.

Q. Your sales of board? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. And you did not understand Mr. Turner to be advising you that he understood that you couldn't sell to jobbers any more on any basis, did you? A. No.

Q. At page 4316 of your direct testimony, beginning at the top of the page:

"Q. Do you say that it was a matter of frequent discussion, the jobber situation? A. Yes."

You only meant by that answer, did you not, to say that price cutting by licensees, in their sales of board, by giving to jobbers discounts not permitted by the bulletin, was a matter of frequent discussions? A. That is correct, yes.

4573 Q. And in that same exhibit, Exhibit 431, will you look at the last two paragraphs?

In those two paragraphs you were complaining about USG, weren't you? A. No, in the fourth paragraph from the top I am complaining about USG.

Q. That is the one I mean, the last two paragraphs. Oh, I see what you mean. A. In that paragraph only.

Q. You were complaining about USG? A. Yes.

Q. What was the complaint? A. Our complaint was that Mr. Baxter, who was connected with the Samson Plasterboard Company of the USG, had made a cut price on a sale of 2 truckloads of board to the New Broadway Lumber Company. That was a straight complaint about a cut in price, that he had sold the board at $30.61 instead of whatever the correct price should have been at that time.

Q. Now the correct price for that transaction would be the price set in the applicable bulletin for delivery by truck in that area, wouldn't it? A. Yes. I see a pencilled memo at the side there, reading "$33.25", and I would take it that that was probably the correct price for a transaction of that kind at that time.

4574 Q. And by "correct price", you mean— A. (Interposing) The established bulletin price.

Q. And the $30.61 that is mentioned in typewriting in that paragraph was the carload price, wasn't it? A. That is correct.

Q. That is to say, it was the price applicable if Baxter had sold a full car of board? A. That is correct.

Q. Then the price would have been $30.61 per thousand square feet? A. That is right.

Q. But if the sale, as is alleged here, was merely of two truckloads of board, under the bulletin USG should have charged the customer $33.25? A. Yes.

Q. So you say that that is an instance of a straight price cut, a sale below the price fixed in the bulletin? A. That is correct.

Q. Not by any indirect means, but by a direct means? A. Very direct.

Q. You testified, I believe, that up until the bulletin change in the jobber price in August, 1930, it was the practice of the industry to give jobbers a 10 percent discount? A. I think that is what it was.

4575 Q. Will you look at Exhibit 428, please?

(Government's Exhibit No. 428 was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. When you wrote that letter, Mr. Lenci, to Mr. Henning, isn't it the fact that you didn't know whether the Teachout Company, of Akron and Cleveland, was considered by the trade as a jobber or not? A. That is true, I didn't know anything about them at all.

Q. And for all you knew, they might have been a dealer exclusively, and therefore not entitled to any discount at all from you; isn't that right? A. Yes.

Q. Now your information was, as expressed in the last paragraph of Exhibit 428, that Teachout was a wholesaler and sold only to lumber dealers? A. Yes, that apparently was the information that was given to me, and I am asking Mr. Henning for his experience or interpretation or understanding as to whether Teachout was a jobber or not.

Q. Now, if Teachout had been a wholesaler and confined his sales to lumber dealers, then he would have been considered a jobber, wouldn't he? A. Yes.

4576 Q. The answer, Exhibit 428-A, in the last paragraph, you understood that sentence to mean that while Teachout had formerly acted as a jobber, he was no longer doing so because his supplier had ceased selling him at a discount?

(Exhibit 428-A handed to witness.)

A. Yes.

Q. Did you know, Mr. Lenci, that that was because Teachout had gone into the retail business? A. I didn't know anything about them at all.

Q. Did you ever sell Teachout at any time, either as a dealer or as a jobber? A. Never, before or after.

Justice Stephens: Before or after what?

The Witness: The inquiry.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. The inquiry contained in Exhibit 428, is that what you mean? A. Yes.

Q. And will you look at Exhibit 429, please.

(Exhibit 429 handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. The purpose of your inquiry of Mr. Henning in that exhibit was to find out whether the Winslow and Varick companies, as a matter of fact, were in the jobbing business and therefore entitled to a discount, wasn't it?

4577 A. Yes.

Q. And you also wanted to know the same information with respect to the Culver Company in Brooklyn, did you not? A. That is right.

Q. Now, at some point in your testimony you mentioned the name Coeyman & Company, do you remember that? A. Yes.

Q. And you testified, or some exhibit shows, that you made an inquiry about Coeyman, or stated that you were selling Coeyman as a jobber? A. His name was included in that list of three or four jobbers which we said we were selling at the time.

Q. And will you look at Exhibit 421?

(Exhibit No. 421 handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. In that letter you list Coeyman and Raymond and Eastern Builders Supply as three companies which your company considered as jobbers, don't you? A. Yes.

Q. Wasn't this man Coeyman a man who was considered in the trade as a broker? A. Well, it is hard to draw the line between one and another.

Q. Did he have a warehouse, do you know? A. No, he had no warehouse.

4578 Q. Well, a man couldn't perform a jobbing function without a warehouse, could he, Mr. Lenci? A. Not very well, no.

Q. And wasn't that same thing true of the Eastern Builders Supply of Baltimore, weren't they merely brokers, without warehouse facilities? A. I believe they are.

Q. Weren't they in 1929? A. I believe they were.

Q. And the G. B. Raymond Company of Long Island City, as a matter of fact that company was a dealer, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. That means that they were engaged in the retail business? A. Yes, they were.

Q. And as a matter of fact, the Raymond Company never was interested in the sale of gypsum products, was it? A. They were primarily sewer pipe people, clay products.

Justice Garrett: That term "broker" is a new term here, isn't it?

Mr. Bromley: That is a new term.

Justice Garrett: It hasn't been introduced here before?

Mr. Bromley: That is right.

4579 By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Will you tell us, please, what a broker is in the gypsum board business? A. Well, you could use Coeyman as an illustration. He had no yard, but he had certain friends among the dealers and he could go to them and get an order, and then turn it in to a manufacturer. In some cases he carried the credit himself; in others, he merely turned it over to the manufacturer and then got his discount on the sale, his commission on the sale.

Justice Jackson: And the delivery was made by the manufacturer to the dealer direct?

The Witness: Yes, that is correct.

Justice Garrett: Now in that letter, Exhibit 421, going to the third paragraph, you state:

"At the June 6th meeting in Chicago you asked me to send a list of customers who we consider as Jobbers or Distributors and these are as follows"—and then you list those three which you just mentioned.

Now you state in your testimony that Coeyman was a broker and that Raymond & Company were brokers?

The Witness: No, the Eastern Builders Supply Company were brokers.

Justice Garrett: When you wrote this letter which did you regard these people as, jobbers or distributors? We have this new expression here, "broker".

4580 The Witness: I am sorry to hear the word "broker" brought up, because that means one more thing to try to explain.

I honestly can't tell the difference.

Justice Jackson: Didn't you mean those were the men to whom you were selling at a discount?

The Witness: That is it, exactly. In other words, they were an in-between party between the manufacturer and the dealer, under whatever title they might be considered.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Well, so far as the bulletins were concerned, Mr. Lenci, the only term ever used in them was "jobbers", isn't that right? A. Yes.

Q. Neither the term "broker", nor the term "distributor", according to your best recollection, was ever used in a USG price bulletin, was it? A. I am very sure that the term "broker" was never used, and I don't think the term "distributor" was used, except in connection with "manufacturing distributors".

Q. At pages 4125 and 4126 of the record, you were asked, and answered, some questions about the bulletin provisions governing trucking and trucking areas. The only provisions ever set up by USG in its bulletins, concerning these matters, applied solely to patented gypsum board, 4581 according to your understanding, isn't that so? A. Yes.

Q. And wasn't it your understanding that so far as these bulletins were concerned, in their limitation of trucking areas, that is their definition of trucking areas, that they merely prescribed those areas in which, at that time, it had been found by the industry to be economic to incur extra trucking expense in order to make sales? A. Yes, that that was the United States Gypsum Company's understanding that it was economic in those territories. We didn't agree with them.

Q. And you never had any understanding or arrangement with USG as to whether the bulletins would define trucking areas or trucking charges, did you? A. No.

Q. And whatever the bulletins contained with respect to those matters from time to time, was determined by USG wholly independently of you? A. Absolutely.

Q. And wasn't the fixing of a price in the bulletins for a truckload delivery in a so-called trucking area, in all respects similar to the fixing of a specific price for a carload, for instance? A. Yes. Let me use a specific example.

The USG, say in 1940, established a price of $14.10
4582 on gypsum lath delivered in the New York City area, and if they got beyond that, farther up the Hudson River, it would jump to $14.25. Now that did not represent a mill price plus freight to destination, but a price below that. So wherever these trucking areas were established they meant a cut in what we would normally secure for that business.

Q. I thought you testified—or at least you created the impression in my mind—that you construed the bulletins as prohibiting you from trucking into counties or areas not specified in the bulletins. A. Yes, I did understand them that way.

Q. Well, didn't you understand that the result of the fixing of the price for trucking areas merely meant that if you saw fit to truck outside of those areas, you were obligated to charge the customer a price which should be composed of the mill price, plus the LCL freight for the quantity delivered by truck? A. Well, that would be purely an academic question, because we did not like this trucking, and we did not want to do it. So I don't know how we would have interpreted it.

Q. Well, it would be purely an academic question because the less-than-carload freight rates fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission were so high that nobody would pay that for trucking service, is that what you mean? A.

I meant that our company wasn't interested in devel-4583 oping business of that kind.

Q. Well, I still am unable to understand why you construed the bulletins as prohibiting you from making a delivery by truck if you wanted to, into an area for which a price was not established by the bulletins, in the manner which you have described. A. Well, suppose we had made a price outside of the trucking area, that would have been a cut below the prices which were established for the carload shipments into that specific territory and would have been construed, I think, by the licensor, as a price cut on our part.

Justice Jackson: Unless you charged, for your trucking service, the same as you would charge by freight?

The Witness: That might be so.

Mr. Bromley: That is all I am trying to find out.

The Witness: That is correct, then, yes.

Justice Stephens: Let me get your state of mind clearly. Did you understand that the effect of the bulletins was to legally prohibit you from trucking into these areas, or that in view of the price arrangements for trucking, as compared with carload or less-than-carload deliveries, as an economic matter you could not successfully truck into those areas?

The Witness: That is correct, we could not economically do it.

By Mr. Bromley:

4584 Q. Will you look at Exhibit 457 again, please, Mr. Lenci?

(Thereupon, Government's Exhibit No. 457 was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Don't you remember that the dealer, Louis Brooks, referred to in that exhibit, was located in Washington, New Jersey, which place was outside of any area designated as a trucking area for which a price was fixed by the USG bulletins? A. Yes.

Q. Now there was, in the bulletins, a price for a carload of board fixed which would cover Brooks in Washington, New Jersey, wasn't there? A. Yes.

Q. But a truckload was less than a carload, wasn't it? A. That is correct.

Q. So that the price for the delivery to Brooks in Washington, New Jersey, of less than a carload, whether delivered in a freight car or a truck, would be the price provided for in the bulletin as the less-than-carload price, wouldn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And that is the reference in the second paragraph of Exhibit 457? A. That is right.

Q. That is $36.28 per thousand square feet is the 4585 price fixed by the bulletins for sales of less-than-carload lots? A. That is my understanding.

Q. And in this letter of Mr. Miller's to you, he points out to you that this is the price which should have been charged under the bulletins for a truckload delivery? A. Yes.

Q. And didn't you understand, then, that that principle applied to all areas not specified in the bulletins as trucking areas? A. Yes.

Q. In other words, if you were permitted to sell lath at $15, delivered by truck in Metropolitan New York, and no price was set for delivery by truck in Westchester County, the bulletins nevertheless required you to charge mill base, plus less-than-carload freight for the delivery of a truckload into Westchester County? A. That probably would have been the case if no price had been established for Westchester.

Q. You mean by that, if no truck price had been established for Westchester? A. Yes.

Q. And when you said at page 4145, beginning at line 8, in answer to this question:

"Q. Is it your understanding that this meant there would be no truck deliveries to the dealers' warehouses out 4586 of Charlestown, Massachusetts? A. That is right."

When you said that, that answer was either inaccurate or not complete, wasn't it? A. What was that in connection with?

Q. That was in connection with Exhibit 417, Mr. Henning's letter to you of July 26, 1929, which was a price bulletin, and which set a price for truck deliveries to dealers' warehouses.

(Thereupon, Exhibit No. 417 was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. In the last paragraph of Exhibit 417 you will notice it says:

"Plasterboard not delivered by our trucks to dealers warehouses. Please disregard the minimum price for delivery by truck given in our letter of July 25".

Didn't you understand that to mean that the licensor was fixing no price for truck deliveries in Charlestown, Massachusetts? A. Yes, they established, for Charlestown, Massachusetts, which was the location of their Boston mill, these pickup prices.

Q. What prices are you talking about when you 4587 mention "pickup" prices? A. The next to the last paragraph reads:

"Minimum prices for material picked up at Charlestown Mill by dealers".

Q. That meant that the licensor established by this bulletin a price per unit of a thousand square feet, where a customer came to the mill and got the material himself, is that right? A. That is right.

Q. Didn't the bulletins also provide that there should be no special price for truckload deliveries to Charlestown, Massachusetts, in the sense in which trucking prices had theretofore been established in the bulletins? A. That is right.

Q. Now you told us, didn't you, that the price that was established for trucking deliveries was not mill base plus freight, but was calculated on a more or less arbitrary basis of mill base, plus some arbitrary figure designed, partially or wholly, but only in a general way, to cover the trucking costs? A. That is right.

Q. Didn't you understand this bulletin, Exhibit 417, to notify you that there was no special price set for truckload deliveries in Charlestown, Massachusetts? A. Yes.

Q. And didn't that result in notifying you that if 4588 you, nevertheless, wanted to deliver by truck in Charlestown, the price which you were obligated to charge the customer for that delivery should be made up of the mill base price, plus the freight calculated at the less-than-carload freight rates on the quantity delivered by truck? A. Yes.

Q. I notice that at page 4441 of the transcript, at the bottom of the page, you were asked this question and you gave this answer:

"Q. And you might consider that as the zone nearest the mill, and then there was a zone farther away from the mill in which trucking was not permitted; is that correct? A. That is correct".

Didn't you mean by that merely that trucking was not permitted at the price fixed for the area nearest the mill? A. You are speaking of Upstate New York now?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And when you said on page 4442 as follows:

"A. But it was the practice of both the Paragon Company and the American Hardwall to make truck deliveries throughout the territory adjacent to their mills, and we were anxious to be put in a position to compete with those two companies"—you merely meant that you wanted the bulletin to set a price for truck deliveries in those 4589 areas which would enable you to sell on that basis in competition with these Paragon and Hardwall companies? A. That is correct.

Q. At page 4411 you testified with respect to a complaint made against the Certain-teed Company which involved the sale at the truckload price of an amount of board less than the minimum quantity specified in the bulletins for that price. Now isn't the situation with respect to the minimum quantity provisions of the bulletins similar to the situation which we have just been discussing regarding trucking areas? A. Yes, the bulletins provided for such-and-such a price on a specific quantity.

Q. And those minimums generally, over the years, were either 7,500 square feet, or 10,000 square feet, or 5,000 square feet, somewhere in that neighborhood? A. They roughly represented a truckload, yes.

Q. And the price that was fixed was a special price fixed for that amount of material delivered in a truck, wasn't it? A. That is correct.

Q. Now you realized, didn't you, that at all times you could deliver less than that if you wanted to, but you were subject to the restriction that you had to charge a higher price for it? A. That is right.
4590 That price being the price which would result from adding the less-than-carload freight to the mill base applicable to the transaction. A. Yes.

Q. You said at page 4638, in answering a question of Mr. Knu[illegible]s with respect to the 7,500 foot minimum, as follows:

"But you could not go below the 7,500 feet, as I recall it."

Now in giving that answer you meant to say that you could not deliver less than the 7,500 feet at the price fixed for the 7,500 feet in the bulletin, did you not? A. That is right.

Q. Now so far as the pricing system in the gypsum board business is concerned, isn't it true that all that the bulletins did in providing for a price made up of a mill base plus freight, was to continue to use the practice which had been common in the industry for many, many years? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember that Mr. Knuff referred to this as a "basing point system"? A. Yes.

Q. Well, isn't it the fact that over the years the mill base provisions were extended to all mills, not only USG mills, but to all mills? A. Yes. It always seemed to me that that phrase, "basing mills" was very misleading, 4591 because most people think, when you speak of a "basing mill", of the Pittsburgh steel basing point where, no matter where anybody ships from, they base it on Pittsburgh. But this is the exact opposite. We base it on the nearest mill to the destination, the lowest price to the customer, rather than an arbitrary high point.

Q. So that the system, rather than being a basing point system, is really nothing but a freight equalization system? A. It is freight equalization based on the mill having the cheapest freight rate to the destination in question, at the time.

Q. And that merely results in the customer always getting the lowest possible price, no matter from whom he buys? A. Yes, and that worked very much to our disadvantage, but it was the way it was done.

Q. Well, sometimes that would work to your advantage, wouldn't it? A. Not in one time out of a hundred, because our plant in Upstate New York was in the immediate area where National, USG and Certain-teed had plants. So we had no advantage there. If we shipped into Boston we had to meet the prices established by the companies basing their prices on Boston. If we went into Portland, 4592 Maine, we had to meet the competition arising at Portsmouth, New Hampshire. If we went into Philadelphia or eastern Pennsylvania, we had to meet the producers in Philadelphia. If we came to Washington, we had to meet the prices established by Philadelphia. If we went into Ohio, we had to meet the producers who had plants at Gypsum and Port Clinton, Ohio.

In other words, we were in the spot of always meeting a lower price established by the companies who happened to have a mill nearest to that destination.

Q. So that the situations were very few in which you got the advantage of this freight equalization system? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: Weren't your competitors, or some of them, at the same disadvantage, when they had to ship from territory which was near your mill?

The Witness: The one which suffered the most was Certain-teed, because their situation was about the same as ours, they had a plant in Upper New York State, and none near the seaboard. The National and USG had mills on the seaboard.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Now at pages 4105 and 4106 your attention was called to Government's Exhibit 404, which again was a price bulletin, I believe, and particularly to the provision on page 2 thereof, which stated: "Truck deliveries from New 4593 Brighton Mill add $3.00 to New Brighton base prices, or $2.00 to Oakfield delivered carload prices."

On page 4106 of the transcript you said that you did not know what the business reason for that differential was. Now isn't it a fact, Mr. Lenci, that obviously the $3 surcharge which was added on to the New Brighton Mill price was to enable the licensee making a sale and delivering by truck, to recover some part or all, of the trucking cost and the cost of the additional service in loading and handling quantities as small as truckload quantities? A. Yes.

Q. That provision on page 2 of Exhibit 404 is an example of the way trucking area prices were established generally by the bulletins, isn't it?

Justice Jackson: Do you mean page 2 or page 3 of that exhibit?

Mr. Bromley: I thought it was at page 2.

Mr. Bromley: No, your Honor, it is at page 2.

Justice Stephens: What line from the bottom? I haven't been able to place it yet.

Mr. Bromley: The sixth line from the top. It reads:

"Truck deliveries from New Brighton Mill add $3.00 to New Brighton base prices, or $2.00 to Oakfield 4594 delivered carload prices".

Justice Stephens: This is Exhibit 404?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, page 2, about six lines from the top.

Justice Jackson: You were previously examining on truck deliveries from Philadelphia, weren't you?

Mr. Bromley: I don't think so.

Justice Jackson: I guess I had it all twisted, that is all.

Justice Stephens: I have it now.

The Witness: If I can explain it, I think I could make it clear.

Take, for instance, #1 gypsum wallboard—at the bottom of page 1—the price f.o.b. New Brighton is $22.60.

Turning to page 2 it says to add $3 to this in order to make the truck delivered price, or, to take the similar price on #1 wallboard of $20 f.o.b. cars Oakfield, plus freight to destination, plus $2—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Where is the $20?

The Witness: The $20 is near the top of the first page of the exhibit.

Justice Stephens: I see.

The Witness: Then the customer would be quoted the lower combination of the two. That was the intention of that.

Justice Stephens: What do you mean by "the lower combination of the two"?

The Witness: If $20.60, plus $3 was less than $20,
4595 plus freight, plus $2, you would quote that, you would quote whichever was the lower of the two.

Justice Stephens: To what point?

The Witness: To whatever point the delivery was to be made.

Justice Stephens: I see.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. I believe you made a mistake in your answer. You said $20.60 when you meant $22.60, did you not? A. Yes, I should have said $22.60 in referring to New Brighton.

Q. So that this paragraph on page 2 meant that you were permitted to sell board, and deliver it by truck, at $25.60—that is the first effect of the provision, isn't it—$3 plus $22.60? A. That is right.

Q. Or, if you had a plant up near Oakfield, and you wanted to, you could charge the customer the Oakfield price of $20, plus the freight to New York, if your customer was in New York, which would be approximately $3, or so, plus $2? A. Yes.

Q. So that, as it worked out, the price on both bases would be about the same? A. In that particular case, yes.

Q. There might be some instances where, to figure 4596 it out on the Oakfield base would be lower than the New Brighton base? A. That might be so.

Q. And you were permitted to charge whichever you wanted to? A. Yes, we were permitted to charge the lower of the two.

Q. Now you said at page—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Where does the exhibit say that you are permitted to charge the lower of the two?

The Witness: Well, naturally—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) That word "or" does it—that is an alternative and not a connective.

The Witness: Naturally, we would quote the customer the lower combination of the two, and would be forced to do so for business reasons.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. I started out to call your attention to the fact that at page 4106 you said you did not know the business reason for the $3 or $2 surcharges. You do know what that was, do you not? A. I do know what it was, yes. My memory is working a little bit better than it did the first day when we started out.

Q. What was the business reason? A. To give the customer the benefit of the lowest price.

Q. I am not talking about the alternative prices,
4597 Mr. Lenci. You were asked if you knew the business reason why a $3 surcharge was set by the licensor for truck deliveries, and you said you didn't know. A. Well, I don't know what was in USG's mind.

Q. Well, it cost the manufacturer some money to make delivery by truck, didn't it? A. Naturally.

Q. And it cost him some money to load the goods in the truck, didn't it? A. Yes.

Q. It cost him money to handle the goods, didn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Wouldn't you expect, if you were going to sell a customer and deliver by truck, that you should get a higher price than the mill base price? A. Certainly.

Q. Wasn't the $3 established by the licensor as a differential over the mill base price, to enable the licensees, in making sales by truck, to recover some of their delivery costs? A. Yes.

Q. Wasn't that the business reason for the $3 differential? A. I believe it was, yes.

Q. Now at page 4064 you were describing the 4598 situation in connection with your mill which you said was located at Wheatland, New York. And you told us that there were plants at Oakfield, and that Oakfield was about thirty-six miles from Rochester, and Wheatland was about eighteen miles from Rochester; that Oakfield was on the New York Central, and Wheatland on the B. & O.—do you recall that? A. That is correct.

Q. And you were asked these questions and gave these answers:

"Q. You would ship your board from Wheatland to Rochester, but you would add the freight from Oakfield to Rochester, is that correct? A. At that time, yes.

"Q. And if you were selling board in Buffalo, you would likewise quote the mill price, plus freight from Oakfield, is that not correct, from Oakfield to Buffalo? A. Yes, that is the opposite illustration."

Do you recall what you meant by that? A. Well, that meant that our freight from our mill at Wheatland to Buffalo was higher than the freight rate from Oakfield to Buffalo, and we were absorbing a considerable difference in the cost of transportation, and that was opposed to the question there that from Wheatland to Rochester we had a slightly lower rate than the companies at Oakfield had to Rochester.

4599 So when you sold in Rochester you charged the dealer the mill base, plus the freight from Oakfield to Rochester? A. At the very start, but it wasn't long before that dropped back to the rate from Wheatland to Rochester.

Q. I am not interested in when it dropped back, I am trying to get an explanation of what you meant by, "that is the opposite situation". A. That is my explanation of that.

Q. Well, I still don't understand it. You meant, didn't you, that when you shipped to Rochester, you were paid by your customer, in the price, more than the actual freight? A. Yes.

Q. So that you made money in that instance? A. Yes.

Q. And from the bulletin requirement that your price to the dealer should be mill base, plus freight from Oakfield to Rochester, that resulted in an advantage to you? A. That is correct.

Q. And instead of having to absorb freight, you made some money? A. Yes.

Q. Over and above the freight that was paid? A. Yes.

Q. Isn't it true that as between Oakfield and Wheat-

4600 land, in the majority of instances the freight rates are the same? A. They are identical, with very few exceptions.

Q. That is because Oakfield and Wheatland are close together? A. They are classified together as a rate base point.

Q. And being classified together, the freight rate from each place to most destinations is the same? A. To very nearly all, yes.

Q. So that the fact that the bulletin provided that the price to the dealer should be composed of the mill base plus the freight from Oakfield, did not seriously injure or prejudice you, did it? A. No.

Justice Stephens: The Court will take the afternoon recess at this time.

(Thereupon, a five-minute recess was taken, after which the hearing was resumed.)

4601 Justice Stephens: You may proceed.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. At page 4407, Mr. Lenci, do you remember you testified about a complaint which you made against National, having to do with the sale by National of Maftex along with gypsum board? A. Yes.

Q. And you told us that Maftex was a fiber board like Celotex? A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall that you said there that your complaint was that National, in selling gypsum board to Axinn Brothers, a dealer, sold the board at the correct bulletin price but quoted an unusually low price on the Maftex board? A. Yes.

Q. Now so far as you were concerned, it was the fact, wasn't it, that National could sell Maftex at any price it wanted to? A. Sure.

Q. The thing that you objected to was their practice of selling it below their current market price in order, in that fashion, to effect an indirect rebate on the price of the gypsum board? A. That was my complaint.

4602 Q. You considered the abnormally low price to be, in effect, a partial gift made for the purpose of cutting the board price, didn't you? A. Cutting the gypsum board price, yes.

Q. And at page 4410, you testified with respect to another complaint that you made against National, having to do with the matter of advertising, you said, that is, the giving away by National of boards for completing work in a customer's office.

What relationship did the gift of boards by National, to a dealer-customer, have to advertising? A. Well, it probably is an indirect connection, but we felt, that is, the Ebsary Gypsum Company felt, that anything in the nature of a gift of that kind was advertising, for the reason that the dealer finished up his office with these boards, and they would stand up there as being National Gypsum Company's boards. That, in a way, was advertising. In another way it was a gift, and in effect a cash rebate. So it was really two counts.

Q. Do you mean if a dealer finished the interior of his office with board manufactured by National, that a visitor to the office could read the trademark National on the board and would know that the dealer was using National board?

A. I wouldn't be surprised if the boards were iden-4603 tified so that that would be true.

Q. And did you mean, then, that the manufacturer who made a gift of that kind for that purpose, to a dealer, might seek to justify it on the basis that he really was only paying the dealer for permitting an advertisement of his product to be made in the dealer's office? A. Well, in a way; but if they hadn't made him the gift, the dealer would have had to have used board for which he paid cash, and here he was using board that didn't cost him anything.

Q. Well, was it your position that the value of the board given to the dealer was worth more than the value of the advertising which the manufacturer supplying the board received? A. It was our feeling that the value of the board represented a rebate. That was the first thing in my mind when I made the complaint.

Q. And I wasn't quite clear about your explanation having to do with the painting of a dealer's buildings and fences. You said that that was sometimes done by licensee-manufacturers, and in your judgment accomplished an indirect price rebate on board sold to the dealer, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. I thought you made some reference to the fact that sometimes the manufacturer would put a little sign 4604 on the fence advertising his particular products. A. That is correct.

Q. Was it your position that that little sign was put up there as a pretext for justifying the expenditure of the cost of the paint and the painting by the manufacturer? A. Yes.

I have one particular dealer in mind, and I am not going to mention the name, who had a good sized plot of ground. He had his office in the corner of the lot. He had a fence all along this side and all along this side (indicating). That whole fence was painted, and he charged that expense to one of the gypsum manufacturers, and the only thing the gypsum manufacturer got out of it was a small section of that fence that bore this manufacturer's name; and the dealer had previously asked us if we would do that for him, and we refused.

Q. And you thought that the cost incurred by the manufacturer, of painting that long fence on two sides of the lot, greatly exceeded the value of the advertising which the manufacturer got from the little sign on it? A. Yes, it certainly did.

Q. And you, therefore, construed that as an indirect way which the manufacturer was using to accomplish a rebate on the price of board purchased by that dealer? A. Yes.

4605 Q. You testified at pages 4443 and 4444, with respect to the relations between the Kelley Company and the Structural Company, that in 1932 Structural made an arrangement to have a dealer locate himself in their plant and sell material to contractors or consumers, and that you thought, as I understood you, that that was a violation, by the Kelley Company, of the price bulletins. Do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember that you testified about this instance during the course of your examination in the criminal case, Mr. Lenci? A. I believe so, yes.

Q. Didn't you there testify as follows, with respect to this instance, beginning at page 681:

"Q. Well, let's see, Kelley had the permission of the licensors to sell a distributor at a discount only if the distributor were acting as a wholesaler and not a retailer, isn't that right. A. That is true, yes."

That is correct, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. The next question:

"Q. Now Kelley was a licensee, wasn't he?"

And you answered:

"Yes."

4606 "Q. And Structural was a manufacturing distributor, wasn't he?"

And you answered:

"Yes."

That is correct, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Now it is the fact, isn't it, at this time, and in fact at all times during which Structural was in business, that Structural's normal business was that of a distributor selling to dealers? A. Yes.

Q. So that if Structural should suddenly go into the dealer business and commence to sell contractors, then your position was that Kelley had no consent from USG to sell Structural at a discount; is that right? A. That is right.

Q. Now, let's illustrate that by an extreme case. Suppose Structural, in 1932, was a manufacturing distributor, its customers would be dealers, wouldn't they? A. Yes.

Q. And it would get a 12-1/2 or 15 percent discount off the dealer price from whatever licensee-manufacturer was selling to Structural? A. Yes.

Q. Now, suppose Structural overnight should 4607 change the character of its business so that it no longer sold as a distributor to dealers, but commenced to sell to the ultimate consumer, the contractor or the consumer; it was your position, wasn't it, that if that happened, Kelley had no more right to give Structural a discount than Kelley would have the right to give any dealer a discount, under the bulletins? A. That is right.

Q. And the thing that you were complaining about in 1932 was that Kelley, in effect, was changing the character of its business to a partial extent through the device of going into the dealer business and selling contractors and consumers?

Justice Jackson: You didn't mean Kelley, did you?

Mr. Bromley: I should have said Structural.

The Witness: Structural, yes.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. That is what your complaint was, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Now, I was under the impression that what Structural had done was to go into the business of selling as a dealer at its manufacturing plant, by utilizing one of its own employees to make retail sales. A. Well, they used a dummy name, I don't know whose it was, I don't remember what it was at the time.

4608 Q. They used a dummy name? A. They marked off, as I was told, a part of their warehouse with a name, and who that party was, I haven't any way of knowing.

Mr. Steffen: Is this all based on hearsay? Do you have any other information but what you were told, Mr. Lenci?

The Witness: I was told by our salesman.

Mr. Steffen: We object to that as hearsay, Your Honor.

Mr. Bromley: It seems to me it is material in connection with the complaint which he made, according to his testimony at page 4443, in this case, against that situation.

Justice Stephens: In other words, you are showing his knowledge or understanding of what Kelley did, as bearing upon the meaning of his previous testimony?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, sir.

Justice Stephens: The objection is overruled.

Mr. Steffen: It is not offered for the truth of the statement that the dealer was a dummy dealer? He may have been a bona fide dealer, so far as this testimony goes.

Justice Stephens: Well, I understand the cross-examination is merely referring to this information based upon hearsay, to show what the state of this witness' mind was as bearing upon the nature of his complaint. That 4609 is proper.

Mr. Steffen: That is right.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Well, whatever the true facts were, your information was, and your complaint was, that in some fashion, direct or indirect, Structural was changing the character of its business from that of a distributor to that of a dealer? A. That is correct.

Q. And your position was that if that was the fact, Kelley was violating his license if Kelley gave Structural a discount? A. Yes.

Q. Now I believe in one of your notes at licensee meetings, you wrote down the words, "Kelley to straighten out." Do you recall that, in connection with this complaint—and I refer specifically to Exhibit 479 for Identification, and your testimony with respect to this note of yours, "Structural dealer at mill—Kelley to straighten out at once". Do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. That is something you said you brought up at the licensee meeting of December 13, 1932? A. That is right.

Q. Now, when you said "Kelley to straighten out 4610 at once", didn't you mean merely that Kelley was to find out whether, as a matter of fact, Structural had changed the character of its business to the extent indicated? A. Yes.

Q. You didn't mean, did you, that Kelley was to straighten it out by coercing or compelling Structural to go out of the dealer business? A. We couldn't expect to do that.

Q. All you meant was that Kelley was to find out what the fact was, and if it turned out that Structural was operating as a dealer, then it was up to Kelley to cease giving the discount to Structural? A. Yes.

Q. And in the same exhibit, Exhibit 479 for Identification, there was, as I recall it, a mention of the sales tax, and you testified that some questions were asked about the then pending proposal for a national sales tax? A. Yes.

Q. Isn't it the fact that the only thing you wanted to find out was how your price on patented board, under the bulletins of USG, would be affected if a sales tax law were passed? A. That is what I wanted to know, yes.

Q. You also testified, I believe, that you had made a note at this time in connection with the contemplat-
4611 ed sales tax, "All sales to be subject to the addition of national or other sales tax if passed (this also applies to all products, and orders taken should so specify)."

You didn't intend to indicate by that that you thought the licensor had any right to make any provision as to the price of any product other than patented gypsum board, did you? A. No.

Q. I notice this last note "this also applies to all products, and orders taken should so specify", is in parenthesis. Doesn't that indicate that that was something you put on for your own information, and was not discussed at the meeting? A. That is correct. In connection with that sales tax, the reason it was in my mind is that for a number of years we had a plant in Canada, and did business under the Canadian sales tax, and it was the custom there, well understood by both the manufacturer and the customer, that the tax was to be added onto the face of the invoice; and what I had in mind, when I was asking about that, was if that would be the same practice in the United States, if the other people understood it the same as I did, if the tax came through.

Q. Now, at page 4505, you testified with regard to selling the Paragon companies and the American Hardwall, 4612 and you were asked these questions and gave these answers:

"Q. And the position that you took was that board should only be delivered by Ebsary to Oakfield; is that correct? A. That is correct.

"Q. And that it should not be shipped from the Ebsary plant for the account of Paragon, or Paragon Plaster & Supply, or American Hardwall? A. Yes, that was our argument.

"Q. What disposition was made of that complaint at that time? A. I think Mr. Henning said that he was going to consider it, and would make that change.

"Q. And would make the change? A. Yes.

"Q. Do you know whether the change was ever made? A. I don't think it was."

Now when you used the word "change", you only meant by that to indicate that USG was going to check with its licensees to make sure that no licensee was giving a manufacturing distributor's discount on board to these three companies, the Paragon companies and American Hardwall; isn't that right? A. Yes, but I believe that all three of those companies were getting a discount.

4613 Q. Well, you thought that was wrong, under the bulletins? A. Yes.

Q. And you thought it was wrong because it was your position that these three companies were not manufacturing distributors? A. Yes.

Q. But, on the contrary, were dealers? A. Yes.

Q. And you didn't think the fact that they, together, owned the stock of Oakfield, which was a manufacturing distributor, entitled any company other than Oakfield to get from a licensee a manufacturing distributor's discount? A. That is it.

Q. Now isn't it true that your complaint was not that board should be delivered to Oakfield, but that board should not be sold to these three companies, the Paragon companies and the American Hardwall Plaster, at a manufacturing distributor's discount? A. We felt originally that the Oakfield Gypsum Company should only be sold at Oakfield.

Q. And you thought that some of your competing licensees were selling these three owning companies at a discount? A. Yes.

4614 Q. And you thought that was a violation on the part of the licensees? A. Yes.

Q. Will you look at Exhibit 481, please, Mr. Lenci?

(Government's Exhibit 481 handed to witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. When you used the phrase "It was decided", in the first paragraph, you didn't mean that it was decided by the persons there present that in the future they would do business only upon the usual terms of the gypsum business so far as cash discount was concerned, did you? A. No.

Q. You did mean, didn't you, that that is what Mr. Henning said the licensor would impose as one of the terms upon which you should sell, and the price which you should charge for the patented product? A. That is correct.

Q. Will you look at Exhibits 483, 484 and 485, please, Mr. Lenci?

(Government's Exhibits Nos. 483, 484 and 485 handed to witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. In exhibit 484, you wrote a complaint to Board Survey with respect to the Eastern Builders Supply Company situation in Richmond, didn't you? A. Yes.

4615 Q. Now against whom was that complaint? A. The Universal Gypsum & Lime Company.

Q. And when you said, in the last paragraph, "We have every reason to believe that Mr. Smith is still working on a commission basis contrary to the License Agreement", what did you mean? A. That he was getting a jobber's commission.

Q. From whom? A. From Universal.

Justice Stephens: Do you mean a jobber's commission?

The Witness: Well, he was called a jobber. He really comes under the broker classification, but it is the same thing, practically.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. When you say Jim Smith was getting a jobber's commission, you mean that his company, the Eastern Builders Supply Company, was receiving from the Universal Company a jobber's discount on sales by Universal to Eastern Builders Supply, don't you? A. That is right.

Q. And at the time you wrote this letter, that is, in March, 1933, the bulletins provided that Universal should charge, in its sales to jobbers, the dealer's price, and should not give any discount to jobbers? A. That 4616 is right.

Q. And wasn't that the nature of your complaint against the Universal Company? A. Yes.

Q. Wasn't it a simple instance, again, of where you thought that Universal was selling to Eastern Builders at a price less than the dealer's price; whereas, the bulletin provided that in sales even to jobbers, they should be charged the dealer's price without a discount? A. That is right.

Q. I believe you told us a little while ago that as a matter of fact, the Eastern Builders Supply Company was not a jobber at all, at any time? A. They were not a jobber in the sense that they had a yard or a warehouse, so far as I know.

Mr. Bromley: May the witness be shown Exhibits 489 to 501, inclusive?

(Government's Exhibits 489 to 501, inclusive, handed to witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. All of this correspondence has to do, hasn't it, Mr. Lenci, with the charge that your company was guilty of rebating on board prices through the indirect method of selling plaster along with board, and charging for the plaster an abnormally low price? A. That is their com-
4617 plaint in connection with Exhibits 489 to 493.

Justice Stephens: What do you mean by "their complaint"?

The Witness: The licensor is complaining that we sold —well, the first claim is that we gave away plaster in order to influence the sale of board.

Exhibits 494 to 496 cover the Waltham Lime Company. That is a complaint from the Board Survey Company that we must have been selling plasterboard to that dealer below the bulletin prices, because the dealer in turn was making an unusually low delivered price to the customer.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Even in connection with the Waltham Company, as shown by the last paragraph of Exhibit 496, the charge also was, wasn't it, that you were rebating on your board price by selling plaster at an abnormally low price? A. Yes, they add that to it.

Q. Now, what are the rest of the exhibits? A. Exhibits 497 to 499 have reference to the Liberty Coal Company.

Q. And is that complaint also to the effect that you were cutting the price of board by means of the device of an abnormally low plaster price to that customer? A. Yes, it is.

4618 Q. And what are the rest of the exhibits? A. Exhibits 500 and 501 have to do with the Service Masons Supply Company.

Q. Again, the same kind of a charge, that you were rebating to them by means of the device of selling plaster at an abnormally low price? A. No, there it is a direct charge that we were making a low price on the plasterboard itself.

Q. Doesn't it also include the charge that you were selling other of your materials at abnormally low prices, and I direct your attention to the last paragraph of Exhibit 501? A. Well, that is my reply, and in there I add the statement that we were not selling other materials below our usual selling price.

Q. You stated that— A. (Interposing) I volunteered that additional information.

Q. Although that charge was not covered— A. (Interposing) I don't think it was included in their charge.

Q. Now, in connection with these Exhibits 489 to 501, Mr. Lenci, you understood that USG was not attempting to fix or control your plaster prices, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

4619 Q. And you at all times felt perfectly free to charge for plaster any price that you saw fit, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And you understood that the only complaint against you was that you were attempting to cut the board price by, in effect, giving away plaster, in the sense that you charged for it an abnormally low price? A. Yes.

Q. And you understood that to mean that you were charging this particular customer, or these particular customers, for plaster, a price lower than you were currently getting from your other customers in the market? A. That is right.

Q. And that you were doing it for the purpose of giving that customer, or those customers, a rebate on the board price? A. That is the way I understood these complaints.

Q. So that you understood that you were being accused merely of using a subterfuge to accomplish a board price reduction? A. That is right.

Q. Now, will you look at Exhibits 502 and 503, please, Mr. Lenci?

(Government's Exhibits Nos. 502 and 503 handed to witness.)

4620 By Mr. Bromley:

Q. In Exhibit 502, near the end of the telegram, you will notice there appear these words: "Lee Story must be eliminated immediately as a jobber". A. Yes.

Q. Against whom did you intend that telegram to complain? A. The Kelley Plasterboard Company.

Q. And when you said that "Lee Story must be eliminated immediately as a jobber", did you not mean merely that Kelley must cease giving Lee Story a jobber's discount on its sales to Story? A. Yes.

Q. And in Exhibit 503, the Executive Secretary of the Board Survey Company made a reference to warehousing arrangements. Do you see that? A. Yes.

Q. And that is the same kind of a complaint as to which you have heretofore testified, isn't it, that a warehousing charge was merely a device to grant a rebate to the purchaser of board? A. Yes.

Q. Now will you look at Exhibits 504 to 511, please, Mr. Lenci.

(Government's Exhibits 504 to 511 handed to wit-4621 ness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Isn't it the fact, Mr. Lenci, that all of these exhibits have to do merely with a complaint which you were making against the Kelley Company as to its prices, based upon what you had been informed Kelley's customers—in this instance the Paragon companies and the American Hardwall Company—were doing in the board market? A. Yes.

Q. And isn't it true that in Exhibit 508, in the fourth paragraph, the correct nature of your charge is spelled out in words? A. Is it the fourth paragraph or the third?

Q. The fourth, at the bottom of the page, starting out with "We have no information". A. Yes.

Q. In other words, what you were doing in your part of this correspondence was calling the licensor's attention to what the Paragon companies and the American Hardwall Company were doing in the board market in their areas, and asking Board Survey to infer from that that the Kelley Company must be selling at prices less than the bulletin prices? A. That is right.

Q. And in the third paragraph of Exhibit 508, reference is made to the price list of the American Hardwall 4622 Company, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Miller, for Board Survey, took the position that that price list showed that American Hardwall, as a matter of fact, wasn't selling at prices low enough to justify an inference that their cost, that is, the amount that they paid Kelley, must necessarily have been less than the bulletin price? A. That is correct.

Q. These exhibits, 504 to 511, inclusive, Mr. Lenci, are merely an illustration of what you testified to this morning,—that in most instances, the evidence on which you relied, in your complaint against the licensee, you had to find in the activities of the customers of that licensee, isn't that so? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. And in the third paragraph of Exhibit 504, Mr. Lenci, I notice that you again state:

"At no time are we allowed to truck into Syracuse, nor the surrounding towns. At no time are we allowed to truck less than 5000 sq. ft. into certain counties. But, the dealers in the vicinity of Syracuse, Utica, and Scranton can call at these various warehouses and obtain any amount they desire."

A. That isn't my statement, that is a statement made 4623 by our salesman.

Q. Oh, yes, in a letter to you. A. Yes.

Q. You understood Mr. Neal's reference to be merely that under the bulletins the Ebsary Gypsum Company could not truck into Syracuse or surrounding towns at the price at which companies such as Paragon were actually selling the board delivered by truck; isn't that right? A. Yes.

4624 Q. Now will you look at Exhibits 512 to 515, please?

(Thereupon, Government's Exhibits Nos. 512 to 515 were handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Before we go to those exhibits, I neglected to ask you, with respect to Exhibit 510, if it isn't the fact that in the fifth paragraph of that letter you suggested to Board Survey that one way to give you relief on your complaint would be for the licensor, in its bulletins, to establish a price for truck deliveries in that area which would enable you to compete with such dealers as Paragon and American Hardwall? A. That is right.

Q. But as a matter of fact, no change was ever made in the bulletins in that respect, was there? A. No, it was not.

Q. Now in Exhibits 512 to 515, can you tell us against whom you were complaining? A. The Kelley Plasterboard Company.

Q. In Exhibit 512 I notice that you do not mention the Kelley Company at all, Mr. Lenci. A. Well, I should have, but I took it for granted that they knew what I meant from the reference to the Oakleaf gypsum board whicl is made by Kelley for the Oakfield Gypsum Company.

Q. Well, just what was the transaction which 4625 resulted in the Delaware Clay Products Company jobbing Oakleaf board to dealers in western Pennsylvania—will you spell it out for me? A. The board was manufactured by the Kelley Plasterboard Company.

Q. And sold by it to whom? A. And sold by Kelley to the Oakfield Gypsum Company.

Q. At a discount? A. At a discount, yes.

Q. And what did Oakfield do with it? A. Oakfield, in turn, sold it to the Delaware Clay Products Company, of Pittsburgh, and they in turn were quoting to the dealers a price the same as though they were buying directly from one of the manufacturers. In other words, they were quoting the dealers' price to the dealer in spite of the fact that there were two other intervening parties there who must have had some commission, which would indicate to us that Kelley was giving Oakfield a much larger discount than was permitted, a much larger manufacturing distributors' discount than was permitted.

Justice Stephens: When you say that there were two other intervening parties who might have had a commission, whom do you mean?

The Witness: Oakfield Gypsum Company and the Delaware Clay Products Company. You see this is one step farther than most of the complaints.

4626 By Mr. Bromley:

Q. And that is because you found out that the Delaware Clay Products Company was offering Kelley Plasterboard Company board to dealers at the dealer price? A. That is right.

Q. Now that is the price which these dealers would have had to pay if they had bought the board directly from Kelley? A. Yes.

Q. And you didn't see how the Delaware Clay Products Company could quote that price to a dealer, in view of the fact that the board had to pass from Kelley to Oakfield—and presumably Oakfield made some profit—and then from Oakfield to Delaware—and presumably there was a profit for Delaware—and finally Delaware could sell it at the dealer price and make a profit? A. That is right.

Q. And you inferred from that, that Kelley was violating the license bulletins, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Because you knew that if the license bulletins were being observed that the margin of profit to Oakfield was limited to 15 per cent of the dealer's price? A. Yes.

4627 Q. And it is the fact, is it not, that generally speaking that 15 per cent margin would be used up by a manufacturing distributor in paying its proportion of its overhead and in handling charges on the board which it bought at that discount? A. Yes.

Q. It is the fact, isn't it, that this discount of 15 per cent and 12-1/2 per cent was given by licensees to these manufacturing distributors not to enable the manufacturing distributors to make a profit, but to enable them to avail themselves of the accommodation of being able to offer the board in mixed carloads to their dealer customers? A. That was the basic reason for the manufacturing distributors' discount.

Q. It never was designed to permit the manufacturing distributors to make a profit, was it? A. No, it was designed to give them board which they could ship to their customers along with their other products.

Q. And that margin of 15 per cent and 12-1/2 per cent would be used up just in the expense to the manufacturing distributor involved in the handling, the loading and unloading, and warehousing of the board, wouldn't it? A. In that and the selling expense, overhead and all the rest.

4628 Justice Stephens: The Court will take the afternoon adjournment at this time.

Mr. Bromley: Before we adjourn, may we have permission to file, tomorrow morning, an affidavit in connection with Mr. Johnston's motion? We find in the answering affidavit something which we think affects our position, and we would like permission in the morning to file a short affidavit of our position in the matter.

Justice Stephens: You may do so.

(Thereupon, at 4:00 o'clock p.m., an adjournment was taken until Friday, February 25, 1944, at 10:00 o'clock a.m.)

4629 IN THE

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Civil Action No. 8017

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY; NATIONAL GYPSUM COMPANY; CERTAIN-TEED PRODUCTS CORPORATION; THE CELOTEX CORPORATION; EBSARY GYPSUM COMPANY, INC.; NEWARK PLASTER COMPANY; SAMUEL M. GLOYD, doing business under the name of TEXAS CEMENT PLASTER COMPANY; SEWELL L. AVERY; OLIVER M. KNODE; MELVIN H. BAKER; BROR H. DAHLBERG; HENRY J. HARTLEY; FREDERICK G. EBSARY; and FREDERICK TOMKINS,

Defendants.

Seventh Floor,
Washington, D. C.,
Internal Revenue Building,
Friday, February 25, 1944.

The above-entitled cause came on for further hearing at 10:00 o'clock a.m., pursuant to adjournment, before Honorable Harold M. Stephens, Honorable Finis J. Garrett, and Honorable Joseph R. Jackson, sitting as the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

APPEARANCES:

(Same as heretofore noted.)

4634 You may proceed. Will you take the stand, Mr. Lenci?

Thereupon, GEORGE N. LENCI the witness on the stand at the time of adjournment, resumed his testimony as follows:

Cross Examination (resumed).

Mr. Bromley: May the witness be shown a copy of the minutes for the morning session of February 24?

(Copy of transcript handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Will you turn, Mr. Lenci, please, to page 4797, and read to yourself the question and answer beginning at line 11 and running down to line 18? A. Yes, I have read it.

Q. You will notice in the question I used the words "cost you more than $15". A. Yes.

Q. Will you please explain your affirmative answer with especial reference to my use of the word "cost"? A. Well, what I thought you meant there was that it would cost us more to make the delivery to the Bronx than it would to downtown New York, the expense of delivery would be greater.

Q. And so, if you charged the dealer in the Bronx $15, that might be a price so low as not to yield you any 4635 profit? A. Yes.

Q. Therefore, if you made a truck delivery to a dealer in Bronx County, under the assumption in my question, normally the price to that dealer would be more than as though you sold a dealer by truck in New York County; is that right? A. Yes.

Q. Now, the cost of the trucking service to the manufacturer, of course, becomes greater, the longer the distance from the manufacturer's point of loading the truck to the point of destination at the dealer's warehouse? A. That is correct.

Q. So that if a price of $15 was fixed by the bulletins for a truck delivery within New York County, and that price was limited to a delivery in New York County, and if you delivered by truck into Westchester, you would feel that you should receive more than $15, wouldn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And if you delivered up into Bridgeport, Connecticut, you would feel that the price should be still higher? A. Yes.

Q. That would be because the cost of the trucking would be greater, the longer the haul, would it not? A. That is correct.

Q. And by the same token, the value of the service 4636 rendered to the dealer would be worth more to the dealer, the longer the haul? A. Yes.

Q. Will you turn, please, to page 4840, and will you read the answer beginning in the last line at page 4840, to yourself, please? A. Could I suggest a correction in that?

Q. Yes. A. On page 4841, line 7, the first word is "had". If that was changed to "wanted", it would clear that partially.

Justice Stephens: The witness may make that change in his answer if he indicates that that is what he meant to say.

The Witness: That is what I intended to explain.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Now, in line 10, still in the same sentence, you said, "and our price was not made up of a price at the mill, plus freight to destination plus trucking." When you said "our price was not made up", you meant the price fixed by USG in the bulletin was not calculated upon the basis of a mill price plus the actual freight to destination plus the actual trucking cost, did you not? A. No, that is right.

Q. You say you didn't mean that? A. Well, that is one of those questions that you can't say "Yes" or "No" 4637 to. Their price was not made up on that basis.

Q. Whose price? A. The USG's bulletin price.

Q. The USG's bulletin price was not calculated on the basis as indicated in lines 10, 11 and 12 of your answer, is that what you mean? A. That is right.

Q. How was it calculated? A. It was based upon their bulletin price at their local mill, plus what they thought would be a fair trucking charge for delivery to the destination.

Justice Stephens: By "their", do you mean USG's mill?

The Witness: Yes. Or, should it be in a territory where they had no mill, but one of the other licensees did have a mill, it would be based upon that mill.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. You are talking about the method which you understood USG used in arriving at the dollar figure which was specified in its bulletins for truck deliveries in the areas of New York, Philadelphia, and Boston, aren't you? A. Yes.

Q. And you mean by that answer to indicate merely that in calculating that price, USG did not take the mill base price at the mill nearest destination and add to it 4638 the actual freight to destination and then add to it the actual cost of trucking from the end of the freight haul to the dealer's warehouse, but merely took the mill base price and added to it an arbitrary figure which was intended generally to cover freight, if any, and actual trucking cost? A. That is right.

Q. But which did not represent either the actual freight or the actual trucking cost? A. That is correct.

Q. When you said, in the last sentence of that answer, "We got paid what the other company which was located in that area figured was its cost at the mill, plus a trucking charge.", what did you mean by that? A. That we could charge what the other company used as the nearest mill base—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) You mean you had to do that to meet their price?

The Witness: We had to do that in order to meet their competition.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. You got paid what was specified by USG in the USG price bulletins, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And by that sentence, you meant merely that that bulletin price was fixed on the basis that you have 4639 heretofore indicated, that is, the mill price at the mill nearest to the particular destination, plus some round figure amount added to the mill base to cover generally trucking and freight, if any? A. That is correct.

Q. Now to give an example, if a USG bulletin fixed a price for truckload deliveries in Philadelphia, it would take the Philadelphia mill base price of, say, $13 a thousand for lath, and add to it some figure like $2 or $3, and make the price $15 or $16 for truck deliveries in Philadelphia, wouldn't it? A. Use the actual figures—$13 mill, plus $1.10, makes a price of $14.10, which is the bulletin delivered price for lath in the Philadelphia area.

Q. By truck? A. By truck.

Q. And, of course, if you sold in Philadelphia for delivery by truck, you got paid $14.10? A. That is correct.

Q. And you were trying to point out, weren't you, that in your instance, since your mill was not in Philadelphia but was in Oakfield, you had to pay the cost of the freight from Oakfield to Philadelphia, plus the actual trucking charge from your warehouse in Philadelphia, or the end of the freight line in Philadelphia, to the dealer's 4640 warehouse? A. That is right.

Q. And in that instance, the total of the freight which you had to pay, plus the total of the actual trucking charge, would exceed this differential of $1.10 a thousand which the bulletins provided should be added to the $13 price to make the delivered truck price? A. That is correct. You said "from Oakfield to Philadelphia". We would figure the freight from Wheatland to Philadelphia, which in this case happens to be the same.

Q. Yes, I should have said wheatland, because I realize that that is where your mill was located, and not Oakfield.

Now what you have said, Mr. Lenci, with respect to these answers concerning your previous testimony at pages 4797 and 4841, is all based on your understanding of the way USG determined the price, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And you did not mean to intimate that you had any part in calculating or determining either the amount of the price or how it was arrived at? A. No, we had nothing whatever to do with that.

Q. USG did that by itself? A. That is right.

Mr. Bromley: May the witness be shown the 4641 minutes of the afternoon session, please?

(Copy of transcript handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Will you turn to page 4863, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes, I have it.

Q. Read to yourself, please, the question and answer from lines 14 to 19. A. Yes.

Q. In line 18, you should have said, "That we did give discounts to jobbers?", shouldn't you? A. That should be "jobbers".

Justice Garrett: That is in the form of a question by the witness—

Justice Stephens: I suggest, Judge Garrett, that you don't change the word, because the correction will be shown by the witness' testimony. If you change the word, then the purpose of the correction won't be shown.

Mr. Bromley: It is in the form, however, of a question by the witness of counsel, Judge Garrett.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Now, will you look at Exhibit 516, please, Mr. Lenci?

(Government's Exhibit No. 516 was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

4642 Q. The word "cutstock" refers to a certain kind of gypsum lath, does it not? A. Yes.

Q. It has no application to wallboard whatsoever, has it? A. No, it is board which is cut down from wallboard which was not fit to be shipped due to, possibly, breakage around the edges, or something of that kind; and instead of throwing the board away, it can be recut into smaller sizes and sold as cutstock lath or plasterboard.

Q. When it is so cut, it is cut down, isn't it, to the usual sizes in which the lath is made? A. Yes.

Q. Therefore, it would not be practicable to cut down defective pieces of lath into cutstock lath, because the sizes would be too small; is that right? A. There wouldn't be anything left.

Q. There wouldn't be anything left? A. That is right.

Q. So the phrase "cutstock" means that the manufacturer takes wallboard which is in some respects defective, and of course which is generally in a much larger size than lath, and cuts it down to the lath size? A. That is correct.

Q. And sells it as lath? A. Yes.

4643 Q. And did the bulletins generally provide for a lower price for cutstock lath than for plain, ordinary lath? A. As I recall it, they did.

Q. Because it wasn't as good a product, was it? A. No, it was more like the original open-edge board that we wanted to get away from.

Q. And subsequent to 1929, and as the years went by, was it the fact that the amount of cutstock which was produced by the manufacturers steadily dwindled? A. Yes.

Q. Why? A. In one way, we all learned how to make better board and not have this damaged material. That was the principal reason for it. As a matter of fact, speaking for ourselves, we don't have enough dunnage, hardly, to pack our cars with.

Q. You mean your production results in so little defective board that it is difficult for you to even get enough defective board to use as dunnage? A. To use as packing, yes.

Q. Then at some time subsequent to 1929, it is your understanding, isn't is, that USG no longer set a price for the sale of cutstock? A. That is correct.

4644. Q. And as a matter of fact, no cutstock was produced, due to the reasons that you have said, not only by your own company but by other companies generally? A. That is right.

Q. Will you look at Exhibits 517 and 518, please?

(Government's Exhibits Nos. 517 and 518 were handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. In Exhibit 517, you were suggesting merely, weren't you, to Mr. Henning, that it might be good business if the licensor should announce a price change by way of reducing the price of gypsum lath? A. I think Mr. Henning made that move first.

Q. He suggested it first? A. As I recall it, he suggested at this meeting, which I did not attend, that if a lower price were made on gypsum lath, it would put the gypsum lath manufacturers in a position to better compete with wood lath.

Q. Was wood lath at this time selling at a lower price, on a comparable basis, than the price fixed for gypsum lath? A. Well, it was then, and it always is selling at a lower price than gypsum lath is selling at.

Q. It is today? A. Yes. Of course, there are other factors that have to be taken into consideration be-4645 sides the original cost of the wood lath.

Q. What are those? A. Well, with wood lath you have got a great number of small pieces that have to be handled individually, and the cost of application is higher. With wood lath you use much more plaster to secure a finished wall than you do if you plaster over gypsum lath.

Q. Why is that? A. Because with gypsum lath you have got a solid base; whereas, with wood lath, every inch and a half you have about a half inch space between the two pieces of wood lath, and the plaster goes through each one of those joints. Then besides that, there are questions of quality and matters of that kind.

Q. And, of course, where gypsum lath is used, in a sense as soon as the lath is erected the wall is partially plastered, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Because the gypsum core in the gypsum lath is practically the same as the gypsum plaster which is applied to the gypsum lath? A. That is right.

Q. Now, was your suggestion, contained in Exhibit 517, of a reduction in price to $14 on a carload basis, 4646 adopted by USG, if you know? A. No, it was not.

Q. As a matter of fact, a few months later, and in March, 1937, USG sent out a bulletin which reduced the price to $13, did it not? A. That is correct.

Q. Up to March, 1937, the bulletin price had been $15, had it not? A. I believe so.

Q. So that the reduction was a $2 reduction? A. That is correct.

Q. And are you able to state as to whether or not that resulted in your selling more gypsum lath in competition with wood lath—did it have that effect? A. Well, whatever I say in connection with that would be purely speculative, because I believe we would have sold just as much lath at $15 as we did at $13, because conditions were changing in the market.

Q. Will you look at Exhibits 519 to 522, inclusive, please?

(Government's Exhibits Nos. 519 to 522, inclusive, were handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. All four of those letters, Mr. Lenci, had to do only with the fact that you were complaining to the li-4647 censor that the licensee Certain-teed was cutting the price to one of its customers by giving that customer a jobbing discount, which cut price was not permitted by the USG bulletins; isn't that right? A. That is correct.

Q. And the customer of Certain-teed which you alleged received the discount was the Building Material Wholesalers, Inc., of Charlestown, Massachusetts, wasn't it? A. That is right.

Q. Now, will you look at Exhibit 540, please?

(Government's Exhibit No. 540 handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Do I understand your testimony to be that the meeting referred to in the pencilled note on Exhibit 540 was not held for the purpose of discussing the Cardiff situation? A. No, it was not, that was purely incidental. As I recall it, when Mr. Bartlett came in we talked about other matters, and in the course of conversation I asked him if they had made any decision in Chicago yet about Cardiff.

Q. And what did Bartlett say? A. He told me that it was being considered, and he hoped soon to have a reply for us.

Q. And did either Mr. Bartlett or Mr. Spray ask 4648 you any questions concerning your request to USG for consent to sell Cardiff? A. No, I don't think they did.

Q. And you did not understand, did you, that USG had sent a lawyer down there to interview you about the situation? A. Oh, no.

Q. At page 4593 of your testimony, you said that subsequent to 1935 you sold Ebsary board to the Structural Gypsum Division of American Cyanamid—do you remember that? A. Yes.

Q. And you also said that in 1938 or 1939, Mr. Bartlett inquired of you as to whether Structural was selling board and lath to dealers at prices below the minimum prices specified in the USG bulletins for its licensees—do you remember that testimony? A. Yes.

Q. And you said further that Bartlett asked you to investigate and see whether that was correct. Do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. Now, did you understand that Bartlett was making a complaint with respect to this matter, or not? A. I wouldn't say it was a complaint as much as it was an 4649 inquiry.

Q. But you understood, didn't you, that if the inquiry had developed the fact that Structural was regularly selling at low prices, it might be the basis for a complaint against the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Q. Because at this time referred to in your testimony, 1938 or 1939, the Ebsary Company was selling Structural, wasn't it? A. That is right.

Q. You said, at page 4595, that on the telephone you asked Mr. McCormick of the Structural Company about the Structural prices, and he told you they were not selling below the board prices in effect at that time. Now, in that conversation did you tell McCormick that he must resell at the dealer price? A. No.

Q. Did you make any statement of that kind at all? A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you threaten that if he didn't sell at the dealer price you would no longer continue to sell him? A. No.

Q. Now, at this time, as at all times during which you sold the Structural Company your board, Structural was competing directly with you for the trade of the 4650 same class of customers to whom you sold board, was it not? A. They certainly were.

Q. Can you tell us whether or not, after this conversation with McCormick, you did or did not continue to sell board to Structural as you had prior thereto? A. Yes. As I said yesterday, we continued to sell the Structural Company until their business was discontinued by the American Cyanamid Company.

Q. You will remember that at page 4597, you were asked some questions and gave some answers with regard to a man named Stremble, who you said was a salesman on commission in the employ of the Structural Company? A. That is right.

Q. And you testified at that page that you complained to Mr. McCormick of the Structural Company about Mr. Stremble's practices? A. Yes.

Q. Now, what were the practices of Stremble about which you complained? A. Mr. Stremble was a salesman for the Structural Gypsum Company, and he sold principally in Brooklyn and Long Island. In that same territory we had two salesmen of our own, and we had a great number of complaints from our own men that Stremble was selling the same customers, the same dealers that our men were selling, or attempting to sell, and who were our 4651 customers whom we had previously sold, and was actually giving them cash rebates to influence them to buy our lath through the Structural Gypsum Division of American Cyanamid.

Q. And did you think that that was unfair competition on Structural's part? A. Yes.

Q. You knew that rebating of this kind had long been condemned as unfair competition in the gypsum industry, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Now you said, in your testimony at page 4598, that later on Mr. McCormick told you that he had discharged Mr. Stremble? A. That is correct.

Q. Did you know at that time that on one occasion prior to this, Mr. McCormick had fired Stremble because of his persistent rebating? A. I didn't know that he had discharged him before that, but I know that Mr. McCormick afterward told me that long before we made a—

Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) We object to what Mr. McCormick afterwards told him, as pure hearsay.

Mr. Bromley: I think it is important as bearing on this witness' state of mind as to the situation which led 4652 him to complain to the Structural Company about something that a Structural employee was doing.

Justice Stephens: If you can bring out, Mr. Bromley, that it was brought to his attention before he made his complaint, then I think you would be correct. But as I understood his testimony, he learned it after this was all over.

The objection is sustained to the answer given, but you may rephrase the question if you can bring out the other matter.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Before you talked to McCormick about Stremble, what information did you have about Stremble and his activities? A. Well, as I said, our salesmen in that same territory where Stremble was operating, reported to us that Stremble was giving cash rebates to the dealers that we had sold and hoped to continue to sell.

Q. Now, did you know or have any information about Stremble's reputation in the trade, as to whether or not he was a rebater? A. Yes.

Q. What information did you have as to his reputation? A. Well, our men said that he was not only giving rebates on lath, gypsum lath, but also on Gypsteel plaster 4653 manufactured by the Structural Gypsum Company.

Q. And did you have any information as to whether he had ever been discharged by Structural prior to this time, on account of his rebating conduct? A. At that time, I didn't know that.

Q. Did you have any information as to whether Mr. McCormick had ever sought to discipline him in any way for rebating, prior to the time that you had your talk with Mr. McCormick? A. Not prior to that time, no.

Q. Now, in connection with your testimony that McCormick did discharge him after your conversation with McCormick, did you ask McCormick to fire him? A. No.

Q. Did you make any suggestion to McCormick of that kind, in any form? A. No, I did not.

Q. And was your talk with McCormick initiated in any sense by USG? A. Not at all.

Q. Was it initiated in any manner by any other gypsum board manufacturer? A. Not at all, no.

Q. Then it was entirely and completely your own independent act, wasn't it? A. Yes.

4654 Q. In connection with your inquiry of Mr. Bartlett to which I referred a moment ago, and to which you testified at page 4593, do you recall that I asked you whether or not you didn't understand that if Structural was selling at low prices, that might be the basis for a complaint against the Ebsary Company with relation to the Ebsary prices to Structural? A. Yes.

Q. Now, the nature of that complaint, based on that evidence of what Structural was doing, would be a charge against your company that your company cut the price to Structural, wouldn't it? A. The inference would be that we were giving Structural a larger manufacturing distributor's discount than we should have.

Q. And based upon your experience, you knew that Structural's activities might raise that inference as against your company? A. That is right.

Q. And that therefore, some other licensee might complain against your company, and that the nature of the complaint would be that your price to Structural violated the bulletin because it was a cut price? A. That is right.

4655 Q. Now at any time, Mr. Lenci, did you or your company ever have any understanding or arrangement or agreement, with anybody, to the effect that you would control or attempt to control the resale prices at which these manufacturing distributors, or any of them, sold board purchased from you? A. We did not.

Q. You testified at page 4598 and page 4599 with respect to metallized board.

At or before the time that you took your metallized board license, can you tell the Court what, if any, effect was being exerted upon the gypsum board business by the manufacturers of so-called insulation board? A. Insulation board is not a gypsum product, it is a fiber board made either from a fibered wood product or fibered sugar cane refuse, or material of that kind. It is a porous board. And they had become very active in competition with gypsum, and were pushing this board for insulating purposes. And in order for the gypsum manufacturers to meet this competition, this board with the foil face was developed as a form of insulation to try to retain some of the insulating business for ourselves which we had been losing.

Q. Well, was it the fact that you had been losing gypsum board and lath business because of the competition offered by the manufacturers of insulating board?

4656 A. Yes.

Q. This insulation board, of which you have spoken, manufactured by others and not a gypsum product, was it used as a lath or a wallboard, or how was it used? A. It was used in both ways, in both sizes. It was made both as a lath and as a wallboard.

Q. So that plaster could be applied directly to it, couldn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Now, what was responsible for its insulating qualities, just generally, if you know? A. Well, with the insulating boards, they were rather soft, porous boards, and I believe they counted on the air spaces in the board to have an insulating value.

Justice Stephens: There wasn't any foil on that board, was there?

The Witness: No.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Now, you understood that so far as Mr. Henning of the USG was concerned, he was very anxious for the entire industry to get into the manufacture of an insulating product in order to meet this threat from the insulation industry? A. Yes.

Q. And did you agree, and consider that the insulation board threat was a dangerous one to the gypsum 4657 board industry? A. Yes, we were feeling the competition from it.

Q. And you felt it was a matter of some importance for the gypsum board manufacturers to be able to offer a board and a lath which possessed insulating qualities, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. Now, at the time you took the license, what can you say as to whether it was your desire to manufacture the product covered by the license? A. Well, that is what we took the license for. As I recall it, we took the license in the fall of 1935, and were making shipments in January of 1936.

Q. Did I understand you correctly that you do not recall whether you received from USG any price bulletins on this product prior to the time you actually went into production? A. I am quite sure—I have been thinking about that—I am quite sure that we did not get price bulletins until we signed our license.

Q. Now I am asking you as to whether or not you got price bulletins before you started to manufacture the product? A. I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember? A. I don't remember that.

4658 Justice Garrett: Is that limited to the metallized board?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, Your Honor, I intended to limit that to the metallized board.

The Witness: That is the way I understood your question.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Whatever the fact is as to whether you received metallized board bulletins before you actually got into production, or not, you understood, didn't you, that the provisions of those bulletins applied only to such board as you manufactured and sold? A. Yes.

Q. And did you have any understanding or arrangement or agreement with USG that you would observe those prices prior to the time that you got into production? A. No.

Q. What happened to the development of this metallized gypsum board, was it a success or was it not? A. It was a success, not as great as we had hoped for, but it developed into a very considerable tonnage of board, and continued right along until the war, when it became impossible, due to Government restrictions, to get any more aluminum foil.

Q. Now, did you have any understanding or ar-
4659 rangement or agreement with anybody other than USG that you would maintain any price or prices as to metallized board? A. No.

Mr. Bromley: May the witness be shown Exhibit 37?

(Government's Exhibit No. 37 handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. I call your attention, Mr. Lenci, to page 531 of that exhibit which, as I understand it, is page 2 of Board License Bulletin No. 5 of February 6, 1939.

Justice Stephens: This is Exhibit 37?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, Your Honor.

Justice Garrett: Isn't that reproduced in the complaint?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, it is at pages 95 and 96 in the complaint.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Now there was nothing in the bulletins, as you understood them, was there, Mr. Lenci, which had any relationship to any requirement that licensees must hire trucks from trucking companies? A. No.

Q. And the only provision about hiring trucks, as you understood these bulletins, was the provision contained in the 6th line of the last paragraph on page 531, under the heading "Rebates and Allowances", which re-4660 ferred to an indirect price cut or rebate by means of the device of hiring customers' trucks? A. That is right.

Q. Well, now, how could the hiring by a manufacturing seller, of a customer's truck, result in a rebate? A. Well, suppose we needed a truck to make a certain delivery, and that the fair trucking charge for that particular service would be $1.50 per ton; suppose, further, that we wished to make a rebate to that particular dealer. It would be quite easy for us to go to that dealer and say, "You pay us the full price for our board, but we will hire your truck on the basis of $3 per ton." That would be a very simple and clear way of making a rebate, and that is what this paragraph has reference to.

Justice Stephens: The Court will take the morning recess.

(Thereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed as follows:)

4661 Justice Stephens: Proceed, gentlemen.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. With respect to your testimony about licensee meetings, Mr. Lenci, when was the last such meeting held, if you recall? A. The last meeting was held—correct me if I am wrong—I believe Mr. Henning died in the fall of 1936, and the last meeting was held in the spring, I should say in March, of 1937, and that was the time we met Mr. Keady, who took over Mr. Henning's duties, Mr. Keady of the United States Gypsum Company.

Q. And since that time there never has been a meeting of licensees? A. That is correct.

Q. Now at any time did you ever know of any representative of any one of these manufacturing distributors to be in attendance at any of these licensee meetings? A. No, they were strictly licensee meetings, there were no visitors or outside interests of any kind; they were limited to the licensees and the licensor.

Q. And would you say that the questions and answers, and the topics discussed at these licensee meetings, were always limited to matters having to do with patented gypsum board? A. Yes.

4662 Mr. Steffen: I object to that as a conclusion. I think there is a lot of detailed evidence in the record. The question is too broad and asks for a very general conclusion.

Justice Stephens: I suppose, in a highly technical sense, that it may again raise the question which has been raised by the Government so often, that the witness is not to testify as to whether or not the board was manufactured strictly in accordance with the patent process. But it seems to the Court that the witness understands that the questions refer to board which they were purporting to manufacture, or understood they were manufacturing, under the patents.

Technically the objection is well taken and is sustained; but you may rephrase the question, Mr. Bromley.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. It is a fact, isn't it, that there never was any discussion about prices except as they related to gypsum board which you understood was being manufactured by the licensees and the licensor under the patents and the license agreements? A. That is right.

Q. Now at any time was there ever any agreement reached among any of the representatives in attendance at these meetings as to what would or would not be done? A. No.

Q. And what is the fact as to whether or not the 4663 prices of plaster or other unpatented gypsum products were discussed at any of these meetings? A. I don't recall that they were.

Q. And so far as you know were there ever any Board Survey complaints or investigations which had to do with the prices of plaster or other unpatented gypsum products? A. No.

Q. Except for the instance relating to the Cardiff Gypsum Company, to which you have testified, was there ever an occasion when you or anyone from your company requested from USG a consent to sell a manufacturing distributor under the provisions of your license, where such consent was refused? A. That was the only case.

Q. And is it a fact that in all other instances, all consents which you requested for permission to sell manufacturing distributors were issued to you without question? A. Yes.

Q. Were there ever any conditions, written or oral, attached to the granting of consents issued to your company by USG for permission to sell these manufacturing distributors? A. No.

Q. And did you ever have an arrangement or understanding or agreement with USG, or with anyone else, that with respect to these consents, the Ebsary Gypsum Company would police or supervise or seek to control 4664 the manufacturing distributors' resale prices or practices? A. No.

Q. Was there ever an instance in which a consent, issued by USG to Ebsary to sell a manufacturing distributor, was ever withdrawn? A. No.

Q. Was there ever a time when USG or anyone connected with it ever threatened to withdraw a consent issued to you to sell manufacturing distributors? A. No.

Q. Was any statement ever made to you by anyone connected with USG that if you did not control or seek to control the resale prices of these manufacturing distributors to whom you sold under the consents, that the consents would be withdrawn? A. No.

Mr. Bromley: That is all.

Justice Stephens: The Court has just one question to clear up its recollection.

As I remember your testimony, Mr. Lenci, it was that the license agreement was signed up on or about the 6th of June, is that correct?

The Witness: The original license agreement?

Justice Stephens: Yes.

The Witness: The 22nd of May, 1929.

4665 Justice Stephens: Oh, the 22nd of May.

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: What was the date of the meeting that you attended, at or about that time, at which, as you said, Mr. Avery outlined the terms of the license agreement?

The Witness: The original license agreement?

Justice Stephens: Yes.

The Witness: We arrived in Chicago on the 21st of May.

Justice Stephens: What was the date of the meeting at which the so-called bubble board contract advantages were discussed?

The Witness: That is what I thought you were asking about before. That was on the 23rd of May.

Justice Stephens: Of that same year?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. That was after the licenses covering the Utzman folded-edge patent, and other patents of that nature, were signed, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Those licenses were signed by the four companies that took them at that time, either on May 22nd or prior to May 22nd? A. Ours was dated the 22nd of May, and I believe the others were about that same time. Of 4466 course I have not seen them, so I don't know.

Q. It was not until after those licenses were executed and delivered, and indeed not until the day after, that any reference was made by Mr. Avery to the so-called foam or bubble board invention? A. That is my recollection, yes.

Q. And it was on that day, the day after, that he told you that the company had applications for this invention and that you licensees could take a license under it if you wanted to? A. That is correct.

Mr. Bromley: That is all.

Justice Stephens: Is there cross examination by counsel for other defendants?

Mr. Varian: I would like to ask a few questions, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: You may do so.

Cross examination

By Mr. Varian:

Q. Mr. Lenci, did the Ebsary Gypsum Company, or any of its officers, during any part of the period mentioned in the complaint in this action, or since, have any contract, agreement or understanding, either oral, in writing, or otherwise, with any one or more of the defendants or any of the respective officers of the defendant
4667 corporations, or with any other person, firm or corporation, to control, fix or influence the price or prices, or terms or conditions of sale, or of resale, by you or by any other person, firm or corporation, of gypsum board—other than such agreements as are specifically set forth in the original license agreements between Ebsary Gypsum Company and USG, set forth in the complaint and in evidence in this action?

Mr. Steffen: I object, your Honor, upon the ground first that it is a horrible question—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) It is a what?

Mr. Steffen: A horrible question, in length.

Secondly, it asks for a conclusion which I think that the witness ought not to be expected to give without laying a further foundation.

Justice Stephens: What was your first objection?

Mr. Steffen: That it was a horrible question. My objection on that score is that it covers nearly all the material in the case in one question, and expects a yes or no answer, and the answer, I should think, would be of almost no weight. That is, of course, an objection that goes simply to weight and form.

The principal objection is that it calls for a legal conclusion and there has been no proper foundation laid for asking for a legal conclusion, if the witness could give such a conclusion, and I don't think he is qualified 4668 to give such a conclusion.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Varian, what do you say?

Mr. Varian: I think there is a proper foundation. We have gone into all of these matters that are referred to in this question. They have all been gone into by Government counsel and Mr. Bromley has, I believe, quite exhaustively specifically cross examined this witness in regard to the details.

I think it is a perfectly proper question, he is well qualified, he knows exactly what the company did, and he has been in control of the sales policies of this company for all of this period.

Mr. Steffen: Your Honor, Mr. Varian asks, if I can remember the question, if the Ebsary Company or any officer or anybody connected with the company, had any agreements, oral, written or otherwise, at any time, or at any place, with anybody, concerning anything having anything to do with the gypsum industry—and it is impossible for the witness to answer that question yes or no. He couldn't, in the nature of the case, know, for example, whether Mr. Ebsary may not have had an agreement.

The question is phrased, as I got it, "did they have?"

Mr. Varian: Mr. Lenci would know whether Mr. Ebsary had such an agreement with anybody, and the question did not include any representative of the company, 4469 it included the Ebsary Gypsum Company or any of its officers. Now there were very few officers in this small company, and while Mr. Ebsary was President, yet Mr. Lenci conducted the sales policy of this company and was familiar with everything that was going on with regard to the sales, in all the details.

Justice Stephens: We are of the view, Mr. Varian, that the question is proper except in one respect. We think that it ought to be so phrased or qualified as to indicate that you are asking for facts within the knowledge of this witness. Except for that, Mr. Steffen, we are agreed that the question is not improper, for this reason—the Government has asked the witness to go with great detail into a very large number of transactions and relationships and business items, from which the Government is asking the Court to conclude that there were such agreements and contracts and transactions as are charged here to be illegal.

Now the defendants, in cross examinaton, can only meet that, since they have to prove a negative, by asking questions which are in conclusional form in the technical sense, but are actually questions which are intended to go to, and which the Court interprets as relating to, facts. Otherwise, the defendants can do nothing except go over the same detail that you have gone over.

It is conventional upon cross examination to ask such questions.

4670 Now the Court will not take the answer to the question, or treat the answer to the question, as a legal conclusion. It understands that the question only goes to this witness' knowledge of the transactions which he may refer to as contracts, agreements or understandings, and which we understand, as judges, he is referring to in the factual sense as distinguished from the legal sense.

We are of the view that if you rephrase the question, therefore, Mr. Varian, or add to the question in some such manner as to indicate to the witness that you are only asking him to testify as to facts within his knowledge, that the question is proper.

Mr. Varian: I will ask you the question again, Mr. Lenci, in accordance with the modifying suggestion of the Presiding Justice.

By Mr. Varian:

Q. Did the Ebsary Gypsum Company, or any of its officers, to your knowledge, during any part of the period mentioned in the complaint in this action, or since, have any contract, agreement, or understanding, either oral or in writing, or otherwise, with any one or more of the defendants, or with any of their respective officers, or with any other person, firm or corporation, to control, fix or influence, the price or prices, or terms or conditions of 4671 sale, or of resale, by you or by any other person, firm or corporation, of gypsum board—other than such agreements as are specifically set forth in the original license agreements between Ebsary Gypsum Company and USG, set forth in the complaint, and which are in evidence in this case?

Mr. Steffen: I would like to raise one objection as to the form of the question. He says, "any sales by you". Could that be clarified to indicate whom he means?

Mr. Varian: "To control, fix or influence, the price or prices or terms or conditions of sale by you or by any other person".

Mr. Steffen: I didn't understand what he meant.

Justice Stephens: You meant the Ebsary Gypsum Company?

Mr. Varian: To control Ebsary Gypsum Company's price, or the price at which they sold to other persons.

Justice Stephens: Do you know what time is referred to by the "time mentioned in this complaint"? Have you read the complaint?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Do you know what time it covers?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Very well, then you may answer the question.

The Witness: My answer to that is "no".

Mr. Steffen: I move that that answer be stricken, your Honor, as being purely a matter of defense, and 4672 improper at this time.

Justice Stephens: We think it is proper cross examination and the motion is denied.

By Mr. Varian:

Q. Now I want to ask you another question in regard to—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) I might call your attention, Mr. Steffen,—of course you are not estopped, but dozens of such questions have been asked with respect to particular transactions in this case, without objections by the Government. They are conventional questions on cross examination of this type.

Proceed, Mr. Varian.

By Mr. Varian:

Q. Did the Ebsary Gypsum Company, or any of its officers, to your knowledge, during any part of the period mentioned in the complaint in this action, or since, have any contract, agreement or understanding, oral or in writing, or otherwise, with any one or more of the defendants, or any of their respective officers, or with any other person, firm or corporation, to control, fix or influence the price or prices, or terms or conditions of sale, or of resale, by you or by any other person, firm or corporation, of plaster, or any other miscellaneous gypsum products?

Mr. Steffen: I make the same objection as to the word "you" in that.

4673 Justice Stephens: Do you take that word to mean the Ebsary Gypsum Company?

The Witness: I do.

Mr. Steffen: And I make the same objection that it calls for a conclusion and is not proper cross examination.

Justice Stephens: The same ruling.

The Witness: My answer to that is "no".

By Mr. Varian:

Q. Except as Ebsary Gypsum Company's operations were subject to the provisions of its said several written license agreements with USG, Ebsary's prices, terms and conditions of sale of gypsum board were exclusively fixed and determined by the officers of Ebsary Gypsum Company independently and without aid, urging or suggestion of any other defendant or any other person, firm or corporation—is that correct? A. Yes.

Mr. Steffen: We have an objection—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) You are asking that question again, I assume, subject to the condition that the witness is answering as to what he knows?

Mr. Varian: As to his knowledge, yes.

Justice Stephens: Your answer to the question is, I understand you, yes, so far as you know.

The Witness: That is right.

Mr. Knuff: That takes care of our objection.

4674 By Mr. Varian:

Q. And the same would be true with regard to the prices, terms and conditions of sale of plaster and of other miscellaneous products, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Lenci, is it not a fact that the interest and purpose of the Ebsary Gypsum Company in obtaining a license from USG to manufacture closed-edge board, and to be permitted to use the patented machinery to manufacture same, was exclusively due to the fact that it was necessary for Ebsary Gypsum Company to manufacture and sell closed-edge board in order for Ebsary to profitably continue in the board business? A. Yes.

Q. And was it a fact that Ebsary Gypsum Company's continuance in the gypsum board business was becoming increasingly urgent in order for you to sell your other gypsum products profitably? A. Yes.

Mr. Steffen: I object to that, your Honor. In the first place, it raises a business question concerning whether or not the company could continue in business, and it seems to me that it would ask for a conclusion and is a manner of bringing into evidence, or attempting to bring into evidence at this time, matters which are proper as defense, but not proper as cross examination—and, also, it is immaterial.

4675 Justice Stephens: The Court thinks that that objection is not well taken. You have, for the Government, attempted to show by your questions of this witness, that his purposes, that is, the purposes of the company, were of an illegal character.

The defendants have a right to cross examine to show that they were actuated by business objectives. So far as the phrase "continue in business" is concerned, that goes to the weight of the question.

The objection is overruled. The question and answer may stand.

Mr. Steffen: If I may say just one word further. We have no objection to the cross examination going into detail, but as you may say, we have alleged that their activities are illegal and it seems to me that simply to ask the question of the witness, in effect, "Were all of your activities legal?"—is asking for a conclusion that is almost of no weight.

Justice Stephens: This question didn't go to that, this question went to what purpose they had in entering into these agreements, whether it was for business reasons or otherwise. At any rate, your record is fully protected and the Court is fully aware that you object to the questions as calling for a legal conclusion, and the Court is receiving the answers not as legal conclusions, but 4676 as factual statements.

By Mr. Varian:

Q. Mr. Lenci, was it also the fact that if Ebsary took a license from USG to manufacture closed-edge board, that Ebsary was obliged to accept such form of license as USG exacted?

Mr. Steffen: I object to that, your Honor. I don't think that the witness can testify to that. It assumes things, many things, not in evidence. It is not proper cross examination and it is immaterial.

Justice Stephens: Read the question, please.

(Thereupon, the pending question was read by the reporter.)

Justice Stephens: I am inclined to think, Mr. Varian, and I think my colleagues share my view—that that question is probably across the line, because it seems to me that the question at least sought to ask him what his understanding was as to whether the only license which was offered was a license with these terms in it.

As to whether they were forced to take this particular license would, I suppose, be a question which the Court ought to pass on.

Mr. Varian: I will reframe my question.

Justice Stephens: The objection is sustained to this question as phrased.

4677 By Mr. Varian:

Q. You were out at Chicago with Mr. Ebsary and Judge Rippey? A. Yes.

Q. When the final negotiations for this contract were entered into? A. Yes.

Q. And one of the provisions of the original license agreement, which is also in the subsequent agreement, was a provision in regard to price control.

Isn't it a fact, Mr. Lenci, that USG insisted on having the provision for price control in this license agreement? A. Yes.

Mr. Varian: That is all. Thank you, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Is there any cross examination by other defendants?

(No response.)

Is there redirect examination?

Mr. Steffen: We move to strike all of the witness' answers to Mr. Varian's questions except the last one.

Justice Stephens: The motion is denied.

Mr. Steffen: There will be some redirect examination, yes.

Justice Stephens: Would you prefer to take a short recess before the commencement of redirect examination?

Mr. Steffen: I would like to, your Honor.

4678 Justice Stephens: Are counsel ready at this time to present any brief arguments they may care to make on the question of the motion to vacate the notice of taking of deposition of the witness Gloyd? Might we not occupy the next few moments on that?

Mr. Johnston: We are ready.

Mr. Steffen: Yes, that is agreeable.

Justice Stephens: Now the Court will hear argument of counsel on the question of whether or not the deposition of Mr. Gloyd should be taken, in view of his physical condition, and since you are moving to vacate the notice, Mr. Johnston, you have the opening.

Mr. Johnston: I would merely want to say to the Court that in filing the motion, with the affidavit attached, I delivered to the clerk the doctors' letters so that they might be presented to the Court.

Justice Jackson: They are made, by reference, part of your affidavit, are they not?

Mr. Johnston: That is right, and they are in the record.

Now this notice to take depositions goes to both Mr. Gloyd and to Mr. Chism. The motion is only as to Mr. Gloyd. Mr. Chism has been on call, under subpoena, since November 15, 1943.

Mr. Chism has been with Mr. Gloyd in this business since about 1920, all through the period involved in this 4679 action. Since about 1930, or 1931, he has been the sales manager and has practically run the business. Prior to that time he was assistant to Mr. McGahan, who is now dead, and then to Mr. Jacobs, who is now dead.

So that during the entire period covered by this litigation Mr. Chism was there, and familiar with the matters, and is ready to testify.

Now what I would say in argument is presented in my motion, and I think it is not necessary for me to say anything further at this time.

Justice Stephens: Do I understand that this notice of taking depositions includes both Mr. Chism and Mr. Gloyd?

Mr. Johnston: Yes, sir.

Justice Stephens: And that your motion goes only to Gloyd?

Mr. Johnston: Yes, sir. I think, if I may say this, that it would be much better for Mr. Chism to come here, much less expense.

Justice Jackson: Why shouldn't he come here?

Mr. Johnston: There is no reason that I know of why he shouldn't come here, and he is ready to come at any time.

Justice Stephens: Why do you prefer to examine Chism by deposition rather than orally? It is much more satisfactory to the Court to hear and to see witnesses, than it is to read their testimony.

4680 Mr. Steffen: I agree with that, and I so told the Court, and I think Mr. Johnston understands it, that when we first served the notice our purpose was to kill two birds with one stone, if we were going to make the trip down there. But if our right to take the deposition is denied as to Mr. Gloyd, then there would be no purpose in going to Oklahoma.

Justice Stephens: And you might just as well bring Mr. Chism up here in that event.

Mr. Steffen: That is right.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Bromley, you filed a motion. Do you wish to be heard?

Mr. Bromley: The defendants represented by me also join in the application to vacate the notice to take Mr. Gloyd's deposition, and for this reason.

This trip is going to be a very expensive matter for my clients. It is perfectly obvious to me that if we go there to take Mr. Gloyd's deposition, and end up by taking Mr. Chism's deposition, that those of us who go are going to be away for the better part of a week or ten days. That is expensive to our clients. It is a long and expensive trip from the mere standpoint of transportation expense and living expense.

The Government seeks to do this in face of the fact that in Mr. Knuff's affidavit they say:

"The testimony has to do simply with the matters 4681 of Mr. Gloyd's business, going back to about the year 1925, and with which Mr. Gloyd has long been fully familiar. There will be nothing developed in this testimony which should result in any shock to Mr. Gloyd or which could create any pressure or excitement".

Now it does seem to me that it would impose a tremendous hardship on the defendants in this case represented by me, to ask them to bear the expense which certainly will run into several thousand dollars, of going down there to have Mr. Gloyd examined, simply on matters of his business going back to the year 1925, in face of the fact that there is no showing whatsoever that Mr. Chism, whose connection antedates 1925, cannot cover fully and completely, everything about the business of Mr. Gloyd, at least from 1925; nor is there any showing whatsoever why, if they still insist they have a right to take Mr. Gloyd's testimony, they cannot cover so simple a matter as they call it, and so obviously a routine matter as it seems to me their answering affidavit shows it to be by written interrogatories.

I see no purpose, and indeed it seems to be an unjust and unfair hardship, to impose on USG and its officers, the expense involved in counsel going down there so far, for a period of time which will be so substantial, on this showing that all they want to do is ask Gloyd about his business. Certainly Mr. Gloyd can tell them about 4682 his business in answer to written interrogatories, if it is as simple as all that.

Justice Stephens: Now Mr. Steffen, or Mr. Knuff?

I might say, Mr. Steffen, that the Court has read all of these affidavits and all of the doctors' letters, and looked up all the words, but the only one we couldn't find in an ordinary dictionary—I didn't put my hand quickly upon a medical dictionary—Is the word "geriatrics". Could anyone tell me what that means?

Mr. Steffen: I couldn't.

I will say that they practically all come down to the proposition that Mr. Gloyd has a heart condition, and a man at his age—he is seventy-nine—might normally have some heart condition.

Justice Jackson: I thought he had a sclerotic condition which affected his brain, as well as his arterial system—from those letters. I deduced that he had a general sclerotic condition.

Mr. Steffen: I think perhaps that is a more accurate statement.

We have had before us two witnesses, Mr. George M. Brown, who is seventy-seven as I recall it, and Mr. Griswold, who was around seventy-five or seventy-six, or something of that sort. Mr. Gloyd is two or three years older, seventy-nine.

So that I think, as I look over the medical testi-4683 mony, which your Honor has stated has been read, it is undoubtedly true that he is a man of seventy-nine; that he couldn't travel and couldn't be put under the stress of a day and a half trip coming here, and getting a hotel, and all of that—and that was our reason for asking permission to take a deposition.

I want to say, going back to the history of this thing a little bit, that we asked Mr. Johnston to have Mr. Gloyd here in December, the week I think of the 20th or the 21st. We also had Mr. Tomkins scheduled at that time, following immediately after the Certain-teed people, and Mr. Johnston and Mr. Knuff, at Mr. Johnston's request, went to your Honor's chambers and talked the matter over.

At that time the only thing that was stated was that Mr. Gloyd couldn't very well make the trip, that he was not in very good health, and that it would be hard to get hotel reservations, and train reservations, just before Christmas. So the thing was put over until January.

On January 17th the Court reconvened and at that time Mr. Johnston said, informally to us or Mr. Knuff, that Mr. Gloyd was not feeling so well, and it got worse and worse according to Mr. Johnston's statement to us.

Then it appears that Mr. Johnston got these doctors' letters in early January, and they were sent in and we were not advised of that at all until February 16th or 18th, after we had made our motion for privilege to take 4684 a deposition, more or less as an accommodation to Mr. Johnston, the idea being that we could better go down there if Mr. Gloyd was really in the condition where he couldn't travel, and we assumed that that was true.

Then Mr. Johnston got additional letters which have also been submitted with this affidavit. Those additional letters, the Dr. Fishman letters at least—and that is the principal group of letters—do not add anything substantially to what was stated in the first letter.

The letter of Dr. Langston, which I think is perhaps most entitled to credit, is simply a statement that he does have a heart or brain condition, and that he is seventy-nine years old, and that he should not be put under the stress or excitement of a trial or under grueling cross-examination. That, I think, is no doubt true. We have no way of checking that.

What we say in our affidavit is that we do not expect to put Mr. Gloyd under any grueling cross-examination.

I think you have observed the way we conduct our examinations here, and they have been very decent straight through.

We understand that if Mr. Gloyd needs to have a doctor or a physician present, that that can be arranged, and that if he can only be there for an hour or two at the office where the deposition is taken, that that would be a very 4685 slight strain.

I might say in that connection that Dr. Langston saw no reason why a deposition could not be taken. Dr. Langston is, as I have said, perhaps the leading physician of the group who have written letters for Mr. Johnston.

Now coming to the nature of the testimony that we should get, we say in our affidavit, or Mr. Knuff says in his affidavit, that all that Mr. Gloyd will be asked about will be matters of his business, running back to about 1925. That covers the period of the alleged conspiracy.

Now I don't think that Mr. Bromley is entitled to construe that to mean that it hasn't anything to do with this case.

We are asking, or would want to ask, Mr. Gloyd concerning the original signing of the license agreements in 1926, we have some correspondence on that; we would want to ask him concerning the matters of pricing; following that, we would like to ask him concerning his negotiations with Mr. Avery at any time, and with Mr. Knode at any time. We would like to ask him concerning his signing of the bubble license in 1927. We would like to ask him why he did not sign the first perforated lath license agreement and also ask him in connection with the metallized board license agreement.

In other words, when we said "matters of his business", we covered everything practically that has been developed in the testimony here. I think that the affidavit, if 4686 it did not say that specifically, should be so understood.

In the concluding paragraph of the affidavit we make the general statement that his testimony, as we see it, would be necessary to a proper presentation of the Government's case.

Now Mr. Bromley makes the suggestion that perhaps we should have written interrogatories. I have already stated that written interrogatories would be very unsatisfactory, particularly with a man of Mr. Gloyd's age. We would ask a question, and he would say that he doesn't remember, and then it will be necessary to ask a number of related questions in order that we can perhaps refresh his recollection and get to the point in question. Now that simply cannot be handled on written interrogatories to any advantage.

Now secondly, the matter of written interrogatories is of no advantage anyway. Mr. Bromley is too familiar with these procedures to make such an argument seriously.

Under Rule 31, where there is described the means of taking depositions of witnesses upon written interrogatories, you have, in Rule 31 (b) this statement:

"A copy of the notice and copies of all interrogatories served shall be delivered by the party taking the deposition to the officer designated in the notice, who shall proceed promptly, in the manner provided by Rule 30 (c), (e), and (f), to take the testimony of the witness in response to the interrogatories and to prepare, certify, and file or 4687 mail the deposition, attaching thereto a copy of the notice and the interrogatories received by him".

That contemplates that the witness will be brought before an officer who will propound questions, and we don't know how, to the witness. The witness will then have to answer yes, no, or otherwise, and those answers will be written down. The whole procedure is a much more onerous procedure than what we propose, which is for ourselves to go down and simply ask our questions, and to allow the defendants to ask such questions on cross-examination as they think necessary.

Now as respects Mr. Chism, as I stated to begin with, it is a matter of no moment to us whether we take Mr. Chism's deposition at this time or not. We would prefer to have him here. We thought it might be more convenient, if we were to take one at Oklahoma City, to take both. But if Mr. Bromley would prefer to have Mr. Chism here, we would likewise, and in that event the examination of Mr. Gloyd would not take more than one day.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Johnston, do you wish to reply?

Mr. Johnston: Yes, sir. I merely want to say this, if the Court please. Mr. Steffen knows very well that in December, when he spoke to me about having Mr. Gloyd here, that I said that he had been ill and I thought it would be very unwise to try to bring him up here just at the last of that session because, with many witnesses ahead 4688 it would appear that they wouldn't get through with him anyway.

Now at that time I knew Mr. Gloyd had had a stroke in August, in California, and I told Mr. Steffen about that. I knew also that he had had a slight stroke coming back from New York in October, and I told him about that. Then when I went home during the Christmas holidays I talked to Dr. Fishman about his situation, and he told me that he didn't think that he was in any condition to testify.

Then I asked that Dr. Fishman examine him and also have Dr. Langston examine him as to his heart, Dr. Langston being a heart specialist, and that he also write the doctor in California. Then these letters came to me after I got back here.

Nothing further was said by counsel for the Government about bringing him up here. Consequently I was waiting until the question was raised again. Then, when they spoke about his coming, or about taking his deposition there, I took it up with my office and they then went to Dr. Fishman, and, so he would not be relying upon his own judgment, he referred him to these other two doctors, who are two of the highest-standing physicians in that section of the country, Dr. Riely and Dr. vonWedel. That accounts for the subsequent examination and report here on the 18th.

Now these are all men of the highest standing in the profession. They have all known Mr. Gloyd for 4689 many years, and I don't think you could find doctors anywhere that could give this Court a more correct picture of his condition and the danger of submitting him to examination, than these doctors have given this Court.

When you reduce this to language that a layman can understand—I looked up the terms also—it means this. Dr. Fishman, Dr. Riely and Dr. vonWedel specifically state that to put him under any emotional strain such as an examination, might very definitely result in a stroke that would kill him. When men have had one or two strokes, as he has had, with a sclerotic condition, at his age, nearly eighty years of age, and a heart condition which they say he has, any emotional disturbance might bring that about, particularly when a man who is eighty years of age goes on the witness stand, under examination, even with the bedside treatment that Mr. Steffen says Mr. Knuff would deliver. I have been in this case now for ninety days, and I see what kind of bedside treatment these gentlemen give witnesses.

I just appeal to this Court now to protect this old man who at best has only a few years, and I don't want to take the responsibility, in the face of what these doctors say, of having him subjected to this examination, either here in this courtroom, and traveling up here, or down in Oklahoma City by deposition.

If interrogatories can be written so that they may 4690 be submitted to him without excitement, I think with some doctor present he might be able to answer those questions. I assure the Court I want to do everything in the world to get the facts here. I have sat in this case now for these ninety days, and heard these witnesses on the stand, and the Court has heard witness after witness, when it was asked if Texas was in any of these meetings, or connected in any way with these various matters, the answer has been "no", "no", "no"—all down the line.

Now they want to drag this old man in, with failing memory, with a health condition that might be the cause of ending his life, and try to get something in this record that they don't have in here yet, and try to connect him with this case in some way. I see their purpose and I am not surprised that Mr. Steffen is insisting upon this examination, but I say to the Court that it is not fair, it is not fair to this old man, and it is within the discretion of this Court and I just appeal to this Court not to subject this old man to that ordeal.

Justice Stephens: What do you say, Mr. Johnston, to Mr. Steffen's suggestion that under Rule 31 (b) an officer will have to go to Mr. Gloyd and ask him these questions so that he will be in a position of having been asked the questions?

Mr. Johnston: I understand that rule, but there
4691 is a difference. In that event the question is written out and I presume the District Attorney's office down there would handle it unless the Government is going to, at Government expense, send somebody down from here to do it. But the questions would be written out and the old man could take his time and could think them over, and he could determine then what he wanted to say. There wouldn't be somebody coming back with a question right at him like they do on cross-examination. At best that would be some excitement, but it wouldn't be anything like putting him under oral examination. I have not said at any time, and I do not now say, that we wouldn't attempt to have him answer questions on interrogatories. I just want to be fair about the thing, but I don't want to jeopardize this old man's life, because that is more important to him, after all, and these few years he has left, than this case.

Justice Jackson: Is there anything that Mr. Gloyd can testify to that Mr. Chism cannot?

Mr. Johnston: No.

Justice Jackson: You have talked to Mr. Chism about this case, haven't you?

Mr. Johnston: Yes, and Mr. Chism was before the grand jury in this case. All the records we have, have been before the Federal Trade Commission, have been before the Department of Justice, and they have talked to Mr.
4692 Chism both before the grand jury and in the grand jury, and Mr. Gloyd has been before the grand jury, and there isn't a thing about this case that I know of today, which Mr. Gloyd would know that Mr. Chism doesn't know.

Justice Stephens: Do you wish to be heard further, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: No, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Steffen?

Mr. Steffen: Our answer to the latter is that Mr. Chism does not know many of the things that Mr. Gloyd does know. Of course we have examined his grand jury testimony and we know what the limitations are.

I don't think we should be accused of doing anything unworthy by having asked the witness to testify concerning his activities. It is true that our purpose is to get evidence that would implicate the Texas Cement Plaster Company along with the other defendants.

Justice Stephens: The Court does not construe Mr. Johnston's remarks as charging you with anything unworthy, Mr. Steffen.

Mr. Steffen: We know that Mr. Chism, at least unless he tells a different story than he did before the grand jury, is not in possession of all the facts that Mr. Gloyd is in possession of.

Justice Stephens: We will now take the noon
4693 recess until two o'clock.

(Thereupon, at 12:20 o'clock p.m., a recess was taken until 2:00 o'clock p.m., of the same day.)

4694 AFTERNOON SESSION

(The trial was resumed at 2:00 o'clock p.m., pursuant to recess.)

Justice Stephens: The Court is prepared to rule now upon the question of the taking of Mr. Gloyd's deposition.

In order to save the expense and trouble of copying into the transcript all of these papers that have been filed, the Court will try to summarize them in its ruling.

The record may show that the question is whether or not the Court shall enter an order, under Rule 30(b), that the proposed deposition of Samuel M. Gloyd shall be taken, or whether it may be taken only on written interrogatories.

There have been filed with the Court the notice of the taking of deposition; a motion by Mr. Johnston, in behalf of Mr. Gloyd, to vacate the notice of the taking of deposition, and that is supported by an affidavit which, by reference, makes a part of it the letters of several doctors,—specifically, a letter, or more particularly a report or history, dated December 30, 1943, of Dr. Fishman, C. J. Fishman; a letter of January 11, 1944, of Dr. C. J. Fishman; a letter of February 16, 1944, of Dr. Fishman; a letter of September 28, 1943, of Dr. Herbert S. Nauheim; a letter of January 11, 1944, of Dr. Herbert S. Nauheim; a letter of February 18, 1944, of Curt von Wedel, M.D., and Harry A. Daniels, M.D.; and a letter of February 17, 1944, 4695 of Lea A. Riely, M.D.; also a letter of January 8, 1944, of Dr. Wann Langston.

There is also before the Court the opposition filed by the Government, supported by an affidavit filed by Mr. Knuff to which is appended a Federal Bureau of Investigation report.

There is also before the Court an affidavit of Bruce Bromley.

The Court has carefully examined each of these papers, and they will be filed as a part of the Clerk's files as a record of the basis of the Court's ruling.

The Court reaches the following conclusion, for the following reasons:

First, the FBI report does not seem to us in conflict in any essential particular with the reports of the doctors filed by Mr. Johnston. It is true that the FBI report does include a statement that Mr. Gloyd attends to his business several hours each day, or a statement to that effect. But that is explained by one of the doctors as a mere mechanical attendance at his office, his real business affairs being taken care of by his wife and associates.

There is a statement in the FBI report also, purporting to be the result of a conversation with Dr. Langston, to the effect that he saw no objection to taking the deposition if Mr. Gloyd were not subjected to a grueling 4696 examination. But that, we think, when read in connection with the statements of all of the doctors, indicates that he is not to be subjected to excitement.

Now the papers as a whole submitted by the doctors, and various reports, show, we think, clearly that this man has general arteriosclerosis, localized in the brain and aorta; that he has unstable blood pressure; that he has had two attacks already of either brain shock or heart shock of some sort, not exactly diagnosed by the doctors; and that his memory is confused as between present and past events, so that his testimony would be unreliable; and that in the view of the doctors, certainly the great majority of their statements, any excitement might cause his death.

It appears also that Mr. Chism, his office associate, has been connected with the business since 1925, or theretofore, and ought to be in a position at least to give some of the facts with which Mr. Gloyd might be thought to be familiar.

Now we take into consideration, of course, the promise of the Government that the examination will be conducted in a mild and proper manner, but it seems to us that it is impossible to have a man on the witness stand, whether he be in the court room or in an office, subjected to questions, in a case in which he knows he is a defendant, 4697 with several lawyers necessarily asking him questions, on direct and cross-examination, without exciting him. The mere fact of being a witness, under those circumstances, however kindly the investigation is conducted, would cause excitement.

We think, under these circumstances, the Court ought not permit this deposition to be taken except upon written interrogatories. The Court regrets the necessity of reaching such a conclusion, because it is loath to deprive any party of a witness whom the party believes to be material and important. But on the showing made here, we think it would be a grave responsibility, indeed, for the Court to order this man to be subjected to an oral examination, with the attendant possibility of his immediate death.

So the Court will order that the deposition not be taken except upon written interrogatories.

You may proceed with redirect examination.

Mr. Steffen: May we have an exception, for the sake of the record?

Justice Stephens: I think the rules give you automatic exceptions to everything, Mr. Steffen, but the record may show an exception.

Mr. Steffen: I think the record should also show that we will not press our notice for a deposition in the case of Mr. Chism.

4698 Justice Stephens: And that you will expect Mr. Chism here?

Mr. Steffen: We will bring him here in due course.

Justice Stephens: By subpoena, at some later time?

Mr. Steffen: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Very well.

Mr. Johnston: I understand, in that connection, that since Mr. Chism is the responsible head of the business, that we should have a week's notice as to the time they expect him here so we may make the necessary arrangements.

Mr. Steffen: We will be glad to give him a week's notice, as we have with all of our witnesses.

Justice Stephens: Thank you.

4699 Thereupon, GEORGE N. LENCI, the witness on the stand at the time of recess, resumed his testimony as follows:

Mr. Knuff: May it please the Court, out of an abundance of caution, and in order to keep our position clear, in so far as the record is concerned, we want to make a motion now concerning the cross-examination of Mr. Lenci by Mr. Varian.

While we are quite satisfied there is merit to our motion we are now making, we are simply making it in order to keep our record clear, and we don't intend to argue it at all.

Justice Stephens: Very well.

Mr. Knuff: We now move that all the testimony of Mr. Lenci, brought out by the cross-examination of Mr. Varian, except the answer to Mr. Varian's last question, be stricken, for the following reasons:

(1) The answers were to questions that went beyond the scope of the examination-in-chief; and therefore, the questions being improper, the answers were improper and should be stricken.

(2) The answers were to questions that were improper in that the questions assumed facts and circumstances about which the witness was not shown to have any knowledge; and therefore, since the questions were im-
4700 proper, the answers were improper and should be stricken.

(3) The answers were to questions that were improper in that the questions were directed to matters of defense, and improper at this stage of the proceedings. Therefore, since the questions were improper, and were but an attempt to introduce, by way of cross-examination, the defendants' defense in this case, the answers should be stricken.

(4) The answers were incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Justice Stephens: The motion is denied.

Mr. Knuff: Mr. Steffen will conduct the redirect examination.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I want to take you back, Mr. Lenci, to your testimony on page 4651 of the transcript, and the pages following. That has to do with your beginning in the board business in 1928 and 1929, and your meeting, particularly, in Chicago on May 21, May 22, and May 23, 1929.

On page 4651, you testified to the effect that the open-edge board was found unsatisfactory. That is correct, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. And you said, I think, that it was wasteful to 4701 make? A. Yes.

Q. Now, wherein was the principal waste, Mr. Lenci? A. You had to make a board wider than the finished width, and every bit of that extra width had to be cut from each side of every board and thrown away. That material had no salvage value. All of the gypsum companies, at one time or another, tried to take this refuse and recalcine it, or work it back into their process, and they found that it was a dead waste and was absolutely unusable. That was one of the losses in manufacturing.

Another loss in manufacturing was that there was nothing to protect the edges of these boards, and after they were trimmed to the proper size, in handling the edges would crumble and there would be nothing to keep the plaster in between the paper from sliding out.

Q. Was it also wasteful in handling and shipping? A. That was in the manufacturing and handling. When it went into the freight cars and was unloaded at the far end, at the destination, there was still further breakage involved. And then again, when the dealer trucked it to his warehouse, he had breakage. And when he took it still further, to his customer, there was breakage and loss.

Q. And about what differential was open-edge selling at in comparison with closed-edge, at this time, 1928
4702 and 1929, do you remember? A. I don't remember exactly, but it was quite a little under the closed-edge board price.

Q. Two or three dollars a thousand? A. Oh, yes, at least.

Q. Did you ever make an estimate, in dollars and cents, of how expensive it was to make open-edge board as compared with closed-edge board? A. I don't recall whether we did or not, as to putting it into exact figures, but we did know by observation that it was a considerable item.

Q. Was it as much, perhaps, as a dollar a thousand? A. Oh, it would be much more than that.

Q. And what was the royalty that you were charged under the May, 1929, license; do you remember? A. I would rather have the license speak for itself. I am not sure, because I don't remember the exact percentage.

Q. I believe it was a 5 percent royalty. A. I don't remember. I don't know whether that was our royalty or not.

Q. Assuming that it was a 5 percent royalty, and board was selling at, say, $13 a thousand, or lath at $13 a thousand, that would make your royalty cost about 75 cents, would it not? A. Sixty-five cents.

4703 Q. That is right, my arithmetic isn't very good. A. Yes.

Q. So that financially, the saving was such that it was very much to your advantage to take out your license and pay a royalty, was it not? A. It was, yes.

Q. Now, you also testified, I think, that you had difficulty in selling, that your dealers refused to buy open-edge board as readily as they would buy closed-edge board; is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And was that entirely due to the fact of the difference in the board, or were there other reasons? A. Well, it was due to differences in the board which I have mentioned so far this afternoon; and in addition, when they delivered it to the building where the ultimate consumer was going to use it, he didn't like the open-edge board any better than we did.

Q. And that was one of the reasons why the dealers were slow to buy open-edge board when they could get closed-edge board, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. And why you had to have a differential in price? A. Yes.

Q. Isn't it true also that it was difficult to sell

4704 either open or closed-edge board during this period, 1928 and 1929? Weren't market conditions, in other words, such that it was becoming more difficult to sell board at all? A. Well, we had no closed-edge board to sell, so I couldn't answer that part of your question.

Q. Well, you knew from your conversation with dealers that they were presumably buying closed-edge board? A. Oh, yes.

Q. What I am getting at is—wasn't it more difficult to sell any kind of board during this period? A. It was, to a certain extent, because there was not a great deal of business then.

Q. That is, the construction business was falling off at this time? A. It had just begun to drop, yes.

Q. Did you also find it difficult to sell plaster during this same period? A. Yes, but not so much, because we were more established in the plaster business. We had been in the plaster business for about 10 or 11 years at that time; but here we were absolutely a new company coming in, in 1928.

Q. And what time of the year was it, did you testify, that you started your board mill? A. I think it was in the latter part of 1928.

Q. That would be along in September or October
4705 of 1928? A. Somewhere along in there, yes.

Q. And you were making an open-edge board from the very beginning? A. Yes.

Q. Now, let's go to your testimony concerning this meeting out at Chicago. Tell me how you went out—you went out by train? A. Yes.

Q. And did you go out with Mr. Ebsary and Mr. Rippey? A. I don't remember, for this reason: At that time I was in New York, as I recall it, and Mr. Ebsary was in Rochester, that is, at the plant, I should say; and I think we took trains which got us into Chicago about the same time in the morning. That is my recollection, I am not sure.

Q. And you had received a draft of the agreement, I think you testified, before you went out to Chicago? A. I believe we did.

Q. I mean, you personally had seen one? A. Yes.

Q. And you must have received that at your New York office? A. Well, you see, it might have been sent to me in New York, or it might have been sent to Mr. Ebsary at the mill.

4706 Q. But you personally saw one of the draft copies?

A. But in any event, it was turned over by either Mr. Ebsary or myself to Mr. Rippey, prior to going to Chicago.

Q. Prior to going to Chicago? A. Yes.

Q. And you were familiar with the terms of the agreement? A. Yes. The reason I say that, or what brings it to my mind, was that Mr. Rippey immediately noticed the clause in that contract providing that we should pay damages for past infringements, which, of course, was not the case.

Q. And in your opinion, you hadn't been infringing the USG patents? A. It wasn't only in our opinion, but we knew it, and so did they.

Q. And they conceded that, I take it, in the final license? A. They conceded it immediately.

Q. And the first people that you met, of the other companies, that were out there, do you remember who they were? A. No, I couldn't tell you that.

Q. Did you go out on the train with any of them, Mr. George Brown or Mr. Whittemore—did you see 4707 them before you went out? A. I did not go with any of them.

Q. You were with Mr. Reeb? A. Mr. Reeb would come from Buffalo, so I wouldn't see him.

Q. And your testimony is, apparently, that you may have gone out by yourself? A. That, I believe, is the case.

Q. Now you testified, I think, that you had all made up your mind to take out a license before you went out there; is that correct? A. That is, all in our company.

Q. That is right. A. Yes.

Q How was that agreement reached? A. Well, we had been so firmly of the idea for some time that we wanted to get permission to make a closed-edge board, that we were glad of the opportunity to be able to do it.

Q. Well, what I was getting at is—did you have a meeting with Mr. Ebsary or talk with Mr. Ebsary and Mr. Rippey concerning whether you should or shouldn't take out the license? A. Mr. Ebsary and I had discussed it a great many times before.

4708 Q. All during the preceding year? A. Yes, and probably ever since we started making board.

Q. And what was your discussion with Mr. Ebsary, generally? I would like to know. A. The gist of it was that we wanted to make a closed-edge board, but that we did not see our way to make it unless we could get a license, because we saw what had come about through the courts with the Universal and Beaver and American and Reeb. All had attempted to make closed-edge boards of one kind or another, and the courts had upheld the USG patents, and we were in no position to start a fight with those conclusions against us.

Q. And did you ever make application to USG for a license during that time? Did you discuss that? A. I don't think we did.

Q. Do you know what their attitude was on that? A. I don't recall, no.

Q. You, I think, are saying that you and Mr. Ebsary were in agreement that you wanted to get a closed-edge board, a license for a closed-edge board, or at least be permitted under some device to make a closed-edge board? A. Yes.

Q. And did you talk with anybody else in the company, was there a meeting of the Board of Directors, or 4709 anything of that sort, any action taken on the matter? A. At that time there were only three directors, and Mr. Ebsary and I usually talked things over. We had no directors' meetings at any time concerning that. We weren't as formal as that.

Q. Therefore, it was a sort of mutual agreement that you had been reaching over the course of the preceding years? A. Yes.

Q. Well, now, did you discuss the matter with anyone else than Mr. Ebsary, as to whether or not you should make a closed-edge board? A. No.

Q. Mr. Ebsary, during this time, had been talking with other manufacturers, for example Mr. Baker and Mr. Reeb and others, is that not true? A. I don't recall whether he did or not.

Q. Did you attend any meetings at all, with the representatives of any other manufacturer? A. I don't think so.

Q. You were not in that end of the business, were you? You were in the sales end? A. Principally, yes.

Q. And any negotiations that would have been had concerning the taking out of a license would have been 4710 handled by Mr. Ebsary? A. Not necessarily, we worked pretty close together on that.

Q. On page 4652, you said you had made up your mind, before you went out to Chicago, to take out a license with the USG people if it could be arranged; and I think on page 4658 you say that the other companies out there, you believe, had also made up their minds before they went out to Chicago—is that right? A. Yes, I believe they did.

Q. That is, that is your best recollection— A. (Interposing) Yes. Otherwise, they wouldn't have gone there.

Q. I think that is a good deduction.

Do you know how it was arranged that they all got out there at the same time? A. No, I don't, because it is indefinite in my own mind how we got out there.

Q. Did you see a wire sent to Mr. Ebsary stating that the other companies, with the exception of American, would come on such-and-such a date? A. I don't think so. Personally, I never saw it, and I don't think we got such a wire. I don't remember.

Q. There has been a wire introduced in evidence which was sent to several companies by the United States 4711 Gypsum Company, stating that Mr. Kling of American had stated that he was unwilling to sign the license at that time, but that if the others came out the meeting could be held in May, 1929. You don't remember having seen that? A. No. Would that possibly have been sent to Mr. Rippey?

Q. I think it was sent to Mr. Ebsary. A. It might have been.

Mr. Steffen: May the witness be shown Government's Exhibit 207?

(Government's Exhibit No. 207 was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Do you recall, Mr. Lenci, seeing a similar wire addressed to Mr. Ebsary or to Mr. Rippey? A. No, I don't.

Mr. Steffen: Will you stipulate, Mr. Bromley, that such a wire was sent to Ebsary?

Mr. Bromley: No, I believe the contrary to be the fact.

Mr. Steffen: We have an identical copy of that wire there, addressed to Mr. Ebsary.

Mr. Bromley: You mean in evidence?

Mr. Steffen: No, but which we received from the United States Gypsum Company's files.

4712 Mr. Bromley: I just don't know about it. I didn't suppose there was any.

Mr. Steffen: That is our understanding at the moment, that we have such a wire. We will disclose that at the proper time.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Now you say, though, Mr. Lenci, that you all got out there on May 21, and you didn't receive the wire or didn't receive any notice as to when the meeting was to be held? A. I imagine, if any notice was sent, it may have been sent to Mr. Ebsary, and then he would tell me about it over the telephone, and I would arrange to meet him out there.

Q. And when that notice was received, you were all prepared to go out and sign the agreement, is that right? A. We were prepared to sign an agreement.

Q. And you had a draft copy of the agreement, you knew what the general terms were? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you have been stating that you were very anxious to get into production on a closed-edge board, and on page 4654 of the transcript, in response to Mr. Bromley's question, you stated that the primary reason for the Ebsary Company taking out a license was its desire 4713 to manufacture a closed-edge type of board—is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now, I want, for a moment, to see whether or not that was your primary reason, and to consider certain other reasons.

Did you have other reasons also for wanting to take out a license with USG at this time? A. Well, as I say, the principal reason was that we wanted to make a closed-edge board.

Q. And what were your other reasons? A. We did hear that there would be a price control feature in the license, and that was not unattractive to us.

Q. What were the reasons why it was not unattractive? A. Well, we would be very glad to get a better price for our material.

Q. Well, your prices for material here in 1928 and 1929 were getting pretty low, were they not? A. They were low, yes.

Q. And it has been described here at various times as being a demoralized condition. Would that be a fair characterization of prices at that time? A. I don't know whether you would want to call it demoralized at that time, but it was very soft.

Q. What do you mean by that, Mr. Lenci? A.
4714 Well, I don't know how better to describe it. The volume of business was falling off, and we were suffering due to the fact that we had the open-edge board, and the other companies that were not licensees were competing for the business.

Q. And it was difficult to sell board; that is, your open-edge board, in competition with the closed-edge board, made it difficult to maintain a price? A. Yes.

Q. That, in effect, resulted in a price spiral at that time, did it not; as the price for open-edge would be cut the price for closed-edge would follow, and then open-edge would go still lower? A. Yes.

Q. And that had reached a point, in 1928, where your business was in a rather serious financial situation? A. Yes.

Q. Let me change that to 1929, particularly in 1929? A. Yes.

Q. So that it was extremely important to you, from a business standpoint, to get on the one hand a closed-edge board, and on the other hand to make sure that the price conditions were going to be corrected so that you could make a profit? A. Yes.

4715 Q. And you would say that that was another reason for wanting to take out a license with the United States Gypsum Company? A. I would say that that was a secondary reason, yes.

Q. Did you have any other reasons besides those two, Mr. Lenci, for wanting to take out a license with the United States Gypsum Company? A. Nothing that I can think of at the moment.

Q. You were not disturbed, or were you, at having USG control your prices, as to whether they would control them fairly or not? A. No.

Q. You further testified, on page 4654 of the transcript, that the license covered a large number of patents? A. Yes.

Q. Was that possibly a third reason why you wanted to take out a license? A. Yes.

Q. Now as respects those patents, did your company make any investigation of them? A. No, we did not.

Q. Did you know that perhaps 10 or more of them were all having to do with different types of closed-edge board? A. Yes, I did know that.

Q. And did your company make 10 or 12 different 4716 types of closed-edge board? A. No, but to go back a little in your questioning this afternoon, we did know that besides this one patent on closed-edge board, the Utzman patent, we believed they had other patents on closed-edge board that we might be attacked under if we started to make a closed-edge board.

Q. But you knew the Utzman patent on closed-edge board expired on August 6, 1929, within 2 months, or thereabouts, after you signed your agreement? A. Approximately, yes.

Q. And you testified, on cross-examination by Mr. Bromley, that your company was satisfied that you needed to use all, or a substantial part, of those various patents. Was that a strictly correct statement, Mr. Lenci? A. You must realize I am not a patent lawyer, so I can't answer technically, but I realized that a great many of those patents covered different types of edges; other patents covered the method of turning the edges; and I believe certain of the other patents covered the type of machine to make the board.

Q. But you made no investigation, particularly, of the patents? A. No.

Q. And your company made none? A. No.

4717 Q. And who told you that they covered all those things? A. I think they are partially described in that schedule attached to the original license.

Q. There are about 50 of them appearing in Exhibit A, and all that appears there is the name of the inventor, the patent number, and the date, with no description of the patent. A. Well, somewhere, I don't know where it was, I saw a further description of what those patents were.

Q. Is it possible that USG advised you concerning them? A. I think maybe they did, I think maybe I asked, when I was out there, what those other patents covered.

Q. You had, of course, made up your mind to take a license before you went out there, though? A. Yes.

Q. Now, on page 4655 of the transcript, you said that you never had any knowledge of what the prices were going to be until the United States Gypsum Company announced them. Is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And on page 4656, you said that you very well remembered when you first received your prices out at the Chicago meeting in May, 1929? A. That was the first bulletin, yes.

4718 Q. They were handed to you in an envelope? A. I believe they were.

Q. And that was on the second day of the meeting, in the afternoon, on May 22, 1929? A. Yes, it must have been.

Q. And the whole group of licensees were present at that time? A. I don't remember whether they were all there at that time, but I would say the great majority were there.

Q. You had all signed up your license agreements by that time, and USG then handed out their prices? A. Yes, after that.

Q. Now, were you surprised when you opened the envelope and saw what the prices were? A. We were surprised, because we hadn't any idea of what they were going to be.

Q. Were they higher or lower than the prevailing prices at that time, Mr. Lenci? A. I am not sure, but it is my recollection that they were about what the USG Company was getting for their board at the time.

Q. And that was higher than you were getting for your board? A. Yes.

Q. So that were you displeased with the prices
4719 that they handed out at that time? A. I don't think I was, no.

Q. As a matter of fact, wasn't everyone there present rather well pleased with the prices? A. I couldn't speak for others, I don't know.

Q. Did anybody say that they were too low or too high or anything about it? A. The only comment I recall was that somebody made the remark that they hoped they would get $30 wallboard, that is the only remark I remember.

Q. Do you know who made that remark? A. I haven't the ghost of an idea.

Q. And $30 wallboard would have been putting wallboard back to the position where Sheetrock had been for a number of years? A. Yes.

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, Mr. Lenci, the prices of gypsum board couldn't very well go any lower and permit companies to stay in business, could they, at that time? A. It would have been very difficult.

Q. So that an honest answer would be that your expectation, and that of every other licensee there, was that they were going to be stabilized and raised? A. We were all human enough to hope that, yes.

4720 Q. And you weren't disappointed? A. No.

Q. Now, these price bulletins that were handed you there on May 22, 1929, set-up a rather full system of price control, did they not? A. Yes.

Q. They set up a series of basing points and gave you an arbitrary billing weight for your shipments, and then gave prices for different boards at different places? A. Yes.

Q. And you knew at that time, did you not, that the price control could only last until August 6, 1929? A. Yes.

Q. And did you have any expectation that this price control would all be abandoned at that time? A. I hadn't personally any idea of it, I didn't know what would happen.

Q. You mean you didn't know whether it would or not? A. We had no reason to believe that it would continue beyond August 6.

Q. And did you think that it was going to discontinue on August 6? A. We didn't know. Personally, I was not familiar enough with their patents to know whether they had other patents which would take the place of the Utzman patent or not, I did not know.

4721 Q. But the reasons which induced you to take out the license in May, 1929, would still be persuasive in August, 1929, to take out another license with price control, if that were possible? A. Well, as I go back, our primary reason for taking it was to get the closed-edge board.

Q. But your secondary reason, as you have described it, was to get a stabilized condition so that you could begin making profits again? A. Yes.

Q. And that reason would obtain in the summer of 1929 after the Utzman patent had expired, wouldn't it? A. Yes.

Q. You testified at page 4656 of the transcript, Mr. Lenci, that you had been incorrect in saying that Stephen Kelley was out at the meeting? A. Yes, I believe I was mistaken.

Q. And what caused you to decide that he wasn't there? A. I think either you or Mr. Knuff called my attention to the fact that he wasn't there.

Q. I think that that is the fact.

And you are sure, are you, that it was Mr. George Brown and not Mr. C. O. Brown that was out there at that 4722 meeting? A. Yes, I think that is correct.

Q. And how did you reach that conclusion? A. Well, you refreshed my memory in connection with that, and on thinking it over myself, I know that to be the case.

Q. You said, on page 4657, that "I have seen that in the record since. I believe it was George Brown who was there at that meeting."

By the "record", you meant something we had shown you? A. Yes.

Q. Now, let's go to the first day when you arrived out there, Mr. Lenci. This was at the Palmer House, the meeting? A. Yes.

Q. And you have testified as to who was present? A. Yes.

Q. And at the first meeting there, on May 21, 1929, you said that Mr. Avery, and I believe also that Mr. MacLeish, spoke to the group that was present? A. Either one or the other spoke to us very briefly.

Q. Might it have been that Mr. Avery spoke to you when you first arrived, and that Mr. MacLeish talked with you and Mr. Rippey at the side meetings that you speak of? A. It might have been that.

Q. Is your recollection unclear now as to whether 4723 Mr. Avery spoke to you at that first meeting? A. The only clear recollection I have of Mr. Avery is a personal conversation I had with Mr. Avery in the room, but not in the way of a speech.

Q. What did he say, Mr. Lenci? A. He and I were sitting sort of in the corner of the room, and that is the time, as I recall it, that he spoke about the General Electric patent.

Q. What did he say? A. Not very much. He said that that Supreme Court decision had been made, and that it was his understanding that that would permit them to issue a license such as they were offering.

Q. Did you talk over the price conditions at that time with him, or was he quite familiar with them? A. No, the conference broke up very suddenly.

Q. Well, in speaking of the General Electric case, Mr. Bromley told us, at page 838 of the transcript, that the General Electric case had come down in 1926, and that that was the very year when they made their first license and put the very first price fixing into effect. That, by the way, he said was why they did it, because the General Electric case came down at that time.

You understood, did you, that the right to fix prices was based on the General Electric case? A. Yes.

4724 Q. And your understanding was that it was perfectly legal for all of the licensees to meet there and take out a license under which the United States Gypsum Company could fix the prices, as was done? A. Yes.

Q. Did your attorney, Judge Rippey, advise you to that effect? A. Yes.

Mr. Steffen: Would Your Honors care to take the 3 o'clock recess at this time?

Justice Stephens: Yes, we will do so.

(Thereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed as follows:)

4725 Justice Stephens: Proceed, gentlemen.

Mr. Steffen: Your Honor, I would like to say at this time that it is not going to be possible to finish the redirect examination of Mr. Lenci in less than a day, and therefore he will have to come back at the end of the recess.

I wonder if your Honors would indulge me by fifteen minutes at the end of this hour, that is, adjourn at quarter of four.

Justice Stephens: We will do that.

Justice Jackson: You have to catch your usual train, do you?

Mr. Steffen: Yes, I catch the four-ten train.

Justice Jackson: That won't give you much of a margin.

Mr. Steffen: That is right, your Honor.

Mr. Varian: May I say a word, your Honor?

Justice Stephens: Yes.

Mr. Varian: Do I understand that it is proposed to adjourn today and have Mr. Lenci back here on March 20th?

Justice Stephens: Yes.

Mr. Varian: Well, it seems that that is quite unfair to Mr. Lenci, bearing in mind what the facts are here.

He has been under subpoena at all times since November 15th. He was told to come down here on November 15th, and then they told him that he needn't be here on the 15th or 16th, but that he was to be here positively on the 17th day of November.

4726 He came down here and spent all of that week. Then he was temporarily excused, but held on twenty-four hours' notice until the Court adjourned in the early part of December.

Then on the 11th of January, before Court reconvened, I telephoned to Mr. Knuff and asked him whether he was going to need Mr. Lenci on the 17th of January, and after discussing the matter with Mr. Steffen he told me that he wouldn't need him on the 17th or 18th of January, but that he must be ready to come down here on the 19th. Ever since that time he was held on twenty-four hours' notice.

Now he has been down here two solid weeks, and his business is being very much interfered with, and if this goes over he cannot make the necessary trips around the country that he is supposed to make.

It seems to me that it is a very unfair imposition upon this witness.

Justice Stephens: Well, the Court regrets it, Mr. Varian. What treatment, fair or unfair, may have been accorded Mr. Lenci prior to the time he got on the witness stand in the courtroom here, we know nothing of, we have no control over that, it not having been brought to our attention in any manner.

We cannot sit tomorrow, it is impossible for the members of this Court to do that. I have a war job myself, which I have some obligations towards, which may take me some time tomorrow, although it may not. But we all of 4727 us have other obligations and engagements. The Court never sits upon Saturdays because there are other things that have to be attended to of an administrative character.

Counsel for the Government have a right to conduct redirect examination. The cross-examination has extended for a couple of days. I don't see how we can refuse to ask Mr. Lenci to come back for whatever time is necessary to complete the redirect examination, and any recross examination which you or Mr. Bromley may wish to indulge in.

Mr. Varian: Well, the only thing is that his business is being interfered with, and this is a small company and they are trying to do some business. He is the principal man there who is active in the business.

Justice Stephens: We are fully aware of that, and we are aware of the inconvenience and difficulty it is to all busy businessmen, especially at this time. But the Court has to get at the facts, and can only get at them through the witnesses.

Mr. Varian: Well, so that he might not be detained too long here after the 20th of March, I would suggest that we proceed as far as we can this evening, so as not to unduly take him away from his business after March 20th.

Justice Stephens: I am sorry, Mr. Varian, but we cannot agree to that. We do not wish to be arbitrary or unfair, but the Court has its regular time of adjournment 4728 because there are other duties we have to perform. Also counsel have their various engagements which they have made.

Q. How long do you think you need on redirect examination, Mr. Steffen?

Mr. Steffen: About a day, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Well, that being true, it wouldn't save any particular time if you have us sit for another half-hour this afternoon, as Mr. Lenci would have to come back anyway.

Mr. Steffen: And Mr. Bromley may have further examination.

Mr. Varian: We want to save every bit of time we can so that Mr. Lenci can get back to his business.

Justice Stephens: Well, I quite agree with that, but my experience, Mr. Varian, is that we don't save any time in the long run by breaking away from the usual court hours. The court hours which we sit, from ten to four, are by no means the hours the judges put in, and are by no means the hours the lawyers put in. There is a great deal of outside preparation and I think we had better adhere to our schedule.

I am sorry, but I think there is no other alternative.

Mr. Varian: We are simply continuing until four o'clock today, is that right?

Justice Stephens: Until three-forty five.

Mr. Steffen: I want to say from our standpoint that we certainly apologize for any inconvenience we have 4729 caused Mr. Lenci, and I think he has had a legitimate complaint on one or two occasions.

On the other hand, we have been trying to be very decent with Mr. Lenci and not to call him down here but to have him on twenty-four hours' notice, as we say, so that he could go about his affairs and not be any more inconvenienced than was necessary. But it has been an inconvenience and we are sorry.

Justice Stephens: Thank you for that statement.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Now Mr. Lenci, I notice in your testimony that there is some confusion about this first meeting out in Chicago as to whether Mr. MacLeish or Mr. Avery, or both, or neither, addressed the meeting when you all first assembled. Have you had any opportunity to refresh your recollection on that, or to consider that more carefully? A. I have given a good deal of thought to it since I have been down here, and I cannot recall anything in the nature of a formal address, or an informal address to the group.

Q. I believe that there appears in your testimony a statement that at some time there was a discussion of the patent infringement suits, of the demoralized price conditions, the General Electric case, and the possibility of price 4730 control—and it was my understanding that you had said that that was either by Mr. MacLeish or Mr. Avery at the opening of the meeting.

Could your recollection be refreshed upon that? A. From some source other than my own testimony?

Q. Do you recall having testified before the grand jury upon that point? A. I have forgotten now what it was. But my recollection is, as I said a little while ago, that I think most of this information was given to me by Mr. Avery when I was talking to him in that short meeting I had with him.

Q. Might I show you your grand jury testimony and see if that will refresh your recollection? A. Yes, surely.

Q. Your memory in 1940, that date being closer to the event, may have been a little better than it is today? A. I would be glad to see it.

Q. I therefore want to show you your testimony beginning at page 92, at the point marked with an "X", and continuing over to page 94, at the point marked with an "X"—and I will ask you to read that.

(Thereupon, the grand jury minutes referred to were handed to the witness and thereafter to defendants' counsel and thereafter to the Court, for examination.)

By Mr. Steffen:

4731 Q. Have you examined your grand jury testimony, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes, I have.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection on the matter of whether Mr. MacLeish or Mr. Avery, one or the other of them— A. (Interposing) I wish I could say that it did, but I honestly can't separate that in my mind so that I could say that it was or was not that way.

Q. Can you say there was a discussion, though, at the time when everyone gathered together there on the morning of the 21st? A. Well, I am not so sure that there was a discussion, or whether Mr. Avery simply greeted us all and—I am trying to reconstruct it—I know we broke up very promptly because Mr. Rippey and Mr. MacLeish started right that morning to rewrite our contract, and the trains from New York don't get into Chicago until about ten o'clock, and probably by the time we got our rooms there it must have been eleven, so we would have had very little time for that, and it broke up right that same morning to get to work on the contract.

Q. It couldn't have been more than a five-minute talk, could it? A. It must have been a very short time.

Q. Can you say whether either Mr. MacLeish or Mr. Avery spoke of the patent infringement suits; the demoralized price conditions, and such other matters? A. I 4732 would say that there probably was some mention of that, yes.

Q. In the welcome that you received? A. I don't know whether it was in the welcome, or in the individual discussion. I cannot separate it in my mind, honestly.

Q. Let us go, then, to the morning of May 23d. You testified, I believe on page 4670, that there was a general get-together on the morning of the 23d, and that it was at that time that Mr. Avery spoke about the bubble patent. A. That is correct.

Q. And you said also that that was the first time that you had heard at all about the bubble patent? A. Yes.

Q. Now see if you can recall in a little more detail what Mr. Avery said about the bubble patent. Did he state whether or not the patent had been issued? A. No, he definitely said it had not been issued.

Q. He said it had not been issued? A. Yes.

Q. Did he say that it covered a process of making board? A. As I recall it, the way he explained it was this, that he had recently made this trip to Europe, and during that time 4733 he had come across what was known as the Bayer process; that Bayer had filed an application for a patent in the United States; and that Mr. Avery had secured from Mr. Bayer the right to use Bayer's patent, which might be granted on the basis of that application, in so far as it applied to gypsum; and he further explained that his process also could apply to cement, and if I am not mistaken he said that someone in Pittsburgh had taken over the cement rights to the Bayer patent, or Bayer application.

Then he explained that Mr. Roos had also filed an application for a patent for a similar process, with the Patent Office, and that it was in the hands of the Patent Office as to which would be granted the patent.

Q. Did he say when Mr. Roos had filed his application? A. I don't recall whether he did or not.

Q. I think it was in 1924. Did Mr. Avery say anything concerning their manufacture, at that time, of bubble board, so-called? A. If I am not mistaken he said that they had tried it out in one of their plants to see how it worked, and that they were very well satisfied with the results.

Q. And what did he say the results were? A. Well, primarily that it made a much lighter board, and actually by experience it lightened the board anywhere from 17 to 18 per cent.

Q. I am more interested in what Mr. Avery said. Did he say it was possible to reduce the weight 17 or 18 per cent? A. I don't think he specified the amount, but he explained to us—and we could readily see the reason for it—that it would materially reduce the weight of the board.

Q. Well, your board was weighing about how much at that time? A. Our board at that time was weighing well over 1800 pounds, 1800 or 1900 pounds per thousand square feet.

Q. And the reduction of 17 to 18 per cent would mean a sizeable reduction in weight, would it not? A. Yes, and that would not only mean a saving in handling, but it would mean a corresponding saving in the cost of freight and in the cost of trucking, all of which are on a ton basis.

Q. And did Mr. Avery say anything concerning the savings in cost of manufacture, or were there any mentioned? A. Well, indirectly, that if we used the bubble system we would not have to put in either wood fiber or sawdust, which was the custom at that time, and they were not only expensive, but the source of supply was very uncertain. Sometimes you could get all the sawdust you wanted, and sometimes you couldn't find it anywhere in the Eastern United States.

Q. Did Mr. Avery, in his explanation which you mentioned on page 4670 of your testimony, say that it would be possible to dry out the board faster, and that therefore it would save money in that respect? A. Yes, sir, that that was another advantage, it would come through the drying kilns much more quickly.

Q. And that might make a sizeable saving in the cost of manufacture? A. Yes.

Q. Did he make any mention of a possible royalty? A. I don't remember whether he spoke of the royalty or not, at that time.

Q. The royalty on the Roos patent was only one per cent, wasn't it? A. I would rather the contract spoke as to that, I don't want to quote royalties because they changed at various times, and I don't know.

Q. What royalty are you paying now? A. I believe it is only one per cent.

Q. And the patent that it is being paid on is the Roos foam patent, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. One per cent of $13 would be 13 cents, wouldn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And at a mill base price of $13 for lath, your royalty on that would be one per cent? A. That is correct.

Q. Your royalty is payable on the mill base, is it 4736 not? A. Yes.

Q. And not on the delivered price? A. No.

Q. So that what Mr. Avery was offering you, or what he explained to you, was a patent which might make a very considerable saving in your cost of manufacturing, and which would cost you, for royalty, about 13 cents on a $13 board? A. That is right.

Q. Now did Mr. Avery say anything concerning why he was offering this to the industry? A. I don't remember that he did.

Q. If he had retained the patent it would have meant a very distinct competitive advantage, would it not, for USG? A. Yes, it would have.

Q. Isn't it a fact that Mr. Avery was as much interested in letting the industry have it under a price control basis, as the licensees were to receive it? A. I don't know what his reason was.

Q. Would you say that it was to their advantage, as it was to your advantage to have a stabilized market where they could specify the prices? A. Yes, it would be.

Q. At page 4670 of the transcript, Mr. Bromley asked you this question:

"Q. And to make that specific, were you a party to 4737 or did you know of any agreement or understanding to the effect that the licensees would discontinue the manufacture of open-edge board and no longer make it?"

That is a broad question. Then you said, in effect, that there was no such agreement. A. That is right.

Q. That is correct, is it? A. Yes.

Q. Now you did subsequently, though, and very shortly thereafter, as soon as you could get your machinery in place, abandon the making of the open-edge board, did you not? A. That is right.

Q. And was that not true of all of the other manufacturers who were out there? A. Oh, yes.

Q. That is, open-edge board went off the market? A. Yes.

Q. Were you familiar with the license agreement which you signed—which I believe is Government's Exhibit 11—in which there is a provision to the effect that it is the purpose of the licensee to abandon the manufacture of open-edge board? A. Well, I have read that agreement a great many times, but not very recently.

Q. I will show you the third "whereas" clause in 4738 your contract of May 22nd, 1929, with the United States Gypsum Company, which appears on page 48 of the complaint.

(Thereupon, a copy of the complaint was handed to the witness.)

The Witness: Yes, I notice that.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. How did you understand that, Mr. Lenci, that you were going to discontinue the making of open-edge board? A. Well, yes.

Q. And that was the understanding of everybody that took out a license, was it not? A. I imagine so because as far as I know the licenses were all similar.

Q. And it is true, is it not, that under the terms of your agreement, as you understood them, royalty was payable on either open-edge or closed-edge board at the same rate? A. I am not sure about that first agreement. I would rather check with the agreement.

Q. I think it can be agreed that royalty was payable on any board manufactured, whether closed-edge or open-edge. Then it is a fact, would you not say, Mr. Lenci, that if you had to pay a royalty on open-edge board, and it also cost more to manufacture open-edge board, that it was a business impossibility to continue making open-edge board?

A. Well, it would be, on that assumption, yes.

4739 Mr. Bromley: I think the Court's attention ought to be called to the fact that on page 48 of the complaint, bearing a recital of the license contract to which counsel has called the witness' attention, in the third paragraph it states:

"Whereas, Licensor has been unwilling to grant a license except upon the express condition that Licensee will manufacture plaster board or gypsum wallboard only with a folded or protected edge similar to that manufactured by Licensor", and so forth, and that in the very next paragraph the recital is:

"Whereas, Licensor has agreed to waive the express condition aforesaid", and so forth.

So that the recital was only made so as to make it clear that there was no such condition—and it isn't fair to call attention to only half of it and create the opposite impression when, if both paragraphs are read, it is perfectly plain that there was no such condition.

Justice Stephens: Well, we will have to suspend at this time.

Before we adjourn, the Presiding Judge wishes to make a statement, very briefly.

I am sorry I can't refer to the exact page of the transcript, but counsel will remember that during the examination by the Government of this witness the question arose upon the objection of the defendants, to the introduction of evidence concerning the practices under the bulle-4740 tins, specifically those referred to in paragraph 91 of the complaint. The Government offered the evidence to prove two things: First, that the license agreements were being used as a subterfuge or a cloak for illegal practices; and second, that they went beyond, or took the license agreement beyond, the proper limits of the General Electric case.

Mr. Bromley objected, saying that there was no charge in the complaint that the license agreements were themselves illegal, or that the practices under them were illegal, pointing out that in paragraph 91 there was no charge that these various bulletin provisions were unreasonable.

Judge Garrett and Judge Jackson expressed themselves at that time, through me, as of the view that the complaint did charge illegality in the license agreements, as going beyond the proper limits of the General Electric case, but I deferred an expression of my views on that subject until I could give further consideration to it, and we made a ruling that if the Court should ultimately determine that the complaint did not charge that the license agreements were illegal as going beyond the reasonable limits of the General Electric doctrine, the evidence would be considered by the Court only under the subterfuge charge, and that it could be stricken so far as it might relate to the alleged illegality charge.

Since that time I have gone through the complaint
4741 again with great pains and I have reached the conclusion, and I think I ought to announce it so that counsel will be advised, that the complaint does charge that the license agreements are illegal.

I think it could have been much more clearly charged if paragraph 91 had explicitly said that the bulletin provisions and the license provisions were not in reasonable protection of the patent monopoly. But I think in paragraph 46, Mr. Bromley, on page 11 of the complaint, in the next to the last sentence, where the Government charges:

"Said license agreements are not bona fide patent license agreements reasonably designed to secure to USG the pecuniary reward for valid patent monopolies, but were entered into and executed for the illegal purposes described in paragraphs 44 and 45 hereof." —that that is, in effect, a charge that they did go beyond the reasonable limits of the General Electric case. That, therefore, is the ruling of the Court in its construction of the complaint.

I announce that so that counsel on both sides will be advised.

I ought to say also that although I have reached that view with respect to a charge as to the illegality of the license agreement as going beyond the proper limits of the General Electric case, the fact that I reach that view leaves me in still further doubt as to what the Government means 4742 by the subterfuge charge in this case.

I have never been able to get it clear in my mind, and this decision which I have just made, or announced, as I say, makes me still less clear, as to what the Government means by its subterfuge charge.

I had been under the impression from the beginning of this case that the Government had two distinct and in a sense, separate charges: First, that the license agreements were illegal as going beyond the proper limits of the General Electric case, that is, as containing provisions and permitting practices which were not in reasonable protection or reward of patent monopolies; but second, that if they were legal on their face, they were entered into as a subterfuge or cloak.

I had supposed the Government was intending to prove under that, that they were not bona fide agreements, that they were entered into with the intention not of being agreements under the General Electric doctrine, but not of being agreements at all, but just cloaks or pretenses of agreements.

I am still at a loss to understand what the Government's theory of subterfuge is, and I think my colleagues are in the same doubt. It would clear up the case, and would help the Court a great deal in making consistent and clear rulings on the admissibility of evidence, if we knew more definitely what the Government's charge is on the subterfuge theory. Perhaps you can clear that up later.

4743 Mr. Knuff: Is there any specific suggestion that your Honor would care to make, either in the form of a memorandum on it, or what not?

Justice Stephens: No. I thought perhaps it might be brought out at the next discussion on this topic.

Mr. Knuff: I would be glad to prepare a memorandum for the Court's consideration.

Justice Stephens: If you wish to do that, you may, we would be very glad to have you do that, and to have you serve copies on the defendants; but you are not required to do that and perhaps you would prefer to state it orally when we resume session. Suit yourself on that.

Justice Jackson: I don't mind telling you what my understanding of this complaint was.

It was, that the complaint charged two things: One, that the licenses were, per se, illegal; but two, even if the licenses were legal, that the things done under them made them a sham and a cloak, and made them illegal.

Mr. Knuff: I think that is correct, but I think we went just a little farther than that, and I would like to have an opportunity to consult Mr. Steffen on that. There is no doubt that we meant those two things.

Justice Stephens: But you also say in paragraph 46 that they are not bona fide license agreements, and you say that the combination was carried out in the guise of 4744 numerous license agreements purporting to relate to the use of certain patents to give color of legality to the combination, and that smacks as if all this thing was a sort of a feint or a dodge, and that there weren't any contracts really executed at all in good faith, that they just went through the pretense of executing the contracts.

That is why I was surprised, as I have frankly indicated I was, at your going into all this evidence which seemed to me to tend to prove that the parties were taking these agreements very seriously and insisting upon abiding by them.

I mention this only because it does help the Court a great deal in making clear rulings, if it knows clearly what the charges and what the defenses in the case are.

Mr. Knuff: We will try to clear that up.

Justice Stephens: Thank you.

Justice Garrett: Since Judge Jackson has spoken his view I may say that that also was my view, that is the way I construed the matter from reading the complaint. But I made some inquiries concerning that at one time here, probably during the examination of this witness, or some other, and somehow I arrived at the conclusion that the Government, as was just now said by Mr. Knuff, meant something more than that, that that was his view about it, so I quit asking questions about it. It didn't add to my information, and I had plenty of ignorance already—so I just quit asking questions about it. I thought it would work out
4745 eventually. (Laughter.)

Mr. Knuff: Had I drawn this complaint I would have been able to tell you the reason for the third comma on line 6, page 17, but I didn't draw the complaint and I didn't participate in its drawing.

Justice Stephens: Very true, we are not charging you with negligence or lack of lawyer-like action in respect of drawing the complaint, when you didn't draw it, but still the Government is under an obligation, as are the defendants with respect to their defense, to make their theory clear.

Mr. Knuff: And we want to clear it up.

Justice Stephens: The record may show, to conclude this matter, that the evidence that was received at the time of the ruling to which I referred, is now ruled by the full Court as applicable to the charge that the license agreements are themselves illegal as going beyond the proper limits of the General Electric doctrine, as well as to the charge of subterfuge. That will make the record clear.

You may announce the recess.

(Thereupon, at 3:55 o'clock p.m., an adjournment was taken until 10:00 o'clock a.m., Monday, March 20, 1944.)

4747 IN THE

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Civil Action No. 8017

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY; NATIONAL GYPSUM COMPANY; CERTAIN-TEED PRODUCTS CORPORATION; THE CELOTEX CORPORATION; EBSARY GYPSUM COMPANY, INC.; NEWARK PLASTER COMPANY; SAMUEL M. GLOYD, doing business under the name of TEXAS CEMENT PLASTER COMPANY; SEWELL L. AVERY; OLIVER M. KNODE; MELVIN H. BAKER; BROR H. DAHLBERG; HENRY J. HARTLEY; FREDERICK G. EBSARY; and FREDERICK TOMKINS,

Defendants.

Seventh Floor,
Internal Revenue Building,
Washington, D. C.,
Monday, March 20, 1944.

The above-entitled cause came on for further hearing at 10:00 o'clock a.m., pursuant to adjournment, before Honorable Harold M. Stephens, Honorable Finis J. Garrett, and Honorable Joseph R. Jackson, sitting as the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

APPEARANCES:

(Same as heretofore noted.)

4763 Justice Stephens: Mr. Lenci, will you take the witness stand?

Whereupon George N. Lenci appearing as a witness herein, having been previously sworn, resumed his testimony as follows:

Justice Stephens: Mr. Finck, do you know when Mr. Adams will be here?

Mr. Finck: He will be here Wednesday, Your Honor.

Redirect Examination (resumed)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I want to take you back, Mr. Lenci, to the first price quotations that you gave to your salesmen, following the meeting of May 21 and May 22 and May 23, 1929.
4764 Those are Exhibits 405, 406 and 407, if you may be shown them for purposes of getting on the track again this morning.

(Exhibits 405, 406 and 407 handed to witness.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I call your attention particularly, Mr. Lenci, to Exhibit 405, and the quotation of $17.50 per thousand, f.o.b. mill. That price, Mr. Lenci, was for the covered-edge board if and when you got into production, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. I think you testified concerning that on pages 4671 to 4679 of the transcript.

That price of $17.50, Mr. Lenci, was the same price as the price for No. 2 grade wallboard, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. Having a covered edge? A. Yes.

Q. Now your price of $15 per thousand square feet, f.o.b. mill, was on your open-edge board, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. Now that was your standard production, wasn't it? A. That is what we had been making up to that time.

Q. And that price is the same as the price for seconds which was put out by the United States Gypsum Company in their bulletin of May 23, 1929, Government's Exhibit 404?

A. Yes, that shows a $15 price for that item, too.
4765 Q. Now you testified at page 4679, and page 4680, that you had no understanding that the price for your board was to be—that is, your open-edge board—was to be the same as the price for seconds; is that correct? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. Prior to this time, Mr. Lenci, your open-edge board had been selling in competition, had it not, primarily with the No. 2 or seconds, particularly the seconds put out by USG and some of the other companies? A. Well, we had been trying to get business against any competition we had to meet. We were selling our board wherever we could, no matter what the opposition was.

Q. But your chief competitor was the No. 2 grade board or the seconds, let us say, which was being put out by certain of your competitors? A. To a certain extent it was.

Q. And it was a perfectly normal thing for you to have selected the $15.00, which was the price that USG fixed for its seconds, or fixed for seconds to be sold by licensees, as being the price at which you should sell, thereafter, your open-edge board? A. That was the price we would like to sell it for, because it meant a little improvement over what we had been doing.

Q. My question was that it was quite natural that 4766 you should select the same price, inasmuch as seconds were sold in competition, principally, with your open-edge board? A. It was governed by two factors: We couldn't get more than that price because they could buy that open-edge board, or the seconds, from one of the other companies at that price; and we didn't want to sell any lower than that because we were naturally anxious to get as much profit as we could.

Q. Do you recall any discussion concerning the price at which you should quote your open-edge board? A. No.

Q. Was there any mention at Chicago on May 23, 1929, as to what you should do concerning your open-edge board, to dispose of it? A. I haven't any recollection of it, no.

Q. Do you know what your competitors did with regard to their prices on open-edge board? A. Well, I think most of our competitors were not making an open-edge board. As I recall it, the only one that was making it was Certain-teed. The others were making a closed-edge board which was an infringement on the licensor's board.

Q. Was National making a closed-edge board? A. I think they were.

Q. Or a partially-closed edge? A. I think so. The American and Reeb were.

4767 Q. They were not, in 1929, were they? A. Well, they had been during quite a period before that, not of a board which they claimed was the Utzman board, but they had their own way of folding those edges which gave them, in effect, a closed-edge board.

Q. The testimony here indicates that in July, 1928, American abandoned the closed-edge or modified closed-edge board, and went to a different type of edge.

Well, you stated that this was arrived at as an independent matter on your part, Mr. Lenci, this matter of fixing a $15 price on your open-edge board; and you also stated, on page 4680, that you arrived at the matter of billing weights as an independent matter. Do you remember that? A. Yes.

Q. Now those billing weights which you selected were the same as those provided in the United States Gypsum Company bulletins, were they not? A. I believe they were. I have no present recollection of it, but my recollection is that they were, yes.

Q. And when you said that you arrived at it as an independent matter, you meant, of course, that you had to make your own decision— A. (Interposing) Yes.

Q. (Continuing) —but you were following the billing weights which were specified in the United States 4768 Gypsum Company bulletin? A. My present recollection is that our board, our 3/8 inch board, was weighing just about that amount at that time. As I recall it, our board weighed somewhere between 1800 and 1900 pounds.

Q. Prior to this time in 1929, you hadn't used an arbitrary billing weight, had you? You had used the actual weight, in making shipments? A. I think we did, I think we did.

Q. At page 4686 of the transcript, Mr. Lenci, you speak concerning the board machine which your company purchased. I think that was bought in 1928? A. Yes.

Q. And you bought it from a concern out in Kansas? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall how much it cost? A. Why, approximately, yes. You see, a board machine is made up of two principal parts, the machine itself and the kilns. The board machine people don't furnish the kilns, the dry kilns.

Q. That has to do with making stucco, the dry kilns? A. No, the stucco kilns are an entirely different kind of a kiln. But the board is made on a machine and then it goes through the driers and is dried.

Q. By kilns, you mean the driers? A. Yes.

4769 Q. A board machine is about 100 or 150 feet long? A. Oh, no.

Q. How long? A. Our board machine in the beginning was about, I think it was 634 feet.

Q. That is including the kilns? A. No.

Q. Just the board machine alone? A. Yes.

Q. And if you take the machine alone, about how much did it cost? A. As I recall it, it was about $75,000, and that did not include—we had to set it up ourselves with our own labor. I believe they furnished all the machinery and a supervisor, or something of that kind, and we furnished the labor and machinists to erect it and put it into operation.

Q. Now, you didn't wish to give the impression, from your testimony here on page 4686, that when you converted to make the closed-edge board, you had to replace that machine? A. Oh, no, we replaced certain parts of it.

Q. And those parts were at the wet end of the machine, at the head of the machine, particularly? A. At both ends; at the wet end of the machine, which you would call the head end, we put in the machinery for turning 4770 the edges. And at the far end, it was the elimination of the saws which trimmed the rough edges off of the open-edge board.

Q. So you could simply take those saws off and that would take care of that, and then at the wet end of the machine you had to put in a device which would turn the edges of the board? A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall whether that was purchased from the Ehrsam Manufacturing Company? A. I don't remember who we got that from.

Q. It was a rather minor matter? A. Yes, I don't really recall who furnished that.

Q. On page 4687, Mr. Lenci, Mr. Bromley asked you: "Did you have any understanding or agreement that if you took the license, USG would raise or stabilize prices on patented board covered by the license?"

And you answered: "No."

Do you remember that? A. That is correct.

Q. Now by "agreement", did you mean written agreement, or by "understanding", written understanding? A. No, I meant any understanding.

Q. Any understanding at all? A. Yes.

4771 Q. And by stabilizing prices on patented gypsum board, you understood, of course, that your license agreement itself would operate to stabilize prices, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. And you didn't mean to exclude that? A. No, of course not, but what I meant was that there was no prior understanding, oral or written, that certain prices would be established, and what those prices would be. We knew that the license agreement would cover the fixing of prices for the sale of patented board.

Q. And you knew that it would also result in stabilization? A. Yes.

Q. And you knew that, in the first place, because everybody, practically, was signing the license agreement? A. Yes.

Q. And the license agreement also provided, you knew, that if any other or better license should ever be given, that each of the present licensees would be given substantially or exactly the same terms? A. I believe it was to be exactly the same terms.

Q. That is right. A. Yes.

Q. Then on the same page, Mr. Bromley asked 4772 you:

"Did you have any understanding or agreement with anyor , with respect to what price you should quote or charge for plaster?"

And you answered: "No."

Do you remember that? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. And by that you mean the same thing, that you never talked, at this May meeting for example, concerning an agreement regarding plaster prices? A. That is right.

Q. Is that right? A. That is right.

Q. You understood, of course, that you would not be permitted to sell plaster in order to influence your board prices? A. Yes.

Q. And you understood that that would, in a measure, stabilize your plaster prices, or rather, make them a little more fixed than they were before? A. It might have that effect, yes.

Q. Prior to this time, in 1927 and 1928, you were a free agent to sell your plaster any way you wanted to, and at any price? A. Well, both before and after.

4773 Q. What I am getting at is that prior to 1929, if you had cared to shade your plaster price 5 cents, for example, in order to get a contract including board, you would have been free to do that, would you not? A. Yes.

Q. After the 1929 agreement, and the bulletins concerning the board, you were not so free, were you? A. As I understood it, we were not free to give plaster away or to sell it at an extraordinarily low price to influence the sale of board. But there was nothing there that kept us from free competition in plaster, and our experience was that it was extremely free during the past 10 or 15 years.

Q. I think you testified, Mr. Lenci, that even a 5-cent reduction or a 10-cent reduction in plaster prices, or board prices, would be very influential to a prospective buyer in the building field; is that not correct? A. I don't remember of making that statement.

Q. Perhaps I am wrong on that. But that would be true, would it not? A. They wouldn't notice a 5-cent reduction in the price of plaster.

Q. What would be the first point at which they would begin to notice it? A. They usually talk 50 cents 4774 or a dollar when they talk about plaster.

Q. That is per ton, is it? A. Yes.

Q. And a 50-cent reduction in the plaster price would be a material reduction? A. It all depends on what the other companies were selling plaster for at the same time. In other words, we are competing on plaster against other plaster manufacturers. If they were all selling their plaster at, say, an arbitrary price of $10 at a certain place, we would be competing against that price, we wouldn't be competing against the board price. The plaster business is a separate business.

Q. Is that exactly true? Are not board and plaster sold together very largely? A. The wallboard is very rarely sold in connection with plaster.

Q. By "board", I mean gypsum lath as well. A. Lath may or may not be. The reason I say that is that it is the common practice in building construction to let a general contract. The general contractor then lets a sub-contract to a plastering contractor. The plastering contractor in turn sublets to a lathing contractor. Then the plastering contractor will buy his plaster through the dealer with whom he usually does business; and the lathing contractor will buy his lath through the dealer with whom he 4775 usually does business. So in a great many of the cases, especially in the larger cities and on the larger jobs, you are selling lath through one source, and plaster through another source. Do you understand?

Q. I think I understand perfectly.

To make the illustration simple, though, in the cases where you are selling to a dealer who in turn is selling both plaster and lath to a contractor, then in that case it would be very material to the dealer who was buying the supply for this entire contract to know what his prices on plaster and what his prices on board were, and if the price on plaster were shaded by, say, 50 cents, that would be a material element in determining whether or not he was going to buy board from you? A. That would be correct, yes.

Q. And prior to the agreements in 1929, you could make any adjustment that you saw fit, in your plaster prices, to influence the price of board? A. That is correct.

Q. And subsequent to that, you could not make an adjustment in the price of plaster for purposes of influencing the sale of board; isn't that correct? A. That is correct, but I don't know where you would draw that line as to how much of a cut in plaster was made in order to sell the plaster, and how much of the cut was for 4776 the purpose of influencing the board sale. I couldn't tell you where that point would be.

Q. Well, I wouldn't know, either. But the bulletin—and I refer to Government's Exhibit 37, page 923—doesn't make any distinction as to whether it is a large or a small reduction in plaster prices which might influence the sale of board? A. I know that.

Q. It simply says that whatever the reduction is, it may not be made if its purpose was for the purpose of reducing the price of board. A. That makes it a question of fact as to whether it was made for that purpose or not.

Q. I see.

Mr. Bromley: What is the date of that bulletin, please?

Mr. Steffen: That bulletin is dated February 6, 1939.

Justice Stephens: What is that exhibit number?

Mr. Knuff: Exhibit No. 37, Your Honor. In your book it will either be page 923 or 531. There are two numbers, because it has been photostated twice, and they have changed the number, and I don't know which one you have up there.

Justice Jackson: Is it reproduced in the complaint?

Mr. Knuff: I am inclined to think that that is in the complaint, Your Honor.

Mr. Steffen: Yes, it is in the complaint on page 96.

4777 Justice Stephens: I have page 531 of Exhibit 37. Was this the one on rebates and allowances?

Mr. Steffen: That is right.

Mr. Knuff: That is correct, Your Honor.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. You also testified, Mr. Lenci, on page 4687, in reply to one of Mr. Bromley's questions, that you did not enter into or know of any agreement or understanding that jobbers would be eliminated from the distributive system. Do you remember that? A. Yes.

Q. And by that you meant what, that there was no agreement at this May meeting that you were going to then eliminate jobbers? A. Yes.

Q. And there was no provision in the license agreements which expressly provided for eliminating jobbers, was there? A. No.

Q. Nor was it provided at all for eliminating jobbers? A. No.

Q. Now, you did not wish to imply by your answer that there weren't many meetings between the licensees and USG at which jobbers were discussed? A. That there were not?

4778 Q. You didn't mean by your testimony to imply that there were no meetings between licensees and USG at which the matter of sales by jobbers was discussed? A. The question of jobbers was mentioned at several meetings, at two or three meetings anyway.

Q. You have testified concerning that, and your answer here didn't mean to change your testimony that there were several meetings at which sales by jobbers was discussed? A. No. Sales were discussed.

Q. And following those meetings, and those discussions, a bulletin was issued making the price to jobbers the same as the price to dealers? A. Yes.

Q. And the effect of that was to eliminate jobbers from the distributive system, was it not? A. More or less. As you know from the testimony which came afterwards, they were not eliminated.

Q. What do you mean by that? A. There were complaints all during this period that they still were buying at discounts from various manufacturers.

Q. That is, for a period of a year or two following the initial price bulletin? A. For a number of years, yes.

4779 Q. But they are substantially eliminated now, is that not correct? A. Yes—when you say "eliminated", I don't know just what you mean. You don't mean eliminated, you mean that they were put on the same basis as dealers?

Q. That is right. A. But there was no intention at any time to put them out of business, because they are still in business and doing a good business.

Q. Perhaps we had better go into that. By that you do not mean that they are getting a discount— A. (Interposing) No, but a jobber has gotten himself in a position where he is fulfilling a certain—not duty, but—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) Function.

The Witness: Thank you, sir—function, in the business. He has the material in stock, and there are a lot of small dealers who, for financial reasons, or due to the size of their warehouses, are not able to buy large quantities; and there are a great number of these jobbers who buy at the dealer price and then sell above the dealer price to these smaller dealers as a privilege to these smaller dealers, it helps them a great deal.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. But there are no jobbers who buy at a discount from the manufacturer and sell to the dealer at dealer prices?

A. Not so far as our company is concerned.

4780 Q. And you don't know of any in the industry?

A. No, not at the present time.

Q. And in so far as that constitutes being a jobber, those jobbers are eliminated? A. Yes.

Mr. Steffen: We might take our recess at this time, if that is agreeable.

Justice Stephens: We will take a five-minute recess.

(Thereupon, a five-minute recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed.)

Justice Stephens: The trial will be resumed.

In order that counsel may be definitely informed as to the program of the Court, the Court will sit this week and next week, closing on Friday, March 31st, and will reconvene on Tuesday, April 11, rather than on Monday, April 10th.

You may proceed, Mr. Steffen.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. With further respect to jobbers, Mr. Lenci, on page 4689, Mr. Bromley asked you if it came as a surprise to you that the price to dealers and the price to jobbers was made the same, and you made the statement: "We had no part in making that up."

By that testimony you didn't mean to say that you had not had these various meetings at which jobbers and sales by jobbers, were being discussed? A. What date 4781 does that refer to?

Q. 1930. By that you didn't mean to exclude the fact that your company, as a licensee, and other licensees, had discussed with USG the matter of sales by jobbers? A. It wasn't so much a discussion by us, as a statement by USG that certain things were going to be done.

Q. That applies to the issuance of bulletins, or as to what they were going to do by way of fixing prices, is that what you mean? A. Yes.

Q. And those statements in the bulletins followed these licensee meetings at which you licensees asked Mr. Henning or Mr. MacLeish questions concerning bulletins and conditions in the industry, is that not right? A. Well, these bulletins didn't follow the meetings.

Q. Not always? A. No. I mean we didn't have a meeting, and talk things over, and then have it confirmed by a bulletin. I don't want to ever get that into the record.

Q. I understand that perfectly. A. These bulletins came out entirely independently of anything we did or talked about.

Q. But they had to do with the matters which you did talk about? A. Which were brought up by the licensor, yes.

4782 Q. And which, on occasion, were brought up by the licensees? A. At the moment I don't recall what that would be.

Q. Well, you made complaints concerning jobbers, and then questions came up concerning housewreckers and things of that sort at these various meetings? A. That is true.

Q. And on occasion those matters appeared later in bulletins, did they not? A. Well, I haven't read these earlier bulletins for a long time, but it seems to me that the question of jobbers was mentioned in the bulletins right from the start.

Q. The first one I think was in 1930. A. That is the year following.

Mr. Bromley: That is not true at all. The very first bulletin had a provision in it about jobbers, and set the discount.

Mr. Steffen: I think that is correct. The one I had reference to is the one that fixed the price at which you were to sell to jobbers as being the same price at which you sold to dealers.

Mr. Bromley: But that wasn't the first mention of jobbers. Jobbers were mentioned in the first bulletin that was issued.

Mr. Steffen: I agree to that, and the one I had reference to was the one issued in August, 1930, at which the 4783 price to dealers and jobbers was made the same.

The Witness: Yes, but I do not recall any discussion between the licensees and the licensor to the effect that that was going to be done.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I will show you, Mr. Lenci, in order to refresh your recollection—you say you do not recall—your testimony before the grand jury, beginning at the point marked "X" on page 251, and ending at the point marked "X" on page 251; and also from the point marked "X" on page 268, ending at the point marked "X" on page 269.

Justice Stephens: Show it to counsel first.

(The grand jury minutes referred to were handed to defendants' counsel for examination.)

Justice Stephens: Show it to the Court, now.

(The grand jury minutes referred to were handed to the Court for examination.)

Justice Stephens: What was the first page reference?

Mr. Steffen: Page 251.

Justice Stephens: And the next was what?

Mr. Steffen: Pages 268 to 269.

Justice Stephens: Now you may show it to the witness.

Mr. Bromley: I object to this use of the grand jury minutes again as being entirely improper, and it seems to me that the second reference is a very clear demonstra-
4784 tion of the impropriety. They pick out certain parts of the minutes and mark them with an "X", and will not let us see what comes in between. It is impossible to tell whether the second reference is talking about before this bulletin or after. It is utterly impossible to tell what he is talking about or what time he is talking about.

The first reference is clearly to a period long after the issuance of the first bulletin, just as the witness said. But as to the second reference, there is no way to tell what time it refers to. I suspect it is likewise after the issuance of that bulletin, but it is impossible to tell from those excerpts.

Justice Jackson: Have you had an opportunity to look further into those minutes to see what the second portion has reference to?

Mr. Bromley: I have not.

Justice Jackson: I think you are entitled to know what it means, in order to intelligently examine him.

Mr. Bromley: I feel the same way.

Justice Stephens: The Court would see no objection to your looking at sufficient of the minutes to understand what that means. You don't object to that, do you?

Mr. Steffen: I have to make a formal objection, your Honor, to allowing counsel to look at any grand jury minutes other than those that are presented, but I—4785 Justice Jackson: (Interposing) Suppose that that portion does not exactly give the picture?

Mr. Steffen: I was going to say that I think it is only reasonable that either the Court—ordinarily it would be the Court that would satisfy itself that those are the proper excerpts from the minutes—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) We couldn't tell that ourselves without reading the balance.

Mr. Steffen: I have no objection to Mr. Bromley looking at the material between pages 251 and 268.

Justice Stephens: You may resubmit it to counsel.

(The grand jury minutes referred to were again handed to counsel for the defendants for examination.)

Mr. Bromley: May it please the Court, from a reading of the pages between 251 and 268, it is apparent that the testimony which is marked on pages 268 and 269, given by this witness before the grand jury, was all with reference to a meeting of licensees on November 15, 1932, more than two years after the bulletin leveling offff the jobber-dealer price was issued.

Justice Stephens: More than two years afterwards, you say?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, after the bulletin was issued by USG making the price to jobbers the same as to dealers.

So that in no way bears upon his testimony as to whether this matter was discussed prior to 1930 before the bulletin was issued.

4786 Mr. Steffen: Our point on that would be, your Honor, that the discussion in 1932, which is a continuation of discussions that they had had previously, and which referred to a matter that was obviously up as Mr. Bromley pointed out in the very first bulletin and in subsequent meetings, was a matter which would influence—what I mean to say is that the discussion had in 1932 would have a bearing upon what they were doing in 1930, because it was a continuation matter. I am showing this to Mr. Lenci simply to refresh his recollection.

Justice Jackson: Why don't you show it to him and ask him if it does refresh his recollection. Any explanation to clarify it can be brought out on recross.

Mr. Steffen: That is right. The page references are page 251, and also pages 268 to 269, between the points marked with an "X".

(The grand jury minutes referred to were handed to the witness for examination.)

The Witness: Am I to read what is in between?

Mr. Steffen: No, just the marked portions.

Justice Stephens: Counsel has not asked you to read the intervening material; and Mr. Bromley has stated in your presence what it relates to, without denial. If the witness feels that he needs to read the intervening material, after reading the other material, to be sure what it means, the Court will allow him to do so.

4787 The Witness: (After reading the indicated portions of the grand jury minutes) I would like to briefly skim over what is in between there.

Justice Stephens: You may do so.

Justice Jackson: If it does not refresh your recollection, all you have to do is to say so.

Mr. Steffen: And if it does refresh your recollection, all you have to do is to say that.

The Witness: On page 268, where it starts in, it starts off with a question, "Let us take jobbers", and so forth, and I would like to see the line of questioning up to that point.

Justice Stephens: If the witness feels that in order to make sure whether it refreshes his recollection he should read the intervening material, he may do so.

The Witness: Thank you.

(The witness read the intervening material in the grand jury minutes referred to.)

Justice Stephens: What is the last question, Mr. Reporter? Let's get back to where we started.

(Thereupon, the record was read by the reporter, as requested.)

Justice Stephens: You have now read the intervening material, have you?

The Witness: Yes.

4788 Justice Stephens: Ask your question, Mr. Steffen.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. My question is, does that refresh your recollection concerning any discussions you may have had with the licensor, at licensee-licensor meetings, concerning the jobber situation? A. Yes.

Q. And when you said at page 4689 of the transcript that you had no part in making up the bulletin which the United States Gypsum Company issued in August, I believe, of 1930, eliminating jobbers or fixing the same price to jobbers as to dealers, you didn't want to exclude the fact that you had had such meetings and had talked over the elimination of jobbers with the licensor?

Mr. Bromley: I think that that ought to be specific as to whether it was prior to 1930 or subsequent to 1930.

Mr. Steffen: I will make it specific.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. In August, 1930, there was a bulletin put out by United States Gypsum Company which leveled off the price to dealers and jobbers—do you remember that? A. Yes.

Q. And your answer here said that you had no part in making that up? A. That is right.

Q. And by that you meant that the United States
4789 Gypsum Company, of course, issued their own bulletins? A. Yes.

Q. You do not want to exclude the statement, however, that the licensees had met with the licensor concerning the jobber situation, do you? A. Well, it is my recollection that there was more discussion about the jobbers after 1930—

Q. (Interposing) Than prior to 1930? A. Yes.

Q. My question is—do those excerpts from the grand jury minutes, which have to do with meetings after 1930, refresh your recollection as to anything discussed prior to 1930? A. No, they do not.

Q. I now show you Government's Exhibit 438, which also has to do with jobbers, Mr. Lenci, and concerns your testimony on page 4758 of the transcript. I refer particularly to the first paragraph of that exhibit in which it says that selling through jobbers had been eliminated.

In your testimony, Mr. Lenci, you said:

"A. That is correct. It is merely shortened up there, because that is the way I understood it, and everybody else understood it the same way."

You followed that testimony with a statement to this effect:

"Q. And when you said that you understood it and that that is the way everybody else understood it, you 4790 meant that they all understood that all that had been eliminated was the right of a manufacturer to sell a jobber at a discount, is that right?"

To which you said:

"A. That is correct, yes."

Now having read your testimony before the grand jury, does that refresh your recollection as to whether or not your statements on page 4758, to the effect that what you should have said was simply that the price had been leveled off, was correct? Do you get all that? A. No, I don't, I am sorry.

Q. Let me get at it in shorter questions, Mr. Lenci.

Have you looked at Exhibit 438? A. Yes.

Q. And the first paragraph speaks of eliminating jobbers? A. Yes.

Q. And you stated first that that was the way that everybody understood it, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Do you want to change that testimony?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that question. He didn't testify that that was the way everybody understood it at all—

Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) Just a moment, I will read your testimony, Mr. Lenci.

Mr. Bromley: At what page?

Mr. Bromley asked you this question:

"Q. What you said was 'Referring to the recent bulletin of the United States Gypsum Company advising the licensees that selling through Jobbers had been eliminated.'

"You knew when you wrote that that all the bulletins had done was level off the price as between jobbers and dealers, didn't you?"

And your answer was:

"A. That is correct. It is merely shortened up there, because that is the way I understood it, and everybody else understood it the same way."

Now do you want to change that testimony, having examined your testimony given before the grand jury? A. I don't see how I can.

Q. That is a correct statement of what you intended to say, is it not?

Justice Jackson: What do you mean by "that"?

Mr. Steffen: By "that" I refer to the first paragraph of Exhibit 438 in which you said that you understood that the jobbers were to be eliminated.

The Witness: Well, to make it clear—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) The statement there, for the purpose of exactness of the record, is that selling through jobbers had been eliminated.

4792 Mr. Steffen: That is right.

The Witness: If I may make it clear, my understanding has always been of that particular bulletin that the practice of selling through jobbers at a price less than the dealer price had been eliminated, that the practice of selling them at the special discount had been eliminated, not that the jobbers themselves had been eliminated.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. That comes down, as you state, however, to a shortened statement that sales, or selling to jobbers, had been eliminated, was the correct way of stating the matter—is that not right?

Justice Jackson: What matter?

The Witness: May I go back to my letter of May 6? The first paragraph of that letter, which is addressed to the Board Survey Company, is merely for the identification of the matter which I wished to discuss, with the various complaints I mentioned in the letter. The first paragraph is not intended as an interpretation, but merely as an identification so that the Board Survey would know what I was talking about.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I now want to take up another subject, Mr. Lenci.

At page 4693 of the transcript you state that the matter of taking out a license under the Roos foam patent was a matter of your independent judgment, and that it was 4793 because you desired to get the right to use the patents in your manufacturing process.

I think you testified, Mr. Lenci, that you made no examination of the patents before you reached your decision, did you not? A. That is correct.

Q. Did the United States Gypsum Company disclose to you just how to make board, prior to your taking the license in October, or November, 1929? A. They described it very fully at about that time, whether it was just before or just after, I don't recall.

Q. You are familiar with the license agreement and it provides, I believe, in the license agreement, that they will disclose to you the process as a part of their agreement? A. That is correct.

Q. Now on page 4698 of your testimony, Mr. Lenci, you referred to the matter of classifying housewreckers, as to whether they should be classified as dealers or contractors. Mr. Bromley there asked you the question:

"Now at this meeting of June 6th, was there a discussion about prices?"

And your answer was:

"A. No, I think the thing was an inquiry as to how housewreckers should be classified under the bulletins."

Had you been selling housewreckers as dealers?

4794 A. Yes, sir.

Q. Does your company sell to contractors? A. No.

Q. And do some of the companies sell to contractors? A. It isn't the usual practice.

Q. Do some of them sell to contractors? A. It has happened occasionally in very recent periods, only, during the war, principally on Government contracts, on barracks and buildings of that type.

Q. And the question came down as to whether you would classify housewreckers as dealers or contractors, and if they were to be sold as contractors, whether they would be sold at a different price than you would sell to dealers? A. They would not be entitled to the dealer price.

Q. It would be, ordinarily, a higher price? A. Yes.

Q. And you decided to treat them as dealers? A. They actually were dealers, and had existed that way for years.

Q. Dealers of a particular sort? A. Yes.

Q. At page 4698, Mr. Bromley asked you:

"Q. Was there any 'give and take' in the sense of a discussion, as to what should or should not be the practices or prices, followed by a vote or a decision in any form?"

4795 Your answer was:

"A. Oh, no, no."

That was never the case, was it, that there was a decision or a vote at that time by the licensees? A. That is right.

Q. The licensor heard statements or questions from each of the licensees, if they were so minded? A. Yes.

Q. And was there an expression of opinion? A. No.

Q. Did you say you thought you would like to classify housewreckers as dealers, or not? A. I misunderstood your question, I believe, I thought you asked—

Q. (Interposing) Whether the licensees would express their opinion? A. Yes, it was usually discussed by the persons who brought it up. If I had a complaint or a question, I would bring it up, and the United States Gypsum would say, "Well, we will think about it and decide what we are going to do."

Q. And if any other licensee had an opinion on the matter, or had a different view on the matter, he expressed it? A. If he was interested, he did.

Q. And the United States Gypsum Company more or less stood as an umpire between the different parties 4796 there, if there was a difference of opinion? A. No, I wouldn't say that they acted as an umpire, because very often we might want something and feel we were entitled to it, and they would make their decision based very largely, we felt, on their own policy.

Q. On what was good business for them? A. Yes.

Q. You also say on page 4699: "You must realize that those bulletins were entirely new to all of us".

By that what did you mean, that they provided many new conditions such as billing weights and basing points and new prices, and size of truck deliveries, and so on? A. What bulletins does that answer refer to?

Q. This apparently had to do with the period between June 6th and following.

Justice Stephens: Of 1929?

Mr. Steffen: Of 1929, up to the first audit, I believe.

The Witness: That is what I thought. Well, the whole idea of the bulletins was new, and a great many of the matters embodied in the bulletins were not clearly expressed, we couldn't understand them, and we naturally had to have the bulletins clarified.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Now on page 4700 this question was asked:

"Q. Now the giving away of filler by the manu-4797 facturers was not a custom in the sense that it was generally accepted or approved practice in the industry, was it?"

And you said:

"A. It was decidedly not approved."

That had been the practice in the industry, though, to give away filler or carpenters' aprons, or things of that sort? A. No, I think I said it was not the usual practice.

Q. But there had been instances where that was done? A. There had been very few, very rare instances.

Q. And that was brought up at a licensee-licensor meeting and there was general disapproval expressed by the industry present? A. Wasn't that one of the points brought up at that meeting where Mr. MacLeish told us—

Q. (Interposing) I think so. A. I think he was the one that expressed the opinion to us and said that that was one of the attractions that had been offered. It wasn't an opinion on our part.

Q. He stated to you it was an attraction, and you agreed that it was a bad practice, or did you? A. I don't think we agreed, we just accepted it. He said so and that was it.

Q. Now on page 4703, a reference is made to protected job contracts, and on that page Mr. Bromley asked you this question:

4798 "Q. However, there was again another rule, do you recall, among the Fair Trade Practice Rules, Rule 16, which provided that a contract of sale which permits the buyer to cancel, or provide for a reduced price in the event of a market decline, and which does not permit the seller to cancel, or provide for an enhanced price in the event of a market rise, is lacking in mutuality and tends to induce controversy and breach of contract, and is therefore condemned by the industry?"

To which you answered:

"A. Yes."

Is that your testimony? A. Yes, that was referring to the Federal Trade Commission rules, wasn't it?

Q. It says so, yes. A. Yes.

Q. And by "condemned by the industry" you mean condemned by your company and the United States Gypsum Company, and the other licensees? A. Under that Federal Trade Commission Fair Practice Law, yes.

Q. And only as it comes under the Federal Trade Commission Fair Practice Rule No. 16? A. Yes.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Lenci, is there still a practice to protect prices on jobs? A. Yes, you have 4799 to do that.

And is that what was meant by the rule? A. No, it is just the opposite. The rule, if it were followed by the industry, would be of benefit to the industry, but as the business practice has been built up throughout the years we protect against an increase, but if there is a decrease, the contractor pays the lesser price on a protected job.

Q. So that although it is condemned by the industry, the industry still follows that practice? A. Yes, we have no way of enforcing it.

Q. Well, as a matter of fact do not the bulletins provide regulations concerning the extent to which you may protect jobs? A. I don't recall that they do.

Q. Aren't there very explicit provisions as to what will constitute a job and for what length of time you may protect a job? A. I don't recall that.

Justice Stephens: We will take the noon recess at this time.

(Thereupon, at 12:15 o'clock p.m., a recess was taken until 1:45 o'clock p.m. of the same day.)

4800 AFTERNOON SESSION

(The trial was resumed at 1:45 o'clock p.m., pursuant to recess.)

Justice Stephens: Proceed.

Whereupon, GEORGE N. LENCI resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Redirect Examination (resumed)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Before the recess, Mr. Lenci, we were speaking about the protected job contracts, and the length of time that a licensee would be permitted to protect a job, especially on gypsum board and gypsum lath.

I want to show you Government's Exhibit 37, page 530, which appears at the top of page 95 of the complaint.

(Exhibit 37 handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. In the second paragraph, it refers to advances in minimum price—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Page 95 of the complaint?

Mr. Steffen: That is correct.

Justice Stephens: Paragraph No. (2)?

Mr. Steffen: Especially No. (2), yes, Your Honor.

By Mr. Steffen:

4801 Q. I ask you, Mr. Lenci, if that is a regulation of these protected job contracts, as you understand it? A. Yes.

Q. There have been no price changes in several years, have there? A. This bulletin is dated in 1939. I don't believe there have been.

Q. What I meant to say is that you have had no occasion to refer to this particular bulletin in several years? A. No, that is right.

Q. You would change your testimony, Mr. Lenci, that there is a regulation, then, in the bulletins? A. Yes. I wasn't sure this morning whether it had been published or not.

Q. Now I would like to take you to page 4709 of the transcript. It is a little indefinite, Mr. Lenci, as to when you decided to take out your bubble license. The question is, at the foot of the page:

"And you thereafter did decide to take the bubble license, did you?"

And your answer:

"We did."

The reference is to a statement made by Mr. MacLeish, according to your testimony, to Mr. Rippey, suggesting that you should make up your mind about whether or not 4802 you wanted to take out a license, before you talked about the form of the license.

As a matter of fact, you made up your mind fairly shortly after the May 23 meeting, did you not, to take out a license under the bubble patent? A. Yes.

Q. And by a "very short period of time", what could you say you meant? A. Well, I couldn't place it in days.

Q. That is, you had substantially made up your mind as you went home from the meeting? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, I want to refer to your testimony beginning on page 4734. At that point, Mr. Lenci, you were asked this question:

"For instance, if you were told that you could sell gypsum board at $13 per thousand square feet at your mill, would that enable you to operate as a commercial business matter?"

And your answer was:

"No."

Do you remember that testimony? A. Yes.

Q. I want to ask you whether, prior to May, 1929, you were not able to operate as a business matter, even 4803 though you didn't even have a base price given you? A. Well, we weren't working with a base price, we were working with what price we had to meet at the destination where our competitors were making the prices.

Q. That is, you had to meet competition in 1928 and 1929? A. We had to meet the prices in effect at the destination point, as we found them.

Q. And you could adjust your prices, or your trucking, or the size of your loads, or any other matter that you saw fit, to meet competition, could you not? A. Yes.

Q. Now, what did you mean, then, when you said that you couldn't operate as a commercial business matter if all that was given you was a $13 per thousand square feet at your mill price? A. Well, to give you a very simple illustration of it, we were simply given a mill price of $13, and one of our competitors who had a plant in Philadelphia was making a price on his product, delivered to the dealer's yard, of $14.10, there is only a difference of $1.10 per thousand square feet in there. If we were bound by the $13 at our mill, and had to add to that the freight to destination and the trucking charge from destination to the dealer's yard, we couldn't operate. That is what I meant by that answer.

4804 Q. Well, you go on and state here—and I will refer you to another question that Mr. Bromley asked you, on page 4736:

"In other words, you mean by that, that you would have to know whether that price applied to a large quantity or a small quantity, wouldn't you?"

And you said:

"Yes."

A. Yes, that is another line of thought, too. There were a number of reasons.

Q. Then he asked you:

"And you would have to know whether that price applied to a situation where you were expected to make free delivery, or whether the customer was to pay for the delivery, wouldn't you?"

A. Yes.

Q. And your answer was:

"Yes."

A. That is the one I just illustrated.

Q. This is another question asked you by Mr. Bromley:

"Now a switching charge, to which reference has just recently been made, is a part of the freight charge made by the railroad, isn't it?"

And you said:

"That is correct."

4805 What I am getting at, Mr. Lenci, is this: Mr. Bromley's questions were directed to the point that if there was only a $13 f.o.b. mill price specified, he wanted to know whether you could do business on that basis or not, and what I am trying to make clear is on what basis you were answering.

If you were in a state of competition with your other licensees and licensor as in 1928 and 1929, you could operate without having any price fixed, isn't that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now, when the licensor fixed a price of $13 f.o.b. mill, did you mean that you couldn't operate at all, as a business matter? A. Yes.

Q. Well, wouldn't it have been possible, Mr. Lenci, for you to have sold in any size carload or truck that you saw fit? This is Mr. Bromley's hypothesis. Suppose that the licensor says that your price at the mill is $13. A. Yes.

Q. And he makes no other regulations. Isn't it then open to you to sell in such size truckloads and in such manner as you see fit? A. No, we couldn't operate.

Q. Well, what you are getting at is that you would be running into competition? A. Yes.

4806 Q. And that you couldn't operate, in the sense that you wouldn't be competitive; is that what you mean? A. Yes, we would be automatically tied to a price which would not be competitive.

Justice Jackson: Do you mean that you would lose money selling at that price?

The Witness: You couldn't even get business to lose the money with.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. What Mr. Bromley assumed is that the price would be fixed as to your company, and also as to each other company, at $13 f.o.b. mill. A. That still wouldn't permit us to operate.

Q. Why not? A. Well, take the extreme. Suppose I am operating with a $13 mill price—

Q. (Interposing) And suppose here is a National plant— A. (Interposing) And that is operating at $13. Now the customer wants to buy a carload of board at your destination.

Q. Suppose I am in Rochester. A. Take it at New York.

Q. All right. A. You are in New York. The cus-

4807 tomer wants to buy. All right. I am tied down to a

$13 mill price, and so are you. Now your cost to him is a $13 mill price plus merely your delivery charge.

Q. That is right. A. He won't buy from me at $13 at my plant, 400 miles away. So I have got to be permitted to be competitive, which the bulletin permits.

Q. In other words, what you are getting at is that in order to be competitive, it was necessary that all these other matters be regulated? A. The bulletins were the means of making us competitive, not the means of making us non-competitive.

Q. That is right. A. Yes.

Q. And in order to make you competitive at any point, it was necessary, for example, to fix a uniform billing weight, was it not? A. Yes.

Q. That is, so that the delivered price would be uniform? A. Yes.

Q. The freight would be based on a uniform rate? That is, the freight charge to the customer would be based on a uniform billing weight? A. Yes.

4808 Q. And that would apply also as to whether it was large or small quantities? A. Yes.

Q. In order to be competitive, each of the licensees would have to agree to sell, or would be told to sell, only in certain quantities, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And you mean the same thing, for example, with regard to switching charges, that you would have to agree that the switching charges in Grand Rapids would be so much; is that right? A. No, we didn't agree—

Q. (Interposing) You were told? A. We were told that if there was a switching charge, that would have to be added to the price, if that was the condition existing at that particular point.

Q. And that that was intended to make you competitive with each of your other licensees selling in that same territory? A. Yes.

Q. Now, let's get at this word "competitive". By "competitive", you mean that selling conditions, price and selling conditions, were uniform; is that correct? A. Yes. You start out with a uniform base, the mill price. Now a great many of these matters that are covered in the 4809 bulletins are exceptions, cutting below that base.

Q. For example? A. The one I gave you a few minutes ago, that our price, after we shipped the material to New York, our price back at the mill is much lower than your mill price if you have your plant at New York, which is a cut below the base price shown in the bulletins, in order to meet the condition existing at the destination due to a local mill being established in that territory.

Q. Well, let me get— A. (Interposing) I am sorry if I don't make myself clear. I am trying to.

Q. I know that. I want to get very clear in my mind as to the meaning of this word "competitive". As I understand it, what you mean is that you start with a uniform price at the mill. A. Yes.

Q. That makes you competitive in that respect with all other licensees, as you understand the term? A. Yes.

Q. And when it is agreed that you shall ship in certain carload lots at carload lot prices, and not at smaller-than-carload-lots at carload lot prices, that makes you competitive as to the size of your shipments? A. Yes.

4810 And when it is agreed or ordered that your trucking will be in 7500 board feet truckloads, and not smaller, that makes you competitive with your other truckers? A. Yes.

Q. And when it is ordered that you can truck only in certain areas at certain prices, that makes you competitive with each of your other licensees? A. Yes. But those, again, are all variations from the basic price established in the bulletin, which is the mill price plus carload freight to destination.

Q. We understand that. A. Do you see what I mean?

Q. Yes. A. Your bulletin starts out with the idea that the price is so much at the mill, plus the ICC freight to destination.

Q. Based on an arbitrary weight? A. Based on the arbitrary weight, if you want to put it that way.

Q. From a designated shipping point or basing point? A. Yes. Then they start and give us these other conditions that enable us to meet competition as we find it existing in other points.

Justice Stephens: What other conditions?

Justice Jackson: To be able to meet the figure of 4811 the fellow closer to destination?

The Witness: Yes. For instance, where he has no freight to pay and we have to pay $5 in freight, that $5 has to come out of our mill price.

Justice Jackson: That has to come out of your mill price?

The Witness: Yes, or we don't do any business.

Justice Stephens: What do you mean by that—it has to come out of your mill price?

Justice Jackson: You can't take it out of your freight, can you?

The Witness: No.

Justice Jackson: And you can't take it out of your trucking?

The Witness: No.

Justice Jackson: And if you are to meet the price, it has to come only out of the mill price?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: I should think that would not make you competitive, but would make you take a loss.

The Witness: It would do so, very often, if you want to meet that condition. We do take a loss in a number of our plants.

Justice Jackson: That is what I asked you a few minutes ago, if it meant a loss to you; and you said no, you 4812 couldn't get the business at all.

The Witness: I thought you meant that if we didn't take the business at all, would it mean a loss.

Justice Jackson: Oh, no.

The Witness: That is right.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Do I have it clearly in mind, Mr. Lenci, and correctly in mind, that when you say you want to make yourself competitive, you are in effect eliminating competition with your licensees as respects the particular matter?

For example, when you have a uniform billing weight, each of the licensees is going to sell at the mill base price plus freight based on a uniform billing weight, and that makes you competitive, as you say, with each of your other licensees; is that correct? A. That is correct up to that point.

Q. And when you say "makes you competitive", it in effect means eliminating competition, does it not, on the point in question? Let's take an illustration—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Let him answer the question.

The Witness: Well, I can't answer that correctly.

Justice Stephens: Answer it as correctly as you can, if you can.

The Witness: Mr. Steffen started to say, "Let's 4813 take an illustration". Our plant is in Wheatland in Upper New York State. When we ship to Washington, our freight is roughly $5 per thousand. The United States Gypsum Company has a plant in Philadelphia. Their rate to Washington, we will say, is $3 per thousand. They take their mill price and add $3 per thousand, which would make a price down here of $16. Now, we have got to ship and sell to the customer at that price, we can't get $2 a thousand more because our plant is too far away. So in order to be competitive, we have to cut our price $2 to meet that circumstance, and the only place that can come from is out of what is left at the mill.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Isn't that exactly what you did, Mr. Lenci, before you had any price fixing at all? A. Yes.

Q. If you wanted to get into the Washington market, you had to— A. (Interposing) We had to—

Q. (Continuing) —you had to take something from the price at one place or another? A. Yes, certainly.

Q. Let's take this question, Mr. Lenci: Suppose that your competitors were making a 1500 pound board, and you were making a 1600 pound board, would it not be possible for you to price your board at, let us say, $13 mill 4814 base price and charge your freight on exactly the weight of your board? A. No.

Q. You would not be able to sell in competition with the others? A. No, sir, of course not.

Q. You would not be competitive? A. No.

Q. And therefore, to make you competitive, or to eliminate any question of competition in that case, you agree upon a weight for the board? A. That gets back to the standard weight in the bulletin, yes.

Q. And by establishing a weight in the bulletin for board, a uniform weight, it will allow each licensee to eliminate any competition based upon the difference in the weight of the board and the freight that would have to be paid upon it? A. Yes.

Q. And isn't that true with respect to trucking, for example—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Before you leave that, let me ask a question, to keep myself clear on this situation.

Is there a parallel between those two cases? You have to pay actual freight to the railroad, do you not?

The Witness: Yes.

4815 Justice Stephens: In the previous illustration you were giving?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Despite the fact that an arbitrary rate is fixed in the bulletin?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Each of the companies you are supposing in your illustration have to pay the actual freight rate?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Do you have to pay on an actual weight in the second illustration, or do you pay on a theoretical weight?

The Witness: To the railroads?

Justice Stephens: Yes.

The Witness: It is a weight which is arrived at by the railroads' making periodical weighings of board at a plant, and reaching what they call an average weight agreement, and that varies from time to time.

Justice Stephens: Is it an approximation of actual weight?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Now, let's take the trucking illustration, Mr. Lenci. If there were no regulations as to the size of the truckload, you might find it profitable to ship, say, 5,000
4816 or 6,000 board feet in a truck, might you not? A. Not actually so.

Q. If you had a very good customer who wanted 6,000 board feet, might it not be profitable to ship 6,000 instead of 7,500? A. I don't think it would.

Q. At least, prior to the bulletins you were permitted to do that if you wanted to? A. Yes.

Q. Now let's suppose this situation. Suppose you have, in a town, say, 50 miles away, two dealers; and each of them wants to get, say, 4,000 board feet. You could pool that truck, could you not? A. That could be done, yes.

Q. Could that be done under the bulletins? A. No. The way the bulletins read, the two customers that were on the load, if that did happen, each would have to be the minimum amount.

Q. Each would have to have 7500 board feet? A. If that was the minimum at that time.

Q. It might be profitable to you to ship at one time to two dealers in the same town, or immediate vicinity, in 4,000 foot lots, might it not, if you were permitted to do that?

A. It might be. I don't recall, even, that we did that 4817 before we had the license.

Q. But if you were to do that, and another licensee were not to be permitted to do that, there would be competition between you on that basis, would there not? A. Yes.

Q. And the effect of the bulletin is to make you and your other licensees competitive as to the size of the truckload, is it not? A. Yes.

Q. And by "competitive", you mean that you eliminate any possibility of competition on the basis of additional accommodations or additional aid given by shipping in smaller or different sized truckloads? A. That is right.

Q. I want to take you to page 4743 of the transcript, where Mr. Bromley's question there referred to competitors. He says:

"Didn't you find out, after you had been in operation under the license for a couple of years, that all kinds of ways were being devised by your competitors"—by the word "competitors", you meant primarily competitors not on a price discrimination level, but on a level of getting business by friendship or otherwise? A. Wasn't that referring back to the analysis made by Mr. MacLeish, of the audit?

4818 Q. I think so, yes. It had to do with the violation of minimum terms set by the licensor. A. Yes.

Q. I wanted simply to get at the word "competitors". The word appears at several places in your testimony. A. That means the other manufacturers of gypsum board.

Q. And you didn't mean by that that there was any competition on a price level? A. Well, all of those things affected the price.

Q. Well, I mean, as between licensor and licensees, the effort was to get rid of any competition on the price level, was it not? A. It was to get rid of those violations that did affect the price, yes.

Q. That is right, and to thereby eliminate any competition between licensor and licensees, or the licensees themselves, as respect those so-called violations? A. Yes.

Q. On pages 4754 and 4755, there are still other references to competitors. I will refer you to Mr. Bromley's question at the top of page 4754:

"In other words, if one of your competitors violated his contractual obligations under the license and made an indirect price cut, that fact alone might mean the difference between your getting the business and his getting the 4819 business, is that right?"

And you said:

"It very definitely did."

A. Yes.

Q. And by "competitors" there, you meant that the competition was on, or should be on, some level other than price? A. Yes.

Q. Your purpose was to eliminate any competition as to price, or anything having to do with price, as regulated in the bulletins? A. Yes.

Q. There are several references on page 4755 concerning—

Mr. Bromley: (Interposing) I don't know what counsel meant when he said, "Your purpose was to"—did you understand the question?

The Witness: I thought I understood it.

Mr. Steffen: That the purpose of the bulletins was.

Mr. Bromley: You didn't say that.

Mr. Steffen: No, I said "your purpose"—that the purpose of the bulletins was to eliminate any matter of competition based upon price or based upon anything having to do with price, the various things that were taken up in the bulletins concerning truckload sizes, and so forth.

4820 The Witness: I thought you were referring to the bulletins. That is the way I understood it.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. That is what I wanted to get.

On page 4757, Mr. Lenci, there is a reference to the Board Survey, and Mr. Bromley asked you this question:

"Now, there was nothing secret about these complaints, was there, Mr. Lenci, so far as you were concerned?"

And you answered:

"Not a thing."

Then he said:

"And you meant what you wrote to Board Survey, didn't you, when you complained?"

And you said:

"Yes, we certainly did."

When you state there was nothing secret, is that strictly accurate? Isn't it a fact that your complaints to Board Survey were not communicated to the licensee who may have been complained of, that is, your name was not communicated? A. I don't know how they handled it, but I thought our name was communicated.

Q. Did you have any complaints made to you by Board Survey which gave the name of the complainant? A. I don't remember whether we did or not. I can't just place any particular complaint.

4821 Q. You are familiar with the form of complaint that was put out by Board Survey? A. Yes.

Q. And you filled those out yourself? A. Yes.

Q. The ones that you received, do you remember whether they had the name of the complainant, or was it simply the Board Survey saying that there was a complaint made against you? A. I don't remember, I don't remember.

Q. I would like to show you Government's Exhibit No. 500 as simply one example of a complaint; also Government's Exhibit 497.

(Government's Exhibits 500 and 497 handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. In either of those two exhibits, is there any reference to the name of the person making the complaint? A. No.

Q. Do you recall ever having received a complaint with the name of the person making it, on it? A. What I was trying to remember was if we had any complaints against us when we were using that blank to be filled in.

Q. You don't recall, then, ever having seen the 4822 name of the complaining licensee? A. I don't remember, no.

Justice Stephens: Where are those exhibits that consisted of the complaint form itself, sent out by a complaining licensee?

Mr. Knuff: Exhibits 513-A, 514, and 515. Exhibit 513-A is a complaint by Ebsary to the Board Survey about the Kelley Plasterboard.

Justice Stephens: Exhibit 513-A is a complaint against Kelley Plasterboard signed by Ebsary?

Mr. Knuff: That is right. Exhibit 514 is the answer of Kelley Plasterboard to the Board Survey on that complaint. You will notice that the Ebsary Gypsum Company's name doesn't appear at all on that form.

Justice Stephens: I see.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I would now like to take you to your testimony on page 4765, Mr. Lenci. That had to do with exchanges of board, and I think you testified there that it had been the practice, on the part of some people, to go to the Kelley plant and pick up less than the quantity, or of trading boards with the Kelley Plasterboard Company—do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. At page 4770, you testified that there was no bulletin regulation as to that, as you recalled; is that correct?

4823 A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether that practice of allowing a dealer to come to a plant and exchange boards has been discontinued? A. I believe it has.

Q. And it was not discontinued by means of a bulletin? A. I don't recall. I don't think it was in the bulletins, I am not certain.

Q. You don't know whether Mr. Henning, or someone from USG, told Kelley to discontinue the practice? A. It probably came to Kelley in the form of a complaint, that he was doing such a thing.

Q. The complaint was made to Board Survey, and came back to Kelley? A. That would be my—

Mr. Bromley: (Interposing) I move to strike out the prior answer as pure speculation.

Justice Stephens: It seems to the Court that it is just a speculation on the part of the witness.

Mr. Steffen: I think that is right, in so far as he said "probably".

Justice Stephens: It may go out.

Tell what you know about it.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. You don't know as a fact whether any such 4824 complaint was made to Kelley by Board Survey? A. No, I don't.

Q. My attention has been called to the fact, Mr. Lenci, that we didn't conclude the questioning concerning the secrecy, if any, involved in your complaints to Board Survey. Are you prepared now to say that those investigations were entirely open, or were they secret? A. Well, I think that the question gets itself into two parts. You led it along into these formal complaints. But as I recall it, there was some questioning as to any secrecy when we happened to make the complaints at one of these board meetings. If we had a complaint to make, we didn't make it in secret.

Q. If you made a complaint at these licensee meetings, there was nothing secret about it? A. If we had a complaint about another company, we didn't go over in the corner about it, but stated our case publicly.

Q. But after the Board Survey Company was instituted, the complaints were in writing to Board Survey, were they not? A. Yes.

Q. And so far as you now recollect, you didn't receive, when a complaint was made against you, the name of 4825 the complaining licensee, did you? A. I don't remember, no.

Q. Now, I would like to take you to page 4772, and also page 4779 of the transcript, where you testified concerning splitting commissions. Do you recall that you testified in connection with Dusol, as being on a commission basis either with his brother or with the Kelley plant, or both? A. Yes.

Q. And that there was a regulation opposed to splitting commissions; do you remember that? A. Yes, there is a regulation in the bulletins.

Q. And on page 4779, this question was asked:

"Wasn't it your understanding that the license bulletins of USG did not outlaw commission men, as such, but merely were aimed at prohibiting the practice of splitting commissions with customers to effect a reduction in the price?"

And you answered "Yes.", to that. A. Yes.

Q. I want to show you Government's Exhibit 37, page 936—or page 555.

Will you please read that, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Steffen: I understand it will be page 555 in Your Honors' sets of exhibits. There were two numberings, and it is confusing.

By Mr. Steffen:

4826 Q. Have you read Government's Exhibit 37, at page 555, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. And that explicitly says, does it not, that the licensor will regard the sale of patented board by commission salesmen, without the written consent of the licensor, as a violation of the terms of the license agreement? A. Yes.

Q. And would you prefer now to change your testimony as it appears here on page 4779? A. Well, to my knowledge, I don't know that any complaint or any action was ever taken against any company which had legitimate men on a commission basis.

Q. But the regulation was about the time Mr. Dusol was operating, was it not? A. No, this is much later.

Q. And the regulation, in terms at least, would provide that licensees might not engage a commission salesman except under the penalty that the licensor would regard any commission paid to commission salesmen as a reduction in price? A. Yes.

Q. This provision that I have cited you, in Government's Exhibit 37, page 555, appears at other points in the license bulletins, I believe, Mr. Lenci, does it not?
4827 A. I am not sure whether it appears exactly in that same form or not.

Q. You were referred, in your direct testimony, to Government's Exhibit 37, page 530, which has to do with rebates and allowances, and also page 531, which has to do with rebates and allowances, and I imagine that is what you had in mind when you made your answer here on page 4779? A. Yes.

Q. The answer on page 4779 seems to say that the only thing appearing in the license bulletins was a prohibition of the practice of splitting commissions where that would effect a reduction in price by way of rebate. And that would be governed by Exhibit 37, page 531. But this exhibit, Exhibit 37, page 555, is a separate and distinct provision, is that correct? A. Yes, but I would take it that that would be modified by the matter on page 531 of the same exhibit. Those paragraphs, that is, the paragraph on page 555 is headed "Allowances, Etc."; and the one on page 531 is headed, "Rebates, Allowances, Etc." I would take it that that superseded the earlier one.

Q. This is a matter of construction, Mr. Lenci. You would have to examine all the license bulletins. There are several provisions. A. It happens in this folder that 4828 you have the later one bound ahead of the earlier one, which is rather confusing.

Q. That is the way they were furnished us, Mr. Lenci.

I want to take you now to page 4782 of your testimony. Mr. Bromley asked you this question, concerning jobbing, warehousing or trucking arrangements:

"Q. But that the only prohibition was that you should not use a warehouse arrangement as a secret or indirect way to lower the price of the board which you were selling to the dealer from whom you leased warehouse space?"

To that you answered:

"A. That is correct."

Now, that refers to this same matter of leasing a warehouse, for a licensee to lease a warehouse at the dealer's place of business, and thereby to possibly effect a rebate, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And the effect of your testimony is that the only prohibition in the bulletins with respect to that matter was this Exhibit 37, page 531, having to do with rebates and allowances.

Now I want to show you Government's Exhibit No. 38, page 112.

(Exhibit No. 38 handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Steffen:

4829 Q. It is dated June 30, 1932. Are you familiar with that provision, Mr. Lenci? A. Which paragraph do you mean, the first paragraph?

Q. The second paragraph. A. Yes.

Q. Stating that: "The establishment or continuance of warehouses, consigning of stocks, or extending other than regular terms, with dealers or other buyers will be construed by Licensor as a rebate and in violation of the minimum price where merchandise is sold at the minimum price."

Are you familiar with that provision? A. Yes.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Lenci, that the matter of warehousing at a dealer's place was discontinued by the industry? A. Well, to my knowledge, there were only one or two cases of that kind.

Q. And they were discontinued? A. One was a matter of complaint, down in Perth Amboy, New Jersey, that we made against the National; and another one, I believe, against the Certain-teed in Boston. Those are the only two that I remember.

Q. And those were both discontinued? A. Those were discontinued.

Q. Do you recall about the time of those two 4830 instances, Mr. Lenci? A. No, but they must have been early in the 30's.

Q. When you testified on page 4782 that the only prohibition was that you should not use a warehouse arrangement as a secret or indirect way to lower the price of the board which you were selling to the dealer from whom you lease warehouse space, you had in mind, did you not, the rebate provision which is Government's Exhibit 37, page 555?

Justice Stephens: You mean 531, don't you?

Mr. Steffen: Yes, Your Honor.

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Your answer is yes, you say? A. Yes.

Q. On page 4788, Mr. Lenci, this question was asked you: "Q. Well, as of this date, the practice of shipping board on consignment was condemned by the gypsum industry as an unfair trade practice, wasn't it?"

And you gave two reasons, as I recall—one, that a shipment might be made to a dealer, and the dealer might dispute, might make a false claim, concerning the amount of board received or the shrinkage, or something of that sort, and that would constitute a possible price cut, as you understood it. A. Yes.

4831 Q. Now let me ask you as to an ordinary shipment today. Is it not possible for the dealer to enter a complaint that his shipment was short, or that there were boards broken in transit? A. Yes, but there is a difference between the two.

Q. What is the difference? A. If you have a shipment to a customer and he complains that the material was short, you have the immediate opportunity of investigating and checking up with him. But in the case of a consignment, the stuff may be shipped 3 or 4 months before, and he has sold a lot of it out in small quantities, and then when he is all finished he doesn't have as much left as his inventory shows, and he says, "Well, your shipment must have been short", and there is no way of checking it up.

Q. And the industry regarded that as very bad business, to ship on consignment? A. Yes.

Q. And that was the reason, then, for having this provision which I have read you, or which you have before you there, Government's Exhibit 38, page 112, the second paragraph? A. Yes.

Q. Your answer is yes? A. Yes.

4832 Mr. Bromley: If he knows.

Do you know what the reason for it was?

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Would that be your reason? A. That would be my interpretation of it.

Mr. Bromley: I move to strike out the answer, then. This is a provision in our bulletin.

The Witness: This bulletin wasn't referred to until after I got through answering all the questions.

Mr. Steffen: That is right.

Justice Stephens: Read the last two questions. I couldn't hear one of them.

(The record was read by the reporter as requested.)

Justice Stephens: I think the answer should go out, the witness' interpretation of the bulletin. The Court will have to make that.

Mr. Steffen: What is stricken out?

Justice Stephens: Just his interpretation of the bulletin, the statement that this is his interpretation of the bulletin. You are not foreclosed from asking him how the industry regarded the practice or, if he knows, what the purpose of the bulletin was.

Justice Garrett: That would include the previous answer also, because one was the reason, and he answered that, and then after the objection he said that that was his 4833 interpretation; and I take it that they are so connected that the answers to both would go out.

Justice Stephens: That is correct.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. That would be your understanding of the purpose of the provision, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: You gave, as I recollect your testimony, also an additional reason, did you not—

Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) I was just coming to that.

Justice Stephens: Thank you. That had to do with the matter of investment, as I remember it.

4834 By Mr. Steffen:

Q. You had a second reason, which was that if one licensee should ship on consignment to a dealer, and another licensee were to sell only on the usual terms, it would be, in effect, giving an advantage to the first licensee, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. I want to ask you this question—wouldn't it have been possible for the industry to have allowed all licensees to ship on consignment, if they saw fit? A. How did your question start?

Q. Wouldn't it have been possible, as it was prior to 1929, I take it, for the industry to permit any licensee to ship on consignment if he saw fit, so that, to be perfectly fair to any other licensee who didn't ship on consignment it would be open to him to ship on consignment if he saw fit? A. The USG could have made that arrangement if they had wanted to, but we had no interest in consignments.

Q. You didn't want consignments? A. No, in our total business experience we never had but one, and that was so bad we never wanted to do it again.

Q. I was simply getting at the question of fairness. It would have been fair if all licensees had been privileged to ship on consignment, if they wanted to?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as incompetent
4835 because calling for a conclusion.

Mr. Steffen: It goes directly to the question, your Honor, in which it is stated that it would be an unfair trade practice, and I think his answer is based upon the assumption that some would and some wouldn't.

Justice Stephens: I think it is argumentative, Mr. Steffen, and I think my colleagues agree with me. Whether or not it would have been fair to allow all licensees to ship on consignment is a matter which you can argue to the Court from the testimony of the witness and from the bulletins and from the general circumstances that he has described. Objection sustained.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I want to ask you one more question on that. On your shipments to dealers do you take the risk of loss, Mr. Lenci? Loss in transit, I mean? A. No.

Q. That is borne by the dealer? A. Well, as a matter of fact, as to breakage in transit the dealer either files a claim with the railroad or delivers the proper papers to us and we file the claim.

Q. And the railroad always pays? A. Not always, but in most cases, because we try to put in only claims that are fair and can be substantiated.

Q. If the railroads do not pay, who takes the loss?
4836 A. That is a matter of adjustment in each case, adjustment with the customer, in case the railroad does not accept the loss.

Justice Jackson: Did you ever go into court about it where the railroad refused to accept responsibility?

The Witness: No.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Do you assume any responsibility with your customer as to loss in transit? A. I say that that is a matter of adjustment in each case.

Q. I mean on some occasions you do? A. On some occasions we have, yes.

Q. Do you regard yourself as obligated to make good any losses in transit? A. Well, usually the customer has the money.

Q. What is that? A. Usually the customer hasn't paid for the goods, which gives him a little advantage.

Justice Stephens: In other words you give a certain amount of discount time and ordinarily the loss would have occurred within that time so that the customer would still have the money, is that it?

The Witness: Yes; usually if breakage has occurred it can be seen as soon as the car is opened.

4837 By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I now come to certain testimony on pages 4804 to 4819, inclusive, beginning at the bottom of page 4804, all of which has to do with the NRA regulations.

Mr. Steffen: I would like at this time to move to strike all of that testimony beginning at the bottom of page 4808, and carrying over to the end of page 4819, upon the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and not proper cross examination.

Justice Stephens: Wasn't there a similar motion made heretofore?

Mr. Steffen: I doubt it.

Mr. Bromley: Yes sir.

Mr. Steffen: I would like to call your Honor's attention in this connection, if I may, briefly to the NRA statute, to Section 5 of the National Industrial Recovery Act, which reads this way:

"While this Title is in effect, or in the case of a license, while Section 4(a) is in effect, and for 60 days thereafter, any Code, agreement or license, approved, prescribed or issued and in effect under this Title, and any action complying with the provisions thereof, taken during such period, shall be exempt from the provisions of the Anti-Trust laws of the United States."

That is the provision in the NRA Code, or in the 4838 NRA statutes, which exempted everything done, or anything done by the Code Authority or by the members of an industry; from prosecution under the Anti-Trust laws.

The argument, which I should like to have appear as a matter of record, is briefly that in view of that exemption, nothing having to do with what was done under the NRA could or should have any bearing upon this case.

It would be very similar to appealing to Mr. Lenci to ask him what was done in the Standard Sanitary case, and inasmuch as they may have done certain things there, then what they did here would appear to be right.

We therefore ask that those pages of the testimony be stricken.

Justice Stephens: Do you wish to be heard, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: Well, I am not quite sure what his present ground is. If it is that we claim exemption in this lawsuit because of what the NRA provides, that wasn't the purpose at all. What I wanted to show was that under the NRA Code, providing as it did an exception to the application of the Sherman Act, it was, for a time, lawful to fix prices, and the manner in which prices were fixed there, and the extent to which terms and conditions and practices were regulated, were as broad, at least, as our price bulletins are.

As I remember that cross examination it was merely to show that there was nothing strange or unusual in 4839 our bulletin provisions because, under the NRA Code, when prices were regulated, they had the same kind of thing, just as they had later under the Coal Act, and just as they had in the General Electric case.

I was trying only to develop, by that cross examination, that point, that all of these bulletin provisions regulated the price and nothing else.

Justice Stephens: It seems to us that the motion to strike presents just the same question upon which we have previously ruled when objection was made to cross examination—and it is denied.

We may add that we do not make any comment as to what weight the reference to the NRA may have, as that is a different question. We were aware, of course, as you called to our attention at the time, that the NRA was ultimately held unconstitutional; and I have always been aware—and I suppose my brothers were too—that there was a provision in the statute for exemption from the Anti-Trust laws.

But I think the purpose of the testimony was as described by Mr. Bromley, and that that is not or was not improper cross-examination, and my colleagues agree, and therefore the motion to strike is denied.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Were you a member of the body which formulated the rules under the NRA Code, Mr. Lenci?

4840 A. Yes.

Q. What position did you have? A. I was a member of the Code Authority.

Justice Jackson: You were what is called an industry member?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Jackson: Of the Code Authority?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. How many members were there, Mr. Lenci? A. There were thirteen; I remember that because I was the thirteenth appointment.

Q. And who were they, can you tell us? A. I can probably tell you most of them.

Justice Stephens: Speak a little louder, please.

The Witness: There was the United States Gypsum Company; the National Gypsum Company; Certain-teed; ourselves; either Newark Plaster or Kelley, whichever was in effect at that time—

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. (Interposing): That would have been Kelley, probably. A. Yes, Kelley; the American Cyanamid; Texas—

Q. (Interposing): Universal? A. Yes; and I think the Pacific Coast Portland Cement was a member.

Justice Stephens: Portland Cement?

4841 The Witness: Yes, the Pacific Coast Portland Cement; the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation; French & Company—

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. (Interposing): Who was French & Company? A. They were small manufacturers in Philadelphia.

Q. They were plaster manufacturers? A. Yes. There must have been a couple of others that I don't remember at the moment.

Q. Was the Cardiff Plaster Company a member? A. I am not sure.

Q. Do you know Mr. Sensibar? A. Yes, but I don't know whether he was active then or not.

Q. Who was the secretary of the committee? A. For the moment I can't remember. He was a Chicago man, not an industry man but he was a man picked for the job outside of the industry.

Q. How long did your group deliberate over the Code provisions? A. Well, as I recall it, probably one or two days.

Justice Jackson: After hearings; did you have hearings on them?

The Witness: I was just trying to remember. The reason I hesitate is that it was quite a long while before we got to where we decided that we wanted a Code or 4842 didn't want a Code. We were about a year later than anyone else in getting started.

Justice Jackson: You needed 90 percent of the industry, didn't you?

The Witness: I believe so, yes.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. You had 90 per cent represented, I presume? A. Yes.

Q. You had practically all the gypsum board manufacturers, did you not? A. Yes, I believe so. I don't remember now just how long the deliberations took.

Justice Stephens: We will take the afternoon recess now.

(Whereupon, a five minute recess was taken after which the trial was resumed as follows:)

4843 Justice Stephens: Proceed, Mr. Steffen.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Did you attend many of the meetings, at which the Code for the Gypsum Industry was drafted? A. No, I don't think so.

Q. I think you told me during the recess that you attended some in the beginning, and some at the last, is that correct? A. Personally, I don't think I attended the first meeting.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Steffen, we think perhaps some time could be saved—we don't restrict you, if you wish to conduct an extended redirect examination on this topic the Court will of course permit you to do so—but we can say that perhaps in the interest of saving time, while we won't pass any final judgment on the weight of this NRA testimony, we do not attach any very great importance to it. We thought it was proper cross-examination and still do, to indicate, or as tending to indicate, that the development of these bulletin practices was perhaps not a strange and unusual occurrence, happening all at once, but something in the nature of an evolution.

It tends to explain them in a way, and we thought therefore, and still do, that it was proper cross-examination.

But we are not treating the proceedings under the NRA as being any res adjudicata for this case, or any exemption or anything of that sort, and I don't think it is offered for that.

4844 As I say, you can go ahead and examine if you want to, but you needn't do so on the theory that we attach any very great importance to that aspect of the case.

Mr. Steffen: I simply wanted to throw as much mud on it as I could, your Honor. (Laughter.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Let me ask you one or two questions, Mr. Lenci, further.

It is a fact, is it not, that most of the regulations that were promulgated as the Gypsum Code, had already appeared in the license bulletins? A. I haven't read the NRA Code for a long time. It is my recollection that that is substantially correct.

Q. For example, on page 4806, there is a question concerning sales on consignment. Mr. Bromley asked you:

"Q. And isn't it a fact, sir, that under the Code, if a member made a sale on consignment to a customer, it was considered to be a violation of his filed prices?"

Now there was provision, was there not, in the bulletins concerning sales on consignment? A. Yes.

Q. We showed you Government's Exhibit 38, page 112, which was promulgated in 1932, covering that. A. Yes.

Q. And the same would be true with regard to gifts by one gypsum manufacturer to a dealer in conjunction 4845 with a sale to the dealer? A. Yes.

Q. On page 4812 of the transcript there is a reference made to warehousing, and I think we have already called your attention to the fact that there was at that time a provision in the bulletins concerning warehousing—that is this same Government Exhibit 38, page 112—that covers that, is that not correct? A. Yes.

Q. At page 4820 of the transcript there was a question asked you similar to one asked you on page 4687, and I will read it to you:

"Now in connection with those questions, I would like to ask you now—did you understand that there was anything in your license contract, or in the bulletins, which provided that USG should raise or stabilize the prices of gypsum board?"

Your answers today, concerning the provision in the licenses as respects stabilizing, were to the effect that the licenses did provide for stabilizing prices, is that correct?

Mr. Bromley: He didn't say that at all.

Mr. Steffen: I am asking him if that is correct.

The Witness: The license, as I understand it, provided that the USG set the selling price.

By Mr. Steffen:

4846 Q. That is right. A. Yes.

Q. And thereby they would stabilize the price? A. Well, that is a conclusion you draw from that.

Q. Well, it would be a uniform price for the industry, would it not? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: That is at a given time.

Mr. Steffen: At a given time, yes, your Honor.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. The reason I asked you that question is that you answered Mr. Bromley's question with a "no". A. I think maybe I misunderstood Mr. Bromley, but I understood the question to be—was there an agreement to stabilize conditions in general by these licensees? How does the question read?

Q. I will read it to you:

"Now in connection with those questions, I would like to ask you now—did you understand that there was anything in your license contract, or in the bulletins, which provided that USG should raise or stabilize the prices of gypsum board?" A. I said "no" to that, didn't I?

Q. Yes, you said "no". A. There was nothing in there that they should raise the prices, they were to fix the price.

Q. It says "raise or stabilize" there. And if they 4847 were to fix the price, would not that have the effect of stabilizing price conditions? A. Naturally.

Q. So that your answer should be "yes" as respects that, shouldn't it? A. It is a double question.

Q. That is right. A. I would say "no" to one part of it and "yes" to the other.

Q. That is what I wanted you to say, if that wasn't the fact.

On page 4838, Mr. Lenci, this question was asked:

"Q. And what was your attitude during these years with respect to the Kelley-Structural relationship generally, if you can tell us?"

And you answered:

"A. We had a feeling right along that Kelley was giving Structural a very much larger distributors' discount than was permitted by the bulletins."

At that time, Mr. Lenci, was it your opinion that a patent holder could require control of the resale price by a distributor— A. (Interposing) At what time was that?

Q. I will have to get you the connection. It is Exhibit No. 440, and I will show you the exhibit.

4848 (The witness was handed a copy of Government's Exhibit No. 440 for examination.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. What is your answer now, Mr. Lenci? A. I had that understanding in my own mind until sometime in the early 30's. Whether it was before or after the date of this exhibit, I don't know, unless my memory can be refreshed in some way.

Q. You testified, I might say, at the criminal trial, at page 563 of the transcript, that it was sometime in 1933. Does that refresh your recollection? I will show you the transcript.

(The transcript of the criminal trial referred to was handed to the witness for examination.)

Mr. Bromley: What was that page?

Mr. Steffen: Pages 563 and 564, I think.

The Witness: Well, as I say, I believe it was early in the 1930's, it might, quite possibly, have been at that time.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. In 1933? A. Yes.

Q. You will note that Government's Exhibit 440 is dated June 9, 1932. A. Yes.

4849 Q. So that you would say, would you, that at that time you expected that the licensor could control the sales and terms and conditions of sale, by Structural to its dealers? A. I believe so.

Q. On page 4846, Mr. Lenci, you testified that for a period your company sold the Structural Gypsum Company, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And your attention was called to the various practices which the Structural Gypsum Company had been engaged in, in its sales, and then this question was asked:

"Q. And they continued their sales practices and policies during that time just as they had existed prior thereto?"

And you answered: "A. That is right."

Is that correct?

A. Well, what comes ahead of that? I am not sure just what I am answering, all of it.

Q. I will show you your testimony beginning at page 4845, and carrying over to page 4846.

(The transcript referred to was handed to the witness for examination.)

The Witness: Yes, that was my answer.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. What I want to get at is just what practices you had in mind. Did you have in mind, for example, that 4850 they continued the practice of having a dealer in their warehouse? A. I am just trying to find out what the practices are that you referred to.

Q. That is what I want to find out. A. It must have been somewhere prior to this.

Q. Can you answer as of the fact, did they continue to have a dealer in their warehouse? You remember that incident, don't you? A. No, they didn't have a dealer in their warehouse while they did business with us.

Q. And did they deliver directly to the job, to the contractors in Philadelphia, for example? A. No, I don't think we ever had any complaint as to that.

Q. And did they sell, to your knowledge, below bulletin prices to dealers? A. I think they did.

Q. In any amount, after you were selling to them? A. Yes.

Q. Did you make a complaint as to that? A. I didn't learn about it until long afterward.

Q. I see. You are not positive that they did undersell or cut the bulletin prices, are you? A. Yes, I think it is a matter of record in the criminal trial.

4851 Q. At the time that you were selling them, that they did so? A. I believe so, I think Mr. McCormick so testified.

Q. And had you known about it you would have made a complaint? A. I believe we would have, because they were in the same markets that we were in.

Q. But you would say that excepting for that one illustration, they have abided by the bulletin prices, while you were selling to them, as far as you know? A. His testimony was a general admission that they had done it in a number of cases.

Q. I don't wish to go into that. We are going to call Mr. McCormick as a witness. I would like to have your knowledge. A. As I say, I got that knowledge later, I didn't know it at the time, but I did find it out two or three years later.

Q. It is strictly hearsay, then. So far as you know—please answer this—they have followed the bulletin prices excepting for those statements that you say Mr. McCormick made at the criminal trial? A. So far as I know.

Q. And on page 4847 there is a question as to whether you ever refused to sell Structural at any time, and you answered "no", is that correct? A. That is correct.

4852 Q. And the next question was:

"Q. Did you ever threaten them that you would refuse to sell them?"

And you answered:

"A. No."

A. That is correct.

Q. If they had been selling board in the same markets that you were, at less than bulletin prices, would you have continued to sell them?

Mr. Bromley: I object to the question "at less than bulletin prices"—these people didn't get the bulletins. I think that assumes a fact not in evidence. They weren't licensees, they weren't entitled to the bulletins, and never got them.

Mr. Steffen: I will strike the word "bulletin".

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. If you had known that Structural was selling at prices lower than yours, would you have continued to sell them? A. I don't know, I couldn't tell you.

Q. You never had that come up? A. The one instance was the case of Stremble that we discussed quite a while ago, where Stremble was rebating.

Q. And Mr. Stremble was fired, was he not? A. Not at our request.

Q. No, but he was fired? A. Yes.

4853 Q. The same question was asked you on pages 4855 and 4856, with regard to the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company, as follows:

"Q. Did you at that or any other time ever threaten to stop selling gypsum board to the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company?"

And you answered:

"A. No."

Is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Did you have any knowledge that the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company sold at prices lower than your prices, to dealers in the same territory where you were selling? A. No, I had no knowledge at all, because we were not selling in that territory.

Q. Did you have any arrangement with the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company as to where they would sell? A. No.

Q. Did they sell in Bridgeport, for example? A. I don't know.

Q. Were you selling in Bridgeport? A. At that time I don't think we were. That is ten or twelve years back, and I don't remember.

Q. Did you discontinue sales to the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company? A. They discontinued buying 4854 from us, we didn't stop selling them.

Q. And was there any discussion that you recall as to whether they might sell in Fairfield County, or Bridgeport? A. No.

Q. As you recall. A. There was no limitation on our part.

Q. Now on pages 4856, 4857 and 4858, the matter of commission men was brought up, and again you referred to your salesman, Mr. Parker, and also to Mr. Blanchfield.

On page 4858 Mr. Bromley asked you the broad question:

"Q. You now say, do you, that it was your understanding that no licensee had to discharge these commission men, and that their only obligation was to see to it that they did not rebate on the USG fixed prices by the device of splitting a part of their commission with the customer of the licensee?"

To which you answered that that was your understanding. A. Yes.

Q. I call your attention to Government's Exhibit 37, page 555, and I ask you whether that was in your mind at the time that you gave that answer? That is on page 555, Mr. Lenci, in the last sentence; particularly.

(The witness was handed a copy of Government's Exhibit No. 37 for examination.)

The Witness: What I am trying to remember is—4855 this bulletin was in effect in 1936, and I am not sure whether this man Parker, whether this Parker episode, wasn't a few years later than that.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Well, this bulletin, in effect in 1936, continued to be in effect, did it not? A. Only until the next one came out.

Q. Unless the next one changed it? A. No, each bulletin entirely superseded the previous bulletin.

If you will look at page 543 of that exhibit you will see that at the top it reads, "This cancels Bulletin No. 5". Each one, as it came along, canceled in full the previous bulletin.

Q. You don't recall just when Mr. Parker was employed by you? A. No, I do not.

Q. This same bulletin, Government's Exhibit 37, page 555, appears also in Government's Exhibit 37 at page 535, which is dated February 24, 1937. So that during the period from February 22, 1936, until sometime after 1937, this bulletin was in effect? A. Yes, but what was the bulletin in effect prior to 1936?

Q. We can check that also. You don't have any 4856 recollection as to that? A. No, because they changed from time to time, and I am not sure of just the time that Parker was employed.

Q. Had Blanchfield been with you long? A. Blanchfield was with us for probably four years, four or five years.

Q. What years were they? A. Well, I am just making a guess at this, but I would say probably from 1935 to 1940, or somewhere about that time.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that this same bulletin, which I have called your attention to already, appeared in Government's Exhibit 37 at page 559, which was issued on September 16, 1935. So that the bulletin was in effect over a period of at least three or four years.

Justice Jackson: Is there a question?

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. May I ask this question. How was Mr. Blanchfield paid? A. Mr. Blanchfield was paid a substantial salary, and then a bonus for sales above a certain amount.

Q. At the end of the year? A. Yes. He had a fixed salary each month, and then if his commissions were running substantially above that, he could draw part of that as he went along.

Q. How was Mr. Parker paid when he was with you? A. Parker was with us only a couple of months, two or 4857 three months.

Q. How was he paid? A. Just a nominal salary, and commission.

Q. Practically a straight commission basis, then? A. Yes, practically.

Q. Does the industry draw a distinction between a man who is strictly on a commission basis, and one who is on a substantial salary with a bonus at stated intervals? A. I don't know what the practice is with the industry in general, but that was the way we felt about it.

Justice Stephens: What do you mean by that, that there was a difference?

The Witness: We would say that there was a great difference between a man who had a substantial salary and a bonus, and one who was purely a commission man with practically no salary.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. So as you would construe this provision, it would not apply to a man who was on a straight salary plus bonus? A. No.

Q. At page 4863, Mr. Lenci, this matter of jobbers comes up again. The first question is:

"Q. You said that there came a time when USG, in its price bulletins, eliminated the jobber's discount, and fixed the price to jobbers at the same figure as the dealer's 4858 price, didn't you? A. Yes.

"Q. And you have told us, I believe, that you never knew of any understanding or agreement with USG, or anyone else, at any time, that this would be done? A. They did it on their own initiative, and notified us through the bulletins."

Do you remember that? A. Yes, that is correct.

Q. Now, this morning you read some of your testimony before the grand jury at which the matter of the jobbers being eliminated was taken up and discussed, and would you say, in the light of that testimony which you read this morning, that there was a time at which there was a discussion, and a substantial agreement, that jobbers were to be eliminated from the industry?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that question as assuming facts not in evidence. That is not a correct summary of his grand jury testimony at all.

Mr. Steffen: I didn't intend to summarize it, but I thought it would refresh Mr. Lenci's recollection.

Justice Stephens: Read the question.

(Thereupon, the pending question was read by the reporter.)

Justice Stephens: I don't think the question as-4859 sumes to state what the grand jury testimony was; it simply refers to it, Mr. Bromley. So that objection is overruled.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Can you answer that, Mr. Lenci? A. As I tried to explain, when these matters like the matter of jobbers came up, we would express our views and our understanding, whatever it was at the time, and the USG took those into consideration and drew their own conclusions, and made up their own mind and issued the bulletins.

Q. That is true, but the bulletin had been issued in 1930, and then the jobbers had continued with some licensees, had they not? A. Yes, and after the 1930 bulletin these discussions as to jobbers came up, with the licensees complaining about what the companies were doing with jobbers, that is, continuing to sell them at a discount.

Q. And was there an occasion at which you licensees met, and at which Mr. Henning was present, at which he said, "We can close them out"? A. I don't remember that exact wording.

Q. Was there substantially that statement made by Mr. Henning? A. I don't remember that, I know it is in the grand jury minutes that I read this morning, but I honestly don't remember it at the present time.

4860 Q. That was your testimony before the grand jury. A. I know it was, yes.

Q. Now on page 4873, the question was asked you concerning whether distributors were to be regarded as jobbers, this question being put by Mr. Bromley:

"Q. Well, so far as the bulletins were concerned, Mr. Lenci, the only term ever used in them was 'jobbers', isn't that right?"

And you said: "A. Yes."

And then the next question was:

"Q. Neither the term 'broker', nor the term 'distributor', according to your best recollection, was ever used in a USG price bulletin, was it? A. I am very sure that the term 'broker' was never used, and I don't think the term 'distributor' was used, except in connection with 'manufacturing distributors'."

I want to show you now Government's Exhibit No. 430.

(Government's Exhibit No. 430 was handed to the witness for examination.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. You will notice the middle paragraph, Mr. Lenci, please? A. Yes, I see it.

Q. That is a reference to distributors, is it not? A. Yes.

4861 Q. As well as jobbers? A. Yes, jobbers and distributors.

Q. Putting them in substantially the same category? A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Bromley's assumption in his question to you on page 4873, that the bulletins do not mention "distributors", would be incorrect? A. Yes.

Justice Jackson: Is this a bulletin, this exhibit?

Mr. Steffen: Yes.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. There was some testimony, Mr. Lenci, on page 4894, which is not quite clear to me, having to do with Maftex. Do you remember having testified concerning that? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Bromley asked you this question:

"Q. Now so far as you were concerned, it was the fact, wasn't it, that National could sell Maftex at any price it wanted to?"

And you said:

"A. Sure.

"Q. The thing that you objected to was their practice of selling it below their current market price in order, in that fashion, to effect an indirect rebate on the price of the gypsum board? A. That was my complaint."

4862 Now I cannot understand that, Mr. Lenci, because it seems to me to say, on the one hand, that you can sell Maftex at any price you want to, and on the other hand to say that you can't sell it at any price you want to, if you are selling it in conjunction with board because that would effect an indirect cut in price. How do you explain that? A. Well, the National Gypsum Company at that time was selling Maftex through that particular territory at about a certain price, I don't remember what the price was. But they suddenly made a very much lower price to this particular dealer in order to influence the sale of gypsum board.

Q. And you made a complaint about it? A. Yes.

Q. In other words, you were complaining that they should not be privileged to sell Maftex at a lower price if they were going to thereby effect a reduction in the price of gypsum board, is that correct? A. That was my complaint.

Q. And the two statements simply won't stand up then, I mean they are inconsistent with each other. Your first answer was that they were privileged to sell Maftex at any price they wanted, and your second answer was that they were not privileged to sell it at any price they wanted to if—

A. (Interposing) Wait a minute. There is nothing
4863 that I know of that prevents them from selling Maftex at any price they want to; but, if they take that price and reduce it to a price much lower than they usually sell it at, in order to influence the sale of gypsum board, that is a separate question, and I think I answered it properly.

Q. And you make the complaint that if they do that it will be regarded as a cutting of the price of gypsum board? A. Yes.

Q. Now on page 4894 we come to the Structural sales again, and the fact that in 1932 Structural was reported to have made an arrangement whereby they had a dealer locate himself at Structural's plant. The testimony was as follows:

"Q. Well, let's see, Kelley had the permission of the licensors to sell a distributor at a discount only if the distributor were acting as a wholesaler and not a retailer, isn't that right?"

Q. Your answer was:

"A. That is true, yes."

Now, are you real sure that that is correct, Mr. Lenci? A. Well, they had the permission to sell the Structural Company as a manufacturing distributor, not as a retail dealer.

Q. That is right. A. At a discount.

Q. And you mean by that to say that USG, the licensor, had granted to Kelley authority to sell to Structural only if Structural sold at wholesale? A. As a manufactur-4864 ing distributor, yes.

Q. That is, sold to dealers? A. Yes.

Q. If Structural sold to retailers, then your understanding is that that was contrary to the arrangement between the licensor and Kelley? A. Yes.

Q. That they were limited to one class of customer? A. Yes.

Q. Is that your understanding also with regard to the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company, that they should only sell to dealers? A. I would say it would be the same thing.

Q. And the same would be true of Oakfield? A. Yes.

Q. That they might not sell to but one class, that is, to dealers? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know as a fact whether Connecticut Adamant has sold at retail? A. I don't know enough about their business to answer that.

Q. Now on page 4902, Mr. Lenci, another Structural situation was brought up. The question at the bottom of the page is:

"Q. That is something you said you brought up at 4865 the licensee meeting of December 13, 1932? A. That is right.

"Q. Now, when you said 'Kelley to straighten out at once', didn't you mean merely that Kelley was to find out whether, as a matter of fact, Structural had changed the character of its business to the extent indicated? A. Yes.

"Q. You didn't mean, did you, that Kelley was to straighten it out by coercing or compelling Structural to go out of the dealer business? A. We couldn't expect him to do that."

You testified a few moments ago—and this occurred by the way in 1932—that up until sometime in 1933 you had thought it was within the province of the licensor to see that his products were sold not only by licensees, but by distributors, at bulletin prices, and according to bulletin conditions. Would you care to change your testimony upon that point? A. Well, isn't there something in my testimony—something in what you just showed me a few moments ago, in one of those records—that shows I was enlightened sometime in 1932?

Q. 1933 was your testimony in the criminal trial. A. I know I made the statement that it was 1933 at that time, but it seems to me that someone cleared that up—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) Didn't you say here a few minutes ago that it was in the early 30's, possibly in 1933?

4866 The Witness: Yes, but I think there is something else that is more definite in the record that was shown me a little while ago, but I was not asked about it, and so did not mention it. It showed that it was in 1932 that I found that out. I think it was in response to a question by Mr. Bromley.

Justice Stephens: You mean in the record in this case?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Can you say, Mr. Lenci, that in point of fact you did expect something to be done about the Structural situation? A. We expected that Kelley would check up and not continue what we thought he was doing, and that is, giving a commission to Structural and allowing them to do all these different things they were doing at that particular time.

Q. Your statement in Exhibit 479 was, "Kelley to straighten out at once". Did you not understand by that, that Kelley was to make sure that Structural was selling at proper prices? A. I think this had to do with the establishment of a dealer there.

Q. That is correct. A. Yes. We expected Kelley to see that the Structural Company did not become a dealer, a retail dealer.

Justice Stephens: We will take the afternoon recess at this time.

4867 (Thereupon, at 4:00 o'clock p. m., an adjournment was taken until 10:00 o'clock a. m., Tuesday, March 21, 1944.)

4868 IN THE

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Civil Action No. 8017

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY; NATIONAL GYPSUM COMPANY; CERTAIN-TEED PRODUCTS CORPORATION; THE CELOTEX CORPORATION; EBSARY GYPSUM COMPANY, INC.; NEWARK PLASTER COMPANY; SAMUEL M. GLOYD, doing business under the name of TEXAS CEMENT PLASTER COMPANY; SEWELL L. AVERY; OLIVER M. KNODE; MELVIN H. BAKER; BROR H. DAHLBERG; HENRY J. HARTLEY; FREDERICK G. EBSARY; and FREDERICK TOMKINS,

Defendants.

Seventh Floor,
Internal Revenue Building,
Washington, D. C.,
Tuesday, March 21, 1944.

The above-entitled cause came on for further hearing at 10:00 o'clock a. m., pursuant to adjournment, before Honorable Harold M. Stephens, Honorable Finis J. Garrett, and Honorable Joseph R. Jackson, sitting as the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

APPEARANCES:

(Same as heretofore noted.)

4871 Justice Stephens: We seem to have had a surplusage of "thats" in this case.

Page 5135, after the word "any" at the end of line 14, add the word "final".

I have one or two questions I would like to ask, that perhaps can be cleared up by further examination. These occurred to me while I was reading the transcript.

On page 5056, the question commencing in line 5:

"Q. I call your attention particularly, Mr. Lenci, to Exhibit 405, and the quotation of $17.50 per thousand, f. o. b. mill. That price, Mr. Lenci, was for the covered-edge board if and when you got into production, was it not? A. Yes.

"Q. I think you testified concerning that on pages 4671 to 4679 of the transcript.

"That price of $17.50, Mr. Lenci, was the same price as the price for No. 2 grade wallboard, was it not?"

Did the witness mean, by "No. 2 grade wallboard", seconds? If not, I would like to have that cleared up when he takes the witness stand. I didn't quite understand what he meant by that.

Then there were a number of questions I had in the afternoon session. Pages 5101 and 5102—not to take too much time or to put too much into the record, I call attention of counsel to the answer commencing at line 3 and ending at line 9, on page 5101; and on page 5102, to the answer commencing at line 8 and ending at line 10; on page 5105, to the answer, or that portion of the answer commencing at line 4 and ending at line 7.

I am still somewhat puzzled as to the testimony on that subject. I wanted to ask the witness whether or not what he meant finally was that the result of the bulletins was to make the price uniform but not the profit. He talks about a cut below the base price shown in the bulletins, at page 5101. His testimony isn't entirely clear to me yet.

Then in Exhibit 37, page 555, the provision with respect to commissions,—I wanted to ask: How does the mere selling through a commission salesman accomplish a rebate or an allowance? There were two provisions in these bulletins with respect to commissions. One had to do, in terms, with rebates; the one I am now referring to made merely a reference to selling through commission salesmen at all.

I want it explained how the mere selling through a commission salesman would accomplish a rebate or an allowance, unless he made some actual payment out of his commission over to the customer.

Then I would like to have my recollection refreshed in respect of page 5153, as to what Maftex is. I have forgotten.

Perhaps those matters can be brought out by the witness on further examination on redirect, or on cross-examination.

4873 Mr. Knuff: Your Honor, in connection with the correction made at line 21, page 5129, I have checked that with the National Industrial Recovery Act, and it should read "* * * and in effect under this Title," rather than "* * * and effective under this Title,".

Justice Stephens: It may be so corrected.

Mr. Bromley: Could I say at this time, so I am clear as to what is in Your Honor's mind, that there never was a time when both provisions were in a price bulletin. That is to say, in the early days there was this language which said that the licensor will regard the employment of a commission salesman as a violation of the license; and that was changed to make it say specifically that it was a rebate of commissions paid to the salesman.

Justice Jackson: Was it changed back again?

Mr. Bromley: No, the wording was changed.

Justice Jackson: I thought the witness' attention was called to a bulletin of 1937 which still contained that.

Mr. Bromley: That change was not made until 1939, that is right, sir.

Justice Jackson: I thought that condition existed from 1935 to 1937.

Mr. Steffen: That is our understanding.

Justice Jackson: That is what I got from the evidence yesterday, but of course those things should speak 4874 for themselves, you have them here.

Mr. Bromley: I have looked at the bulletins, and I am confident that the provision which had the language about employing commission salesmen continued right up to 1939, and then it was changed to prohibit the splitting of a salesman's commission, it was clarified.

Mr. Steffen: I don't wish to be bound exactly by Mr. Bromley's statement. I think the record will show. But certainly up until 1939, the provision that we speak of obtained.

Justice Jackson: Is that correct, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: That is right.

Justice Jackson: And subsequent to 1939, it was just the splitting of commission?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, Your Honor.

Justice Jackson: That is right, is it, Mr. Steffen?

Mr. Steffen: We don't concede that, Your Honor.

Justice Jackson: But you do agree that up until 1939, there was a prohibition against employing salesmen on a commission basis?

Mr. Steffen: Yes, Your Honor, we insist upon that.

Mr. Bromley: Of course, my contention is that the earlier wording, which lasted up until 1939, was merely a prohibition against splitting commissions, whatever it said, and it was so understood in the industry that that was the 4875 intent and purpose of it. But there was a change in the expression of it in 1939.

Mr. Steffen: It might say on that that our contention is the reverse, and the effect was actually to eliminate commission salesmen.

Justice Stephens: I should think that ought to be cleared up, as to what the understanding in the industry was, if it isn't already cleared up in the record.

Take the witness stand, Mr. Lenci.

Thereupon, GEORGE N. LENCI the witness on the stand at the time of adjournment, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Redirect Examination (resumed)

Mr. Steffen: I will try, Your Honor, to clear up the matters that you spoke of just now.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. On page 5153, Mr. Lenci, there was a reference to Maftex. A. Yes.

Q. National, I believe, was selling Maftex in conjunction with board, and there was a complaint made that they were reducing the price on Maftex; do you remember that? A. That is right.

Q. What was Maftex? A. Maftex is a wallboard
4876 made, as I understand, of a shredded wood fiber product, similar to Celotex and boards of that type. It is what is known in the trade as a fiber board or an insulation board.

Justice Stephens: Thank you, that refreshes my recollection. I remember you testified to that before.

The Witness: It is not a gypsum product.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Maftex would not be the type of thing that could be shipped in a mixed car, is that correct? A. No, they would not be made at the same plants.

Q. It wouldn't be regarded as a gypsum product? A. Not at all.

Q. Now I would like to show you, Mr. Lenci, Exhibit 405.

(Exhibit No. 405 was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. You testified on page 5056 of the record concerning the No. 2 grade wallboard as being sold at a price of $17.50 per thousand feet. A. Yes.

Q. And I think the Presiding Justice would like to know what the difference is between No. 2 grade wallboard and seconds, or what the difference was at that time? A.

Well, the No. 2 grade was a board which was not 4877 strictly up to the standard of a first-grade board as to exact measurements, exact quality of the paper, and certain details of that kind. It didn't affect the structural qualities of the board at all, but it was not quite first-class, so it was known as a No. 2 board.

Justice Stephens: It differed from seconds, then, as I remember your previous testimony, in that the seconds did come up to all specifications so far as measurements were concerned, but might have some slight imperfections which couldn't pass inspection; is that right?

The Witness: No, that is the No. 2 board. You are describing the No. 2 board. It was deliberately made as a slightly cheaper board.

The seconds were boards which were not up to quality, not through intention but through defects which were not intentional. And they were put out as seconds.

Justice Stephens: That is what I had in mind myself—perhaps I didn't express myself clearly—that the No. 2 grade was intentionally made.

The Witness: That is correct.

Justice Stephens: At a little less than the requirements for No. 1.

The Witness: That is right.

Justice Stephens: But seconds were accidentally imperfect.

4878 The Witness: That is correct.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. The No. 2 grade sold in competition most clearly with the open-edge board at that time? A. Before the granting of the 1929 license, you mean?

Q. That is right. A. Yes.

Q. Seconds, I think you testified, are no longer on the market? A. That is correct.

Q. They are cut up into plasterboards or into odd sizes? A. If there are any, they are cut up into smaller sizes.

Q. And sold in that fashion? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: How was it that the open-edge and the No. 2 of the closed-edge sold at approximately the same price or competed with each other, since one was a closed-edge and the other an open-edge board?

The Witness: The No. 2 board was made by the companies who were making closed-edge board, and that was put out to sell at a lower price than their standard board in order to meet the competition of the companies who were deliberately making only open-edge board.

4879 Justice Stephens: I see.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Now there were some questions that the Presiding Justice had concerning your testimony on pages 5101, 5102 and 5105. Do you recall, Mr. Lenci, that we were discussing the situation where you were given a $13 base price? A. Yes.

Q. And the testimony had to do with the other matters, such as billing weights and sizes of shipments and trucking areas, and so on, which I think you testified were prescribed in order to make your company and the other licensees competitive with each other; is that right? A. Yes.

Q. And on page 5105, you gave an illustration. I will read it to you to get your memory refreshed. It begins at line 21 on page 5104:

"The Witness: Mr. Steffen started to say, 'Let's take an illustration'."—do you remember that? A. Yes.

Q. (Continuing). "Our plant is in Wheatland in Upper New York State. When we ship to Washington, our freight is roughly $5 per thousand. The United States Gypsum Company has a plant in Philadelphia. Their rate to Washington, we will say, is $3 per thousand. They take their mill price and add $3 per thousand, which 4880 would make a price down here of $16. Now, we have got to ship and sell to the customer at that price, we can't get $2 a thousand more because our plant is too far away. So in order to be competitive, we have to cut our price $2 to meet that circumstance, and the only place that can come from is out of what is left at the mill."

Do you remember that? A. Yes.

Q. Now the Presiding Justice's question is whether the effect of that is to make a uniform price to the dealer, but thereby to cut your profit in selling in Washington. Is that correct? A. That is correct.

Justice Stephens: In other words, what you mean by being made competitive, and what you mean by the necessity of being made competitive, is that you can't sell in the market unless you can sell, at a particular destination, at the same price that other manufacturers sell at?

The Witness: That is correct.

Justice Stephens: And in order that the price may be the same, these various adjustments and bulletin arrangements were made; but the particular manufacturer, if he were located at a disadvantageous distance—now that we are talking in terms of freight rates—has to meet that by taking a cut within his own manufacturing costs?

The Witness: That is correct.

4881 Justice Stephens: I see. I wasn't quite sure about that.

The Witness: What I was trying to explain was that these bulletins permitted us to go below the base price in order to allow us to meet competition at the destination.

Justice Stephens: What puzzled me was the use of the phrase "cut below the base price". I had it in my mind that the base price was a fixed price. What you meant was that although that was the price on which you commenced figuring, in order to get the destination price, nevertheless you, in order to reach that destination price in competition with other manufacturers, had, in some situations, to take actually less profit than you otherwise would; that is, you had to take it out of your manufacturing costs?

The Witness: That is correct. We called it a freight absorption, and the amount we absorbed out of the freight would come out of your net price at the mill.

Justice Stephens: Thank you.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. And the freight absorption is going to be different for each manufacturer shipping into a given territory? A. That is correct.

Q. The basing point system, by providing that you will use a fixed mill price at a given mill, plus freight from that mill to the destination, operates to make a uni-
4882 form price at destination, does it not, for all licensees? A. It has that effect, yes.

Q. And that may not have much relation to the profit of a particular mill selling in that territory, is that correct? A. It has a great effect on the profit.

Q. I think you are right on that. What I mean to say is that the profit will vary with different manufacturers shipping into that territory? A. It may vary or it may disappear entirely.

Justice Stephens: That is, the profit may vary, assuming that their manufacturing costs are relatively the same?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: I suppose, actually, manufacturing costs do vary to some extent from plant to plant, depending upon efficiency of methods?

The Witness: Naturally.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. The licensee who happens to be near the market,—as in this case USG, at Philadelphia, being closer to Washington than your company,—would have an advantage, so far as profit is concerned? A. The USG company would have the advantage, that is correct.

Q. And, conversely, if they were selling closer to 4883 your mill, you would have an advantage so far as profit is concerned? A. Yes.

Q. But so far as the customer is concerned, he pays a uniform price? A. Yes. It gives him the option of buying from a number of people instead of just the one that is in the market.

Q. But always at the same price? A. Yes.

Mr. Steffen: Your Honor asked concerning Exhibit 37 at page 555.

I would like to have Mr. Lenci look at that exhibit.

(Exhibit No. 37 handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Will you look, Mr. Lenci, at the last paragraph, the last full paragraph on page 555? A. Yes, sir.

Q. This happens to be the bulletin issued, I think, on February 22, 1936. We have other bulletins which read the same way, Mr. Lenci.

Now I would like to ask you one question, if you have completed reading that, Mr. Lenci. A. Yes.

Q. The question is raised as to selling through 4884 commission men, and I think you testified that there was a danger, in selling through commission men, that a commission man might share or split his commissions with the purchaser? A. That is correct.

Q. If that were done wrongfully, that would constitute a rebate or a cut in price? A. Yes.

Q. Now, the Presiding Justice asked the perfectly obvious and reasonable question: If the commission man is honest, then there would be no rebate to the customer, would there? A. No, that is correct.

Justice Stephens: Perhaps the record ought to show—I am sure you didn't intend to misquote me—that I didn't ask the question whether or not there would be a rebate if the commission man was honest. What I asked was how the mere selling through a commission man, as such, would accomplish a rebate.

Mr. Steffen: Well, I perhaps jumped to a conclusion there, Your Honor.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Could you answer the Presiding Justice's question, Mr. Lenci? That is, how does the mere selling through a commission salesman, or how could the mere selling through a commission salesman, accomplish a re-
4885 bate? A. I don't think that it could. I never felt that this paragraph was a correct thing to be in the bulletin.

Q. Well, that is another matter. A. That, we had nothing to do with.

Mr. Steffen: Does the Court have any further questions?

Justice Stephens: No, thank you.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Mr. Lenci, at page 4911 of the transcript, this matter of the sale of board in conjunction with plaster was brought up again by Mr. Bromley, and I will read you, in order to refresh your recollection, the two or three questions asked:

"Q. Now, in connection with these Exhibits 489 to 501," —and may he be shown those exhibits, please?

(Exhibits 489 to 501 handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. (Continuing) —"Mr. Lenci, you understood that USG was not attempting to fix or control your plaster prices, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

"Q. And you at all times felt perfectly free to charge for plaster any price that you saw fit, didn't you?"

And your answer was: "A. Yes."

Exhibits 489 to 501 have to do with complaints 4886 against your company? A. Yes.

Q. And the complaint is that you may have been selling plaster below the prevailing prices, to influence the sale of board?

Mr. Bromley: I don't think that that is a correct summary of the complaint at all. It is just the reverse, that you were cutting the board price by cutting the plaster price.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Will you state what the complaint was, Mr. Lenci? A. Well, Exhibit 489, the last paragraph of the Board Survey letter reads:

"Please advise in detail as to your sales of patented board to this firm, and specifically advise us of any donations or credits made in conjunction with your sales of said board."

Q. I see.

You construed that as an inquiry as to whether or not you were selling or giving away other articles in conjunction with the sale of board? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: What are those other exhibit numbers?

Mr. Steffen: They are 489 to 501, I believe, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Thank you.

4887 By Mr. Steffen:

Q. In general, Mr. Lenci, these complaints have to do with the prices at which you were selling plaster, although as Mr. Bromley points out they may also have had to do with the prices at which you were selling board?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as assuming facts not in evidence and calling for a conclusion. The documents are in writing, and I contend they show just the opposite.

Justice Stephens: Let the witness state what the nature of the complaints is, if they need interpretation. They speak for themselves, they are all before us in evidence, but if you want to get the witness' understanding of them for the purpose of redirect examination, you may ask for that.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Will you state what your understanding was, Mr. Lenci, of these other exhibits? You have spoken regarding Exhibit 489. A. Well, take Exhibit No. 500, for instance. The first paragraph of that explains itself very clearly. That is a letter from the Board Survey Company.

Q. That would refer to a reduction in the price of board by granting allowances on purchases of other commodities, including plaster? A. That is their inquiry, yes.

4888 Q. What I want to get at, Mr. Lenci, is: What was your practice in selling plaster? Did you have a price list? A. We had no published price list, no.

Q. When you say that, you speak as of what time? A. At any time.

Q. But you had instructions to your salesmen, though? A. We had instructions to our salesmen, and they were told to sell at certain prices, but we were always free, at any time, to meet whatever condition we found existing in whatever territory we were selling.

Q. There was such a thing as a prevailing price or a general price in your territory, during these ten years? A. To a certain extent. It was always flexible.

Q. Who were the principal sellers in your area? A. Well, naturally, the United States Gypsum Company and the National Gypsum Company. Those were the two largest companies operating in that area.

Q. Would you know about what prices they were selling at? A. Naturally. Our salesmen were in contact with our customers at all times, and they kept us very well informed.

Q. Did that influence you in your instructions to your salesmen as to what prices they should get? A. Surely. We wanted to get as much for our product as we could.

4889 Q. And you would be influenced by the USG price in determining what you could get, is that right? A. We would have to be, it would be the condition of the market. We couldn't get more, and we naturally wouldn't want to sell for any less.

Q. Now, I think you testified yesterday concerning sales to contractors. You stated that your company made no sales of board to contractors. Do you sell plaster to contractors? A. No.

Q. You sell strictly through dealers? A. Yes.

Q. And in selling through dealers, does your salesman occasionally help the dealer in talking to a contractor? A. Certainly.

Q. And the dealer's prices are in sharp competition, are they not, in sales to contractors? A. We have always made it a principle not to interfere with the dealer's prices or obtain a price from a dealer and take it to a contractor. We don't feel that that is the business of a manufacturer, it leads to trouble all the time. We like to bring the contractor and the dealer in contact, bring the contractor into contact with a friendly dealer, but as to what the final sales price is, we don't like to get into that at all.

4890 Q. Occasionally, are you approached by a dealer with the proposition that if you will help him out a little on your plaster price, he may be able to sell both board and plaster to contractors? A. No, they don't seem to connect the two.

Q. Well, many contractors buy both board and plaster, do they not? A. It all depends on where you are doing business. In most of the larger cities, they don't; and in the smaller towns, you are not so much interested in the contractor as you are in the regular yard business, as we call it. In other words, in the small town you are selling to the dealer all the time, and he, in turn, retails it to whatever contractor happens to need it. In the larger cities the jobs are more or less outstanding and, as I explained yesterday, they are very apt to be split between a plastering contract and a lathing contract.

Q. That split between your lathing contractor and your plastering contractor is after the main job has been let to the principal contractor? A. Yes, it is let to a general contractor; and then the general contractor lets to a plastering contractor, and the plastering contractor is very apt to sublet the lathing part to a lathing specialist.

Q. Isn't it the practice for the general contractor, 4891 before putting in his bid, to get figures from his subcontractors? A. It all depends on what sort of a contractor he is. If he is a first-class, established concern, and knows what they are doing, they do their own estimating. If he is more or less of a broker, he will get a collection of sub-bids from everybody he can get hold of.

Q. There are a number of chiselers, aren't there, in the contracting business? A. Yes.

Justice Jackson: That is in every business, I think, too. (Laughter).

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. And they put a considerable amount of pressure upon your dealers, isn't that correct? A. Yes, I suppose they do.

Q. And they would like to get as good a price on their plaster or their board as possible? A. Or anything, yes.

Q. And prior to 1928 or 1929, or during 1928 and 1929, you were perfectly free to make any concession on your plaster price that you saw fit, if it would influence the sale of board, were you not? A. We would have been, yes.

Q. And as you have testified, you have no pub- 4892 lished price list. You would tell your salesmen what to shoot at, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. And in dealing with a dealer, they may get such price for their plaster as they can? A. Yes.

Q. And in quoting their price, they might be influenced somewhat by the fact that they would also sell board to the dealer, might they not? A. They might have been affected that way, yes.

Q. Now in view of those complaints that you have looked at, Exhibits 489 to 501, and the bulletin which is Government's Exhibit 37, at page 531, which you read yesterday, in regard to rebates, isn't it true, Mr. Lenci, that you are no longer as free as you formerly were to change the prices on your plaster or to reduce the price on plaster, or other related commodities, when making sale of board and plaster?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as incompetent because calling for a conclusion. It seems to me all these questions overlook the fact entirely that before the license agreement, there wouldn't be any necessity to cut the price of plaster in order to influence the sale of board, because the price of board wasn't fixed before the license agreement; and, therefore, this kind of a question, as to whether he was freer before or after, not only misinterprets the 4893 facts but calls for a conclusion which the Court should make, as to whether, if there was any restraint, it was illegal or not.

Mr. Steffen: I will say to that, that I would like to develop by the witness that in selling prior to 1929, he could modify either his board price or his plaster price as he saw fit. It is true that the board price wasn't fixed. But for business reasons, he might have decided to keep his board price fairly stable and to shade his plaster price, or vice versa.

Justice Stephens: We think the question is not objectionable, and the objection is overruled.

Mr. Steffen: Will you please read the question, Mr. Reporter?

(The pending question was read by the reporter.)

The Witness: Well, I don't know how you can draw the line, just where that line would come, as to how far you can make a cut on your plaster price before it becomes an infringement—not an infringement, but a breach of the price bulletins on board.

Justice Stephens: Read the whole answer. I missed one of his words.

(The answer was read by the reporter.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. But you feel that there is a line somewhere, where it would become a rebate, and where, thereafter, you 4894 would not be privileged to make a cut in your plaster price? A. But I don't know where that would be.

Justice Stephens: Wouldn't it be where the reduction in the price of plaster was of an appreciable or substantial character as distinguished from a minor character?

The Witness: Naturally, yes.

Justice Stephens: In other words, you can't fix the line to a cent, but you could approximate it in that manner, I suppose.

The Witness: Yes, but you couldn't say in so many dollars, here in the court room, where that line would be.

Justice Jackson: You couldn't, either, have it as what is sometimes called a "loss leader", could you, where you would actually lose money on your plaster to sell board?

The Witness: No, you couldn't afford to do that, because it would affect too much of your plaster business, because whenever you make a cut on plaster it not only applies to that job but to all other business in that territory.

Justice Stephens: You would not only have to sell at that price to that buyer, but to all other buyers in the territory?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. And your other buyers find out very quickly
4895 if there is a cut, do they not? A. They do.

Q. I want to now take you to page 4913, Mr. Lenci, in connection with Exhibit 502.

That refers to your wire in connection with Mr. Lee Story? A. Yes.

Q. Your testimony at lines 8 to 13 of page 4913 indicates that you should have softened that wire somewhat, and made it read that Kelley must cease giving Lee Story a jobber's discount, rather than that he should be eliminated? A. That is correct.

Q. Do you object to the word "eliminated"? A. I do, yes. When you write a telegram like this, you are very apt to be brief and much more to the point than good usage demands.

Q. But the telegram is substantially correct, isn't it? A. The telegram is correct, and would be understood both by us and by the recipient.

Q. I would now like to refer to your testimony, Mr. Lenci, on page 4947, in regard to the sales by Structural. You were there asked this question:

"Q. Now, the nature of that complaint, based on that evidence of what Structural was doing, would be a 4896 charge against your company that your company cut the price to Structural, wouldn't it?"

Do you get the reference? A. Yes.

Q. And your answer was: "A. The inference would be that we were giving Structural a larger manufacturing distributor's discount than we should have.

"Q. And based upon your experience, you knew that Structural's activities might raise that inference as against your company? A. That is right."

That testimony gives me the impression—and I think it might give a reader the impression—that you were disturbed about what some other licensee might think concerning your sales to Structural; is that correct? A. Well, what led up to that inquiry? There was something ahead of that, wasn't there?

Q. That is right. If you would like to read your testimony beginning on page 4945, you can get the connection.

(Transcript handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. That had to do with a telephone conversation with Mr. Bartlett of the USG, did it not? A. That is right.

4897 Q. And following that telephone conversation, you called up Mr. McCormick of the Structural Company? A. Yes.

Q. And you had a conversation with Mr. McCormick? A. Yes.

Q. And thereafter, you talked to Mr. Bartlett concerning that matter? I think you testified as to that. A. I believe so, yes.

Q. Now what I am getting at is this, Mr. Lenci: Your testimony there on page 4947 would carry the impression that you were interested in what other licensees might think concerning your prices to Structural, whether you were cutting the price to Structural or not. Is that not correct? A. What I was interested in was more or less of a complaint made by the licensor that we were cutting the price to Structural.

Q. And that was the reason that you called up McCormick? A. Yes.

Q. It wasn't necessary for you to call up McCormick if you were merely interested in the price at which you were selling McCormick, was it? A. That is probably true, but naturally I was getting more information for myself.

Q. And you reported that back to Mr. Bartlett? A. Yes.

4898 Q. It is true, Mr. Lenci, that all you had to do in order to find out whether there was a price cut was to look at your own ledgers to determine at what price you were selling to Structural; isn't that right? A. That is quite true, but at the same time, we were selling in Philadelphia ourselves, and what I was interested in was to find out whether a company we were selling to was underselling us in one of our territories with our own material.

Q. And that would have a bearing on whether you continued to sell to Structural, would it? A. Yes.

Mr. Steffen: I have lost a reference, Your Honor. If you would like to take the 11 o'clock recess at this time, it might be convenient.

Justice Stephens: Very well.

(Whereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed as follows:)

4899 Justice Stephens: Proceed, gentlemen.

Mr. Johnston: If the Court please, may I suggest that we are having difficulties down at this end in hearing both counsel and the witness. I appreciate that we are entering the eleventh round of this match, and both counsel and the witness are, no doubt, considerably fatigued, but if they could raise their voices a little louder, so we could hear them, we would appreciate it.

Justice Stephens: I am sure they will be glad to comply with your request.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I would now like to take you, Mr. Lenci, to page 4951 of your testimony, having to do with metallized board, and your signing of the metallized board license.

Mr. Bromley asked you this question:

"Q. And did you have any understanding or arrangement or agreement with USG that you would observe those prices prior to the time that you got into production?"

And your answer was:

"A. No."

Do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. It is true, is it not, that you could not buy board from National until such time as you signed the 4900 license agreement, buy it at a discount, I mean? A. I believe it was.

Justice Stephens: It was what, it was possible or not possible?

The Witness: It was impossible to buy from National until we signed the license, impossible to buy at a discount.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I show you Government Exhibit 548 in that connection.

(Government's Exhibit No. 548 was handed to the witness for examination.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I believe it is the last sentence on the second page, to which I wish you to refer. A. Yes.

Q. And when you signed the agreement, the license agreement, for metallized board, did you understand from that, that you were to follow the prices for metallized board established by USG? A. Not until we made board ourselves.

Q. And in that interim did you receive prices, do you remember now, from USG? A. I don't think we did, I am quite sure we didn't.

Q. You testified earlier that you couldn't remember. A. I don't think we did. I have gone over that in my mind, and I don't think we received any bulletins until we signed the license agreement. The reason I say that is 4901 because I remember when we did get them we got quite a group, as I remember it.

Q. During this time when you were buying from National at a discount, you would receive an invoice from National concerning the purchase, would you not? A. Yes.

Q. And that invoice would be at the dealer price, would it not, minus your discount? A. Yes.

Q. And did you also inquire of National, or did you receive from National, information concerning the prices at which they were selling board, metallized board? A. I don't think we got that from National, but from our own men, because it was a matter of common knowledge in the trade what the board was selling for.

Q. It was a stable price? A. Yes.

Q. And you could get that from your salesmen inquiring from dealers, or trade information? A. Yes.

Q. And you sold, during that period, at the same prices as National did? A. I don't recall whether we did or not, but I presume we did.

Q. That would be your best recollection, that you
4902 did? A. Yes.

Q. Now on page 4952, Mr. Lenci, there is a reference to trucking companies, and you were asked this question:

"Q. Now there was nothing in the bulletins, as you understood them, was there, Mr. Lenci, which had any relationship to any requirement that licensees must hire trucks from trucking companies?"

And your answer was:

"A. No."

The next question was:

"Q. And the only provision about hiring trucks, as you understood those bulletins, was the provision contained in the sixth line of the last paragraph on page 531, under the heading 'Rebates and Allowances', which referred to an indirect price cut or rebate by means of the device of hiring customers' trucks?"

And to that you said:

"A. That is right."

A. Yes.

Q. Your attention was not called at that time to Government's Exhibit 38, page 112, and I would like to show that to you now.

(Government's Exhibit No. 38 was handed to the witness for examination.)

By Mr. Steffen:

4903 Q. This was a bulletin issued in 1932. The portion to which I wish to call your attention is the first paragraph on page 112, Exhibit 38. A. Yes.

Mr. Bromley: What is the date, please?

Mr. Steffen: June 30, 1932.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. That paragraph would provide, you so understand, I take it, that hiring or using trucking services of a customer would be regarded by the licensor as a rebate? A. My interpretation of that is a different matter.

Q. What is your interpretation? A. Just to clear it up so you will understand what my understanding of it was, I will give this illustration.

Suppose we were selling in a market where there was no provision for trucking, in other words, trucking was only provided for in larger cities. When we sold to the country at large it was not the practice to make truckload deliveries. We sold f.o.b. cars at destination in that event.

This paragraph has to do with a manufacturer going to a dealer and saying, "If you will buy from me in your city, we will give you an allowance so that you can unload your trucks"—which would be a cash rebate. For instance—

Q. (Interposing) If it were a proper allowance, would it be a rebate?

4904 Mr. Bromley: May he finish his answer?

Mr. Steffen: Certainly.

The Witness: For instance, we have been using Washington as an example, a great many times. Washington is not a truckload market. If we sold a carload to a customer in Washington, and to influence him we said, "You pay us our scheduled price in Washington, but we will give you $1.50 a ton so that you can unload the stuff without expense to you"; that would be a cash rebate. And it was perhaps situations like that which this paragraph, I believe, was intended to cover.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Lenci, does the industry, in making deliveries in trucking areas, employ the dealer's truck? A. No.

Q. Do they ever do that? A. I don't know whether they ever did or not, but it is a common practice for each company to have a regular arrangement with some established trucking contractor who has a number of trucks and can always be called upon to give proper service.

Q. Well, as I visualize it there are three ways by which you can deliver by truck: by your own trucks, or you can hire an independent truck, or you can use the 4905 customer's truck? A. Yes.

Q. And the practice is for the licensee to use his own trucks or to engage an independent trucker—but do you ever engage the dealer's trucks to haul to the dealer's place of business in a proper trucking area? A. We never have, and I don't think it has been the general practice on the part of anybody to do that.

Q. Why not? A. Well, the dealer's trucks are usually handling his business, and not our business.

Q. Was there any discussion that you recall concerning the possibility that if you used the dealers' trucks, that the licensees might allow the dealer too large an amount, and that therefore it might constitute an indirect rebate? A. That I believe is covered in one of the bulletins.

Q. And what is your understanding about it? A. That is in one of those paragraphs on Allowances.

Q. That is, you understand that to mean that hiring a customer's truck will constitute an indirect rebate or allowance, is that your understanding? A. I wouldn't want to answer that because we never did it. I don't want to suppose what the other person had in mind.

Q. You have been in the industry for many years, and I simply wanted to get your understanding as to why the industry does not ever hire the dealers' trucks in 4906 making shipments—and you just stated, as I understand it, that you thought it was covered in some bulletin.

Mr. Bromley: I object to that question as assuming facts not in evidence. He hasn't said that the industry never hired a dealer's truck.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Let me ask you this. Does the industry to your knowledge hire dealers' trucks in making deliveries to dealers? A. My answer would be not as a general thing or not in, probably, 99 per cent of the cases, but I wouldn't want to say that it was never done.

Q. Has your company ever done that? A. No, we never have.

Q. Do you know of any other company that has ever done that? A. I do not know.

Q. My question is do you know of any licensor or licensee which has delivered to dealers by hiring dealers' trucks?

Mr. Bromley: He has answered that and said he didn't know. I object to that as repetitious.

The Witness: I can't answer that.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. You don't know of any instance? A. No.

4907. Q. You said a minute ago that you thought it was covered by some provision in the bulletins, and would this Exhibit 38, page 112, apply to that situation and make it constitute a rebate, or what the licensor calls a rebate, if the licensee, under any circumstances, engaged a dealer's truck to haul to the dealer?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as calling for a conclusion. He said he never heard of the practice, and that he never did it himself. How can he interpret this clause?

Mr. Steffen: I don't want to get his construction of the clause, your Honor, so much as I want to get his understanding, and he said that he did understand, that he thought it was covered by some provision in the bulletins, and I was trying to localize it to this particular one, if possible.

Justice Jackson: I thought the witness had described what he thought this particular thing was, and that it meant trucking from the freight yard to the dealer's yard—isn't that right?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Jackson: That is your understanding of this particular exhibit?

The Witness: Yes, of this paragraph.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Let me show you Government's Exhibit 37, and call your attention to page 531.

4908 (Government's Exhibit No. 37 was handed to the witness for examination.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. There is a reference in the middle of that paragraph, Mr. Lenci, to the phrase "by hiring customers' trucks". A. Yes.

Q. Is that the provision that you had in mind? A. Yes.

Q. And your understanding is what concerning that? A. My understanding is that the licensor felt that if the licensees hired a truck from a customer, in a trucking area, that that might be construed as being a cash rebate.

Q. I think that is correct.

You stated just a minute ago, Mr. Lenci, that Washington is not a truckload area, or a truckload market. By that you meant what—just to clear the record? A. By reference to these bulletins you will see that there are certain trucking areas set up, and those are principally around the points where mills are located. Now there is no mill located in Washington. Consequently, Washington is not a trucking area.

Q. And that means that you sell in Washington only in carload lots? A. In carload lots, f.o.b. cars Washington.

Q. It would be possible to sell in less than carload
4909 lots, I suppose, charging the less-than-carload-lot freight rate? A. Theoretically it would be possible, but not from a business point of view.

Q. Because those rates are so high that nobody would buy? A. Nobody would buy at that price, that is right.

Q. Now, Mr. Lenci, we will take you to page 4956 of your testimony, again having to do with sales of plaster and unpatented products. Mr. Bromley asked you concerning that, asking this question:

"Q. And so far as you know were there ever any Board Survey complaints or investigations which had to do with the prices of plaster or other unpatented gypsum products?"

And your answer to that was:

"A. No."

Do you remember that reference, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. You have read, this morning, Government's Exhibits 489 to 501? A. Yes.

Q. And would you say that they had to do with sales of plaster, in conjunction with sales of board? A. They had to do with the sale of board, and the inquiry was as to whether we had influenced those sales by unduly reducing the price of other commodities.

4910 Q. Including plaster? A. Yes.

Q. And therefore your answer was too broad here, is that not true? A. No, I don't think so. Their inquiry was as to whether we had made rebates on board sales.

Q. Well, your testimony just now— A. (Interposing) And they asked us by what method we did it.

Q. That is right. And they pointed to plaster as being one of the methods? A. Yes.

Q. So that really and honestly you would say that your answer here was a little broad, wouldn't you, because the question says:

"Q. And so far as you know were there ever any Board Survey complaints or investigations which had to do with the prices of plaster or other unpatented gypsum products?"

It had to do with the price of board, but did it not also have to do with the price of plaster?

Mr. Bromley: I object to this as argumentative. Haven't we got all the facts?

Justice Stephens: I think it is argumentative. I think the Court will have to determine whether the answer is too broad, unless the witness is willing to admit it, 4911 and he does not admit it.

Mr. Steffen: Not in terms. He has referred to Exhibits 489 to 501, as having to do with the price of board in conjunction with the price of plaster.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Do you wish to qualify your answer in any respect? A. No, I don't, I feel it is an inquiry as to the price of board and as to whether or not we made any rebates.

Q. On the price of plaster? A. No, on the price of board.

Q. By selling plaster at a lower price? A. By any means.

Q. Including the sale of plaster? A. Yes.

Mr. Steffen: I think it can be construed rather obviously.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Now further on, at page 4956, line 18, you were asked this question:

"Q. Were there ever any conditions, written or oral, attached to the granting of consents issued to your company by USG for permission to sell these manufacturing distributors?"

And your answer was:

"A. No."

In connection with the Structural matter, where Structural was putting a dealer, or was alleged to have 4912 put a dealer, in the Structural warehouse, you made the point I believe in your testimony that the consent given to sell Structural was conditioned upon Structural selling only to the dealer trade—isn't that correct?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as assuming facts not in evidence.

Mr. Steffen: I am asking him whether or not he did so testify.

Mr. Bromley: He did not so testify.

Mr. Steffen: Let's ask the witness, not Mr. Bromley.

Mr. Bromley: These people were only entitled to the discount if they were wholesalers, not if they were retailers.

Justice Stephens: You may ask the witness what his testimony was, if he remembers. If not, show it to him. That is the short way.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I will show it to him. It is on page 4898. Do you remember, Mr. Lenci, in connection with that transaction? A. I don't remember that as any limitation. As I understood the whole matter, all of our sales to manufacturing distributors were for the purpose of permitting those manufacturing distributors to sell to dealers, in other words, they were wholesalers, they were not retailers.

Q. And that was a condition attaching, would you say now, or would you not, that they should sell as wholesalers and not as retailers? A. Well, that is the 4913 interpretation of it, yes. I wouldn't know as you would call that a condition. I think that is not a condition of sale, but it is a business practice.

Q. Would you call it a limitation? A. No, that was the usual way of doing business. Those manufacturing distributors had all been in business for years, and they are manufacturers and not wholesalers. They are not running a little store, and I don't think it would be necessary to make a limitation or a description of what their activities would be.

Q. Well then, would you say that the consent given to Structural was upon the understanding that Structural would continue to do a wholesale and not a retail business? A. I don't think that question ever came up.

Q. I am raising it now. This question was asked you at page 4898:

"Q. Well, let's see, Kelley had the permission of the licensors to sell a distributor at a discount only if the distributor were acting as a wholesaler and not a retailer, isn't that right?"

And you said:

"A. That is true, yes."

Now was that testimony correct? A. Yes. The 4914 licensor and the licensee both knew from long experience the usual methods of the Structural Gypsum Company in doing business.

Q. And therefore the license was given upon the understanding that they would continue the usual method, is that right?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as deliberately misassuming facts. Isn't it perfectly obvious that the only question is one of discount? There wasn't any attempt to control the kind of business that Structural did, but if they were wholesalers, then they got a discount. I don't see counsel's purpose in trying to twist it around and make it appear that they were controlling the nature of Structural's business. All we said to our licensees was, "You can give Structural a discount if they are wholesalers."

Justice Stephens: Counsel is entitled on redirect examination to confront the witness with his testimony and ask him if, in comparison with other testimony and other items which are called to his attention, from the record, he wishes to change it or modify it, or admit that it is wrong. But when counsel goes beyond that, and argues with the witness as to what the testimony ought to mean, what it does mean with reference to these bulletins and their provisions, it seems to me that it probably goes into what the Court will have to determine as to the meaning of the testimony.

Now of course the line is sometimes hard to draw, 4915 Mr. Steffen, and we don't mean to unlimit you unduly, and severely, but I think in this instance that you are, conducting in effect now a discussion with the witness as to what his testimony really means, and we have got to determine that ourselves.

Mr. Steffen: I think that is right, your Honor. The two items that I wanted to get brought together are now presented, and I think it is quite proper for the Court to decide whether the giving of the consent was upon an understanding or condition or arrangement.

Then at the foot of page 4956 the question is asked:

"Q. And did you ever have any arrangement or understanding or agreement with USG, or with anyone else, that with respect to these consents, the Ebsary Gypsum Company would police or supervise or seek to control manufacturing distributors' resale prices or practices?"

And you said:

"A. No."

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. And by that you meant that you had no understanding or agreement with USG that you should go out and check prices or terms of sale by your manufacturing distributors? A. That is correct.

Q. But it is true that you, as you have testified a 4916 moment ago, were interested in the prices at which your distributors sold? A. We were interested in the specific case because in the case you mentioned we also were selling in the same market.

Q. And wherever your distributors were selling in the same market, with you, you were interested? A. Yes.

Q. And you, on occasion, did make complaints to Board Survey concerning sales by Structural when they were buying their board from Kelley? A. Yes.

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as assuming facts not in evidence. There isn't any evidence that there was any complaint about Structural. The evidence is in, and shows it was a complaint about the licensee that supplied Structural. It is all in writing.

Mr. Steffen: I will make just this one point. Mr. Bromley insists that these complaints are all against the licensee and not against the manufacturing distributor, and I will rephrase the question without conceding the point.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. You did, on occasion, make complaints concerning Kelley's sales to Structural? A. That is correct.

Q. Where Structural was reducing prices or other-4917 wise causing trouble, is that correct? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: That again is really a question for the Court to determine, against whom the complaint was being made. You contend it was being made against Structural, and your opponents contend it was being made against the licensee.

Mr. Steffen: Therefore I should be privileged to ask the question either way.

Justice Stephens: You are entitled to confront the witness with his testimony and ask his if he wishes to explain or change it in any manner, or what he meant by it.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Now on page 4957 you were asked another broad question:

"Q. Was there ever a time when USG or anyone connected with it ever threatened to withdraw a consent issued to you to sell manufacturing distributors?"

And your answer was:

"A. No.

"Q. Was any statement ever made to you by anyone connected with USG that if you did not control or seek to control the resale prices of these manufacturing distributors to whom you sold under the consents, that the consents would be withdrawn?"

And your answer was:

"A. No."

4918 A. That is correct.

Q. And that is your testimony? A. Absolutely.

Q. You did have a conversation with Mr. Bartlett, did you not, and Mr. Gallagher, at different times? A. That was in no way a threat, implied or otherwise, that they would withdraw their consent.

Q. You did not construe it in that way? A. I did not so construe it at any time.

Q. I want to show you Government's Exhibit 445.

(Government's Exhibit No. 445 was handed to the witness for examination.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Does that affect your testimony at all? A. No, your question was as to whether or not the United States Gypsum Company, as licensor, had ever, directly or indirectly, threatened to withdraw a permission given to the Ebsary Gypsum Company to sell manufacturing distributors.

Q. And this has to do with Kelley's sales? A. Yes, this has nothing whatever to do with that at all.

Mr. Steffen: We have no further questions, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Is there any recross examination?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, your Honor.

Recross examination

By Mr. Bromley:

4919 Q. This last exhibit, No. 445, Mr. Lenci, hasn't even anything to do with the possibility that USG might withdraw its consent to Kelley to sell Structural, has it? A. This is our complaint against Kelley. This is an inter-communication from myself to Mr. Ebsary, referring to our complaint against the Kelley Plasterboard Company.

Q. But there is no reference in it as to whether or not USG would or had threatened to cancel its consent to Kelley to sell Structural, is there? A. There is not.

Q. Now a few minutes ago, as I understood you, you told Government's counsel that you had complained against Structural because of what it was doing, and then in the next answer you said that you complained against Kelley based on what Structural was doing.

Isn't it the fact that what you did in this situation that involved Structural was to complain merely against Kelley because you thought Kelley might be violating the license? A. That is correct.

Q. But you never complained to Board Survey, or to USG, that Structural was violating any obligation which it had, either under a license or without a license, did you? A. Our complaints were against the other licensee.

Q. You knew that Structural had no license, didn't you? A. Yes.

4920 Q. And you knew that Structural had no obligation with respect to the maintenance of prices, or with respect to the maintenance of any other conditions which were binding on the licensees? A. Yes.

Q. So the fact is that all of your complaints which had anything to do with what you found Structural was doing in the market, were complaints against Kelley because you thought that evidence of what Structural was doing was some indication that Kelley was violating the license and giving Structural an unduly low price? A. Yes.

Mr. Steffen: I would like to ask that that be related as to point of time. I think the witness has testified that up until 1933, possibly, he thought that the licensor could control the price of a distributor.

Mr. Bromley: I am not making any limitation on it, and I am asking the witness without regard to his views of the law, if the fact is not that at all times his complaints were only against the licensees.

The Witness: That is right.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. And in connection with what counsel has just mentioned about your state of mind, I want you to look at page

4844 and tell me whether that isn't the place in your 4921 testimony to which you referred this morning as being the place at which you gave the date as 1932, and not 1933. A. Yes, although that was yesterday that I made that statement.

Q. Further, in connection with your state of mind back in 1932 and prior thereto, I want to call your attention to your testimony in the criminal case at page 564.

(The testimony referred to was handed to the witness for examination.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Do you recall that in connection with your testimony about your state of mind you testified that you were under that impression, and then that Judge Goldsborough asked you this question:

"I haven't seen anything in the testimony that was given of transactions to any admission on the witness' part that his purpose or the purpose of his company was to control these distributors' prices."

And you said that it was not.

That is in the middle of the page. Do you remember that? A. Yes, I remember that.

Q. And that is correct, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. So that without regard to your state of mind, it was never your purpose or the purpose of your company 4922 to control the prices or practices of these manufacturing distributors, was it? A. That is right.

Q. It was not? A. It was not.

Q. Now will you look at Exhibit 405, please?

(Government's Exhibit No. 405 was handed to the witness for examination.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. You told Government counsel that in this exhibit, which was your letter to your sales manager of May 23, 1929, that you instructed him to charge for the new covered-edge wallboard, after you got into production and made it, a price of $17.50 per thousand square feet, and that this was the price which USG fixed in its bulletin for No. 2 closed-edge board? A. Yes.

Q. The bulletin fixed the price, as of this time, for No. 1 closed-edge board, at $20, didn't it? A. Yes.

Q. How does it come that you instructed your salesmen to charge for your new covered-edge board when you should make it, not the price that was set for No. 1, but the price that was set for No. 2 board? A. I don't know. I cannot recall the reasons for that except possibly I felt that we were making a new product and we hadn't a great 4923 deal of confidence in its coming out first-class at the very beginning. It was a new product for us, and maybe I felt it would not be up to the first grade.

Q. Isn't that, as a matter of fact, the reason which caused you to set that price? A. I believe it was.

Q. You remember, don't you, that the production problems involved in the manufacture of this closed-edge board were very difficult? A. It meant quite a change for us. Yes, they were.

Q. And you had a lot of trouble making your new machine work, didn't you? A. We had some trouble, yes.

Q. And that resulted in the production of closed-edge board which certainly was not up to the standard of perfection that the USG board was at that time? A. Well, we didn't have as much trouble as we anticipated.

Q. Well, you thought you would have trouble? A. I was afraid that we might.

Q. So you therefore instructed your salesmen to charge for your board the price which USG had set for No. 2 board? A. That I believe was my reason for making that price.

Q. And that is because you felt at that time that probably the board which you would produce would turn out to be of second grade and not first? A. Yes.

4924 Q. For a while, anyway? A. Yes.

Q. You told counsel also that prior to 1929 the Ebsary Gypsum Company had not used an arbitrary billing weight in the pricing of its gypsum board. Do you remember that? A. Yes.

Q. Well, the fact is that at all times prior to 1929 you had used an arbitrary weight in the sense that you had agreed with the railroads upon a weight which should be considered the billing weight for freight shipments, hadn't you? A. That is correct, but we could not use that to make up our prices for this reason, that we were coming in as a new manufacturer of a product which was already on the market, and if we found a certain price existing in some particular destination we didn't say, "We are going to get so much at the mill and so much freight." We would say that the price at destination at which we can sell is so much, and that would be the way we would make our price.

4925 Q. I understand that, Mr. Lenci. But so far as the freight which was paid by your customers was concerned, they paid freight to the railroad based on the arbitrary weight of the board which had been agreed upon prior to that time between you and the railroad? A. That is correct, and that was deducted from the amount we got at destination.

Q. And that arbitrary weight which was the subject of an agreement between your company and the railroad, back in those days would remain in existence without change for a period of 6 to 12 months or more, wouldn't it? A. Yes, they ran for quite a long period.

Q. And at that time, if you had sold your board on the basis of a mill price plus the freight, and had figured out your price on that basis, you would have used not the actual weight of the board in figuring out the freight part of the price, but this arbitrary weight which you had agreed upon with the railroad, wouldn't you? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, the reason that that arbitrary weight, in those days, didn't change for long periods of time, was that the railroad didn't come around very often to make the test weighings in order to arrive at an arbitrary figure—isn't that right? A. That is right.

4926 Q. Today, they come around more frequently, do they not, or they did prior to the war? A. Yes. I don't know the exact times, but they come around more frequently than they did then.

Q. So that you agree with the railroad now, on the arbitrary freight weight, at intervals of but a few months? A. Yes.

Q. Did the figure of $75,000, which you said your board machine cost you, include the cost of the driers? A. No, it did not.

Q. Have you any idea how much they cost? A. I know exactly what it was.

Q. How much? A. Our contract with the Coe Manufacturing Company was $100,000 for the driers, and that did not include erection.

Q. It did not include erection? A. No. We had to put it up ourselves.

Q. Likewise, the figure of $75,000, which you gave for the board machine, did not include erection or engineering, did it? A. It included engineering in this way: They furnished a foreman or superintendent, the manufacturer of the machine furnished a superintendent, who was really the engineer, but it did not include the plant engineering necessary to make the entire installation. We had to do that ourselves.

4927 Q. Now, you said that the change-over in 1929, on this machine, so as to result in its being able to produce closed-edge board, from the standpoint of cost, I think you said, was a rather minor matter. Well, the fact is that it resulted in a major change in operation and in result, didn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And when you said "a rather minor matter", did you mean that the cost was minor in relation to the total cost of the machine as it was originally installed? A. Yes.

Q. These changes, however, resulted in a fundamental and important change in the character of the finished product? A. Yes.

Mr. Steffen: We object to that as calling for a conclusion. If he wanted to ask the witness whether they made an open-edge or a closed-edge board, I should think it would be appropriate.

Justice Stephens: I think the objection is not well taken. Objection overruled.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. With relation to jobbers, Mr. Lenci, you have in mind, haven't you, that the jobber price was made the same as the dealer price in August, 1930? A. Yes.

4928 Q. Now, isn't it a fact that prior to that date, there never any discussion at any meetings, among the licensees or with the licensor, about jobbers at all? A. Well, Mr. Henning had asked us very early in the period to furnish him with the names of our jobbers.

Q. With that exception, Mr. Lenci, isn't it the fact that prior to August, 1930, there was never at any time any discussion with respect to jobbers whatsoever, in any meetings, among the licensees or with the licensor? A. That is during what period?

Q. Prior to August, 1930. A. I don't know whether we had any meetings during that period at all, or not.

Q. That is what I am leading up to. A. We had the first two or three meetings where the licenses were signed, and then it seems to me there was quite a gap in there.

Q. That is right, sir. So, prior to August, 1930, there never was a time that there was a meeting among licensees, attended by the licensor, except these 2 or 3 that you have testified to that had to do with the negotiation of the licenses, isn't that right? A. That is my recollection, yes.

Q. So that, with that in mind, isn't it the fact that there never was any mention made at any of these meetings, prior to August, 1930, even about the subject of 4929 jobbers, except that Mr. Henning once asked you to send in the names of your jobbers? A. I believe that is correct.

Q. And all of your testimony in response to Mr. Steffen's questions about discussions of jobbers, all arose after August, 1930, isn't that right A. Yes, that was the time when we started to complain that the jobbers were still getting their discounts, and there were numerous complaints then, at our meetings.

Q. But all of those complaints were after August, 1930, weren't they? A. I think they were.

Q. Before you took a license from USG, Mr. Lenci, you could charge any price for board you wanted to, couldn't you A. We could charge any price we could get.

Q. Any price you could get? A. Yes.

Q. Now after the license, you could charge for plaster any price you could get, couldn't you? A. Was your first inquiry on plaster or plasterboard?

Q. On board. A. Yes, all right.

Q. I will withdraw the last question.

After the license, the price which you could charge
4930 on board was fixed, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Now, before the license, you could charge for plaster any price you could get, couldn't you? A. Yes.

Q. That was true after the license, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And this situation which you have called a rebate in your testimony, and which was the subject matter of bulletin provisions and complaints having to do with what you did with respect to the price of plaster and other products, when sold with board, didn't that generally take this form: A salesman would say to a dealer, "I will sell you board. My price is fixed, but if you will buy plaster along with it, you can deduct, when the time for payment comes, an amount,—say, for illustration, $1.50,—for every thousand feet of board that you buy."? A. You are speaking of the cash rebates on the sale of board?

Q. Isn't that the form that it generally took? A. It would take that form or, in some cases, some of our complaints were based on the fact that the salesman actually passed cash to the customer.

Q. Well, now, I am trying to confine my questions to the situation where you did something to the plaster 4931 price when you sold board and plaster to a dealer. Do you understand that? A. Yes; but your question, I understand, applied entirely to board.

Q. No, I didn't mean it to. So I will start over again. You did sell board and plaster, sometimes, to the same dealer-customer, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And after you took the license, you knew that you were prohibited from making an indirect price reduction in your board by giving away plaster, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And you knew that prohibition extended to making an indirect price cut in the board by giving a customer plaster at a price lower than you would ordinarily charge in that market? A. Yes.

Q. Now wasn't the form which that transaction usually took, where this kind of rebating was indulged in, as follows:

A manufacturer would say to a dealer, "If you buy a thousand feet of board, I must charge you $30 for it. However, if you buy a ton of plaster, although my ordinary price is $10, when you come to pay for it you can deduct $1.50 from that $10 for every thousand feet of board you buy."? A. We didn't do that.

4932 I know you didn't. But isn't that the thing that you complained about? A. We complained about that,—I am just trying to remember a complaint that we did make. I don't recall that we did make any complaints of that type.

Q. Well, you looked over a whole lot of complaints a few minutes ago, didn't you? A. They were complaints made by the licensor against us, that we had done that. But we had not done it. Those Exhibits 489 to 501 were complaints by the licensor against the Ebsary Gypsum Company.

Q. Well, are you familiar with the fact that this kind of indirect rebating was prevalent in the industry after the licenses were taken? A. Yes.

Q. And isn't it a fact that the form that it would take would be something as I have tried to state it? A. Well, I can only answer in this way, Mr. Bromley: That is our supposition as to one of the forms it took.

Q. Well, do you remember your testimony that a 5-cent reduction per ton in the price of plaster wouldn't mean anything to anybody, but a 50-cent or a $1.00 per ton reduction would? A. Yes, that was in answer to a question by Mr. Steffen as to how much it would amount to 4933 before you got over the deadline.

Q. Now, having that testimony in mind, isn't it a fact that what a manufacturer would do, where he wanted to cut the price of board by reducing the price of plaster, would be to make his reduction in the price of plaster so many dollars per ton for each thousand feet of board that the dealer would buy?

Mr. Steffen: I object, Your Honor. This question has been asked once before, and the witness has said it was merely a supposition on his part.

Justice Stephens: Do you know?

The Witness: I don't know, because we did not do it, and it is impossible to pin these things exactly on the other manufacturers.

Justice Jackson: Mr. Bromley's question is: Wouldn't that be the probable course, if such a thing were to be done?

The Witness: That is the way I tried to answer. I said that would be one of the possible ways of doing it.

Justice Stephens: The witness did also say that it was a supposition.

If you know, from your experience in the industry, how that practice took place, or, as a person experienced and expert in the industry, how it probably would be carried out, you may testify as to that. But if you are just guessing, then we would have to sustain the ob-
4934 jection. What is the fact? Are you testifying from your experience as to how these things would probably be carried out, or from your knowledge, or from a mere speculation?

The Witness: I am testifying as to how they would probably be carried out, not from having seen the transaction, because rebating is something you do not see.

Justice Stephens: Well, the answer of the witness may stand as to that.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Now, as I understood you, at page 5069 you said that you made no agreement or entered into no understanding to eliminate jobbers, at the meeting which you attended in May, 1929. Now you didn't mean to limit your testimony to that meeting, did you? A. No.

Q. You never had any understanding or agreement with anybody, other than what is expressed in the license and the bulletins, if any, with respect to the elimination of jobbers, did you? A. That is correct.

Q. And likewise, with respect to your testimony on plaster prices, you never had any understanding or agreement with anybody with respect to plaster prices made at any time, other than what may be contained in the 4935 license agreement or the bulletins, did you? A. That is right.

Q. You also said that after August, 1930, selling through jobbers at a discount was eliminated. Now, you meant to restrict that answer only to patented board, didn't you? A. Oh, yes.

Q. In connection with your bubble license, Mr. Lenci, isn't it the fact that before you made up your mind to take the license, the nature of the bubble invention had been disclosed to you? A. Yes, it was described.

Q. That was described to you by Mr. Avery or Mr. Knode, or both, on May 23, 1929, wasn't it? A. That is right.

Q. And not only was the nature of the invention described, but the savings which it was claimed the use of the invention would accomplish were disclosed to you? A. Yes.

Q. And what you meant in your answer to Mr. Steffen was that the "know-how", or the procedure to put the invention into operation, was not disclosed to you until after you had signed the license? A. That is correct.

Q. Have you any idea of the total amount of royalties that your company has paid to USG under the two licenses which you have had with it?

4936 Mr. Steffen: I don't see the connection, Your Honor, between that question and the re-direct examination. I think this is improper re-cross examination.

Justice Stephens: What do you relate it to, in the re-direct examination?

Mr. Bromley: I am trying to find the place.

Justice Stephens: Very well.

Mr. Bromley: At page 4995, at line 14, he was asked: "Q. And what was the royalty that you were charged under the May, 1929, license; do you remember?"

And he said he didn't remember.

Then he was asked questions on that and succeeding pages—if it was 5 percent it would be 65 cents; and he was asked the question on page 4996:

"Q. So that financially, the saving was such that it was very much to your advantage to take out your license and pay a royalty, was it not?"

And he answered:

"A. It was, yes."

So it would seem to me that the door as to what he paid in royalties has been opened.

Mr. Steffen: We have no objection, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Very well. Proceed.

The Witness: I haven't the figures before me, but some time ago I made a computation, and as I recall it, 4937 it ran somewhere between $175,000 and $200,000.

Justice Stephens: Is that related to the bubble board royalties or to all royalties?

The Witness: All royalties, both licenses. As I remember it, it was something under $200,000 up to that particular period.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Of course, since you took your closed-edge license only in May, 1929, by far the greater part of that would be related to the starch patent and the bubble patent license, that is, the October, 1929, license, wouldn't it? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Although, of course, the May, 1929, license did continue until 1937, so far as royalties were concerned, although that was merged in the October-November, 1929, license, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. That is to say, the royalty provision that was contained in the May, 1929, license, which continued until 1937, was the royalty on the patents covering, among other things, the machine for manufacturing the board, the closed-edge board, wasn't it? A. I believe that is correct.

Q. You told Mr. Steffen, I think, that you made no investigation of the patents before you took the 4938 October-November, 1929, license. Perhaps that answer applied to both licenses, did it? A. Yes.

Q. Isn't all you meant by that answer that you did not go to or consult any patent attorney? A. Yes.

Q. You knew the nature of the closed-edge patents, didn't you, before you took the license? A. Yes, not from a technical point of view or from a patent point of view, but from the actual board and what it looked like and how it would be used.

Q. And you also knew the nature, generally, of the patents which covered the machine for making the board, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And wasn't that likewise true with respect to the patents which were contained in the October-November, 1929, license, that you knew generally the nature of those patents and what they covered? A. Yes.

Q. You knew they covered the foam-bubble invention, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And you knew they covered things like the 4939 tongue and groove edge, and the recessed edge? A. Yes.

Q. And you knew they covered starch, for instance, for adhesion? A. Yes.

Q. And you knew that there were many other patents in there that covered refinements, both in the product and in the machine for making the product? A. Yes.

Q. So the fact is that you were generally familiar with the nature of many, if not all of the patents, listed in both the licenses? A. Yes. Maybe I misunderstood the previous question. We didn't make a patent research investigation, as to the validity of the patents themselves, and matters of that kind. We knew generally what they covered.

Justice Stephens: We will take our noon recess at this time.

(Thereupon, at 12:15 o'clock p.m., a recess was taken until 1:45 o'clock p.m., of the same day.)

4940 AFTERNOON SESSION

(The trial was resumed at 1:45 o'clock p. m., pursuant to recess.)

Justice Stephens: Proceed, Mr. Bromley.

Thereupon, GEORGE N. LENCI the witness on the stand at the time of recess, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Recross Examination (resumed)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. At page 5031, Mr. Lenci, your attention was called to the third "Whereas" clause in your May 22, 1929, license, and you said that you imagined that it was the understanding of everybody who took out a license that they were going to discontinue the making of open-edge board because, so far as you knew, the licenses were all similar.

Now the clause to which your attention was called appears on page 48 of the complaint as to the third paragraph on that page. You will notice that that paragraph says:

"Whereas, Licensor has been unwilling to grant a license except upon the express condition that Licensee will manufacture plasterboard or gypsum wallboard only with a folded or protected edge similar to that manufactured by Licensor, so that Licensor may be protected in its own business of manufacturing and selling said patented products 4941 and realize to the fullest extent the benefits under said patents from the manufacture by said Licensee;".

Now that was the paragraph which you looked at when you answered Mr. Steffen on page 5031, wasn't it? A. Was I shown this at that time?

Q. Yes, I think you were.

Justice Jackson: He probably wasn't shown it from the complaint.

Mr. Bromley: That is right, if the Court pleases, he was shown that paragraph in a different form.

Justice Jackson: You were shown the May, 1929, license agreement between your company and USG, probably.

Mr. Bromley: I see now, at the top of page 5031, you were shown the complaint, and this very page 48, paragraph 3.

The Witness: All right.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Now, do you notice that there is another "Whereas" clause which follows the one you have just read? A. Yes.

Q. And that says, doesn't it:

"Whereas, Licensor has agreed to waive the express condition aforesaid and grant the said License in consideration of the agreement of Licensee to pay to it for the license to use the processes and make and use the 4942 machines and/or inventions set forth and claimed in all of said patents and applications for letters patent the amounts hereinafter stated and upon the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth,"—do you see that paragraph now? A. Yes.

Q. Now, in the light of that paragraph, isn't it clear to you that there was no understanding whatsoever on the part of anybody that the licensees would discontinue the making of open-edge board? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. There was no such understanding, was there? A. No.

Q. And there was no understanding that the licensees could not make open-edge board outside of this agreement, was there? A. No.

Q. So that, your testimony is now, isn't it, that there was no agreement or understanding, either in the license or outside of the license, that the licensees could not make open-edge board if they wanted to? A. That is correct.

Mr. Steffen: Your Honor, it is my understanding that our objection to leading questions by the defendant continues, does it?

Justice Stephens: You have a continuing objection to all leading questions on the part of the defendants to this witness, yes. The same is overruled.

4943

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. At pages 5007 and 5008, you testified that you had three reasons for wanting to take a license from USG, and on page 5008 you were asked this question, at line 13:

"Q. You further testified, on page 4654 of the transcript, that the license covered a large number of patents? A. Yes.

"Q. Was that possibly a third reason why you wanted to take out a license? A. Yes."

Now, didn't you mean by that answer that one of the things you wanted to get, or hoped to get, from taking out a license was the benefit of the research of USG which had resulted in the granting of the many patents granted to it, and the filing of the many applications which it had filed, as set forth in the schedules annexed to the license? A. Yes.

Q. You did not mean to create the impression that you wanted to take a license simply because the license covered a large number of patents, did you? A. No.

Q. What you wanted was, so far as the number of patents was concerned, to get the benefit of USG's research staff in inventions relating to the improvement of the product and the means for producing it, didn't you? A. We felt that at some time we might need to make a board that would come under one of those other classifications.

Q. Now at page 5094, in line 10, you said you had substantially made up your mind to take the bubble license as you went home from the May 23, 1929, meeting; do you remember that? A. Yes.

Q. Now, isn't it a fact that as of that time, neither you nor Mr. Ebsary had made any definite decision as to whether you would or not, although substantially you had agreed at that time that if the bubble invention did have the benefits claimed for it, then you thought you ought to have a license? A. We felt after the description given us by Mr. Avery that it would be a valuable thing for us to have, if we could get it.

Q. And you have said at some other place in your testimony that after you came back you talked to others in the industry. Weren't those talks about whether or not the invention, as they understood it, did have the benefits which Mr. Avery claimed for it? A. Yes.

Q. And you convinced yourself, between that time
4945 and the time you signed the license, that the bubble invention did have real benefits in lightness and strength, didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. As I recall your testimony, you several times told Mr. Steffen that when you said you wanted to be competitive, you meant that you wanted to have competition eliminated. Do you recall that you said that on occasions? A. That we wanted to have competition eliminated?

Q. Yes. A. Well, if I said that, I didn't mean that.

Q. When you used the word "competitive", and in your answers said that you wanted to be made competitive, didn't you mean merely that you wanted to be put in a position where you could go into a market and sell your board on as favorable terms as some other company could? A. Yes. We wanted to have the opportunity of meeting them in any market in our area, on an equal basis.

Q. And your area would be that geographical area the limits of which were set by freight rates, isn't that right? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. In other words, if you were selling lath at $13, and it cost you $7 to make it— A. (Interposing) I wish it did.

Q. (Continuing) —you could not sell a customer where the freight rate was more than $6, and stay in busi-4946 ness, could you? A. No.

Q. So that, if you took a line around your plant, and drew it through the various points where the freight rate was $6, that would define what you have referred to as your area, wouldn't it? A. Yes. That isn't quite a correct example, Mr. Bromley.

Q. But it is the simplest one I can think of, to start with; isn't that so? A. Yes, but it may lead to some question afterwards which would lead someone astray.

Q. Why? A. Well, for instance, supposing that we were going to quote into such a territory as you illustrate, there would be also some competitor of ours who would have a mill price plus his lower freight to that destination. So that it wouldn't be a $6 difference between the two prices.

Q. You mean by that that it might be less than $6? A. Well, may I make it clear—

Q. (Interposing) Tell me, first, do you mean by that that it might be less than $6 in my illustration? A. It would eventually come to the same thing.

Q. Go ahead and give your illustration. A. Take an arbitrary situation: Supposing that the National 4947 Gypsum Company is quoting in Atlanta, Georgia. They would ship out of Savannah. Now suppose they start with a price of $13 mill at Savannah, and we will say that their freight to Atlanta is $3. They would quote $16.

Justice Stephens: They have a mill at Savannah?

The Witness: Yes. They would quote $16 at Atlanta. Then we would see what our freight rate was to Atlanta.

Justice Jackson: From where?

The Witness: From Wheatland, New York.

Justice Stephens: You mean your actual freight rate?

The Witness: Yes, our actual freight cost. We would have a $16 price to start with. Then if that freight rate was $9, the $9 from the $16 would leave the $7 that you are aiming at, do you see?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, sir.

Justice Stephens: And if it cost you $7 or more to make the board, you couldn't sell it there?

The Witness: We could not sell there, no.

Justice Stephens: Your rate to Atlanta would be $16, because under the bulletins you would take the mill base price at Savannah, which would make the rate you would have to sell at under the bulletins exactly the same as National did?

The Witness: That is right.

By Mr. Bromley:

4948 Q. Now that situation, so far as your competitive position is concerned, would be exactly the same, bulletins or no bulletins, wouldn't it? A. Yes.

Q. In other words, if you didn't have a license and didn't have any price fixed, and didn't have any price bulletins, if you wanted to compete against National with a mill at Savannah, National selling its board at $13 Savannah mill plus $3 Atlanta freight, or $16, you would have to offer your board down in Atlanta at $16? A. That is correct.

Q. And to do that, you would have to absorb the difference between the $9 freight from Wheatland to Atlanta, and the $3 Savannah-to-Atlanta freight, or $6? A. That is correct.

Q. And that would leave you with a net mill return, on your board sold in Atlanta, of $7? A. That is correct.

Q. And if that $7 was equal to or higher than your cost, then you could do business in Atlanta and break even or make a small profit? A. That is correct.

Q. But if the $7 was less than your cost, then you would be losing money if you did business in Atlanta? A. That is right.

4949 Q. Therefore, you would say that you were not competitive in Atlanta and could not do business? A. That is right.

Q. So that, in your testimony, you merely meant, didn't you, that if the market which you were considering was too far away from your mill, or if the terms of sale were such that the service you had to render was too expensive, you would not be competitive in that particular market? A. That is right.

Q. And it is the fact, isn't it, that the license bulletins gave you prices at which you could do business in the markets which you normally served before the license? A. Yes.

Q. That is, the license provisions made you competitive in your normal markets? A. That is right.

Q. And you did not mean to say, in any of your answers, did you, that under the license bulletins all companies would be able to take business in all markets under the same circumstances? A. No.

Q. And as the Presiding Justice said this morning, while the price to the dealer might be the same, your profit or return would be different as between different companies? A. That is correct.

4950 Q. So that, all the price bulletins did, Mr. Lenci, was to fix a floor or a minimum below which a licensee could not go; isn't that right? A. Yes.

Q. And in any given market, that minimum was the same for every licensee? A. Yes.

Q. But that did not mean that these minimum prices put each licensee on the same plane, so far as his cost of servicing the market was concerned, did it? A. No.

Q. And that was so because each licensee had different costs and expenses to get to the market, depending on the location of his mill? A. Yes.

Q. So that, wouldn't you say, sir, that when you used the word "competitive", or "to make yourself competitive", you did not mean the elimination of competition? A. That is correct.

Q. You were asked some questions with respect to the bulletin provisions regarding commission salesmen, particularly at pages 5118 to 5122, and your attention was called to two different types of provisions in the bulletins—one provision in bulletins prior to 1939, and another provision in bulletins subsequent to February 6, 1939.

4951 Do you remember that? A. Yes.

Q. Those two provisions were never in effect at the same time, were they? A. No.

Q. And in connection with this subject, the Presiding Justice suggested that you be asked this question, which I believe you were asked by Mr. Steffen: How does mere selling through a commission salesman accomplish a rebate or allowance? And I think you said you didn't see how it did.

Well, now, isn't it a fact, Mr. Lenci, that if the commission salesman were a man connected with the buyer, then your answer to that question would have to be different? A. Yes, that is true.

Q. And wasn't it a very common practice in the industry for manufacturers, in order to get business, to sell to a dealer and say, "Now, I will pay your president, or your secretary, or one of your salesmen, a commission on this business"? A. That was the basis of some of our complaints against the Kelley Plasterboard Company.

Q. Then you would say it was a common practice, wouldn't you? A. It was at a time, yes, at that time.

Q. In other words, the manufacturer or licensee

4952 would consider, for the purpose of a particular sale, that somebody connected with the buyer was, for that transaction, a commission salesman of the seller, wouldn't he? A. Yes.

Q. And, of course, if the seller paid a salesman connected with the buyer a commission, and the salesman turned that in to the buyer, that was a rebate, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. Now you are familiar, aren't you, with the difference in wording between this commission salesman clause as it existed prior to 1939, and as it existed afterward? A. Yes.

Q. Quite apart from the wording, Mr. Lenci, wasn't it your understanding at all times that these provisions, that is, the earlier form of commission salesman provision, only applied to the use of commission men for the purpose of cutting the price of patented board? A. I believe that was the intent of that clause.

Q. Well, isn't it a fact that so far as you know, neither Board Survey nor USG ever made any attempt to enforce it in the broader sense, that is, to compel you to get rid of commission salesmen if you had any? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. And you remember that that earlier clause said that the employment of commission salesmen wholly or 4953 partly on commission would be considered a violation of the license, don't you? A. Yes.

Q. Now, during this entire period, this man Blanchfield of whom you spoke was, to say the least, employed partly on a commission basis by your company, wasn't he? A. That is right.

Q. And he went on receiving a commission from 1926 to 1940, didn't he, the whole period involved here? A. Yes.

Q. And you never— A. (Interposing) I don't think it was quite as late as 1940, but that is immaterial.

Q. Well, up to 1939? A. It was up to the latter part of the 30's, yes.

Q. And you were never told by Board Survey or USG, or any of their representatives, either in the nature of a formal complaint or otherwise, that you must discharge your commission salesmen? A. No.

Q. And isn't that likewise true of the provisions with respect to warehouses and customers' trucks, that is to say, that your understanding of the purpose of those provisions —whatever the wording was—was that those arrangements were prohibited only where they were used to effect 4954 a cut in the price of the patented board? A. Yes.

Q. At page 5133, this question of mine was repeated to you:

"Q. Now in connection with those questions, I would like to ask you now—did you understand that there was anything in your license contract, or in the bulletins, which provided that USG should raise or stabilize the prices of gypsum board?"

And you finally said that that was a double question, and you say "No" as to raise, but "Yes" as to stabilize. A. Yes.

Q. Now you know, don't you, that under your form of license agreement, USG had no obligation whatsoever to fix prices? A. They had the right.

Q. They reserved unto themselves the right to fix prices, didn't they? A. That is correct.

Q. But they had no obligation? A. No, that is true.

Q. They made no promise that they would exercise that right at any time, did they? A. No.

Q. Now, likewise you knew, didn't you, that any 4955 price bulletin issued by USG under the license could be withdrawn by USG at any time? A. Yes.

Q. So that, isn't the change in your answer, which you made to Mr. Steffen, incorrect? And weren't you right in the first place when you told us that there was nothing in the license contract or in the bulletins which provided that USG should stabilize the prices of gypsum board? A. Your interpretation of it is correct, Mr. Bromley. They had no obligation to do it, but they had the right to do it.

Q. And, of course, your testimony still stands, doesn't it, that there was no agreement or understanding, outside of the license agreement, that USG either would raise or stabilize prices? A. That is correct.

Q. At page 5142, you were asked this question, with respect to the Structural Gypsum Company, beginning at line 11:

"Q. And did they deliver directly to the job, to the contractors in Philadelphia, for example? A. No, I don't think we ever had any complaint as to that."

Now when you said, "I don't think we ever had any complaint", you meant that you never received any com-
4956 plaint from your dealer-customers about that, didn't you? A. That is, that the Structural had delivered to the contractors—

Q. (Interposing) In Philadelphia. A. Yes.

Q. Is that what you meant? A. Yes.

Q. And didn't you also mean, when you said, "I don't think we ever had any complaint", that you had had no complaint from your own salesmen? A. That is right.

Q. And on the next page, beginning at line 4, you were asked this question with respect to Structural selling at prices lower than your prices:

"Q. And had you known about it you would have made a complaint? A. I believe we would have, because they were in the same markets that we were in."

Now when you said, "I believe we would have (made a complaint)", you didn't mean that you would have made a complaint to USG, but that you would have complained to Structural? A. Yes.

Q. You knew that neither you nor USG had any 4957 right to control Structural's prices? A. That is right.

Q. But you felt that you had a right to complain to them, since you were selling them the material at a discount, which they were using to undersell you? A. That is right.

Q. Now, beginning at the bottom of page 5155, and going over to page 5156, you were asked this question:

"Q. And you mean by that to say that USG, the licensor, had granted to Kelley authority to sell to Structural only if Structural sold at wholesale?"

And you answered:

"A. As a manufacturing distributor, yes."

You knew, didn't you, that there was no restriction whatsoever, under the bulletins or the license, upon your right to sell to these manufacturing distributors, but that the only restriction was upon your right to give them a discount? A. Yes.

Q. You could sell to these manufacturing distributors at the dealer's price without any limitation whatsoever, couldn't you? A. Of course.

Q. At all times? A. Yes.

Q. And the only restriction you had was that you
4958 couldn't sell them at a discount without permission? A. Yes.

Q. And you knew, didn't you, that the price bulletins made a provision that this consent to give a discount only applied to the extent that the manufacturing distributors did a wholesale business? A. Yes.

Q. Will you look at the July 20, 1933, bulletin, which is Exhibit 38, page 92. Do you see the last paragraph there, Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. That is the provision to which I have just referred, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And that provides that the permission to sell at a discount is restricted to sales of patented board and lath to said manufacturers for resale to the dealer trade at wholesale, and is not to apply to such materials sold at retail? A. That is correct.

Q. So that, if Structural, during the time that it was being sold by you, for instance, changed the character of its business and became a dealer instead of a wholesaler, then you would have had no permission to give them a discount, would you? A. No, that is right.

4959 Q. And therefore, you felt that it was encumbent upon the supplier, did you not, to keep himself informed and make sure that Structural, while it was getting the discount, did not change the character of its business? A. That is right.

Q. Now the normal character, as you said, of the businesses of all of these manufacturing distributors, was the wholesale business, that is, to sell the dealers, wasn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And this complaint about which you were questioned was a complaint that Structural, contrary to normal procedure, had gone into the retail business by establishing a dealer at its mill, and selling directly to ultimate consumers rather than to dealers; isn't that right? A. Yes.

Q. And you felt that that was a legitimate subject to be inquired about by the supplier, Kelley, who at that time was selling Structural? A. Yes.

Q. So that when you told Mr. Steffen, on page 5156, in answer to the following question:

"Q. If Structural sold to retailers, then your understanding is that that was contrary to the arrangement between the licensor and Kelley?"

And you said:

4960 "A. Yes." You merely meant that Kelley no longer had any right to give Structural the discount? A. That is right.

Q. You did not mean to suggest, did you, that there was any arrangement between the licensor and Kelley by way of attempting to control the kind of business that Structural did? A. I meant the arrangement as to the commission.

Q. As to the discount? A. Yes, as to the discount.

Q. And is that true of your answer to this question, on the same page:

"Q. Is that your understanding also with regard to the Connecticut Adamant Plaster Company, that they should only sell to dealers? A. I would say it would be the same thing.

"Q. And the same would be true of Oakfield? A. Yes.

"Q. That they might not sell to but one class, that is, to dealers? A. Yes."

You didn't mean to create the impression that there was any agreement limiting the business that these manufacturing distributors could do, did you? A. No.

4961 Q. You merely meant to say that they were not entitled to a discount under the license and the consent and the bulletins, unless they confined themselves to a wholesale business? A. That is right.

Q. Or at least, to the extent that they did a retail business, they were not entitled to a discount on such part of their business? A. Yes.

Q. Now at page 5158, still with respect to Structural, you were asked this question:

"Q. Can you say, Mr. Lenci, that in point of fact you did expect something to be done about the Structural situation? A. We expected that Kelley would check up and not continue what we thought he was doing, and that is, giving a commission to Structural and allowing them to do all these different things they were doing at that particular time."

Now when you said "giving a commission to Structural"— A. (Interposing) I should have said an excessive commission, that was what I should have said.

Q. And when you said, "and allowing them to do all these different things they were doing", you meant "and thus allowing them"? A. Yes, that is right.

4962 Justice Stephens: When you use the word "commission", do you mean commission, as such, or discount?

The Witness: Discount, I mean. I should have said discount.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. And when you say "excessive discount", you mean a discount in excess of the amount provided for in the consent, to-wit, 15 percent on board and 12-1/2 percent on lath; is that right? A. That is right, yes.

Q. Now at page 5031, at the bottom of the page, you were asked this question and gave this answer:

"Then it is a fact, would you not say, Mr. Lenci, that if you had to pay a royalty on open-edge board, and it also cost more to manufacture open-edge board, that it was a business impossibility to continue making open-edge board? A. Well, it would be, on that assumption, yes."

Well, it was the additional cost, rather than the royalty, which would have made it difficult to market the open-edge board, wasn't it? A. Yes, that is true.

Q. The royalty in itself would not have made it a business impossibility to manufacture and sell it, would it? A. No, it was the open-edge board, that was impossible to sell.

4963 Q. Because of its character? A. Because of its character.

Q. And because of its cost? A. Of its cost to manufacture, yes.

Q. Those were the chief factors which led you to conclude that it would be a business impossibility to continue making and selling it? A. Yes.

Q. And when you said "business impossibility", you meant merely that it would make it very difficult for you to do it and make money? A. That is right.

Justice Jackson: Did you mean to say, Mr. Lenci, that it would cost you more to make the open-edge board than the closed-edge board?

The Witness: Oh, yes.

Justice Jackson: On account of the wastage?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Now, at page 5089, you were asked some questions about joint filler, and you said that this was one of the points brought up by Mr. MacLeish at a meeting.

Now, Mr. MacLeish's first appearance at a meeting was in October, 1932, wasn't it? A. That was at the time that he was reporting on the audit?

4964 Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. And don't you now remember that this matter of joint filler, and the giving away of carpenters' aprons and joint filler to accomplish a rebate in the price of patented board, was something which was not mentioned by MacLeish at all in 1932, but happened back on June 6, 1929? Let me show you page 4177 of the transcript.

(Transcript handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. Does that refresh your recollection, or not? A. Yes, because when I was testifying there, I believe I was referring to my memorandum as to that meeting of June 6.

Q. And your memorandum of June 6 is Exhibit 419 for Identification, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. And item 10 on that memorandum has to do with joint filler? A. That is right.

Q. The reference is: "No free finisher", on Exhibit 419 for Identification, isn't it? A. Yes.

Q. But "finisher" is joint filler, isn't it? A. Yes.

4965 Justice Stephens: What is the date of that exhibit?

The Witness: June 6, 1929.

By Mr. Bromley:

Q. So that you were mistaken in your testimony that this matter of no gifts of joint filler was brought up by MacLeish in October, 1932, but the fact is, as you know now, that it was brought up by somebody else on June 6, 1929; isn't that correct? A. That is correct.

Mr. Bromley: That is all.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Varian, have you any further questions?

Mr. Varian: No, I have not. I think Mr. Bromley has adequately covered it.

Justice Stephens: Do any counsel for any of the other defendants have any further re-cross examination?

(No response.)

Justice Stephens: Is there anything further, Mr. Steffen?

Mr. Steffen: Nothing further.

Justice Stephens: You are excused, Mr. Lenci, and thank you for attending the court.

(Witness excused.)

Justice Stephens: Call your next witness, gentlemen.

Mr. Steffen: Mr. Hansen, please.

4966 Thereupon, EMIL HANSEN called as a witness for and on behalf of the United States, having been first duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Will you state your full name, Mr. Hansen? A. Emil Hansen.

Q. And your address?

Q. And your address? A. 300 West Water Street, Syracuse, New York.

Q. What company are you connected with, Mr. Hansen? A. With the Paragon Plaster Company.

Q. What is your position with that company? A. President and Treasurer.

Q. How long have you been connected with the Paragon Plaster Company? A. Since 1908.

Q. And were you an officer all through that time, Mr. Hansen? A. No, sir.

Q. When did you become an officer? A. To the best of my recollection, in 1914. That is approximate.

Q. And what is the business of the Paragon
4967 Plaster Company? A. The Paragon Plaster Company were manufacturers of brick, concrete products, and sanded wall plaster, and distributors of various building materials, both retailers and wholesalers.

Q. And among those materials, what did you handle?

Justice Stephens: I don't understand yet, Mr. Hansen, whether you were describing yourself as both retailer and wholesaler, or whether your distribution was to both retailers and wholesalers?

The Witness: I am describing our own business here.

Justice Stephens: I see, thank you.

The Witness: May I enlarge on that? We did a retail business in the City of Syracuse, selling to the consumer. Outside the City of Syracuse, we sold to dealers throughout New York State, and at times in New England and other territories.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. What products did you sell? A. We sold lime, insulation board, gypsum wallboard, and in the very early days we sold Portland cement to dealers. We sold fire-brick. That is generally descriptive. The list would contain about 50 products.

Q. Now what about plaster? A. We manufactured at Syracuse sanded wall plaster, and retailed that at 4968 Syracuse and sold to dealers throughout the Eastern part of the country, a business that we started in 1888.

Q. When you say you manufactured wall plaster, did you manufacture the stucco? A. We did not, no.

Q. And during this period, where did you get your stucco?

As I understand it, stucco is the base from which you make plaster, isn't it? A. That is right. Now, I can only speak from hearsay for the period of 1888 to 1908.

Q. That will satisfy me, I want to know just in general. A. From 1908, for quite a period, we got our stucco from the Niagara Gypsum Company, in which we had a substantial stock interest and of which we were partially the organizers. That was located at Oakfield, New York.

That continued until approximately the year 1921 or 1922, at which time we, with two other companies having mixing plants, which we called the sanded plaster plants, organized the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, and built a new mill at Oakfield, New York. From that time on, our gypsum came from that source.

Q. From that time until when? A. From that time until 1938, when we sold the Oakfield Gypsum Products 4969 Corporation to the National Gypsum Company, and from then on, under contract, got our gypsum from the National Gypsum Company.

Q. By "gypsum", you mean what I have called stucco? A. Yes, the stucco.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Steffen, there was a point in this testimony when the word "stucco" was being used as descriptive, as I remember the testimony, of a synthetic gypsum as distinguished from the gypsum rock. Are you using it in that sense now?

Mr. Steffen: No, we might bring that out by the witness.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. What do you mean by "stucco"? A. Stucco is used as the tradename for calcined gypsum, whether it is synthetic or made from the natural rock.

Q. And you, at the Oakfield Gypsum Products plant, made which kind? A. Made it from the rock. We mined the gypsum rock and calcined it.

Q. And you had a plant to produce stucco from the rock mined there at Oakfield, New York? A. Yes.

Q. Now, let's look at that company. That company was formed when, the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation?

A. I think we started our organization in 1920, and 4970 we were building our plant in 1921.

Q. And that was a plant to convert rock into stucco? A. That is right.

Q. Did the Oakfield Gypsum Products Company make any other product? A. We manufactured wall plaster of various types.

Q. At Oakfield? A. At Oakfield. And at one period we made gypsum block.

Q. Now, this Oakfield Gypsum Products Company was formed, you say, in 1920, and was sold in 1938, the property being sold to the National Gypsum Company? A. That is right.

Q. And you have been procuring your stucco for plaster, since that time, from the National Gypsum Company? A. That is correct.

Q. Are you a stockholder in the National Gypsum Company? A. We are.

Q. By that, do you mean personally, or the corporation? A. Personally and the corporation, also.

Q. Are you an officer or director of the National Gypsum Company? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, who were the other companies that you mentioned, of which there were three, the other compa-
4971 nies that formed the Oakfield Gypsum Products Company? A. The American Hardwall Plaster Company, of Utica, New York, and the Paragon Plaster & Supply Company of Scranton, Pennsylvania.

Q. Were there any other shareholders in Oakfield? A. No.

Q. Just the three companies? A. Just the three.

Q. And was the share ownership equal? A. That is right, it was. Each owned a third.

Q. Now in the organization of Oakfield, did you hold an office in that company? A. Yes, sir. I was not an officer in 1922. I was a Director, but not an officer.

Q. When did you become an officer? I became an officer in 1930.

Q. And what was the office? A. I became the Secretary.

Q. And you continued in that position until 1938? A. Yes, Secretary and Vice President, I think it was, to make the answer complete.

Q. Do you know, or are you familiar with the organization of the American Hardwall Plaster Company? A. Yes, to a reasonable extent.

Q. What is the nature of their business? A. The 4972 same type of business that ours is, generally.

Q. And do you know approximately when they were organized? A. About 1890.

Q. And they are located at Utica? A. At Utica.

Q. Who was the principal officer of the American Hardwall Plaster Company? A. At what time?

Q. Beginning with, say, 1920? A. Mr. J. L. Hughes.

Q. Who else? A. Mr. Hughes was the General Manager. I don't remember who, at that time, was the President of the organization. I think Mr. Thomas R. Proctor.

4973 Q. Following that time, who became the president, or one of the superior officers of American Hardwall? Did Mr. Merriam or Mr. Eldred become officers? A. Of the American Hardwall?

Q. Yes. A. Mr. Eldred. Mr. Merriam was in Scranton, sir.

Q. And by "Mr. Eldred", you mean who? A. Mr. T. P. Eldred.

Q. What was his position with American Hardwall? A. He was General Manager of it, and, I think, the Secretary.

Q. Was he connected with Oakfield? A. Yes, he was Treasurer of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation from sometime in the 20's.

Q. Do you know where Mr. Eldred is now? A. Mr. Eldred is in Utica. He is at home recovering from a very severe operation. He had a kidney removed.

Q. Do you know about when he had that operation? A. When he had the operation?

Q. Yes. A. Just about Christmas, I think shortly after that.

Q. And he is very seriously incapacitated right now? A. Yes; he had an embolism following the operation.

Q. Now you speak of Mr. Merriman as being connected with the Paragon Plaster & Supply Company of Scranton; is that correct? A. Yes.

4974 Q. What is his full name? A. E. L. Merriman.

Q. What was his office with the Paragon Plaster & Supply Company? A. He was the Treasurer and General Manager.

Q. And I think you told us, when you were here the last time, that he died recently, did you not? A. He died on the date that first appeared here.

Q. That was last month? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Was Mr. Merriman connected with the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation? A. Yes sir, he was a director and the original vice-president, and on the death of the president of the company, who at its organization was W. K. Squier of my company, he became the president of Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation.

Q. The business of the Paragon Plaster & Supply Company was what kind of business? A. Similar to ours, with a sanded plaster mixing plant, and the distribution of various building products in the mason materials field.

Q. That is, they sold at retail in Scranton and also dis-

4975 tributed— A. (Interposing): It was very much the same character of business as ours.

Q. Now was there an Executive Committee of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, or how was it managed? A. Yes, it was operated by an Executive Committee.

Q. And who were the members of the Executive Committee? A. The original members were W. K. Squier, E. L. Merriman and J. L. Hughes.

Q. Beginning at about 1929 or 1930— A. (Interposing): In 1930 they were E. L. Merriman, T. P. Eldred, and myself.

Q. And you continued in office until the Company was sold out in 1938? A. That is correct.

Q. Well, now you have stated the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation made stucco, and that it was managed by an Executive Committee of you three members, that is Mr. Merriman, Mr. Eldred and yourself? A. That is right.

Q. And the stucco was sold to the three shareholding companies? A. That is correct.

Q. Paragon Plaster Company, American Hardwall Plaster Company, and Paragon Plaster & Supply Company? A. Yes.

4976 Q. Describe your sales between Oakfield and the Paragon Plaster Company and the other two constituent companies? What I want to get at is this. Oakfield was a separate concern, was it, and it kept separate books? A. Yes.

Q. And there were sales made by Oakfield to Paragon Plaster Company, to Paragon Plaster & Supply Company, and to American Hardwall? A. That is right, with some other business.

Q. That is, between the companies? A. No, Oakfield sold to some others.

Q. Well, to begin with, Mr. Hansen, did Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation sell generally, or did it sell wholly to the three shareholding companies? A. Generally only to the three, with the exception of crushed gypsum rock. We had quite a business with cement companies to which Oakfield sold direct, the Portland Cement companies.

Q. And did that business continue on through— A. (Interposing): Yes, that continued on.

Q. Oakfield handled that as a more or less separate enterprise?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as incompetent, as calling for a conclusion.

Mr. Steffen: I think it is immaterial, your Honor.

4977 Mr. Bromley: I object on that ground too.

Justice Stephens: If you think it is immaterial, the objection is sustained.

Mr. Steffen: It was more or less a preliminary question.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Reference was made to synthetic stucco, Mr. Hansen. Where is synthetic stucco, or where was synthetic stucco, produced, that you know of? A. Well, the only plant that I know of that manufactured it was the one in the vicinity of Kearny, New Jersey, operated by the Structural Gypsum Company.

Q. The Structural Gypsum Company was a subsidiary of — A. (Interposing):—the American Cyanamid Company.

Q. And it was operated during this period of time, or could you tell us what period of time it was operated? A. I couldn't tell you, but it was in operation during this period of time.

Q. And they made stucco by a synthetic process? A. I wouldn't be expert enough to tell you how it was made, sir.

Q. But it was not mined? A. It was not mined, that is right.

Q. And that stucco was made up into plaster, was it, and sold in competition with the plaster that your companies made? A. Yes.

4978 Q. Could you tell us what the relative prices of the two plasters were, that made by your companies and that made by Structural?

Justice Jackson: Do you mean which was the more expensive?

Mr. Steffen: I wanted to know if they were competitors of Mr. Hansen?

The Witness: We were competitors in some fields, not to any great extent. We were competitors when we sold around the metropolitan district; but they didn't sell very much in upper New York State.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. And did you sell in the metropolitan district to any extent, sell your plaster? A. We did in the early days, yes, in the 20's and into the 30's.

Q. And during that period the Structural people were a competitor of yours? A. That is right.

Q. And were their prices high or low? A. I don't recall; I know that we succeeded in selling to some extent.

Q. Was their product as good as the product that you made, would you say? A. We didn't admit it.

Mr. Bromley: It seems to me that that is immaterial.

4979 Justice Stephens: What is this all about, Mr. Steffen?

Mr. Steffen: I wanted simply to develop some of the background of the business of selling plaster and board.

Justice Stephens: We will take the three o'clock recess at this time.

(Whereupon, a five minute recess was taken, at the conclusion of which the trial was resumed as follows:)

4980 Justice Stephens: Proceed, gentlemen.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. You were telling us that the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation was acting as a producing company for the three shareholding companies? A. That is right.

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as calling for a conclusion. I don't think that is his testimony at all.

Mr. Steffen: Then I will ask it the other way.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Is that true, Mr. Hansen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And they would manufacture stucco, and would they ship that to the three shareholding companies? A. Yes.

Q. That was for what purpose? A. That was for the purpose of making sanded plaster at the three mixing plants.

Q. And what about neat plaster? A. They also made a neat plaster and various other types of plaster.

Q. And did they make that for your three companies? A. For the three companies, yes.

Q. How was it branded? A. It was put up under 4981 three different brands, according to who ordered it.

Q. According to which of the three companies ordered it? A. Yes, the American Hardwall or Paragon Plaster or Paragon of Scranton.

Q. Did the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation act as shipping agent in making up cars for the three companies? A. Yes.

Q. Describe that. A. Orders would be sent up from Utica, Syracuse or Scranton in the name of one of the companies, for making up the mixed cars, and they would be loaded with whatever the order called for. There were stocked at Oakfield such products as were required for mixed-car shipments, such as white plaster and hydrated lime, and gypsum board and gypsum lath.

Q. And these shipments would be made to fill Paragon's orders, for example, in sales to dealers? A. To dealers, yes.

Q. And the same would be true with regard to American Hardwall and the other Paragon company? A. That is correct.

Justice Stephens: Refresh my recollection, what is "neat" plaster, as distinguished from other plaster?

Mr. Steffen: Mr. Hansen, will you refresh all our 4982 recollections on that point?

The Witness: Neat plaster is calcined gypsum, mixed with certain other ingredients for purposes of plastering on walls, with the addition of sand at the job.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. And "sanded" plaster is what? A. Sanded plaster is plaster in which the sand is added at a mixing plant, whether at the point of manufacture or at some mixing plant located separately; so that when it gets to the job it is used just as it comes from the bags, with the addition of water. No sand is added at the job.

Justice Stephens: Is there a difference in quality between sanded plaster and neat plaster? Is it different looking or does it contain different ingredients?

The Witness: Well, there is sand in the sanded plaster.

Justice Stephens: I understood you to say there was sand in the neat plaster—maybe I misunderstood you.

The Witness: There is no sand in neat plaster. With neat plaster the sand is added at the job. For instance, to plaster this building you would have your bags of neat plaster here and a load of sand.

Justice Jackson: To put on a white hardwall finish, you wouldn't add any sand?

The Witness: The sand would go in the base coats.

Justice Jackson: I am talking about the surface
4983 coat; then you would use it neat, meaning by itself, wouldn't you?

The Witness: Well, the hard white finish is mostly lime with some white calcined gypsum used as a setting agent.

Justice Jackson: One of the witnesses heretofore stated, when I asked him about the old-fashioned hardwall, white hardwall, that he assumed they used gypsum as they used to use lime.

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. They use a white plaster for the hard finish, do they not? A. Yes.

Q. And there is a mixture of lime with that? A. Right.

Q. Mr. Hansen, during the years 1926, 1927, 1928 and 1929, did the Paragon Plaster Company purchase gypsum board? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And so far as you know did the American Hardwall Plaster Company and the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company also purchase gypsum board? A. Yes.

Q. Where did your company buy board? A. Well, from various sources. The Universal Gypsum and Lime Company was probably our principal source, as I recall it, during that period.

4984 Q. Did you at one time buy from Niagara? A. Yes we bought from the Niagara Gypsum Company also, until they went out of business.

Q. Now, when you were buying gypsum board from Universal, how was that shipped to you? A. That would be shipped directly to us at Syracuse.

Q. Would it also be shipped to you at Oakfield? A. Well now, you said the Paragon Plaster Company. No, anything that was shipped to Oakfield was bought by the Oakfield Gypsum Company.

Q. I understand. And was the Oakfield Gypsum Company buying board, to your recollection, in 1927 and 1928? A. Yes.

Q. And were they supplying that board in mixed cars, which you have described, where they were shipping out neat plaster with your branded name, for example, and also lime, and possibly board—were they doing that at that time? A. They were shipping that out for us, yes.

Q. Do you recall about what time you, the Paragon Plaster Company, commenced buying board in this way from Universal Gypsum and Lime Company?

Mr. Bromley: In what way does "this way" mean? May we have that clear?

Mr. Steffen: In the way he has just described, that is buying it for Paragon, as I understand it, and also 4985 buying some which came to the Oakfield Products Company.

The Witness: That would go back, I should say, to the starting of the Oakfield Gypsum Company, the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. They were dealing in board at the very beginning? A. Yes.

Mr. Bromley: I don't understand this witness to say that Paragon bought board from Universal that went to Oakfield.

The Witness: No, I didn't say that.

Mr. Bromley: That is what the question assumed.

The Witness: I didn't understand it so.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Will you clarify that, please? A. Oakfield bought the board that went to Oakfield, and during the period that you have asked me about, the Paragon Plaster Company bought the board that went to Syracuse.

Q. And you kept separate books? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: What do you mean by saying "went to Syracuse"—do you mean that it went to the Paragon Plaster Company at Syracuse?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Bromley: Could we have straightened out what happened to the board that Oakfield bought that you 4986 said was put in mixed cars? That was sold by Oakfield to Paragon, wasn't it?

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. When Paragon sold a mixed car to a dealer, and it included neat plaster with your brand name and was to come from Oakfield and be shipped directly to your dealer-customer, if you also included board, it was the practice for Oakfield to load the board at Oakfield in that mixed car? A. That is right.

Q. How did you handle the sales transactions or the dealings as respects that board? A. That board was invoiced by the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation to the Paragon Plaster Company.

Q. And shipped to your dealer? A. Yes.

Mr. Bromley: When you say "invoiced", you mean that Oakfield sold it to Paragon and that Paragon paid for it?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Is that what you mean?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Steffen: That was my understanding, your Honor.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. That you carried through the form of a sales transaction from Oakfield to the three parent companies?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that, "that you carried through the form"—as calling for a conclusion.

4987 Justice Stephens: The question as phrased is in a conclusional form. Ask the witness whether it was an actual sales transaction.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Will you explain the transaction for the benefit of everybody, please? A. Oakfield bought these various products that had to go into the mixed-car shipments. When the mixed cars were shipped, all the material in the cars was billed to the Paragon Plaster Company, or to one of the three companies, whichever did the ordering.

Q. And it was shipped, I think you testified to Paragon's dealer-customer? A. That is right.

Q. And when Oakfield purchased board for this purpose it acted pursuant to the direction of the executive committee of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, or did it? A. That is correct.

Q. And you were a member of the executive committee? A. That is right.

Q. I want to show you what has been marked as Government's Exhibit No. 559, which is a letter from the Universal Gypsum and Lime Company, signed by Mr. W. G. Stromquist, under date of January 25, 1928, and addressed to the Paragon Plaster Company, Syracuse, New York, 4988 attention of Mr. Emil Hansen, secretary.

(Counsel hands the document to the witness.)

Justice Stephens: This proposed exhibit refers to a letter. Is the letter of July 9th, which is the next succeeding one in this set of exhibits, the letter to which it refers?

Justice Jackson: It can't be; that next letter is dated in July of the same year and this is January.

Mr. Steffen: May I see Exhibit 559, please?

(Document was handed to Mr. Steffen.)

Mr. Bromley: Now, have you changed the form of the papers in which you handed them to the witness?

Mr. Steffen: I have disengaged the original letter, Exhibit 559, from the other one. They were apparently improperly put together because one relates to January 25, 1928, and the other to July 9, 1928.

Justice Stephens: Exhibit 559 is the single sheet alone, now?

Mr. Steffen: The single sheet. There was some error on our part in attaching those together.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Have you examined Government Exhibit 559, Mr. Hansen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And can you say whether or not you received that letter? A. Yes, sir.

4989 Mr. Oliver: If the Court please, may we see that exhibit?

Justice Stephens: Yes, sir. Mr. Marshal, submit it to counsel.

(Government's Exhibit No. 559 was handed to counsel.)

Justice Stephens: Isn't there a set of photostats of these exhibits? They were on the desk of the judges this morning.

Mr. Knuff: They were put on the clerk's desk.

Mr. Johnston: We didn't know anything about them until the recess a few minutes ago.

Justice Stephens: Isn't there some way that we can establish diplomatic relations between counsel for the defendants and the clerk so that each can know what the other needs?

If you have any of those exhibits handed to you, Mr. Clerk, call the attention of defendants' counsel to them so that they can have the benefit of them.

Where are those exhibits now, Mr. Clerk?

The Clerk: Mr. Bromley has one set and the judges have the other three.

Justice Jackson: Have you seen this Exhibit 559, Mr. Finck?

Mr. Finck: Yes, your Honor, I did.

(Government's Exhibit No. 559 was returned to the witness.)

By Mr. Steffen:

4990 Q. Could you tell us now, Mr. Hansen, whether or not that was at about the time you were buying gypsum board from the Universal Gypsum and Lime Company? A. That is correct.

Q. And could you tell us what the phone conversation referred to therein was about? A. No, I couldn't remember that, sir.

Q. Could you tell us whether or not you received prices in connection with this letter?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as immaterial, on the ground that there is no charge in the complaint or in the bill of particulars that the retail prices of purchasers such as the Paragon Company, were controlled. The ruling which applied to the alleged control of resales of the Witness Perry should be applied in this instance.

Justice Stephens: What is the purpose of this testimony; what are you intending to prove by it as far as the complaint is concerned, or rather as far as the charges in the complaint is concerned?

Mr. Steffen: We don't wish to make an issue on this letter, your Honor. I would like to show him the next exhibit, if you would care to defer your ruling until that time, and I think at that time it will be clearer.

Justice Stephens: Very well.

By Mr. Steffen:

4991 Q. I show you Government's Exhibit No. 560, which purports to be a letter from Mr. Stromquist addressed to the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company, attention of Mr. Merriman, under date of July 9, 1928, and ask you to examine that, please, Mr. Hansen.

(Government's Exhibit No. 560 was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Can you identify that as Mr. Stromquist's signature, Mr. Hansen? A. You are asking me if I can identify it as Mr. Stromquist's signature?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: Just a moment, Mr. Steffen, let me read it.

All right, you may proceed.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I notice in the lower left-hand corner of the second page it shows that a copy may have been sent to the Paragon Plaster Company. Do you recall having received a copy of this letter? A. It would be a little difficult for me to say that. We had frequent correspondence, and I would assume that I received it.

Q. I notice also it has reference to the American 4992 Hardwall Plaster Company, Utica? A. Yes.

Q. Could you tell us whether your company and the American Hardwall, and the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company were all buying from the Universal at this time? A. As far as I know, we were.

Q. Could you be more explicit on that, could you say that you were? A. We were.

Q. By "this time", I mean at about the time of this letter, July 9, 1928? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, I want to call your attention to the fact that in the third paragraph of the letter on the first page, it says, "The very lowest prices"—

Mr. Bromley: (Interposing) I object to reading from a document not in evidence.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Let me call your attention to the third paragraph, Mr. Hansen—I will, if I may, withdraw that question, and offer the exhibit, Exhibit 560, in evidence.

I do it with this statement, that the witness has testified, identifying the signature of Mr. Stromquist. It is an obvious quotation of prices for board sold at that time to the two Paragon companies and to the American 4993 Hardwall Plaster Company. In the third paragraph it refers to the—excuse me, I may not read that into the record—but it refers to prices "for your plant at Oakfield."

Now in response to Mr. Bromley's objection, which he made in connection with Exhibit 559, I would make these two points. In the first place, this evidence is offered to show the preliminary arrangements out of which grew the arrangements between Oakfield and the licensees in 1929, 1930, and following, and Mr. Hansen's understanding, and of course the Paragon Plaster Company's understanding, of how those arrangements were carried through, is of course material.

Specifically, however, it provides in the third paragraph there as respects to the sales to "your plant at Oakfield."

We have developed that Oakfield Gypsum Company was the company which was being operated in close conjunction, at least, with the three shareholding companies. The only officers, or the principal officers or managers of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation were the principal officers of the three shareholding companies, and Mr. Hansen was an officer not only of the Paragon Plaster Company, but also was an executive of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation.

A letter coming to Paragon and referring to "your plant at Oakfield" refers to their purchases either as respects Oakfield or Paragon.

So that it seems to me that within the strict definition, Oakfield was their manufacturing distributor, and here are some preliminary papers in connection with the purchases of board by a manufacturing distributor. And, as I say, the basis upon which they made these early purchases—in fact it is only a year before the license agreement went into effect—has a considerable bearing to show the basis upon which they were subsequently handling board for Universal and other licensees.

Also, as a matter of fact, at this time, July 9, 1928, Universal was a licensee under the closed-edge patent, with the United States Gypsum Company.

Mr. Oliver: If the Court please, before you rule on this exhibit may we have an opportunity to see it?

Justice Stephens: Yes, you may see it.

Mr. Marshal, hand it to Mr. Oliver.

(The document referred to was handed to Mr. Oliver.)

Mr. Bromley: I make the same objection that I made to Exhibit 559, and call the Court's attention to the fact that there is no charge in the complaint that the resale prices of purchasers such as Paragon Plaster and Supply Company of Scranton, were controlled; and that this document is covered precisely by the ruling which this Court made with respect to the alleged control of the resales of the Witness Perry.

Furthermore, I object because there is no identification, no proper foundation laid, because this witness has not testified that this letter was sent to or received by the person to whom it was addressed. All he said was that he assumed that he got a copy of it. Certainly, that does not constitute a sufficient identification.

Of the two, however, it seems to me the objection to materiality is the more important since we asked the Government to list in their bill of particulars who the manufacturing distributors were whose retail prices they said were controlled, and they listed them but did not put in either the Paragon Plaster, the Paragon Plaster and Supply, or the American Hardwall Company.

Justice Stephens: Are you offering this to prove price fixing in respect of the three companies, Paragon Plaster and Supply and the other two mentioned, other than Oakfield, each of which owned a one-third interest in Oakfield, or are you offering it to prove price fixing with respect to Oakfield—or both?

Mr. Steffen: I think it is with regard to both, although what we are offering it for primarily is with regard to Oakfield.

Justice Stephens: What do you say to that, Mr. Bromley, that in so far as Oakfield was concerned it was a manufacturing distributor? Was it mentioned in the bill of particulars?

Mr. Bromley: Yes. But how can this have any bearing on the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation? It isn't addressed to and was not sent to or received by the 4996 Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation.

Mr. Steffen: I should like to ask the witness what I tried to ask him earlier, as to what he understood by the third paragraph there.

Mr. Bromley: This question was all gone into at the criminal case and these documents were excluded at the criminal case—

Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) I say that is not material.

Mr. Bromley: (Continuing)—because all this one has to do with, for instance, is the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company. It has nothing to do with the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation. The same argument was made in the criminal case and these exhibits were all excluded on the theory that there was no charge that the defendants were attempting to control the prices of the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company, the Paragon Plaster or the American Hardwall Company.

Justice Stephens: I have some difficulty in seeing, Mr. Steffen, even if the Court should draw the conclusion from the testimony of this witness that the four companies were one and the same, since you do not charge in the bill of particulars that there was any attempt to control the prices of the three, other than Oakfield, how these exhibits can be material, or how this exhibit, rather, can be material.

We ruled with respect to Perry, we all agreed
4997 that the objection should be sustained and the motion to strike granted, there being no charge in the complaint of resale price fixing on plaster, board and other gypsum products by wholesalers, as distinguished from manufacturing distributors.

This seems to be a parallel situation.

Mr. Steffen: May I point out the lack of parallel, as I see it?

Justice Stephens: Yes.

Mr. Steffen: The Perry situation was very different, as I see it, in this respect, that Perry was simply doing a sales business. The Paragon Plaster and Supply Company and the Paragon Plaster Company, together with the American Hardwall Plaster Company, as I have developed rather fully, were organized to run the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation. The Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation was a manufacturing distributor, and as I introduce further exhibits it will appear that the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation in a year or so became the sole purchaser of board, as a manufacturing distributor. Nothing of that sort occurred in the Perry case. There was no transition period in the sales of Perry, where he, for a period, served part as distributor and part as wholesaler. It was, in that case, just a plain case of a commission man or a salesman who was selling, and your Honors, I think, decided quite rightly that we had made no charge with respect to that.

4998 Now in this case we are not offering this, as I say, for purposes of proving that the defendants attempted to fix the prices at which the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company or the Paragon Plaster Company or the Hardwall Plaster Company sold.

We are offering this to show the basis upon which these sales were being handled in 1928, the year before the license agreements were generally effective in the industry, and it would be, therefore, very persuasive to determine how they handled it one year later.

Justice Stephens: Well, handled it in respect of whom, Paragon, the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company, the American Hardwall Plaster Company or Oakfield?

Mr. Steffen: The Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation.

Justice Stephens: I don't understand that there is any objection to the exhibit with respect to Oakfield, based upon the contention that there is no charge of resale price fixing with respect to Oakfield. The objection is, as to Oakfield, that it doesn't relate to Oakfield.

Mr. Steffen: I point out the third paragraph, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: In other words, you contend that the phrase, "your plant at Oakfield" refers to the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation? I am asking you, Mr. Steffen, is that your contention?

Mr. Steffen: Yes, but I would like to ask this 4999 witness that question at some time, if you have any doubt.

Mr. Bromley: The unfairness of this shift of ground is illustrated by the fact that in every other instance in his bill of particulars, where he had a parent company and a subsidiary, where the charge was that we controlled the prices of both of them, he listed them.

For instance, take the Michigan Gypsum Company, listed in his bill of particulars as a manufacturing distributor. It had a parent, the Alabastine Company, and if you will look in the bill of particulars you will find not only the Michigan Gypsum Company listed, but also the Alabastine Company listed. Likewise, the Structural Gypsum Corporation, of which we have heard so much from Mr. Lenci, had a parent, the American Cyanamid Company. If you will look at the bill of particulars you will find the American Cyanamid Company listed.

Now, when we come to Oakfield there is no suggestion anywhere that they are going to charge us with having fixed the prices of the parents, as they do not list the parents. They list Oakfield but none of the parents. But it seems to me that that is very persuasive that this shift of ground constitutes such a surprise to us that it ought not to be permitted, and it is clearly immaterial to this case.

Justice Stephens: I don't understand this aspect of your objection, Mr. Bromley. You do concede that the bill of particulars did charge the fixing of resale prices 5000 of Oakfield, a manufacturing distributor. Now, if that is true, how can we exclude a letter which refers to the orders for the Oakfield plant, if it does?

Mr. Bromley: There isn't anything in this letter that has anything to do with the resale prices of Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation. You don't contend that, do you, Mr. Steffen?

Mr. Steffen: Oh, yes.

Mr. Bromley: Where is there any reference in this letter to the resale prices of Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation?

Mr. Steffen: Would you like to hear from me on that?

Justice Stephens: Yes.

Mr. Steffen: I will call your attention to the third paragraph. I think I will read this very carefully for you:

"The very lowest prices we can make you on your orders for your plant at Oakfield, N. Y. are as follows:

Gypsolite Wallboard.....$21.00 per M. sq. ft.
Star Gypsum Wallboard.....$15.00 per M. sq. ft.
f.o.b. our plant Akron, New York."

Then the next paragraph, which is related thereto states:

"On orders for your plants at Syracuse, Utica, Bloomsburg and Scranton (three of those are three we have spoken of before, the two Paragon companies and the American Hardwall, and I don't know what Bloomsburg refers to), we will give you the following prices:

5001 Gypsolite Wallboard.....$22.00 per M. sq. ft.
Star Gypsum Wallboard.....$16.00 per M. sq. ft.
f.o.b. our plant Akron, New York."

Now, that is the price to the two Paragon companies and the American Hardwall Plaster at their Syracuse, Utica and Scranton plants, and also the price to them at their Oakfield plant, or rather to the Oakfield plant.

Now, it says, in the next to the last paragraph:

"In quoting carload prices to your dealer trade on Gypsolite Wallboard, you will please maintain our standard price of $25.00 per M. sq. ft."

That is certainly a provision ordering or requiring that resale prices be maintained not only on the sales made directly by Paragon to the dealer trade but also upon the sales made by Oakfield. We have carefully developed in the testimony here that those sales that were made at Oakfield were made by the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, and it would be quite appropriate to write to Mr. Hansen, or to Mr. Merriman, or Mr. Eldred and say, inasmuch as they were also officers at Oakfield, "At your plant we will sell you at such-and-such a price, and you will resell at such-and-such a price."

Now, it may be a misfortune that this letter was put together that way, that is, that it refers also to Paragon. But it distinctly refers to their sales, to the prices to be sold to them at Oakfield, and to the resale prices 5002 to be paid by them—reading rather loosely—either at Oakfield or at Syracuse, Utica and Scranton.

Justice Stephens: When you talk about "resale prices", do you mean the resale prices of the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company—and what are the other two?

Mr. Bromley: They are at the bottom of that letter, the second page.

Mr. Steffen: They are the three shareholder companies.

Justice Stephens: The Paragon Plaster and Supply Company, the Paragon Plaster Company, and the American Hardwall Plaster Company.

Mr. Steffen: Yes.

Justice Stephens: You contend that this letter tends to prove the fixing of a price at which they could resell their products either to Oakfield or to third parties.

Mr. Steffen: No, I am saying that the letter rather clearly says, as I read it, that these are prices quoted for shipment to "your plant at Oakfield, New York", meaning thereby of course the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation plant.

Then, secondly, "for your plants at Syracuse, Utica, * * * and Scranton"—meaning thereby the three parent companies.

Then the next to the last paragraph says, that is the next to the last paragraph on the first page, that 5003 on all business, whether sold by Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation or by either of the two Paragon companies or the American Hardwall Plaster Company, the price shall be $25 per thousand square feet. That is the price to the dealer trade, either the parent companies' dealer trade or Oakfield's dealer trade.

Mr. Bromley: Well, I never heard a more unsound argument. The letter isn't addressed to the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, either at the top of the page or at the bottom of page 2; and the third paragraph that he talks about beginning, "The very lowest prices we can make you on your orders for your plant at Oakfield, N. Y."—that is on Paragon's orders which Paragon may want to go to Oakfield.

The letter is not addressed to Oakfield, it wasn't received by Oakfield, and it wasn't sent to Oakfield, nor was a copy of it sent to or received by Oakfield.

Justice Stephens: The problem that troubles me about the admissibility of the letter, aside from the question of identification, is that if it purports to be a letter which fixes the resale prices of the Paragon Plaster Company, the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company, and the American Hardwall Plaster Company in their sales either to third parties or to Oakfield, it is not within the charge of the complaint; and if it is not that, what is there in there that indicates that it directed the resale price at which Oakfield should sell these items?

5004 Mr. Bromley: Not a thing.

Mr. Steffen: May I state this, your Honor?

The witness testified that there were purchases by the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation from Universal, as well as by Paragon. That was in his preliminary testimony. He stated that if Paragon, for example, had a mixed car order from a dealer in some other city, and they had to ship some neat plaster as well as some board, that they would send that order to Oakfield, their own subsidiary, and say, "Oakfield, ship to our customer one mixed car consisting of so much board and so much plaster."

And Oakfield, which had bought the board—and these were the arrangements we contend—would then invoice the board and make the sale clear through.

The point is that on that sale going to Paragon's dealer this letter says, "You shall charge $25 per thousand square feet."

Justice Stephens: Let me see if I clearly understand that argument. Your argument then is that in that class of sale concerning which Mr. Hansen testified, where Paragon Plaster and Supply, American Hardwall and Paragon Plaster Company would buy from Oakfield, Oakfield would bill those three companies just mentioned but would send the materials direct to the dealer?

Mr. Steffen: That is right.

5005 Justice Stephens: You contend that this letter tends to prove that when Oakfield did that, it had to do it at a price fixed by Universal under the license, or fixed by Universal, rather?

Mr. Steffen: That is right, and fixed under this letter.

Justice Stephens: And that that was a resale price of Oakfield to Paragon, American Hardwall and Paragon Plaster and Supply, or to third parties—which?

Mr. Steffen: Well, it ran through—you see there is no case just like this when you have three parent companies and one subsidiary company and where they are using the subsidiary company as a producing company. They have that company buy certain board, and they control the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation completely, and they have that company, the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation buy board, and then, in making sales to dealers, the parent companies would say, "Ship directly to the dealer to whom we have sold; invoice us and we will invoice the customer."

On that type of a transaction which has definitely to do with the manufacturing distributor, it is provided in this letter that those sales must be at $25 per thousand square feet, that is that the dealer would have to pay a $25 price.

That, we contend, is a very definite showing of control of a manufacturing distributor's prices. I would like to make one other point—

5006 Justice Stephens: (Interposing) What puzzles me, Mr. Steffen, is that this paragraph on which you rely says, "The very lowest prices we can make you on your orders for your plant at Oakfield, N. Y. are as follows". That does not sound like resale price fixing to me. It sounds like the price which either the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company or Oakfield would have to pay Universal when it bought goods.

Mr. Steffen: That is right.

Justice Stephens: What has that to do with the resale price?

Mr. Steffen: That is the paragraph that says that when you buy at Oakfield—and what the writer of this letter evidently was doing was saying, "Well, here is a jammed-up situation with three parent companies and one subsidiary, and we know that all four companies are doing business"—and what Stromquist says is, "Now, when you buy from us these are the prices at which you shall buy." That is in the first paragraph, to which I referred. He is saying, "If you are going to buy from us ("you", speaking loosely), you at your plant at Oakfield will pay $21 per thousand square feet; and you, at Utica, Syracuse and Scranton, will pay $22 per thousand square feet."

That is the purchase price from Universal.

Then, the next to the last paragraph on that page
5007 says, in effect, "As to both types of purchases, whether at Oakfield, Syracuse, or elsewhere, you will sell to dealers at a price of $25."

Now, what we have developed here is the way this transaction would go through would be that Universal would sell to Mr. Hansen's plant at Oakfield at $21 per thousand. Then when the sale by Oakfield is made, if made directly it would be made at $25. If it was made through the medium of Paragon, and then to the dealer, again it would be made at $25.

Now, may I make my two points, your Honor?

We offer it first, as I just suggested, as showing a definite control of a resale price by a named manufacturing distributor, the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation.

We offer it second for the inferential value that it will have as showing the understanding which Mr. Hansen had, which Mr. Merriman had, and which Mr. Eldred had, concerning these purchases from Universal, and concerning their requirement that it would be resold at a definite price.

Now, it is true that that might be regarded as an attempt to control, and I think it was an actual control of Paragon's resale price. We don't offer it because that is charged in the complaint; we offer it, however, to say that if they were controlling Paragon's resale price, and Paragon was so closely associated with Oakfield that that inferentially shows what the arrangement was in the en-
5008 suing years. The fact of the matter is that in some of the later years they just went along on a general industry understanding that they would have to abide by resale prices, and this is one of the very early letters which indicated the set-up which existed prior to some of the later letters which we will offer.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Bromley, what do you say to Mr. Steffen's contention that the next to the last paragraph on page of proposed Exhibit 560, "In quoting carload prices to your dealer trade on Gypsolite Wallboard, you will please maintain our standard price of $25 per M. square feet"—applies to Oakfield?

Mr. Bromley: I say that it clearly does not apply to Oakfield. It says, "to your dealer trade". That must mean Paragon Plaster and Supply Company's dealer. That is the company to whom the letter is addressed. It is not addressed to Oakfield and no copy of it was ever sent to Oakfield. The letter shows very clearly what "your dealer trade in Gypsolite Wallboard" means, all the way through. The "your" refers to Paragon Plaster and Supply Company.

Now, you can extend it to at least two other companies by virtue of the fact that the endorsement at the end of the letter shows that a copy of this letter went to two other companies, the American Hardwall Plaster Company, and to the Paragon Plaster Company, but it did not go to Oakfield.

How in the world they can say that this was a 5009 request of Oakfield that Oakfield, in reselling, maintain Universal's prices, I do not see. It may be a request of the Paragon Plaster Company, and it may be a request of the American Hardwall Plaster Company, and of the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company, but you cannot get it beyond that.

As far as it being strange that a person should buy board, a company should buy board, like Paragon, and have the supplier send it to Oakfield, or direct to the customer, we have had a lot of testimony about that. That is what happened between Kelley and Structural. Structural would buy from Kelley, and Kelley would make the delivery to Structural's customer. There is nothing strange about that.

Justice Stephens: Is there anything further on either side?

Mr. Bromley: No, sir.

Mr. Steffen: Before your Honor rules may I develop further from the witness his understanding of this arrangement, what this letter would mean to him and what "your plant at Oakfield" means?

Justice Stephens: Well, the exhibit is not identified yet. It seems to me it ought to be in evidence, at least, and under examination by someone who received it and knows about it, before it is to be given an interpretation contrary to its flat meaning.

We are all agreed, Mr. Steffen, that so far as 5010 the letter purports to be an attempt to fix the resale prices of Paragon Plaster and Supply Company, American Hardwall Plaster Company, and the Paragon Plaster Company, it is not admissible because there is no charge to that effect in the complaint, that there was any resale price fixing so far as those three companies were concerned.

Mr. Steffen: We agree with that.

Justice Stephens: In so far as concerns the attempted use of the exhibit to show a resale price fixing of Oakfield in its sales, it seems to us that the letter perfectly clearly, on its face, does not apply to Oakfield in respect of the dealer trade which is mentioned in the next to the last paragraph on page 1.

It apparently might apply to Oakfield in the third paragraph in respect to orders for Oakfield from Universal. But how it can be said by any strain of the instrument to apply to resales by Oakfield, when in the next to the last paragraph on the first page it says, "To your dealer trade", in a letter addressed to the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company, with copies to the American Hardwall Company and the Paragon Plaster Company, we just aren't able to see, how it has any bearing on Oakfield's resales.

We do not of course deny you the opportunity to prove by proper exhibits that there was resale price fixing in respect of Oakfield, but we don't see how this exhibit proves it.

Mr. Steffen: I don't know that it proves it but—5011 Justice Stephens: Perhaps I should have said—tends to prove it.

Mr. Steffen: I would like in the morning, if I may, to ask Mr. Hansen concerning his understanding of the arrangement, and what he understood, "The very lowest prices we can make you on your orders for your plant at Oakfield"—might mean.

Mr. Oliver: I would object to that, because this witness stated that he only assumed it was received, and now to ask him to look at it and try to construe language—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Well, certainly that question cannot be asked unless the exhibit is identified and the witness is shown to have some familiarity with the transaction. If you can identify it we will consider then whether or not this witness is permitted to show what it is and what the trade understanding of these four companies was with respect to it.

Can you identify it by someone else and can you bring someone else who can show some familiarity with this correspondence?

Mr. Steffen: We have identified it by showing the correctness of the signature; and the second point of identification is that we took it from, or it came from the files, of Universal—no, I am mistaken, we took it from the files of Paragon. In any event, it was supplied by one of those companies, I think it was the Paragon Plaster and Sup-5012 ply Company. I can verify that in the morning.

Justice Stephens: Are you familiar with Mr. Stromquist's signature?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Justice Stephens: But you don't have any recollection of having received this letter yourself?

The Witness: Judge—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) I am not asking you to strain your recollection or suggesting that you ought to remember it. I just want the fact.

The Witness: Well, if you speak of this particular letter, I have got to say no. I have received carbon copies of letters from time to time, but to say, from my memory, that I know I got this carbon copy, I cannot.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. This was the usual way of receiving information from Universal? A. It was the custom to send a letter to one company, and carbon copies to the other two.

Q. And was there a special letter sent to Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation? A. No. We maintained no office at Oakfield other than a mill office.

Q. So it would be normal for the letter to reach you at either Scranton, Utica, or Syracuse? A. Letters 5013 addressed to the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation would have been sent to one of the three points, that is, correspondence from Universal.

Q. And a letter that referred to matters which had to to do with Oakfield as well as Paragon, might be sent simply to Paragon, is that right? A. Repeat that, will you?

Q. I say that a letter which might have to do with both Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation matters and Paragon Plaster and Supply Company matters, might be sent simply, as this one appears to have been, to the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company.

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as speculative.

Mr. Steffen: He can tell what the routine of his office was.

Justice Stephens: That wasn't the question. You asked him how it might be sent. If you want to develop what the practices between the three companies were, you can do that, but we will have to do that tomorrow.

Mr. Johnston: If the members of the Court are not going to be using those exhibits tonight, might I borrow a set?

Justice Jackson: You may borrow mine.

Mr. Johnston: There is one other matter. This Exhibit 559 refers to a letter of January 21, and Exhibit 560 refers to a letter of June 13. I would like to see those over the recess tonight, if I may.

5014 Justice Stephens: If they are available, let them be supplied to defendants' counsel so that the correspondence will be understood.

(Whereupon, at 4:10 p. m., a recess was taken until 10:00 o'clock a. m., Wednesday March 22, 1944.)

5015 IN THE

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Civil Action No. 8017

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY; NATIONAL GYPSUM COMPANY; CERTAIN-TEED PRODUCTS CORPORATION; THE CELOTEX CORPORATION; EBSARY GYPSUM COMPANY, INC.; NEWARK PLASTER COMPANY; SAMUEL M. GLOYD, doing business under the name of TEXAS CEMENT PLASTER COMPANY; SEWELL L. AVERY; OLIVER M. KNODE; MELVIN H. BAKER; BROR H. DAHLBERG; HENRY J. HARTLEY; FREDERICK G. EBSARY; and FREDERICK TOMKINS,

Defendants.

Seventh Floor,
Internal Revenue Building,
Washington, D. C.,
Wednesday, March 22, 1944.

The above-entitled cause came on for further hearing at 10:00 o'clock a.m., pursuant to adjournment, before Honorable Harold M. Stephens, Honorable Finis J. Garrett, and Honorable Joseph R. Jackson, sitting as the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

APPEARANCES:

(Same as heretofore noted.)

5016 Justice Stephens: Page 5176, line 14, the word "but" should be stricken out, and the word "that" written in in its place.

There was one point in the morning session that I would like to have an explanation of, if it can be explained without recalling Mr. Lenci, as I suppose it probably can be by agreement. At page 5217, lines 6 and 7, this answer appears:

"A. That is correct, and that was deducted from 5017 the amount we got at destination."

The previous question was:

"Q. • • • But so far as the freight which was paid by your customers was concerned, they paid freight to the railroad based on the arbitrary weight of the board which had been agreed upon prior to that time between you and the railroad? A. That is correct, and that was deducted from the amount we got at destination."

I wasn't quite clear, and I think the past testimony will show it, whether or not the freight was ultimately borne by the customer or by the manufacturer. Apparently the customer paid it, but was it later deducted?

Justice Jackson: The portion absorbed by the manufacturer was given as a credit, as I understand it.

Mr. Bromley: That is right.

Justice Stephens: The portion absorbed by the manufacturer was given as a credit, but not the entire freight?

Justice Jackson: No, not the entire freight.

Mr. Knuff: The way I understand it was handled was that the invoice was sent out by the company, showing the board plus the freight.

Justice Stephens: By "plus the freight", you mean the freight as indicated in the bulletins?

Mr. Knuff: No, the actual freight. Then, if the 5018 buyer paid that, when he would settle with the company he would claim the amount of freight that he paid as a credit against the invoice that the company sent him.

Justice Stephens: The entire amount that he paid?

Mr. Knuff: Yes, that is my understanding.

I don't think the customer ever knew anything about freight absorption at all. That was a matter that the manufacturer handled himself. A customer never knew whether the freight was absorbed or wasn't absorbed.

Justice Stephens: But the price made to the customer was the mill base price plus the freight to destination from the nearest mill base? That was the price announced to the customer and the price he paid?

Mr. Knuff: Based on the bulletin shipping weight.

Justice Stephens: That is right. And the customer paid the whole amount of that?

Mr. Steffen: That is correct.

Justice Stephens: And then deducted what?

Mr. Knuff: He would deduct the amount of the freight that he had paid to the railroad company, from the invoice.

Justice Stephens: And that would be the freight from mill base to destination?

Mr. Knuff: That is right.

Justice Jackson: That answer is correct at lines 6 and 7, then?

5019 Mr. Knuff: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Is that right, Mr. Collins?

Mr. Collins: As I understand it, the invoice from the manufacturer to the customer will show the mill base plus the freight from the nearest mill to the point of destination. Now if a manufacturer has a mill further away, he will ship the board and the freight on that board will be in excess of the freight specified on the invoice.

Justice Stephens: That is right.

Mr. Collins: The customer pays that freight and deducts that entire amount from the invoice when he remits to the manufacturer.

Justice Stephens: That is what I thought, but I wanted to be certain.

Justice Jackson: Then the answer is correct on lines 6 and 7?

Mr. Collins: Yes.

5022 Justice Stephens: Page 5254, I want to ask a question. In the question commencing at line 6, which reads:

"Q. And when you say 'excessive discount', you mean a discount in excess of the amount provided for in the consent, to-wit, 15 percent on board and 12-1/2 percent on lath; is that right?"

Now there the discussion had to do, as I remember it, Mr. Bromley, with the discount allowed to a manufacturing distributor, and I am puzzled by the use of the phrase "excessive discount". I thought that under the bulletins, if consent was given to sell to a manufacturing distributor, he got a discount of a fixed nature; but that if he was not a manufacturing distributor, or ceased to be one, he didn't get any discount at all—so that it wasn't a question of excessive discount, but a question of the existence or nonexistence of any discount. Maybe I am misinformed about that.

Mr. Bromley: I think this question has reference to a complaint which was made against Kelley, which was that while Kelley, in his sales to Structural, was entitled to give a discount to Structural because Structural was a manufacturing distributor, instead of making the discount 15 percent, merely, Kelley made it more than that.

5023 Justice Stephens: I see.

Mr. Bromley: That was a price reduction to Structural, then, contrary to the bulletins.

Justice Stephens: That clears that up in my mind.

I have no other questions.

Justice Garrett: I would like to ask Mr. Steffen a question.

On page 5299, Mr. Steffen, in line 21, should the word "not" be inserted before "charged"? Perhaps that is stated like you wish to state it.

Mr. Steffens: I think it is all right, Your Honor. The idea was that we didn't offer it to prove that the defendants were fixing the resale prices of jobbers.

Justice Garrett: All right.

Justice Stephens: Now, in order to clarify the record with respect to this proposed Exhibit 560, I will state what my own views are concerning it—

Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) Your Honor, may I interrupt and ask, before there is a final ruling, that we have some further opportunity to explain the situation—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) I wasn't about to make a final ruling. I was about to state my own views, and ask my colleagues to express theirs, as I wasn't entirely certain whether we were in full agreement, but not with the idea of making a final ruling. We will hear you fur-5024 ther upon it before a final ruling is made.

Mr. Steffen: I have some further questions and some further exhibits that may clarify the matter somewhat.

Justice Stephens: My own view is that Exhibit 560 is not admissible to prove resale price fixing by Paragon Plaster and Supply, American Hardwall Plaster Company, or Paragon Plaster Company, because there is no charge in the complaint or bill of particulars that there was resale price fixing so far as those companies were concerned.

So far as Oakfield is concerned, it is my personal view that Exhibit 560 is not yet identified sufficiently to be admitted, for two reasons:

In the first place, there is no showing yet—I suppose this can easily be supplied—that Stromquist was an official or agent of Universal; and, second, there is no showing yet that the letter came out of the possession of the person to whom it was directed, or the firm to which it was directed, to-wit, Paragon Plaster and Supply Company.

I think if the showing is merely that it came out of the files of one of the other two companies, that isn't sufficient to prove that it reached the attention of the company against whom it is now offered, to-wit, Paragon Plaster and Supply, in respect of Oakfield, in connection with whom it is now offered.

I am of the view also that even if Exhibit 560 can 5025 be identified, on its face it doesn't tend to prove—and therefore isn't relevant or material—anything in respect of resale price fixing by Oakfield.

However, I think it might be that the witness, who is familiar with the practice and correspondence between these companies, might be interrogated upon the subject of what the letter does mean, if it is not clear on its face. If it had a trade meaning, it can be explained, just as the bulletins have been explained in respect of their trade meaning.

I don't quite understand, however, I will say frankly to Government counsel, why it is necessary to take so much time on the exhibit, although of course I don't assume to tell you how to try your own case. However, I should think if there was probably a resale price fixing by Universal and Oakfield, on sales by Oakfield, that this witness, or other witnesses in his situation, would have known about it and could be asked about it directly.

Those are merely expressions of my views as presently in my mind. I am open to conviction or further argument upon them. I am not foreclosing you from being heard or from asking the witness further questions.

Perhaps my colleagues would like to express themselves. I am not quite sure what their views are.

Justice Garrett: Well, briefly, by reason of the 5026 relationship shown to exist between this witness, or his company, Paragon, and Oakfield, and in view of the witness' statement that it was customary for correspondence addressed to Oakfield to be sent to one of these companies and carbon copies of the same sent to the other companies, a relationship is shown which would render admissible, for whatever it would be worth, a letter properly identified in other particulars, as against Oakfield.

I agree that the letter has not yet been sufficiently identified in other particulars to render it admissible at this stage of the proceedings. I, of course, express no opinion whatever as to how much weight it is entitled to, if admitted. That is a question that will have to be determined later.

That is all I have to say about it.

Justice Jackson: You are going to further interrogate this witness, are you not?

Mr. Steffen: That is right.

Justice Jackson: I don't see any sense in expressing an opinion right now, and I haven't any right now.

Mr. Steffen: Mr. Hansen, will you take the stand?

Thereupon, EMIL HANSEN the witness on the stand at the time of adjournment, resumed his testimony as follows:

5027 Direct Examination (resumed)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Mr. Hansen, yesterday you were looking at Exhibit 560, which was dated July 9, 1928. I think you might be shown that now, please.

(Exhibit 560 handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Do you recall, Mr. Hansen, that you received other letters from the Universal Gypsum & Lime Company similar to this, concerning prices of board?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as immaterial and incompetent. In view of the nicety of the distinctions with which we are dealing, I don't think it is proper to ask him if he received other letters similar to this.

Mr. Steffen: I will show you what has been marked as Government's Exhibit 561—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) The objection is sustained as to that question, so that the record may be clear—but you may present this additional exhibit. Is that the letter of June 3?

Mr. Steffen: No, Your Honor, I didn't anticipate the difficulty that we ran into yesterday, and I am now forced to show Mr. Hansen certain other correspondence, which is relevant and which is very material as respects the relationship between the companies.

5028 Justice Jackson: Does anybody have copies?

Mr. Steffen: No, I am sorry, no one has copies.

Justice Stephens: Then we will have to examine them as they are offered.

(The document referred to was marked Government's Exhibit No. 561 for Identification.)

Justice Stephens: You read it first, Mr. Witness.

(Witness examines Exhibit 561 for Identification.)

Mr. Steffen: Exhibit 561 purports to be a letter dated February 4, 1929, signed by Mr. Stromquist and addressed to Mr. E. L. Merriman, Paragon Plaster and Supply Company, with a reference to Mr. Eldred and Mr. Emil Hansen, and others, at the top of the letter, as receiving copies.

(Exhibit 561 for Identification handed to the Court for examination, and a copy also handed to defendants' counsel for examination.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Have you examined Govenment's Exhibit 561, Mr. Hansen? A. Have I examined it?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. And is that Mr. Stromquist's signature? A. I would say so.

5029 Q. Do you recall having received this copy? A. No. This was 16 or 17 years ago. I just couldn't recall this specific copy.

Q. Do you have any reason to doubt that it was a copy that your company received?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as incompetent because calling for a conclusion.

Justice Stephens: Sustained.

Mr. Steffen: I will show the witness two other items.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I now show you what has been marked Government's Exhibit 562—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) We do not have that, either?

Mr. Steffen: That is right, Your Honor.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 562 for Identification.)

(Exhibit No. 562 for Identification was handed to the witness, and a photostatic copy to the Court, for examination, after which the photostatic copy was handed to defendants' counsel for examination.)

Mr. Steffen: I also hand to the Court a copy of Exhibit 563 for Identification, while the witness is looking at Exhibit 562 for Identification, and call your attention to 5030 the letterhead and the printing in the upper right-hand corner. It will be offered for that only.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 563 for Identification.)

(Photostatic copy of Exhibit No. 563 for Identification handed to the Court for examination; then handed to Defendants' counsel for examination.)

Mr. Steffen: I would like to show the witness what has been marked as Government's Exhibit 563, which is a letter dated April 1, 1940, on the letterhead of the Paragon Plaster Company, and which contains a reference to the General Offices at Syracuse and the mine and mill offices at Oakfield, New York, in the upper right-hand corner.

(Exhibit 563 for Identification handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Now, Mr. Hansen, looking at Government's Exhibit 562, which is the Ebsary Gypsum Company letter, can you identify that as a letter signed by Mr. Lenci? A. Yes.

Q. Is that a letter that was received by you? A. I would say so.

Justice Jackson: I don't believe Mr. Johnston hears either counsel or the witness.

5031 Mr. Steffen: I am sorry.

Justice Stephens: Read the last two questions and answers in a loud, clear tone of voice, Mr. Reporter.

(The record was read by the reporter as requested.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Now, looking at Government's Exhibit 563, Mr. Hansen, can you tell us whether that is the letterhead that your company used, the Paragon Company used? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And for what period of time did you use that letterhead? A. Oh, I would say that we had used that general letterhead for a period of ten years.

Q. And in the upper right-hand corner it says that you have offices at Syracuse and also a mine and mill at Oakfield? A. That is right.

Q. And what did you mean to imply by that? A. We, as one-third owners of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, for the purpose of maintaining prestige for the Paragon Plaster Company, claimed to be manufacturers, and therefore said that we had a mill at Oakfield, that being the producing unit for the Paragon Plaster Company at the time.

5032 Q. And it was also the producing unit for the other Paragon company and for Hardwall, is that right? A. That is right.

Q. And that mill was what mill? A. The mill of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation.

Q. Which you were a one-third shareowner in? A. That is right.

Q. Did the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporaton have a sales office or a general office at Oakfield, in 1928? A. Not a sales office, just a mill office.

Q. And if there were to be purchases, say, from the Universal Gypsum Company, of board, from what office would they be handled?

Justice Stephens: Purchases from whom?

Mr. Steffen: From Universal Gypsum Company, for example, for account of Oakfield.

The Witness: They would probably have been made from the Syracuse office.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. That is, your office, the Paragon Plaster Company's office, in Syracuse? A. Yes, sir, orders would have been issued from there.

Q. Would you have personally handled that type of order? A. I would have directed it, after consulta-5033 tion with my two associates as to where business was to be placed.

Q. What do you mean by that? A. Well, I mean as to what company we were placing an order with; and when I say "we", I mean the Oakfield Gypsum Company.

Q. And the Oakfield Gypsum Company, on this type of transaction, would be the buyer from Universal? A. That is right.

Q. And you, or your office, the Paragon office, would place the order with Universal?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that. He has just said that it was Oakfield Gypsum Products that would place the order with Universal, not Paragon.

Justice Stephens: That is correct, Mr. Steffen.

Mr. Steffen: I fell into the same error, I think, that probably the other persons, whose correspondence we have shown here, have—

Mr. Bromley: (Interposing) I don't think that that is a fair inference, and I object to that statement. There is nothing in the record so far to support that.

Justice Stephens: There is nothing in the record to support that. I think it should go out.

Mr. Bromley: While we are on the subject, could we have the witness tell us who he meant when he said, in answer to Mr. Steffen's question, he conferred with 5034 his two associates?

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Who did you mean by that? A. Mr. Merriman and Mr. Eldred.

Q. Mr. Merriman was with what company? A. With the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company.

Q. And Mr. Eldred was with American Hardwall? A. Yes.

Justice Stephens: When you speak of conferring with your two associates as to Oakfield's purchases, or purchases from Universal for Oakfield, you mean your associates on the Executive Committee of Oakfield?

The Witness: I didn't get that, Judge.

Justice Stephens: When you refer to your two associates, as you have just been referring to them, do you mean your two associates on the Executive Committee of Oakfield?

The Witness: That is right.

Justice Stephens: I see.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Well, let's assume, Mr. Hansen, that from time to time the Oakfield Gypsum Products Company would buy board from Universal, during this period in 1928 and 1929; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And where would the order start from?

5035 A. From the Syracuse office.

Q. And you would place the order with Universal, you personally, after consulting, as I understand it, with your two associates? A. I would direct the placing of it.

Q. Thank you. And the order would be placed on forms, would it? A. Yes.

Q. And what name would appear on those forms? A. The Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation forms.

Q. And the correspondence concerning the Oakfield business would be returned to the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation at the Paragon Plaster Company's office at Syracuse, would it? A. Well, it was also the Oakfield office. Our Oakfield stationery would show an office at 300 West Water Street.

Q. 300 West Water Street is the address of the Paragon Plaster Company, also? A. That is right.

Q. Now referring to Government's Exhibit 561, which I think you have before you, Mr. Hansen, can you tell us what you understood by the statement, "On shipments to your plant at Oakfield, N. Y."?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that, first, because it calls for an interpretation of a writing, which doesn't need 5036 any; and, second, because this document is not in evidence.

Justice Stephens: The document not yet having been offered or received in evidence, we haven't reached the point where its meaning is to be considered. You must first offer it in evidence and see if it is qualified to come into evidence. Then if there is any doubt about its meaning, or if it means something different from what it states on its face, in the trade, we will consider whether you can go into that.

The objection is sustained, as presently made, on the present state of the record.

Mr. Steffen: I will now offer Government's Exhibit No. 561.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Marshal, hand the exhibit back to the Court again.

(Exhibit No. 561 for Identification handed to the Court.)

Justice Stephens: Does the record show from whose files this came, Mr. Steffen?

Mr. Steffen: We can state to the Court, and we verified that last night, that these papers that we are now offering, or that we are now presenting before the Court—and I mean by that Exhibits 560, 561 and 562—came from the files of the Paragon Plaster Company. Exhibit 563 was, of course, addressed to us.

5037 Justice Stephens: Do you wish to be heard as to whether that is sufficient identification? It appears now in the record, I think, Mr. Bromley, that this witness identifies the signature of Stromquist,—I don't think he has yet testified who Stromquist was, in connection with Universal,—and it also appears from the statement of counsel, unless that is disputed, that this letter was taken from the files of this witness' company, the Paragon Plaster Company.

Mr. Bromley: I do not dispute that. I think, however, since the witness has testified that he can not say that he received it, it still has failed of identification; and, of course, I object to it on the ground of materiality.

Justice Stephens: Well, we are not reaching that yet.

Mr. Bromley: Yes, sir.

Mr. Steffen: May I be heard, Your Honor?

Justice Stephens: Yes.

Mr. Steffen: Granting that the item has been identified, so far as Mr. Stromquist's signature is concerned—and I doubt if there will be any dispute as to his reputation of the company, that has not been raised seriously yet—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Let's clear that up. Do you know who Stromquist was, in connection with Universal?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Who was he?

The Witness: He was the Eastern Sales Manager.

5038 Justice Stephens: Very well, that is out, now. What is the rest of your statement?

Mr. Steffen: Waiving any question of materiality for the moment, we would offer it for the purpose of showing that there were price quotations coming to the Paragon Plaster & Supply Company, and to each of the other companies, and that they were quoted prices not only to the Paragon companies and Hardwall, but to "your plant at Oakfield", and that "your plant at Oakfield" could only mean the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation.

Now I think it puts us in an impossible position not to permit us to ask what is meant by that. It is merely a preliminary question—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) I am sorry, Mr. Steffen, but you said a moment ago you were waiving the question of materiality for the moment. Are you asking this question for the purpose of identifying the document?

Mr. Steffen: These three exhibits are presented for purposes of showing that the term appearing in Exhibit 560, which is the exhibit we had last night, "The very lowest prices we can make you on your orders for your plant at Oakfield, N. Y.", is an ambiguous statement. At least, it seems to have caused doubt in the mind of the Court as to what was meant by "on your orders for your plant at Oakfield", and we have now presented for the Court Ex-5039 hibits 561, 562 and 563—and 561 and 562, particularly, are letters sent to the parent companies, and relate to "your plant at Oakfield", and have to do with prices and sales conditions.

So it would seem from those two letters, if I may have the witness state what is understood by "your plant at Oakfield"—and I think he has substantially clarified that—that it means the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation.

Justice Stephens: I don't understand that we have reached that question yet, Mr. Steffen. Let me state what I think the point of view of the Court is in respect of its duties and rulings on these questions of evidence.

In the first place, you have got to look back and see what the issues are, what issue this is offered under. Well, it is offered to prove, as I understand it, that there was resale price fixing by Oakfield in sales, in connection with Universal, of products purchased from Universal. Now that is what it is offered to prove. Whether it proves that or not, or tends to prove it, depends upon the content of the document, and that has to do with its relevancy and materiality, which are questions of logic and probative force and have nothing to do with identification.

Before we reach those questions, the question is whether or not this document was sent out by Universal and received by Paragon. Now that is the only question we have got before us, before we reach the question of mate-5040 riality and relevancy. I don't see that the meaning of the phrases in the document has anything to do with determining whether or not it was sent out by Universal and received by Paragon, this man's company.

Mr. Steffen: I am sorry, I thought that Your Honor had gone on to the question of what the letter meant, and this evidence was to show that it was a letter directed to affect or control or specify the prices at which Oakfield would resell.

Justice Stephens: The first thing you have to show is as to whether or not this was sent out by Universal and received by Paragon, the company of which this witness is an officer. Now that is the only objection before us at the present time, that it hasn't been sufficiently identified as a letter sent out by Universal and received by Paragon.

Isn't that the only objection you are raising now, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, sir.

Justice Stephens: As to that, do you wish to be heard?

Mr. Steffen: I certainly do, Your Honor.

I would say that on this matter of materiality, which I think is immediately—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) We haven't reached the question of materiality. We are talking about identification, first. Its materiality and relevancy will reach 5041 the threshold of the Court's consideration when you first identify the document as a document sent out by Universal and received by this witness' company, Paragon. We don't say you haven't identified it, we are just giving you an opportunity to be heard.

Mr. Steffen: On the matter of identification, we have identified the signature, and we have further stated to the Court—and Mr. Bromley agrees—that it was taken from the files of the Paragon Plaster Company.

Now this is presented as a declaration on the part of the Universal Gypsum & Lime Company by Mr. Stromquist. It is in furtherance of the conspiracy, as we have alleged it in the complaint. Paragraph 45(e) says that the defendants have violated the Sherman Act by "concertedly inducing and coercing manufacturing distributors to resell • • • ". These are letters which are addressed, in the first place, to the three parent companies. Even though they were never received at all by the companies, they would be declarations of an alleged co-conspirator in furtherance of the conspiracy.

We have shown, however, that they were received, and they were taken from the files of the Paragon Plaster Company.

That, I should say, is sufficient, certainly, to show that the papers are properly identified; and, moreover, that they are material, unless there is some doubt as to 5042 whether it affects the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, and on that I would reserve the right to be heard later.

Justice Stephens: What do you say about identification, Mr. Bromley? I thought we had ruled, on a number of occasions, that where a signature is identified by a person who knows the handwriting of the purported signer and knows his connection with the company for which he purports to sign it, and where it has been taken out of the files of the company of which the witness is an officer, that that is sufficient circumstantial identification that the exhibit was sent and received by the purported sender and receiver.

Mr. Bromley: I don't believe that rule has ever been applied by this Court in a situation where the files talked about were not files of a defendant or an alleged co-conspirator. These files of the Paragon Plaster & Supply Company, or the Paragon Plaster Company—I am not sure which—are files of somebody who is not a defendant, not even an alleged co-conspirator.

Justice Stephens: Does that go to the question of identification? Doesn't that go to the question whether the document is binding upon Oakfield? I think my colleagues agree with me that we are not going to receive this in evidence to prove resale price fixing or as tending to prove resale price fixing by the two Paragon companies or the American Hardwall, because that is not within the 5043 bill of particulars.

But now the Government is trying to prove resale price fixing by Oakfield. The claim is apparently that this letter meant, to the sender, and to the receivers, who were parents of Oakfield, something different from what it says on its face, with respect to resale price fixing by Oakfield. We haven't reached the question of what it means. We have reached the question as to whether or not it has been identified as a letter between the sender and the receiver. What difference does it make, so far as identification is concerned as distinguished from relevancy or its capacity to prove something against Oakfield, as to whether or not Paragon is a defendant?

Mr. Bromley: I think where a defendant produces a document from its files, to the Government, that that is a binding authentication, to some degree, of its genuineness and the fact that it was received, probably. But how can that rule apply to somebody who is not a party to the suit? How can that apply against us?

Justice Stephens: I may be wrong about it, but my idea was that evidence that a document is produced from a certain person's files to whom, on its face, it is addressed, is merely a matter of circumstantial evidence tending to show that it was received, and that it doesn't have to do with an admission, but maybe I am mistaken about that.

5044 Maybe the reason underlying the Court's rulings ought to be, with respect to the production of a document by a defendant, that it is more than mere circumstantial evidence, that it is in the nature of an admission that he received it.

Mr. Bromley: That is my understanding of the rule. I may be wrong.

Justice Stephens: We will take a recess for a few moments.

(Thereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed as follows:)

5045 Justice Stephens: We are of the view that the document is identified. Our idea, Mr. Bromley, is that the rule with respect to identification, which we have been following, is a rule of circumstantial evidence and not a rule of admissions.

If a document is supposed to be addressed to a particular person, and is found in his possession, even if he doesn't give it up voluntarily—which he did in this case—and it is shown to have proceeded from the source from which it purports to proceed, we think that is some evidence that it has been received by the purported recipient.

We therefore rule that the document is identified.

Since we have separated those questions of materiality and relevancy on the one hand, and identification on the other, and have confined the first ruling to identification, do you wish to be heard further as to whether or not, on its face, this document Mr. Steffen, tends to prove anything in respect of resale price fixing by Oakfield?

Mr. Steffen: Yes, I think perhaps I had better make a statement.

As your Honor has stated, and as we agree, we are not offering this at all for the purposes of showing resale price fixing by the Paragon Plaster Company or the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company, or the American Hardwall Plaster Company. They are jobbers, in this sense;

5046 and we did not charge in the complaint that there was any attempt by the defendants to fix the resale price by jobbers.

But we did charge in Paragraph 45(e) that the defendants violated the act by, "concertedly inducing and coercing manufacturing distributors to resell", and so forth.

I think that the letter—and I am now speaking with regard to Exhibit 560—on its face indicates—.

Justice Stephens: I thought we were talking about Exhibit 561 at the present time. We haven't ruled on the identification of Exhibit 560. We are ruling on 561. That is the one that all this argument has been about.

Mr. Steffen: Well, I think the argument—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) Was Exhibit 560 taken from the files of Paragon?

Mr. Steffen: Yes, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: That wasn't made clear to us. We thought we were dealing with 561, and that Exhibit 560 had been passed over for the time being. But if you want a ruling on Exhibit 560, all right—

Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) Exhibits 560, 561 and 562 were all taken from the files of the Paragon Plaster Company, and they have each been identified as far as signature is concerned.

Justice Stephens: It is conceded, is it, Mr. Bromley, that all three documents were taken out of the files of 5047 the Paragon Plaster Company?

Mr. Bromley: We don't know anything about it. I assume, if Mr. Hansen says so, that that is right.

Justice Stephens: It was Mr. Steffen that said so.

Mr. Steffen: I stated so, and I understood from Mr. Bromley a minute ago that he made no point—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) He made no point with respect to Exhibit 561, and I am simply trying to see to it, as it is my duty as presiding judge to do, that the record is clear on its face with respect to each exhibit offered.

There wasn't any statement concerning Exhibits 560 or 562. But you do state, yourself, that they came into your possession in connection with this covering letter which you displayed, directed to the Attorney General?

Mr. Steffen: No, your Honor. Which one do you speak of?

Justice Stephens: Exhibit 563 for identification.

Mr. Steffen: Exhibit 563 is a letter which we are simply showing to the Court for the purposes of presenting the letterhead of the Paragon Plaster Company.

Justice Stephens: I misunderstood you.

Mr. Steffen: On the matter of receiving these documents from the files of the Paragon Plaster Company, I can state for the Court's information that we have marked on the back of the papers, and I think you will find a mark on all the originals which was made there, placed there, at 5048 the time the papers were taken from the documents which were submitted to us under subpoena. It is a very careful marking, and if I may see the original of Exhibit 560, I can show it to the Court.

Mr. Bromley: I don't make any point of this. If you say you got these three exhibits, 560, 561 and 562 for identification, from the files of the Paragon Plaster Company, I will accept that.

Justice Stephens: Very well. That passes that question.

Now, the next question is what do any one of these exhibits show on their face with reference to resale price fixing by Oakfield under the direction or mandate of the Universal. We will hear you on that.

Mr. Steffen: I should like to refer first, then, to Exhibit 560, and in Exhibit 560, the next to the last paragraph on the first page gives an explicit injunction as follows:

"In quoting carload prices to your dealer trade on Gypsolite Wallboard, you will please maintain our standard price of $25 per M. sq. ft."

It also provides:

"Please use our standard weight of 1850 lbs. per M. sq. ft. in arriving at delivered prices."

We take that to be a straight injunction on the part of Universal to maintain resale prices on the sales of this board.

5049 Now, the question then comes as to what companies this is directed to. In the first place, it is obviously directed to the two Paragon companies and to the American Hardwall Plaster Company. On that I want to say that I think Judge Garrett stated our position very, very clearly, that the three parent companies here have the control of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Company, and what we have to establish is that we have an inducing or a coercion whereby the resale prices of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation are maintained.

Now, coercion may be brought directly against the company which is to sell, that is the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, or it may be brought against the parent companies, and in this case the letter is a flat statement that in selling from "your" Oakfield plant—and the testimony indicates that the Oakfield plant is the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation plant—"that you must maintain our resale prices."

Now, that seems to us to be very clear evidence of coercion, addressed to, if you wish, in the first place the shareholders, that is, the Paragon companies and the American Hardwall Plaster Company; and that, certainly, would have an influence on what the related company, the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, would do.

When you follow that with the evidence that we have that Mr. Hansen was also an officer of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, as well as of the Paragon 5050 Plaster Company, and moreover that he would be familiar with the purchases and transactions of Oakfield; and as a member of the executive committee would have control, together with his two associates, of the policies of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, it would seem to be very clear that upon sales made by Oakfield to dealers, they should understand that those sales should be made at the resale prices fixed by Universal.

Justice Stephens: Do you wish to be heard, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: I have not yet objected, and I therefore desire now to object, to Exhibits 561, 562 and 563 for identification, on the ground that they are immaterial and irrelevant, because, first, as your Honor has indicated and as Mr. Steffen has agreed, there is no charge of resale price fixing—

Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) Pardon me, may I interrupt? Could we have the matter on Exhibit 560 disposed of, and then I would like to be heard on Exhibits 561, 562 and 563 also?

Justice Stephens: You are simply arguing Exhibit 560?

Mr. Steffen: My argument was addressed primarily to 560.

Justice Stephens: Well, we will deal with them one at a time.

You have already objected to Exhibit 560 as not being identified, Mr. Bromley, and we have overruled you on that.

Mr. Bromley: Yes, sir.

Justice Stephens: Now, your next objection is what?

5051 Mr. Bromley: Well, I have already made my objection to Exhibit 560, and we have argued that at length yesterday.

Justice Stephens: It seems to the Court that the objections to Exhibits 560, 561 and 562 are of the same type as far as materiality and relevancy are concerned, but if you do not want to repeat your objection to Exhibit 560, of course you need not—but you might refresh our recollection on it.

Mr. Bromley: I do want to repeat my objection and my argument as far as Exhibit 560 is concerned.

Justice Jackson: Doesn't that appear at page 5282 of the transcript?

Justice Stephens: Pages 5283 and following, I think.

Mr. Bromley: The page that Justice Jackson referred to contains my objection to Exhibit 559.

Justice Jackson: Your objection to Exhibit 560 appears on page 5286, does it not?

Mr. Bromley: Yes.

Justice Stephens: We have already ruled, Mr. Bromley, that this exhibit is not received in evidence, Exhibit 560, as tending to prove resale price fixing by the two Paragon companies or the American Hardwall Plaster Company, because they are not specified in the complaint or the bill of particulars.

Mr. Bromley: Yes, sir.

Now, in connection with the contention of Mr.
5052 Steffen that it applies to the resale prices of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, I would like to say that it is not addressed to the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation. The use of the word "your" throughout the letter, even in the third paragraph to which Mr. Steffen constantly refers, can only be a reference to the persons or firms to whom the letter is addressed. It states there, "The very lowest prices we can make you on your orders for your plant at Oakfield, N. Y. are as follows:".

I don't believe that that can be read to mean on Oakfield's orders for its plant at Oakfield. If that means anything, it means on the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company's orders for delivery to Oakfield.

But that is not controlling because, as your Honor said on page 5302, beginning at line 13:

"It apparently might apply to Oakfield in the third paragraph in respect to orders for Oakfield from Universal. But how it can be said by any strain of the instrument to apply to resales by Oakfield, when in the next to the last paragraph on the first page it says, 'To your dealer trade', in a letter addressed to the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company, with copies to the American Hardwall Plaster Company and the Paragon Plaster Company, we just aren't able to see, how it has any bearing on Oakfield's resales."

I think nothing has happened so far to change the 5053 tentative conclusion which the Court reached last night that giving paragraph 3 the broadest interpretation that possibly could be given to it, nevertheless, when you come down to the only material part of the letter for the Government's purpose, all they say is, "In quoting carload prices to your dealer trade on Gypsolite Wallboard, you will please maintain our standard price", and so forth.

Now, certainly, "In quoting carload prices to your dealer trade" must refer to the company to whom the letter is addressed, Paragon Plaster and Supply Company, and probably also to the companies to whom copies of the letter were sent, the American Hardwall Plaster Company and the Paragon Plaster Company.

So I don't see that the situation has changed one iota from what it was last night, and it plainly has no materiality to the charge against the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation.

Justice Stephens: If there is nothing further, the Court will rule on the objections to Exhibit 560.

The Court is of the view that there is nothing on the face of Exhibit 560 that proves or tends to prove resale price fixing by Oakfield. Unless there is something further on that subject, that objection as to materiality and relevancy is sustained as to Exhibit 560.

We do not foreclose you from examining the witness further, Mr. Steffen, if the document may be proved to mean something different from what it shows on its 5054 face, subject to hearing argument on that matter from Mr. Bromley.

You have objected, Mr. Bromley, that the document is clear on its face, and that therefore it cannot be construed by the witness.

Now, as to that, it has occurred to the Court that if the Government contends that the letter had a meaning of a different character in the trade between these companies which we have been discussing here, Oakfield, the two Paragon companies, American Hardwall and Universal, if it had a meaning of a cabalistic nature, to them, or was accepted in correspondence between them in its phrasing as having a meaning different from what appears on its face, that could be shown by the witness just as you have, in several instances, Mr. Bromley, shown that although bulletins might, when read, on their face have one meaning in the trade, they were accepted as having a somewhat different meaning.

Do you see any objection to that, Mr. Bromley? You are entitled to be heard on that before we rule on the exhibit.

I call your attention, for example, to the fact that on page 5244—in thinking over this matter last night and rereading this record—you said to Mr. Lenci, at line 13:

"Q. Quite apart from the wording, Mr. Lenci, wasn't it your understanding at all times that these provisions, that is, the earlier form of commission salesman provision, only applied to the use of commission men for the pur-5055 pose of cutting the price of patented board?"

Then at page 5245, at line 21, you said:

"Q. And isn't that likewise true of the provisions with respect to warehouses and customers' trucks, that is to say, that your understanding of the purpose of those provisions—whatever the wording was—was that those arrangements were prohibited only where they were used to effect a cut in the price of the patented board?"

There you were dealing with bulletin provisions which, on their face, seemed to prohibit the use of warehouses and customers' trucks at all and prohibit the use of commission men at all, and you were asking Mr. Lenci if it wasn't the fact that notwithstanding that clear wording, they were applied in the trade in a different manner. Now, of course, there is the general rule of construction that a document clear on its face cannot be varied, I mean varied by parol testimony; but I think there is an exception to that rule where the document is used between certain parties and it may be shown, as between the parties to the document, or the parties using the document, that it does have a meaning different from that clearly expressed on its face, as applied between them.

And if the Government contends that this Exhibit 560 does in some manner indicate, as between Universal, the two Paragon companies, American Hardwall, and 5056 Oakfield, a direction to fix the resale price by Oakfield, I suppose the witness could be interrogated on that subject, but I don't rule that without further hearing from you, Mr. Bromley, because it is a new point.

Mr. Bromley: That may possibly be so, but there are two points with respect to that.

This witness says that he doesn't remember having seen this document, and I do not see how he can now interpret it in the light of that.

Secondly, I thought this morning that counsel made that very attempt to develop from this witness that this letter would apply to Oakfield, and the answer was that Oakfield had its own stationery, and its own office, and its own officers, and its separate existence, and I thought it was pretty conclusively established that this letter couldn't refer to Oakfield because of the fact that Mr. Steffen brought out that if it had been intended to go to Oakfield, it would have been addressed to that Company.

Justice Stephens: That is a little bit different from what the Court had in mind. I thought possibly the Government, in view of their suggestion with respect to interrogating the witness, was going to attempt to interpret these two paragraphs of Exhibit 560 which have been under discussion here.

Do you wish to be heard, Mr. Steffen?

5057 Mr. Steffen: Yes, I should like to interrogate the witness further, and I assume proper objection will be made as I ask the questions.

I think I might state, your Honor, that there apparently is ambiguity in Exhibit 560 as to what is meant by "your plant at Oakfield", and if the parties understand what is meant by "your plant at Oakfield", that ought to clarify the whole matter.

Justice Stephens: Well, even if you go that far and the witness testifies that "your plant at Oakfield" meant the Oakfield plant, it still doesn't seem to the Court that it says anything about resale price fixing by Oakfield; it says what Oakfield shall pay for these goods, not what it shall sell them at.

However, you may ask the witness further questions, and Mr. Bromley may object and we will rule on them as objection is raised.

Mr. Bromley: I don't see why counsel doesn't ask him if he had any agreement to fix the resale prices, and get on with the case.

Justice Stephens: I have already suggested that to counsel. I would seem to me that if the Government in good faith contends that there was resale price fixing between Universal and Oakfield, that this witness certainly ought to know about it and should be interrogated directly 5058 about it. However, you are not foreclosed from proving your case in any way you feel you must. That is your responsibility, not ours.

Justice Jackson: That is the way I felt this morning, and that is the reason I didn't give any statement concerning this exhibit. I thought you were going to question him directly.

Mr. Steffen: We want to proceed in entire good faith, your Honor.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Mr. Hansen, you testified that purchases were made through your office at Syracuse on Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation's forms from Universal, is that correct? A. Yes.

Mr. Bromley: I object to that, that assumes a fact not in evidence.

Mr. Steffen: He has just testified that it was in evidence.

Mr. Bromley: No, he didn't. He said he made purchases through the Oakfield office.

Justice Stephens: Let's hear that question.

(The question was read by the reporter.)

Justice Stephens: What is your objection to that, Mr. Bromley?

Mr. Bromley: I don't know what "your" means. It is indefinite, and for that reason improper, because in the light of the dispute here "your" may mean either 5059 Oakfield or Paragon.

Justice Stephens: I think that objection is well taken.

Ask him how the transactions were handled. Let him tell in his own way. He ought to know.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I want to get at the question of purchases made on Oakfield's forms from Universal. There were such purchases, were there not? A. That is right.

Q. My next question is at what prices were those purchases made? A. Will you repeat that?

Q. At what prices did you buy from the Universal Gypsum Company?

Justice Jackson: Did Oakfield buy?

Mr. Steffen: Did Oakfield, yes.

The Witness: At what prices did Oakfield buy from the Universal Gypsum Company?

Mr. Steffen: On these purchases you have just said were made.

The Witness: Well, at the current quoted prices.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. And were they the same prices at which your company was buying board from Oakfield?

Mr. Bromley: I object,—

5060 Justice Stephens: (Interposing) When you mean Paragon, say Paragon, and when you mean Oakfield, say Oakfield. I think that will clarify the matter.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. If I understand it, Mr. Hansen, you personally directed purchases to be made in the name of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation from Universal of board? A. That is right.

Q. And your company, the Paragon Company, also bought board from Universal during 1928 and 1929? A. That is right.

Q. Now, my question is—at what prices did, first, the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation buy? A. I could hardly be expected to remember the prices in 1928, sir.

Q. That is right.

Were there prices furnished by Universal at which the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation purchased? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you tell us how they were furnished? A. Well, they were furnished in correspondence to me personally, to Mr. Merriman, and to Mr. Eldred, as indicated in this copy of the letter. That was typical of the quotation sheets that we would get.

Q. Exhibit 560 would be a typical quotation sheet?

5061 A. That is right.

Q. And in making sales by Oakfield, at what prices would the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation resell to dealers? A. Would resell to dealers—unless you called the American Hardwall Plaster Company, the Paragon Plaster of Syracuse, and the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company, dealers—they were the only three customers for the gypsum products other than gypsum rock, that Oakfield had.

Q. At this particular time? A. At this particular time.

Mr. Bromley: I didn't get the beginning of that answer.

Justice Stephens: Read it.

(The record was read by the reporter.)

Mr. Bromley: That isn't what he said.

Justice Stephens: No; Mr. Reporter, that was not the answer. It will have to be stricken, and you will have to re-ask the question.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I think you testified that the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation would sell to Paragon and would make shipments direct to Paragon's customers where Paragon had sold to a customer, is that correct?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that. Can't we have this last question asked, so that we can get the answer in the record?

Mr. Steffen: I was starting back and was coming up to that.

5062 Justice Stephens: I think we ought to have this last question answered so that the record is clear as to what his answer was.

Mr. Bromley: I think I did the reporter an injustice, and that he was right, and that the first part of the answer, which the reporter read, was merely the witness repeating the question.

Justice Stephens: Maybe I also did the reporter an injustice. Read back the original question, Mr. Reporter.

(The question was read by the reporter as follows:)

"And in making th sales by Oakfield, at what prices would the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation resell to dealers?"

Mr. Steffen: I would like to withdraw the question.

Justice Stephens: And I would like to know what the answer was.

(The answer referred to was read by the reporter as follows:)

"Would resell to dealers—unless you called the American Hardwall Plaster Company, the Paragon Plaster of Syracuse, and the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company, dealers—they were the only three customers for the gypsum products other than gypsum rock, that Oakfield had."

Justice Jackson: It was merely a matter of inflection in the reporter reading the answer.

5063 Justice Stephens: Now, if you want to withdraw it or ask another question, you may do so.

Mr. Steffen: I think that is a good answer.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I think you testified that the Paragon Plaster Company sold both as a dealer and as a jobber, did you not—Paragon sold locally in Syracuse? A. That is correct.

Q. And you also sold as a jobber? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, let me ask you this question. If sales were made by the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation of this board which they purchased from Universal, at what price would you understand from this letter, Exhibit 560, the Oakfield Gypsum Products Company should sell?

Justice Stephens: Read that question so that we can get it entirely clear.

(The question referred to was read by the reporter.)

Justice Jackson: Do you get that question?

The Witness: No, unless it is a hypothetical question.

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as incompetent, because it calls for an interpretation of a document, and the document is not in evidence, and the question assumes facts not in evidence.

Mr. Steffen: I will rephrase the question and leave 5064 out the reference to the exhibit.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. At what prices, Mr. Hansen, would you understand the Oakfield Gypsum Products Company should sell to dealers according to your arrangement with the Universal Gypsum Company, in 1928 and 1929?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as incompetent because calling for a conclusion and assuming facts not in evidence. There is no proof that there was any arrangement with Universal.

Justice Stephens: Objection sustained. Ask the witness what the arrangements were, if any, and what the prices were, if any.

Mr. Steffen: All right.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. What were your arrangements, if any, with the Universal Gypsum Company for the resale of board by the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation to dealers? A. We had none because the Oakfield Company did not sell to dealers.

Q. You have just testified that you were a dealer? A. Well, I can answer—

Q. (Interposing) And so was American Hardwall a dealer and so was the Paragon Plaster and Supply Company. A. All right. The answer is still that there was no arrangement for resale. You are referring to the 5065 prices at which Oakfield sold to these three companies who were its dealers and jobbers, we will say.

Q. Were there any sales made later than 1928 of Universal's board bought by Oakfield Gypsum Products Company? A. Later than 1928?

Q. Yes, to dealers. A. I think not.

Justice Stephens: When you say "dealers" there, do you mean dealers other than the three corporate owners of Oakfield?

Mr. Steffen: Yes, I mean other than the two Paragon companies and the American Hardwall Plaster Company.

Justice Stephens: I don't think the witness understood that.

The Witness: I answered it meaning dealers other than the three.

Justice Stephens: Your testimony is then, that as far as you recollect there were no sales to dealers other than these three corporate owners of Oakfield, after 1928?

The Witness: Of Universal's board. That is to the best of my recollection. We changed brands in about 1931, I should say.

Mr. Steffen: I would like now to ask some questions, your Honor, directed to show that the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation and the three constituent companies were substantially together as one organization.
5066 Justice Stephens: You mean on the theory that the corporate fiction must be disregarded?

Mr. Steffen: That is right, and that therefore resales by the Paragon companies and American Hardwall, of board purchased nominally from the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, was actually a controlling of the resale price of, if you wish, the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, they buying from Universal, and then the transaction between Oakfield and the three parent companies being a strictly friendly transaction, the resale, which constituted a resale, was the sale by the parent companies to the dealers.

We have already developed in evidence that the three companies owned all the stock of Oakfield, that they regarded, in a sense, the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation as being a source of supply for the three mixing companies; that the officers were identical, or at least the managing officers and principal officers of the three constituent companies were the same officers as were managing the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation; that the sales officers, or principal offices, of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, were in the offices of the Paragon Plaster Company and the other parent companies; and that therefore you have the form of a sale to the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, which is designated in here as "your plant"; that the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation then, by selling to Paragon, has, in effect, sold through Paragon to the dealers, or at least Paragon and Oakfield for the purposes of that transaction can be regarded as one company.

But in so far as Universal is concerned, it would constitute a control of the resale price of Oakfield.

I think I can ask one or two further clarifying questions which would bring that out.

Justice Stephens: I don't quite understand your theory. It seems to me—I may be wrong—that your proposal is an invasion of the ruling of the Court that there is no charge in the complaint of any resale price fixing as between Universal and the two Paragons and American Hardwall.

This witness has answered that there were no arrangements between Oakfield and Universal as to its resale prices to these three companies, the two Paragons and the American Hardwall.

Now, as I understand it, you want to disregard the corporate fiction for the purpose of showing that the four companies were all one and that therefore the sales that were made by the two Paragon companies and the American Hardwall, were at resale prices fixed by Universal.

5068

Mr. Steffen: That is right.

Justice Stephens: But the bill of particulars doesn't charge resale price fixing by those three companies, either through a corporate fiction or otherwise.

Mr. Steffen: I agree with that, but that would depend on which price was being controlled, that is, in which capacity are you going to regard this corporate layout after you have identified them? Are you going to treat them as Oakfield, selling through the medium of its parents, or are you going to regard it as the parents which are making the resale? My thought is this, that the relationship between Paragon and Oakfield was very close. When they bought board, supposedly from Oakfield, Mr. Hansen dealt with Mr. Hansen, or Mr. Hansen and his associates, and the price at which Paragon bought from Oakfield was strictly a friendly price; that while they went through the form of a sale, there wasn't any actual sale there. Therefore, if Universal sold to Oakfield, and they then had a bookkeeping sale between Oakfield and Paragon, all parties knowing that the ultimate transaction was to go to a dealer, you have, in effect, a control of the resale price of Oakfield on board certainly bought from Universal by Oakfield. And this letter would make it very clear that the dealer price, that is, the ultimate dealer price—disregarding for the moment Paragon as being a dealer—that the ultimate dealer price would be regulated, in Exhibit 560.

5069 Justice Stephens: In other words, your theory is that you can prove that there was some secret arrangement or private understanding or tacit understanding, between these three companies and Oakfield, that Oakfield was really the seller to the ultimate dealer, and that the sales which the 2 Paragon companies and American Hardwall purported to make to the ultimate dealer were really Oakfield's sales, and that Oakfield was therefore selling at the price fixed by Universal. Is that it?

Mr. Steffen: That is substantially the argument.

Justice Stephens: Are you prepared to prove that there was some secret and tacit understanding of such character as would permit the Court to disregard the corporate fiction?

Mr. Steffen: I think I can establish, by Mr. Hansen, what the sales arrangements were between Oakfield and Paragon Plaster Company; and that they, as I have said, were a strictly friendly arrangement.

Justice Stephens: Do you wish to be heard, Mr. Bromley, as to this proposed line of examination?

Mr. Bromley: It seems to me that it is entirely immaterial and highly improper. He proved that there was a sale yesterday, there was a sale between Oakfield and Paragon, yesterday.

Now I don't think it is within the issues of this case—certainly we have had no notice of it—that he was 5070 going to embark on the long and difficult undertaking of trying to pierce the corporate veil. Furthermore, he has specifically here, several times, waived any claim that this evidence was in support of a charge that Paragon's prices were fixed.

Now he wants to go back and establish that charge, and then go a step farther and say, "Well, after all, it is Oakfield." So I think on any principle of issues as framed by the pleadings, it is clearly beyond any issues, and certainly ought not to be permitted now.

Furthermore, I don't think his offer of proof amounts to an offer to pierce the corporate veil. He says he wants to show that the sales were friendly. Well, if that is it, it is immaterial.

Justice Stephens: We are of the view, Mr. Steffen, that the inquiry is not proper, and not within the pleadings, and contrary to the very proof that you have already made in the case. You proved yesterday that there was a bona fide sale between Oakfield and the two Paragons and the American Hardwall. Now, apparently, you are undertaking to prove the contrary of that, that this was a trumped-up arrangement, and that all the companies were really one, and that they all connived at the price fixing arrangement charge. It is not within the pleadings. It involves the charge that the two Paragons and American Hardwall were involved in a price fixing undertaking, and that is not 5071 within the pleadings; and there is no charge of fraud in respect of the corporate fiction.

We are all agreed that it is not a proper inquiry. If you want to protect your record, you can ask the questions and have the objections passed upon individually.

Mr. Steffen: I had possibly better make a straight offer of proof.

We offer to prove, by questions directed to Mr. Hansen, that the Paragon Plaster Company, and the Paragon Plaster & Supply Company, and the American Hardwall Plaster Company, completely controlled the sales policies and the affairs of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Company; and that the purchases from Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, by any one of the parent companies, of gypsum board which the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation should buy from Universal Gypsum & Lime Company, were in the nature of bookkeeping transactions only; and that they were made with the understanding, and effect, that the board would be resold to dealers; and that in those resales to dealers, the prices which the Universal Gypsum Company specified in its letter of July 9, 1928, Exhibit 560, should be maintained; and that, therefore, the evidence would show that the Universal Gypsum & Lime Company, one of the alleged conspirators in this case, had used improper means to induce and coerce manufacturing distributors to resell at fixed resale prices.

5072 Justice Stephens: It seems to us, Mr. Steffen, that what that amounts to, if you pierce the corporate veil and show that these four companies were all one, is, in effect, that you are charging or trying to prove that there was price fixing by the two Paragons and American Hardwall, through the device of selling through Oakfield, and that is not covered by the charge in the complaint.

Therefore, the objection is sustained, and the offer is rejected.

(Thereupon, at 12:15 o'clock p.m., a recess was taken until 1:45 o'clock p.m., of the same day.)

5073 AFTERNOON SESSION

(The trial was resumed at 1:45 o'clock p.m., pursuant to recess.)

Justice Stephens: Proceed, gentlemen.

Thereupon, EMIL HANSEN the witness on the stand at the time of recess, resumed his testimony as follows:

Direct Examination (resumed):

Mr. Steffen: For the purpose of clearing the record, Your Honor, I would like to ask one or two questions concerning Mr. Hansen's answer to my question regarding the sales by Oakfield to Paragon.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I believe you testified, Mr. Hansen, that you had no arrangements with Universal concerning Oakfield's sales to Paragon—or was that your testimony? A. The answer is "No" to that.

Q. That is what you testified before? A. I think so.

Q. And did you have anything to do with the original negotiations with Universal? A. Yes.

Q. And who did you see, or who did you talk with?

A. Mr. Stromquist.

5074 Q. When you originally started buying—and by "you" I mean either Paragon or Oakfield started buying from Universal, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. When you said you had no special arrangement as to prices between Oakfield and Paragon, you mean that that was not discussed with Universal? A. That is correct.

Q. Did you ever buy board from Universal—and by "you" I mean Paragon—and have it shipped to Oakfield?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as immaterial. Isn't this the same subject matter again?

Mr. Steffen: I want to probe this matter of special arrangements, Your Honor, for about four or five questions.

Mr. Bromley: It seems to me it trespasses upon the ruling, because it has to do with Paragon.

Justice Stephens: We can't tell, Mr. Bromley. It may go to a different matter. We will receive it subject to a motion to strike unless it proves to be material.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Was there any practice on that part of Paragon to buy board from Universal and to have it shipped to Oakfield?

Mr. Bromley: The same objection.

Justice Stephens: The same ruling. You may answer, subject to a motion to strike.

5075 The Witness: The answer is no.

Let me get that straight—did Paragon order board and ship it to Oakfield, New York?

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Order board from Universal and have it shipped to Oakfield, New York. A. The answer is no.

Q. And you would say that all shipments that went to the Oakfield plant were bought in the name of Oakfield? A. That is right.

Q. And that Oakfield, during this period, 1927 and 1928, if I understand your testimony, sold to Paragon, either of the two Paragons, or American Hardwall Plaster Company? A. That is correct.

Q. And your testimony was that you had no special arrangements with Universal as to the price at which Oakfield would sell to Paragon? A. That is correct.

Mr. Bromley: I don't understand what "special" means. He had no arrangement.

Justice Stephens: He testified that he had no arrangement, he didn't say "special" arrangement.

Mr. Steffen: All right, strike the word "special".

By Mr. Steffen:

5076 Q. Could you answer this question, Mr. Hansen: Did the letter of July 9, 1928,—which is Exhibit 560 for Identification, which we showed you this morning,—as you understood it, apply to the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation's purchases from Universal?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as incompetent because calling for the construction of a written document which is not in evidence.

Justice Stephens: Well, there, I think, the objection is not well taken. I think my colleagues agree with me. I was about to announce, before Mr. Steffen proceeded in this examination, that I wanted to make it clear that the Court did not foreclose the Government—I thought I had made it clear, but I want to make it doubly clear—the Court does not assume to foreclose the Government from attempting to prove that this letter, which we rule on its face does not have any application to Oakfield, nevertheless was understood in the trade, between these four companies, as applying to Oakfield in respect of resale prices. I think that is proper examination, if this witness can so testify.

The objection is overruled, to that.

Do you understand that, Mr. Hansen?

The Witness: As to what I may answer?

Justice Stephens: Yes.

The Witness: I think so.

5077 Mr. Steffen: Do you understand the question?

The Witness: May I have it again?

Justice Stephens: Read the question again.

(The pending question was read by the reporter as follows:

"Could you answer this question, Mr. Hansen: Did the letter of July 9, 1928,—which is Exhibit 560 for Identification, which we showed you this morning,—as you understood it, apply to the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation's purchases from Universal?")

Justice Stephens: I thought that was not the question. I thought you were trying to find whether it applied to the resale prices by Oakfield.

Mr. Steffen: I wanted it to apply to both.

Justice Jackson: Why not ask him directly what was his understanding?

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. What was your understanding of Exhibit 560, which I now show you, as it applies to purchases by Oakfield from Universal?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that question. There are two subject matters in the letter, and the ruling is that you may inquire as to resale prices of Oakfield.

Justice Stephens: That is right.

The price at which the sales were made to Oakfield 5078 is not in issue, is it?

Mr. Steffen: No.

Let me ask this question:

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. What was your understanding, Mr. Hansen, with respect to Government's Exhibit 560, as to the letter's application to resales by Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as incompetent because the witness has testified he has no recollection of receiving the letter.

Justice Stephens: Well, the witness has said, Mr. Bromley, that the letter was typical of various bulletins or sales announcements received by him from Universal, so I think that is all right. That objection is overruled. The witness may answer what, if any, application this letter had to resale prices by Oakfield.

The Witness: None whatsoever.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I think you have answered it completely, Mr. Hansen. A. Pardon me?

Q. I think that is a complete answer.

Mr. Bromley: Well, there is no question.

The Witness: The only reference to Oakfield is in 5079 this paragraph 3, quoting a price for delivery at Oakfield.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. That is right. And you don't construe the last paragraph as having anything to do with the resale price by Oakfield? A. No, because Oakfield wasn't reselling to dealers, other than the three constituent companies.

Q. And you didn't think there was any regulation— A. (Interposing) And if that were an application to the Oakfield Company as to a pricing policy, then we did not follow it in selling to the three constituent companies.

Q. And you didn't regard the letter as requiring you to follow it, is that it? A. That is right.

Q. And was that, Mr. Hansen, because of the close relationship between Paragon and Oakfield, that you considered this letter didn't apply to sales between Oakfield and Paragon?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as incompetent because being pure speculation.

Mr. Steffen: I am asking for his reason as to why it shouldn't apply to this type of sale.

Justice Stephens: We think the question is objectionable in asking for the reasons as phrased in the question, because it is an invasion of the ruling this morning 5080 that we are not going to hear testimony, under the pleadings as drawn, concerning alleged resale price fixing by Paragon, by the two Paragons and American Hardwall. If you want to ask this witness, if you think it is necessary to supplement your question, as to why this letter does not apply to the resale prices by Oakfield, if he can tell you anything more on that subject, you may ask that.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Will you answer the Court's question, Mr. Hansen? A. I didn't get that?

Q. Could you answer the Presiding Justice's question, which I would be very glad to ask you? A. Why this did not apply to Oakfield's sales to the three constituent companies?

Justice Stephens: Or to anyone.

The Witness: Well, my answer—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) The Court is not insisting that you argue the matter, of course, Mr. Hansen. You have answered, as I have understood your testimony, that Oakfield didn't sell board to anybody but the three constituent companies.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Justice Stephens: It sold rock to third parties, but not board?

The Witness: That is right.

5081 Justice Stephens: Now, you have testified that this letter, as you understood it, did not constitute a direction by Universal to Oakfield in respect to resale prices. Counsel apparently wants to inquire how you reached the conclusion that it did not.

If you can add anything to what you said in your previous statement concerning the paragraphs to which you referred, you may do so, but you are not required to.

The Witness: Well, if this was meant as a direction, we ignored it.

Mr. Steffen: That is satisfactory.

Justice Garrett: And by "we", you mean Paragon?

The Witness: Paragon, the American Hardwall Plaster Company, and Paragon of Scranton.

Mr. Bromley: Well, I thought the question had to do with Oakfield.

Justice Stephens: He meant—well, I don't want to say what he meant.

Mr. Bromley: You ignored it as to Oakfield, too, didn't you? You say it didn't apply to Oakfield, is that what you mean?

Mr. Steffen: The question is: What did you mean when you said "we ignored it"? Did you mean Oakfield and the two Paragons and the American Hardwall, all four companies?

The Witness: I should say that the Executive 5082 Committee of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation ignored it, if they ever took any formal action or gave it any formal consideration.

Justice Stephens: We hope, gentlemen of the Government, that you can move on to some more profitable subject. We spent half of yesterday afternoon and all this morning on matters which really could have been developed, it seems to us, by direct-examination of this witness in about 15 minutes.

Justice Garrett: Was Exhibit 559 introduced?

Mr. Steffen: No, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Exhibit 559 was not introduced.

Mr. Steffen: Neither was Exhibit 560.

Justice Stephens: Exhibit 560 we ruled to have been identified; but the questions to and answers of the witness having indicated that it has no relevance as applied to Oakfield, the record will show—so that the Government's record may be protected—that the exhibit is excluded from evidence.

Mr. Steffen: Has Exhibit 561 been acted upon?

Justice Stephens: No, it has not. We haven't that before us. That is in the form of a letter. Will you hand that to the Court, please?

(Exhibit 561 for Identification was handed to the Court.)

Justice Stephens: Government's Exhibit 561 is 5083 excluded from evidence, is not received in evidence, for the same reasons as relate to Exhibit 560.

Q. Now, Mr. Hansen, did you change your source of supply of gypsum board along in 1928, 1929 or 1930,—and by "you" I mean the Paragon Plaster Company or Oakfield? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And can you tell us what other companies you discussed the matter of buying board from, with? A. We discussed the matter with the Kelley Plasterboard Company; with Ebsary Gypsum; and possibly with National Gypsum, I don't recall.

Q. I want to show you again Government's Exhibit 562, which you have identified, I believe.

(Government's Exhibit No. 562 for Identification was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Was it at about the time of that letter that you took up the matter with, or were approached by, the Ebsary Gypsum Company? A. Yes.

Q. And by "that letter," I refer to Government's Exhibit 562. A. Yes.

Q. Did you, at the time of that letter, effect an 5084 arrangement with the Ebsary Gypsum Company to buy board from them? A. No, sir, but we were free to buy from them.

Q. I understand. And they made you an offer, did they? A. That is right.

Q. And on what basis did they offer to sell you board? A. May I indicate now that you are talking about the Paragon Company?

Q. I wish you would, yes. A. That is correct.

Q. And did they offer to sell you at a discount, and by "you" I mean the Paragon Plaster Company?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as immaterial.

Justice Stephens: On the ground that there is no charge of conspiracy or resale price fixing by Paragon?

Mr. Bromley: Yes, sir. There is no charge with respect to Paragon at all.

Mr. Steffen: I wish to follow it up, Your Honor, by first showing that if they were buying at a discount, they would be buying on a jobber basis; and I think the evidence will further disclose that they no longer buy on a basis that they were then offered.

Justice Stephens: What is the materiality or relevancy of it, in view of the fact that Paragon is not made a 5085 party to the suit in any particular?

Mr. Steffen: One of the charges in the complaint is that jobbers have been eliminated, and here is a situation where Paragon was being offered on the basis of a discount from the dealer price, as a jobber. I want to show that the offer existed at that time.

Justice Stephens: I didn't realize you were changing to that different issue.

Mr. Steffen: I now offer Government's Exhibit 562 in evidence.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Bromley's objection on the ground of immateriality is overruled, since the evidence is proposed to relate to the charge of elimination of jobbers. Whether the exhibit tends to prove that, we don't yet know. We would have to look at it.

(Exhibit 562 handed to the Court.)

Justice Stephens: Is there any objection to this document as to identification? You testified that this was Mr. Lenci's signature, didn't you, Mr. Hansen?

The Witness: That is right.

Justice Stephens: And that you received it?

The Witness: That is correct.

Justice Stephens: We think that this is admissible in evidence under the elimination-of-jobber issue, because of its reference to a discount of 10 percent on $22.50 and 5086 $15.00, respectively. It may be that it has some relevance to that subject. Received in evidence.

(The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit No. 562, was received in evidence.)

Justice Stephens: Mr. Adams, how long will you be with us now?

Mr. Adams: So long as I can be of any help, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Well, we want to make a ruling sometime within the next day or so on the matter of Exhibits Nos. 324 and 233, and we want to make it in your presence.

Mr. Adams: I don't want to interrupt you now, but I want to say I am extremely sorry that I couldn't be here earlier in the week. The manpower shortage has caught up with our office.

Justice Stephens: It hasn't inconvenienced us at all. We just missed you, Mr. Adams.

Mr. Adams: Thank you, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Knuff, will you get for us photo-stats of such exhibits as have been referred to here and of which we do not have copies, as soon as you reasonably can, as we like to read them at night when we read the testimony.

Mr. Knuff: I don't think I can get them today, but I will get them as soon as our photostatic room can 5087 get them out.

Mr. Bromley: Exhibit 562 should be received, should it not, subject to the usual reservation?

Justice Stephens: Yes, it is received subject to the usual reservation with respect to declarations of alleged co-conspirators.

Mr. Steffen: In order to clear the record, I would also now like to call up Exhibit 563, which was offered simply to show that the Paragon Plaster Company was holding out to the world the fact that they had two offices, that they had an office at Syracuse and a mill at Oakfield.

Justice Stephens: Well, that was shown by the testimony of the witness.

Have you any objection as to that?

Mr. Bromley: Only that it is immaterial, in view of the witness' testimony.

Justice Stephens: Well, it seems to us that it is immaterial; but if you want to make a record you may offer the exhibit, and it is not received,—so that the ruling will be there to protect you. The witness' testimony stands.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Did you, subsequently, enter negotiations, Mr. Hansen, with the Kelley Plasterboard Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you personally handle any of the 5088 negotiations? A. A part of them.

Q. And did you effect an arrangement at any time with the Kelley Plasterboard Company for the purchase of board? A. Well, I had a part in the planning.

Q. But such an arrangement was subsequently effected? A. That is right, yes, sir.

Q. And that applied to what companies?

Mr. Bromley: Was that in writing, may I ask?

Mr. Steffen: I can ask him this question whether it was in writing or not, can I not?

Mr. Bromley: If it was a written contract, which I believe it to be, it seems to me that the contract is the best evidence.

Justice Stephens: Read the question.

(The pending question was read by the reporter.)

Justice Stephens: If it is preliminary, the answer may be given; but if it appears that there was a written arrangement, then the writing should be introduced.

Mr. Steffen: I will withdraw the question, Your Honor.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I now show you what has been marked as Government's Exhibit No. 564, which purports to be a letter from the Kelley Plasterboard Company, addressed to the Paragon Plaster Company, under date of December 4, 1930.

5089 (The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 564 for Identification.)

(Government's Exhibit No. 564 for Identification was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Have you examined Government's Exhibit 564 for Identification, Mr. Hansen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you identify that as Mr. Kelley's signature? A. That is right.

Q. That is a letter that you received, is it? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Steffen: We offer Government's Exhibit 564 in evidence.

Mr. Bromley: Objected to on the same ground as heretofore stated with respect to Exhibit 560.

Justice Stephens: What do you intend to prove by this?

Mr. Steffen: I intend to show, first, Your Honor, the arrangement at this time between the Kelley Plasterboard Company and the Paragon Plaster Company and the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation; and I intend to ask the witness just what the transaction is. I don't think the letter is entirely clear, but it indicates in the third paragraph on the first page that, "We are to continue to 5090 bill the Oakfield Gypsum Company on any orders placed by Mr. Miles for your account."

In the second paragraph, it indicates that Mr. Miles will sell at prices supplied by the Kelley Plasterboard Company.

I don't think that the letter, on its face, is ambiguous. I, however, will ask the witness as to the transaction.

Justice Stephens: Let me get the theory of the pleadings under which it is being offered. Is it offered as a part of your case under the charge of resale price fixing in respect of manufacturing distributors? In other words, you are trying to prove here that Kelley was fixing the resale prices of Oakfield?

Mr. Steffen: That is right, Your Honor, because from this time on, there are no sales to Paragon. The sales are made to Oakfield.

Justice Stephens: Then the objection is overruled. We make no comment upon the weight of the letter. The letter doesn't seem to be entirely clear on that subject, but it does seem to have some relation to that topic. So you may pursue that. The objection is overruled.

(The document referred to, marked as Government's Exhibit 564, was received in evidence.)

By Mr. Steffen:

5091 Q. Mr. Hansen, at this time, was the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation buying board from Kelley? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And who is Mr. Miles? A. Mr. Miles was a salesman for the Paragon Plaster Company in the metropolitan district.

Q. And on what basis was he paid? A. On a commission basis.

Q. And—

Mr. Bromley: (Interposing) Then I move to strike out the exhibit, if Mr. Miles was a Paragon salesman. The letter is addressed to Paragon, and the only sales that are talked about are by Mr. Miles.

Mr. Steffen: I want to carry through this transaction, and I think it will be cleared up.

Justice Stephens: We can't rule on it piecemeal, Mr. Bromley. We will have to hear more before we can tell whether this is relevant or irrelevant. It will be received, but you may reserve a right to move to strike it if, on the completion of this aspect of the testimony, it appears to be not material or relevant under the pleadings.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Will you tell the Court just how sales were made pursuant to this letter, Government's Exhibit 564? A.

Mr. Miles was selling neat plaster for us in the 5092 metropolitan market—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) Mr. Hansen, will you let me make a suggestion to you?

The Witness: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Please, whenever you mean Paragon, say Paragon; and whenever you mean Oakfield, say Oakfield. When you say "us", we still have a little ambiguity.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Mr. Miles was making sales for Paragon, in the metropolitan district, of neat plaster. He saw an opportunity of selling some of the dealers, to whom he was selling plaster, gypsum board and gypsum lath in truckload lots. It was not economical to ship it by car from Oakfield to the metropolitan district in competition with the metropolitan manufacturers. Paragon, therefore, made this arrangement with Kelley,—that Paragon should have permission to sell to certain dealers in the metropolitan district, listing those dealers with Mr. Kelley so that we would not conflict with his major accounts to which he was selling direct. The material, as stated here, was all invoiced to the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation—

Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) Now—

Mr. Bromley: (Interposing) Let him finish, please.

Justice Stephens: Go ahead and finish your answer.

The Witness: (Continuing)—to the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, and re-invoiced by Oakfield to Paragon.

5093

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Mr. Miles, as I understand it, if he made a sale, would notify the Kelley Plasterboard Company of that sale, would he?

Mr. Bromley: I object to this as leading.

Mr. Steffen: Yes, I think it is leading.

Justice Stephens: That objection is sustained. The witness is competent to tell about the transaction in his own words. If it needs any more explanation you may ask him to explain particular details of it, but let him do it in his own way.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Explain just how Mr. Miles would handle the transaction with the Kelley Plasterboard Company? A. Well, practically as stated in the letter. To a select list, which we approved—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) By "we", you mean?

The Witness: Paragon approved.

(Continuing)—and filed with Kelley, Miles was permitted to send the orders directly to Kelley for Paragon, and thereafter, for billing to Oakfield, for deliveries to these dealers in the metropolitan district. And Paragon enjoyed some business on that basis.

Justice Stephens: Let me see if I understand you.
5094 Do you mean by that that Paragon, acting through Miles, ordered board from Kelley for the account of Oakfield; then Paragon, selling it to this select list, would have it invoiced to it from Oakfield in the manner you described yesterday?

The Witness: That is right.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Well, as I understood your testimony, it would be invoiced by Kelley to Oakfield, is that right? A. That is right.

Q. And then Oakfield, in turn, would re-invoice it to the Paragon Plaster Company? A. That is right. May I go on to explain?

Q. Yes, I would like to have it fully explained.

Justice Stephens: You may feel entirely free to make as full an answer as you need, in order to make the answer clear.

The Witness: This was done in order to expedite deliveries and to save time, so that instead of having Miles send an order to Syracuse, we had this arrangement to save two days, and therefore get an immediate delivery in the New York district.

Justice Stephens: By "sending to Syracuse", you mean sending to Paragon Plaster Company?

The Witness: That is right.

5095 By Mr. Steffen:

Q. How was the transaction paid for? After Oakfield had invoiced the board to you, that is, to Paragon, what happened next? A. Paragon would pay Oakfield.

Q. That is right. A. And Oakfield would pay Kelley. Now to get this absolutely correct, in this period sometime there was a time when Oakfield's invoices, coming to Syracuse, would be paid by a Paragon check, with the discounts all taken, the Oakfield discounts, taken off, but paid by a Paragon check. Those invoices didn't go through the Oakfield books. There Paragon, again, was simply saving a mail transaction for Oakfield.

Q. Paragon invoiced the shipment to the dealer, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. And the dealer would then pay Paragon? A. Yes.

Q. Now at this time, was Paragon buying board directly from Kelley? A. I don't believe so. I think this was when Paragon ceased to enjoy a jobber's discount.

Q. Was Paragon a manufacturing distributor? A. It was a distributor, and Paragon tried to claim they 5096 were manufacturers because, as a matter of fact, we were at that time the oldest manufacturers of wall plaster in existence in the country, that being sanded plaster.

Q. But did the Paragon Plaster Company obtain a source of board supply at this time on a discount basis, Paragon directly? A. I think not.

Q. And did you try at this time to buy directly at a discount, and by "directly" I mean from Universal or Kelley or any other company? A. I think from Universal, at least just prior to this.

Q. And what happened there? A. To the best of my recollection, we were notified that all Paragon purchases would have to be made through the Oakfield company if a discount were to be enjoyed, or at least Oakfield was the only company who could enjoy a manufacturer's discount, and Paragon was out.

Q. And has Paragon ever been able to buy, since that time, on a discount basis? A. No, sir.

Mr. Bromley: You mean board, of course?

Mr. Steffen: I mean board, of course—and from the defendants.

Mr. Bromley: I renew my motion to strike out
5097 Exhibit No. 564. It is now completely apparent that the reference in the paragraph referred to by Mr. Steffen, the second paragraph, "It is understood he will sell at the prices which we will supply", is a direction, if it is anything, to the Paragon Company, and not to Oakfield, since, as the Presiding Justice developed, there was a sale by Kelley to Oakfield, and a sale by Oakfield to Paragon, and a sale by Paragon to the dealer. Mr. Miles was the employee of Paragon, and the second paragraph, not only on its face but as now interpreted by the witness, is plainly a direction to Paragon, if it is a direction.

Justice Stephens: I don't see what the exhibit, as explained, has to do with the charge of resale price fixing by Oakfield.

Mr. Bromley: I think it has been plainly demonstrated that it has nothing to do with that.

Justice Stephens: And as to the elimination of jobbers, as to that charge, if you are trying to prove by this exhibit that Paragon was eliminated as a jobber—

Mr. Steffen: (Interposing) We are not, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: I see.

Mr. Steffen: This exhibit is offered, and this testimony is offered, purely for the purpose of showing that the defendants were endeavoring to influence and coerce the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation in its resale 5098 policies, and to require that the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation, in making its sales—although in this case it made them through the medium of the Paragon Plaster Company—was required to get a fixed dealer price in making sales to dealers.

Mr. Bromley: That is the same point, all over again, which has been ruled upon.

Mr. Steffen: I think the transaction is considerably clearer in this case, Your Honor.

Justice Stephens: I am sorry, Mr. Steffen, but we don't any of us, here on the bench, see that it tends to prove resale price fixing by Oakfield, and the motion to strike Exhibit 564 is granted.

(Government's Exhibit No. 564, previously received in evidence, was stricken from the record.)

Mr. Steffen: I offer Exhibit 564 upon the second ground which I mentioned just before recess, which I think is much more clearly developed at this point, that Oakfield and Paragon Plaster Company were substantially one concern, so far as these sales were concerned, and that the actual sale, the actual transaction between a licensee and its buyer, was a sale between Kelley and Oakfield. As the witness has testified, that is the only way upon which board could be procured at a discount during this 5099 time. Therefore, if you identify the Paragon Plaster Company and the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation as being substantially one concern, and regard it as Oakfield rather than as Paragon, you have a case of a resale by the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation at maintained or fixed prices dictated by the Kelley Plasterboard Company, in this case.

It is true that it constitutes a subterfuge, but it is not our fault that that is the case.

Mr. Bromley: That is subject to the same objection as that offer was this morning, it is the same thing over again.

Justice Stephens: It seems to the Court to raise exactly the same question as Exhibits 560 and 561.

The proof yesterday, by this witness, was that the two Paragons and the American Hardwall were the parents of Oakfield. The theory would seem to be there that Oakfield had to act at their instance. This is offered on just the opposite theory. The Government must at least be consistent in its assertion of fact. If it is offered to prove, contrary-wise, that the two Paragons and American Hardwall were accomplishing resale price fixing through Oakfield, as their creature, then it isn't within the charge, because they are not charged with resale price fixing.

The objection to this exhibit as reoffered, Exhibit 564, is sustained.

By Mr. Steffen:

5100 Q. Did there come a time later, Mr. Hansen, when the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation made direct sales to dealers, other than to the two Paragon companies and the American Hardwall Plaster Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And about when was that? A. I can only give an approximate time. I think it was in 1931. It might possibly have been in 1932.

Q. How do you fix that in your memory? A. That was at a time when we thought it necessary to expand, when Oakfield felt it necessary to expand its sales, and was able to pick up a salesman who had formerly been with the Niagara Gypsum Company, and then for a short time with the United States Gypsum Company, and who had a knowledge of trade in areas where neither of the three companies, Paragon, Paragon of Scranton, and American Hardwall, were then selling.

Q. And what territory did the Oakfield Gypsum Company sell in? A. Western New York, parts of Pennsylvania, the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia—that is the approximate territory.

Q. I now show you Government's Exhibits Nos. 565, 566 and 567, the same being as follows: 565 being a letter purporting to be written by Mr. Kelley to Mr. Emil 5101 Hansen, under date of August 19, 1932; 566 being a letter dated August 22, 1932, entitled, "Supplement to Board License Bulletin No. 3"; and 567 purporting to be a carbon copy of a letter written to S. J. Kelley Company, under date of August 22, 1932, bearing the initials "EH" in the lower left-hand corner.

(The documents referred to were marked as Government's Exhibits Nos. 565, 566, and 567, respectively, for Identification.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Have you examined Government's Exhibits 565, 566, and 567? A. Yes.

Q. Can you identify Government's Exhibit 565? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that a letter that you received? A. That is right.

5102 Q. And can you identify Exhibit 566, which is entitled, "Supplement to Board License Bulletin No. 3"? A. By putting it together with the letter, with Exhibit 565—

Q. (Interposing): We want your present recollection, Mr. Hansen? A. My present recollection is that I received this bulletin, or one similar to it.

Q. Enclosed in the letter of August 19th? A. Well, I can only assume that it was enclosed in the letter of August 19th.

Q. You will note that the dates are different? A. Pardon?

Q. I say you will note that the dates are different. A. That is right.

Q. Now is Government's Exhibit 567 a letter which you wrote, or a copy of a letter which you wrote? A. That is correct, it is.

Q. Now, Mr. Hansen, what price bulletin is referred to in the letter of August 19th, Government's Exhibit 565, if you know?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that because it has to do with a written document not yet in evidence. This is, of course, the same problem as before. This again only refers to the Paragon Plaster Company. It is just another at-5103 tempt to try to prove something against Paragon.

Mr. Steffen: We have been attempting all day to prove something against Oakfield.

Justice Stephens: Well, the first problem is that this bulletin, Exhibit 566, dated August 22nd, is dated at a date which makes it chronologically impossible that it could have been included in the letter of August 19th.

Mr. Steffen: I am asking the witness if he knows what price bulletin was referred to in the letter of August 19th.

Justice Stephens: If you know you may answer that question; the objection is overruled.

The Witness: Ask me that again, please?

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. What price bulletin was referred to, if you know, in the letter of August 19, 1939? A. I think that by that is meant this bulletin which is dated August 22nd.

Mr. Bromley: I move to strike that answer as a pure speculation. It obviously cannot be that, and all the witness is doing is speculating about it.

Justice Stephens: That motion is granted.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Let me ask you this question, Mr. Hansen. Did the Kelley Plasterboard Company supply retail price bulletins to you or to the Oakfield Gypsum Company during 5104 this time? A. Yes, we had requested them to send us their prices from time to time, whenever they made changes, both to Oakfield and to Paragon.

Q. And those prices were the same prices at which Kelley sold to dealers in the market?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that on the ground that it is a speculation again.

Justice Stephens: Do you know?

The Witness: I think I could answer that "yes", because they were frequently headed, "Salesmen's Bulletins".

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. And did you have any trade information as to what prices Kelley was selling at? A. No.

Q. Did your salesmen know? A. Except as our salesmen would pick up that information.

Q. And was the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation selling at the same prices as Kelley was selling at during this period? A. Of course I couldn't know exactly what Kelley was selling at. We endeavored to sell at the prices that he said were his current prices, for the respective markets.

Q. And you asked him for his prices? A. That is right.

Q. Did he send you his prices? A. Yes.

5105 Q. And by "you" I mean the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation? A. Both Oakfield and Paragon.

Q. Mr. Hansen, when you received prices from the Kelley Plasterboard Company was the letter addressed to you, or how was the letter addressed?

Justice Jackson: When who received a letter?

Mr. Steffen: Let me ask it in another way.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. When prices were received from the Kelley Plasterboard Company how was the letter addressed?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as a speculation; let's have the letter.

Mr. Steffen: I am asking for the general practice, your Honor.

Mr. Bromley: I don't see how he can testify to that. The only letter that has been produced is addressed to Paragon.

Justice Stephens: I think we ought to have those letters if they are available, or the absence of them accounted for, and the witness then testifying as to what was in them. This is a point which may or may not involve the Court's previous rulings.

If the letters were directed to Oakfield, and stipulated Oakfield's resale prices, then they may be relevant 5106 and material within the charge. But if they relate to Paragon, then they are not. And we ought not to bridge that by ambiguous statements or by mere recollection of the witness, if the documents are available. Aren't they available?

Mr. Steffen: We do not have the price bulletins that go way back to 1932, your Honor. We have the testimony of the witness that he did receive prices, and we have the present letter which indicates that a bulletin was furnished.

What I am now wanting the witness to testify to is as to how they were received, whether they were received by Oakfield, or by Paragon, or how.

Justice Stephens: Well, that in effect is asking how they were addressed. Now if you can demonstrate that the originals are not obtainable, and that the witness has a dependable memory of the contents and the addressees, then you can ask the witness. But the "best evidence rule" has been invoked and we must apply it.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Referring to Government's Exhibit 565, Mr. Hansen, did you understand that as conveying price information applicable to your company alone, or to your company and Oakfield?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that because it calls for the construction of an unambiguous written document, which is not in evidence.

Mr. Steffen: The question now is relating to a 5107 particular document.

Justice Stephens: Just a minute, let me read it again.

We think that objection should be overruled. That comes within the rule that I made clear just after we came on the bench this afternoon, that even though a letter may be clear on its face, if the parties dealing with the letter, sending and receiving it, had a different understanding of it, and the trade arrangement was that it meant to apply to Oakfield rather than to Paragon, or to both, that can be testified to. We are not receiving it as evidence of resale price fixing by Paragon, as that isn't charged.

Read the question to the witness and let him answer it, Mr. Reporter.

(The Reporter read the pending question)

The Witness: My answer to that is that I think this specifically applied to Paragon for this reason, that in about 1931, when Oakfield became interested in direct selling, Mr. Eldred took charge of the sales, he became sales manager, in effect, and our salesman, Mr. Earl North, reported directly to him. So he had to assemble all price information for the various markets because my company was not interested in areas in Western New York, or in Pennsylvania, or in Maryland, and therefore I would not have handled sales correspondence that involved Oakfield's direct sales to dealers.

Mr. Bromley: When you said Western New York
5108 you meant Eastern New York, did you not?

The Witness: I meant Western New York, sir.

Justice Stephens: The witness seems to know his own mind, Mr. Bromley.

Mr. Bromley: I don't know mine. (Laughter)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Did you talk with Mr. Kelley at the time that the Oakfield people commenced buying board from the Kelley Plasterboard Company? A. Yes sir.

Q. And do you recall any discussion with him as to the price at which the Oakfield people would resell to dealers? A. I don't remember that we had any such discussion. We had a long-established record of selling; we had sold board for a great many years, competitively, in the market. Our competition was on salesmanship and on quality of material, and not on price.

Mr. Bromley: I move to strike out that answer in so far as the last part of it is concerned; all parts not having to do with his conversation with Kelley.

Mr. Steffen: I don't see any basis for that, your Honor. The only possible basis would be that it was not responsive.

Justice Stephens: Read the question and the answer.

(The reporter read the record as requested)

Justice Stephens: Do you object to it as incompe-5109 tent or irrelevant or immaterial, that portion of the answer to which you do object?

Mr. Bromley: I object to it as immaterial.

Justice Stephens: I think that objection is well taken.

Mr. Steffen: May I be heard on that, your Honor?

Justice Stephens: Yes.

Mr. Steffen: That answer is, in effect, saying that there wasn't any need to discuss prices for the reason that Mr. Hansen's firm had a long-established record of maintaining prices, and that their competition was not on a basis of price. Therefore, it is extremely material, I should say.

Justice Stephens: I am afraid I am somewhat confused as to what the Government is really trying to prove here, Mr. Steffen.

Mr. Steffen: What we are trying to prove at this point is that the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation received prices from Kelley, and that they resold to dealers at Kelley's prices.

Mr. Bromley: Do you contend that that is illegal, Mr. Steffen?

Mr. Steffen: We contend that it is illegal if it is done by an arrangement with Kelley, and if Kelley influenced or induced or directed or controlled the price at which the resales were made. The previous documents that have been excluded, such as Government's Exhibit 560, for example, would be a direct showing of control of resale prices,
5110 and we do contend that is illegal.

Justice Stephens: Read Mr. Steffen's statement in answer to my question as to what the Government was attempting to prove here.

(The reporter read the record as requested)

Justice Stephens: You intend to follow it up, do you, by proof to the effect that there was something coercive or controlled or induced about this?

Mr. Steffen: Yes, although we consider that the mere fact of selling at exactly the same prices, and on exactly the same terms and conditions, would be circumstantial evidence in and of itself that they were in effect required or persuaded or induced to sell at those same prices.

Justice Stephens: Well, it might have some relevance. Standing alone it would seem to me hardly to be conclusive proof on that subject. It might be an accidental economic consequence; it might be the necessity of meeting competition; or it might be as the result of control. If the theory here is to prove that there is resale price fixing compelled, or induced, or controlled by Kelley, I suppose the answer may stand as having some relevance to that subject.

The objection is overruled.

The Court would like to make clear that its practice that non-responsive answers shall be stricken out only on the motion of the lawyer asking the question, does not 5111 foreclose the opposite party from objecting to answers which, in addition to being non-responsive, are immaterial, incompetent or irrelevant; and the Court will ask the witness to bear in mind that so far as the witness can clearly give an answer to a question, without explaining the reasons for the answer or going beyond what is a necessary answer, that he should do so.

Then, if counsel on either side need to know the reasons, they will ask for them.

In other words, make your answers as direct as you can and as concise as you can, Mr. Hansen. That doesn't mean that you have to answer everything "yes" or "no", or that you must give an answer which you don't think adequately and truthfully gives your state of mind. You must feel free about that at all times.

Mr. Steffen: Would you care to take the afternoon recess at this time?

Justice Stephens: Yes, we will [redacted] few moments at this time.

(Whereupon, a short recess was taken, after which the trial was resumed, as follows:)

5112 Justice Stephens: Proceed.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. The Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation would be selling in competition with what companies, Mr. Hansen, if you know?

Mr. Bromley: At what time?

Mr. Steffen: In about 1932.

The Witness: National; United States Gypsum; Ebsary; Paragon Plaster Company; Paragon Plaster and Supply Company; and American Hardwall Plaster Company in some cases.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. What could you say as to your familiarity with the prices of those concerns, to dealers?

Mr. Bromley: On what products?

Mr. Steffen: This is on board.

The Witness: This is a question as to my familiarity with those prices?

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Yes. I was wanting to ask you whether your company kept advised of the prices of those companies. A. I could only testify as to the markets in which Paragon was actively interested after 1931.

Q. What markets were they? A. They were mostly New York State and New England.

Q. And to those states and places, you were 5113 familiar with the sales prices of the companies that you have named in the sale of board? A. Oh, I couldn't say that. I knew generally what they were, or I tried to know.

Q. When you told us a few moments ago that your company had a reputation, or had a policy of competing on a basis of service, not on a basis of prices, what did you mean—did you mean to say that you would maintain substantially the same prices or identically the same prices, as the other companies selling in your territory?

Mr. Bromley: If this refers to Paragon, I object to it as immaterial, and I assume it does refer to Paragon.

Mr. Steffen: I think it refers to Paragon, your Honor, at this point. It may be preliminary, although the witness has testified that he has no familiarity with sales by Oakfield after 1932—Is that correct?

The Witness: As to the details of sales, that is correct.

Justice Stephens: The Court will sustain the objection so far as the questions go to the prices of Paragon. That has been clearly ruled as out of the case. If you know what the prices of Oakfield were generally, or in detail, say so.

The Witness: Not in detail, I do not.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Could you state the general policy of whether 5114 they would or would not abide by the same prices that the Kelley Plasterboard Company was making?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as leading and also as incompetent as far as the use of the word "abide" is concerned.

Mr. Steffen: I will say "follow" then.

Justice Stephens: The objection is sustained. Ask the witness what the policy, if any, of Oakfield, was, if he knows, with respect to its own prices and the prices of its competitors.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Can you answer the Court's question? A. The policy of the Oakfield Company was to obtain the top market price that it could find, that its competitors were selling at.

Q. And when you say "obtain", you mean obtain from dealers? A. Pardon me?

Q. Obtain from whom? A. Well, obtain from dealers or obtain from the company from whom Oakfield was purchasing, and distributing.

Q. Making the question apply only to board, you were buying board from Kelley, were you not, the Oakfield people were? A. Oakfield was buying from Kelley principally. I would say that they were buying from Kelley almost exclusively.

5115 Q. And can you say whether or not they got prices from Kelley on the sale of that board to dealers?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as leading, and also as incompetent because calling for a conclusion.

Justice Stephens: Well, the question as phrased, does imply that the prices were the prices determined by Kelley for Oakfield, and the question is leading. The objection is sustained.

Ask the witness what his prices were and what relationship, if any, they bore to Kelley's prices.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. What were the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation's prices during these years 1932, 1933 and 1934, and what relation did they bear to Kelley's prices? A. To the best of my experience, they were based on Kelley's prices, because that was the way we bought our material.

Q. Will you explain that, please? A. Yes, sir. We would have no way of knowing what margin of profit we were making unless we knew what the delivered price was in any particular market. Therefore, if Oakfield were making a sale in Western New York, they would have to know what Kelley's delivered price to a dealer would be there, because on that basis Oakfield's discount applied, on the basis 5116 of the net after Kelley's freight was deducted. That is when Oakfield's discount started to apply. That was the margin of profit, of gross profit.

Q. And did you want to know those prices before you actually sold to the dealers? A. We had to know them.

Q. Before you sold? A. That is right.

Q. You learned after the invoice was sent you, when Kelley invoiced it to you he invoiced it at his prices to dealers, did he not? A. That is right.

Q. But at the time you sold to those dealers, you wanted to know what the price was going to be, did you not? A. We had to.

Q. And did you get those prices? A. Yes.

Q. How? A. Well, we got them direct from Kelley.

Q. Did Kelley ever make a complaint against Oakfield that you were not selling at the prices which he furnished you?

Mr. Bromley: Wait a minute. I object to that as incompetent because it assumes facts not in evidence. The prices which he furnished were the prices which he was to charge, according to the testimony of the witness.

Mr. Steffen: That is right.

5117 Mr. Bromley: The prices which were furnished were the prices which Kelley was to charge Oakfield. Therefore the question assumes facts not in evidence.

Mr. Steffen: The witness testified, I believe, that he received prices before he made his contracts. After he made his contracts, of course he would be invoiced.

Justice Stephens: But your question is as to whether or not Kelley made a complaint that Oakfield did not sell at certain prices.

Mr. Steffen: That is right.

Justice Stephens: That isn't what the witness testified about. It assumes that he did. The objection is sustained to the question as phrased. You may ask it in another manner.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Did the Oakfield people sell at the prices appearing on the Kelley invoices, or rather on the Kelley price lists? A. I couldn't answer that.

Q. Was that your policy, or was it not? A. That was the policy.

Q. And did Mr. Kelley ever make a complaint that you did not abide by your policy; did he ever complain that you were cutting prices? A. I think that I had some conversation with Mr. Kelley once as to competing with one 5118 of his customers in New York City under this Miles thing. Now this is Paragon that is talking. I had some complaint that the price was not correct, was not competitive with his to one of his customers. At least, he asked me at what price we were selling.

Justice Jackson: At what price Paragon was selling?

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Bromley: I move to strike out the answer as immaterial.

Mr. Steffen: I claim the answer, Your Honor, simply for the relevance that it has to show the attitude that Mr. Hansen would have in the Oakfield sales. I don't regard it as very weighty, but if he receives a complaint from Kelley on his resales by Paragon, it indicates that Kelley might make the same complaint if it were a sale by Oakfield.

Justice Stephens: The objection is sustained. The answer may go out so far as it relates to Paragon.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Did the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation sell through commission men during the years 1932 and 1933? A. I don't believe I can give you a competent answer on that. Mr. Eldred handled all selling arrangements.

Q. Well, I show you what has been marked as Government's Exhibit No. 568, which purports to be a copy of the minutes of an executive committee meeting of the 5119 Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation under date of November 9, 1932, and purports to be signed with your name.

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 568, for identification.)

(Government's Exhibit No. 568 was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I call your attention particularly to the second paragraph of those minutes. A. Yes.

Q. Can you identify Government's Exhibit 568 as a copy of the minutes which you prepared and signed? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you tell us what it meant by the second paragraph in regard to the sales by commission men?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as incompetent, because calling for the construction of a written instrument which is not in evidence, and which is clear on its face.

Justice Stephens: That objection seems to the Court well taken. By the Court's ruling, Mr. Steffen, that in some situations where written instruments have a different meaning to the parties thereto, than appears on their face, the Court does not mean to open the door to having a witness describe, as to every document, what it means, if it is clear. If it is clear, as this seems to be, there is 5120 no point in having it explained. You may refresh the recollection of the witness if you wish to and—

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. (Interposing) Do you recall that matter of the sales of wallboard by salesmen on a commission basis being brought up at some time through the executive committee? A. I recall a letter from one gypsum company to the Paragon Plaster Company, asking what its policy was—

Mr. Bromley: (Interposing) I object to his stating the contents of a letter to Paragon, the letter not being in evidence.

Justice Stephens: That objection is sustained.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I will now show you Government Exhibit 569, Mr. Hansen, which purports to be a letter from Mr. Krumholz, addressed to you under date of November 14, 1932.

(The letter referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 569, for identification.)

(Government's Exhibit No. 569 for identification was handed to the witness.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Can you identify Government's Exhibit 569 for identification, Mr. Hansen? A. Yes, sir.

5121 Q. And does that refresh your recollection as to the matter of commission men and as to whether any complaint was ever made against your company concerning sales through commission men?

Justice Jackson: Against which company?

Mr. Steffen: The Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation now, your Honor.

The Witness: Well, this letter has reference to the Paragon of Syracuse and the Paragon of Scranton.

Mr. Steffen: That is right.

Justice Stephens: I don't understand that. Is this the letter of November 14, 1932, signed by Krumholz, treasurer of the Universal Gypsum and Lime Company?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Justice Stephens: It is addressed to Emil Hansen, vice president of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation.

Mr. Reporter, will you read the witness' previous answer?

(The record was read by the reporter.)

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Were you perhaps mistaken on that, Mr. Hansen, because the letter is addressed to you as vice president of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation? A. May I read the letter?

Q. Well, you don't need to read it aloud. You may read it to yourself.

5122 Justice Stephens: We have all read it. We have it before us. I just don't understand your answer. What is there in the letter that indicates that it refers to the two Paragon companies?

The Witness: It states, "I have received advice from Mr. Eldred that his branch of your organization (that is American) has no salesmen operating on a commission basis and he explains that he is not acquainted with the procedure of either your or Mr. Merriman's company"—that is the Paragon of Syracuse and the Paragon of Scranton.

Justice Stephens: In other words, by Eldred's "branch" is meant Paragon?

The Witness: No, that is the American Hardwall Plaster Company.

Justice Jackson: I thought he was the sales manager for Oakfield.

The Witness: He also was, and it may have been that he meant Oakfield when he spoke of Eldred, as well, I don't know.

Justice Stephens: I see.

The Witness: The other is a direct reference to the two Paragon companies.

Justice Stephens: Because of Mr. Merriman's connection?

The Witness: Because of Mr. Merriman's connection with Paragon of Scranton, yes, and because of my connection with Paragon of Syracuse.

5123 By Mr. Steffen:

Q. As I understand it, now, you are regarding the Paragon Plaster Company as a branch of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation? A. Not I—Mr. Krumholz may have been.

Q. But you understood him to mean that? A. I understood what he meant.

Q. At this time, did the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation have salesmen paid on a commission basis, do you know? A. I don't know whether Oakfield did or not, on this date.

Q. Do you recall whether this matter was brought up before the Executive Committee of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was that brought up as a matter having to do with the Oakfield Company or with the three parent companies? A. It was a matter of what the three parent companies were doing.

Q. It had nothing to do with the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation? A. I don't recall that it did.

Q. I would like to have you look at the reverse side of Government's Exhibit 568, which purports to be a copy of the minutes of a meeting held December 12th and 5124 13th, 1932, and which is signed by you. Can you identify that as your signature, Mr. Hansen? A. I can, yes.

Justice Stephens: That is, in this file, as a separate instrument. I suppose that is because of photostating?

Mr. Steffen: Yes.

Justice Stephens: But it actually appears on the reverse, does it, of Exhibit 568?

Mr. Steffen: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Thank you.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I would like to have you look only at the fourth paragraph, Mr. Hansen.

Will you state, Mr. Hansen, whether you at any time—and when I say "you" I mean the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation—felt insecure as respects your source of supply of board?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as incompetent because calling for a conclusion.

Justice Stephens: I don't see the relevancy of it. It may be connected, I suppose. What was the nature of the objection?

Mr. Bromley: That it was incompetent because calling for a conclusion.

Justice Stephens: I don't think that objection is well taken, if that is the only objection. That is the kind 5125 of a conclusion, it seems to me, that a business man could properly draw with respect to his company and its source of supply.

Mr. Bromley: Well, I object to it on the ground that it is leading.

Justice Stephens: Sustained.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I refer you to the matter of the several changes that you made in your source of supply, as you have testified, and ask you whether or not you felt secure in the source that you had with the Kelley Plasterboard Company?

Mr. Bromley: Objected to as leading.

Justice Stephens: We will have to sustain that objection. If you want to bring out from this witness whether or not they built a plant of their own, or what actuated them in considering building a plant of their own, you may do so by direct examination, but you have no right to lead.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Did you ever consider building a plant of your own? A. A board plant?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Justice Jackson: That is Oakfield?

The Witness: Yes.

By Mr. Steffen:

5126 Q. And at about what time, Mr. Hansen? A. Our original plans in 1920 contemplated that, and we had the space arranged for it.

Q. And were you considering it as late as 1932? A. Yes.

Q. And could you tell me why it might have been brought up in 1932? A. Our business was expanding. We were selling in markets that were competitive with other manfacturers. It was a matter of knowing that you were going to be protected in your source of supply, and also of being able to make a profit on your board instead of taking a loss on it.

Q. What do you mean by that, Mr. Hansen? A. I mean by that, that the discounts that were given to us as manufacturers, to Oakfield as manufacturers, were not sufficient to compensate for the warehousing of the board at Oakfield, and reshipping it, plus the additional expense of overhead and administration.

Q. And what were those discounts? A. 15 percent on wallboard and 12-1/2 percent on gypsum lath.

Q. Did anything come of your plans, or of your thought to build a board plant? A. We had it in mind right up to the time that we sold the plant.

5127 Q. And that was when, Mr. Hansen? A. 1938.

Q. You sold it to the National Gypsum Company? A. That is right.

Q. Since that time have you purchased board at a discount from the National Gypsum Company or any other source? A. This is the Paragon Company. Oakfield ceased to exist in 1938.

Q. Yes. A. The Paragon Company has not been able to buy at a discount.

Q. Do you recall at any time having had any conversation with Mr. MacLeish of the United States Gypsum Company concerning your sales of gypsum board? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you recall at any time that Mr. Eldred or Mr. Merriman may have had such conversations and reported them to your Board? A. I wouldn't know that.

Q. I am asking you if you recall that any report was ever made to your Board? A. Of a talk with Mr. MacLeish?

Q. By Mr. Eldred or Mr. Merriman, yes. A. Not to my knowledge, not to my recollection.

Q. Well, I show you what has been marked as Government's Exhibit 570, which is a copy of the minutes
5128 of the Executive Committee of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation dated May 29, 1933, and ask if that refreshes your recollection?

(The document referred to was marked as Government's Exhibit No. 570, for identification.)

(Government's Exhibit No. 570 for identification was handed to the witness.)

Justice Stephens: There is some doubt about the date of this. In the second line it states it to be the minutes of the meeting of the Executive Committee held on May 23; and at the bottom the date is given as May 29, 1933. The date of May 29th apparently has to do with a concurrence.

This was marked Government Exhibit 206 in the previous trial, is that correct?

Mr. Steffen: Yes, sir.

Justice Stephens: It is the exhibit of which the first two lines are:

"Minutes of the Meeting of the Executive Committee of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corp. held at Scranton, Pa., on Tuesday, May 23rd.", is that right?

Mr. Steffen: Yes.

Justice Stephens: What number is this?

Mr. Steffen: 570.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. I call your attention particularly to the first full 5129 paragraph, Mr. Hansen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection as to any time at which there was a report by Mr. Eldred concerning a conversation he had had with Mr. MacLeish? A. No.

Q. Do you recall at any time whether you opened your books to Mr. MacLeish to make an audit? A. Not to the best of my knowledge.

Q. Do you know any reason why Mr. MacLeish should be offered an opportunity to look at your books, and by "your books" I mean the books of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation? A. I wouldn't know the reason for that, no.

Q. Do you know of any complaints placed against your company having to do with sales through commission men or in any other way concerning which Mr. MacLeish might object? A. Well, I don't know why Mr. MacLeish would object, sir. I knew Mr. MacLeish in 1931 or 1932 as an attorney for the United States Gypsum Company.

Q. That is right. A. But not well at all. I had met him once or twice.

Q. My question may have been poorly phrased. Do you know of any complaints against your company in which the United States Gypsum Company and Mr. MacLeish might be so interested that you would throw your 5130 books open to allow them to look at them? A. I don't know of any.

Q. Looking at this Exhibit 570, does it refresh your recollection at all as to anything that Mr. Eldred may have reported to your committee? A. He may have, but I don't remember.

Q. Will you turn over to the other side of Government's Exhibit 570 and please read that paragraph and see if that refreshes your recollection?

Justice Stephens: So we are clear what you are looking at, does this also purport to be the minutes of the Executive Committee of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation?

Mr. Steffen: Yes.

Justice Stephens: Of the meeting of June 21st?

Mr. Steffen: Yes, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: Then that is a part of Government's Exhibit 570.

Mr. Steffen: Yes, your Honor.

Mr. Bromley: It is a different meeting, though.

Justice Stephens: Yes.

Mr. Steffen: It is a later meeting, your Honor.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Can you tell us now, Mr. Hansen, of any occasion on which complaints were made against the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation or on which there was a threat 5131 that your sales agreement would be withdrawn? A. The only one that I am personally familiar with is the one that I told you about that concerned Paragon, myself and Kelley: I know of no other complaint against our company or against Oakfield, to my personal knowledge.

Q. Well, can you testify that that Miles situation was the basis of a threat that was made against you that you either discontinue that type of sales through Paragon and Miles, or that your right to buy board would be withdrawn? A. I wouldn't know that, sir.

Mr. Bromley: Wait a minute—

Justice Jackson: (Interposing) He answered and said he didn't know.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. You couldn't say? A. I couldn't say.

Q. Do you have any present recollection as to whether there was a time in 1932 when you felt that you might lose your source of supply? A. We felt insecure from 1920 until 1938, as to our source of supply.

Q. And can you say why? A. Sir?

Q. Can you say why, in more detail than you 5132 have so far? A. Because no other manufacturer wanted to develop a live competitor.

Q. And you were a live competitor? A. I hope so.

Q. And your sales took business away from the other companies? A. I think that that is a correct statement, yes.

Q. Did you maintain their prices?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as calling for a conclusion. I don't think the use of the word "maintain" is proper.

Justice Stephens: That objection is sustained. Ask the witness what his prices were and what he did, and what his reasons were. This is your witness and you ought not to lead him.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Can you give any other conclusions having to do with prices or in any other way that would make you feel insecure in 1932? A. It would be conjecture on my part.

Justice Stephens: Don't conjecture.

The Witness: I have no reasons.

Mr. Steffen: Your Honor, I think possibly the conjecture of Mr. Hansen might be quite relevant if it went to show what Mr. Hansen's attitude was as of this time, 1932.

Justice Jackson: Why don't you ask him what his 5133 attitude was? Conjecture can't prove anything or tend to prove anything.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. What was your attitude? Did you feel insecure, particularly in 1932?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that on the ground that that question has already been ruled upon and excluded. It is repetitious and also incompetent.

Justice Stephens: Well, it is incompetent as leading, and it has been answered once or twice by the witness in his own words, that he did feel insecure. The objection is sustained.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. You told us just now that you didn't think any company would want to develop a live competitor. Can you tell us whether your sales through commission men extended your business, in your opinion?

Mr. Bromley: What company is this, please?

Mr. Steffen: The Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation.

Mr. Bromley: He testified that he didn't know whether they had commission men or not. I object to it as assuming facts not in evidence.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. How was Mr. North paid—

Justice Stephens: (Interposing) The objection is 5134 sustained.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. How was Mr. North paid, do you know? A. I don't recall whether it was a salary and commission or a straight salary, Mr. Steffen.

Q. Did you sell through jobbers—and I am speaking of the Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation? A. Did Oakfield sell through jobbers?

Q. Yes.

Mr. Bromley: Do you mean did they sell board, Mr. Steffen?

Mr. Steffen: Yes.

The Witness: Board?

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Yes. A. May I ask what you define as a jobber, how you define a jobber? (Laughter)

Q. Yes. A jobber is one who buys in wholesale lots from a manufacturer and sells at a discount to dealers at dealer prices. A. One who buys at a discount?

Q. From the manufacturer and sells to dealers.

Justice Stephens: Mr. Hansen, perhaps the Court ought to explain to you that this laughter is not directed at you. The laughter is due to the fact that there has been a great deal of debate and explanation in this case by various 5135 witnesses as to what a jobber is.

The Witness: Well, the answer to that question is no, other than the three companies, Paragon, American Hardwall, and Paragon of Scranton. That is in reference to board, is it not?

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Yes. A. All right.

Q. Did you ever have a jobber arrangement with reference to plaster? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And with whom?

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as immaterial. What has this got to do with the case?

Justice Stephens: What is the materiality of this under the issues? Is there some charge that Paragon eliminated a jobber of plaster?

Mr. Steffen: No, your Honor.

Justice Stephens: I just don't see it. Perhaps I ought to. State what is the theory of the question.

Mr. Steffen: It was a preliminary question, your Honor, and it would lead to the Fairmont Wall Plaster Company.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. Did you have any relations with the Fairmont Wall Plaster Company?

5136 Justice Jackson: And by "you" who do you mean?

Mr. Steffen: I am speaking generally as to Oakfield.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. And did you sell plaster to them on a jobber basis? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever sell board to them on a jobber basis? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know Mr. Spease? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever have a conversation with Mr. Spease? A. Yes.

Q. Concerning the possibility that he might buy board from you, and by "you", I mean Oakfield Gypsum Products Corporation? A. Concerning the purchase of mixed cars of material shipped from Oakfield, principally plaster in his bags.

Q. Did he also try to buy board from you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you agree to sell him board at a discount in wholesale lots, for resale to dealers? A. No, sir.

Mr. Bromley: I object to that as leading.

Mr. Steffen: I think it is a specific question, merely.

Justice Jackson: He answered no.

5137 Justice Stephens: It is certainly leading. The Court has sustained many objections to leading questions today, and I wish counsel would not ask them. You may ask the witness what, if any, arrangement he made with Mr. Spease concerning the sales of board, and let him tell you in his own way.

By Mr. Steffen:

Q. You stated that you had a conversation with Mr. Spease? A. Yes.
